1) Salute Report

Report to the Leader of the Revolution from Brigadier Issa H. Sesay, Battlefield Commander RUF S/L.

REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT OF SIERRA LEONE

DEFENCE HEADQUARTERS

27th SEPTEMBER 1999

TO: THE LEADER OF THE REVOLUTION

FROM: BRIGADIER ISSA H SESAY
BATTLEFIELD COMMANDER RUF S/L

SUBJECT: SALUTE REPORT

Sir,

After working on the Draft document of the Abidjan Peace Accord, you returned behind RUF Lines to consult with the Military High Command and all combatants on the Accord and its implications. While in the Kailahun District, we received reports that Colonel Mohamed Tarawallie had been destabilized by Kamajohs and SLA troops at your former base of Camp ZOGODA.

On hearing this news, I and other senior officers conveyed from Gaima to Buedu with the leader.

The next-day, before returning to Abidjan to conclude documentation and signing of the Accord, you instructed that General Sam Bockarie (Mosquito) take over as Battle Group Commander of the RUF.

From Abidjan, the Leader instructed that men should be sent across the Moin River to receive those of our troops who were fortunate enough to have successfully retreated from ZOGODA and to actively go in search of Colonel Mohamed Tarawallie. This order was implemented in full and though we were able to rescue both soldiers and civilians that had retreated from ZOGODA, we were unable to locate Colonel Tarawallie.

From Abidjan, we received further instructions. General Mosquito was to take effective command on the ground in your absence and to assume the assignment of Battle Field Commander, RUF S/L.

I was to assume the duties and responsibilities of Battle Group Commander and together we were to work to maintain the ground, by any means necessary.

General Mosquito was able to make positive contact with ULIMO and make all necessary arrangements to buy materials from them. The money that you had left with us on the ground (7000USD) was utilized to buy materials from ULIMO and with these materials, we were able to resist enemy advances in the Kailahun District.

It became obvious to us on the ground that the Abidjan Accord was nothing but paper, as the Kamajohs were being used against us with vicious attacks on our positions.

It was not long before we heard that the Leader had been arrested in Nigeria, and as we were trying to understand the circumstances of your arrest and implications to the RUF, we learnt that Phillip Palmer, Faia Musa and other members of the External Delegation were now claiming leadership of the RUF.

General Mosquito contacted Palmer telling him that since this was the action that they had taken, it was necessary for them to come back behind our Lines and brief the Military High Command and combatants accordingly. Palmer and others eventually agreed to meet us at the Nongowa Crossing Point. There, amidst drumming and dancing to receive them, the General was able to persuade all of the Coup plotters, including the Sierra Leone Ambassador to Guinea, Lt. Col. Djabi to cross-over into RUF zone. They were promptly arrested and their statements revealed an international conspiracy, to which they were party, aimed at changing the leadership of the RUF. They have since been in custody until your recent instruction to release them.

Soon after, we received information that Superman, who was operating as Battalion Commander for the Western Area Jungle, had arrested the bodyguards of Colonel Tarawalle and had executed two of them, namely Emannelle and Victor without consulting with and obtaining such instructions from the Military High Command left on the ground by the Leader.

An investigation was launched and before action could be taken against Superman, the SLPP Government was overthrown by the AFRC on the 25th of May 1997.

A few days later General Mosquito was instructed to move and join our SLA brothers in Freetown,

In accordance with the Leader's instructions, General Mosquito postponed action against Superman and instructed him to lead the advance team from Bradford to Freetown, whilst Colonel Isaac and Brigadier Kallon were to move to join the SLA Forces in Makeni. After ensuring that the security of the High Command was paramount, the General and I moved to Freetown.

Once in place in Freetown we assessed the security situation and deployed our troops in all strategic areas of the Capital and indeed the entire country. In accordance with the instructions of the Leader we took all instructions from Chairman J P Koroma and maintained the same sense of discipline and loyalty that we had developed growing within the ranks of the RUF.

Lt. Col. Gibril Massaquoi arrived in Freetown from Nigeria where he had been under detention with the Leader. He briefed us informally that he had been arrested together with the Leader but that he had escaped, all with the knowledge and consent of the Leader. A few days later Gibril would present a document to Chairman J P Koroma that he, Gibril alleges, was given to him by the Leader. In the document, it was instructed that no member of the RUF was to accept any Ministerial position or participate in politics in any way. It also endorsed the promotion of Gibril to the rank of a full colonel.

These events were reported to General Mosquito as he had not been in Freetown when Gibril arrived.

On the arrival of Steve Bio in Freetown, he became very closely associated with Lt. Col. Gibril and both seemed to be on their own agenda.

I left Freetown for Kenema in-order to distribute rations and morale boosters to the troops, as well as to organize the various deployments. Whilst waiting for my Jeep to be repaired, a vehicle pulled-up with Steve Bio and Lt. Col. Gibril within.

Gibril greeted me and introduced Steve Bio to me. Though I knew Steve from a brief meeting in Abidjan at the signing of the Peace Accord, I had never really talked to him or knew much about him. They then began to discuss the AFRC and complained about the way in which the RUF was being marginalised and treated with disrespect. We were in a public place and I advised that such talk from them was not to be done around civilians. On this advice, we, including Major Eddie Boekarie (who was with me) walked to a point out of the earshot of others. Gibril went on to say that our meeting was not a coincidence and that they had searched the entire town for me as they had an important issue on which they had to brief me. Mr. Bio then stated that he had come with a special mission and was seeking my support in launching a coup. I listened as both he and Gibril went into details of the numerous grievances held against the AFRC. He said that the AFRC had refused to share power with us and had even marginalised us in the military. I told them that the instructions that we had received from the Leader called on us to join and take all orders from Chairman J P Koroma. Steve Bio responded saying that I should disregard all that as we were all young men and that this was an operation that was necessary for the four of us, Gibril, Steve, General Mosquito and myself to undertake and assume command of the Government and State. I asked them if they had already discussed this with General Mosquito as they had just left him in Freetown. Gibril replied that they had left the General in Freetown but that he was afraid of General Mosquito and could not summon the courage to approach him on such an issue. In fact it was this very reason that had made it necessary for them to search for me in Kenema. Knowing that if I could be convinced, they were close to getting General Mosquito's support.

The two of them left Kenema that night for Bo. At around 0400HRS the following morning General Mosquito arrived in Kenema. I immediately informed him of my previous day's discussions with Gibril and Steve Bio. I told the General that they were asking us to overthrow the very Government that the Leader had instructed us to join and secure. I told General Mosquito that since that dialogue I had been thinking of a secure way of informing him and was very relieved that he was in Kenema. The General was shocked to hear this and in turn informed me that he had been called to the State House in Freetown where he was informed by Chairman J P Koroma that some members of the RUF were planning a coup together with other SLA officers. The General informed me further that he had been given the instructions to investigate the situation and report back to him. That day I moved to Bo and Gibril and Steve joined my convoy to Freetown. On arrival in Freetown I asked them in the presence of Brig. Mike Lamin, Col. Isaac and other security personnel to repeat their statements made to me in Kenema. They repeated the same statements and they were detained and turned over to Army Headquarters at Cockerill.

On new-years- eve, I left home in search of a pharmacy that was still open for business as I was in poor health. I met the Late. Honorable Gborie who informed me that he had chairs for me and had been trying to get a hold of me for two days. I thanked him sincerely and accepted his gift. Despite all the allegations and testimonies against the character of this man, I say with no hesitation that he welcomed the RUF with all his heart. On numerous occasions he would provide rations and boosters to our troops and every RUF problem was his problem. I accepted his gift in good faith only to be notified on SLDS Radio the following day that I had looted the Iranian Embassy and as a result, I had been removed from the Supreme Council and that my arrest had been ordered.

Knowing that while we the RUF were securing the Government of the AFRC, they were killing our soldiers with no action being taken and that the RUF High Command had been targeted for elimination, and knowing that I was innocent and the measures taken against me, extreme, I refused arrest and maintained the integrity of the High Command of the RUF.

In general, we were not trusted or respected by the AFRC even though they had called on us to join them. Our troops were the only ones committed to their assignments whilst the AFRC High Command rejected our war plans and strategies referring to us as 'blood-thirsty, bush-colonels'.

It became apparent to us in Freetown, that Lt. Col. Gibril had leaked information to the AFRC pertaining to Military Equipment belonging to the RUF that the Leader had kept in a safe place. Before we could confront Gibril and arrest the situation, he and the AFRC had arranged for the equipment to be delivered to them. They took delivery of the equipment without the concern or consent of the RUF High Command and stored the equipment where we had no say or access to it. When we retreated from Freetown a large quantity of the said equipment was left in storage at the residence of Chairman J P Koroma.

Due to the lack of command and control, shortage of issued materials to our front-line troops and the total lack of support of the SLA soldiers, the enemy were able to move us from Freetown and ousted the AFRC Government.

I retreated first to Waterloo and then to Masiaka. By then, the ECOMOG Force had taken Bo and Kenema and it was agreed that I should attack Bo and begin to organize to move to attack Freetown. I was successful in capturing Bo but sustained an injury that forced me to retreat back to Mile 91 and then to Makeni in search of good medical treatment.

Whilst in Makeni, I went to visit J P Koroma who was in hiding in his village. J P Koroma asked me to arrange and supervise the movement of his entire family to Kailahun as ECOMOG were advancing and the Clandestine Radio 98.1 FM, had accounted that he was in hiding in his village.

I contacted General Mosquito and the order was given to escort the Former Head of State to our Kailabuu base.

First, we had to open the road to Kono. This was done in conjunction with Superman and Brig. Mike Lamin. Having put Kono under our Control, we attacked Gandohuu with the intention of opening the road from Koidu-Geya to Sandialu but failed in our attempts. We were then ordered by General Mosquito to enter the Jungle and use the cover of the Jungle to secure J P Koroma and his family to the banks of the Moa River. Across the Moa, General Mosquito had sent vehicles ahead of us and we all reported to Buedu.

All hospitalities were extended to J P Koroma and his family and General turned over his bedroom to J P Koroma and his wife.

J P Koroma appointed General Mosquito as Chief of Defence Staff, with overall command over both the RUF and the SLA and promoted him to the rank of Brigadier General. General Mosquito called on me and informed me that since he had been made Chief of Defence Staff for both the RUF and the SLA by J P Koroma he wanted to turn over his assignment of Battle Field Commander to me and asked me to turn my assignment of Battle Group Commander over to Superman. The General said that he was doing this to draw Superman within the High Command structure of the RUF in a bid to encourage him. I accepted and assumed the assignment of Battle Field Commander and Superman assumed the assignment of Battle Group Commander.

One morning, the Chief Security Officer to the former AFRC Chairman J P Koroma informed me that his boss was planning to escape to Ghana along with his entire family. The CSO further told me that J P Koroma had a parcel of diamonds that he was planning on selling once out of the country.

This information came as a surprise to me and found it hard to believe that at a time when we were trying to put the fighting-men under command and control and provide the necessary logistics to halt our retreat and move forward, J P Koroma would keep diamonds for his own use and flee, leaving us with a problem that he had created.

Accompanied by Brig Mike Lamin and the CSO to J P Koroma I asked the latter to present the diamonds for the use of the Revolution. He complied and the matter was settled.

While in Buedu, Captain Michael Comber of the Mining Unit reported with a parcel of diamonds from Kono. The parcel was placed in my care by General Mosquito with the instructions to move with it to a transit point where I would be met by General Ibrahim and together we were to travel to a business associate of the Leader for arrangements and procurement of Military Equipment.

I arrived at the transit point and booked into a hotel.

On the evening of my third day at the hotel, Colonel Jungle and I went across the street to a tea-shop. Whilst there, it started to rain and Jungle and I ran from the shop across the street to the hotel. As we climbed the steps to enter, I touched my pockets, as I had gotten accustomed to doing since the parcel was put in my care.

To my shock and dismay, my pockets were empty. I screamed and put my hands on my head and cried. Jungle and I then retraced our steps from the tea-shop to the hotel. We searched in the rain on our hands and knees. Staff from the hotel helped us in our search, all to no avail. For the first time in my life I contemplated suicide. I above all knew the importance attached to the materials that the diamonds were to facilitate for the movement. How could I ever look my commander in the eyes and tell him that I Issa, who could be trusted with the security of the Nation, could not secure a small parcel of diamonds. As the days went by, I grew frustrated and could not eat or sleep.

Four days after the loss, Jungle and I were sitting on his bed when we monitored National Radio announcing that diamonds had been discovered on the very same street that I had suffered my loss.

Jungle and I cried knowing that the mentioned diamonds were the property of the RUF. Till this day, people still prospect this area thinking that diamonds are underground.

General Mosquito dispatched Lt. Col. Moriba to meet me and escort me back to DHQ.

On arrival, I was met by an enraged General Mosquito who angrily chastised me for the loss. I was ordered to 'fall-out' and for over a week, the General would not talk to me or even respond to my curtsies.

Finally one morning, I was summoned by the General and instructed that I should leave Buedu and make my base at Pendembu from where I was to coordinate all Front-Line Operations.

I complied with his order and stepped-up operations against the enemy at Daru. I also launched successful Jungle Missions to Joru and Niama.

General Mosquito left on a trip to secure materials for the Movement and on his return I was issued a liberal quantity of ammunition and instructed to cross the Moa River and re-capture Kono from the enemy. Prior to this, the same instructions had been given to Superman who misused the materials given to him and failed to capture the target.

On arrival in Kono I called the Brigade Commander, Rambo and other senior officers and together we arranged a forum in which general security issues were discussed and a war-plan was made for the attack of Koindu Town.

* I instructed Brig. Kallon to move to Gold Town and 'cut-off' the enemy. I led the troops in the attack of Koidu Town, attacking the enemy at 0600HRS. They put up a strong resistance using their four Mechanized Battalions deployed to defend Kono and its diamonds. Our troops proved too aggressive for them and after fourteen hours of heated combat we captured Koindu Town. The Nigerians retreated to Bumpo. Very early the next morning we attacked their positions, at Bumpo and raised them from the town. The enemy were forced to retreat through the road leading to Massingbi where they fell in Kallons ambush. All in all. The enemy lost four war-tanks, armored cars, and a multitude of heavy artillery pieces personal rifles and huge amounts of ammunition. They also suffered heavy casualties the likes of which they have never experienced in the history of ECOMOG. They were forced to retreat on foot with not even a bicycle being able to pass our defenses.

* Our Forces moved for Massingbi, Rambo and Kallon moving with the advance team whilst I moved to repel a Kamajoh Attack at Nimikoro. Our forces had by then captured Massingbi and Magboroka and were advancing to attack Makeni. I joined them, taking with me all needed Military Materials for the attack. We quickly put the Township under our Military Control. General Mosquito called me 'on set' and instructed that we allow 'Superman' to join in the operations. The General explained that though Superman had earlier refused his orders, he Mosquito was man enough to put it behind him and accept Superman back, referring to him as 'a brother in arms.' Rambo proceeded to a village beyond Binkolo where Superman had been in hiding and brought him to Makeni. That morning the two of us met and had polite discussions. Together we attacked the Barracks and captured it. At that point, I received information that the enemy were moving to attack Ijiana-Swafe and I moved to put the situation under control. Upon my return to Makeni, Rambo and Kallon reported that all Military Equipment in their care had been reported to the G-4. They reported that Superman on the other hand had taken the Materials he collected to his house. Accompanied by Kallon, I went to Superman's house and confronted him with the issue. I informed him that it was proper procedure to report all captured Military Materials to the G-4 who would then file a comprehensive report to DHO and issue the said Materials upon instructions. I asked that Superman present the Materials so as to ensure proper accountability. Superman led Kallon and I into the house and showed us where he had kept the Materials. I instructed that it be moved and reported to the G-4.

Two days later General Mosquito again asked for understanding and allowed Superman to rejoin the operations.

* Rambo was instructed to advance and attack Port Loko which he did, deploying his forward defensive at the Port Loko turn-table, leading to Kambia. Rambo shared the town with the enemy for seven days.

Superman, pleaded that eventhough Rambo had done well, he as Battle Group Commander knew the ground well and should take over the ground. He said that he had received Intelligence that the Leader had been moved to Lungi and wanted to advance as far as Lungi and rescue the Leader.

* At this time our forces Freetown were under enemy 'cut-off' from the rear and were in danger of being boxed-in and either captured alive or killed.

Rambo was withdrawn from his operation in Port Loko and instructed to open a through-way to connect with our men in Freetown.

Rambo then attacked and captured Masiaka, advanced and captured RDF, and attacked the Guineans at Waterloo, engaging them in combat for four days and four nights.

* The Guineans wrote us a letter asking for their safe passage back to Guinea, saying that they were taking their hands out of the war. I replied, denying their request. I told them that if they wanted 'safe passage' they should leave behind all their Military Equipment. A few days later I monitored the sound of heavy bombardment from the direction of Port Loko. On inquiring, I was informed that our troops had dissolved the ground and that the enemy were advancing towards Gberay Junction. I asked for Superman and was informed that he was in Lunsar and not on the ground that he had asked for and been given.

The Guinean convoy bulldozed all the way to Masiaka where my position was also bulldozed. Their mission was to rescue the Guineans at Waterloo. Upon reaching Waterloo they joined forces and made a 'U-turn', bulldozing my ambush for a second time at RDF. The Guinean convoy consisted of over four war-tanks, eight armored vehicles, a Forty Barrel Missile, four Anti-Aircraft Guns and countless other mounted weapons and over eight trucks full of personnel. As they moved they bombarded and assaulted, clearing a path for themselves.

I was extremely annoyed at my position being bulldozed and issued strong orders for an ambush to be set ahead of them. They fell in the ambush and my Bodyguard commander led a team of less than a squad of men in the capture of the Forty Barrel Missile and a large quantity of its bombs.

I moved to Escort the Missile to our rear and on my return, Superman asked to join Rambo at Waterloo. He sighted the fact that as the SLA Commanders had operated with him before he would be able to consolidate them and exercise command and control over them. Taking into consideration his status as Battle Group and the logic behind his explanations, I gave the OK for Superman to join Rambo in Waterloo.

At Waterloo Superman incited SLA Commanders and soldiers against Rambo and generally did his best to cause a break-down in command on the ground.

A few days later General Mosquito on hearing that Lt. Col. Gibril had been rescued and had joined operations at Waterloo, called me and asked me to inform Gibril that he was welcome back and that no ill-feelings were borne against him. Gibril was to also report to DHQ to brief the High Command and all on the condition of the Leader as they had been in prison together.

Superman, monitoring the dialogue on field-radio responded that He would not allow Gibril to come to the call of the High Command. A few days later, I received information from the Waterloo Front-Line that Superman and Gibril had retreated to Lunsar and had moved with a good number of men. As a result, the enemy had advanced and were now at Yams Farm.

I informed Rambo who was at my location on a Medical Pass. Rambo asked for ammunition to be given to him so that he could collect the Force from Lunsar and move to stop the enemy advance at Yams Farm. I arrived at Lunsar with only eight bodyguards and met Rambo and Gibril discussing. Gibril greeted me and we exchanged pleasantries. I told him that General Mosquito wanted him to report to DHQ not to face any charges but to give account of the state and condition of the Leader as they had been in prison together. Gibril complied and entered my vehicle. At that moment, Superman and his men came from the back of the building, opened suppressive fire and launched RPG rockets against my position. Gibril left my vehicle and joined Superman in attacking me. I managed to escape with my life but they had killed two RUF soldiers assigned to me as bodyguards.

I got in a vehicle with Major Kolo Mulba and escaped through Gberay Junction, Masiaka, Mile 91 to Magboroka.

Meanwhile, Superman and Gibril moved to Makeni and attacked my residence. They shot at my house, tied and beat up RUF soldiers and raised my compound. They entered my house, beating up my wife, undressing her and taunting her with rude and abusive remarks before she was able to escape under gun-fire.

Mr. B T Samara and others rescued from prison in Freetown, were staying with me in Makeni and were also molested and raised. RUF Military Materials given to me by the General for a planned re-attack of Freetown were looted along with 9,000 USD also RUF property. That same day Superman and Gibril attacked the home of Brig. Kallon. The entire house was raised and his wife was stripped off all her clothing and made to sit on the ground. Her suckling- child was snatched from her and repeatedly banged against a wall. This resulted in serious injuries to the child.

I reported the incident to General Mosquito who asked me to exercise restraint and he dispatched a Delegation headed by Col. Isaac to calm the situation down and investigate the incident. The Delegation obtained statements from me and proceeded to Lunsar to get a statement from my attackers. Superman and Gibril refused to co-operate and issued threats against the Delegates.

During this impasse the enemy had advanced to Gberay Junction. General Mosquito instructed that in the interest of the Revolution, we should put our differences aside temporarily and act to repel the enemy. Along with Kallon, Rambo and Brig. Isaac, four trucks of armed men were mobilized and we joined the Force at Lunsar and moved for Gberay Junction. Four of Rambo's men were killed in that attack by 'friendly fire' from the rear suggesting foul-play.

Again the enemy moved against our positions advancing towards Mile 91. I sent Rambo, equipping him with a Single Barrel BZT. He met and joined Col. Bai Burch and they were able to push the enemy past Moyamba Junction to Tiana Junction where they deployed our troops.

Rambo proposed an attack of BO and it was arranged that Kallon would hit Yele.

Kallon was dispatched to DHIQ to receive logistics for the said mission. Two days later I made a day's trip to Matotoka as the area was under Kamajoh threat. On returning to Makeni, Rambo visited me to inform me that he had repaired the BZT Weapon and wanted to move to capture Do the next morning. He left my house at around 2100HRS and I stayed up past mid-night. I stayed awake and at 0110HRS I heard heavy firing from outside. I entered my 'living-room' and my bodyguards were running from the direction of the firing. Some of them had been shot. I exited the house through a back entrance and ran for cover. A RPG rocket was launched against me and I was hit in the toe by fragment from the blast. I ran as guns blazed behind me. I got to a safe place and spent the night. The next morning with the aid of civilian's, I escaped to Makali. The hunt was on for me and I had to by-pass major towns on my way. At Makali I was at the Signal Station monitoring the Network when the Leader called. I responded and reported that I was faced with a serious problem. Not wanting to let the enemy know that there was serious in-fighting going on within the RUF, I could not go into details. At the end of my dialogue with the Leader I was attacked again by Gibril. They took me by surprise as I had been very careful not to disclose my location. The people of Makali, including the Paramount Chief Pa Alimamy Kann, will testify that Gibril led the attack. He raised the town shooting and wounding people on the ground. He swore that he would kill me and take my head to Makeni where he would put it on display.

Away from my ground at Makeni, Superman took the opportunity of calling a meeting at the Town Hall where he informed those assembled that General Mosquito and I had collaborated to hijack the leadership of the RUF and sighted the Generals advise not to respond to the call of the Leader on field-radio as proof. He informed the meeting that he had received instructions from the Leader to take full command of the RUF and to arrest and execute both General Mosquito and I, Brig. Issa.

By then I had maneuvered to Kono, after spending five days in the bush as a result of the attack on me in Makali. Kallon moved to Magboroka to take command and was able to repel numerous attacks from Superman and Gibril.

X Upon receiving instructions from the Leader, through the General, calling for Kallon to take command at Makeni. I mobilized Kallon and the said operation was undertaken. We were almost in control of the entire Township when the General informed us that that the Leader wanted us to abort the operation and for Kallon to return to Makeni. A Military Order was passed and we withdrew the force to await the arrival of the Leader on the ground.

Sir, if my Report is centered on the activities of Superman and Gibril it is not so merely because of their attacks on me but rather because of the negative results their 'out-law' actions have brought to the Movement.

Superman sought the advise of ULIMO General Bopleh and SLA Brig. Mannic. Both strong critics and self-confessed enemies of the RUF. Superman placed Former President J S Momoh in the hands of Mannic who arranged for Momoh to escape to Guinea. Mannic refused to hand Momoh over to me stating that Momoh is SLA property and not RUF.

He incited SLA soldiers to go against RUF Command and together with Gibril sought to sabotage the progress of the movement thus delaying the release of the Leader.

Superman killed Rambo in cold blood and made several attempts on my life in a bid to eliminate the RUF High Command left on the ground by the Leader.

Sir, it has not been easy controlling my emotions and harder still controlling the men who witnessed the cold-blooded killing of Rambo.

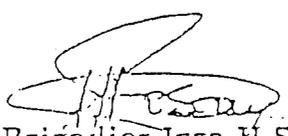

General Mosquito, I Brig. Issa and other senior officers have obediently taken all orders from you and at this time we await most anxiously your arrival when we look to have the matter resolved by you.

Lastly Sir, the vast majority of the men are in ' high spirit ' and remain loyal to the Leadership of the RUF. They have fought hard and longed for the return of the Leader.

As Battle Field Commander I pledge my loyalty to the Leader and ask that he moves earlicst, to look into the internal-affairs of the RUF.

The High Command, officers, combatants and civillians of the RUF are on the ground and on full-alert awaiting the ' last-order ' of the Commander In Chief of the RUF S/L, Corporal Foday Saybana Sankoh.

Militarily Yours,

Brigadier Issa H Sesay
Battle Field Commander
RUF S/L

2) Salute Report

Report to the Leader of the Revolution, RUF S/L from Major General Sam Bockarie.

REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT OF SIERRA LEONE RUF S/LDEFENCE HEAD QUARTERS26TH SEPTEMBER 1999

TO -- THE LEADER OF THE REVOLUTION , RUF S/L.
FROM -- MAJOR GENERAL SAM BOCKARIE
SUBJECT -- SALUTE REPORT.

The Leader Sir,

Before leaving the ground in November 1996, you placed me in command as the Battlefield Commander of the RUF S/L and instructed me to take command in your absence and to maintain the ground by any means necessary.

In that light, I have acted in the capacity you saw fit to entrust me with and done all in my power and wisdom to maintain the ground until your return to Sierra Leone.

Upon your departure I initiated contact with ULIMO as per your instructions in a bid to buy materials to repel the vicious attacks of the Kamajohs at a time when there was a peace document in place and we were not expecting to fight. At first ULIMO arrested me thinking that I had come to them to surrender. Later I was able to convince them to release me and we commenced a mutually beneficial relationship. I used the $ 7,000 USD to purchase vitally needed materials that gave us the stance to fight and challenge the SLPP Government until they were ousted by the AFRC coup. The efforts of the civilians must be highlighted as they provided Agricultural Produce which I traded for materials during the same period.

It came as a surprise to learn that the Leader had been arrested in Nigeria and an even bigger surprise when Captain Philip Palmer and others announced a change in the Leadership of the RUF. I was able to lure them to the Sierra Leone and Guinea border crossing of Nongowa and pretending that I was in support of their actions, I was able to lure them across the river into RUF zone. I arrested all of them and obtained statements from them implicating the Kabba Government in the arrest of the Leader and indicating a greater international conspiracy to change the leadership of the RUF. These statements will be presented to you as evidence.

Meanwhile in Bradford in the Western Area Jungle, Superman had killed two of Colonel Mohamed Tarawallie's bodyguards whilst others had run for fear of being killed. Commanders from all fronts were outraged by this act and were about to move to Bradford to arrest the situation when the AFRC overthrew the Government of Tejan Kabba on 25th May 1997 and called on us to join them a few days later.

On receiving instructions from the Leader calling on the RUF to join the AFRC I decided to put the Bradford issue to rest until the return of the Leader and instructed Superman to head the advance team to Freetown from the Western Area Jungle, later to be joined by Colonel Isaac and others from Kangari Hills. After insuring that our security was paramount, Brig. Issa and I entered the city to implement your instruction to join the AFRC and ensure that the security of the nation was paramount.

Thus began the marriage of uneven and unequal partners between the AFRC and the RUF.

The RUF was assigned the Ministries of Agriculture under MR SYB Rogers, the Ministry of Trade and Industry under Major Eldred Collins, the Ministry of Energy under Colonel Lawrence Wormandia, the Deputy Ministry of Education under Major Benda, the Deputy Ministry of lands and the Environment, under Brig. Peter Vandi and the Deputy Ministry of Health, under Lt. Col. Fabai. I was offered the Ministry of Transport and Communication but declined the appointment as I had not received any instruction from the Leader to accept a political appointment and because I saw it necessary to concentrate on military issues.

Sir, within the marriage a diamond was sold by a Lebanese businessman with a commission given to the government, out of which an amount of nine million Leones (LE 9000000) was given to Colonel Superman for the entire RUF movement which he embezzled.

I decided to investigate him in my capacity as the commander you left in charge. Superman deliberately refused my order and went to the extent of challenging me. I was annoyed but was advised by the War Council Chairman Mr. SYB Rogers to wait for your return to the ground.

On the 2nd of June 1996, our forces led by Superman captured over three hundred Nigerian ECOMOG soldiers and held them under the terms and conditions of the Geneva Convention, as POW's. It was the hope of every RUF officer and combatant that these POW's would be used to negotiate the release of the Leader from Nigeria. To our dismay all three hundred and some, POW's were released without our consultation. This followed meetings between the AFRC High Command and the Nigerian ECOMOG High Command. On one occasion I was unwittingly in an office in which a meeting between the above mentioned parties was to be held and I was asked to leave the room as nothing concerning me or the RUF were going to be discussed.

To make matters worse, no attention was paid by the AFRC to secure your release from Nigeria.

I as the Military High Command of the RUF was left floating without any military appointment as was the case of all RUF senior officers.

I advised that we attack and remove the enemy from Lungi and Jui but was instructed not to do so by J P Koroma.

In Freetown, I was met by MR Steve Bio and Gibril Massaquoi who informed me that MR Bio had been sent to me with instructions from the Leader and that he was to assume the office of Administrative Head of the RUF. This request was denied by me as I did not trust them and had begun to suspect a clandestine bond between the two.

Soon after, I was summoned to the State House where J P Koroma showed me an Intelligence report alerting of a plot by certain members of the RUF and SLA to overthrow his Government. He instructed me to investigate and arrest the situation.

Meanwhile, unknown to either of us, Steve Bio and Gibril went to Kenema and tried to persuade Brig. Issa to back them in convincing me to support a coup led by Steve Bio. Colonel Issa kept them on hold and looked for a safe way of relaying this security information to me.

By this time, there had been three attempts on my life in Freetown, our men were being killed without any action taken by the authorities and the enemy were re-enforcing their positions around the Capital. In addition I had just been briefed by the Head of State that certain members of the RUF were planning to overthrow his Government. The last thing that I wanted was to be arrested by the AFRC as it would have caused serious problems for the RUF.

I left Freetown and went to Kenema. Upon my arrival in Kenema I was briefed by Brig. Issa on the intentions of Steve Bio and Gibril. I briefed Brig. Issa on the situation in Freetown and instructed him to effect the arrest of MR Steve Bio and Gibril and to turn them over to the AFRC for investigation. They remained in the custody of the AFRC when we retreated from Freetown.

Dr S S Banya had also met us with a view of convincing us to overthrow the AFRC Government in favor of the SLPP. They were arrested by me and turned over to the AFRC government on charges of Treason. Again without our consent they were released.

Brig. Issa was instructed to go to Freetown to ensure that security was paramount for the AFRC Government and civilians of Freetown.

On 31 January 1997 the Late Abu Sankoh (PLO1) and the Late Honorable Tamba Gborie looted the Iranian Embassy at Murray Town. They later called on Brig. Issa and offered him a set of chairs. Not being aware of the source of the chairs and the fact that it was indeed the Late Tamba Gborie who was instrumental in welcoming the RUF and meeting the demands of the RUF when the Government was doing every thing to discourage us, Brig. Issa accepted the gift in good faith.

Without any investigation into the issue, J P Koroma ordered that it be announced on National Radio that Brig. Issa had looted the Iranian Embassy and that as a result he was suspended from the Supreme Council of the AFRC. His arrest was ordered and it was announced that the RUF had planned a coup.

This situation led to the heightening of tension in Freetown between the RUF and the AFRC and an ultimate breakdown in its marriage.

The AFRC made available 50 Million Leones to the RUF monthly, though only for a couple of months. This and other monies received were used for providing rations to our troops and assisting all deployment areas. The civilian populace were not forgotten and special consignments were dispatched by me to Kailahun.

All financial reports and returns will be presented by Lt. Col. Kennedy who was in charge of all logistics. Kennedy you might recall Sir, is one of your senior bodyguards and served as G-SO1 (LOGISTICS) during our stay in Freetown.

Before Gibril was arrested he exposed to the AFRC, information on materials that the RUF held in stock. Unknown to me and the rest of the RUF High Command, Gibril and the AFRC made arrangements for the stock to be moved in place for their use. They then took control of the entire load leaving the bulk of it stashed away at the residence of J P Koroma and fled the city whilst our troops fought the enemy from house to house with nearly empty magazines and no support fire. In the end Freetown fell and the majority of soldiers, both RUF and SLA retreated safely from the Capital.

We also rescued J P Koroma and his family and under the escort of Brig. Issa and Brig. Mike he was brought to Kailahun as was advised by your brother. His mother-in-law had to be carried on a hammock the duration of the journey. On his arrival in Kailahun I gave-up my bedroom for J P Koroma and sought his permission to enter in order to go through my drawers.

The enemy had succeeding in demoralizing our troops and soldiers both RUF and SLA raced for the Moa River in retreat and with the intention of crossing as refugees into neighboring countries. Sensing that this would greatly deplete our fighting force, I instructed that strong gates be placed along the Moa crossings and threatened to open fire on anyone attempting to cross , I further instructed that defensives be set in Kono and ahead and to put an effective halt to the retreat.

I immediately set about establishing a Defence Headquarters in Kailahun. It was from this DHQ that I intended to organize a stance and a counter-offensive and from where command and control would be maintained. Later when J P Koroma arrived in Kailahun, he appointed me to take over command for both the RUF and the SLA as Chief of Defence Staff with the rank of Brigadier General. In order to motivate the most senior officers, I took it upon myself to appoint Brig. Issa as Battlefield Commander and Colonel Mingo as Battle Group Commander. All this was done especially to encourage Colonel Mingo and ensure smooth operation. After our Freetown invasion in January 1999 I was again promoted by J P Koroma to the rank of Major General , Issa was promoted to Brigadier and Mike to the rank of Brigadier and other SLA officers were also promoted.

Sir, during this period I had been in contact with various diplomats and other international agencies such as the UN, Commonwealth, OAU, ECOWAS and even the Sierra Leone Government , with a view of effecting your release and a negotiated settlement of the Sierra Leonean crisis. These bodies lent deaf ears to my propositions as they thought that the Kabba government would be able to achieve military victory.

Back at headquarters I renewed my contact with ULIMO and tried to secure materials from them. It was out of these materials that I gave Superman a good quantity to attack and capture Kono. This move I thought would pressure the government into abandoning their mock trial against you and provide us with the ground necessary to move the war and the movement forward.

Superman used the materials to attack Kono and was able to control parts of Koidu Town. Though they were able to raise the ammo dump, they then concentrated on looting and later withdrew leaving the enemy to re-occupy the town. Even prior to that, all instructions to maintain the ground were not implemented.

With the captured materials from Kono, Superman went to the Kabala axis to join SAJ Musa. I instructed him to send some materials to which he agreed . Later he refused to dispatch the materials and refused to grant permission to the receiving officer to return to me.

A special forum of Vanguard's was held to brief them of happenings since the Freetown retreat and other important issues. It was in this forum that I learnt that Superman had a mixed- Lebanese girl with him who was deterring his concentration on military issues. It was reported that she would sit on his lap during meetings with officers and publicly flirt with one another . This information concerned me greatly and in the presence of all Vanguards I instructed Superman to report for briefing. I told him that he should not be moving with his woman on a military operation such as the one he was on as it was obvious that his priority was not his military duties. In this light, I instructed him to prepare within 72 hours and to report to DHQ. He agreed to report but later sent a long message denouncing my command and refusing to come to my call. He said that he would stay where he was and would take no instructions from me until the arrival of the leader.

The War Council Chairman and other senior officers joined me in trying to convince him to report but he refused, resorting to molesting Pa Rogers and Brigadier Isaac on set, whilst all stations were monitoring. Indeed he remained in his location, threatening any soldier attempting to comply with my instruction for all loyal forces to the RUF leadership and High Command to leave his location for the closest operational area.

Prior to this, diamonds mined from Kono were given to Brigadier Issa in order for him to make contact and delivery to a business associate of yours. At his transit point, whilst awaiting General Ibrahim, Brigadier Issa reports that he had gone to a near by tea-shop and on his way back to the hotel he realized that the diamonds were missing from his pocket. His claims of the diamonds dropping from his pockets were substantiated by live broadcasts over radio announcing that diamonds had been found on the streets of the city.

Colonel Jungle was with Brig. Issa and are both in a position to better explain the events surrounding the loss of the diamonds. I was discouraged at the loss as I had planned against revenues generated from the proceeds, however, in light of the confirmed radio broadcast on the loss of diamonds a short distance from where Brig. Issa's hotel was and the fact that the situation on the ground was such that a firm grip had to be taken of the situation and the Brig. Was a very able commander, in fact the most cooperative and effective in implementing military orders and duties, I decided to refer the matter to you on your arrival whilst assigning him to the front-line at a time when the enemy were bent on flushing us out of even our Kailahun base.

During your absence, many contacts were made to sympathizers to promote the image of the movement, details of which will be presented to you in a manner so as not to cause any breach of security. Out of these contacts I was able to get the basic needs and facilitate our military move to Kono and onwards past Machine.

The entire move was under the command of the Late Boston Flamoh (Rambo) and supervised by Brig. Issa. When Rambo captured Makeni, I convinced Brig. Issa on set to call on Superman to join in operations in order to ensure that the objectives of the RUF were placed in priority.

As usual Brig. Issa was supportive and I called Superman on set and instructed him to join in the operations. I told Superman that I had forgiven him and that the past was behind us and that we were all brothers in arms. Superman accepted the call and vowed to give his fullest cooperation. To have made this call was not an easy thing for me as Superman had been asked to provide manpower for the Kono - Makeni operations, yet another order that he defied and still I was forced to exercise maturity and instructed Rambo to go and receive Superman and to continue normal operations with him. Rambo willingly complied with the order and went to meet Superman, providing vehicles for all his men. They then returned to Makeni and put the barracks under control.

Whilst the Late Rambo was busy checking captured materials for proper accountability, Superman took the opportunity of diverting captured materials for his own use.

Brig. Issa who had taken supervised the Makeni and had given instructions for the barracks to be put under full Military control whilst he was informed of the fact that Superman had illegally taken materials from the barracks and was in possession of these materials. When approached on the issue, Superman claimed that I, General Mosquito and Brig. Issa were using Rambo against him with the aim of destroying him. Brig. Issa insisted that the materials be handed over as Superman had not only misused large amounts of ammo in his failed attempt to capture Kono but had also refused to give account of materials captured when the Koidu Town ammo dump of ECOMOG was captured.

Superman continued to refuse and Brig. Issa accompanied by Brig. Kallon entered his house and arrested all materials found. He invited Superman to the HQ in Makeni so as to make plans for moving the operation to Lunsar. Superman asked to enter his bedroom to prepare for the move and took that opportunity to escape. Superman later returned and again was allowed to join the operation.

At this point I instructed the Late Rambo to advance to Port Loko whilst Superman was to secure the Freetown highway. Rambo was successful in capturing part of the town and in capturing a large quantity of materials. Superman then suggested that as he knew the terrain well, he should take over that axis and move to capture Lungi. Thinking that he was sincere we agreed and Brig. Issa gave him the opportunity to equip himself from the ammo dump for the mission.

Upon taking over at Port Loko, Superman made no effective move to capture Lungi and also lost the valuable ground of Port Loko.

Meanwhile the troops that entered Freetown had been cut off from the rear and were being encircled leaving them no way out. I was able to coordinate their operations over set and got them to combine their forces and bulldoze from the side accessing them to the mountains through which they took a by-pass to join our troops at Benguema and Waterloo as JOI was occupied by ECOMOG . This is how the troops that entered Freetown were able to retreat . Still they sustained heavy casualties including Steve Bio, the SLPP Chairman Manakpaka and many others.

On learning that Gibril Massaquoi had been rescued from prison and had joined in the operation, I contacted him 'on set' and gave him advice and encouragement for smooth operations. Another attack of Freetown was planned but was never implemented due to the actions of Gibril, Superman and some other SLA soldiers.

Later, I was to instruct Brig. Issa to get Gibril to report to DHQ for proper briefing as he had been with you in prison and had information as to your condition. I was also of the conviction that Gibril would collaborate with Superman to go against the command that you left on the ground. I instructed Brig. Issa to assure Gibril that all was forgiven and that I held no grudge for him.

Gibril refused to come to my call, saying that he was going to operate with Superman. Superman was asked to enforce the order for Gibril to report but he also was defiant and said that he Superman was not going to make Gibril do what he himself would not do. They went on with words of insult to me and the High Command and said that they were not taking orders from me or Kailahun.

I sent Brig. Issa to the ground to invite Gibril to report to DHQ. On arrival Gibril was invited to report and he complied by entering the vehicle. At this point Superman ordered his men to open fire on Brig. Issa which they did, thus affording Gibril with the opportunity to not only escape but to take up arm against his superior command in the person of Brig. Issa, who was able to escape unhurt. Gibril and Superman went with their men to the home of Brig. Issa and commanded all the materials that had been sent there by me for use in the planned re-attack of Freetown. They vandalized the house, looting all personal properties and government funds amounting to nine thousand U.S. Dollars (9000USD).

The two, together with their men then left and based themselves in Lunsar, with the threat that ant person, including me, that tried to get to them would be killed.

I dispatched a team headed by Colonel Isaac, Major Benda, Lt. Col. Moriba, Major Jackson your bodyguard commander and Lt. Col. Sam Kpulleh, with explicit instructions to go and investigate the issue and ensure that they contain the situation and report back to me at DHQ.

I was later informed that the delegation had not been given an opportunity to investigate and were under serious armed threat by both Gibril and Superman. In time, Lt. Col. Moriba and Lt. Col. Kpulleh returned to DHQ whilst the other three stayed behind and also began to put up acts of insubordination against the High Command.

The enemy had taken this moment of internal turmoil to make advances against our positions at Benguema, Waterloo and Mile 47. The enemy then moved for Gberay Bridge. Again Superman pleaded for the opportunity to move to repel the attack on Gberay Bridge. As enemy pressure was mounting, I gave the go-ahead to for him to take up the said operation. Superman failed to move to Gberay Bridge and instead attacked Makeni late at night with the aim of killing Brig. Issa and Rambo. The home of Rambo was attacked by Superman. The attack caught Rambo off guard as he was fast asleep. He was captured shot many times and it is reported that he was even stabbed to ensure that he did not survive the attack, remarking that he Rambo was the 'Iron Jacket' to me General Mosquito and Brig. Issa and that he would die that night in the hands of Superman.

After killing Rambo, they attacked the home of Brig. Issa, launching a RPG rocket at the house. They opened fire entering the house. Brig. Issa was able to escape through a door from his bedroom leading to the back of the house. He was spotted as he maneuvered towards the bushes and another RPG rocket was launched behind him. The explosion caused a small rock to enter the toe of Brig. Issa and against day-break was able to make his escape to Makali where he dialogued with you on set while you were still in the custody of the SLPP in Freetown.

In that attack, Gibril, Superman and their men killed and wounded many soldiers, both RUF and SLA who were performing various military duties on the ground.

The next morning Superman mobilized an armed force headed by Gibril, to re-attack Brig. Issa at Makali, having been alerted as to his location through his dialogue with the Leader. They also planned to attack Mile 91 with a view of taking command at both grounds. Again Brig. Issa was able to escape and moved to Kono. Gibril chased him as far as Makali, vowing to kill him as he had done Rambo and to display his head in Makeni. I have as evidence, a video cassette recording of the public display of the Late Rambo's body. The same cassette will help to shed light on the death of Rambo and the conspiracy and action of Gibril and Superman to kill the High Command of the RUF and assume its offices and command.

After Makeni had been captured and raised by Superman and his troops, he called a meeting at the Town Hall and confidently told the people that he was acting in compliance with instructions received from the Leader and that he had taken effective command of the RUF and that I, Major General Sam Bockarie was no longer High Command of the RUF and that he Brig. Superman was taking over from Brig. Issa in Makeni.

Superman went on to accuse me on air of hijacking the Leadership of the RUF, sigliting my call for all Signal Stations not to respond to your call, as proof of my betrayal. A charge that I not only deny but take particular offense to.

Superman later went 'on air' proclaiming that he was going to advance to Kono and further still to Kailahun where he would kill me and display my head. He went on to name his assignation list.

To contain the situation I issued materials to Brig. Kallon and instructed him to take command of Magboroka and to use the opportunity to search for Brig. Issa as he was MIA as a result of Superman's ambush of him immediately after Issa had dialogued with you on air. Kallon took command of Magboroka and was soon under the attack of Superman and Gibril. This time they did not only use RPG's and GMG's but launched mortar bombs and fired Anti-Aircraft Guns against Magboroka. Kallon was however able to repel, only for Superman to re-attack, this time capturing the Town. Three days later Brig. Kallon launched a successful counter-offensive re-capturing Magboroka. Since then the ground has been under our control but has come under a series of attacks by Superman leading to loss of life and injury to numerous soldiers and civilians.

We attacked Makeni twice with a view of re-taking command of the said ground. This because of the strategic location of the Township and the fact that Makeni was under command and control and law and order was in effect when Brig Issa was in command. Civilians moved freely, knowing that their security was paramount. These same civilians were now crying to be rescued. We were in full occupation of the Township when you instructed us to withdraw and await your arrival upon which the issue would be settled. Your order was immediately enforced and troops loyal to the RUF High Command left on the ground by the Leader, were ordered by me to withdraw. The truth is Sir, that at that time the people of Makeni, including the soldiers needed to be rescued. Living conditions were dismal and it is reported that at the time Superman was getting married at a costly ceremony soldiers were suffering and in some cases dying as a result of inadequate drugs.

Till this day Superman and Gibril are contrary to my command and continue to flaunt the direct command of the Leader. They still do not submit all reports to me for my necessary information and action and onward movement to the attention of the Leader. They reserve the mandated line of command only for messages against me or to paint themselves pretty.

When we first retreated from Freetown I contacted the Government of The Ivory Coast and in particular the Foreign Minister, MR Amara Esse. I also contacted the guarantors of the Abidjan Peace Accord to impress on them the fact that our Leader was still illegally being held by the Nigerian Government and that a negotiated settlement was the only way in which peace and security could return to Sierra Leone. I even contacted the Government of Tejan Kabba in Freetown to convince them to release you and to threaten that if they continued to exercise the military option, we the RUF would push for total military victory and would escalate the war to a point beyond imagination. All this talk fell on deaf ears as even the international media refused our calls. With our capture of Kono and the raising of four mechanized battalions of the Nigerian ECOMOG force, our phones began to ring with calls from the worlds' elite press, and the very people who only a few weeks back were ignoring our calls, assuming that we were going to be flushed as Tejan Kabba had vowed, were now virtually begging to talk. I knew that the heat was on Kabba.

Our attack of Freetown put Kabba in a position where he was forced to talk, as I had earlier promised he would. He fled the city as did his Cabinet, the latter with a view of re-grouping in Conakry and launching a counter-offensive as they had done when ousted by the AFRC. On learning that his political strong-men such as Despond Luke and others were in Conakry, I obtained their various hotel-room numbers and systematically called each on the telephone claiming that I was also in Conakry with a squad of my best commandos and that we were on our way to the hotel. Within fifteen minutes of my first call the hotel had been sealed off by Guinean security forces, with tanks and armored-cars on every intersection. Desmond Luke and party beat a hasty retreat to secret 'safe-houses' and all boarded flights for different destinations the next day. This brought to a screeching halt the SLPP political stance during our Freetown attack and occupation.

We now had the edge over Kabba and his Government and asked for talks to take place under the auspices of the OAU Chairman, President Blais Campore. This on the grounds that it was in effect ECOWAS that had been fighting us and thus no troop contributing Member State could impartially host such talks. This basic premise for moving us to the table was eagerly accepted by MR Francis Okello, MR Moses Anafu of the Commonwealth Secretariat and even the Government of President Kabba.

After the initial joy of hearing your voice on set for the first time in a long time, military instincts alerted me that you were under duress and that slowly the Kabba Government would use you to diffuse the explosive state of affairs and move us from our position of strength and seek to move the Talks from our neutral ground of choice.

In my opinion this would not only cause us to loose our military edge but would have put your life in danger.

In view of this, I took the painful but necessary step of instructing all Signal Stations to monitor but not to respond to 'on air' calls from the Leader explaining to all the reasons for such an order.

In due cause, as a result of violations of this same order, the talks were moved from Bokina Fasso to Lome.

THE MILITARY FRONT

On the Military Front, the ground has not only remained intact but huge gains were made against the enemy.

As mentioned earlier in my report, four mechanized battalions of the Nigerian Army were raised at Kono resulting in the capture of a wide assortment of arms and ammunition as well as armored cars. War-tanks were also captured and burnt.

We successfully took the war from Kailahun to Freetown, putting military pressure on the SLPP Government and the International Community to effect your release.

Huge amounts of arms and ammunitions were also captured by Brigadier Issa from the Guineans including a 40 Barrel Missile and its bombs. The overall G-4 Commander is in place to report on all materials captured and on stock at hand.

Within the Military Structure of the RUF , promotions were encouraged as the only due reward for Military accomplishments.

There was widespread recruiting and training of combatants to provide a beefed-up fighting force.

The Medical unit has been enhanced with regular supply of drugs and dressing materials and the infusion of new talent has resulted in an efficient unit that now handles complex gynecological cases and performs Hernia and Appendix operations to both soldiers and civilians.

A Tanks and Armored Division has been established within the Artillery Unit to utilize captured equipment from the enemy.

Daru Barracks remains under siege with Iron-Gate defensives on all approaches to the Township.

NOTE See appendix 1 for Military Structure.

THE POLITICAL FRONT

Our move to capture Kono earned marked gains for the RUF in the political front. The International Press was effectively used to educate the world as to the aims and objectives of the RUF.

The Government of Tejan Kabba was forced to negotiate with us, a move they had consistently refused to make, vowing instead to execute the Leader and flush the RUF out of Sierra Leone.

The UN and other International Organizations were also forced to talk to us.

After much Military pressure from us and diplomatic pressure from the on-looking world, the Leader was released to Togo where along with a delegation from within the RUF on the ground in Sierra Leone a Peace Agreement was reached between the RUF and the SLPP Government.

CIVILIANS AND NON-MILITARY ISSUES

Knowing the love and respect that the Leader has for civilians, I have ensured that the status of civilians and in particular civilians behind RUF Lines has never been compromised.

They are still represented on the War Council and continue to enjoy full rights and privileges.

A Free Primary School System was launched in the Kailahun District to address the educational needs of our children. This program has been a huge success and has spread to other Districts.

The RUF and civilians behind its Lines have maintained a program of self-sufficiency and have recorded the highest production ever of rice, palm-oil and produce.

Proceeds from the sale of Agricultural Produce was used to provide much needed rations and materials for soldiers and civilians alike.

With the diamond rich ground of Kono under our control a mining unit was setup headed by Lt. Col. Kennedy who is in place to give account of all proceeds from mining operations.

Sir, I most respectfully ask you to look into the numerous complaints of both Gibril and Superman. From the execution of Vanguard in Pujehun to the killing of the bodyguards of Colonel Mohamed Tarawallie, on to the killing of Colonel Boston Flomoh (Rambo), this terrible duo have reeked havoc on the RUF. They continue to flaunt my orders and have extended the same acts of gross insubordination to the Leader.

I hasten to remind you Sir that whilst I along with Brig Issa and other loyal forces have always obeyed your orders to the letter, this duo have rejected your orders and challenged the authority of the Leader and his Military High Command.

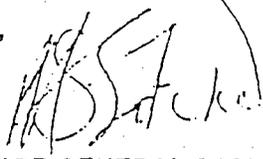

The actions of Gibril and Superman has gone great lengths to worsen the relationship between the RUF and the SLA by the indiscriminate killing of SLA soldiers during their attacks on the RUF High Command and in their bids to capture ground, and by inciting SLA soldiers against my command. The setbacks resulting in the actions of this duo are magnanimous and have far reaching consequences.

I must also mention Sir, that all troops loyal to the Leader and the High Command of the RUF are in full readiness to take Military action against Gibril and Superman and have only halted their action to await your arrival and handling of this situation.

Sir, having obeyed all instructions given by you to me and after diligently working to maintain the ground at all cost, I will not be pacified unless just and appropriate military action is taken by you. I along with a vast majority of our troops have borne the brunt of abuse and molestation, sabotage and cold-blooded murder, all in an effort to maintain the ground as per your instructions. Now that you are back and in full control of the RUF we anxiously await a speedy resolution of this problem.

Most Respectfully yours,

MAJOR GENERAL SAM BOCKARIE.

Memo to 'The Leader' from 'The Black Revolutionary Guards'
18 October 1999

REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT – SIERRA LEONE
(RUF/SL)

To The Leader of the Revolution

From The Black Guard Commander

Subj. SITUATION REPORT

Date 18th October, 1999

The Leader Sir,

I want this to claim your official attention that, the Black Guard Commander at Makeni in the person of Jackson Jakema sent a comprehensive report of situation at Makeni with reference to the skirmish between the RUF and SLA brothers. Below are as follows:-

1. On the 14th October, 1999, Brigadier I. H. Sesay and his convoy entered the Township of Makeni at about 13:00 to 14:00 hours in the afternoon. Likewise, Brigadier Superman entered from Lunsar.
2. Brigadier Superman on the 15th October, 1999, held a short meeting with the F.T.S. Heads. In the meeting, agenda lamented was to put the problem causers under control.
3. At about 15:00 – 16:00 hours, Brigadier Superman started arresting the problem causers. During this process, the SLA brothers started firing against the RUF brothers which resulted in battle between the mighty RUF and the remnants of the AFRC (SLA) problem causers. During the battle, Brigadier I. H. Sesay, fully supported by reinforcements in the form of Brigadier Superman was able to put the problem causers under complete control.
4. On the same 15th October, 1999, the two authorities were to meet face to face. But it never happened. Only the combatants were interacting with each other.

5. On the 17th October, 1999, the Black Guards wrote some observations and suggestions to the authorities. Below are as follows:-
- a. To extend defences as far as Kamrabai where the trouble-causers Commander (Brigadier Mani) is based.
 - b. To facilitate cordial relationship between the Senior Officers and the combatants as the combatants are all looking up to them to accomplish the mission.
6. For now, there is no SLA Commander in Makeni Township and its axis. Situation is under control. You only need to advise the two (2) authorities for cordial relationship so as to enhance strong security.

With much regards to you, Sir.

Obediently Submitted,

Signed:

Jackson Swarray (Major)
BLACK GUARD COMMANDER

Letter from Mayor P.S. Bienda to Cpl F. Sankoh 16 – 09 – 99

RUFSL Abeduma Village, Kallahun
District, Republic of Sierra Leone

Date: 16/7/99

To: RUFSL Leader + Vice President Republic of Sierra Leone, CPL F.S. Saunkah
From: Major M.S. Beinda on Executive Mission
Subject: Reports

I am writing to inform you about what transpired during my arrival at Foya, Lofa County Liberia on an executive mission given by your very self and me and Mr S. Y. Rogers to Kallahun we departed Monrovia on Tuesday the 5th of October at 2:00 PM and arrived at Foya, Lofa County at 3:10
PM. Immediately we arrived Brig.
Issa, Brig. Morris Kallon Brig. Mike
Lamin and other senior officers arrived at Foya from Buedu. I was directed to use the Ecomog vehicle used by Brig. Mike Lamin which was driven by Major Mende Rambo my loggages were loaded in said vehicle together with that of Mr.

 S.Y.B. Rogers. While seated in said vehicle, Brig. Issa ordered his bodyguards to pull me out of the vehicle insulting me, my mother and father. His bodyguards held my right hand and pulled me out of the vehicle by force and ordered me to go to Gen. Mosquito. Brig. Issa took my eye glasses from my face and dashed it on the ground. Gen.
 Mosquito also joined them to molest me to the highest ~~trials~~ ~~trials~~ ~~trials~~ ~~trials~~ their bodyguards to throw me out out of the vehicle and that I should walk from Foya to Mbeduma village where my wife and children are.
 Brig. Issa promised to kill me and told me that I have turned against them to form a faction in Makere against RUF/SL leadership. He said he will kill me and nothing will come out of it. In fact he is now prepared fully and can live without RUF/SL to go anywhere in the world.

 Gen. Mosquito said if am lucky to live, I will never enjoy any benefit from RUF/SL. In fact I should not go ~~to any place~~ where lives as he ~~will certainly~~ disgrace me.
~~My father is~~ monitored but he did ~~not~~ make any comment. Brigadier ~~is~~ issued. Morris Kallen said that ~~the only~~ person they listen to in RUF/SL is Sir B. Rogers as he is their ~~only~~ father. Mr. Sir B. Rogers then intervened and begged them to allow me to go to my village.
 Sir, with all the instruction you gave to Mosquito, he did not care to adhere to it. He can only regard you when you are present.
 Presently my entire family is in a state of great fear. my life is at stake. Kindly use the best method to secure my life as while in Kailashum any thing can happen to me. you know how much we all have suffered in this war. I have never been involved in any activity to sabotage the RUF/SC by any means and in any way. All matters are before you under investigation. I am still my life is threatened. Do help save my life even if I leave RUF/SC with nothing as a life is more important.

Kindly do not leave my life to be destroyed by mosquitoes and do act promptly to save our lives.

If you allow mosquitoes and others to kill me then we see again in the next world.

I am still your revolutionary brother

8) Patrick Beinda statement

Statement by Patrick Beinda on 24 September 1999 at the Presidential Guest House, Monrovia, Liberia about the order he received to help resolve dispute in RUF in Makeni in February 1999.

①

Presidential Guest House

Date: 24/9/99
Declaration

I H. Col. Patrick S. Beinda here by declare that the statement
I'm making is nothing but the truth. I am not under duress nor promised any favour for what I am going to say. said statement can be used as where necessary or as required by law. So help me God.

Statement.

On the 19th of February, 1999 while I was in my rice farm at Mbeduma Village, Buedu area in the Kailahun District I was informed by the M.P. to report to General Sam Bockarie's

② location at Buedu without delay. I immediately reported to General Sam Bockarie.

Upon my arrival he ordered me to advance to Makeni
the following day to conduct an investigation between Brigadier Issa and Brigadier Morris Kallon ~~as~~ one party and Brigadier Dennis Mingo and Col Gibbill Massagwai as another party. Four persons were selected or appointed by Gen. Sam Bockarie to go on said mission:

- ① Brigadier Isaac - Commander
 - ② Major Mulbah - member
 - ③ Major P.S. Beinda - member
 - ④ Major Tamba T. Adjutant
- We were instructed to join
Brigadier Mani, General Gblopleh and other senior officers in Makeni to resolve the conflict

(4) Vandi at Kono who wasted no time to send a honda for me. I was then taken to Koidu Town in Kono.
Finally we arrived at Makeni on the 24th of Feb, 1999. Upon arrival we were received by the late A.B. Manah (May his soul ~~so~~ rest in perfect peace)
Major Jabah and Morris Kallon
(Brigadier). We were then taken to Brigadier Issa Sesay who also welcome the delegates. The following morning of the 25th of February, 1999, we paid courtesy calls on Brigadier Mani and General Gblophoh. There, it was decided to hold a forum on the same day at 3:00 P.M. in Makeni to brief them on our mission in Makeni. The Forum was held at 3:00 P.M. on the 25th of Feb, 1999. The

(E)

Brigadier Isaac, Pa Bendu
Major Demba Marah and Major Tamba T. arrived at Kunsha to meet Brigadier Superman and Col. Gibrill Massagwai. We were well received and accom~~o~~dated.
Brigadier Superman wasted to time in briefing us on the situation on his ground, but Col. Gibrill Massagwai promised to brief us later in the morning, which he did.
Both Brigadier Dennis Inigo and
Col. Gibrill Massagwai agreed to go to Makeni to resolve the conflict but flatly rejected the idea of going to Kailahun for security reasons. At about 7:00 PM of the 27th Feb. 1999, Major Demba Marah and I
dier Isaac and Tamba T.

me that he had briefed Gen. Mosquito that there was a serious threat on Lunska. According to Brigadier Isaac Gen. Mosquito instructed us to suspend all investigations until the situation in the Lunska area was put under complete control. At the same time Brigadier Superman persisted that a commander be sent to Lunska to take care of the area while he and Col Gibrill Massagwa go to Makeni for immediate settlement of the conflict since our ultimate goal was to seek an unconditional release of our leader Cpl. Foday Saybana Samkoh. Troops/reinforcement was immediately mobilized and given to Brigadier Isaac to advance to Lunska for the Gbere junction attack.

incident. Brigadier Superman in his expounded on expressed regret over the death of both Major Brunu his strong body-guard and that of his brother Job Rambo. He said it was necessary to immediately set an investigation board to probe into said incident. He further said that people in Bokina, even General Mosquito will go with the idea that he killed Rambo; but according to him, he was not present when Rambo was killed. Later in the day, necessary arrangements were made for the burial of the two brothers and were buried. The following morning a meeting was held in the Nlaxeni Town Hall to explain to the masses about the incident. According to (12)

Isaac and several other senior officers

In another development, General Mwasquito got the information about Col. Ramba's death. He immediately went in the air and responded sharply. He said that he has already mobilized troops and were on the way to Makeni. According to him Col. Ramba was killed by Superman and that he will pursue Superman and all those connected with Superman. The High Command in Makeni appealed to General Mwasquito to exercise patience for an investigation to be conducted but to no avail. I wrote a message to him he rejected it. I was in fact accused of being a part and parcel of the incident. Troops sent by General Mwasquito attacked Makeni six times

Mosquito on his wicked plan against us but Brigadier ^{Mike} flatly refused to join him. Two days later Dr. Challe Taylor invited both General Mosquito and Brigadier Superman and resolved the matter. According to them the President advised them to forget about all that transpired and crave for unity and peace among us. To my ultimate amazement General Mosquito outrightly insulted me over the radio set in Freetown about three weeks ago after I simply told Brigadier Mike to extend my greetings to him. Col. Jackson Swaray was present and did monitor. He was also insulted by General Mosquito. If at all General Mosquito has any respect for the President of this country (Liberia) then there should

Letter to Foday Sankoh (The Leader) from the Black Guard Commander

No date

TO THE LEADER,
FROM THE BLACK REVOLUTIONARY GUARDS
SUBJ: SITUATION REPORT

Sir, on behalf of the entire Black Guard unit we are hereby taking this opportunity to make a summary report to let you know or understand the situation on the ground.

To start with, we thank the Almighty God as for your previous Concentration programmes to the entire movement that this is a Holy war which everybody within the movement have realised, because in your absence the struggle continues with lot of developments.

Sir, as you left us in 1996 to go and sign the Abidjan accord, lot of enemy pressure (Isamajors) was mounted on us, but due to the dedication and loyalty of the Command you left on the ground, we were able to contain situation until the A.F.R.C Coup'd'etat, wherein you instructed the High-Command for us (R.U.F) to join the brothers in other to form the People's Army, and defend the sovereignty of our Motherland.

The external delegates who were with you in Abidjan also went over the media that they have upheld the leadership of the R.U.F, and went to extend of insighting people, but due to the witness and the security experience of the High Command, we were able to trick them to come on the ground for us ~~to~~ work out all necessary modalities. They came through the Guinea/Sierra Leone border (Nongowa Ferry) and were finally arrested by us and brought on the ground in a locked up.

Furthermore, when we join the brothers, some of our senior officers and elders were given ministerial positions in the A.F.R.C Government. All the same things were not working well with the R.U.F members ~~the~~ in which the High-Command even decided to leave the city Freetown and decided to base in the provinces. Things were not put in a proper shape as the so called Honourables were just doing things as they like. There was no proper Command and Control until Ecomog decided to make a final strike into Freetown, in which they succeeded in driving the entire A.F.R.C from the City.

When Freetown fell in the hands of Ecomog, the High-Command therefore decided at once without any delayance as there was no Command and Control to move straight to our original base (Kailahun) and position the R.U.F Combatants to the old former 1991 defensive points, which were NIUMA, BONBOHUN and JOJOIMA. These positions were seriously defended until when the Ecomog advance to Kenema and Daru. From then, the armies had tried their level best to penetrate the defensive position, but no chance had been given to them. In the north, the enemies captured Nakeni and tried to advance to Kono. Our men retreated and defended part of Kono.

Due to the security situation, the High-Command and therefore instructed the then B.G.C. Brigadier Issah Sesay to try by all means to report with the former A.F.B.C. Chairman J.P.K. to Kailahun. As a result, J.P.K. ~~was~~ and his body guards were brought to Kailahun as per instruction. They were welcome by the High-Command and elders. Six, at this stage, the High-Command, J.P.K., Senior Officers, Junior Officers and the entire Combatants held a forum and finally agreed to continue the struggle under one structure and Command.

Immediately Freetown and the provincial Headquarters fell in the hands of ECOMOG, the High-Command was called to report by the President of Liberia Mr Charles Taylor. Wherein the President seriously briefed the High-Command and gave him the confidence, that he should not give up but to keep up the struggle and uphold the Revolution until the Leader returns. The president gave full assurance to the High-Command, and promise to give his maximum support to the R.U.F. The president also took an oath that he will never betray his brother (one today Sankoh). From that point, the president gave huge quantity of logistics (Ammunition to the High-Command for us to start repelling the ECOMOG advancement or to contain situation to this development, when the High-Command returned from Liberia, he briefed J.P.K pertaining to the latest development, and met him personally to give a helping hands with diamonds or any foreign currency he had brought from Freetown for him to impress president Taylor.

As a result, J.P.K denied bitterly that he had brought no diamond with him whereas the High Command had gathered informations that J.P.K has brought lots of diamond with him, but he wants to keep it on his own without financing the movement as we are now under one umbrella.

Therefore, the High-Command gave instruction to Brigadier Issah Sesay and Brigadier Mike Lamin for them to properly search J.P.K for diamond. After the searching lots or large quantity of diamonds was taken from J.P.K and his body guards.

Later, the parcels of diamond was given to Mr Ibrahim (General) and sister Memuna for them to travel with the parcels directly to president Taylor.

to this development, the High Command was able to receive the first satellite phone from General Ibrahim which he was use to do some important contacts with.

After General Ibrahim returned back to Buxinafaso, the High-Command also received a good caraiage of diamond from Kono. He also plan to send another good parcel to General Ibrahim in Burkina-faso for Ammunition and Arms as he had started making some important contacts for materials. The High Command therefore decided to hand over the small parcel of diamond to the B.G.C Brigadier Issah Sesay in order for him to pass through Monrovia and make his way to Burkina-faso and meet General Ibrahim to work out first modalities to get some needed materials for us.

Brigadier Issah Sesay left the base and travel along with Col Jungle and some Liberia securities to Monrovia. He did not make his way through as he only stop in Monrovia, and information was later received by the High-Command that the parcel of diamond has dropped from Brigadier Issah. He therefore return on base and gave the same report to the High-Command.

The joint security therefore ~~then~~ investigated the B.G.C and took statement from him. Later a council was held pertaining this issue, and the senior officers and elders suggested to suspend the issue until the arrival of the Leader.

Moreso, President Taylor continues to give helping hands with logistics which involves food stuff and materials. The High Command was called in every month to report to Monrovia for briefing. The High Command later called Brigadier Denis Mingle (Superman) on a forum for a mission to be carry-out to capture the whole of Kono. They came up with an agreement to apply some guerilla tactics to overrun the strategic positions in Kono district. A plan was drawn, but Superman never went with the plan, and the ~~the~~ mission fail without capturing Kono and over thirty (30) M.I.A on our side. and also K.I.A.

After this said mission, Superman was able to put some men-power together and proceeded to Kabala axis and created a jungle there.

In sept 1943, the High-Command called a Vanquered Forum. He addressed the Forum, and made all the Vanquards to understand that they should tighten-up their belts and officiate themselves as Vanquards of this Revolution. Also as to how best they should operate to promote the good image of the struggle.

In this forum the High-Command tried to constructively criticize the way Superman is behaving. The High Command made Superman available over the communication for a dialogue. In their dialogue, He criticize Superman for putting a Lebanese woman behind him which is delaying the operation. In fact to this, the High-Command therefore instructed Superman to report for a better plan-up, but he responded that he will not report to the Call. From that point, Superman started operating on his own.

without taking any instruction or orders from the high Desk.

In October, the High-Command was again call by president Taylor. We therefore went along with him to Monrovia. The High Command was instructed by president Taylor to move to Burkina Faso and meet with the Burkina President.

The High-Command, the War Council chairman and one S.L.A representative Col Eddy Kankoh took the trip to Burkinafaso. They met president Blaise Compaore, and they were highly welcome. They took two weeks in Burkinafaso. They were given words of confidence and assurance by president Blaise that he will not let Cpl Feday Sankoh down at all. The president told the High-Command to be very hard in Command to uphold the movement until the arrival of the leader. Infact he instructed the High Command to forward the R.U.F. Issue to the O.A.U as is the current O.A.U Chairman.

On their return, they were given huge quantity of materials for serious offensive to start a Campaign ~~for~~ for the release of our leader. The delegation return back to Monrovia in November. The delegation return back to case and held an immediate forum for a serious offensive to Commenge.

All the Combatants were happy and agree to start the operation in capturing Kono. The said operation - was given to the B.F.C Brigadier Issa Sesay. huge quantity ^{of material} was given to the B.F.C and he immediately left for Kono. They also held a brun in Kono and succeeded in overrunning the entire Kono district and capture some artillery weapons and huge quantity of Arms and Ammunition. The whole operation was therefore given to the Late Col Rambo who further extended the operation to Tonkolili and advance to Makeni. After the fall of Makeni, the Late Col as per instruction went and receive Brigadier Superman to join the operation.

They therefore extended the operation to port-oko as far as Waterloo and Kambia axis.

Furthermore, Col Rambo also tried his level best to link up with the other brothers that entered Freetown, but the Freetown operation was not Co-ordinated as the said Commander Blacis-Jah was not going by the instruction from the High Command. When they retreated from Freetown, the U.F.C met them and told them to present a Comprehensive report pertaining the whole Freetown operation, but they deliberately fail to do so.

According to the Black Guards security information, they brought some diamonds and lot of Foreign Currency from Freetown, but they never presented anything to the High-Command.

The late Col Rambo even arrested six hundred thousand (600,000) U.S dollars from some of the men from Freetown, and presented the said sum to the B.F.C Brigadier Issa, and also some diamonds. Again there was instruction from the High Desk for Lt Col Gibril Massagoi to report for important enquiry and briefing, but he refused the call for over four (4) good times.

As a result, there was an instruction from the High-Command to the B.F.C for Lt Col Gibril Massagoi to be arrested and turn over.

The B.F.C further went along with the Late Col Rambo and some Black guards as per instruction to arrest Lt Col Gibril and Maj Nya.

During this process, Superman and his men put on stiff resistance and even open fire and launched some R.P.G Bombs, therefore scatter the whole group and killed some men and went to the extent of advancing to Makani and attack the residence of the B.F.C and vandalize the whole compound and took every thing in the compound including the materials for operation and enough foreign currency and diamonds. He even extended in raising the compounds of some other Senior officers.

After some days, he came for the second time and attack Makani and killed Col Rambo and some security personnels, fire some people but they missed to kill the B.F.C and chase him all the way to Makali and missed him for the second time.

According to security findings, most of the senior officers can not give any advice to try to contain that situation. Instead they keep on insisting to spark the situation.

According to Superman, he has vowed not to ever take command from the High Command.

In regards to the mining process, it is only recently that the authorities has given the go ahead for mining to be going on. Lt Col Kennedy is the overall mining Commander. They have been getting some small, small pieces which is in our big record books.

Another development is that one businessman from Cuba by the name of Carlos offered the movement one F.M radio station, and the station itself has been built up a hill in Dodo Botoma.

Also in ~~December~~ January, the High Command organise an operation for the seghema to be captured in order to cut the supply between Daru Barracks and Kenema. The said operation went in smoothly, but unfortunately fail to capture. We in fact left another operation at hand to attack Kenema.

In Conclusion Sir, we are hereby suggesting that the issue of Superman should immediately be put under control before he try to mislead some of our struggle brothers.

Faithfully Submitted - YOUR REVOLUTIONARY (GUARDS) R.U.F/S/K

TO THE LEADER

From Michel

Good morning,

I met Fatou yesterday in New York. This is a recap of our meeting.

- She first asked me if there was a problem between us and why. I explained in detail why we (my partners and myself) were frustrated considering the fact that regardless what we did or suggested or proposed we did not yet had the opportunity to start, even on a little scale, the execution of our contract.

- Fatou explained to me that, starting now, she was in charge of the operation, from A to Z. She told me to forget Ibrahim, a war criminal (her own words), and to start working with her under her supervision. I answered that the leader told me to handle EVERYTHING through Ibrahim, what I did.

- At the end, she showed me the stones she brought with her. Unfortunately, regardless our contract, she told me those stones were not going to be sold to us but to somebody else, but if I agree to give more money we would do some good business in the future.

- Fatou asked me if the 80,000 $ were still available, the answer was yes of course, however, how can I spend money (as agreed), travel all the time, work for more than a year when in return I do not get any merchandise, once again I am not asking for anything for free but just for the right to buy accordingly to our contract.

- I finally explained to Fatou that EVERYTHING was possible, money wise, if I could finally meet my partners with some decent inventory that we could buy. This would show a beginning of execution and everybody would feel more comfortable.

How can I show up in front of my partners and tell them, everything is fine, I have seen some inventory in NY, we cannot buy it but let's finance the operation a little bit more and we will be in business ?

I already know the answer, we spent over 1 million dollars so far, we cannot buy anything, they sell somewhere else and ask us to pay more without anything in return, regardless our contract, what kind of a business is this ?

SUBJECT: FOLLOW-UP REQUEST

I want to thank you and the other brothers back home again very much for the half million United States dollars (500,000 USD) which I received through you for the purchase of needed material to pursue the military mission.

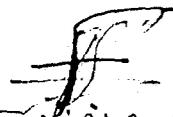

However, I wish to let you all be informed that my business partners for these materials are here with me and we have had extensive discussions on this subject. Attached to this letter, you will find a list of materials (arms and ammunitions) and their costs for your serious and urgent attention. I now need one and a half million United States dollars (USD 1,500,000) in order to purchase twice the listed materials for effective and smooth operation.

My representative, Capt. PHILIP S. PALMER, will elaborate on this all important and urgent mission as he is expected to travel along with my business partners somewhere for these materials if and only if the above-mentioned amount is available. These materials will be given to me at discount rates and the requested amount plus the one already to hand will cover in addition all transportation costs for airlifting these materials.

The airlifting of these materials to our controlled territory will be done before any payment for this mission is done by me. This is why I am urgently appealing to you and the other brothers back home for your usual cooperation in providing this time the one and a half million United States dollars (USD 500,000) to be at hand with me so that my business partners and my representative can proceed for these materials very quickly for fast and smooth operation.

Kind regards.

SUB: URGENT INFORMATION

I received the USD 29,000 (twenty-nine thousand United States dollars) through Mr. Daniel Kallon for which I am very grateful to you and the other brothers back home. We have signed the Peace Accord on November 29, 1996 just so as to relieve our movement of the enormous pressure from the International Community while I will use this opportunity to transact my business in getting our fighting materials freely and easily.

I have already finished negotiations with my business partners and I have so far paid USD 300,000 (three hundred thousand United States dollars). Our agreement is that they should receive USD 700,000 (seven hundred thousand United States dollars) from me in Sierra Leone upon their arrival with the materials into my controlled territory. The total cost of the material is USD 2,000,000 (two million United States dollars). The balance amount will be paid when the operation is completed.

I am therefore asking you and your brothers to urgently provide the needed USD 700,000 (Seven hundred thousand United States dollars) so that I will be in position to live up to my commitment to my business partners who will be coming very soon with these materials. As I have always learnt from you people, there is some money with the Burkina Faso Government for the provision of our needed materials. But as you might have known by now that government have really not shown any keen interest in assisting us as a movement. I even had conversation with Commandant DIENDERE these few days but with no positive result.

I would therefore suggest that you prepare a letter for me to meet President Compaore on this issue as we never received anything from them and even my delegates at Ouagadougou have returned ever since to my location here. Please advise on this issue.

When I went in last week, I was able to organize serious mining operations in precious minerals which I believe will help us to generate the needed foreign exchange for our mission. For now I am highly in need of this USD 700,000 in order to go in and be waiting for the arrival of my business partners. Please help me in this great hour of need and I promise not to let you down. Palmer will give you the rest of my message. My best regard to you and your family.

Sir, Be inform that the UN Relief and the other NGOs have extended their assessment mission to our control areas in Makin Magbraba. The working relationship between the OSU and UN Relief

Some international NGOs continue improving

Sir, there is no set back in terms of communication on the part of the international NGOs. There is little set back on the side of the OSU in terms of communication and needs immediate attention as the communication link between the OSU and the NGOs in front is poor

Sir as 2 March as the NGOs operations in the North is on a high pace with regret to inform you that the NGOs operations in Karamoja

 District and the rest of the East is very slow as compared to the North
 This is partly because of the recent attitude of our men at the check

 There are reports of molest tion, wasting of their time unnecessarily. In Segbure, they stole one of their bags. Sir, the army will come checking for security reasons, but it should be constructive.

 sending a team of 5 brothers on Assessment mission in the Kailahun District to cover
 Three 3 Chiefdoms only.
 The Chiefdoms are, Malema, Mandu and Dia. They are going to cover Agriculture,
 Health, Non food items and Emergency Relief. They have their forms which they will use during the Survey. As you may see, no one NGO is going to cover all the areas

Within one district. We are going to see so many NGOs in all the Districts. You are therefore instructed to join

IF YOU COULD RE-CALL THERE HAS BEEN SERIES OF PROBLEMS CREATED BY PEOPLE TOWARDS OUR LIVES © EVEN BEFORE THE PHASE II (Ø2) OPERATION STARTED, I WOULD HAVE JOINED THE OPERATION ALONG WITH YOU BUT BECAUSE OF FRACAS THAT ARISED BETWEEN MY SELF AND LOG, I COULDN'T JOIN UP NOT UNTIL LATER I JOINED OPERATIONS WITH THE LATE BROTHER PAPA TO ESTABLISH A JUNGLE WITH THE SOLE INTENTION TO EASE BURDEN ON TROOPS YOU WERE ADVANCING WITH ©

OF COURSE SINCE THAT OPERATION, NOTHING ACTUALLY HAPPENED AGAIN BETWEEN MY SELF AND ANY COMMANDER © UNTIL YOU LEFT FOR THE ABIDJAN BEACE TALKS, I MAINTAINI MAINTAINED MY COMMAND AND AREA OF RESPONSIBILITY © ZENO OF COURSE WAS CALLED UPON FROM MY JUNGLE TO TAKE OVER COMMAND AT ZOGODA ©

ZOGODA FELL IN YOUR ABSENCE AND UP TILL NOW ZENO IS AT LARGE © I LISTENED AND OBEIED THE INSTRUCTION SENT BY YOU TO JOIN FORCES WITH THE AFRC © BUT EVEN THAT AGAIN WAS MISCONSTRUCTED BY THE HIGH COMMAND ON BEHALF OF THE ^{ENTIRE} RUF MAIN THRUST TO F/IGN THAT

I'M SURE CAN BE POSSIBLE REASON FOR OUR UN-WARRANTED WITHDRAWAL FROM F/TOWN WITH ALL THESE MISTAKES ON THE PART OF OUR COMMANDERS, I STILL TRIED VERY HARD TO MAINTAIN MY HOLD ON KOND O AND I CAN TELL YOU THAT SINCE OUR WITHDRAWAL FROM F/TOWN THE ENEMY NEVER CAPTURED THE ENTIRE TOWN SHIP OF KONDY (KOND) O EVERY COMBATANT IN KOND CAN ATTEST TO THAT O

FROM KOND, I ORGANISED OPERATION FOR KABALA, MAKENI AND F/TOWN O BUT BEF RE THAT THERE WERE LOT OF APPREHENSIONS FROM THE SEA TOWARDS THE RUFF BECAUSE OF THE UN-LAWFUL REPUTITION OF THEIR BROTHERS O UPON ARRIVAL IN THEIR MIDST, REF YOUR MSG. AFTER THE MAY 25 CONF I WAS ABLED TO EASE THAT TENSION AND THEY GAVE THEIR FULLEST CO-OPERATION THAT REACHED US TO THIS POINT O

IN KONDADUQU AGAIN AFTER THE AT AND CAPTURE OF KABALA I WAS THREATENED BY LOG AFTER ALL MY EFFORTS O OF OUR THAT PROBLEM ACCORDING TO THE PEOPLE'S W/ COUNCIL WAS HARMONISED O BUT WHEN WE GOT AGAIN TO MAKENI AFTER A TEDIOUS FIGHT AND CASUALTY A TROUP WAS ALSO ORGANISED BRIG MORRIS KALLON AND OTHERS TO HARM O BUT BY GOD'S PRAISE I WAS ABLED TO ERADICATE THE PROBLEM THAT LED TO THE DEATH

OF RAMBO WAS NOT INTENTIONAL ○ AFTER YOU TRIED TO SPEAK LOG ON ONE OR TWO OCCASIONS, I WAS INSTRUCTED BY YOU TO TRY VERY HARD TO KNOW FROM THEM WHY THEY DIDN'T TALK TO YOU ○ ON MY WAY TO MARENJI, I WAS ARMED AND A MAJOR DIED FROM MY GROUP ○ FROM THAT TIME THERE WAS A FIERCE FIGHT THAT LED TO THE DEATH OF THE LATE BROTHER (RAMBO) ○ INDEED HE WAS GIVEN A GOOD BURIAL AT THE MARENJI TOWN HALL ○

ALSO, THE INFORMATION THAT I INSULTED ALL C/SIGNS AND THAT I SEEMINGLY BECAME AN ENEMY IS NOT CORRECT ○ IT WAS LOG THAT ORDERED ALL STATIONS TO REFRAIN FROM TALKING TO ME ○ BUT NEVER THE LESS WE REMAIN COMMITTED TO THE CAUSE ○

SIR, TALKING OF MY MOVEMENT TO YOUR POINT VIA KAILAHUN CAN NOT BE IN THE INTERESTS OF MY LIFE ○ ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS THESE BROTHERS HAVE ATTEMPTED TO ELIMINATE ME EXCEPT THAT THEY WISH TO SEE MY MANY YEARS STRUGGLE GO IN VAIN EVEN WITHOUT SEEN YOU ○

CONCLUSIVELY I WOULD LIKE TO MAINTAIN THE LOYALTY OF ALL THE SWA/RUF OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS TO OUR LIBERATION CAUSE ○

SIR,

UPON THE INSTRUCTION BY THE LEADER FOR ME TO PROCEED TO MARENJI, I DID SO THREE DAYS AGO. UPON OUR ARRIVAL AT MARENJI, WE WERE HIGHLY RECEIVED BY BRIG. MANNIE, BRIG. GUDITH AND PA. DEMBA MARA. THEY TRIED THEIR LEVEL BEST TO BRING US TOGETHER BUT UPON THE ARRIVAL OF COL. GIBRIL MASSAQUOI, LT. COL. NYA AND BRIG. ISSAC, THEY STATED THAT THEY WILL NEVER WORK WITH ME.

THEY PROVOKED ME A LOT, SAYING THAT I'M A REFUGEE. THEY DISARMED SIXTY (60) ARMS FROM MY MEN INCLUDING TWO R.P.G. TUBES WITH THREE ROCKETS AND THREE PACKETS OF AK ROUNDS. WITH ALL THIS, I WAS ADVISED BY THE ACTING PARAMOUNT CHIEF OF MARENJI INCLUDING MOST OF THE RELIGIOUS LEADERS TO BEHAVE AS A MAN AND KEEP TO MYSELF. THIS REASON GAVE ME THE CAUSE TO BASE AT TEKOR BARRACKS.

Sir, with psychological tones by the entire delegate to the public in c/s rock, they diligently explained the ideology of RUF/SL yesterday, today and tomorrow. The explanation were done respectively from the soldiers to the senior officers. The cause of the Lomé Peace accord was explained. Mr. Mon's Kallon also gave briefing on the programme for wounded soldiers and those wanting education. Responses from both combatants and senior officers are more cordial than before. ☺

The populace also pleaded for a clemency on those that attended the negative forum of Sam Bockarie. With mild tears, the entire delegate felt weak and bent down on the plead as genuine. ☺

The^{TO} conclude, delegate peace Buedu got that the war is over. ☺

That with no promise, conditions will improve sooner and that in the name of the Lord, no one will succeed in war any longer. 43

That people want to go home, that Sam Bockarie wrote a letter that of resignation with threatening war like. I'm leaving but destruction that will be done in SLK will never be narrated. Also, in a letter direct outstanding. 46

Based upon the sluggish negative threats to RUF/SL and the state backed by pleads from a senior officers delegate peace to Buedu is asking permission for the security brought to stay till fortifications to eradicate panic in people and evasion and that border between Sierra Leone - Liberia is closed until situation improved.

On this day 14/12/99, as a result of the increasing tension within the RUF/SL and in a bid to prevent more bloodshed in this our beloved country, I Maj. Gen Sam Bockarie (Maskito) declared that, I'm no longer a member of the RUF/SL @

I thanked all the gallant men and women of the movement for their nine years of struggle. May God bless and keep you all. I leave with a clear conscience knowing that I've always worked in the interest of the movement and it's my love for the combatants and civilians that has forced all the actions against me. THE S.L.A'S AT OKRA HILLS ARE STILL IN THE HABIT OF OFF LOADING IN ORDER TO BRING DELAYANCE IN THE PEACE PROCESS. ACCORDING TO INFORMATION GATHERED, ON THE 22ND DEC 1999, THE S.L.A'S AT OKRA HILLS WERE COLLECTED BY UNOMISIL PEACE KEEPING FORCE FROM THEIR BASE WITH THEIR ARMS FROM OKRA HILLS. UPON THEIR ARRIVAL, AT PORT LOKO, THEY PROCEEDED AT THE DEMOBILIZATION CAMP OF THE COMBATANT FROM LUNSAKW WHILST ON THE GROUND, THEY (S.L.A'S) WERE USING THREATENING REMARKS AGAINST OUR BROTHERS AT THE CAMP. IN THIS PROCESS, FIRING TOOK PLACE AND THREE (3) OF OUR MEN SUSTAINED BULLET INJURY IN THE CAMP AND LATER THEY RAIDED SOME OF THEIR PROPERTIES AND ONBOARDED IT ON VEHICLE BACK TO OKRA HILLS.

(2) DRUGS ARE NOW LESS IN THE ARAB HOSPITAL IN MAKENI. THE INFECTION OF DIARRHOEA IS SO RAMPANT AND AS A RESULT, PEOPLE ARE DYING FROM SUCH THIS OUT BREAK.

3/ SCARCITY OF FOOD IS THE MAJOR PROBLEM AFFECTING SOLDIERS RESIDING IN TEKOR BARRACKS AND AS A RESULT OF THIS, SOLDIERS ARE NOW LEAVING THE BARRACKS TO RESETTLE BACK IN THE TOWNSHIP OF MAKENI SO AS TO ENABLE THEM TO EARN THEIR LIVING.

IN RESPECT OF THE ABOVE MESSAGE, CONCERNING THE DISORDERLY CONDUCT OF THE S.L.A'S AT OKRA HILLS, WE ARE THEREFORE ASKING FOR THEM TO BE DISARMED BEFORE ANY OTHER DISARMAMENT WILL TAKE PLACE ON OUR SIDE.

UPON OUR ARRIVAL, WE CAME IN TOUCH WITH THE MSF DELEGATES ACCORDING TO THEM, THEY ARE HERE TO TREAT THE PEOPLE OF KOINADUGU DISTRICT. THEY ENTERED WITHOUT CONSULTING ANY COMMANDER ON THE GROUND, THEY WENT TO CLINIC CENTRE AND BEGAN TO TREAT PEOPLE.

ACCORDING TO SECURITY NETWORK THE MAIN DOCTOR BY THE NAME OF SAMURA USE TO INCITE THE COMBATANTS TO GO TO KABALA AND SURRENDER THEMSELVES. HE WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR OUR COMBAT MEDIC COMMANDER WHO MOVED TO KABALA. THE DRUGS BROUGHT BY THE TEAM WAS NOT EQUIVALENT TO SERVE 1/4 (ONE FOURTH) OF POPULATION. WE TERMED THEM AS SPY. THEY ARE UNDER ARREST FOR SECURITY REASONS. SIR ASK FOR FAST ADVICE.

1. THE RESIDING OF COMBINED FORCE OF KAMAJOR, ECOMOG, ULIMO AND THE GUINEAN TROOP IS POSING A SECURITY THREAT TO US AT KOINDU AS THEY ARE STILL OCCUPYING OUR TERRITORY AS INVADING FORCE. EVEN THE FERRY IS PRESENTLY ON OUR SIDE, IN THEIR CONTROL AREA BECAUSE

THEIR UNFOLDING PLAN O THAT IS, THEY CAN USE THE FERRY FOR ANY CLADESTINE MOVE BY TRAFFIKING ^{FROM GUINEA} AMMONITIONS AND WEAPONS AS THEY WERE DOING WHEN WE WERE ENGAGING THEM SOMETIME AGO O

THIS HAS EVEN CAUSED THE RESETLEMENT OF CIVILIANS VERY UNFRUITFUL BECAUSE TO THEIR RESPECTIVE TOWNS AND VILLAGES AROUND THE BORDER LINE VERY UNFRUITFUL BECAUSE OF FEAR OF ANY OTHER POSSIBLE INCURSION IN THE AREA O

2. SIR, THE CONSTANT HARRASSMENT OF PEACEFUL SIERRA LEONEANS RETURNES BY THE LIBERIAN SECURITY ON THE BORDER LINE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY. THIS HAS CONTINUED FOR QUITE A LONG TIME NOW O THEY (LIBERIAN SECURITYES) ARE ALWAYS IMPEDING THE MOVEMENT OF OUR PEOPLE TO AND FRO AS THEY CLAIMED THE BORDER BEING CLOSED O

THEY CAN EVEN GO ON PROCLAIMING THAT (WE) THE RUFF HAS COLLABORATED WITH MOSQUITO SPRAY OF ULIMO TO LAUNCH ATTACK IN LIBERIA O THIS HAS GROWN A GREAT CONCERN AMONGST US SIR O

I HAVE TRIED TO PUT STOP TO SUCH A RISING TENSION BETWEEN WE AND ~~OUR~~ ^{THE} BROTHERS BUT STILL CONTINUE AND THIS IN LONG RUN WILL LEAD TO TECHNICAL SABOTAGED THIS SIMPLY MEAN, OUR PEOPLE WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO RETURN AND AS SUCH THEY WILL NOT PARTAKE IN THE FORTH COMING ELECTION. SIR, THE REPORT ALLEGED AGAINST MY MEN WAS FALSE. IT ALL STARTED WHEN COL KOMBA AND THE DELEGATE LEFT FOR YOUR ENDO ON THEIR WAY, THEY WERE CAUGHT ONE ALIE KANU WITH SOME QUANTITY OF CLEAN RICE CARRYING TO FREETOWN FOR SALE.

WHEN HE WAS ASKED BY COL KOMBA ABOUT THE OWNER OF THE RICE, MR. KANU DECLARED THAT, THE RICE WAS OWNED BY THE GROUND COMMANDER OF BALASERA. AFTER FURTHER INTERROGATION, HE THEN CHANGED HIS STATEMENT THAT, HE IS THE OWNER. SIR, WITH THESE TWO ANSWERS, IT WAS COMPLICATIVE, INSTEAD, COL KOMBA INSTRUCTED THE COMMANDER TO APPREHEND THE MAN AND THE RICE.

UPON THE RETURN OF THE BOAT, THE BATTALION COMMANDER DISPATCHED THE MP TO GO AND ARREST THE CHAIRMAN BECAUSE OF THE REPORT THAT, THEY HAVE BEEN SEIZING RICE FROM PEOPLE AND TAKE IT TO FREETOWN FOR SALE.

SUB. COMPREHENSIVE REPORT DATE 16/10/99

SIR, REF. TO MY LAST LETTER TO YOU EXPRESSING MY CONCERN OVER THE UNFRIENDLY SECURITY ATMOSPHERE THAT PREVAIL WITHIN LUN SAR, MAKENI, AS WELL AS KAMAKWE AXIS. WHILE I WAS AWAY I CAME DOWN TO SEE HOW BEST I CAN HURRIEDLY CURTAIL ALMOST ALL SUCH UNFORESEEN SECURITIES CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH I BELIEVE IF NOT PROPERLY ADRESSED BY ME AT THIS MATERIAL POINT IN TIME CAN INTERFERE WITH THE DETAILS OF THE PEACE ACCORD ON WHICH YOU ARE ONE OF THE SIGNATORIES. UPON MY ARRIVAL IN MAKENI ON 14/10/99 I URGENTLY DECIDED TO SUMMON SENIOR OFFICERS MEETING WITH THE BROTHER IN ARM I LEFT ON THE GROUND BUT IT WAS LATER AGREED THAT THIS KIND OF MEETING BEING POSTPONED TO THE NEXT DATE 15/10/99 AN OFFICIAL LETTER WAS CIRCULATED TO ENSURE THE FULL PARTICIPATION OF SENIOR OFFICERS CONCERNED.

UNFORTUNATELY THE MEETING DIDN'T TAKE THE SHAPE MYSELF AND THE OTHER OFFICERS WERE EXPECTING AND ALL THOSE SENIOR OFFICERS EXPECTED (PARTICULARLY THE EXSLA TO ATTEND SUCH A VIABLE MEETING TO TURN UP ON THE STIPULATED PERIOD OF TIME. UNANIMOUS DECISION BY OTHER SENIOR OFFICERS WITH ME IN THE FORUM WAS TAKING TO ENSURE THAT WE GET INTOUCH WITH REGIONAL COMMANDER RESPECTIVELY.

THE EVENT JUST ABOUT THE TIME MY MAN-

APPROACH THE ROUND ABOUT (PZ) COL T...
MBA (REGIONAL COMMANDER) AND COL BAKAR (BRIGADE COMMANDER) ALL OF EX SLA OPENED SUPPRESSIVE FIRING AGAINST MY MAN POWER; HENCE ENSUED BETWEEN BOTH PARTY ONLY TO SAVE ONES LIFED EVENTUALLY,
MY MAN POWER WERE VERY STRONG ENOUGH TO REEL
THEIR COMBATANT AT A DISTANCE AFAR OF COURSE
OUR REVOLUTIONARY BROTHER (RUFSL) FROM TEKO BARRACK JOIN THE MOPING UP OPERATION TO HELP
PUTTING THE SITUATION UNDER PERFECT CONTROL

WHAT SEEMED TO BE MORE WORRYING TO ME AT THIS POINT IS THE RAMPANT LOOTING OF CIVILIAN PROPERTIES
BY THIS SAME BROTHERS UNDER THE COMMANDERSHIP OF BRIGADIER MORIS KALLOND

SUGGESTIONS:

I THEREFORE WOULD LIKE TO ADVISE FROM THIS POINT THAT IN GOOD INTEREST OF EVERLASTING PEACE IN THIS COUNTRY, YOU ENDEAVOUR TO FUTHER INSTRUCT OUR BROTHERS WHO CAME FROM KAILAHUN AXIS THROU GH ROAD TO GO BACK TO THEIR NORMAL LOCATIONS
AS MY PRESENCE IN THE ENVIRONMENT IS QUITE SUFFICIENT TO CALM ALL OTHER UNUSUAL SECURITIES HABIT WHICH WOULDN'T BE IN THE PLEASANT IMAGE OF OUR MOVEMENT ESTECIALLY WHEN ALL ARE WATCHING US

I AM PERSONALLY INFORMING YOU FROM THIS POINT ON THE GROUND THAT THIS INFOS CAN GUIDE YOU TO GIVE FU-THEER CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL OTHER PARASTATALS, NGOS
AS WELL AS THE CIVILIAN POPULACE TO FEEL TROUBLE
FREE FROM ANY INTIMIDATION WITH MY PRESENCE ON THE GROUND ALL OTHER SECURITIES ISSUE ARE PUT UNDER CONTROL ACCORDINGLY AS A WAY

OF RESTORING SANITY TO THE CIVILIAN POPULACE ONLY THAT, WHOEVER IS READY AND WILLING TO TAKE TO MY STANDING ORDER WITHIN OUR LIBERATED ZONE (NORTHERN REGION) WILL BE ALLOW TO WORK WITH US
AMICABLY UNTIL THE COMBATANT FINALLY SEE YOU ON THE GROUND SIR O

I THINK I CAN BETTER MEET THE COMMITMENT OF BEEFING UP THE SECURITY POTENTIAL OF THIS ENVIROMENT MORE THAN ANY OTHER COMMANDER AS I HAVE STRONG CONFIDENCE IN THE NEUTRAL RELATIONSHIP THAT HAD EXISTED BETWEEN ME AND THE CIVILIAN AS WELL AS THE COMBATANT I LEFT ON THE GROUND O

THE MAIN REASON WHILE I'M ADVISING ON THE
SUCH WITHDRAWAL OF THIS TROOP IS THAT I WANT TO PERSONALLY AVOID ARM CONFLICT WITH THE BROTHERS WHO WOULD LIKE TO INFILTRATE
MY AREA OF CONTROL WITH INDISCIPLINE O THE LOYAL COMBATANT AND MYSELF ARE BETIER IN PLACE TO CREAT AN ATMOSPHERE OF CONVINIENT FOR BOTH THE COMBATANT AND ESPECIALLY THE CIVIL POPULACE
WITHIN OUR AREA OF RESPONSIBILITY SIR O

ACCEPT FOR YOUR INFO AND STEP SPEEDY ADVISE SIR O

After solving these problems, you are to report to my location for briefing without fail immediately. Also make sure you handover Lt-col. Oso to the officer SSS will send with Karante for discipline. You have to take orders from SSS as he is the regional Chairman over seen all of you in the various districts. So have some allegations against him.

Sir,

Be informed that at around 12.45 pm this afternoon, Mr Mambu, the radio operator and myself were invited to the police station by both UNAMSIL and police officers with the pretext that my beam on the ground was not up to their knowledge. I made them to understand that our staying in town is up to the knowledge of ^{both} ~~the~~ the resident Minister did the Commissioner of police South. They still insist that they should take us to the police station for confirmation.

Sir, upon arrival at the police station, statements were obtained from the three of us. At the end, I made the UNAMSIL Commander in charge to understand that I came with a legal document signed by you to both the Commissioner and the Resident Minister South. The UNAMSIL Commander later talked to us peacefully and gave us a vehicle to take us back home.

Sir, the idea behind the whole show was a political maceration to suppress us from our operation. But we will not relent to perform our duty together with the chairman and other ~~disputed~~ party executive members. The district chairman, the public relations officer and others were all invited for confirmation. But we were all release later to come back home safely.

Best regard to you Sir.

Sir,

Since I arrived at Makeni on the 14th of this month as per instruction given to me by the leader that I should take over command of the Northern Region, I have been facing series of problems.

Firstly, Col. Issac visited Magboroka on the 13th October, 1999 and after very fruitful discussion, he returned back to Makeni with assurance that he will receive me 3 (three) miles out of the township. As I came with some Senior Officers but we were not welcome by any of the RUF/SL High Command here in Makeni. This cause me to originate message to the effect and you advise me to exercise patient.

Yesterday, various groups of dancers came to welcome me at the Barrack's where all my men were based, and deployed. It was during the dancing that we heard serious automatic firing and bombaroment in the township. The civilians have to run for better protection of their lives. This cause a great tense of security alarm among our mist, and for security purpose I instructed Col. Bai Bureh to go and check on the security check up. We reported back to me that it is Super-Man and the SLA brothers fighting among themselves. I gave strong instruction to my men to take deployment within the barracks. Later on, Superman Radio contacted my station that I should remain calm so that he will put situation under control. But the fighting continue up till this morning and some intelligent report received that the men have retreated out of the township and regrouped to attack the township of Makeni.

I have sent Brigadier Kallon and some Senior Officers to meet Super-Man and Col. Issac to find out the problem. I am awaiting them for their salute report. I will funish you with all other details on the security situation as things are yet unholding.

 Subj/ Comprehensive Report

16th October, 1999.

Sir,

Reference to my last message or letter to you expressing my concern over the in-friendly security atmosphere that prevail within Lunsar, Makeni as well as Kamakwe Axis whilst I was away. I came down to see how best I can hurriedly curtail almost all such unforeseen securities circumstances which I believe if not properly addressed by me at this material point in time can interfere with the detail's of the Peace Accord on which you are one of the signatories upon my arrival in Makeni on the 14th-10th October, 1999, I urgently decided to summon Senior Officers meeting with the brothers in arm. I left on the ground but it was later agreed that this kind of meeting being post poned to the next date 15th - 10th October, 1999. An Official letter was circulated to ensure the full participation of Senior Officers concerned.

Unfortunately the meeting didn't take the shape, myself and the other officers were expecting as all those Senior Officers exected particulally the ex SLA to attend such a vilable meeting to turn up on the stipulated period of time.

Unanimous decision by other Senior Officers with me in the forum was taken to ensure that we get in touch with Regional Commander Respectively. In the event just about the time my man power approach the round about (P.Z.) Col. T.M. Yamba (Regional Commander) and Col. Bakarr (Brigade Commander) all of Ex-SLA opened suppressive firing against my man power hence ensued between both party only to save one live's. Eventually, my man power were very strong enough to repeled their combatants at the distance afar. Of course our Revolutionary Brtohers (RUF/SL) from teko Barracks join the moping up operation to help by putting the situation under perfect control.

What seemed to be rampant looting of civilian properties by the same brothers under the commander ship of Brigadier Moris Kallon.

SUGGESTIONS

I therefore would like to advice from this point that in good interest of everlasting peace in this country, you endeavour to further instruct our brothers who came from Kailahun Axis through Kono to go back to their normal location as my prensence in the environment is quite sufficient to calm all other unusual securities habit which wouldn't be in the pleasant image of our movement especially when all are watching us.

I am personally informing you from this point on the ground that this infos can guide you to give further confidential to all other rarastatals, N.G.Os as well as the wivilians populace to feel trouble free from any intimidation. With my presence on the ground all other securities issue are put under control accordingly as a way of restoring sanity to the civilians populace.

Only that who soever is ready and willing to take my standing order with in our leberated zone (Northern Region) will be allow to work us amicably until the combatants finally see you on the ground sir.

I think I can better meet the committment of beefing up the security potential of this environment more than any other commander as I have strong confidence in the neutral relationship that had existed between me and the civilians as well as the combatants I left on the ground. The main reason while I'm advicing on the such withdrawal of this troop is that I want to personally avoid arm conflict with the brothers who would like to infiltrate my area of control with in discipline. The loyal combatant and myself are better-in place to creat an atmosphere of convinient for both the combatants and especially the civil populace within our area of responsibility sir. Human Rights Assessment Mission to Freetown, 25 January 1999 and 1 to 4

February 1999, Finding and Recommendations

UNOMSIL

HUMAN RIGHTS ASSESSEMENT MISSION TO FREETOWN

25 JANUARY AND 1 TO 4 FEBRUARY 1999

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the provisions of Security Council resolutions 1181 (1998) of 13 July 1998 and 1220 (1999) of 12 January, 1999, the Human Rights Section of UNOMSIL was instructed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to conduct an investigation mission in Freetown (hereinafter, "the mission"). The mission occurred on 25 January and from 1 to 4 February. The mission sought to assess the nature and extent of violations and/or abuses of international human rights law and international humanitarian law perpetrated in the period since the rebel offensive on the city on 6 January 1999.

The mission was tasked with an assessment of the actions of all relevant actors in the light of applicable law. For purposes of this report applicable law is considered to include, inter-alia, the Geneva Conventions, including Common Article 3, customary and other non-conventional international human rights law, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (all these instruments have been ratified by Sierra Leone).

Practices detailed in the report are referred to on the basis that they indicate violations, on the one hand, or abuse (i.e. actions which do not technically constitute violations), on the other, of international standards. Almost all such practices impugn or are inconsistent with multiple conventional and non-conventional standards. Accordingly, the report does not itemise the applicable legal provisions.

The report does not name victims, witnesses or alleged perpetrators. Some names or pseudonyms are on file with UNOMSIL. UNOMSIL is also in possession of or has access to documentary and photographic evidence of abusive activities.

MISSION ACTIVITIES

I. ADVANCE ACTIVITIES

Prior to the conducting of the mission, and during the period intervening between the two visits to Freetown, UNOMSIL interviewed some 35 persons, including religious and civil society leaders, who had left Freetown since January 6. These included former captives of the rebels, as well as witnesses to abusive activities of various armed forces. UNOMSIL also, to the extent possible, maintained contact with persons remaining in Freetown. Information was also provided on a regular basis by persons returning from brief visits to the city - including UNOMSIL personnel, UN agency staff and representatives of the NGO community.

II. FREETOWN PROGRAMME

The mission travelled throughout the city, visiting locations from Laka, in the Southwest, to Calaba Town in the East. Sites of incidents were visited and an overview of property damage was undertaken. Members of the mission also witnessed the perpetration of grave violations of human rights, including the right to life (see below).

Meetings were held with some 100 persons, including victims and witnesses of abusive behaviour, Government and ECOMOG officials, civil society and religious leaders, representatives of the human rights and humanitarian NGO communities, national staff of UNOMSIL and UN agencies, journalists and medical personnel. Information and views were also provided by CDF and Civil Defence Unit (CDU) personnel, medical patients, police officers and business people. The local print and broadcast media was surveyed on a daily basis.

The mission benefited from information and support provided by UNOMSIL military personnel and a UN Security Assessment Team, which were also present in Freetown during the mission dates.

III. FOLLOW UP ACTIVITIES

Following its return to Guinea, the team continued to interview persons arriving in Conakry from Freetown. Findings based on these interviews are taken account of in this report.

I. REBEL RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE CONFLICT AND THE HUMANITARIAN EMERGENCY

Ultimate responsibility for the fighting, most civilian casualties and the related humanitarian emergency in Freetown rests with the rebel forces. It was the rebel forces who undertook the assault on the city and who persisted in resisting ECOMOG, thereby extending the period of fighting and destruction within an area densely populated with civilians.

The actual number of civilian casualties will never be known. One mortuary worker in Freetown stated on 25 January that over 2,000 bodies of men, women and children had already been disposed of. Observers are also of the view that a large number of bodies remain in ruined or burned buildings in the centre and east of the city. Many others have been hastily buried on waste ground or in residential compounds. Multiple reports have also been received of bodies floating in the sea and its inlets within the city, as well as on the beaches. The mission observed some body parts remaining on beaches and other locations. Most estimates put the total casualty figure conservatively at between 3 and 5,000, including up to 1,000 rebel fighters and an unknown number of ECOMOG and CDF combatants.

It is difficult to assess the extent of damage done to civilian properties. In the city centre up to 20% of the property stock may be seriously damaged. In the east the figure rises to up to 90% at locations such as Calaba Town. (See further below)

The rebel campaign, including its terrorisation elements, caused the displacement of at least 150,000 people into the city, before, during and since the battle for Freetown. The displacement has been responsible for an exacerbation of the humanitarian emergency (see the Humanitarian Plan of Action for Sierra Leone, February 1999) and the exposure of still greater numbers of civilians to conflict-related risk.

It should also be observed that abusive behaviour of rebel forces (see below) as well as the ongoing threat which they pose to Freetown form part of the background to the current perpetration by ECOMOG and CDF forces of unacceptable acts (see below)

II. KILLING OF CIVILIANS BY REBEL FORCES

Rebel forces advancing into the and through the city on 6 and 7 January frequently forced civilians into the streets for use as human shields. People who refused to comply were either killed or had their properties destroyed. Many reports have also been received of the killing of persons who refused to obey instructions to dance and make music on the streets. A number of interviewees describe the execution of the entire populations of residential compounds for such misdemeanours. There are reports of compounds housing up to 50 people being targeted in this manner. Similar reports indicate that then and later people were executed because of their efforts to deter looting and to protect family members from assault or rape (see below). Persons caught attempting to escape from rebel custody were frequently killed. One witness saw six children killed at Wellington in mid-January in one such incident.

Much of the killing also seems to have been entirely arbitrary. Witnesses report such killings of men, women and children by rebel fighters, including an instance in which the perpetrator is stated to have been about ten years old, and another implicating an eight year old boy. It is frequently stated that perpetrators of such acts were under the influence of cocaine and other drugs, including alcohol. Killing occasionally occurred in the context of games in which people were lined up and the executioners teasingly chose who to kill and who to spare. In one such incident at Fourah Bay Road, around 21 January, three children were executed and their three sisters had limbs amputated or mutilated (see below). One man has described how he was ordered to choose between the execution of his entire family and the surrender of his daughter to a rebel fighter.

Some of those who were burned to death in their homes had been locked in or first been disabled by gunshot. A number of elderly people and infants also died in this manner. Others died while attempting to jump from burning buildings or after being shot while attempting to escape. One five-year-old girl survived being thrown into a fire at Blackhall Road on 28 January. A six-year-old girl was executed, together with her mother, on 23 January, at Wellington.

Rebel forces targeted many individuals and categories of person for execution. It is reported that over 200 police officers were killed, either at home or at their barracks in such locations as CID headquarters, Kingtom and Kissy. The means of execution included knives, machete and gunshot. One incident, on January 6, at the city-centre Cotton Tree, involved the killing by stabbing of eleven policemen. A number of prison officials appear to have been killed during and after the assault on Pademba Road Prison on 6 January.

An escapee from Pademba Road is reported to have allegedly led an attack on the Solicitor General, who was killed and decapitated. Two senior Government officials, the Resident Minister for the North and an Advisor to the President, were captured and killed. At least two journalists were sought out and killed (while other journalists, including foreign nationals, though not specifically targeted, were killed, injured or abducted).

A senior member of the human rights monitoring committees of the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights (NCDHR) was killed together with her husband. They had been apprehended after a servant of theirs was tortured into revealing their whereabouts. Prior to her killing, the female victim, a diabetic, was denied access to her insulin medication. Commissioners of the NCDHR and leaders of Human Rights NGOs report that they successfully evaded attempts by rebels to locate and most-likely kill them. A group of senior human rights NGO officers subsequently escaped execution when a shell blast frightened away their would be killers. Executed senior officers of the Council of Churches and the NCRRR may have been targeted on the basis of their positions. A senior judge was shot but survived. Nigerian nationals also appear to have been targeted. One witness, on 8 January, observed two Nigerian traders whose throats were cut apparently on the basis of their nationality.

It is reported, but unconfirmed, that rebels in search of a medical doctor who is a well-known advocate of democracy, having failed to locate her at the small hospital which she runs in the east of the city, killed most of the patients and nurses. Also, reports that the patients of the psychiatric hospital at Kissy have been killed and that up to 200 hundred people were executed at a Kissy Mosque remain unverified at this time.

III. REBEL PERPETRATION OF MUTILATIONS AND AMPUTATIONS

In the first days of the fighting there were very few reports of amputations or mutilations. Some incidents did occur of amputation of limbs and degradation of the bodies of ECOMOG soldiers, such as at Ferry Junction, sometime between 6 and 8 January. By 10 January, civilians were being targeted. Exact figures for the rate of amputations and mutilations are unavailable. However, by 25 January, medical sources were indicating that many hundreds of such cases had been admitted for treatment. By that date, some 70 had been treated at just one medical facility, Connaught Hospital. Doctors emphasise that many victims either fail to seek medical attention or die following the attacks.

Amputation / mutilation victims include men, women and children. One of the youngest recorded victims is a six-year-old girl whose left arm was severed by an axe at Ashobi Corner, Blackhall Road, on 21 January. Most amputations are of one or both arms. Some victims have also lost a leg. One nine-year-old boy had his right leg amputated and was shot in the other leg in an incident at Circular Road on 14 January. Mutilations are commonly of the arms and often appear to be failed attempts at amputation of the hands. Some victims have lost fingers - one 9-year-old girl had four fingers severed by machete blows in an incident at Personage Street on 15 January.

The mission witnessed a woman being admitted to Connaught Hospital, on 3 February, who reported that she had been injured in an otherwise unreported mutilation variant - the pouring over her body of boiling water.

IV. REBEL PERPETRATION OF RAPE AND SEXUAL ABUSE

Rape of females, including children, appears to have been a standard practice of the rebel combatants. Many people report that they witnessed acts of violent group rape, including in public places, including Kroo Town Road and Kissy. Persistent reports have been received from victims and witnesses indicating that young women and girls were rounded up in neighbourhoods of the city and obliged to report nightly to be sexually abused by rebel fighters.

The mission interviewed some of the victims of one well-documented incident of repeated rape which occurred in the Cline Town area, commencing on 8 January. The local rebel commander ordered that all virgin girls report for a physical examination. A female companion of the commander then checked the girls in order to verify their status as virgins. Those who passed the test, mostly aged between 12 and 15, were ordered to report each night for sexual abuse by the commander and his men. Some of the girls were subsequently abducted and taken away by the retreating rebels. A high incidence of rape of children is also reported from the Clay Factory Displaced Persons Centre from 15 to 25 January. Other reports have been received from the Pademba Road area, the city centre and Kingtom. One policeman in Kingtom reportedly saw his three daughters raped before they were abducted.

Former abductees of the rebels indicate that women captives were raped as a matter of course. One witness reported that female captives were told to submit or be killed. He saw three girls raped in these circumstances on 8 January. Many women and girls admitted to hospital with war-related injuries also report that they were raped.

A reliable report has been received that one pregnant woman lost her child after being raped and was paid "compensation money" by the perpetrator. Another informant reported the death of another pregnant women after she had been raped.

V. REBEL DEPLOYMENT OF CHILD SOLDIERS

A number of witnesses and victims report that a significant number of the rebel combatants were children. One military official puts the figure at some 10% of the rebel force. A patient at one hospital reports that his gunshot wound was inflicted by a boy aged no more than 8 years old. Another witness states that he saw a boy of about 11 years in command of a small group of fighters active in the city centre on 7 January. There are widespread reports that the rebels used children as snipers - one child fighter in ECOMOG custody confirmed that he had been a sniper.

A number of those reportedly summarily killed by ECOMOG for alleged rebel activities were children. An informant, described by UN officials as "reliable", states that an 8-year-old boy was executed by ECOMOG having been found with a pistol. A 14 year old boy was reportedly executed on 16 January, at Customs Post, Susan's Bay, and a 16 year old boy on 18 January, at Port Loko Wharf. (See below).

While most of the child combatants are assumed to be members of the RUF, former captives of the rebels state that a significant number of children of former SLA soldiers were active.

Many informants, including former abductees of the rebels, report that rebel child combatants were frequently under the influence of drugs and that their commanders encouraged this practice. A number of reports have been received of a high usage of cocaine, self-administered in open wounds on the arm which were then covered with adhesive tape.

VI. PERPETRATION OF ABDUCTION BY REBEL FORCES

The rebels abducted a large but unverifiable number of people. These include staff of UN agencies and NGOs, students, and people from all social backgrounds. One indication of the scale of the abductions is that childcare agencies had, by February 4, received 1192 reports of children who had gone missing since January 6. 300 of these had been physically taken from their parents by rebels. Another indication is the report of a reliable informant who escaped from the rebels that some 500 people were held together with him in just one camp in the hills to the east of Freetown. He states that 75% of the captives were women aged from 12 to 20. The youngest abductee reported to the mission is a 9-year-old girl, taken from the Clay Factory Displaced Persons Centre on 23 January. A number of abductees either escaped or were released. A number of them have provided to the mission comprehensive information on their captivity.

Escapees report that young boy abductees tended to be used as porters or were selected for training as fighters. Older men were retained solely for portage. Women and girls were retained to cook and for sexual purposes. One former abductee displayed to the mission the "brand" which rebels had applied to his arm with burning plastic.

A small number of prominent Sierra Leone personalities and foreigners were abducted and kept under close guard. The Sierra Leoneans included the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Freetown. Former President Momoh was also detained by the rebels following his removal from Pademba Road Prison. Foreign detainees, at one time or another, included 13 Indian workers, 6 Indian and one Kenyan Roman Catholic Sisters, five Italian and one Spanish Roman Catholic priests (including Fr. Mario Guerra who had been abducted during 1998), one Spanish and one French journalist. At least eight of the abductees were killed and two others seriously injured. At least two others of the abductees were subjected to ill treatment. Most of the remainder, including the Archbishop, have either escaped or been released. It is reported that forces unknown may have killed former President Momoh. The situation of another prominent Sierra Leonean abductee is unknown.

VII. DESTRUCTION OF CIVILIAN AND UTILITY PROPERTIES AND LOOTING

Rebel forces are responsible for the deliberate widespread destruction of civilian property and public utilities. Rates of destruction of the property stock have been noted above as some 20% in the city centre and rising to some 90% in the most easterly of hinterland population centres. In the city centre, however, some streets, such as Pademba Road, near the prison, Canton Street, parts of Kissy Road and West Street have been comprehensively destroyed. Destruction extends to the simple dwellings of indigent people, as well as churches, mosques, schools, orphanages, medical facilities, community centres, police stations, the City Hall, Pademba Road Prison, New England Prison, SLBS and other non-military service facilities.

Many of the destruction sites appear to have been arbitrarily chosen. Others were reportedly picked out because of the refusal of the residents to hand over sufficient cash or goods to looting rebels or because the occupants failed to obey instructions to come out on the streets, serve as "human shields" or hand over girls for sexual purposes.

Some other homes, businesses and public utilities appear to have been targeted because of their function or the public profile of the occupants. These include public utility buildings and the residences and offices of human rights activists, lawyers, journalists and Government officials. The UNOMSIL headquarters was largely destroyed by fire, including the offices and library of its Human Rights Section, and severe fire damage was done to UN House and other UN facilities. A number of diplomatic facilities were attacked, including the Nigerian High Commission, which was entirely destroyed.

It is reported that a large but unverifiable number of people were killed in the process of destruction of buildings (see above).

An unascertainable degree of the damage to the property stock was inflicted by ECOMOG, including as a result of aerial bombardment. It is reported, for instance, that aerial attacks inflicted damage in Fisher Street, Nicol Street, Coker Lane, Bombay Street, Wilberforce Street, Clay Factory Displaced Persons Centre and at the Basharia Mosque in Susan's Bay.

In the first days of the rebel offensive witnesses report that some rebel commanders executed fighters who engaged in looting. However, during that period and subsequently, rebel forces did engage in widespread theft of money and looting of residences and business properties. Witnesses report that rebels came to steal or loot from residential compounds in wave after wave over a period of days. An unverifiable number of people were killed due to their failure to satisfy the looters. There are also widespread reports of people being abducted to transport looted property to rebel camps.

The looting and destruction of commercial properties and food stores has exacerbated the humanitarian situation in Freetown and renders more problematic the restoration of the essential commercial infrastructure.

VIII. ACTIVITIES OF ECOMOG

(a) Summary Executions

Since the first days of the combat in Freetown there have been reports that ECOMOG was summarily executing detainees who were allegedly either rebels or rebel sympathisers. One of the earliest reliable reports was provided by a senior official of an international organisation who witnessed an execution on 14 January. From then persistent reports were received of executions at such locations as Aberdeen Bridge, Kingtom, Brookfields, Siaka Stephens Street, Ferry Junction, Connaught Hospital, Kissy Road, Susan's Bay, the National Stadium and Lumley. Witnesses of the highest probity state that they were present at executions. One such observer noted that at the three executions he had seen on 24 January, at Ferry Junction and Connaught Hospital, the victims were given a cursory interrogation and immediately shot. It is reported that a large number of executions have been perpetrated at Aberdeen Bridge. Witnesses report the killing or disposal of up to 40 bodies at that location. It is stated that the victims at Aberdeen Bridge are the overflow population of a police holding facility at Aberdeen village. The Mission observed extensive blood stains at Aberdeen Bridge on 25 January. Another reliable witness observed the bodies of seven execution victims at Kingtom on 3 February. Ten people were reportedly executed at the National Stadium on 30/31 January.

Reference has been made above to the alleged execution of an eight-year old boy caught in possession of a pistol. Humanitarian agencies report that a 14-year-old boy was executed at the Customs Post, Susan's Bay, on 16 January. On 23 January, at the same location, ECOMOG is reported to have executed a 17-year-old girl.

The mission directly witnessed an execution at Connaught Hospital on 3 February. The following day a senior officer of an international NGO witnessed another execution at exactly the same site. In both cases the perpetrators were in ECOMOG uniform and onlookers stated their view that the victims were rebel collaborators.

Witnesses make clear that, in all cases, the interrogation process was entirely inadequate and that there was no real effort to establish the guilt or innocence of executions victims. In one well-documented incident, on 10 January, three teenage boys were executed on Kissy Road after locals told ECOMOG that the boys were strangers to the area. The boys, all residents of Fisher Street, were returning from having buried their friend who had been killed earlier in the day.

It is reported that ECOMOG regained control of Connaught Hospital on 12 January. Well-considered witnesses allege that ECOMOG summarily executed some 20 patients who were pointed out to them to be rebels. The exact circumstances of the battle for control of the hospital and the behaviour of entering troops requires further investigation.

(b) Methods of warfare

ECOMOG jets have been employed in the conflict within the city. Certain civilian targets are listed above. Certain of the incidents have been partially documented by humanitarian workers. The bombing of a crowd of people on Wilberforce Street on 7 January resulted in the deaths of at least 20 civilians. ECOMOG described the incident as, "regrettable". The youngest reported victim of the bombing, on 14 January, of the Basharia Mosque was a ten-year-old girl. The youngest recorded victim of the 7 January bombing at Wilberforce Street, was an 8 year old girl.

On 3 February, Brigadier-General Khobe, Chief of the Sierra Leone Defence Staff, said that from now on ECOMOG would shoot at "human shields" and that, "if they try it again, we'll kill everything from the opposite direction".

(c) Other matters

ECOMOG has detained and physically mistreated national staff of a number of humanitarian NGOs and the ICRC, on the reportedly baseless grounds that they were rebel collaborators. Some are now released and the whereabouts of others are unverifiable at this time. UNOMSIL is in possession of detailed testimonies.

The mission has observed numerous incidents of ill treatment of persons detained at joint ECOMOG / CDF checkpoints. Among the forms of punishment observed are whipping, beating, varying types of public humiliation, and being bound extremely tightly.

In a welcome development, on 2 February, ECOMOG released to the care of humanitarian agencies some seven former rebel child combatants.

IX. ACTIVITIES OF CIVIL DEFENCE FORCES

Civil Defence Forces also bear responsibility for summary executions. On 3 February senior UN staff observed and photographed a newly severed human head displayed on a stick at a CDF checkpoint at Brookfields. A highly reliable witness observed the execution of a man at a checkpoint in Kingtom on 16 January. He reported that the CDF perpetrator was very excited and made no effort to interrogate the victim. Witnesses have reported a number of other such incidents to the mission. See above regarding activities at checkpoints. It is reliably reported that members of the Liberian community resident in Freetown and elsewhere, particularly those enjoying refugee status, have suffered discriminatory treatment and harassment by elements of CDF, CDU and ECOMOG.

X. USE OF THE MEDIA BY THE GOVERNMENT

The mission received repeated complaints that the Government, especially Minister Spencer, used the radio media to instil a false sense of security in residents of areas which had not yet been cleared of rebel activity. A number of informants state that relatives, friends and neighbours were killed by rebels, at locations such as Kissy, when they left their homes having heard the broadcast assurances that the areas were again under Government control.

XI. STATUS OF THE HUMAN RIGHTS COMMUNITY

This report has detailed the manner in which rebel forces targeted the lives and property of the leadership of the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, the human rights NGO community and civil society leaders. The destruction of the UNOMSIL human rights offices and library has also been described.

UNOMSIL facilitated the evacuation of a number of human rights activists on 27 December and was planning to extend the facility further at the time of the rebel offensive of 6 January.

Notwithstanding the difficult operational environment, the human rights community is currently active in Freetown. There is ongoing but limited monitoring of the human rights situation and chronicling of the period of rebel occupation. It is noteworthy that the human rights community is employing monitoring methodologies imparted in the various training programmes which were largely facilitated by UNOMSIL during 1998. The human rights community is also volunteering to assist in humanitarian activities, such as registration of displaced persons and distribution of food.

UNOMSIL continues to support and provide technical assistance to the activities of the human rights community. There is also an active Sierra Leone human rights community temporarily in Conakry, Guinea. Conakry-based activities are focussed within the Human Rights Committee of the Humanitarian community and they benefit from support and assistance of UNOMSIL. The work of the Committee is described elsewhere.

RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended:

1. That UNOMSIL continue to closely monitor and report on the human rights situation in Freetown, including by continuation of the process of chronicling the events of the period of the rebel incursion. A comprehensive evaluation of the period will ultimately contribute to the process of peace building and effective reconciliation.
2. That UNOMSIL monitoring activities should continue to be conducted in accordance with the collaborative methods which have been developed during 1998. These methods can be rendered more effective by UNOMSIL support for the various data-gathering and analysis proposals being developed by the Human Rights community active in and concerning Sierra Leone.
3. That support and assistance continue to be provided by UNOMSIL to the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, the human rights NGO community and all other elements of the human rights community both in Sierra Leone and temporarily located in Conakry. Support can be evidenced by frequent visits to Freetown and active participation in the activities of the Conakry-based Human Rights Committee.
4. That consideration be given to the timely deployment to Sierra Leone of a human rights /criminal investigation team to identify and secure evidence of violations and abuses of human rights and international humanitarian law with a view to eventual prosecution of perpetrators. Consideration should be given to the team having a rolling mandate to undertake investigations of incidents perpetrated across the country.
5. That UNOMSIL advise that any future peace settlement should not purport to confer unconditional or blanket immunity from prosecution for the perpetrators of any grave violations of human rights or international humanitarian law. In this regard consideration should be given to establishment of an appropriately modelled truth commission process in Sierra Leone.

6. That UNOMSIL continue to urge the Government of Sierra Leone and ECOMOG to ensure their forces operate in conformity with the letter and spirit of international human rights and humanitarian law by, inter-alia, an immediate cessation of summary executions; and that UNOMSIL call on the authorities to detain and prosecute the alleged perpetrators of such acts.

7. That UNOMSIL urge the international community to provide financial or other assistance to the Government of Sierra Leone to facilitate the detention and care for prisoners in conformity with security requirements and international standards for treatment of prisoners.

Dear Foday:

Steve Call called me today upon his return to Washington, DC.

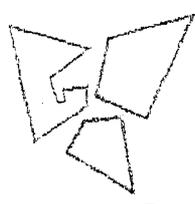

He was very pleased with his trip to Sierra Leone, and he was very complimentary of the reception and hospitality extended to him and his photographer by you, Mosquito and Ibrahim. You all made a favorable impression on him. He assured me he was able to see everything he wanted to see and talk to everyone he wanted to talk to.

Parenthetically, he told me the only gunfire he observed during his stay was when some of your soldiers sought to shoot a passing pheasant. Since pheasant was not on the menu for dinner, he assumes the pheasant got away.

His article is planned for the Sunday Washington Post Magazine, either as the cover story or, possibly, the entire magazine. Either way, this will be a major, in-depth piece, together with color photographs. All of this means you and your colleagues will receive considerable exposure to a broad audience, including Clinton administration officials, members of Congress and opinion leaders in politics, business and, importantly, other media.

Publication of Steve's article in the Washington Post Magazine will take longer than publishing it in the daily newspaper. But, the wait will be worth it. We will be able to use this magazine to good advantage, and we will get ample copies.

One final note, Steve recommends that all of you, including Mosquito, make a concerted effort to meet with journalists of major western media to get your story out to the rest of the world. Since, Mosquito is less accessible for now, I suggest that whenever he travels to Monrovia, we should arrange for selected journalists to interview him there. Of course, we will need lead time ahead of his trip. Publication of Steve's article should stimulate other media interest.

Best regards,

Dear Foday:

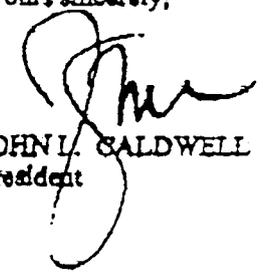

I thank you for your 6 November fax letter, clarifying Mr. Golley's position.

Steve Call arrived in Momrovia yesterday and, today, he and Ibrahim are to travel to Kailahun and, then, to meet you in Freetown. His visit will present to you and your colleagues an ideal opportunity to correct the media misinformation about the RUF and, through Steve Call, you will be able to reach political and business leaders worldwide; as well as to begin the process of changing public opinion about the RUF and actual socio-economic and political situation in Sierra Leone.

Respecting medical aid to Sierra Leone, I am pleased to inform you that Ms. Beth Stanford, the USAID officer in charge of this program is scheduled to arrive in Freetown on Monday, 15 November. Her mission is to meet with NGO's and assess medical needs in Sierra Leone. Her schedule of meetings is being arranged by the American Embassy in Freetown. While Ms. Stanford is in Freetown, I suggest that you have one of your deputies meet with her to tell her what medicines are required by the people in the countryside. She is concerned about the security situation. So, she needs to be given assurances that the distribution of medical aid will be secure. Your deputy should call the American Embassy to schedule a meeting with Ms. Stanford.

With best wishes.

Yours sincerely,

Good morning

I am back in Washington I got your fax on Thursday and I will go to the embassy of SL this Monday morning for this Visa.

As soon as I will get the Visa I will fly to Freetown to meet you.

Dear Foday, let me take a few minutes of your time to explain to you what happened last week in Antwerp.

As you already know, I met my partner. You met his employee in Freetown 10 days ago. My partner is now decided to work with us without any restriction, as I told you already, with him involved in the picture money is not an issue any more.

IMPORTANT: The American, during the meetings in Freetown offered him to open a buying office in SL. They would like to see 3 buying offices working in SL.

However as my partner told me last week, all this could take X weeks or months.

You do not have any time to waste any more neither do I. This is what we suggest, he will come with me to see you next week, we will bring with us what you know.

Dear Foday, this meeting is very important, ^{Who = Charles} Charles (my partner) meets you and gets the confirmation of what I told him already, based on our agreement, he will be ahead full speed immediately.

The problem:

At this time, and after one year of efforts, I did not get anything, yet you and I know it. But, what is done is done let's forget it and move forward.

With Charles, we can BUY, I am not talking about received for free, the 10% going to Freetown but also the remaining 90% in Kono.

In short, if we put together what we have, Yourself, Charles and myself we can start immediately what we were suppose to start months ago and all of us would finally make money instead of losing money everyday.

At this time, you and I are the big losers, I don't know about you but as far as I am concerned I am tired of it.

What we have to solve:

How will you convince the people in charge in Kono to bring everything to you instead of 10% and it is not possible how are you going to convince them to sell those 90% to us instead of keeping it or selling it to the Lebanese or whoever?

The other point, if we can buy it how are we going to ship it outside? Through Freetown is probably out of question, through Monrovia is not safe either, we cannot trust those people.

Charles has the financial ability to do anything, a private jet from Belgium to Kono or to Monrovia or to Freetown or any other solution.

With Charles we can do what ever is possible it is now up to you and me to find the solution.

Foday, what I am saying is this, the money is finally on the table, you make sure that the merchandise is available one way or another and all of us will be ok.

At the minute the commission will be in place and we will have the final contract everything will be easier for all us but please let's do something in the meantime.

The ambassador of SL went to see Charles's father in Antwerp yesterday, don't forget he is the president of the association for all the diamonds buyers in Antwerp. Following our advice, Charles father told the ambassador that Antwerp was not ready to do anything until the commission is in place.

Charles is already preparing the equipment you requested last week.

PEOPLE'S ARMY INTO THE NATIONAL ARMY AND THE POLITICAL CIRCLE

DATE:- 13th August, 1997.

Sir,

After series of deliberation, members of the Military High Command and the People's War Council of the People's Army have adopted this proposal which with all due respect is being submitted to you for your perusal and timely consideration.

I. MILITARY INTEGRATION

The People's Army deemed it expedient at this time to be tentatively integrated into the Sierra Leone Army which is to be dubbed "National Army". This will alleviate the numerous constraints which continue to bug the People's Army. Should this proposal be accepted we suggest the initial integration of Five Thousand men. In addition, we suggest the occupation of prominent positions by key Commanders of the People's Army in the integrated National Army. This is unequivocally spelled out below:

- (a) Colonel Sam Beckarie, Field Commander of the People's Army, to be the Second-in-Command to the Chief of Defence Staff (C.D.S.)
- (b) Lieutenant-Colonel Issa H. Sesay, Battle Group Commander of the People's Army, to be Second-in-Command to the Chief of Army Staff (C.O.A.S.).
- (c) Colonel Isaac Mongue to be Second-in-Command to the Chairman of Joint Security.

II. OCCUPATION OF REMAINING MINISTRIES

It has also been proposed that in order to keep the governmental machinery in motion the remaining Ministries which belong to the People's Army should be occupied by the following people.

- (a) Captain Lawrence Wormandia, Ministry of Energy and Power.
- (b) Lieutenant Elared Collins, Ministry of Trade and Industry.
- (c) Lieutenant-Colonel Peter Vandy, Under-Secretary Lands, Housing and Environment.
- (d) Captain Patrick S. Baidia, Under-Secretary, Ministry of Education.

III. SUPREME COUNCIL

A complete list of the members of the Supreme Council will be submitted soon. Colonel Michael Lamin has been named a member of the Supreme Council and the representative of the People's Army in any AFRC delegation.

Respectfully submitted.

UNITED NATIONS

NATIONS UNIES

UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN SIERRA LEONE
(UNOMSIL)

26 June 1999

Dear Corporal Sankoh,

In my capacity as Chairman of the Committee for the Release of Prisoners of War and Non-Combatants, I wish to bring to your attention the Committee's concerns about the continued non-compliance of RUF/SL commanders with the "Statement on the Release of Prisoners of War and Non-Combatants", issued jointly by the Government of Sierra Leone and the Revolutionary United Front of Sierra Leone (RUF/SL) on 2 June 1999.

For instance, on 9 June, we received notification of a release of 240 non-combatants from RUF/SL captivity in the Occra Hills. Since then several target dates for the release have been set, and each time the Committee made the necessary arrangements for the reception and transport of the individuals. However, the RUF/SL group led by Lt.Col. Junior Lion has so far failed to honour its pledge to release the 240 detainees. The group has also not responded to repeated requests from UNOMSIL military observers to free six ECOMOG soldiers held as prisoners of war. This constitutes a clear violation of the 2 June Statement and is particularly disturbing in view of the goodwill shown by ECOMOG when it released 14 captured RUF/SL combatants to the group under Lt.Col. Junior Lion on 18 June 1999.

In another incident at Kambia, the RUF/SL group under the command of Lt.Col. Boulah assured UNOMSIL military observers on 15 June of the impending release of all prisoners of war and non-combatants. This pledge was made in response to the release of all RUF/SL fighters in the custody of the Guinean contingent of ECOMOG at Kambia. However, no release from the RUF/SL side has taken place to date.

OPENING

The meeting was called to order by Hon. Idriss Hamid Kamara at exactly 1:00 pm. After the usual Christian and Moslem prayers, the secretary of the meeting, Mr. Sheik Ibrahim Fofana formerly introduced the Chairman, of the occasion, Hon Idriss H. Kamara. In his opening remarks, Mr. Fofana extended a warm and fraternal welcome to the participants and thanked them, on behalf of the promoters of what he described as a divinely inspired and historic event, for sparing their precious time to register their presence at the “family reunion.”

He referred to all present as children of God because they have come to make peace, according to the word of God. He told the gathering that they had come on board a ship he baptized "S.L. Peace" ready to sail to the land of peace and love.

In his introduction of the chief Promoter and chairman of the occasion, Mr. Sheik Fofana stressed the exemplary attributes of Hon. Idriss Kamara whom he described as a complete soldier in every shape and form of the word. He highlighted Hon. Kamara's primary and secondary education in a military environment as well as past and present positions of responsibility held in previous and present Governments.

Before making his keynote address, the chairman of the meeting requested all participants to introduce themselves. In his opening remarks, Hon. Idriss Kamara thanked all present for responding favourably to his invitation.

Without wasting time, he explained to the gathering, the purpose of the meeting. He recalled that the SLA and the RUF decided to come together with a view to conjugating their efforts towards total liberation of the people of this country, by bringing lasting peace and political and social stability to them. But unfortunately, Mr. Kamara stressed, the two bodies had been. But of late, deviating from their initial objective of prioritizing the interests of the majority of the Sierra Leonean populace.

Therefore, taking cognizance of this rather dangerous turn of events, it was high time we became conscious of the onerous task ahead of us and waste no time in making the appropriate amendment to control the damage before it is too late, Mr. Kamara urged. In doing so, on the occasion of this family reunion, Mr. Kamara admonished participants to refrain from personalizing issues while making their contributions towards seeking the correct solutions to our problems. He admitted that indeed, each and every one of us has blundered in one way or another.

But thank God, Hon. Kamara opined, we have timely become of conscious those errors, and the same God who taught us to re-embrace the

In concluding his opening remarks, Hon. Kamara stressed the government's deliberate oversight and non-implementation of very important clauses of the Lome Peace Accord. This Mr. Kamara believed was simply because the SLPP has observed cracks in our rank and file. He therefore urged all and sundry, irrespective of rank or status, to sacrifice personal interest and cater for the general good of the people of Sierra Leone. He thanked God for divinely inspiring and redirecting the promoters of this historic occasion and prayed that the will of God be done at the end of the deliberations to achieve our goals.

BRIGADIER GENERAL T.A.B. YAYA

Brig. Gen. Yaya the next speaker as designated by the chairman, first and foremost availed himself of the opportunity to commend the initiator and promoters of the meeting and thanked all present for making it a point of duty to attend the meeting he felt was long overdue. He expressed his personal delight and satisfaction for the holding of such a meeting aimed at bringing us back under the same umbrella as we solemnly and unanimously agreed to do in 1997. He recalled that when the marriage took place in 1997 between the two bodies, we worked together without any serious problems under the chairmanship of the former AFRC Chairman, Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma. He said things continued going fine, even while in the jungle, but confessed that he was shocked when he returned to Freetown in November to observe that the demon of strife has won the hearts of once united people to achieve a noble cause. He reechoed the adage: "Unity is Strength," emphasizing therefore, that we can only achieve God's assigned mission of returning lasting peace to our beloved country, if we are united to fight the common enemy for the general good of our people. He stressed that the only thing our people need today is peace. He told the gathering that we should be asking ourselves what good have been done for our younger brothers and sisters who fought with us. He said though government is complaining about the lack of funds to reintegrate former combatants, he was certain there were so many developmental institutions where those boys could be entered for. He felt government was getting away with its mischief because we are seen to be in disarray. General Yaya underscored the fact that Chairman Sankoh and Chairman, Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma must be looked upon as our father and elder brother respectively. A father can wrong a younger brother and vice versa, Brig. Yaya opined. But it is left with us their commanders and close collaborators to remedy the situation.

By doing so, Brig. Yaya stressed we should avoid clans and prevent another Somalia. According to Gen. Yaya, they the commanders should be held responsible for the apparent stalemate between their two leaders because of their failure to speak the same language as the Israelites did which has made them invincible up to this day. He urged his colleagues to be visionaries and to be alert at all times to withstand the caprices of the corrupt and selfish politician. He accepted the differences in ideologies of even the most identical bodies; but opined that ideology or no ideology or no ideology; what we needed to seriously strive for is to win the people's heart everlastingly.

He said it was only they the commanders and combatants that have the solution to the slow-pace implementation of the Lome Peace Accord, adding that if we had remained united as before, Tejan Kabba should not have even headed the broad-based government.

He went further to attribute the SLPP government's moves to engage the services of expatriates in key positions in this country to the fact that we are divided and cannot therefore solidly put across our case.

He reminded the gathering that one of the import decisions of the Lome Accord is to provide free education. But is there free education today in Sierra Leone. Gen. Yaya questioned his colleagues.

To help our people live happily in a newfound land full of honey and God's blessings. Gen. Yaya concluded his contributions by appealing to his colleagues to express themselves freely and objectively, with the general interest of the people of Sierra Leone uppermost in their minds. Finally, he commended Ms. Susan Lanai and Major Baby Sewa for attending the meeting, as they have an important role as mothers, to play in the ongoing exercise.

HON. MIKE LAMIN

Hon. Mike Lamin started his contribution by underscoring what the two previous speakers had said. He said this was the most opportune time to control the damage, but in doing so, he advised participants to refrain from finger-pointing. He emphasized that we should join forces to fight the common enemy. He lauded the army for inviting the RUF join them in 1997. He said, but for the wrongful intervention of the International community, the junta should have succeeded in its plans to salvage this country.

Hon. Mike Lamin told participants that the importance of this family reunion could not be over-emphasized. He said in making their individual contributions, participants must be thinking of:

- The plight of ex-combatants.
- The imposition of a so-called travelling bans on all former AFRC/RUF Senior Officers.
- The execution of senior qualified military officers after a stage-managed court martial.
- The future of the entire nation etc. etc.

Hon. Lamin regrettably confessed to the gathering that General mosquito was responsible for most of the frictions that took place between the RUF and the SLA.

The Hon. urged his colleagues to be more vigilant as the dangerously unbalistic civil militia, the Kamajors, led by Hinga Norman and Momoh Pujeh will never accept to see the RUF/SLA marriage succeed. According to Hon. Lamin, not only this notorious SLPP civil militia was being presently prepared to unleash hell on us, the SLPP was also busy mobilizing the international community against us.

In conclusion, Hon. Lamin intimated participants that we were running great risks of demolition by the common enemy if we didn't make haste to look in the same direction. He said the enemy is using us to neutralize ourselves, in other words, they are using the theory of "divide and rule" against us.

BRIG. BAZZY KAMARA

Brig. Bazy Kamara thanked the initiators of this noble cause to reunite us so that we would once more walk on the rediscovered path to total success. He told his colleagues that it was regrettable that even though they ruled this country for 9 months, they could not now venture to walk around the city for fear of being harmed by agents of the common enemy. He recalled that some degree of cordiality reigned amongst AFRC Ministers and other Senior Executive Officers. He wondered why we should allow ourselves to be put asunder by our detractors at this point in time of our struggle. He pointed out that their long experience with the gun coupled with their better professional training than the SLPP civil militia (Kamajor) should always serve them to neutralize the latter. He therefore appealed to participants to reflect their minds on the original intentions of the rebellion in making their contribution.

HON. SUSAN LAHAI

In her contribution, Mrs. Lahai asked the gathering to join her in prayers for unity and reconciliation, if we were really prepared for that. She told her colleagues that the demon of strife was gaining ground in our midst. And for Mrs. Lahai, that demon of strife is the bunch of corrupt politicians who are the cankerworms of our society. Mrs. Lahai told participants that we have ourselves to blame for what is happening to us. For her, people continue branding us as rebels and villains because we are not united. She urges all and sundry to bury the hatchet and to open a new page.

She outlined the following reasons why we should come together:

- To bring lasting peace to our people

- To console our colleagues ex-combatants who are the victims of our disunity.
- To enhance our credibility vis-a-vis the International community who continue to be misinformed by the SLPP Government.
- To be in readiness to counter any devilish ploys by the Kamajors and SLPP evil agents.
- To take cognizance of the fact that without us no lasting peace will return to Sierra Leone.

DR. PALLO BANGURA

Dr. Pallo Bangura thanked the organizers of the meeting and buttressed what most of the previous speakers had advanced as responsible for our discomfiture. He pointed out that though what the enemy is planning cannot be outrightly underrated or dismissed, he was of the opinion that what was more important for us was what we should embark on doing to consolidate our hard-worn peace. He impressed on the minds of all and sundry that nobody could have brought lasting peace to Sierra Leone, other than our 2 leaders, chairman Foday Sankoh and Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma, who, according to him, remain living symbols of this peace. For Dr. Pallo Bangura, that symbol could only be meaningful if we correct our individual and collective errors and come together to achieve our common dream. Dr. Pallo Bangura admonished participants not to heap all the blame on politicians, but should be honest enough to realize our mistakes which could now be rapidly corrected before it is too late. He said we should realize that the pains of the people were greater than personal ones. He opined that if we were united like before, we should not have faced all these inconveniences. He reemphasized that the enemy is capitalizing on our dis-unity. He therefore appealed to all to make personal sacrifices to conclusively resolve the stalemate hampering our total success.

BRIGADIER SAMUEL T. KARGBO

For Brigadier Kargbo, this family reunion was overdue. He strongly believes that the two camps have respect for their two leaders. He admonished members of the two bodies to accept their individual and collective mistakes and to make apologies where necessary. Brig. Kargbo opined that the problem is not the politicians but we ourselves. We should strive to achieve lasting peace for the benefit of the people and not our personal agrandizement. We should be realistic in accepting our mistakes and be prepared to forgive and let by-gone be by-gone.

MR. D.G. KALLON

Mr. Kallon wondered what was happening to the once wonderful marriage between the SLA and the RUF as he could recall he was appointed in absentia as special adviser to the leader of the AFRC. He urged members of the two camps not to waste time in reuniting, as only unity would help us to avert pending catastrophe.

MR ELDRED COLLINS

Mr. Collins only consented to make a contribution after Mr. S.Y.B Rogers admonished him that he should take cognizance of the importance of the meeting and stay to make a statement. He opened his contribution by requesting the gathering to observe a minute silence in honour of our brothers and sisters who lost their lives during the struggle. He informed participants that Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma presided over very important meetings attended by senior commanders of the two bodies while in the jungle. He said that things went on well up to a point when relationships started deteriorating through our own fault. He opined that certain statements and counter statements of our leaders did not augur well for the achievement of our common goal. He buttressed previous speaker's statements that our lives and those of our supporters are at stake if we continue to look in different directions. He reminded members of the two bodies that our marriage was meant to bring lasting peace to our people. He stressed the need to work out realistic and practical modalities at this meeting aimed at resolving our differences once and for all. Mr. Collins begged members to do everything possible not to allow the International community to see us as a divided group. He said if we have forgotten where we came from, we should know where we are heading for. He reminded the gathering that the ex-combatants are looking up to us to recharge their lives after the armed struggle. We should, as a priority, seek their interest and that of the general populace. Personal grievances must be forgotten.

He concluded by suggesting that this forum must map out modalities that would bring our two leaders round the peace table to iron out their differences in the interest of peace and unity. Mr. Collins also suggested that our senior commanders on the various fronts must be brought together to make their own contributions towards reuniting our two leaders and solidifying the marriage contracted in 1997.

MR KAIGBANJA

Mr. Kaigbanja buttressed everything all previous speakers had said geared towards working together as a united force to achieve our common objective. He lamented over what suffering the selfish desires of some people has caused a sizeable number of people in our fold – making a particular reference to himself. He appealed to all not to relent in striving to achieve our dreams. He underscored the difficult task ahead of us but assured everyone that a journey of 1000 miles always starts with a step. He emphasized the need to reunite if we want to avoid unpleasant surprises from the common enemy. He said God is with us; otherwise we would not have been in the know of all that the enemy is planning against us. If we fail to react accordingly, after sufficiently knowing what the enemy's plans are, we would have nobody to blame.

MR. I. M. F. SESAY

For Mr. Sesay, previous speakers had said all that ought to have been said. He found all points raised to be salient ones. He therefore suggested that the forum should come out with resolutions to be presented to the two leaders meant to guide them in resolving their differences for a total success of our noble cause.

MR. ABDUL SESAY

Mr. Sesay pointed out that Chairman Sankoh's mistake was his failure to invite Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma to hold discussions before and after the Lome Peace talks. He stressed the fact that if we remain disunited we would surely fail.

RE. LT. COL. CARTA - TARAWALIE

According to Rt. Lt. Col. Carter, Chairman Foday Sankoh deviated from what the two leaders agreed upon in a meeting between the two leaders following Chairman Sankoh's visit to Abidjan. He was however sure that it was not yet late to control the damage in the general interest of the people and the nation as a whole.

MR. AMADU B. BAH

For Mr. Bah, we have failed the people once; this should not be repeated. The RUF should not allow itself to be seen by the people of Sierra Leone and the International Community as an obstacle to peace through its actions on the ground. We should be seen as a united group. Mr. Bah was of the opinion that people like Abass Bundu and Karefa Smart and other schools of thought must be embraced.

The focus must not only be on Chairman Foday Sankoh and Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma. The different ideologies of all these people must be streamlined or seen to be identical for a clean-sweep victory. The two leaders must open up to accommodate each other. We must win credibility vis-a-vis the International Community.

MR. S. Y. B. ROGERS

Mr. Rogers thanked those who made it possible for the meeting to hold. As a Minister in the AFRC Government - which he served honestly, he did not deem it necessary to disclose military secrets. He however pointed out that mistakes were made in Freetown during the interregnum that probably led to our demise. According to Mr. Rogers, former AFRC Chairman Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma and his former Chief Secretary of State Col. S.A.J Musa did not work as a team.

Senior Military Officers, from whom much was expected, betrayed the cause. Our two leaders have also made mistakes. Mr. Rogers thanked God that such a meeting had been convened and appealed to all present to work towards finding the way forward. With the transformation of the RUF into a political party. Mr. Rogers stressed the need to get the support of all ex-combatants. Mr. Rogers appealed to participants to think of deceased combatants and their relatives who are now looking up to us for moral and material support.

He opined that we have accepted to champion this cause because we are patriots. In conclusion, Mr. Rogers suggested that other Senior Commanders in the interior must be briefed about this meeting and be include in a special technical committee to confer, with a view to ironing out their differences for the benefit of the people of Sierra Leone in general and the accomplishment of the mission we had assigned ourselves when we took up arms.

MAJOR BABY SEWA

Major Baby Sewa informed the gathering about the ill treatment meted out to Hindolo Trye in Kenema. On a more favorable note she informed the gathering that the Kamajors are now willing to team up with us and according to them (Kamajors) this country is ours if we are united.

In his closing remarks the Chairman informed the gathering that resolutions will be prepared from the minutes of the meeting for onward transmission to the two leaders who will close this ugly chapter after holding talks with senior commanders and other key players in the whole reconciliation process.

The meeting come to an end at exactly 5 p.m. with prayers said by Dr. Pallo Bangura.

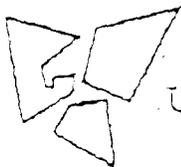

Faithfully submitted by:

Mr. Sheikh Ibrahim Fofanah
Secretary to Reconciliation Committee.

Dear Foday:

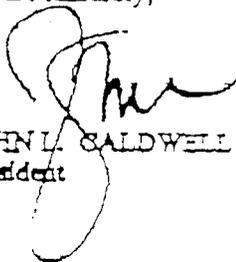

I thank you for your 6 November fax letter, clarifying Mr. Golley's position.

Steve Call arrived in Monrovia yesterday and, today, he and Ibrahim are to travel to Kailahun and, then, to meet you in Freetown. His visit will present to you and your colleagues an ideal opportunity to correct the media misinformation about the RUF and, through Steve Call, you will be able to reach political and business leaders worldwide, as well as to begin the process of changing public opinion about the RUF and actual socio-economic and political situation in Sierra Leone.

Respecting medical aid to Sierra Leone, I am pleased to inform you that Ms. Beth Stanford, the USAID officer in charge of this program is scheduled to arrive in Freetown on Monday, 15 November. Her mission is to meet with NGO's and assess medical needs in Sierra Leone. Her schedule of meetings is being arranged by the American Embassy in Freetown. While Ms. Stanford is in Freetown, I suggest that you have one of your deputies meet with her to tell her what medicines are required by the people in the countryside. She is concerned about the security situation. So, she needs to be given assurances that the distribution of medical aid will be secure. Your deputy should call the American Embassy to schedule a meeting with Ms. Stanford.

With best wishes.

To: His Excellency,
The President of Republic of Liberia
Dr. Charles G. Taylor.

Through: The Chief of Protocol
Republic of Liberia
Alhaji Musa Sesay.

From: Brigadier Sam Bockarie (Mosquito)
Chief of Defence Staff RUFSL.

Subject: INFORMATION AND REQUEST:

Be informed that the Guinean government in collaboration with the Nigerian led Ecomog troops are carrying out a cross-border attack on our position at Koindu and Kailahun. This attack has been going on since June 15, this year and is still continuing on our ground by the river bank.

Furthermore, we are trying our best to resist their intention which is to occupy Koindu and Foya, but because of the heavy bombardment we have not been able to send them back across the border, and we do not have rockets or bombs which are badly needed to handle the situation. We are merely managing the small ammunition we have at hand as at now, but we would not want to wait till we completely run out of ammunition which may cause a big set back for all of us.

In the light of this, sir, I am hereby appealing and requesting that you please meet the President and explain things to him in detail for his immediate attention.

We appreciate the assistance we have been receiving and we want you to believe that we have no where else to cry to for help besides you and His Excellency.

We usually receive materials without bombs and not even up to twenty (20) boxes which makes the operation, to capture and defend any strategic point difficult.

To conclude sir, in the light of all the above, we are appealing that you please discuss the matter with His Excellency for his timely intervention of the situation on the ground.

Also, we hope to receive some cash for the welfare of the men as we have presently run out of cash to purchase medicine, food and morale boosters for the men.

The bearer of this letter, Prince Rennie, will explain to you in detail on situation on the ground.

May God Almighty continue guide protect and bless you always.

Your obedient son,

LORD ERIC AVEBURY.
PARLIAMENTARY HUMAN RIGHT GROUP.
LONDON.

Your Excellency Sir,

We have been making numerous statements to the International Community about Human Rights abuses in Sierra Leone in the name of return of democratically elected regime. When the ABIJAN PEACE ACCORD was signed and President Kabbah refused to implement the peace accord. He was removed from power in a military coup of May 25, 1998. He used his personal influence with the U.N. Secretariat to endorse War on this country for his return to power.

In the present circumstance the Nigerian Forces and their (Kamajors) Militia Allies are inflicting undue sufferings on innocent civilians killing and maiming some villages and towns are down completely alleging to be the bases of the ousted AFRC/RUF Government. Heavy artillery and other heavy weapons are used on defenceless citizens. The Alpha Jet is frequently in our air space targeting civilian dwellings causing uncountable deaths.

Those people who are in safe Zones of Kailahun District are finding it difficult to access food and other humanitarian assistance like drugs.

We are there asking you kindly to use your good office to facilitate aid agencies to assist our people on this side of the country.

It is important for the future of our beloved country, Sierra Leone that you are informed of the fact on the ground. The Joint High Command of the AFRC and RUF and the civil population know and believe that the only path to a peaceful resolution of our present crisis is the unconditional release of Corporal Foday Sanneh. We have always known the role of the representatives of Her Majesty's Government in encouraging the use of Military to resolve our internal crisis. We have wondered why in Northern Ireland and Palestine it is the Non-Military action that is encouraged. The problems Sierra Leone face now we believe strongly has been as the result of poor political Judgement and advice based on some prejudices held against the RUF and its leader by some of your civil servants. As we have always maintained that the civil conflict in Sierra Leone is an Internal Affairs we do not seek to interfere likewise in the Internal Affairs of your country but we fail to comment that an enlightened policy free of prejudice would have saved lives and property in Sierra Leone - children, pregnant women. Old aged have been killed senselessly by Nigerian bombs with the full knowledge and silence of British civil servants.

We know that a word from the British Prime Minister to President Kabba can cause the immediate release of our Leader Corporal Today Sankoh.

We thank you for your co-operation and understanding.

Yours Faithfully.

Your Excellency,

Our country had been at war for six years before the Military take over in May 25th, 1997. The military take over gave birth to peace in our land. ECOWAS countries got together against the hard won peace in the name of reinstating the so called Democratically government to Sierra Leone. During this rule, the world continued with closed doors to our government to see it not successful.

Your Excellency, a military option was endorsed by the ECOWAS member countries except few to oust the AFRC which ended as planned in February 13, 1998 causing massive destructions of our land, people and property. The allied forces (Nigerians and Major Militia) are still attacking our positions and causing terrible damages to human lives.

With you as Chairman of ECOWAS and the amount of respect you carry, we have no doubt that you will bring this crisis to an end. We want to bring to your attention that we still stand firmly believing the demands of the ABIDJAN PEACE ACCORD and would be desirous to see it revisited.

We would like to state emphatically that the mass of the population of Sierra Leone know and believe that peace can only return to our country when Corporal Foday Sankoh is released. It is our hope that your Excellency and your brother President Fabba will see the future in the present and have Corporal Foday Sankoh released.

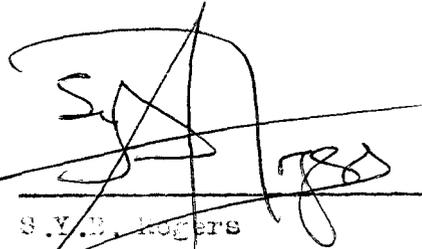

We would crave your indulgence if this is done for us at your earliest convenience.

Your Excellency Sir,

We write to bring to your attention the on-going events in our country, Sierra Leone. We had formed a National Government, The Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC) after the overthrow of the SLRR Government headed by Mr. Ahmed Tejan Kabba, before this period President Kabba and our leader Corporal Foday Saybana Sankoh had signed a peace pact in Abidjan which the President Kabba failed to go by and our leader was arrested and detained in Abujah, Nigeria. Not too long afterwards, the military ousted the SLRR government and called the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) from the bush to form a National Government, which President Kabba failed to do. Nine months later, our Government, the AFRC was ousted by the Nigerian Intervention Force in a gruesome attack that lasted nine days leaving a lot of damages to life and property.

Today, the UN is sitting quietly by the Nigerian atrocities are escalating daily. Your Excellency, you may have received several distorted information about us. We have been pointed as being inhuman, barbaric and senseless in such correspondence. Sadly, no body has taken the pains to listen to us. As head of the OAU, may we bring forward to you our concerns for your perusal.

1. We are Sierra Leoneans and owe our respect and allegiance to our country.

- 6. In their bid to flush the AFRC, RUF remnants (as they refer to us) from the borders of Sierra Leone with approval of ECOWAS wa and the UN, they have resorted to burning down any town or village we have occupy. These are the things the Nigerians are using against our people in the country side. Agricultural activities have been put to a halt by the continued aeriad bombardment which has also caused great panic.

CHAIRMAN, PEOPLE'S WAR COUNCIL

His Excellency, Mr. Bill Clinton,
 The President,
 United States of America,
 The White House,
 United States of America.

Your Excellency Sir,

It is with a heavy and sad heart that we write this letter to you to bring to your attention a few burning issues that require your immediate action. Too much has been said about us and the world remains silent and uninterested to hear from us.

Your Excellency, may we take this opportunity to bring to your notice the deliberate constitutional miscalculations in our country that we stand against.

- 1: Our country had been at war for six years, without bringing the war to an end, the country was carjoked to go to elections which were undemocratic. Two-thirds of the electorate were not registered for the elections because of the war. Of the one-third registered, only forty percent voted. But earlier than now, the RUF went out strongly condemning the elections before peace. We therefore questioned the being democratic but we were not listened to.
2. When President Kabbah assumed power, he appointed the chairperson of the Conference (hintumani 1 and 2) which took him to the Presidency. Mrs. Shirley Gbujaana was appointed as Foreign Minister in his government and now is being maintained as a Cabinet Minister in charge of Gender Affairs. This we deem as unconstitutional. We see her appointment as a mere reward for her job done at the Conferences.
3. Dr. James Jonah, who conducted the elections of 1996 that brought Ahmed Tejan Kabbah to power was the National Chairman of the electoral commission. He was compensated as Sierra Leone's permanent representative to the United Nations with cabinet rank after the elections and now is appointed as a Cabinet Minister for Finance and Development. These appointments are also contrary to the Sierra Leone constitution.

- 4. With President Kabba again in power, he has appointed Mr. Desmond Luke as the Chief Justice in charge of the country's legal system. Mr. Desmond Luke was one time the chairman of the committee for the consolidation of peace - a peace which was never attained. He was also a Presidential Candidate with a registered party in the last elections. After losing the race, he joined forces with President Kabba in destroying our credibility. It is this man President Kabba has appointed as Chief Justice, who will sit at the apex of the judicial system to try our members, relatives and friends. We doubt the kind of justice that will prevail and constitutionally, Mr. Desmond Luke does not qualify for the position as Chief Justice.
- 5. We believe that the President is the personality who upholds the constitution. We believe he rules his subjects in accordance with the dictates of the constitution. President Kabba has flouted the Sierra Leone constitution by disbanding the constitutional army and replacing it with a private militia (the Kamajors) and a foreign troop to man the internal security of the country.
- 6. Your excellency, our people are being bombarded daily with heavy artillery guns acquired from Sand Lines, the popular mercenary group in Britain and Alpha Jet Bombers from Nigeria. They are dying in dozens yet the International Community remains quiet.
- 7. President Kabba had signed a peace accord with our RUF leader Corporal Foday Sankoh in Abidjan which he, the president, didn't implement that led to his overthrow by the military in May 25, 1997.

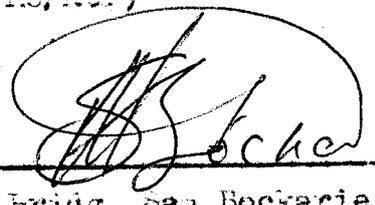

The International Community including the United Nations endorsed a military option against the AERC government that has caused and is still causing untold sufferings to the country.

Your excellency, we are aggrieved and totally opposed to what is going on in our country and would desire a negotiated settlement of the Sierra Leone crisis. Our leader Corporal Foday Saybana Sankoh still remains to be detained against his will in Abuja, Nigeria. We are asking for his immediate release from detention as this is the only way we can achieve peace in this country.

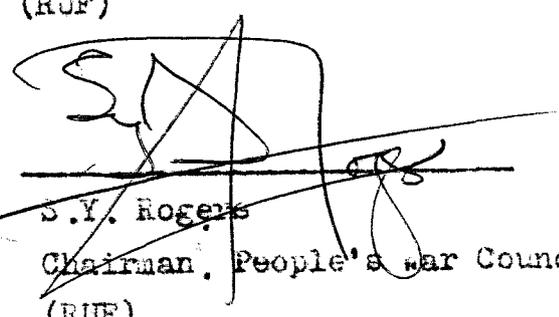

We would be very grateful and thankful if you would use your very respective office to bring this present crisis to an end.

Your Excellency Sir,

In your presence and under your pioneership, the RUF and the Government of Tejan Kabba signed the Peace Accord titled "THE ABIDJAN PEACE ACCORD". The President went back to Freetown putting aside the accord. He was removed from power in a military coup of May 25th, 1997 and the military called the RUF from the bush for the sake of peace.

When we governed for the short period, the AFRC, RUF continued registering and candidly pronouncing its commitment to the Abidjan Peace Accord. Even when we have been ousted, we still stand committed to the Peace Accord and peace in our beloved country.

Being the guarantor and facilitator of the peace accord, we would be grateful if you could use your good office to enable a revisit to the said accord.

The RUF, AFRC leadership, the poor people, the under privileged, the exploited people of Sierra Leone see no peace in this country without the release of the RUF leader, Corporal Foday Sankoh from the prison in Nigeria.

We are shocked to learn that Tejan Kabba and his Minister of Justice are planning to get Corporal Foday Sankoh to face a war crime tribunal. Your Excellency, such a move will send a very dangerous signal and we ourselves cannot even predict its consequences.

All that the people in this country know is that Corporal Foday Sankoh was given a mandate by the civil population and the High Command of the RUF to negotiate a peaceful settlement to our internal crisis. He came to Abidjan under your protection. When he realized that President Kabba still wanted to pursue the military option, he took the chance to go to Nigeria to see General Abacha. We had said that he made a great mistake by not informing the Ivorian authorities but that must have been as a result of the state of mind and frustration he was experiencing. He has been held against his will since the 8th March 1997. The civil society and the High Command of the AFRC, RUF see that the moral guarantors of the Abidjan Peace Accord have the responsibility to see to it that Corporal Foday Sankoh is released immediately.

We would hope that through your leadership, a meeting can be convened of the moral guarantors to find ways to resolve this major problem.

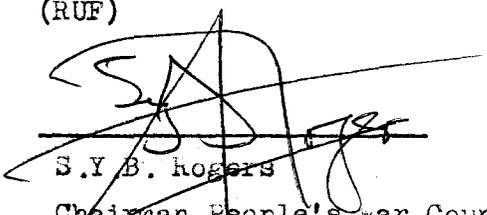

We thank you for your co-operation and understanding.

Yours faithfully,

The President,
The Republic of South Africa, Pretoria,
South Africa.

Dear President Mandela,

We are forced to write to you because of your high moral standing in the International Community to intercede in the on-going crisis in Sierra Leone. The crisis has reached a point where prejudices within the international community have the potential to totally destroy our beloved country, Sierra Leone. This prejudice is borne out of the fact that there is a thinking within the UN, the OAU, the Commonwealth, the British and US Governments that some sections of the Sierra Leone population must be exterminated before the civil conflict can be settled. Those of us who were forced by the misrule and wickedness of previous governments to take to arms are being called Terrorists, Bandits, undesirable of human existence.

Your excellency, you would recall that at one time in your struggles you and your colleagues who were fighting for the dignity of the people of South Africa were labelled as terrorists. It is rather sad that this prevailing minds set is at the core of the failure of the UN, OAU and the Commonwealth to resolve the Sierra Leone crisis without the use of force. We appeal to you to work closely with President Henri Konan Bedie of La Côte d'Ivoire to resolve the current crisis in Sierra Leone.

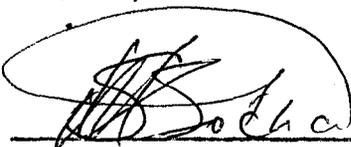

The Joint High Command of the erstwhile AFRC and the RUF including the civil population, particularly those in the country side believe that it is only the release of Corporal Foday Sankoh from the hands of General Abacha that would bring peace to Sierra Leone. Corporal Foday Sankoh is being held in detention in Abuja at the pleasure of President Abacha with whom he signed the ABIDJAN PEACE ACCORD. The people of Sierra Leone also believe that it is the implementation of the Abidjan Peace Accord that would resolve the Sierra Leone crisis. As President Bedie was the host of the Abidjan Peace Accord, he should be prevailed upon to convene a meeting of the Moral Guarantors of the Abidjan Peace Accord, namely the UN, the OAU, and the Commonwealth to review the current crisis in Sierra Leone including the implication of the detention of Corporal Foday Sankoh on the future of Sierra Leone.

As we write to you now, Nigerian troops and their Jet Bombers are bombarding towns and villages in the country side causing death and destruction. We find it sad that the Moral Guarantors have been silent about the Nigerian atrocities more so when we hear over the news the concern expressed by the international community whenever a rubber bullet is fired in Northern Ireland, Palestine or Isreal. At an appropriate time, we would be contacting your progress on this request for intervention.

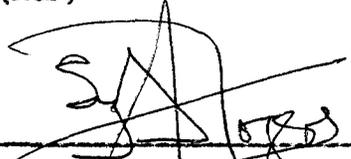

We thank you for your co-operation and understanding.

Yours Faithfully,

0830 Capt. Alpha Turay himself. Confirmed report proved that Capt. Alpha Turay used to hand over diamond stones to Lt. Col. M.S. Kennedy without witnesses and proper documentations. He was

0900 also advised in so many cases by the Dept. Mining Adviser - Lt. Saidu Bangura, the Mining Adjutant Lt. Bobor Nheimba and others that it was better for him to show the daily production of 0930 diamond stones to all Authorities and also carried the Gems to the O/all Mining Commander with some people to serve as witnesses, but Capt. Alpha Turay did not adhere to this advice.

38) Letter

Letter from Major AS Kallon, Chairman, Joint Security Kono to Col. Sam Bockarie

6 May 1998

G - 1

THE SIERRA LEONE PEOPLE'S ARMY
OFFICE OF THE JOINT SECURITY BOARD
KONO DISTRICT

MAY 6, 1998.

To: The Brigadier, Col. Sam Bockarie
From: The Joint Security Chairman, Major A.S. Kallon
Subject: STATEMENT OBTAINED AT THE ABOVE NAMED OFFICE ON LT. RICHARD, SGT. BALLAH AND MR. DUMBUYA ON COMMERCIAL BANK BREAKING IN KOIDU - KONO SOME TIME IN MARCH, 1998.

Sir,

I have per used on all the three statements and the cross examinations made by the three suspects named above.

In my own opinion, the prima facie evidence obtained, clearly indicates and implicates the said men in question. Three points made me sceptical about the above named suspects which I adduce below:-

1. All three statements are identical in nature and structure.
2. All three suspects failed to quote the amount each received; two bundles is not a stipulated amount, hence the denominations remained concealed by the suspects.
3. The entire Board of investigation has not still got on the principal characters in the bank breaking drama as non of the Joint Security personnel were on the scene of the episode, of which in the absence, the Board cannot get a clue.

Moreover, as the business of the Joint Security Board is to investigate, evaluate and recommend, I think recommending that there is a case to be answered by these men (suspects) will suffice.

In accordance with the mandate given to me by you, I attached the various statements to the living bodies of the three suspects involved and despatched to your location in Kailahun for legal proceedings to be instituted.

Sir,

Furthermore, one of the suspects, Colonel Musa who was not investigated as he was on the frontline by then during the investigation process is now a deceased. The two other suspects, upon retrieving the amounts that was in their possession, later took to their heels and and escaped and all efforts have been applied to apprehend them, but to no avail. Their names are:-

- 1. Capt. Steven and
- 2. Philip

The below are the listed names and diamonds arrested from the suspects:-

During the investigation into the alleged Commercial Bank breaking the following items were retrieved from the following suspects categorically as they appear:-

39) Report

Report from the Revolutionary United Front Administrative Headquarters, Kono Branch

19 September 2000

REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT PARTY OF SIERRA LEONE (RUF/SL).

ADMINISTRATIVE HEAD QUARTERS OFFICE - KONO BRANCH.

SUBJECT: FORUM MINUTE.
VENUE : LEBANON.
TIME : 1030hrs.

A forum was called up on the above stated date by the general adjutant RUF/SL which comprised of all unit commanders and regional heads within the 2nd. Brigade - Kono. As usual the forum started with both Muslim and Christian prayers. The Christian prayer was conducted by Col. M.M. Kosia G.S.O.1, and Muslim prayer by one representative of the forum. Following that, was the reading of the last administrative forum that was held at the admin. office at No. 5 Suku Pamba street Koidu Town. All representatives who participated in that particular forum unanimously accepted the minute read by the Chief of Admin. Lt.Col. Edward Charlie. Just after that, Lt. Col. Jabba Special assistance to the Chairman RUF/SL magnificiently introduce the General Adjutant Col. Kposowa as the Chairman for this forum.

The Chairman in his opening speech, thanked all the unit commander that were present on the meeting for their relentless struggle up to this time. He further advised all unit commanders to double up their effort to promote the movement even though we are on self reliance struggle (that is, no account). The Chairman further explained the purpose of the meeting by saying that there are lapses in the administrative set-up within Kono District so, he has therefore been mandated by the Chairman RUF/SL to properly structure and centralise the Admin. in Kono Area. "Kono is a pronounce strong hold of the Revolutionary United Front Party of Sierra Leone, but authorities in Kono are not well organised in the field of promoting the Movement simply because of their lack of fund raising ability for the Movement", the C/Man added.

Col. Kposowa on the other hand, briefly out-lined the functions of the various units to enhance proper Administration. He further said that a meeting for unit commanders should be attended by unit commanders, not representatives, that is matter of report and case there should be no interruption to the securities concern, that the J/Security Chairman is not a commander for individual units but that there are commanders for the various, and the J/ security C/Man is the Commander and Chairman for the J/ security commanders from the various units.

"How are we to raise funds" the Chairman asked. "particularly in the following areas of work like the Mining unit, Drivers union, Marketing such bar runners, popo sellers etc." He suggested that a committee should be formed to carry out the fund raising activity for development. He also said that the committee will be able to raise funds to assist the J/Soldiers.

Col. Kposowa also said that Soldiers should respect other officers not only their commanders. He again expressed dissatisfaction over the attitude of some soldiers in their act of banditry and innocent killings. And even the interception of some officers in operation was condoned by him. In that he said all personal letters to the Chairman RUF should pass through the Special assistance to the Chairman RUFF, Lt. Col. Jabba.

Col. Kposowa in his frantic mood recalled the rate of unnecessary killing that is becoming rampant in this region, and he advised the doers of this type of act to desist. The J/Security Chairman, Lt. Col. Edwin Bockarie in another mood talked about the non-compliance of some J/Security unit commanders, mostly the I.D.U. he said. The 2nd. Brigade Commander, Col. Lansana Conteh Elias The Big highlighted the need for all unit commanders to know their area of operation. he also lamented on the formation of the fund raising body for the development of this movement.

Col. M.M. Konia (G.S.C. 1) in his effort to appreciate the General Adjutant RUFF thanked other commanders for their interest in the struggle, and therefore advised all commanders to work very hard to promote the Movement. After all, turn was handed over to Lt. Col. Jabba by the General Adjutant for further advises. The special assistance in his effort to propagate the Admin. instructed the Chief of Administration - Kono Axis to centralise the offices which unanimously accepted by all the commanders that were on that meeting. Maj. Sylvester L. Kieh, 2nd. BDE. G-5 commander wanting to buttress the fund raising mood, openly said that he has formed up the committee needed to carry out the fund raising exercise to its limit. Maj. Sowa, one of the top members of the development committee outrightly said that Col. Peneto, the Q/A mining commander is causing problems in the mining field and also in the development committee set up by them. In response, the 2nd. Brigade Commander gave out a strict warning to the Kono Buisness Chairman, Officer Mohamed Kallon.

Lastly, there were so many views and opinions at the turning point of the meeting, but all were agreed upon and accepted by all. To the end, all unit commanders concensusly said that the office hours should be from 0930hrs. to 1700hrs every day with effect from the 20th. Sept, 2000.

The meeting ended in prayers as well.

INTRODUCTION

On the 23rd March 1991, the Vanguard of the RUF/L using a military corridor through Liberia launched their first attack entering Sierra Leone from Boma ru in the Kailahun District.

Simultaneously, another flank was opened, travelling over the Mano River Bridge on the 3rd April 1991, into the Pujehun District. The International Community and the defunct APC Government of Sierra Leone quickly dubbed the RUF movement as an in-rading force. In spite of the poor, the deceived guerrilla operation employed initially the RUF Commanding against the disorganised Sierra Leone Military Force enabled the Vanguard to impact the RUF Ideology among the deprived poor masses.

RUF took up arms to struggle because, we saw it as the only means of bringing about a fundamental changes in Sierra Leone. All peaceful means of opposition to the inaptitudes of APC government functionaries, corrupt military officers and unscrupulous politicians have proved unavailing. We as a nation, had suffered state sponsored deprivation, fragrant Human Right Abuses, Social Injustices, Poverty, Mass Illiteracy, Unmitigated Miseries and an army of vice by defaults.

When the youths of Sierra Leone made a legitimate demand for the change of a system that kept them in sub-human conditions, the APC regime utilized the full force of the state security to frustrate the wishes of Sierra Leoneans. The plight of families, friends and ordinary people armed us and our own evidence of experience convinced us to take up arms to redress the aforementioned injustices.

Today RUF has become a force to reckon with throughout the four corners of Sierra Leone. Despite we are engaged in a fierce battle with a crime of opposing forces.

These opposition forces from Nigeria, Ghana and Guinea under the guise of Ecomog forces together with the British mercenaries (Sandlane International) will not force us to relent. The RUF Peoples' Army is determined to empower the ordinary people of Sierra Leone to reclaim the wealth of the country for their use and self development and the Restitution of Democracy and sanity to Sierra Leone.

As we begin the last stage of the guerilla warfare together with our brothers from the former Sierra Leone Army, it is incumbent upon all Commanders to invigourate the guerilla army in preparation for the transformation into a conventional army.

PART ONE

IDEOLOGY

WHAT IS MEANT BY IDEOLOGY?

The word Ideology can be defined as a motive reasons or aims and objectives behind a planned societal ventures or revolutions. It is the know-how in any organisation or operation. It involves basic points to study either in the form of conditions or laws geared towards the success of that organisation.

TYPES OF IDEOLOGY

A. POLITICAL IDEOLOGY: This is the way in which members of the society behaves. Their behaviours need to be very rational or positive. The leaders and commoners share equal rights/respects. The wealth of the society must be owned by every one. Members preside over their dispute/quarrel amongst themselves and decision to be taken by military rather than private lawyers, magistrates or judges hired with babulous sums.

The society is governed by body of laws known as constitution and this varies as per types of government. (1) Democracy (2) Socialism (3) Communism (4) Capitalism (5) Monarchy and (6) Appatheid.

(1) DEMOCRACY

Democracy means "Popular Rules". The people elect those who will represent them and their operation is in the interest of the masses.

(2) SOCIALISM

Unlike democracy, all properties are for the government. Nobody owns personal property. All properties are to be used in common eg. Russia, Libya etc.

(3) COMMUNISM

This is a government in which every power is in the hands of the working group. Secondly, lands, buildings etc., are owned by the public eg. China, Korea, etc.

(4) CAPITALISM

This is a government of small class of rich and wealthy people. The properties and power are owned by this small group of people rather than every one together.

(5) MONARCHY

Government in the hands of the family. The leadership deseent with the family by the head of KOREA as Queen, King, Duke etc.

(6) APPARTHEID

Seperation of powers between whites and blacks into which the whites take the head and therefore blacks have limitation of movements, eg. former South African government.

A. HISTORICAL BACKGROUND: Africa was the first continent to respond to stimulus of civilisation. Civilisation started in the North Coast countries of Africa, eg. Egypt and Ethiopia. They started discoveries and inventions designed to be used as messages to the next society.

Thus the country Sierra Leone was discovered by a Portuguese explorer called PEDRO-DA CENTRA in the year 1462. He gave the name Sierra Leone to the country meaning, LION MOUNTAIN. This was later interpreted as Sierra Leone in English. At that time the Europeans pretended to be friendly with the African inhabitants, especially chiefs in Africa so that the captives can be sold to them as slaves. The demand for black slaves was too high as a result of sugar cane plantation in Europe. West Indies was selected at that point in time for the plantation because of hot damp climate. But the inhabitants of the West Indies were not plenty for the manual labour.

Consequently, they focused their attention on Africa. They were paying chiefs for the slaves with clothes and other goods. It never stopped until 1770 when people in Europe started to see the witness in slavery.

In 1807, Britain stopped trading in slaves. In 1878, Sierra Leone source of river in Freetown was selected to be the best camp for their slaves to be harboured and colonisation started.

Europeans ruled Sierra Leone as governors and holding high post in the civil service department. On the 27th April 1961, Sierra Leone was proclaimed independent state by Sir Milton Margai and other builders of Sierra Leone.

However, Sierra Leone had to experience another intensive slavery when the country was declared a Republican State by worthless Siaka P Stevens who started draining the country's economy heavily. In 1985, he dictated to the Nation the crown of J.S. Momoh as president of Sierra Leone. Momoh enslaved Sierra Leone, ceasing their rights. He introduced Capitalism rather than democracy.

In the light of this, the RUF entered Sierra Leone as a redeemer on the 23rd March 1991, with arms because the corrupted A.P.C. escaped many coup de' tats. So the A.P.C. grew strong in Sierra Leone and it was only rooted out by invasion in the form of arm struggle.

Mr. G.M.T. Kaikai and others also tried during J.S. Momoh's regime, but they too failed. Mr. Kebbie, (former President of the Sierra Leone Labour Congress), and Mr. Emmanuel (former Secretary General of the Sierra Leone Teachers Union) and Mr. Pious Foray (the former Editor of Tablet Press) tried but never succeeded because Mr. Emmanuel Fatorma and Kebbie were bought over by the government in 1976-77. And A.P.C. introduced a one party in 1978. Other students leaders had introduced the Green Book into the University of Sierra Leone. In 1984, forty two (42) students from F.B.C. and thirty six (36) students from N.U.C. were suspended and some expelled because they bitterly protested against the inhuman and cruel rule of the A.P.C.

Joseph Saidu Momoh openly pronounced that education was a privilege and not a right. They cut off government scholarships and began offering grant-in-aids to students. They had totally succeeded in destabilizing the students' forces by sending the internal security unit (I.S.U.), or Special Security Division (S.S.D.).

This soul called SSD fired guns at students at any students strikes or demonstrations, killing two or more at any time. As a result of the fear of arms, students with-held their activities and submerged.

We are therefore fighting because the arms which they used to threatening us with have been freely given to us by the saviour of Sierra Leone - RUF/SL leader (Corporal Foday Sayoana Sankoh).

WHAT ARE WE FIGHTING FOR?

The R.U.F. is fighting for true democracy and self-reliance. No nation can be self-reliance without true democracy. The letters in democracy stand for certain words that have to be studied and put into use.

- 1. D - DISCIPLINE

- A. URBAN GUERRILLA WARFARE:- This type of guerrilla warfare is mostly applied in cities. Here the use of heavy weapons are necessary. This is the area where motor platoon, artillery operates. Heavy weapons such as the BZT howitzer or surface to ground missile can be used in vehicles to bombard the enemy location. The artillery bombard while the infantry advance beneath the bombardment into the enemy zone to dislocate the enemies. These heavy bombardment paves easy way for combatant to capture a town or city.
- B. RURAL GUERRILLA WARFARE:- It is meant to fight in the jungles in the interior part of the country. Rural Guerrilla fighting is done with light weapons such as AK-47, G-3, LAR, RPG, Single barrel, LMG, GPMG and common motargun. These weapons can be easily used and manouver within the jungles.

A Guerrilla army is a small group of abled men launching a military activities to liberate the land from economical, social and political suppressions. As a result, the RUF fighters are now fighting Guerrilla Warfare to restore the social economical and political rights of every citizens of this land (Sierra Leone).

- 2. Medicines/Drugs.
- 3. Food.
- 4. Unity.
- 5. Discipline.
- 6. Love.
- 7. Justice.
- 8. Minerals.

Among the Non-Commission Officers, there are senior (NCO's) which ranges from the ranks of S/Sgt, S/Major and RSM while the junior (NCO's) ranges from Pet, L/Cpl, Cpl and Sgt. As a result, the private soldier should have due respect and obeys the L/Cpl, the Cpl should obey the Sgt, the Sgt obey the S/Sgt and the S/Sgt obey the RSM which serves as the link between the non-commission officers and the commission officers.

Unlike the RUF/SL (People's Army), which has some features of the British Army, have a rank of Brigadier General as the highest rank for now. Within the commission officers as well, there are junior and senior commission officers. The junior commission officers ranges from the ranks of 2nd Lt, Lt and Capt; while the senior commission officers ranges from the ranks of Major, Lt - Col, Col, Brig, Major - Gen, Lt - Gen and Field Marshall.

TYPES OF COMMISSION IN THE ARMY:

We also have three (3) basic ways of commission in the army:-

- a) COMBAT COMMISSION
- b) SPECIALIST COMMISSION
- c) SERVICE COMMISSION.

- a) Combat Commission: It is the most important commission in the army as it involves sending soldiers for Special Combat Training through cadet. At times you can also be commissioned on the field if you proved to be a strong combatant (Field Commission).
- b) Specialist Commission: They are mostly based on specialization. If a trained medical doctor joined the army, he or she has to be commissioned because of his or her technical skill.
- c) Service Commission: Mostly involves duration in the army. At times soldiers can be trained from the recruiting stage, go through the various ranks up to RSM with their long stay in the army backed with their experience, they can be commissioned locally (long service commission). In some cases, after spending four or five years in the army, they can be recommended for cadet, based on their outputs (short service commission).

Non-Commission Officers are not to be saluted in the army. We only need to brasse for them. As for commission officers, the need is there for them to be saluted as they form the senior sector or the army.

- 7) Study the characters of the various soldiers so that you will be able to administer them.
- 8) Do not beat the NCO's to death or disgrace them in front of civilians.
- 9) Do not force soldiers on battles most especially when the soldier is sick or weak on that day.
- 10) You should not be materialistic and weak minded.

PART (III) AMBUSH:

Ambush which can be defined as a hidden or deliberate human trap set up to conquer your enemy, is the most important ingredient of guerrilla tactics. This said tactics is applied in order to demobilize, produce shock and instantly destroy the enemy. Its objective is basically to get logistic arms, ammunitions, foodstuff and relevant materials for the utility of the guerrilla army.

Ambush is the oldest and the most effective instrument of the art of guerrilla warfare. It has three sub divisions:-

Preparatory (Defensive), Offensive (Opportunity), and Immediate ambushes.

A. PREPARATORY (DEFENSIVE) AMBUSH:

As the name implies, preparatory or defensive ambush is planned ahead of time. The materials needed the number of manpower and the site are carefully selected. Preparatory ambush is used mostly in time by the guerrilla army. It is used for defensive purposes especially in ensuring the security of the operational area.

Preparatory ambush is set on routes frequently used by the enemy. Selecting sites for preparatory ambush depends on the discretion of the ambush commander. But certain guide lines are used such as selecting site near bridges, curves, hills, rocky or gallopy areas. The topography of the site will be such that it will afford the guerrilla army an opportunity to hit the target.

B. OFFENSIVE (OPPORTUNITY) AMBUSH:

Offensive ambush is frequently set within the enemy's terrain. This ambush is set with precaution. The offensive nature of this ambush indicated by the deliberate encroachment on the territory of the enemy (more or less an opportunity ambush).

PART (IV) ARM (WEAPON):

Weapon could be defined as any material or instrument used to destroy the enemies and anything to defend life and properties:

AK 47 MECHANISM:

AK simply means AVOMAT KALASNIKOVE. The 47 refers to the venue of kalasnikove.

According to studies or research, this said weapon was discovered by a gentleman during the second world war in 1939 - 45. At the time of fighting, Russia where AVOMAT was born never had smaller weapons but only heavy weapons. At this point in time, the image of almighty God appeared to this gentleman and reveal all mechanisms of this weapon which was to be narrated to the people of Russia. From there this weapon was manufactured and the Russians too had the chance to make a successful alarm of the enemies.

The caliber range of this weapon is 7.62mm x 39 m. Its' travelling range is 1000m. Its' effective range is 400 m while the killing range is about 300 metres. The magazine contains 20-30 rounds.

4. Cleaning for advance conditions.

REG:

Means Rocket propel grenades. This gun was design in Russia. It is divided into four parts namely the mechanism part, the shooting part, the barrel and the fire release part. In the back opening is the sytoms where the fire comes from out leaving the propell or rocket out of it.

1. THE BARREL PART:

The barrel part contains the fire sight and the whole body.

2. THE MECHANISM:

The mechanism part contains the trigger, the trigger guard, safe and the telescope part. On the mouth of barrel or muzzle, there is a cut on it which directs the rockets. The mechanism part also contains the bolt, eye sight, back sight and the pistol grip.

METHOD OF THROWING THE GRENADE:

There are four (4) methods of throwing a stick or wooden grenade:-

- 1. Standing position
- 2. Running position
- 3. Kneeling position
- 4. Lying position.

SAFETY RULES:

- 1) Hold the grenade firmly. The more you hold it firmly the better the throwing.
- 2) Whenever throwing, make sure you are behind cover.
- 3) For the grenade instruction, the thrower should be alignment with the soldier. The distance should be three (3) to four (4) metres and should be under cover before throwing.
- 4) Whenever you throw a grenade, you must be under cover for at least five (5) seconds. If the grenade does not explode you give yourself chance for about 30 seconds. The thrower should be a trained soldier at the same time will be able to send it at least 30 metres.
- 5) Before sending it, we must inspect it for rusty, cold or damp and lastly should not be used.

D. THE WALK - (TACTICAL MOVEMENT)

Hold the alert rifle ready in alert position and advance slowly. You have to be quiet on hard grounds. Put the edge or the sole of foot down first and apply maintenance of balance by keeping the knees slightly bent. The movement is normally used in a close terrain, when the enemies are far from you to avoid sound in your movement.

E. THE CRAWL

Side crawling is used with the G.P.M.G. lying on the left side. You hold the gun or carrying handle and rest the gun by the lower carrying handle and rest the gun on the left legs. Push forward using the right foot and the left elbow.

F. KNEEL CRAWL

The knee can be used by the G.P.M.G. when moving behind high covers. Hold the gun carrying handle upright in one hand close to the knee and rest the thumb upright in the knee to take some of the weight of the gun of the arm. Put the clenched fist of the other hand flat on the ground. To advance, move the clenched fist and forward legs together then bend the other legs together and forward legs together, then bend the other legs together and so on.

G. ZIG-ZAG CRAWLING

This type of movement is mostly used in desert to avoid been seen by enemy.

H. CAT CRAWLING

This type of crawling is used when you are close to the enemy and the gun carried by handling it on the chest with the two hands above it. When you get closer to your enemy it is placed above both hands.

I. NORMAL WALKING

You should be active in walking and observe any movement that takes place within your sight of hearing.

COVER AND CONCEALMENT

When defending or temporarily halted while making an attack you must first seek cover from fire and concealment from observation.

over head or the flank the rears the position. Cover also guides against the effect of friendly weapons supporting from the rear cover. This will let you enter and leave the position without exposing yourself to the enemies.

CONCEALMENT

If your position is detected, it can be hit by the enemy fire. If it is hit, you can be killed in it. Therefore, your position must be so well hidden that the enemy will have a hard time detecting it, even when it is within grenade range.

NATURAL UNDISTURBED CONCEALMENT

1. It is better than man-made concealment.
2. It is already prepared.
3. It can not attract enemy attention.
4. It need not be replaced.

Obeying the following rules will help in good concealment.

- a) Avoid sky lines.
- b) Make use of available shadows Remember that when some arms shadows are very conspicuous and that shadow obviously moves with sun.
- c) Choose a back ground to match the clothing and equipment been worn.
- d) Avoid isolated cover as the enemy likely to be observing it and is easy to bring fire than on thick type of cover.

CAMOUFLAGE

Camouflague can be defined as a process where in one can make himself difficult to recognised by disguising him or herself.

Basically, we have two (2) types of camouflagage:-

1. Day camouglage
2. Night camouglag.

A. DAY CAMOUFLAGE:

Is simply when one make himself difficult to recognise in the day by using things like leaves or camouglage clothes or dress yourself in full (CEFO).

B. NIGHT CAMOUFLAGE

Is simply done by avoiding the use of shining clothers or white materials. Soldiers should know how to camouglage and conceal themselves in battle or he or she will be an easy target for the enemy.

RAIDING

Raiding is a sudden attack of an area by troops or guerrillas. In guerrilla warfare, this type of operation is mostly done in the night by a squard or team of commandos to accomplish their mission.

REASON WHY WE RAID

- 1. We do raid to get rid of a personnel.
- 2. To get rid of equipments needed for smooth guerrilla operations.
- 3. To get rid of documents or past records.

Before taking this type of operation, a raiding team has to be sent in order to get necessary information about the enemy. Based on information received, the guerrilla can run successful mission within a short period of time.

Within the operation, noise should be completely avoided and the commander for this said operation should be a brave men to accomplish his mission under all possible means. Materials needed in this type of operation are assaulting riffles and explosive weapons like grenades.

COMBAT TACTICS

This simply means how to over power your enemy. In order to achieve your objective, you should observe the following habits - no smoking and eating.

COMBAT TACTICS FORMATION

We have five (5) major combat tactics formations, namely:

- a) Diamond formation - is used to cross an open terrims
- b) Line formation - It is used to conduct assault.
- c) Squard formation - It is used to cross a natural bridge, a narrow road and also to climb mountains.

- d) Squad Column Formation - This formation is used to walk along the side of a motor.
- e) Vee Formation - It is used to surround and capture living enemies and materials.

PATROL

Patrol is a detachment of a small force sent to perform military duties. Basically we have four (4) types of patrols in the guerrilla army:

1. RECONNAISSANCE OR RECREE PATROL

This patrol group only goes out to see about the activities of the enemies. They will be equipped with arms and ammunitions but only fight in order to defend themselves. Their mission is not to fight but to gain information from the enemies. Normally they are seven (7) in number.

2. FIGHTING OR COMBAT PATROL

This group knows the where about of the enemies. Therefore their task is to fight, raid and ambush the enemy. Their size are larger than the recree patrol team.

3. STANDING PATROL:

This type of patrol groups are there to patrol and give early warnings and dominate the THE MANS LAND location.

4. FAN OR NOMADIC PATROL:

- B. TOWN PLANS - These are large scale maps to show street names and other details of particular towns. Some show relief contours and other means. They can be used by force on occasion regarding local maps.
- C. TOPOGRAPHICAL MAPS - These are maps showing in much details about the physical features of the ground, rivers, streams, hills, forests and other human or man-made features like roads, railways, villages, towns and buildings etc. These are basically concerned on military maps.

WHAT IS MAP READING?

Map reading is an extraction of information showing on the map to the ground knowing exactly what the map means. It is also the ability to read and give grade references, takes bearings and to measure distance on a map.

AIMS OF MAP READING

A map reader normally aims at the following points.

2. To understand information given on the map so that the picture of the ground and its tactical and administrative possibilities can be achieved without seen the ground.
3. To assist in quick and accurate transmission of information and others involving movement and disposition.

IMPORTANCE OF MAP READING TO A SOLDIER

Map reading helps the soldier in war in two ways:- Movement and Navigation which includes time and distance.

- a. Selection of roads patrol, tactical manoeuvre including fanks movement.

(ITEM I: GENERAL FINANCIAL POSITION)

3. The Chairman intimated members that the general financial situation in the country is bad and that we have burst the bank telling by Five Hundred Million (Le 500,000,000). This has been so because our detractors are still at work asking people not to pay taxes and sabotaging revenue generating areas.

4. With calm determination, and relentless effort, we shall forge ahead to revamp the economy on the few areas we have at hand. He commended members for their patience and understanding over pay issue since no Council Member has had salary so far.

5. The Chairman went on to inform Members that he would not make major changes on the pay-scale of the previous government which he now ran down as follows:

- (a) Chairman = Le 1,500,000
- (b) Vice Chairman = Le 1,000,000
- (c) Secretary-General = Le 1,000,000
- (d) Secretary of State = Le 690,000
- Plus Allowance = Le 200,000

- Plus Allowance = Le 200,000

6. The Salary-scale of Council Members, he went on, will therefore fall between Le 690,000 and Le 1,000,000. He also spoke generally about the various Ministries and Institutions that have been paid so far.

7. The Chairman intimated Members that the only source, government can now raise funds from include the following:

- (a) Sale of Petroleum Products.
- (b) Imports and Customs Duties
- (c) Proceeds from sale of Diamonds

ITEM II: APPOINTMENT OF BANK GOVERNOR

10. When the Bank Superintendent was initially approached to accept the appointment as Bank Governor, he suggested to be appointed as Superintendent. Based on his performance, it is considered to appoint him Governor, Bank of Sierra Leone.

SECRETARY
GENERALITEM III. CHINESE AID

12. Following an earlier request the Chairman made to the Chinese Government, he has now been informed that the Chinese Government is willing to give in aid the sum of Two Million United States Dollars (US$ 2,000,000) in the form of food, medicine and other relief items. An Ambassador Ku has now been sent to the Republic of Guinea to organise the signing of the Agreement for the aid.

DECISION

13. It was decided that the Government of Sierra Leone will put together a delegation fairly quickly to go and sign the Agreement.

ITEM IV. DISCIPLINE

14. The Chairman and Council Members were extremely concerned about the attitude and conduct of some Council Members. It was noted that as Members of the Highest Council of the Land, Members must conduct themselves with respect and honesty.

15. It is a shame, the Chairman went on, to hear of Honourable Members threatening to fight in the street. A case in point was the conflict between the PLO I and the Chief Security Officer to His Excellency the Chairman. The two Honourable Members were allowed to explain themselves and the matter was resolved amicably.

16. The Chairman intimated Members that our detractors are planning to cause trouble for the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council before we are one hundred (100) days in office. He therefore encouraged Members to view themselves as a single unit and share information to avoid gossip.

42) Speech

RUF speech to the nation (18 June 1997 – delivered on SLBS).

REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT'S APOLOGY TO THE NATION
Delivered on SLBS, 18 June 1997

Fellow Countrymen,

For the past six years or so, we have been living in an environment of hatred and divisiveness. We looked at our brothers and killed them in cold blood, we removed our sisters from their hiding places to undo their femininity, we slaughtered our mothers and butchered our fathers. It was really a gruesome experience which has left a terrible landmark in our history. But the atrocities that occurred must not be taken in the context of a personal vendetta. They were the result of the rottenness of a system which could not be uprooted except by brutal means. We did not take to the bush because we wanted to be barbarians, not because we wanted to be inhuman, but because we wanted to state our humanity to a society so deep that had the RUF not emerged, we wonder if we would not have still been under the yoke of that wretched regime.

In the process of cleaning the system, however, we have wronged the great majority of our countrymen. We have sinned both in the sight of our Sierra Leonean brothers and sisters, for all the terror and the mayhem we unleashed on you in our bid to make Sierra Leone a country that all Sierra Leoneans would be proud of.

Today, we have rejoined you. We have come back as prodigal sons, brothers and sisters, to meet our families in our different homes, so that we all can sit in our houses in peace and tell tales to our young ones of how Sierra Leone was once cleansed of the mess that unpatriotic politicians brought to her in yonder years. Let the farmers take their tools and go to their farms in peace, let the young women go to the stream and swim in peace, let them sing to their loved ones under the moonshine in peace, let Sierra Leoneans walk in peace, let us talk in peace, let us travel in peace, and just let us live in peace. We have finally discovered the right atmosphere for a peaceful co-existence.

We must accommodate each other if we want to live in peace, and that is the miracle that has occurred in Sierra Leone through the coming of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC). We have accepted to join forces with this government because it is the first to demonstrate a genuine feeling of brotherhood for us - it is the government that has seen us as Sierra Leoneans who came together to stand for a cause for the general good. We want to assure everybody that we are sincerely and genuinely committed to the maintenance and sustenance of this miraculously achieved long-awaited peace. We have not come to terrorize you, our brothers and sisters, we have come to embrace you in love and harmony.

Our members are not involved in the recent spate of armed attacks on residents of Freetown. No RUF member has so far been caught looting or behaving in any disciplinary manner. Perhaps what has delayed the wholesome practicality of this long-cherished peace is this threat of a Nigerian invasion. But the moment that chapter is closed, we are prepared to disarm and melt into the civilian populace and the regular army, because we are fully convinced that the foundation for lasting peace and true democracy has been laid.

We have all along been most willing to end this crisis peacefully, but the past governments proved insincere and unfaithful to their words. The NPRC did not come with the desired reformation, and the SLPP made mockery of the Abidjan Peace Accord. Instead of integrating us into the society as promised, the SLPP only tried to bring divisiveness in our camp by selling our leader Corporal Foday Saybana Sankoh to the Nigerians and staging a coup against him. This was a blatant disregard of the articles of the Peace Accord. Even when some of our members surrendered, they were still ostracized and treated as the dregs of society. And further still, even though we were abiding by the dictates of the cease-fire agreement, Hinga Norman directed the Kamajors to attack our bases. This clearly showed that the SLPP was not ready for PEACE, and so we prepared for the worst. But we must give bountiful thanks to the Almighty for the refreshing fact that instead of the worst, it is the best that has come through the concrete unbelievable peace that has been attained through the AFRC.

We have not therefore denounced attempts at bringing back Tejan Kabbah because we hate him, but it is because he is not willing to accept us as his fellow Sierra Leoneans. Ex-President Kabbah disappointed us gravely, and we can never trust him again. We were prepared for peace, but the SLPP was not. We are therefore appealing to the International Community, and all those that love Sierra Leone, to critically examine the Sierra Leonean problem before any unwarranted action is taken. For six years, we have lived in blood-bath, let us now have fresh baths in our streams, swimming pools and beaches.

We assure the International Community and all Sierra Leoneans of the RUF's total and unflinching commitment to lasting peace. All that we need now is for the United Nations to take the lead in assisting the AFRC in demobilising and re-integrating our combatants into the society for the ultimate achievement of true democracy through free and fair elections that will be conducted in the whole country in peace. At least we can today sleep in peace in the thought that Sierra Leone has finally achieved its nationhood by being bold enough to tell the whole world that we are capable of solving our own problems. The People's Army has come to stay.

I am a Sierra Leonean born at a village called Gawama in the Malema Chiefdom Kailahun District. My birth was not registered but during my childhood days, my elder brother Bockarie Moinama with whom I grew up had always told me that I was born sometime in 1964. My late parents Mr. Moinama Swarray who died in 1970 and Mrs. Aminata Swarray who also died in 1996 were both natives of Gawama Village and were farmers. I have two elder brothers Bockarie Moinama and Momoh Moinama and an only sister, Miatta Moinama who are still leaving at Gawama. I attended the District Education Committee Primary School at Ngiehun on dates I cannot remember but I recall that I sat to the Selective Entrance Examination in 1977/78 school year. I entered the National Secondary School Kailahun in 1979 and I had my Secondary Education up to the Fifth form. I attempted the West African General Certificate of Education (G.C.E.) O'Level Exams in 1985. I did not however complete this exams because I was very sick and did not make it. My elder brother Moinama Bockarie then insisted that I must complete my Secondary Education and sent me to the Wesley Secondary School in Segbwema in 1986 and I finally took the 'O' Level Exams in 1987.

I gained a Division two pass in the Sciences i.e. Chemistry, Biology, Geograph, Economics, Mathematics and English Language. I left school about this time, and joined the New Apostolic Church Mission in Gawama Village as a Sunday School teacher. I was doing this job on voluntary bases until the rebel war broke out in 1991. I cannot remember the exact date, but sometime in the month of March 1991 I was in my home at Gawama Village when I got information that a group calling itself the Revolutionary United Front (R.U.F.) Fighters had entered Sierra Leone from Liberia through the boarders and that they were in Bomaru about seven miles from the village of Gawama. Following the invasion word went round my village and its environs that these fighters were indeed rebels and that their leader was one Corporal Foday Sankoh. The rebels were now approaching our end as the weeks went by and as they did so, Sporadic gunfire was heard in the nearby villages and news again went round that people were being killed by the invading rebels who were reportedly both Sierra Leonean and Liberian Nationals. As a result of this, the Civilian Population in this area were thrown in a complete Pandemonium and people were fleeing in the bushes for safety. During the month of May 1991. I was hiding with some Civilians in a forest nearby when a group of armed rebels entered the village of Gawama and surrounded this forest. In the process, I was later captured with many other youths of my village. After we were captured by a rebel Commando I later came to know as Morris Kallon, we were taken to a rebel base known as Kuiva about four miles off our village. In this village we found over one hundred captives who were already being trained as R.U.F. rebel fighters. I was then trained at this base for a period of about one month in the use of A.K. 47 rifle and general war tactics by Commando Morris Kallon. During this training a rebel Commando by the name of Benedict Fallah became interested in me and recruited me as his Personal Clerk. My assignment was to register all the trainees or captives, and to always call out their names from the register before they start training each day. I recall that during this period, all Sierra Leonean rebels that were recruited in my presence were not supplied with guns at the end of their training even though they were actually trained on the use of the A.K. 47 rifle. The Sierra Leonean rebels were only given knives and cutlasses to fight with, unlike their Liberian colleagues who were fully armed with assault rifles. At this stage I want to make it quite clear that before Corporal Foday Sankoh and his R.U.F. Fighters actually invaded Sierra Leone in 1991, about three hundred Sierra Leoneans were trained in Liberia and these were known as Vanguarders whilst we who were captured here were known as junior Commandos. These set of Sierra Leonean rebels with high quality training were fully armed with assault rifles like their Liberian Counterparts. Examples of these were Colonel Mosquito, Col. Issa and others. There was also another set of Sierra Leoneans known as the "Special Force" in the R.U.F. when they initially entered Sierra Leone and these were trained in Libya. Examples of these were Foday Sankoh himself and Mohamed Tarawallie alias Zeno whose whereabouts I do not know but was last seen at Camp Zogoda in the Kambui hills Kenema district sometime in 1997 when the Kamajors invaded the said camp and killed many rebels. During this period I served as registration clerk at Kueva Camp, many Sierra Leonean youths both male and female were trained and recruited into the rebel force but I do not know the exact number. Sometime in 1992 between the months of June and July, commando Benedict Fallah recommended me for the post of Signaller in the Wireless Section of the R.U.F. The said Commando Fallah was then incharge of this section. Five (5) of us were trained at Pendembu town in the Kailahun district for a period of about one month, namely Sgt. Philip Sannoh, Ahmed Tarawallie, Ahmed Koroma a fellow known only as "T" Boy and myself. All the four other signallers apart from myself are presently in Corporal Foday Sankoh's remainant rebel force as far as I know. During this period also, I came to know Cpl. Foday Sankoh the rebel leader and we were infact personally trained by him on Wireless Signals. We studied voice procedure in code communication and Corporal Foday Sankoh told us during the training that this was his area of speciality when he served in the Sierra Leone Army. After our training in 1992, I was posted back to Kuiva Camp where I was now incharge of the radio communication set until sometime in 1993. During this period I received and sent messages to three other radio stations at Kailahun town, Mobai and one mobile radio station which was in the possession of Cpl. Foday Sankoh himself. These messages were simply routine exercise messages on R.U.F.

rebel movements. We used three types of radio communication sets namely YAESU, ICOM, KEENWOOD and we also used the Military type radio set known as THOMPSON on which I received my training. Sometime in 1993 the Government Forces attacked our bases and subsequently pushed us a long distance to Koindu and we did not have any strong hold again. As a result of this, Corporal Foday Sankoh advised that since we had been badly disorganised by the Government Forces, our only alternative now was to avoid the towns and villages and go into the bush, so we travelled for a period of about eleven days through bush paths to Nomafarma in the Kenema district. This place was captured by us after a serious battle with some ULIMO and Government Forces who were based there. After about two days at Nomofarma we advanced and formed the Camp Zogoda base at Kambou hills in the Kenema district in the month of January 1994. We were at Camp Zogoda in the Kamboui hills when I was promoted to the rank of a Sergeant by Corporal Foday Sankoh. At Camp Zogoda, I was still a signaller even after I was promoted to the rank of a Sergeant. Sometime in the month of April 1996 the Ivorian Foreign Minister Mr. Amara Essy came to Camp Zogoda by Helicopter and collected Cpl. Foday Sankoh and some of his bodyguards. Among the bodyguards Foday Sankoh took along to Abidjan was one Signaller commonly known as "Z" man and I was reliably informed that they were going to attend a Peace Conference between Foday Sankoh and the Government of Sierra Leone in Abidjan. Following this meeting in Abidjan there was a cease fire and three months later Cpl. Foday Sankoh returned Signaller "Z" man to base at Camp Zogoda and ordered that I must join him at Abidjan. I then went to Abidjan in the month of July 1996. During the journey to Abidjan five (5) of us went namely Lieutenant Morieba, Memunata Deen, Aminata Bangura, Sister Jane Konyah and myself all rebels of the R.U.F. We travelled by a fishing canoe towards Gegedu and later by road to Abidjan arriving in the month of July 1996. We found Cpl. Foday Sankoh at a place known as Cocody where we also stayed in the same house with him. While in Abidjan, Cpl. Foday Sankoh made arrangements for the five of us to be trained on the use of Computers and I was again trained on Computers. I had an office at Cocody where my Wireless Radio Set was installed with a Computer and each day after doing my job on the radio set, I use to go for Computer lessons at the Alia computer Institute which is owned by an American. We received tuition in English for six months and I was finally awarded a result and certificate along with my four colleagues named above. We did not have much freedom at Cote D'Ivoire whilst we stayed at Cocody area and even the movements of Cpl. Foday Sankoh were restricted. After our training the women were merely engaged on domestic work whilst Lt. Moriba was bodyguard to Cpl. Foday Sankoh. I was also instructed to train Memunatu Deen and Aminata Bangura on radio communications. Presently both the two women I trained are in Abidjan whilst Lt. Moriba is with Col. Mosquito somewhere in Sierra Leone and Sister Jane Konyah had joined her husband in the United States of America. Sometime after we had completed our training on Computer Operations in Abidjan, Cpl. Foday Sankoh also used me to run errands for him, and in the process I came to know a gentleman by the name of Pa. Kallon who also stayed at Cocody in Abidjan. Towards the end of 1996, Cpl. Foday Sankoh took me to Burkina Faso when he went to visit the Head of State of that country and I was with him in that country for a period of ten days. During this visit I stayed at home whilst Cpl. Foday Sankoh visited the President of Burkina Faso according to what he told me. Whilst on this trip in Burkina Faso, Pa Kallon telephone Cpl. Foday Sankoh from Abidjan and I later learnt from Cpl. Foday Sankoh that he (Pa Kallon) had informed him that those whom we left behind in Abidjan were running out of food and needed some money. Following this telephone call, Cpl. Foday Sankoh gave me the sum of One hundred and sixty (160) C.F.A. Francs with instructions for me to go back to Abidjan and hand the money over to the women for food. On the night of my return to Abidjan a gentleman whom I came to know later as Stephen Bio but commonly called Steve Bio came to the house where we stayed with Cpl. Foday Sankoh. Jane Konyah told me that she had earlier received instructions by telephone from Cpl. Foday Sankoh that Mr. Steve Bio and his wife were to be accommodated in the house until he (Cpl. Sankoh) returned from Burkina Faso. Mr. Stephen Bio then introduced himself to us in the house by his popular name Steve Bio. He told us that he is a brother of the N.P.R.C. Former Head of State Brigadier Julius Maada Bio and that he is a very good friend of Cpl. Foday Sankoh. He went on to say that he had played an active role in assisting the N.P.R.C. Junta Government with the supply of arms and ammunition. Mr. Bio further assured us that himself and Corporal Foday Sankoh had presently consulted and agreed on similar terms of logistics support and that he was now going to provide sufficient arms and ammunition for the R.U.F. rebels fighters of Foday Sankoh to continue the war in Sierra Leone. After about two days, Cpl. Foday Sankoh returned to Abidjan from Burkina Faso and told us in the presence of Mr. Steve Bio that indeed he (Steve Bio) was a very important man. He infact repeated almost all what Mr. Bio said about himself. From that moment we considered Mr. Bio as one of us and we had a lot of conversations. He was staying with his wife, a fair complexioned lady but I have now forgotten her name. During our conversations, Mr. Bio told us that he was infact a member of the R.U.F. and for this reason we seriously embraced him. As we became friends he became very open minded to us and explained that as a matter of fact he was involved in a Coup Plot against the Government of President Ahmad Tejan Kabba which backfired at the time of his escape in December 1996. He said that the Police in Sierra Leone had been looking out for him when he escaped from the country. According to him the Coup Plot was actually planned by him as he wanted to overthrow President Ahmad Tejan Kabba's Government and become President. He further disclosed that on the night the coup was to take place, arrangements were already been completed when a Corporal in the Sierra Leone Army whose name he did not tell us but that he was a member of the Coup Plotters, informed the authorities and their plan was foiled. He did not tell us as to whether any arrests had been made at the time of his escape, he simply narrated how he got out of the country. According to him, he owned three helicopters in Freetown and that he escaped from Sierra Leone through one of those helicopters. Mr. Bio did not go into too much details about the attempted Coup in Sierra Leone leading to his escape, however I recall very well that he mentioned the names of Two Military Officers who served in the N.P.R.C. Junta that were actively engaged on the attempted Coup Plot. Major Kwegor and Tom Nyuma. He said the two officers were out of the country but that even so they were strong members of the plot. Mr. Bio was with us in Abidjan for a period of about two to three months and I recall that during this period, he travelled to Russia once. According to what he told us, he went to make arrangements for the supply of arms and ammunition to the R.U.F. I cannot remember the date of his return from Russia but he came back precisely about three weeks later but he did not return immediately to Abidjān. He went to Nigeria and telephone Cpl. Foday Sankoh from there. After their telephone discussion, Cpl. Foday Sankoh later explained to us that Mr. Steve Bio had finalised arrangements in Russia about the supply of arms and ammunition to the R.U.F. but that the sum of Forty thousand United States dollars ($40,000) was demanded by the manufacturers in Russia. He said that since this money was not readily available, Mr. Steve Bio was therefore in Nigeria to persuade his own friend a man whose name was given as Mr. Prince to lend him this amount so that the arms and ammunition could be purchased. After this first telephone conversation, Mr. Steve Bio telephoned Cpl. Foday Sankoh a second time from Nigeria and according to what he (Sankoh) told us later, Bio convinced him that his friend Prince was also a best friend of Nigerian Head of State General Sani Abacha. Cpl. Sankoh further explained to us that this friend of Steve has now made arrangements on the request of Mr. Steve Bio for him (Sankoh) to go to Nigeria and meet General Sani Abacha who was willing to also give him arms, ammunition and even man power to beef up his fighters. Sometime later, Cpl. Foday Sankoh sent one of his bodyguards by the name of Ansumana Musa to Nigeria in order to verify the claims made by Steve Bio. When Ansumana arrived in Nigeria, Steve Bio convinced him to send back a very good report to Cpl. Foday Sankoh. Following this report, Cpl. Foday Sankoh sent Lt. Colonel Gibriel ahead one morning in the month of May 1996 and he asked me to go with him on the evening of that same day to Nigeria. Cpl. Foday Sankoh and I travelled by Air Cameroun and arrived at the Mohamed Murtalla Airport in Lagos at exactly 8.p.m. on that night. On arrival at the airport we found Mr. Steve Bio, Ansumana Musa and Lt. Colonel Gibriel waiting to receive us. They came to the Airport with two vehicles but there was no Government Official to represent General Sani Abacha. We went through the immigration process at the airport and joined Mr. Steve Bio and others in the waiting cars. We then moved a few yards towards a police station and the police stopped us and demanded to know our identities. We all showed our identities but the moment Cpl. Foday Sankoh disclosed his identity the Nigerian Officers gave Orders for us to come down and follow them to the Police Station. Foday Sankoh was then questioned and in reply he explained that he was in Nigeria as a Guest of the Nigerian Head of State. The police officers however were not convinced because according to them, if what Foday Sankoh was saying was the truth they should have been notified even before his flight landed in Lagos. We were then arrested and taken to the police headquarters where we were later thoroughly searched and Foday Sankoh was found with only four (4) live rounds of Pistol ammunition. Following this, the four of us were placed in Cells with the exception of Foday Sankoh. Thirty minutes later, through the intervention of the Nigerian Foreign Minister we were released and taken to Hotel known as Federal State Hotel at Victoria Island. We got everything we needed in this hotel and we were there for a period of sixteen (16) days. However whilst we were in this hotel, one of the Protocol Officers in the hotel told Foday Sankoh that Nigerian Head of State knew nothing about his mission in Nigeria. The Protocol Officer further said that Foday Sankoh was to be sent under escort to Abuja on that same day. As a result of this, Foday Sankoh told us that he has been arrested and instructed me to return to Abidjan immediately. He took Lt. Col Gibriel and Ansumana Musa with him to Abuja whilst Steve Bio headed for Burkina Faso. I returned to Abidjan by Air Ethiopia and whilst I was still in Abidjan Cpl. Foday Sankoh communicated with me by telephone. On the day following my return to Abidjan, Foday Sankoh instructed me to go to Ouagadugoe in Burkina Faso where I received the sum of Six hundred and thirty C.F.A. Francs (630 C.F.A) from one General Ibrahim who also is a member of the R.U.F. He is a Gambian National and resident in Ouagadugou. I was there for a month before I returned with the money to Abidjan. The money was to be used for feeding. After sometime in Abidjan Foday Sankoh phoned us and gave instructions that we must all find our way back to Sierra Leone. Infact we lost communication and we had no money left for our feeding and nothing was known about Steve Bio's whereabouts. I returned to Sierra Leone in September 1997 but before doing so I had already heard that Major Johnny Paul Koroma had seized power from Dr. Ahmad Tejan Kabba and the A.F.R.C. Junta was now in power. I was never paid a salary whilst I served Cpl. Foday Sankoh as a rebel in the R.U.F. throughout the period I was in this rebel movement. I came by road to Sierra Leone through Liberia and went straight to my village Gawama in the month of October 1997. I was not doing anything in Gawama on my return and I did not try to hide because the Junta had already announced that we should come out of the bush and join them. At the end of October 1997 I travelled to Samuel Town near the Benguema military barracks. I stayed with my brother John Trawallie and early in November 1997 Colonel Sam Bockarie alias Mosquito heard that I was in this place. I was at home in Samuel Town on the morning of 5th November 1997 when a small rebel boy whose name I dont know shot my right foot with an A.K. 47 rifle on the instruction of Col. Mosquito. His reason for giving that order according to this rebel boy was that those of us who went to Nigeria with Foday Sankoh had sold him to the Nigerians. Secondly Col. Sam Bockarie said that I was only enjoying in the R.U.F. and never held a gun. I cared for the wound on my foot and when it was nearly heald I went to Maoma Village about three miles off Masiaka town as I was now afraid to be with the rebels. I now prefer to be on the side of the Government than to be a rebel, so I decided to surrender myself to Ecomog at the Texaco junction in Kissy on the 14th of March. This I did by asking the Guinean troops based at Masiaka to help me with means of transport to convey me to Freetown on the day I surrendered but in doing so, I only pretended to be a poor wounded man and I did not disclose my true identify to them. After I surrendered at Texaco Junction on the 14th, the Ecomog soldiers handed me over to the police at Kissy and I was later brought to the C.I.D. in Freetown where I made a statement. I still have the gun shot wound on my right foot and now need medical treatment. At this stage I want to pledge my Loyalty to the Government of President Ahmad Tejan Kabba and promise that if my life is spared I will play a vital role to counter further movements of the R.U.F. in the pursuit of real and lasting peace in this country. That is all. Statement made in Krio recorded in English read over and explained in Krio admitted to be true and correct and concluded at 1415 hours on Tuesday the 17th March 1998. Breaks from 1920 hours on 16th March 1998 to 1130 hours on 17th March, 1998.

48) Speech

Address by Major Johnny Paul Koroma, Head of State and Chairman of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council, Freetown, 1 June 1997

Address by Major Johnny Paul Koroma
Head of State and Chairman of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council Freetown - 1 June 1997

My fellow countrymen, friendly nations and members of the international community. The big question at this moment on the lips of everybody inside and outside the country is what prompted us to oust former President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah and his government from power.

Before dwelling on the main above-mentioned theme of my address, I want first and foremost on behalf of my colleagues avail myself of this opportunity to solemnly extend our sincere and heartfelt sympathy and expression of regret for the unfortunate incidents that occurred during the takeover operation in which some of our brothers and sisters, as well as foreign nationals, lost their lives and property.

In this regard, the AFRC, as you have been informed through the media, has taken appropriate measures to prevent the recurrence of such unfortunate incidents. My address this evening is not only directed to fellow Sierra Leoneans. It is also meant to enlighten concerned non-nationals and the international community about the welfare of our beloved country, on the main motive of our action.

I have already emphasized in my last two addresses that our action was not motivated by selfish [as heard] and greed for power. The main objective of the AFRC to seize power is to restore lasting peace and political stability in this country, which has been ravaged and continues to be shattered by a senseless war.

On this vital issue of restoring peace and political stability in our country, I would like on behalf of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council and the entire nation to pay a special and fitting tribute to the Ivorian head of state, His Excellency President Henri Konan Bedie, with special mention to his Foreign Minister Amara Essy, the government and people of La Cote d'Ivoire for the very important role they played in getting Corporal Foday Saybana Sankoh, the charismatic leader of the Revolutionary United Front of Sierra Leone around the negotiating table, that resulted to the signing of the Abuja peace accord last November. But for the relentless efforts of the authorities of this great African country, in the true state of African solidarity, we will not even have been thinking about...[pauses] talking about inviting the RUF leader to command his fighters to (?cease) hostilities and to join the revolution with the sole objective of bringing lasting peace to our beloved country.

The AFRC would also like to seize this opportunity to thank friendly sister countries in the subregion, namely the Federal Republic of Nigeria, the Republic of Guinea, and Ghana for their effective and invaluable role in averting irreparable destruction of our fatherland at the height of the rebel war. The AFRC would also like to behalf of the entire nation to thank the international community and NGO's [words indistinct] to the United Nations Organization, the Commonwealth, the OAU, the International Alliance, the International Community of the World Force for the very important roles they played toward the success of the Abidjan peace process.

Fellow countrymen, friendly nations, members of the international community, I would now like to dwell on the main theme of my address this evening. The main reason that prompted us to take the [word indistinct] and timely decision to overthrow the former regime and to extend an invitation to RUF Cpl. Foday Sankoh and the RUF to operate with us.

It is true the wind of democracy has blown and continues to blow around the world. Patriotic and national Sierra Leoneans, old and young, put in everything, sometimes at the expense of their lives, during the transition process to democratic rule with the objective of being in tune with progressive nations around the globe and restoring lasting peace and political stability in Sierra Leone. After five years of military governance, our country was returned to democratic rule with great pains, but due to lack of political ingenuity and sincere commitment on the part of former President Tejan Kabbah and some of his lieutenants, the hard-won democracy was being gradually jeopardized by the flagrant antidemocratic and unpatriotic practices of the late regime. The unanimous vote in favor of the new president by SLPP parliamentarians and the appointment of ruling party stalwarts to most of the key positions of the state's administrative machinery is a palpable truth of such tendencies.

In an exclusive interview granted to the West African magazine of March this year in Washington, OAU Secretary General Dr. Ahmed Salim Ahmed (sic.) rightly opined, and quote, "Progressive African leadership must now operate, above all, on the clear knowledge that the question of peace, security, and political stability of their respective continent is of primordial importance. Without peace, security, and political stability, it is not possible that any country will achieve the type of democratic and economic growth, the type of social development that we aspire to," quote. [as heard]

This is why my colleagues and I on the AFRC have decided to focus on the question of resolving our internal conflicts. The war that has shattered our once flourishing economy, with much more of [word indistinct] efforts and reality. [words indistinct] this priority of priorities--the return of lasting peace and political stability in our country--is achieved, we will then focus on the whole question of democratization and greater respect for human rights. Military issues, the question of economic and social development, the question of security and stability, and the issue of democratization and human rights are related. If we are to achieve the objective the AFRC will set for itself and address the new challenges that face our country [sentence as heard]. The AFRC will endeavor to address each of these goals and their [word indistinct] within the present context of the social and political situation prevailing in the country.

Our brother Cpl. Foday Saybana Sankoh is quick to understand this when he emphatically stated in his radio message to the nation from Abuja that a democracy without peace, security, and political stability is baseless. The remarkable economic growth and social development achieved by our sister and friendly Republic of La Cote d'Ivoire is due to the legendary peace, security, and political stability in that country. Foreign investors and economic operators will only pour in their money into countries that will guarantee their personal security and that of their investment.

Fellow countrymen, you will surely agree with me that the unseated president and some of his round pegs in square holes collaborators dragged their feet in implementing the priority clauses stipulated in the Abuja peace accord related to developments of mutual forces to carry out encampment and disarming of combatants. The Commission of the Consolidation of Peace, PCP, was never given the attention needed to carry out its functions.

Fellow countrymen, I will not dwell much on the negative [word indistinct], but let me touch on some of its saddest aspects. The death toll could be estimated at about 15,000 troops. Damaged property could easily amount to several billions of leones. The economy has been completely crippled. Thousands of families which once enjoyed the warmth of living together have been separated. Innocent citizens, mainly comprised of agricultural workers in rural areas, were mutilated and maimed, rendering them physically handicapped and useless throughout the rest of their lives. The brain drain in the country during the war reached unprecedented proportions with its negative effects on the standard of education in our university and other institutions of higher learning. Children in their thousands have become homeless, orphans, and street-beggars. Persons traumatized by the atrocities of the war have become mentally unbalanced. Fellow countrymen, the negative spoils of the war cannot be fully exhausted in this address.

Nationalistic and patriotic Sierra Leoneans as well as well-meaning non-nationals and the international community will now understand why the AFRC deem it at this point in time to drive away the enemies of this nation and to call upon Cpl. Foday Sankoh and the RUF to join the revolution so as to bring about lasting peace and to arrest the unmerited and unwarranted sufferings of our people.

With the return of lasting peace and political stability in this country, Sierra Leoneans will regain their lost personality and integrity, but more especially our shattered economy [words indistinct] foreign investment. Our country will once more regain its rightly place among the progressive nations of the world.

My fellow countrymen, we are undergoing a very crucial stage in the history of our country. Our destiny and that of generations yet unborn is in our hands. Shakespeare rightly put, quote, "There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken on the tide (sic.) leads on to fortune, omitted all their voyage is bound in shallow waters," unquote.

We should not leave the fate of this only country that we have to be determined by other people for their own personal aggrandizement. The Lord Almighty, our creator, loves this country. He has made it possible for us to know our enemies at the right time. The Biblical saying "God's time is the best" should be an eye opener for us. Prayers said in our numerous churches and mosques on Sundays and Fridays throughout the national territory for the return of lasting peace to our beloved country have not gone in vain. My fellow countrymen, our priority of priorities today is peace. Peace is an inseparable factor for human development. We have been longing for it for the past six years. Thanks to God, it is here. The Armed Forces Revolutionary Council and true patriots of this country are therefore solemnly appealing to all Sierra Leoneans, irrespective of their ethnic grouping, creed, social standing, and political affiliation, within and outside our national territory to join the God-inspired revolution for the ultimate salvation of our beloved fatherland.

I will end my address by declaring three days fasting and prayers throughout the country, from Sunday, 1 to Tuesday 3 June 1997. United We Stand, Divided We fall. I thank you very much.

Statement on the historic return to Freetown, Sierra Leone, of the Leaders of the Alliance of the Revolutionary United Front of Sierra Leone and the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council, 3 October 1999.

STATEMENT ON THE HISTORIC RETURN TO FREETOWN, SIERRA LEONE, OF
THE LEADERS OF THE ALLIANCE OF THE REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT OF SIERRA LEONE AND THE ARMED FORCES REVOLUTIONARY COUNCIL

Freetown, Sunday, October 3, 1999

We herald the dawn of a new era. The war has ended. The era of peace, forgiveness and reconciliation has come.

We stand before you today to ask for forgiveness and a spirit of reconciliation across the country.

We offer hands of kindred understanding and love to all those who we have wronged. You, who we have wronged, you have every human right to feel bitter and unforgiving but we plead with you for forgiveness.

Those who have died; those who are grieving for the loss of their loved ones; those who have been disabled; those whose property have been destroyed; those traumatized - the children, the youth, the women and the old aged - we ask for their forgiveness.

We ask for forgiveness from the displaced and refugees.

We also ask for forgiveness and a spirit of reconciliation from the relatives and governments of all those foreign troops who lost their lives and suffered casualties in their tour of duty in Sierra Leone.

We ask for forgiveness and a spirit of reconciliation from members of the international community whose good will has been frustrated by this war. We ask of the same from non-governmental organisations, journalists and civil society groups both local and foreign.

We will like to repeat that the war has ended. To this effect, all prisoners of war are to be released. All roads are opened. To complement this, we call on the government to release all political prisoners and prisoners of war.

We are no longer in a state of war. We are in a state of peace and our presence here today is a testimony to our commitment to the full implementation of the Lome Peace Accord.

We have come to stay and to help consolidate the peace. We want all fears to be removed from our society starting from today. We are now in an era of peace. We are in an era of absolute respect for human rights.

All fears must be removed from our society. The state of emergency must be lifted immediately as we are no longer in a state of war. We have a responsibility now to remove all signals of mistrust, fear and war. The curfew must be lifted. All so-called collaborators are freed of their charges and we welcome them back into our society. Let know one be intimidated or live in fear in the new Sierra Leone we are about to create.

We are happy to announce to the nation today that the reason that brought together the Revolutionary United Front and the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council still remains. We came together to end the war. We shall remain together to consolidate the peace. Nothing will divide us as our union or alliance is with the blessing of the Almighty Allah/God and our glorious ancestors.

Our alliance is for peace! Our alliance is for peace! Our alliance is for peace.

With peace comes politics. The RUF/AFRC alliance will enter into politics. By this, therefore, the RUF/AFRC alliance is to be transformed from a military alliance to a political alliance in accordance with the Lome Peace Accord.

To further demonstrate our abiding commitment to peace, we the leadership and high command of the Revolutionary United Front and the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council are happy to announce today the transformation of the RUF/AFRC alliance into a political movement. We usher in a vibrant political movement for peace. The RUF/AFRC alliance is now the ALLIANCE FOR PEACE (AFP)!

Very soon we will announce the symbol and flag of the Alliance for Peace (AFP). Our chosen symbol will be that of peace, goodwill and respect for human rights. Our chosen flag will reflect the strength and pride of our Pan-African heritage. We shall strive for the empowerment of our people so that the root causes of the civil war shall be removed from our society forever. Our rallying call shall be "Power to the People". Our Alliance is for Peace and we are here to sustain the peace and contribute to the creation of a new Sierra Leone of equal opportunity, freedom and justice for all.

We have come home to stay! We have come home to build! We have come home to remove fear, intimidation and mistrust from our society.

We embrace you, our people, in the spirit of forgiveness and reconciliation.

Our dear nation has suffered enough but at long last peace is now at hand. All the fighting forces of this country will be mobilised to rebuild this country. We will transform ourselves into builders of homes, schools, hospitals, markets, roads, bridges, airfields and dams to provide electricity. We shall make farms, fish ponds and raise livestock. We will be the motivating force behind the regeneration of our mining industry. We will transform the motivation on the battlefield to the fields of construction and development. This is the challenge we have put before us. Our movement for peace is also a movement for reconstruction and development.

Fellow Sierra Leoneans, join us in expressing our profound gratitude to all those who have patiently assisted us on this our footpath to peace and democracy. We thank the Heads of State of the ECOWAS Authority, their governments and people for helping us to achieve peace at last. We thank the United Nations, the Organization of African Unity, the European Union and the Commonwealth for listening to the cries of Sierra Leoneans for peace and helping the nation to focus on the benefits of peace. We thank the NGO community, journalists and the civil society groups who constantly reminded the warring factions of their human rights obligations. To them and the international community who supported them we reaffirm our commitment to the observance of human rights. Let their collective voice continue to ring in our ears and remind us of our human rights obligations to the rest of society.

We hold our Alliance for Peace sacred and therefore our commitment to peace and our desire to see to the implementation of the Lome Peace Accord in full.

We are at home and there is no turning back. We have come to help build a new Sierra Leone. May the Almighty Allah/God and our glorious ancestors continue to guide and bless us all.

50) Speech

Personal Statement by Lt. JP Koroma on 1 October 1999

PERSONAL STATEMENT BY Lt. Col. J.P. Koroma on October 1st 1999.

Previous to May 1997, I did not collude with the RUF/SL nor did I ever collaborate with any coup plot. I want to hereby inform my brothers and sisters in the Diaspora that yesterday was the very first time that I ever met with the RUF leader.

On the 23rd March 1991, I was the very first officer who was sent from Daru Barracks to counter the RUF at Bomaru in Eastern Sierra Leone and until May 1997, God being my witness, I never had any contact with the RUF leadership. However, I had seen the devastation that the war had wrought on the country. In 1997, when I saw an opportunity to get peace for Sierra Leone through dialogue and power sharing, I worked hard to achieve this in spite of the enormous misunderstandings that were created.

Yesterday, after meeting with Chairman Foday Sankoh, I am very pleased that we are one step closer to the meeting between President Kabbah, Foday Sankoh and myself that I repeatedly called for in 1997 and 1998.

I am fully aware of the concerns by the International Community and my countrymen about the state of the Lomé Peace Accord. I want to assure all that the meeting between Chairman Sankoh and myself went well. I want to assure all that my men and I are fully committed to the Lomé Peace Accord albeit the necessary addendum(s) that would have to be attached in the near future. I am very sincere in seeing my country at peace and seeing that the socio-economic problems that caused the RUF to take up arms be addressed.

I am very thankful to President Charles Taylor for the role he has played in seeing that the first face to face meeting between Chairman Sankoh and myself went smoothly. My first meeting with Foday Sankoh was successful because of the diplomacy showed by President Charles Taylor. After the meeting at the Liberian Executive mansion, I held a second meeting with Foday Sankoh again last evening. This ended at 11pm. I had suspected that Chairman Sankoh's earlier statements referencing me had been made based on a lot of misinformation that he had received. Yesterday, after meeting with me, the RUF Leader publicly told President Taylor and others that he had been largely misinformed about my motives.

Again, I want to assure my brothers, sisters and the International Community that Chairman Sankoh and myself will work together to see the full implementation of the Lomé Peace Accord. There are however a few points that we wish the world to be made aware of:

1. The document released this week by the Sierra Leone Government, which promises to see to the grievances of the Sierra Leone Army, was signed not by our Commander-In-Chief, President Kabbah but by his deputy, Vice President Demby. We welcome the written promise by the government to see to the re-instatement and payment of salaries of my men but we question the rationale behind Demby's signature on the document as against President Kabbah's.
2. The exact role of the Civil Defence Force in the Peace process has to be seriously considered by all concerned. These fighters should not be made to feel that they have been used and are now being marginalised. The assurance from their leaders that all is well is in sharp contrast to the reality on the field. A package must be designed to rehabilitate and re-integrate the civil defence force fighters. In the current situation, any fighting force, however small can disrupt the Lomé Accord if they feel aggrieved.

3. All addendum(s) to the Lome Peace Accord including the current proposal signed by Vice President Demby must be signed by President Kabbah, Chairman Sankoh, myself and all the moral guarantors of the Lome Peace Accord before they can be considered as Addendum(s) to the Lomé Accord. They must also be speedily passed through parliament for legislative approval.

Finally but most importantly, I want to appeal to my countrymen to forgive my men for atrocities that they might have committed. I sympathise with the suffering of my brothers and sisters throughout Sierra Leone and I am again assuring them that I, Lt. Col. Johnny Paul Koroma, am fully committed to making Sierra Leone a land of peace and subsequent development. I had been kept out of contact with my men for 18 months since February 1998; However, as from now, I will see to it that the suffering inflicted on the populace be brought to an end. Too many innocent people on all sides of the war spectrum have died. I want to encourage us all against the shedding of blood. Let us now look towards making our rich country a place we can all be proud of.

ORIGINAL: ENGLISH

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL

At the 3720th meeting of the Security Council, held on 4 December 1996 in connection with the Council's consideration of the item entitled "The situation in Sierra Leone", the President of the Security Council made the following statement on behalf of the Council:

"The Security Council warmly welcomes the Peace Agreement signed by the Government of Sierra Leone and the Revolutionary United Front in Abidjan on 30 November 1996. The Agreement brings to an end a bitter conflict which has caused appalling suffering to the people of Sierra Leone. The Council pays tribute to the courage and determination of all those who have worked tirelessly towards this end. The Council hopes that the Agreement will provide encouragement to those working for peace in other parts of Africa.

"The Security Council commends in particular the role played by the Government of Côte d'Ivoire whose commitment and determination in the chairmanship of the negotiations between the parties have been crucial to this successful outcome. The Council also pays tribute to the support provided to the negotiations by the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General in close coordination with the Organization of African Unity, the Commonwealth, the Economic Community of West African States and other organizations and neighbouring countries.

"The Security Council continues to follow developments in Sierra Leone with close interest. The Peace Agreement is an essential first step towards national reconciliation and reconstruction. The Council will continue to support the development of peace and democracy in Sierra Leone. It notes in particular the need for a successful process of demobilization and reintegration of former combatants and stands ready to assist in this process. It stresses the importance of a coordinated international effort to alleviate the humanitarian situation in the country.

"The Security Council requests the Secretary-General to continue to monitor the situation in Sierra Leone and to keep the Council informed of further significant developments."

GENERALS/RES/1132 (1997)
8 October 1997

RESOLUTION 1132 (1997)

Adopted by the Security Council at its 3822nd meeting, on 8 October 1997

The Security Council,

Recalling the statements of its President of 27 May 1997 (S/PRST/1997/29), 11 July 1997 (S/PRST/1997/36) and 6 August 1997 (S/PRST/1997/42) condemning the military coup in Sierra Leone,

Taking note of the decision of the thirty-third summit of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) held in Harare, Zimbabwe, from 2 to 4 June 1997 concerning the situation in Sierra Leone,

Taking note also of the Communique issued at the meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) on Sierra Leone, held in Conakry, Guinea on 26 June 1997 (S/1997/499), the Declaration of the ECOWAS Committee of Four Foreign Ministers on Sierra Leone (the ECOWAS Committee) of 30 July 1997 (S/1997/646), and the final Communique of the summit of ECOWAS held at Abuja on 28 and 29 August 1997 and the Decision on sanctions against the military junta in Sierra Leone issued at the summit (S/1997/695, Annexes I and II),

Taking note also of the Secretary-General's letter of 7 October 1997 (S/1997/776), Expressing its full support and appreciation for the mediation efforts of the ECOWAS Committee,

Reaffirming its view that the Abidjan Agreement (S/1996/1034) continues to serve as a viable framework for peace, stability and reconciliation in Sierra Leone,

Deploring the fact that the military junta has not taken steps to allow the restoration of the democratically-elected Government and a return to constitutional order,

Gravely concerned at the continued violence and loss of life in Sierra Leone following the military coup of 25 May 1997, the deteriorating humanitarian conditions in that country, and the consequences for neighbouring countries,

Determining that the situation in Sierra Leone constitutes a threat to international peace and security in the region,

3. Expresses its strong support for the efforts of the ECOWAS Committee to resolve the crisis in Sierra Leone and encourages it to continue to work for the peaceful restoration of the constitutional order, including through the resumption of negotiations;
4. Encourages the Secretary-General, through his Special Envoy, in cooperation with the ECOWAS Committee, to assist the search for a peaceful resolution of the crisis and, to that end, to work for a resumption of discussions with all parties to the crisis;
5. Decides that all States shall prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of members of the military junta and adult members of their families, as designated in accordance with paragraph 10 (f) below, provided that the entry into or transit through a particular State of any such person may be authorized by the Committee established by paragraph 10 below for verified humanitarian purposes or purposes consistent with paragraph 1 above, and provided that nothing in this paragraph shall oblige a State to refuse entry into its territory to its own nationals; for verified humanitarian purposes, or for the needs of the Military Observer Group of ECOWAS (ECOMOG), subject to acceptable arrangements for effective monitoring of delivery;

8. Acting also under Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations, authorizes ECOWAS, cooperating with the democratically-elected Government of Sierra Leone, to ensure strict implementation of the provisions of this resolution relating to the supply of petroleum and petroleum products, and arms and related matériel of all types, including, where necessary and in conformity with applicable international standards, by halting inward maritime shipping in order to inspect and verify their cargoes and destinations, and calls upon all States to cooperate with ECOWAS in this regard;

9. Requests ECOWAS to report every 30 days to the Committee established under paragraph 10 below on all activities undertaken pursuant to paragraph 8 above;

10. Decides to establish, in accordance with rule 28 of its provisional rules of procedure, a Committee of the Security Council consisting of all the members of the Council, to undertake the following tasks and to report on its work to the Council with its observations and recommendations:

- (a) to seek from all States further information regarding the action taken by them with a view to implementing effectively the measures imposed by paragraphs 5 and 6 above;
- (b) to consider information brought to its attention by States concerning violations of the measures imposed by paragraphs 5 and 6 above and to recommend appropriate measures in response thereto;

- (d) to promulgate such guidelines as may be necessary to facilitate the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraphs 5 and 6 above;
- (e) to consider and decide expeditiously requests for the approval of imports of petroleum and petroleum products in accordance with paragraph 7 above;
- (f) to designate expeditiously members of the military junta and adult members of their families whose entry or transit is to be prevented in accordance with paragraph 5 above;
- (g) to examine the reports submitted pursuant to paragraphs 9 above and 13 below;

- (h) to establish liaison with the ECOWAS Committee on the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraphs 5 and 6 above;
11. Calls upon all States and all international and regional organizations to act strictly in conformity with this resolution, notwithstanding the existence of any rights granted or obligations conferred or imposed by any international agreement or of any contract entered into or any licence or permit granted prior to the entry into force of the provisions set out in paragraphs 5 and 6 above;
12. Requests the Secretary-General to provide all necessary assistance to the Committee established by paragraph 10 above and to make the necessary arrangements in the Secretariat for this purpose;
13. Requests States to report to the Secretary-General within 30 days of the date of adoption of this resolution on the steps they have taken to give effect to the provisions set out in paragraphs 5 and 6 above;
14. Requests all those concerned, including ECOWAS, the United Nations and other international humanitarian agencies, to establish appropriate arrangements for the provision of humanitarian assistance and to endeavour to ensure that such assistance responds to local needs and is safely delivered to, and used by, its intended recipients;
15. Urges all States, international organizations and financial institutions to assist States in the region to address the economic and social consequences of the influx of refugees from Sierra Leone;
16. Requests the Secretary-General to submit an initial report to the Council within 15 days of the adoption of this resolution on compliance with paragraph 1 above, and thereafter every 60 days after the date of adoption of this resolution on its implementation and on the humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone;
17. Decides, if the measures set out in paragraphs 5 and 6 above have not been terminated in accordance with paragraph 19 below, to conduct, 180 days after the adoption of this resolution and on the basis of the most recent report of the Secretary-General, a thorough review of the application of these measures and of any steps taken by the military junta to comply with paragraph 1 above;
18. Urges all States to provide technical and logistical support to assist ECOWAS to carry out its responsibilities in the implementation of this resolution;
19. Expresses its intention to terminate the measures set out in paragraphs 5 and 6 above when the demand in paragraph 1 above has been complied with;
20. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

RESOLUTION 1181 (1998)

Adopted by the Security Council at its 3902nd meeting, on 13 July 1998

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous relevant resolutions and the statements of its President,

Welcoming the continued efforts of the Government of Sierra Leone to restore peaceful and secure conditions in the country, to re-establish effective administration and the democratic process and to embark on the task of national reconciliation, reconstruction and rehabilitation,

Recognizing the important contribution of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) in support of these objectives,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 9 June 1998 (S/1998/486 and Add.1),

Noting the objectives set by ECOWAS for its Military Observer Group (ECOMOG) as described in paragraph 17 of the report of Secretary-General,

Gravely concerned at the loss of life and immense suffering undergone by the people of Sierra Leone, including refugees and displaced persons, as a result of the continuing rebel attacks, and in particular at the plight of children affected by the conflict,

1. Condemns the continued resistance of remnants of the ousted junta and members of the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) to the authority of the legitimate government and the violence they are perpetrating against the civilian population of Sierra Leone, and demands that they lay down their arms immediately;

2. Emphasizes the need to promote national reconciliation in Sierra Leone, encourages all parties in the country to work together towards this objective, and welcomes the assistance of the Secretary-General and his Special Envoy in that regard;

3. Welcomes the proposal in the report of the Secretary-General of 9 June 1998 on the establishment of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone (UNOMSIL);

5. Commends the positive role of ECOWAS and ECOMOG in their efforts to restore peace, security and stability throughout the country at the request of the Government of Sierra Leone, and notes the role of ECOMOG in assisting the implementation of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan adopted by the Government of Sierra Leone, including the provision of security and responsibility for arms collection and destruction;

6. Decides to establish UNOMSIL for an initial period of six months until 13 January 1999, and further decides that it shall include up to 70 military observers as well as a small medical unit, with the necessary equipment and civilian support staff, with the following mandate:

(a) To monitor the military and security situation in the country as a whole, as security conditions permit, and to provide the Special Representative of the Secretary-General with regular information thereon in particular with a view to determining when conditions are sufficiently secure to allow subsequent deployments of military observers beyond the first phase described in paragraph 7 below;

(b) To monitor the disarmament and demobilization of former combatants concentrated in secure areas of the country, including monitoring of the role of ECOMOG in the provision of security and in the collection and destruction of arms in those secure areas;

8. Decides further that UNOMSIL shall be led by the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General, who will be designated Special Representative for Sierra Leone, that UNOMSIL shall subsume the office of the Special Envoy and its civilian staff, and that the augmented civilian staff, as recommended by the

Secretary-General in paragraphs 74 and 75 of his report, shall perform, inter alia, the following tasks:

(a) To advise, in coordination with other international efforts, the Government of Sierra Leone and local police officials on police practice, training, re-equipment and recruitment, in particular on the need to respect internationally accepted standards of policing in democratic societies, to advise on the planning of the reform and restructuring of the Sierra Leone police force, and to monitor progress in that regard;

(b) To report on violations of international humanitarian law and human rights in Sierra Leone, and, in consultation with the relevant United Nations agencies, to assist the Government of Sierra Leone in its efforts to address the country's human rights needs;

9. Welcomes the commitment of ECOMOG to ensure the security of United Nations personnel, and in this regard welcomes also the intention of the Secretary-General to establish security arrangements for United Nations personnel with the Chairman of ECOWAS and to conclude a status of mission agreement with Government of Sierra Leone;

10. Decides that the elements of UNOMSIL referred to in paragraph 6 above shall be deployed when the Secretary-General informs the Council that security arrangements and the status of mission agreement have been concluded, and further decides to keep the deployment of UNOMSIL under review in the light of the prevailing security conditions;

11. Stresses the need for full cooperation and close coordination between UNOMSIL and ECOMOG in their respective operational activities;

12. Demands that all factions and forces in Sierra Leone strictly respect the status of UNOMSIL personnel, as well as organizations and agencies delivering humanitarian assistance throughout Sierra Leone, and that they respect human rights and abide by applicable rules of international humanitarian law;

13. Expresses its serious concern at the reports of cross-border arms flows and support to the rebels in Sierra Leone, welcomes the intention of the Secretary-General, as indicated in his report, to pursue with all parties concerned steps to eliminate these activities, and in that regard reaffirms the obligation of all States to comply strictly with the terms of the embargo on the sale or supply of arms and related matériel to Sierra Leone imposed by resolution 1171 (1998) of 5 June 1998, and to bring all instances of violations of the arms embargo before the Committee established by resolution 1132 (1997) of 8 October 1997;

14. Welcomes the efforts of the Government of Sierra Leone to coordinate an effective national response to the needs of children affected by armed conflict, and the recommendation of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children in Armed Conflict that Sierra Leone be made one of the pilot projects for a more concerted and effective response to the needs of children in the context of post-conflict peace-building;

15. Further welcomes the decision of the Secretary-General to convene a high-level conference to mobilize assistance for peacekeeping activities, emergency and humanitarian needs and reconstruction and rehabilitation in Sierra Leone;

16. Reiterates its urgent appeal to States to make contributions to the Trust Fund which has been established to support peacekeeping and related activities in Sierra Leone, to provide technical and logistical support to assist ECOMOG to carry out its peacekeeping role, and to help facilitate other ECOWAS member States to provide additional troops to strengthen the deployment of ECOMOG in Sierra Leone;

17. Urges all States and international organizations to provide urgent humanitarian assistance to Sierra Leone, in response to the consolidated inter-agency appeal launched on 24 June 1998;

18. Encourages all States and international organizations to assist and participate in the longer term tasks of reconstruction and economic and social recovery and development in Sierra Leone;

19. Requests the Secretary-General to submit an initial report to the Council within 30 days of the adoption of this resolution and every 60 days thereafter on the deployment of UNOMSIL and on the progress of UNOMSIL in carrying out its mandate, and also to inform the Council on plans for the later phases of the deployment of UNOMSIL when security conditions permit these to be implemented;

20. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

56) United Nations Document

Fourth Report of the Secretary General on the Situation in Sierra Leone, S/1998/249 (18 March 1998), paragraph 6, 20.

5. I reaffirmed to the Committee of Five the desire of the United Nations for close cooperation between the United Nations and ECOWAS, and stated that ECOMOG needed to develop a concept of operations on the basis of which the United Nations could finalize its own deployment plan. ECOMOG should also compile a statement of its own logistical requirements in order to attract the necessary support from potential donors.

6. On the same day, responding to an attack by junta forces on their position at Lungi, ECOMOG launched a military attack on the junta, which culminated approximately one week later in the collapse of the junta and its expulsion by force from Freetown after heavy fighting. The fall of the city on 13 February, which was accompanied by widespread looting and some reprisal killings, led to the flight or capture of many soldiers and leaders of the junta. ECOWAS has assured me that the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) has been allowed to visit prisoners detained by ECOMOG in Freetown. However, some of the former leaders of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC), including its Chairman, Johnny Paul Koroma, are believed to be still at large. Acting in concert with the local Kamajors and other traditional hunter militia (known as the Civil Defence Unit), ECOMOG has subsequently taken control of the towns of Bo, Kenema and Zimmi in the south of the country, and Lunsar, Makeni and Kabala in the north. ECOMOG has also reported the capture of Daru, which would mean that the remnants of the junta have now been dislodged from every major town except for Kailahun. Following scattered fighting in the latter part of February, the country now appears to be quiet. A number of foreign aid workers and missionaries taken hostage by armed elements in February were later released unharmed. However, press reports in mid-March indicated that Revolutionary United Front (RUF) members in Kono had murdered civilians and taken 200 hostages, reportedly including foreign nationals.

7. On 18 February, accompanied by the Executive Secretary of ECOWAS, Mr. Lansana Kouyaté, Minister Ikimi visited Sierra Leone to assess the situation on the ground. They interviewed some former junta soldiers now detained by ECOMOG and visited the State House complex and the Parliament buildings. Many of the government buildings were found to have been looted and were in poor condition, and a number of unexploded bombs were scattered about. However, the ECOWAS team, which was enthusiastically greeted by crowds, found that in many respects life had returned to normal in the capital. As noted below, my Special Envoy also visited Freetown on the same day.

8. From 25 to 27 February 1998, the Committee of Five met in the margins of the meeting of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) Council of Ministers held in Addis Ababa to review the situation in Sierra Leone. The Committee issued a communiqué, which was subsequently circulated as document S/1998/170.

9. On 4 March 1998, the members of the Committee of Five returned to New York and met again with members of the Security Council and with me. Chief Ikimi briefed me on his visit to Freetown on 18 February and his subsequent meeting with President Tejan Kabbah in Conakry. Following this meeting, it was announced that President Kabbah would return to his country on 10 March 1998.

10. ECOMOG has also prepared a detailed list of logistical requirements for its operations in Sierra Leone. During the visit to New York of the Committee of

Five, Chief Ikimi requested the assistance of the United Nations and the international community in ensuring that these requirements could be met. That request was reaffirmed by the Chairman of ECOWAS, General Sani Abacha, in his statement at the ceremony held to mark the return of President Kabbah to Freetown on 10 March.

Action taken by the United Nations

11. On 18 February 1998, a few days after ECOMOG had established control over most of the city of Freetown, my Special Envoy, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, led a security and humanitarian assessment mission to the capital and to Lungi comprising United Nations and non-governmental organization officials. The mission determined the most immediate needs of the population. Mr. Okelo handed over a quantity of medicines donated by the World Health Organization (WHO) to local hospitals and began preparations for the re-establishment of a United Nations presence in Freetown. A few days later, the World Food Programme (WFP) delivered 857 metric tons of food to Freetown by ship.

12. Early in February, pursuant to a request by members of the Security Council for a technical assessment of the humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone since the coup d'état of 25 May 1997, an inter-agency mission travelled to the subregion. Its report is contained in document S/1998/155. Further information on the humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone can be found in section III of the present report.

13. Pursuant to the statement issued by the President of the Security Council on 26 February, I have initiated the necessary action to establish a Trust Fund for Sierra Leone. Contributions would help finance logistical assistance to ECOMOG, rehabilitation assistance to the Government of Sierra Leone and activities, including disarmament, demobilization and human rights.

14. On 7 March 1998, my Special Envoy reopened the United Nations office in Freetown, which had been closed shortly after the 25 May 1997 coup d'état and was temporarily relocated in Conakry, Guinea. The office is now being strengthened to comprise civilian political and humanitarian officers, a military adviser and, in due course, human rights and civilian police advisers and public information personnel. The function of the office is to liaise with the Government of Sierra Leone, ECOWAS, ECOMOG and the United Nations and its agencies, as well as non-governmental organizations, and to act as the overall authority for all United Nations activities in the country. My proposals for deploying military liaison personnel as part of the United Nations presence on the ground can be found in section IV of the present report. My Special Envoy will also temporarily retain a small office in Conakry, but he expects to be fully established in Freetown by the end of March, thus paving the way for the return of all United Nations agencies to Sierra Leone.

Action taken by the Government of Sierra Leone

15. On 13 February 1998, President Kabbah called a meeting in Conakry of potential donors, including the European Union, Germany, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United Nations, to discuss his Government's priorities; the nature of the assistance the international community could provide; and the urgent provision of humanitarian assistance. The President announced that he had created a task force to prepare the ground for the resumption of work by his Government, to assess damage to the infrastructure and to prepare for the resumption of education. President Kabbah identified the immediate priorities of his Government as the provision of humanitarian supplies and petroleum products, the reactivation of international aid programmes and the disarmament and demobilization of former combatants. Three other areas that required special attention have been identified as the training and restructuring of the police force, the creation of job opportunities for young people and the construction of low-cost housing. President Kabbah also indicated that he intended to streamline his administration and appoint technical experts to cabinet positions.

16. Following the removal by ECOMOG of the military junta from power, President Kabbah issued a statement announcing his intention to submit proposals to Parliament concerning the rebuilding of his country. The President also spoke out against the reprisal killings, which, in some cases, had accompanied the seizure of control from the junta.

17. On 10 March 1998, accompanied by General Sani Abacha, Chairman of ECOWAS and Head of State of Nigeria, as well as the Heads of State of Guinea, Mali and Niger, President Lansana Conteh, President Alpha Oumar Konare and President Ibrahim Bare Mainassara, and the Vice-President of Gambia, President Tejan Kabbah returned to Freetown to resume his office as Head of State of Sierra Leone. He was greeted by large and enthusiastic crowds. Mr. Ibrahim Fall, Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs, delivered on my behalf a message of congratulations to the President stating that his return represented the accomplishment of a major objective not only of the people of Sierra Leone, but also of ECOWAS, OAU, the United Nations and the entire international community. I expressed my deep regret at the violence, loss of life and property and immense suffering undergone by the people of Sierra Leone since the coup d'état and extended my condolences to the families of those who lost their lives in opposing it. Furthermore, I informed the President that the United Nations looked forward to working closely with him in helping his Government to reassert its authority and strengthen its capacity throughout the country.

18. In a statement made at the ceremony marking his return to Sierra Leone, President Kabbah declared his intention to embark on the process of national reconciliation and reconstruction of the country, to form a broad-based Government and to appoint a policy advisory committee. In his first meeting with my Special Envoy after his return, President Kabbah stressed the need for an early deployment of United Nations military personnel, the urgent provision of humanitarian assistance and the prompt establishment of the Trust Fund for Sierra Leone.

Military and security situation in Sierra Leone

19. Freetown is now fully under the control of ECOMOG and is increasingly secure. Some unexploded ordnance and landmines have been found, but these are not a threat to security. The peninsula on which the capital stands has also been secured. With the capture of almost every other major town in the country, and through its deployment further into the countryside in the north, south and east, ECOMOG has established itself successfully across most of the country.

20. Nevertheless, the fact that many of the senior junta leaders, including the former Chairman of the AFRC, Johnny Paul Koroma, have not thus far been apprehended, as well as the continuing violence inflicted on civilians during their retreat from ECOMOG forces by RUF and other armed elements, indicate that the security situation in Sierra Leone is still a source of concern. Though ECOMOG has begun to collect weapons in Freetown, a major disarmament, demobilization and reintegration exercise will be needed to ensure security.

21. ECOMOG has also developed a concept of operations for its deployment throughout Sierra Leone that sets out the preliminary planning for the disarmament and demobilization of Sierra Leonean combatants. In summary, the tasks ECOMOG has set for itself include:

(a) Deployment throughout Sierra Leone;

(b) Manning of selected entry points by land, sea or air in order to ensure that no arms, ammunition or war matériel are brought into the country;

(c) Disarmament of ex-combatants at designated sites;

(d) Establishment of road blocks to check the movement of arms and ammunition and to assist in extending protection to refugees and internally displaced persons;

(e) Conducting patrols to create an atmosphere conducive to freedom of movement and the restoration of established authority;

(f) Providing security for key individuals, United Nations personnel, including military personnel, and non-governmental organizations.

22. The plan calls for the deployment of 15,000 troops in four sectors: western, northern, southern and eastern. The western sector, comprising Freetown and the airports of Lungi and Hastings, is further subdivided, and would support the deployment of seven battalions, an air force detachment and an artillery brigade. This appears to be an ample level of force for the protection of the capital and its airport.

23. In the northern sector, ECOMOG would deploy a brigade headquartered at Makeni, with battalions located at Port Loko, Magburaka and Kabala. In the south, ECOMOG will locate its brigade headquarters at Bo and deploy battalions at Moyamba, Pujehun and Kenema. Naval assets would also be required. The eastern sector is described as strategic in view of its mineral resources, the presence of heavy RUF and Kamajor concentration, and the border with Liberia. ECOMOG therefore considers that operations in the east could prove difficult and risky and demand a robust approach, alertness and deployment in strength. Battalions would be located at Yengema, Zimmi and Kailahun.

24. ECOMOG would also establish a disarmament committee which would be charged, inter alia, with selecting disarmament sites; setting standards and guidelines for disarmament; conducting the disarmament, coordination of resources and cooperation with other organizations; classifying and transporting recovered weapons and ammunition; disseminating information about the process and providing security for all participants. A ceasefire violations committee and a humanitarian services committee would also be created.

25. My Special Envoy and his staff are actively discussing with the Government and with ECOMOG the further elaboration and implementation of its concept of operations, which provides a suitable basis for the possible subsequent deployment of United Nations military personnel, subject to the authorization of the Security Council. I will revert to the Council with further recommendations on such deployment following a further assessment by my Special Envoy.

Other action taken pursuant to resolution 1132 (1997)

26. Since my previous report, a number of States have written to me, in compliance with paragraph 13 of resolution 1132 (1997), concerning the steps they have taken to give effect to the provisions contained in paragraphs 5 and 6 of the resolution relating to the sanctions imposed by the Council on Sierra Leone. The latest list of those States can be found in a separate report to the Security Council contained in document S/1998/112.

27. In a letter dated 9 March 1998 addressed to the President of the Security Council (S/1998/215), the Chargé d'affaires a.i. of the Permanent Mission of Sierra Leone to the United Nations conveyed a request from his Government for the convening of an urgent meeting of the Security Council to consider the lifting of the sanctions imposed on the importation of petroleum and petroleum products into the country in paragraph 6 of resolution 1132 (1997). On 16 March, the Council adopted resolution 1156 (1998) terminating, with immediate effect, the prohibitions on the sale or supply to Sierra Leone of petroleum and petroleum products referred to in resolution 1132 (1997).

III. HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

28. A number of United Nations humanitarian assessment missions have now been undertaken to Freetown, Kambia, Bo, Kenema and Makeni. These missions determined that the current humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone remains serious. The primary health care system has been devastated by lack of supplies, looting and the exodus of medical personnel at all levels. Widespread neglect of water and sanitation facilities has increased the exposure of hundreds of thousands to disease. The normal distribution of food to vulnerable groups has been disrupted, affecting children in particular. Many children have also suffered exposure to acts of violence by being sent into battle as combatants. The public education system has collapsed; all schools have been closed since the coup d'état last May. The combination of fighting and looting has led to extensive damage to housing and infrastructure in the provincial towns. The number of internally displaced people has increased, and the welfare of some 14,000 Liberian refugees remains a matter of concern, as many fled from their camps during the recent fighting. The majority of Sierra Leoneans who took refuge in Conakry during the fighting in Freetown have returned. However, some 24,000 Sierra Leoneans have arrived in Liberia since mid-February and the influx continues, albeit at a reduced rate. A further influx of 3,000 refugees from the Kailahun area, still not under ECOMOG control, has been registered by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) at its camp in Kissidougou, Guinea.

29. United Nations agencies prepared a consolidated inter-agency flash appeal, which was launched on 3 March 1998. Through this appeal, I am seeking financial contributions from Member States in the amount of $11.2 million to meet priority humanitarian needs in Sierra Leone over the next three months. Priority needs include support to agriculture through the provision of seeds and tools, the re-establishment of basic health and education services, the resumption of food aid distributions and the provision of assistance and protection to the most vulnerable groups affected by the current conflict. The flash appeal complements the 90-day programme of the Government of Sierra Leone, which serves as a framework for action following the restoration of democratic civilian rule in the country.

30. The full deployment of ECOMOG and the restoration of the legitimate Government is expected to provide increased opportunities for the humanitarian community to accelerate its activities in response to the humanitarian crisis in Sierra Leone, and will also encourage the return to their homes of internally displaced persons. It is hoped that the international community will contribute generously to the humanitarian programme outlined in the flash appeal, in order to provide the crucial assistance needed to sustain lives and to promote stability in Sierra Leone.

31. Medium-term tasks, such as the assisted repatriation of Sierra Leonean refugees and reintegration of ex-combatants, are not covered in the flash appeal. However, United Nations agencies are already re-establishing their offices in Freetown and are eager to restart their social and economic development programmes, important components of which must be the re-building of the capacity of the Government of Sierra Leone to deliver services, stimulate economic recovery and promote national reconciliation and reconstruction.

Commencement of the repatriation of refugees

32. At the request of President Kabbah, and with the help of a donation of $120,000 from the Government of Japan, UNHCR has begun to prepare for the repatriation from Conakry of up to 5,000 Sierra Leonean refugees, including 200 civil servants who fled Freetown after the May coup d'état and who will be engaged in the administration of the country.

33. ECOMOG control of major towns in southern Sierra Leone is also likely to encourage the early repatriation by road of Sierra Leonean refugees from Liberia. It is further expected that the removal of the junta could lead to the repatriation of the 400,000 Sierra Leonean refugees in the West African subregion.

34. Of the total caseload of Liberian refugees in Sierra Leone, some 2,800 have thus far been re-registered with UNHCR, about half of them requesting repatriation. UNHCR has begun making arrangements for them to be repatriated by sea.

United Nations Development Programme mission to Sierra Leone

35. A multi-unit mission to Sierra Leone dispatched by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) has proposed four projects for immediate implementation following their approval by the Government. These are:

(a) A start-up project for the demobilization of various categories of combatants;

(b) Support for national institutions to enable a rapid return to normal functioning;

(c) Resettlement with emphasis on quick-impact micro-projects, reconciliation and youth development;

(d) Awareness-raising in order to help the country come to terms with the problems it faces and to promote national reconciliation and peace-building.

36. The mission is also assisting the Government to prepare a document for a donors' consultation proposed to be held in Brussels on 31 March 1998. UNDP plans to close its Coordination Office in Conakry by the end of March if the security situation continues to stabilize, and to return the staff of its Country Office to Freetown.

IV. OBSERVATIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

37. The developments that have taken place in Sierra Leone since the submission of my last report should be seen as positive in the context of the wider situation in which they transpired. The removal of the junta by the action of ECOMOG has opened the way for the re-establishment not just of the legitimate Government, but also of civil order, the democratic process and the beginnings of economic and social development. The return of President Kabbah to Freetown on 10 March therefore presents the people of Sierra Leone and the international community with a challenge and an opportunity which must be grasped with a sense of urgency. We must not let slip the chance to restore Sierra Leone to the ranks of democratic nations and to help strengthen the stability of the subregion.

38. I commend the consistent diplomacy of ECOWAS and, in particular, its Committee of Five on Sierra Leone, and the contribution made by ECOMOG officers and men to the removal of the military junta. I call on ECOWAS and ECOMOG to continue their efforts to bring peace to Sierra Leone in accordance with the relevant provisions of resolution 1132 (1997) and of the Charter of the United Nations. Sierra Leoneans committed to the democratic system also played their part in maintaining a stubborn resistance to the illegal regime. These included not only the members of the Civil Defence Forces, but also countless unarmed civilians who persistently withheld their cooperation from the regime and denied it legitimacy. I salute the courage of the Sierra Leonean people and honour the memory of those who died opposing the junta.

39. I also congratulate President Ahmad Tejan Kabbah on his resumption of his responsibilities as Head of State of Sierra Leone following his return. The United Nations should give his Government every possible assistance in its efforts to promote national reconciliation among his people and to strengthen the authority and capacity of his Government.

40. As I stated in my message to the annual summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity at Harare, and in the special message which was delivered by my Special Envoy, Mr. Ibrahima Fall, on the occasion of President Kabbah's return, Africa can no longer tolerate or accept as faits accomplis coups d'état against elected Governments or the illegal seizure of power by military cliques.

Strengthening the office of the Special Envoy

41. In order to take full and prompt advantage of the changed situation, I wish to propose a comprehensive set of measures to assist the Government and people of Sierra Leone in both their immediate and longer-term needs. As a first step, I intend to strengthen the office of my Special Envoy in Freetown. In order to contribute to the restoration of respect for the rule of law, civil order and human rights in Sierra Leone, I have consulted with the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights concerning the possible deployment of human rights observers. In the meantime, a human rights officer will be attached to the office of my Special Envoy at an early date.

42. I am also considering attaching to the office two civilian police officials to advise the Government on police training and procedures in a democratic society. An additional political officer and a military adviser would assist my Special Envoy in his consultations with ECOMOG on the development of planning for disarmament and demobilization, while a humanitarian officer would facilitate the coordination of activities of the United Nations and non-governmental organizations in Sierra Leone and advise my Special Envoy on all issues involving non-governmental organizations. The office will also require a public information programme to disseminate information among the population about its activities, in particular in connection with the disarmament and demobilization of ex-combatants and their reintegration into society.

Deployment of military liaison personnel

43. I also recommend the deployment to Sierra Leone of up to 10 United Nations military liaison officers, whose functions would be as follows:

(a) To liaise closely with ECOMOG and to report on the military situation in the country;

(b) To ascertain the state of and to assist in the finalization of planning by ECOMOG for future tasks such as the identification of the former combatant elements to be disarmed and the design of a disarmament plan.

44. Should the Security Council decide to authorize the deployment of these military liaison officers, as well as the military and civilian police advisers, as indicated in my third report (S/1998/103, para. 35), the costs relating thereto should be considered an expense of the Organization to be borne by Member States in accordance with Article 17, paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations and the assessments to be levied on Member States should be credited to the special account to be established for Sierra Leone. The related cost estimates will be issued shortly as an addendum to the present report.

45. The military liaison team would complement the role of the military advisers who will, under the authority of my Special Envoy, continue to assist the Government of Sierra Leone to resolve issues related to the disarmament process. The military advisers will also be instrumental in assisting the Government of Sierra Leone in the development of planning for bilateral programmes to restructure and rebuild appropriate security forces for Sierra Leone in the future. In view of the importance of such retraining, I appeal to potential donors to show generosity in providing bilateral assistance.

46. The presence of United Nations military liaison officers, perhaps later supplemented by human rights observers, could also assist in the process of national reconciliation in Sierra Leone. Their close cooperation with ECOMOG in the countryside and their impartial reporting to my Special Envoy would reassure former combatants that they can surrender their weapons in safety.

Provision of humanitarian assistance

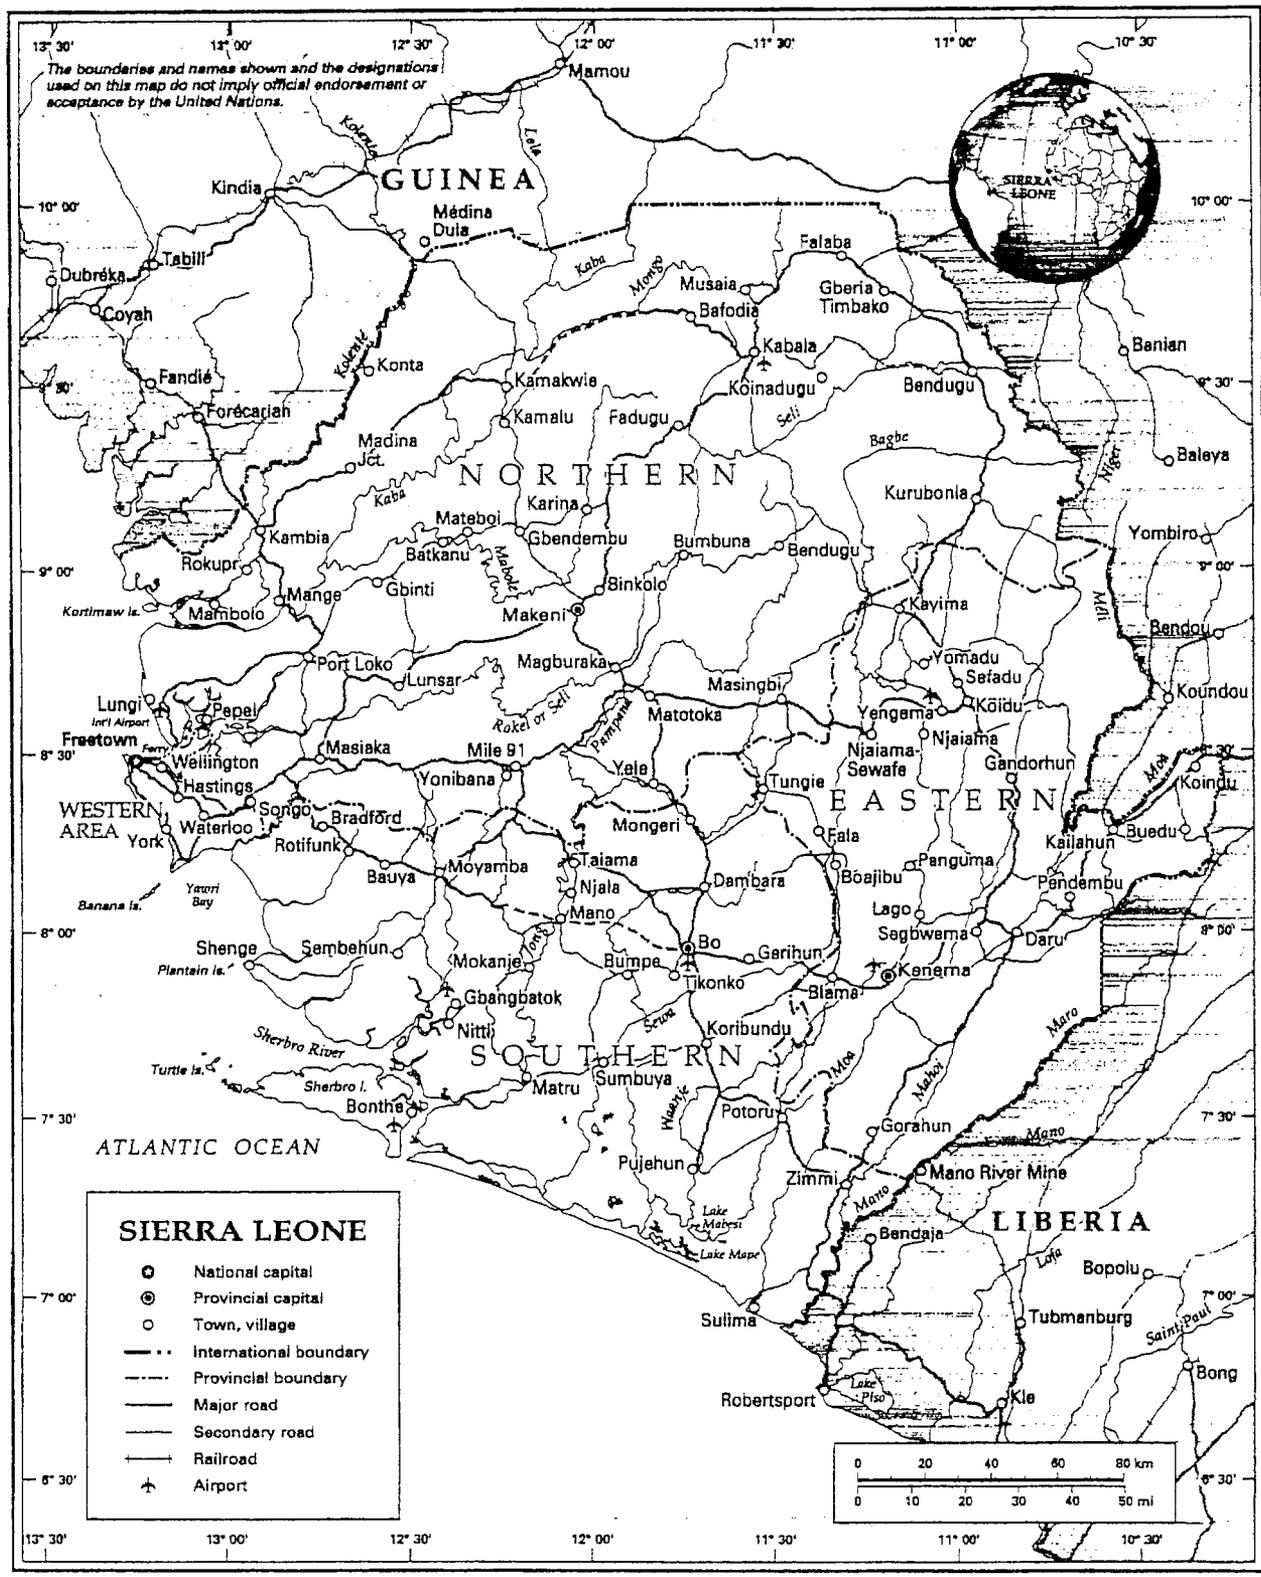

47. The provision of humanitarian assistance must also proceed expeditiously. The plight of Sierra Leoneans deprived of food, medical care and shelter by the recent fighting and the abuses of junta rule is acute, and it must be addressed as a matter of urgency with all the resources available to the aid agencies. While I remain deeply concerned about the humanitarian situation in many parts of the country, I am encouraged by news that humanitarian needs are beginning to be addressed. Food aid and emergency medical supplies have entered the country through the port of Freetown and have been delivered to some provinces by plane, helicopter and overland in a prompt and coordinated manner.

Contributions to the Trust Fund

48. I call on Member States to display generosity in contributing to the Trust Fund for Sierra Leone which, with the encouragement of the Security Council, I have established. My appreciation goes to the Government of the United Kingdom, which has already announced its readiness to contribute £2 million, and has been actively assisting in the provision of aid to Sierra Leoneans. I also urge all Member States to provide generous assistance to ECOMOG to enable it to meet its logistical requirements and to fulfil its mandate in Sierra Leone.

49. The events that have taken place in Sierra Leone over the past year carry a warning that similar crises may arise and challenge the international community to consider how it should respond to them. Democracy in Sierra Leone may have deep roots, but it is a fragile plant and must be nurtured. The international community must maintain its vigilance and support, not least in the prompt provision of emergency bilateral and multilateral aid. Assistance for the laudable efforts of ECOWAS and the logistical requirements of ECOMOG as it continues its deployment through the countryside will also be required. I trust that such support will be forthcoming.

57) Joint Communique

Meeting between the Special Representative of the UN Secretary General to Sierra Leone and the Delegation of the Revolutionary United Front
Abidjan 19-21 February 1999

MEETING BETWEEN THE SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE UN SECRETARY GENERAL TO SIERRA LEONE
AND THE DELEGATION OF THE REVOLUTIONARY UNITED FRONT
ABIDJAN, 19-21 FEBRUARY 1999

1. The Special Representative of the United Nations Secretary General to Sierra Leone, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, accompanied by the UNOMSIL Deputy Chief Military Observer, Col. David Chepkwony and Political Affairs Officer, Mr. Modem Lawson-Betum, and the Legal Representative of the Revolutionary United Front (RUF), Mr. Omrie Michael Golley, and the RUF Senior Military Adviser, Gen. Ibrahima Bah, met on 19-21 February 1999 at the HOTEL IVOIRE in Abidjan (Cote d'Ivoire) to review the situation in Sierra Leone, including the holding of dialogue between the Government of Sierra Leone (GOSL) and the RUF pursuant to the offer made by President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah on 7 February 1999.
2. The Special Representative and the RUF Delegation also discussed the need for the observance of human rights and international humanitarian laws, and for addressing the serious humanitarian crisis in Sierra Leone, and taking practical steps to speed up the convening of the internal RUF consultations and dialogue between the RUF and the Government of Sierra Leone, including: i) The RUF commitment to peace; ii) The venue, format and duration of preliminary and subsequent substantive consultations; iii) The requirements for the declaration of a ceasefire; iv) The need to provide logistical assistance to RUF and to facilitate communication between the RUF and the Government of Sierra Leone and the ECOMOG High Command.
3. The Special Representative and the RUF Delegation stressed the need to make every effort to end the suffering of the people of Sierra Leone and to vigorously and relentlessly pursue dialogue to achieve genuine and lasting peace and stability in Sierra Leone. In this regard, the RUF Delegation welcomed the recent offer of dialogue by President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah and his renewed commitment to peace talks. The RUF Delegation also called on the United Nations to continue to provide the needed moral authority and support for the dialogue and the peace process.

I. COMMITMENT TO DIALOGUE AND THE PEACE PROCESS:

4. The RUF Delegation reiterated the firm commitment of its Movement to engage in a constructive and sincere dialogue with the Government of Sierra Leone, leading to sustainable peace and stability, in accordance with the aspirations of the Sierra Leonean people. In this connection, it stressed the crucial importance of creating a climate of sincerity, mutual respect and spirit of accommodation. It welcomed the GOSL's offer of dialogue on the understanding that: i) The legitimacy of the elected Government of President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah was never questioned by the RUF; ii) The RUF is not fighting against the innocent civilian population but against ECOMOG and CDF; iii) No preconditions should be set by either party, which would impede the start of dialogue.

5. The Special Representative conveyed the unswerving commitment of the Security Council and the UN Secretary General to support all efforts aimed at ensuring an early start of dialogue and setting a reasonable time frame for a peaceful resolution of the Sierra Leonean conflict.

II. VENUE, FORMAT AND CONSULTATIONS BETWEEN FODAY SANKOH AND MR. ...

6. The Special Representative and the RUF ... for a meeting between Foday Sankoh and RUF members in order for the Front ... the substantive dialogue with the Government. These internal consultations will give ... the opportunity to be fully briefed and to undergo medical check-up.

7. The Special representative and the RUF Delegation also stressed that the internal RUF consultations should be held in a secure place to allow for effective and extensive discussions during a reasonable time period, and that the issue of venue and format for the internal consultations should be addressed in a spirit of mutual accommodation. The Special Representative and the RUF Delegation further underlined that the issue of venue and format for the internal consultations should not delay the start of substantive dialogue.

8. The RUF Delegation said that while taking note of the proposals of venue made by the Government regarding the internal RUF consultations, it would make the following recommendations in order of preference, subject to final ratification: i) Ouagadougou (under the sponsorship of the Chairman of the Organization of African Unity, President Blaise Campaore of Burkina Faso); ii) Abidjan (Cote d'Ivoire); iii) Lome (Togo as Chairman of ECOWAS). The Delegation expressed the hope that the necessary arrangements would be made to provide security, safe passage and transportation guarantees to enable Mr. Foday Sankoh and the RUF Delegation to travel to whatever venue would finally be agreed upon. It further expressed the wish that the United Nations would consider the possibility of assigning Military Observers to be involved in making the needed security arrangements.

9. The RUF Delegation stated that the RUF and the AFRC constituted a single unified structure.

10. The RUF Delegation also requested the United Nations to assist in: i) Facilitating the establishment of regular contacts between the RUF and the Government of Sierra Leone and the ECOMOG High Command; ii) Lifting the travel ban imposed by the Security Council on the RUF/AFRC leaders to permit them to participate in the internal RUF consultations and the subsequent RUF/GOSL dialogue.

III. DECLARATION OF CEASEFIRE:

11. The RUF Delegation and the Special Representative recognized the importance of a ceasefire to facilitate dialogue. In this context, the RUF Delegation expressed the readiness of the RUF to consider a ceasefire with the Government of Sierra Leone, ECOMOG and the CDF at the beginning of the internal RUF consultations provided United Nations Military Observers were immediately deployed to monitor and verify strict compliance with the said ceasefire. However, it maintained that in the spirit of peace and reconciliation, Foday Sankoh should not be held in custody after the preliminary consultations as this would constitute a retrograde step in the dialogue process-

IV. RESPECT FOR HUMAN RIGHTS:

12. The Special Representative stressed the importance of the observance of human rights in accordance with international standards, as called for by the Security Council and the UN Secretary General, and urged all parties to the conflict to publicly make this commitment. The RUF Delegation agreed to make this commitment publicly and stated that the RUF will take punitive measures against any of its members who would violate human rights. In this context, the RUF Delegation stated that it condemned and will continue to condemn all human rights violations and atrocities including amputations, mutilations, maiming, rape etc.... perpetrated against the civilian population.

V. HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE TO THE CIVILIAN POPULATION:

13. The RUF Delegation and the Special Representative stressed the need to make every effort to facilitate the unhindered provision of humanitarian assistance to the needy population in all parts of Sierra Leone. In this regard, the RUF Delegation stated that the RUF will strictly respect the neutrality of humanitarian organizations and their staff, and will take the necessary practical steps to facilitate their operations including the designation of Senior Humanitarian Liaison Officers to liaise with these organizations and to ensure free access to the needy population in all areas of the country, including those under RUF control. The Special Representative and the RUF Delegation stated that the humanitarian organizations should, in turn, observe the principle of neutrality in the conduct of their operations.

VI. FOLLOW-UP CONTACTS:

14. The Special Representative and the RUF Delegation agreed to maintain regular contacts as a follow up to the outstanding issues discussed in the present communique.

Sierra Leone Humanitarian Situation Report 04 - 05 Jun 1997

This report has been prepared by the office of the United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator in Sierra Leone

SECURITY

1. According to local UN staff in Freetown several people were killed on 4 June from indiscriminate shooting by RUF patrolling the streets. The EU delegate reported that Nigerian citizens have been deliberately targeted. There have also been unconfirmed reports of amputations. Looting has continued and more cars have been taken from UN house and from residential premises. Civilians are nervous about the threat of Nigerian air strikes primarily on account of continuous announcements made by the AFRC over the Sierra Leone Broadcasting Services warning the population of the possibility of attacks and advising them to stay indoors. On a more positive note, the Nigerian soldiers being held as hostages have been released and have returned to their barracks at Jui. The Cape Sierra hotel remains untouched although UN vehicles parked outside are being looted.

2. The Sierra Leonean Ambassador to Guinea, who was taken hostage in Kailahun in March 1997 together with other members of the Commission for the Consolidation for Peace, was brought to Freetown by Sam Bockarie, the RUF commander who masterminded the operation. The Ambassador reported that the other hostages were still alive.

SERVICES

3. The population continues to suffer from continued shortages of basic amenities including food, fuel and cash. Food stores were, however, open from 1000-1800 hours on 5 June. Business have remained closed but the banks have indicated that they will open on 9 June. The National Power Authority continues to supply electricity throughout the city but it is only a matter of time before the diesel generators run out of fuel. Pipe-borne water continues to be supplied to the capital from the reservoir in Guma Valley but fuel shortages will have a negative impact on the capacity to purify the water supply. ICRC is in the process of despatching a water engineer to Freetown to make an assessment of the current situation.

POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

4. On 4 June a BBC round table discussion was held. During the course of the programme Desmond Luke, Chairman of the Commission for the Consolidation of Peace, stated that almost the entire civil society vehemently opposed the coup and wanted the democratically elected Government to be restored. President Kabbah, who is still in Guinea, made a statement over the BBC assuring the population that the democratically elected Government was still intact. He stated that his Government was pushing for a diplomatic solution to the crisis but did not rule out the military option.

5. On 4 June Major Johnny Paul Koroma, Chairman of the Armed Forces Ruling Council (AFRC) called ministers and deputy ministers of the SLPP Government and heads of political parties to a meeting to discuss ways of averting external military intervention. Six ministers attended the meeting and political parties present included the SLPP, APC and the UNPR. The RUF was represented by Sam Bockarie. One of the ministers in attendance reported that attempts by the AFRC to persuade those present to collaborate were rejected as it was unanimously stated that the AFRC should step down.

HUMANITARIAN RESPONSE

Food

6. ICRC started to distribute food provided by World Vision to two hospitals in Freetown on 5 June. Beneficiaries at the Connaught hospital received a full ration and those at Netland nursing home received a supplementary ration. One of the ACF feeding centres in Freetown has also received food.

7. ICRC has reopened its office in Segbwema with a view to completing its distribution of seeds and tools into the chiefdoms in the vicinity of Daru and Segbwema before the rainy season commences in earnest. The vulnerable group feeding programme will start in Segbwema, Daru and Zimmi when ICRC receives the list of eligible beneficiaries from the US Food for Peace officer who is currently in Conakry.

8. More information on food stocks of humanitarian agencies in Sierra Leone has been gathered and it has emerged that agency warehouses have not been looted as extensively as previously thought. Current estimated food stocks are as follows:

WFP:	4,800 MTs
CRS*:	5,000 MTs
German Agro-Action:	800 MTs
World Vision:	4,410 MTs
CARE:	1,700 MTs
TOTAL:	16,710 MTs

* CRS has 5,000 MTs of bulgur remaining. The quantity of other CRS food commodities has not yet been determined.

9. As it is estimated that 3,000 MTs of food services 500,000 beneficiaries per month on a reduced (i.e., survival) ration, the food availability situation is not yet critical. However, the outlook could deteriorate very rapidly if the price of rice continues to soar as the temptation for the local population to loot aid food will become overwhelming. In this scenario shortages will occur, particularly with regard to vegetable oil and therapeutic and supplementary foodstuffs as over 80 percent of existing food stocks is in the form of cereals.

10. There are also many constraints in distribution food such as insufficient transport, fuel shortages, insecurity and a lack of management. The food agencies will meet on 9 June in Conakry in order to discuss these constraints and develop a joint strategy. In the meantime, WFP advocates that priority in any food distributions should be given to institutions, especially hospitals, in order to minimise the risk of further looting. It is believed that food shortages will be less severe outside Freetown but this situation will deteriorate with the onset of the rainy season and the traditional "hungry season" (July to October).

Health

11. In addition to distributing medical supplies to the Connaught hospital, the Netland nursing home and the hospital at Wilberforce barracks in Freetown, ICRC has reopened its clinic in Kenema as the Government hospital has closed down.

12. The ICRC and MSF surgical teams (see point 11, SitRep dated 2-3 June) arrived in Freetown during the afternoon of 5 June.

13. WHO has reported that its medical supplies including drugs, IV fluids and oral rehydration salts kept at the store at UN house and the Ministry of Health have been almost entirely looted. The stolen items are valued at approximately USD 180,000.

Humanitarian Response in Guinea

14. It is clear that the AFRC/RUF has been trying to discourage Freetown residents from leaving the Western area peninsula as many of those attempting to move north have been turned back by armed elements at Waterloo. If living conditions in Freetown continue to deteriorate, it is possible that a mass exodus could occur which the authorities would be unable to prevent. In this case, it is likely that the population would head towards Kambia province and Guinea.

15. On 5 June ECHO convened a meeting attended by UN Agencies and NGOs from both Sierra Leone and Guinea to formulate an appropriate contingency plan which could be used if the scenario depicted above were to occur. Preliminary estimates of resource availability in the areas of health, food, non-food items, water and sanitation and logistics have been made. Sectoral committees will meet next week to build on these preliminary estimates of resource availability. Issues relating to access need to be clarified. Efforts to determine the position of the Guinean Government to asylum seekers and aid agencies wishing to provide cross border humanitarian assistance into Sierra Leone are being made.

Sierra Leone Humanitarian Situation Report 17 July – 10 August 1999, Section 1,2,3,5.

Date: 10 Aug 1999

Sierra Leone Humanitarian Situation Report: 17 Jul - 10 Aug 1999

1. Summary

This reporting period was dominated by gradual progress towards the implementation of the peace process and the expansion of humanitarian aid, followed by a number of worrying security incidents. The taking of hostages in Okra Hills, combined with other security incidents in RUF/AFRC held areas have temporarily but severely limited the scope of possible operations in areas which appear to be rapidly deteriorating. The hostage incident occurred even as aid agencies were on the verge of bringing relief to tens of thousands of civilians whose humanitarian conditions, assessed for the first time in months, had been classified as desperate. In particular, the nutrition situation in most up-country areas is deeply disturbing, and requires urgent action to avoid serious short and long-term damage to civilian livelihoods.

On the political front, some progress has been made towards the implementation of the Peace Accord. Humanitarian agencies believe that two priorities warrant the most attention: the immediate and effective commencement of the DDR programme, and support to the RUF/AFRC leadership to sensitize armed groups in all their areas of control, on the various provisions in the Peace Accord.

2. Political Developments

Parties make gradual progress on the Implementation of the Peace Accord

According to UN SRSG Ambassador Francis Okelo, the international community has generally welcomed the Peace Agreement with the exception of some reservations on the human rights aspect, in particular, the granting of blanket amnesty to members of the RUF/AFRC and other armed groups. Since the signing of the Agreement, both the Government and the RUF have taken significant steps to fulfil some of their obligations on schedule, although some specific deadlines have not been met.

GOSL

On the government side, Parliament unanimously ratified the Peace Agreement on 15 July and subsequently adopted legislation necessary for the implementation of the Agreement. This has paved the way for the transformation of the RUF/SL into a political party and for its senior members to hold public office. Furthermore, the GOSL has initiated the establishment of the Commission for the Strategic Management of Resources, National Reconstruction and Development (CMRRD) which is to be chaired by Cpl. Foday Sankoh. The Government also released military and political prisoners in line with the pardon and amnesty clause under Article IX of the agreement (84 were released in July).

In order to maintain the momentum in the peace process among members of the public, the GOSL is making efforts to coordinate various initiatives for a nation-wide sensitization campaign on the Peace Accord. In this context, the Ministry of Information has developed a project proposal aimed at the dissemination of the Agreement at all levels of society.

The GOSL in collaboration with other partners has completed the first phase of the DDR programme with the discharge of 1,408 ex-SLA soldiers. The Lungi DDR centre has been reopened and is now receiving ex-soldiers who surrendered in advance of the start of DDR. Consultations are underway to define the relationship between ECOMOG and UNOMSIL with regard to the implementation of the DDR programme. The new ECOMOG Force Commander, Major General Gabriel Kpamber has on a number of occasions registered ECOMOG's preparedness to demonstrate its sincerity and commitment to the successful implementation of the Peace Agreement especially as it relates to its role in DDR. UNOMSIL Military Observers continue to maintain close relations with the rebel commanders on the ground, to explain the provisions for DDR in the Peace Agreement.

RUF/SL

An advance team of RUF/AFRC has been based in Freetown since the beginning of August. They participated in the first meeting of the Joint Implementation Committee (JIC) held in Freetown on 7 August. The meeting, which was attended by representatives of the GOSL, Ghana, Guinea, Nigeria, Liberia, Libya, Togo, RUF/SL, USA, ECOWAS, OAU, the Commonwealth of Nations and the UN, reviewed and assessed the status of the implementation of the Peace Agreement. During the meeting, RUF representatives submitted nominations for the Cabinet and the various commissions and committees established under the Agreement, paving the way for the formation of the integrated government and the establishment of the various commissions and committees. Meanwhile, RUF leader Cpl. Foday Sankoh is yet to arrive to take up office in Freetown. The RUF members in Freetown are consulting with the GOSL and other concerned parties to finalize arrangements for his arrival.

Regarding commitments to guarantee unhindered humanitarian access, RUF/SL commanders have welcomed various humanitarian missions in some of their areas of control, and have shown willingness to cooperate with agencies in providing adequate security for the start of relief operations. However, the present arrangements are ad-hoc, as a global access mechanism, including all parties is yet to be established. The RUF has also released some prisoners of war and abductees, although large numbers reportedly remain captives at their various locations.

Resource Mobilization

UN calls for increased commitments

With the mounting political and humanitarian challenges in Sierra Leone, the UN has intensified efforts to advocate for greater international assistance to support the country's peace process, as well as an improved security environment for emergency interventions. In a recent Statement, the UN Secretary-General expressed his concern about the poor response of the international community to the humanitarian needs of victims of war and natural disasters in many parts of Africa. The Statement listed Sierra Leone as one of the countries whose serious humanitarian needs cannot be met due to inadequate resources. In this context, the Security Council in its Resolution 874 on Sierra Leone urged donors to respond to the needs of UN agencies as presented in the revised consolidated interagency appeal for 1999. The 1999 Appeal requested $28 million for humanitarian programmes in Sierra Leone, but by mid year, only 27 per cent had been received. (for Mid-term Review of SL 1999 Appeal, refer to www.reliefweb.int).

Specifically, the Security Council Resolution stresses the need for the international community and the GOSL to design and implement programmes to address the special needs of war victims, in particular those who have suffered maiming and mutilation. The Council further called upon all parties "to ensure the safe and unhindered access of humanitarian assistance to those in need in Sierra Leone, to guarantee the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and to strictly respect the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law." Members also authorized the provisional expansion of UNOMSIL to 210 Military Observers. They called on the RUF and all other armed groups to begin immediately disbanding and surrendering their arms in accordance with the provisions of the Peace Agreement. In this context, the Council urged all states and international organizations to provide resources to help ensure the successful conduct of the DDR programme. Welcoming the adoption of the Human Rights Manifesto by the parties concerned, members stressed the need for international assistance to address the human rights issues in the country as a step towards accountability. The Council also supported the decision of the SG that the UN develops a Strategic Framework approach for Sierra Leone in consultation with national and international partners.

The SL International Contact Group pledges further support for peace process:

To further support the efforts of the parties in consolidating peace, the International Contact Group met in London on 28 July to see how the members could best address the resource requirements of the country. The meeting focused on DDR as a priority and members committed to providing adequate resources to effect the programme, in addition to some $19.1 million already pledged by the British government and the World Bank. According to official sources, about $40 million will be required to meet the needs of an estimated 40,000 combatants.

3. Security Update

Hostage incident resolved

Following the successful initiation of contacts with rebel commanders in their areas of control, and the commencement of work by NGOs and the UN, a number of security incidents forced a re-evaluation of the situation. The most significant security development during this review period was the abduction of 42 persons, including UN and ECOMOG personnel, Sierra Leone aid workers and journalists by ex-soldiers of the AFRC. The situation was resolved on 10 August after five days of negotiations involving the GOSL, RUF/AFRC, UNOMSIL, and hostage experts from the UK. The team, which was led by UNOMSIL, had gone to Okra Hills on 4 August to receive some 200 civilian abductees held at Magbeni village when the rebels took them hostage.

The last group of hostages was released on 10 August along with 200 civilians. The rebels admitted that their action was in violation of the Ceasefire Agreement, but said they did so to secure the release of their leader, Johnny Paul Koroma, who they believed had been held prisoner by the RUF for the past seven months. Both the RUF and Johnny Paul Koroma himself denied the allegation. The rebels also said they had seized the hostages because they felt left out of the peace process and their food and medical needs were not being met. Four of the field commanders were assisted to travel to Monrovia to discuss their grievances with J.P. Koroma.

Monitoring the Ceasefire Agreement

With the exception of the hostage incident at Okra Hills, UN Military Observers have reported that the Ceasefire continues to be respected by the parties, who have refrained from engaging in direct conflict with each other. The observers have however reported many incidents involving elements of the RUF/AFRC who are foraging for food and in the process carrying out raids into villages. Consistent abuses of human rights are reported in these raids, many of which are currently taking place in Port Loko district. Also reported and confirmed by UNOMSIL observers are movements of RUF/AFRC personnel into the Western Area without their arms, posing a major concern for Freetown residents.

Of equal concern to humanitarian agencies has been a number of serious incidents in up-country areas. Incidents in Rokupr, Makeni and Okra Hills have resulted in threats against the lives of staff, the beating of national staff, the theft of personal items, and the looting of relief assets. This contrasts sharply with RUF-controlled areas in the East where visits have been incident-free. There have also been persisting reports of harassment by CDF forces in the southern and eastern provinces. Drivers plying the Freetown-Bo/Kenema highways are reportedly molested and harassed on the 76 checkpoints along the highway. According to some accounts, truck drivers and other transport owners are forced to spend two days to cover 150 miles to Bo. The combined effect of these incidents has interfered with the planned expansion of humanitarian programmes throughout the country. NGO and UN Humanitarian Agencies continue to work on a daily basis with all parties concerned in an attempt to find solutions and ensure a secure working environment.

Fighting in Liberia raises concerns in Sierra Leone

As the last group of hostages was being released on 10 August, Liberian rebels invaded Lofa County, taking hostage six international aid workers. According to reports, the rebels, who are fighting against President Charles Taylor, captured and occupied the town of Kolahun and surrounding villages, about 250 km northwest of Monrovia. The six European aid workers from MERLIN, MSF and IRC were later released unharmed, although substantial relief assets have been reported as looted in Lofa County. On the same day of the attack, RUF commander Sam Bockarie accused Guinean troops of attacking RUF positions in Kailahun District near the Guinean border. In a BBC interview, he threatened a resumption of hostilities if the attacks did not cease. The GOSL said it had carried out investigations but was unable to confirm the allegation, maintaining that neither its forces nor the Guinean government had any knowledge of the incident. News reports have since linked the alleged attack to the ongoing fighting in Lofa County.

The unfolding crisis in Liberia is being closely watched here in Sierra Leone. Although public opinion is divided on the issue, majority of the people perceive the eruption of fighting in that country as bearing ominous concerns for the Sierra Leone peace endeavours.

4. Human Rights

Noting that the Peace Accord does not provide for a specific body exclusively tasked with supervision of implementation of the human rights provisions, members of the Human Rights Committee decided to establish a tracking mechanism aimed at systematically monitoring implementation of the human rights provisions. This is to allow a clear assessment of the status of each of the key commitments and inform the parties concerned to take corrective measures where appropriate. Focal points have been selected to cover the different issues.

As part of its technical cooperation with the GOSL, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights sent three consultants in July and August to assist with the creation of the National Human Rights Commission and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

5. Humanitarian Highlights

Status of implementation of agreement on unhindered humanitarian access (Article XXVII)

Following agreements to guarantee unhindered humanitarian access to all parts of Sierra Leone, the humanitarian community, in the last weeks of July, held a number of consultations with the RUF/AFRC High Command to finalize arrangements for assessing the situation of nearly half of the country under RUF/AFRC control. Despite initial delays, assessment missions commenced in the third week of July with the northern town of Makeni and the eastern town of Kailahun. Since then, more locations have been assessed and relief activities are slowly being expanded in newly accessed areas. However, large areas of the country have still not been assessed. Agencies are concerned that despite the Joint Statement on humanitarian access, access continues to be granted on an ad-hoc basis and the present arrangement does not as yet reflect a joint responsibility by both parties. The Implementation Committee established in Lome for this purpose is yet to convene.

Given the security problems described in section 3, further expansion of humanitarian work awaits the provision of a secure working environment. To establish mutually agreed structures for access throughout the country, the UN Humanitarian Coordinator met with the leaders of the RUF and with concerned officials of the GOSL to discuss the modalities for holding the first meeting of the Implementation Committee this month.

Among areas recently assessed by inter-agency humanitarian missions are towns and villages in the northern districts of Kambia, Tonkolili, Port Loko and Koinadugu, and the eastern district of Kailahun. In all the areas, agencies describe the humanitarian situation as grave. In particular, malnutrition rates of children and nursing mothers in the most affected locations have reached the highest levels ever recorded in the country since the start of the conflict. Small-scale relief activities have been established in each of these areas addressing the most urgent needs of health, nutrition and food assistance. Table I below represents the current status of accessibility due to security conditions. It does not however imply that full-scale operations are being undertaken in all accessible areas as factors other than security also affect the degree of intervention in each location such as lack of capacity (resources and manpower), and impassable road conditions. Tables II and III reflect current and pending operational areas of agencies.

6. Sectoral Interventions

Health and Nutrition

Ongoing support for health programmes

UNICEF, WHO and UNFPA have continued to support health partners in all operational areas, including technical support to the MOHS and supply of drugs and medical equipment to support health programmes and facilities. On 21 July, Health agencies supported EPI surveillance workshops in Bo and Kenema in preparation for the NID programmes, which will be held on 9 October, 6 November and 11 December 1999. UNICEF and WHO are assisting with logistics, training, as well as provision of cold chain equipment. Emergency health activities continue unhindered in main hospitals and IDP camps in accessible districts. MSF-B's emergency support to the Brookfield hospital in Freetown ended in July since the organization is not mandated to support private hospitals. (See Table IV for status of health intervention in IDP camps in the Western Area).

Combating measles outbreaks

Health agencies have intensified efforts to forestall measles outbreaks in various regions. Vaccination campaigns are ongoing at various locations including newly accessed areas in the east. During this review period, MSF-B with support from UNICEF organized a vaccination exercise in Daru and surroundings where measles outbreaks were recently confirmed. In Moyamba district, MRC is undertaking measles surveillance in Kamajei, Korri and Kowa chiefdoms. Meanwhile, MSF-B reported a measles outbreak in Jong chiefdom. Agencies in the area launched an intensive vaccination campaign with 94 per cent coverage of the target population. The patients are receiving treatment at various clinics in the area. During this month, AFRICARE, which began outreach medical services along the Wanjei river for the benefit of the Mano Sakrim and Kwame Bai Krim chiefdoms in the Pujehun and Bonthe districts also transferred some measles cases from there to the TFC in Bo.

Preventing cholera outbreaks

As the cholera season peaks in the next weeks, the MOHS, UNICEF and health NGOs have intensified efforts to prevent any outbreak of the disease in the country. The GOSL has allocated Le 10 million (US$ 5,500) to the cholera preparedness programme. In the provinces, agencies have maintained cholera prevention campaigns including chlorination of some 4,167 wells and water sources in Bo, Bonthe, Port Loko and Kambia districts. The intervention is backed by health education programmes. Meanwhile, in the Western Area, the cholera task force reported a 50 per cent reduction in the incidence of bloody diarrhoea. According to their report, the numbers went down from 240 within the first half of June to 112 during the same period in July. The Task Force confirms that adequate supplies of cholera treatment drugs have been prepositioned in the country to strengthen medical response for any outbreak.

Addressing needs in newly accessed areas

With the gradual improvement of the security situation, a number of agencies have been able to respond to the desperate humanitarian conditions reported in Yele, Tonkolili district. (See SITREP 11 June to 18 May). To address the health needs of some 15,000 IDPs, MRC established a temporary clinic, which is being operated at a cost recovery basis, with about 800 patients seen each day. ACF on its part has conducted comprehensive nutritional surveys confirming earlier reports of serious malnutrition problems in the area. They have subsequently taken appropriate action to respond to the identified needs. Severely malnourished cases have been transferred to their TFC in Bo, while a supplementary feeding centre established during this review period, is catering for those classified as moderately malnourished, (about 200 by mid August). It is expected that this facility might be extended to Konta where the medical situation is also said to be deplorable. The current efforts in Yele are being complemented by CARE, which is providing regular food rations to the IDPs there.

In Port Loko district, agencies are expanding health, nutrition and food security activities. UNICEF is refurbishing the cold room in the district and will provide a generator to support routine EPI activities. At the same time, the Emergency Health Task Force is planning to expand primary health care activities throughout the district. Children's Aid Direct (CAD) is supporting five health clinics in Loko Masama chiefdom, in collaboration with the MOHS and UNICEF. A dry ration programme for malnourished children is being carried out at the clinics with a caseload of 480 children registered by end of July.

With the resumption of health activities at the Kabala Government Hospital in Koinadugu district, UNICEF and MSF-B continue to provide drugs and medical supplies. Minor surgeries are now being performed at the hospital. The first attempt at the beginning of the month to access the town by road proved unsuccessful due to lack of security guarantees along the Makeni-Kabala route and general bad road conditions. At present, re-supplies for the health activities there are only possible by air.

In Makeni, MSF-H began rehabilitating the Out Patient Department of the Government hospital on 4 August. An MOHS doctor is now working at the hospital with support from MSF-H, which provided a two-week supply of drugs. However, re-supply has not been possible due to uncertain security conditions in the area.

In Kambia district, MSF-H is supporting six clinics. Though their field workers have not been able to gain access to Kambia town since rebel attacks began in February 1999, they have relocated to a village five km north of Kambia town, where they are providing limited health services to IDPs fleeing hostilities in the area. Supplies have so far been provided by boat from neighbouring Guinea. MSF-H plans to train health staff in the area, in anticipation for possible expansion of programmes should security conditions improve.

According to a recent report by the International Medical Corps (IMC), mortality rate on Tasso Island due to diarrhoea has dropped from 6.1 per cent in April 1999 to 0 per cent by end of July. To address the nutritional problem on the Island, IMC established a supplementary feeding centre to serve moderate cases, while the severely malnourished are taken to the ACF TFC in Freetown. IMC is maintaining bi-weekly monitoring visits to the Island.

Nutrition

As access to greater parts of the country reveals deteriorating nutritional conditions in many areas, relevant agencies are combining efforts to improve nutrition and household food security information systems. At a workshop organized by UNICEF on 12 August, participating agencies agreed on data collection tools for the Nutrition and Household Food Security Information System (NHFSIS). UNICEF will begin training enumerators in September. The System will be piloted in eight chiefdoms in Pujehun and Bo districts. UNICEF has contracted two staff members to assist with the programme.

As a result of increased and more effective screening exercises, ACF has reported a significant rise in the number of malnourished cases in its operational areas. In Freetown alone, 200 new cases have been registered. Most of these are referred by other NGOs. The organization has appealed for tents to help accommodate the patients. The TFC in Bo now caters for 320 cases, a 30 per cent increase in just one month. Supplementary feeding centres are being established in the newly accessed areas.

MERLIN also reports the continuing deterioration of nutritional status of displaced in the eastern region. In Kenema, 440 cases are presently registered at the TFC, while some 170 cases are admitted at the TFC in Blama. As a measure to address the needs, MERLIN has expanded its therapeutic and supplementary feeding programmes by constructing three large structures that will accommodate 750 additional children.

Child Protection

RUF/AFRC release child abductees

At least 100 children were among 200 people freed by AFRC rebels on 10 August. The abductees were released along with the last batch of hostages taken by the rebels on 4 August. Initial screening of the teenage girls revealed that eight of them were pregnant, while six others were nursing mothers. One girl had a five-day old baby. According to UNICEF, the children, who were mostly in tattered clothes appeared weak and haggard. The latest release brings to just over 250 the total number of abducted children officially released by the RUF/AFRC rebels since the signing of the Peace Agreement. The first set of 187 abductees was released on 16 July 1999 out of which 121 were children under 18 years of age. Ten of them were pregnant and breast-feeding girls between 14 and 18 years of age. Another group of 36 was handed over to UNICEF by ECOMOG on 6 August. By the time of writing, UNICEF and child protection partners had reunified about 75 per cent of the children with their families. Those remaining in interim care mostly come from the provinces and will be reunified as soon as access to their locations permit tracing activities.

Meeting future challenges

The Government has called for the immediate and unconditional release of the many children and other civilians still being held in captivity, in accordance with commitments under the Lome Peace Agreement. UNICEF registered nearly 4,000 children as missing by parents in the Western Area after the RUF rebels invaded Freetown in January. By end of July, 865 had been traced and reunified while 3,120 still remain missing. Child protection agencies emphasize that the scale of this tragedy is much larger than that indicated by the above figures, which only reflect the greater Freetown area. It is safe to assume that large abductions also occurred in the provinces.

To support activities for child soldiers and released abductees, UNICEF has signed new project agreements with COOPI, IRC, and KDDO for support in psychosocial, family tracing, integration and foster care for UACs and child soldiers in the Western Area and southern and eastern provinces. The UN Foundation, USAID, Japan, SWEDEN, Australia, New Zealand, and the German Committee for UNICEF are funding the programme.

Meanwhile, agencies have prepositioned supplies in the Western Area, Bo and Kenema in preparation for UACs and released children needing interim care. In Kenema, the Child Protection Committee identified two buildings at the RTI camp to house an estimated 2,000 children, including children associated with the fighting forces and the unaccompanied children. WVI is considering funding an emergency preparedness proposal to train social workers in their areas of operation.

Raising Awareness on Sexual Abuse

The Committee on Sexual Abuse continues to expand activities. A proposal has been finalized for community sensitization for sexually abused victims. The objectives are to raise the awareness among victims about the availability of medical and counseling services and to encourage them to take advantage of these services. Communities will also be sensitized to cultivate a positive attitude towards victims. Journalists, religious, community leaders and school counselors/PTAs will be targeted. The NGO, Marie Stopes and MSF-H are also assisting with programmes for sexually abused children.

Caring for Street Children

The NGO GOAL in collaboration with UNICEF is providing community-based assistance to street children in the Western Area, including health care/nutrition, shelter, psychosocial care, non-formal education, and reunification activities. There are currently 135 children on the programme. GOAL plans to assess the situation of Street/Separated children in other parts of Sierra Leone with a view to establishing programmes in these areas.

Food Aid

Recent assessments of newly accessed areas indicate persisting food insecurity. Although more food is now available in the market with the opening of the main highways from Freetown to the provinces, most families are still dependent on cassava. When available, the price of rice is high and much beyond the purchasing power of the civilian population. In most places, income-generating activities are yet to be revitalized. ACF predicts that people will likely face increased hardship when the cassava harvest runs out in September, as very few families took the risk of cultivating rice fields. With the lack of medical care, poor drinking water and the prevailing hungry season, the plight of these villagers can be considered grave. Food security agencies have recommended targeted food distributions in these areas, especially for the villages on the Masiaka-Makeni, and Songo-Masiaka highways.

In response to the situation, the National Technical Committee on Food Aid has proposed an expanded vulnerable group feeding (VGF) distribution in affected areas, to increase the availability of food in the towns, while adhering to the principle of targeted programmes. The expanded VGF will target all U5 children, pregnant and lactating women, and elderly and visibly disabled persons. Planned distributions in the Songo-Masiaka-Rogberi/ Lunsar-Makeni areas have however been delayed due to security incidents (see section 3).

A particular concern for food aid agencies has been the danger of distributing food to civilians in the absence of a disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme. As agencies cannot directly assist armed groups, they have prevailed on other organizations to promptly address the issue as agencies plan to resume full-scale relief operations in affected locations. In this regard, a number of religious groups under the auspices of the Inter-Religious Council of Sierra Leone (IRCSL) have started providing some food to the combatants in their locations. Agencies will plan distributions to civilians in close coordination with distributions to combatants. WFP has already registered over 4,000 civilians in 28 villages in the Masiaka area but will delay distributions to coincide with the exercise in Lunsar and Makeni in order to avoid population movements towards Masiaka.

Meanwhile, agencies completed distributions to beneficiaries in accessible areas for the month of July. CRS and WFP served a verified caseload of about 40,000 beneficiaries in Kenema and Gofor, as well as Kandu Leppiama, Simbaru and Boajibu chiefdoms where nearly 13,000 beneficiaries were reached. The IDPs at the Blama site also received food rations, bringing the total number of beneficiaries served in the area to nearly 55,000. WFP also provided monthly rations to some 20,418 vulnerable groups in Bo and 47,290 in Freetown.

In Port Loko town and surrounding villages, WFP, in cooperation with ACF, CAD, CARITAS, and WVI provided monthly rations to nearly 8,000 vulnerable groups. According to the agencies, the security situation during the exercise was relatively calm as ECOMOG provided maximum cooperation in maintaining order at all the distribution sites. A group of persons supervised by CAD continued to monitor the use of the distributed food.

Agriculture

According to a recent report by FAO, Sierra Leone is among sixteen African countries facing "exceptional food emergencies." It is believed that the implementation of the peace agreement will significantly improve the situation. FAO is currently operating a fishery project to support displaced artisanal fishermen, fish processors and other groups involved in related fishing activities. The project provides fishermen with outboard engines, canoes, fishing gears and ice-making machines. Another project is being undertaken in Lungi, providing emergency agricultural inputs such as seeds, tools, building materials and fertilizers to rural women's groups to improve household food security and income-generating agricultural activities. The organization also plans to undertake a project targeting 8,000 destitute farm families with agricultural inputs. The project, which has a total budget of $371,000, is expected to begin shortly.

ACTIONAID has entered an agreement with UNICEF to implement a household food security project that will enable 7,500 resettling households in the Western Area to access food throughout the year by promoting simple methods of household food requirement, home gardens and micro-credit schemes.

Concern Worldwide (CW) visited the northern town of Matatoka on 30 July where they met with their crop monitors and contact farmers. They plan to resume support to the agriculture sector. However, they do not believe it feasible to transport rice for agricultural purposes at this time, given the security situation and the absence of food in the town. Instead, they plan to distribute cassava, potato vines and vegetable seeds this month. Groundnut will be distributed in September.

Water and Sanitation

Activities in this sector continued in accessible areas. ACF and CCSL have worked out a solution to the deteriorating WATSAN situation at the National Stadium camp. CCSL has supplied hygiene kits to the IDPs in the camp and the bush around the latrines has been cleared by the IDPs. ACF has also resolved the water problem at the new Grafton site, enabling the relocation of up to 1000 IDPs to the camp. CARE plans to begin project activities in Port Loko by this month.

Agencies have continued to meet WATSAN needs at the various IDP camps and in Bo town and surroundings. CARE has now cast 25 latrine slabs and placed them over the trenches of five seater latrines in the Lebanese camp. They are also involved in health education geared towards sensitizing camp inmates on how to prevent maggot infestation in the camp. OXFAM has completed the construction of wells at the cholera camp. They intend to design a rain water catchment to provide additional water in case of a cholera outbreak. The Sierra Leone Red Cross Society has chlorinated 20 traditional wells at the Bo number two section in Bo town. On its part, ACF is committed to providing latrines for 5,000 IDPs at the Keindeyella camp in Bo, after completion of booth construction. The Organization is also undertaking some WATSAN activities in Yele.

UNICEF has provided materials for construction of wells and latrines in schools and health centres for Bo and Kenema and for protection of wells, installation of hand-pumps on 21 wells and rehabilitation of some latrines in Bonthe district. In IDP camps in Freetown, they are trucking water on a daily basis to assist the displaced. At the same time, UNICEF is providing WATSAN materials to partners like ACF and OXFAM for the construction of washrooms and latrines in IDP camps. They also donated five motor bikes to assist the Water and Sanitation Division.

In the Moyamba area, CARE has completed the construction of three new wells and rehabilitated twelve wells. They continue to identify village communities for new well construction. Twenty such communities have been identified and selected in two chiefdoms.

WVI rehabilitated and installed 41 hand pumps in nine chiefdoms on Bonthe mainland. Some 105-pump attendants and 178 chlorinators have been trained there. Assessment shows that Bum and Kwame Bai Krim chiefdoms have no protected wells. WVI plans to provide them with two protected wells. They have also planned to provide demonstration latrines at six clinics. On the whole, WVI has nearly completed 63 wells in Bonthe district. Four new wells are being earmarked for Bom and Kwame Bai Krim chiefdoms respectively.

Shelter/Non-Food Assistance

After a series of negotiations with local authorities and NCRRR, agencies have finally secured land to construct an additional IDP camp in Bo. The location is Keindeyella village in the Tikonko chiefdom. Up to 300 booths can be constructed at the site. Agencies began clearing the land on 16 July and construction work has already started. ACF has indicated its interest to construct latrines, while OXFAM will rehabilitate wells and MSF-B will provide medical care. Other agencies have been requested to provide support after the construction of booths. Meanwhile, 24 booths have been completed and allocated at the Tikonko IDP camp. Some 1108 are under construction at the Splendid site.

At the Blama camp in Kenema district, some 500 of the 1200 booths planned for construction have been completed and occupied, while the Lebanese camp now has over 700 booths occupied. A total of 150 structures have been put up at the Nyandeyama camp. Non-food assistance is being provided by a number of agencies, including ICRC, which donated 165 rolls of plastic sheets to cover the rest of the booths at the Lebanese camp. NCRRR provided 50 mattresses and 40 bed-sheets for MERLIN's TFCs, and CARE distributed 3,000 blankets to 3,753 beneficiaries at the Blama camp. MSF-B also distributed non-food items to a total caseload of 10,537 at the camp.

In the Western Area, temporary shelter assistance continues at the officially recognised camps. At the new Grafton camp, GOAL has completed the construction of shelters to facilitate relocation of IDPs currently occupying unauthorized campsites. About 1,000 IDPs have already been relocated to the site, which has the capacity to accommodate 3,000 people. The Irish government has provided some funds for GOAL to cover the construction of shelters for additional 7,000 persons. This will come under phase two of the ongoing activity. The organization is presently waiting for plastic sheeting to be transported from Europe.

Education

UNICEF has completed and handed over eight temporary school buildings for displaced children in the Western Area to the Ministry of Youth, Education and Sports (MYES). The schools are expected to accommodate 4,800 children in two shifts. A consignment of teaching and learning materials and 3,200 copies of textbooks in the four core subjects – English, Mathematics, Science and Social Studies were also supplied to the schools. The textbooks will be used to establish a book bank in each school.

The MYES has established Regional Education Coordination Committees in the Eastern and southern provinces with technical inputs from UNICEF. These committees are charged with the task of developing and coordinating a plan to address the education needs of IDPs now emerging from rebel-controlled territories. The Committee will facilitate a quick assessment to determine the number of children of school-going age and identify existing facilities and basic requirements for effective resumption of school activities. UNICEF has also provided recreation and sports kits to serve some 130 schools in the southern province.

Despite these interventions, emergency education needs remain seriously under-funded. Requests for funding from agencies like UNICEF are often unmet. Education is a human right and it is vital that basic education support is provided to children during long emergencies like the one Sierra Leone.

Refugees

UNHCR meets on voluntary repatriation

UNHCR representatives from four countries met in Abidjan on 6 and 7 August 1999 to consolidate a plan for the voluntary repatriation of Sierra Leonean refugees in neighbouring countries. The meeting was held to ensure that adequate preparations are in place to address possible mass returns to Sierra Leone occasioned by the signing of the Peace Agreement. Although conditions have not yet been met for an organized repatriation in safety and dignity, the meeting identified a number of activities which could be carried out in the interim pending tangible progress in the peace process, as some spontaneous returns may occur. Among others, the activities include dissemination and sensitization of refugee communities on the Peace Agreement, facilitated repatriation to Freetown and Bo 30 days following the return of Cpl. Foday Sankoh to Freetown and the formation of a government of national unity. Should DDR be well advanced by February 2000, UNHCR would officially launch an organised voluntary repatriation, expected to last two years. In this context, the Organization plans to initiate the signing of tripartite agreements with relevant countries to assist mass voluntary repatriation. Furthermore, it intends to strengthen its presence in Sierra Leone, including the opening of new offices in major returnee areas.

For planning purposes, UNHCR estimates that half of the 500,000 refugees in neighbouring countries may return spontaneously. Some 30 per cent would be returned under a facilitated scheme which does not involve logistics, while the remaining 20 per cent would benefit from an organized repatriation exercise, including transportation.

HUMANITARIAN PROFILES

1. Makeni Highlights

Background

The once thriving commercial centre was conspicuously deserted when an interagency assessment team arrived there on 22 July for the first time in seven months. Most shops seen were barred shut and only minimal street trading was evident. There were however no obvious signs of widespread destruction although significant looting had occurred.

The inter-agency mission including UN and NGOs secured a number of agreements from the People's Army (former AFRC) which committed to providing the enabling environment for the delivery of humanitarian assistance and to respect the staff and properties of the humanitarian community in all territories under their control. To this end, the Army agreed to return all assets and properties of the humanitarian community to the respective owners immediately in order to facilitate their work. They also agreed to allow the participation of national staff members of international agencies in their areas provided their names and positions are forwarded to them prior to the visits. On substantive programming activities, the People's Army accepted the concept of facilitating the National Immunization Day in their areas. As part of a security measure to ensure global access mechanisms, UNHACU, on behalf of the Humanitarian Coordinator, maintains daily contacts with the RUF base in Buedu.

Based on the assurances of security and cooperation from the AFRC/RUF, subsequent multisectoral assessments were undertaken to ascertain child nutrition patterns, food and logistics situation and related human rights issues. After their assessment of the town and surrounding villages, ACF and MSF described the humanitarian situation in Makeni as a major crisis, with over 30 percent malnutrition rates of the U5 children screened, compounded by lack of medical facilities and a chronic shortage of food commodities. Planned response to address the situation has been delayed by the deterioration of security in the area and along the routes to Makeni. However, national staff members of ACF and MSF who remain in the area are providing limited assistance in health and nutrition. At the beginning of the month ACF opened a supplementary feeding centre in Makeni town where 500 people were registered within two days of starting the operation. The organization plans to establish a day care centre during this week as a first step to addressing the needs of the severely malnourished. Expansion and continuation of relief operations in health, nutrition and food aid will largely depend on improvement of the security situation.

(Summary based on reports by ACF and MSF-H: 23 to 26 July)

Current Population

Current population of greater Makeni area is estimated at 25,000 compared to 63,000 prior to the attack in December 1999. Some 15,000 of the 25,000 are believed to be residing in Makeni town. According to demographic projections for SL, 18.6 per cent of the population are children U5.

IDP Camps

The two camps (Magbenteh and Makali) are still occupied by IDPs. Some 2,400 in Mabgenteh and 1,300 in Makali. There were over 12,000 IDPs in the two camps prior to the December attack. Current population includes both old and new cases.

Agriculture activities

Only about 25 per cent of farm families planted this year. Maximum two bushels of rice per family.

Feeding Patterns

Between January and February, people were living on rice, fruits, potatoes and cassava. From March to present, the main food sources are cassava, reptiles, larvae from composts, snails, frogs, rats and mushrooms. The situation really began to deteriorate in March 1999. Majority of the families can only afford one meal a day. More food is given to the working groups (youths) who provide for the family, followed by children, then women and lastly the aged. About 60 per cent of the food items are purchased from markets. If available, rice is sold for Le600/cup, compared to Le250 in Freetown.

Coping Mechanisms

Prior to December, people survived on menial jobs, petty trading, wood selling, car washing, hair plaiting, blacksmith, carpentry and masonry. At present, they depend on petty trading in wood, available food stuff and drugs, street begging, sale of household properties and personal belongings, robberies and pick pocketing, prostitution and rat hunting. Trading activities are very minimal. The few traders come from Makeni, Kamakwie, Kabala, Fadugu and Lunsar. Movement is mostly on foot as vehicular transportation is either not available or too expensive.

Health Situation

The health situation is described as desperate. Severe shortages of food and medicine significantly increased health risks. Malaria, respiratory infections and nutrition-related illnesses are the most common. No outbreaks detected at present, but expected as more areas are accessed.

Present Situation:

Before the December attack, treatment was done at the government hospital, private clinics, quacks, and pharmacies and with herbalists. At present, services are only available at the RUF/AFRC hospital called the "Pentagon" (this was ACF's Supplementary Feeding Centre). The Pentagon has trained and untrained medical personnel, including MCH aides, SRNs, CHOs and medical volunteers. Two doctors are running the hospital. No surgeon at present. None of the hospital staff is paid. The hospital lacks drugs and medical equipment. Treatment is mostly for soldiers and their dependants.

The government hospital is completely looted, half-destroyed and non-functional.

SLRCS clinic - some consultation but no medical/drug supplies

Garden Clinic - private consultant but no drugs

No standing building at the Magenteh camp. Complete destruction. Primary health care activities for civilians as a start. They organization has made clear to combatants that they will only provide for civilians. At the Makele camp, one building but nothing in it.

Action Plan by MSF-H

MSF plans to send medical team to Makeni in the near future. The team will include a medical Coordinator, a medical logistician and logistical assistant and one nurse. Three of the four members will be international staff.

MSF will rebuild clinic and provide drugs, medical supplies and equipment. Work scheduled to start at beginning of August has been delayed. They also plan rehabilitation of the Makali camp clinic. Drugs will be provided.

They have enough in stock for current needs.

For the surrounding villages, MSF will begin operating mobile clinics on a regular basis, providing consultations and some treatment.

One priority area will be training as many health staff as possible to meet the challenges.

Education

Schools were opened on 24 July 1999, however only a few kids are enrolled in primary schools (about 10 per cent in town and 0 per cent in rural areas), and none in secondary schools. No school fees are levied and teachers are paid token amounts using tax revenues from traders.

WATSAN

Residents have access to drinking water mostly from rain. Wells are not chlorinated.

There is currently no access to electricity. People use their "appropriate technology" to get light in their homes.

Nutrition

Nutritional screening was conducted among U5s and adults in Makeni town and surrounding villages. Malnutrition was defined according to weight and height ratio.

Makeni Town:

Total U5 screened - 95; adults -- 36. Of the U5s, 17 were severely malnourished while 16 were moderate cases. Of the adults, 4 were severely malnourished and 5 were moderate. When malnutrition is detected among the adult population, it usually means that the situation is serious. No mortality assessment was conducted but according to local staff present in the area, several malnutrition-related deaths were reported over the past months.

Camp Population:

Magbenteh - Of the 97 U5s screened, 47 were severely malnourished and 8 were moderate cases; Out of 23 adults screened, 10 were severe cases and 2 moderate.

Makali - Out of 67 U5s 17 were severe cases and 10 moderate.

The ratio between severe and moderate cases is worrying, but the team believes that while most of the severe cases were screened, most of the moderate cases were absent at the time of screening. On the whole, taking into account the present camp population estimates, it is possible to say that about 20 per cent of the children U5 were screened in each camp. The situation in the camps among the adult population appeared worse than in town.

Surrounding villages:

All U5s present at the time were screened in Makama and Ropolo villages located in Bombali Sebori chiefdom and between Makeni and Magburaka. Some 100 U5s were screened in each village: Makama - 20 severe and 25 moderate; Ropolo - 11 severe and 23 moderate Masongbo - 19 severe and 12 moderate; Binkolo - 13 severe and 12 moderate. The situation in the villages compares with the camp situation. The situation in Makama village is particularly bad.

Conclusion:

In sum, among the 153 total severe cases seen, 103 bilateral oedema were observed. Important to note that it is always more difficult to treat kwashiorkor (oedema) than marasmus cases. The mortality rate among kwashiorkor cases is usually higher. The present global picture is the result of an extremely poor access to food over the past months. Generally speaking, the situation was found to be more difficult in surrounding villages of Makeni than in Makeni town itself, as the surroundings were repeatedly looted.

Recommendations/Action:

General food distributions urgently recommended in Makeni town and surrounding villages. In this regard, ACF emphasizes distributions in all chiefdoms and villages, not just the town, in order to avoid artificial population movements into the town.

A full ration at 2400 k/cals is recommended.

ACF intends to set up two therapeutic feeding centres and four supplementary feeding centres in Makeni town, camps, and surrounding villages by beginning of August. However, the organization notes that targeted supplementary and therapeutic nutritional feeding programmes aimed at addressing needs of malnourished populations are not effective if the general access to food remains limited and if such programmes are not complemented by regular and sufficient additional food input.

With regard to the frequency of the recommended food distributions, ACF recommends interviews with the local population in order to define the more appropriate alternatives and options for distribution. This will contribute to limiting incidents and to providing a comprehensive solution to the problem.

In the short term, medical facilities have to be set up in central locations, as well as rural and decentralized centres.

Medium term solutions should include agricultural assessments to determine the different kinds of inputs to be distributed to the population by September 1999.

Relevant players must also address the issue of food for combatants as soon as possible.

Intermediate food distributions for civilian populations residing in areas between Songo village and Makeni town (Masiaka, Rogberi, Lunsar areas), are also strongly recommended by ACF.

2. Inter-Agency teams assess villages, towns and chiefdoms in the East

Kandu Leppiama Chiefdom

During the reporting period, WFP, AFRICARE, MERLIN, SLRCS and HACU visited three towns in this chiefdom including Gbado, Levuma and Jenneh during July. In Levuma, about two acres of land have already been allocated to the IDPs for camp construction. An estimated population of about 5,000 IDPs have erected 60 booths covered with palm fronds. A clinic operated by MERLIN at Levuma is providing antenatal, EPI and health education services. At Gbado, there is a MCH aid clinic. Diseases like malaria, diarrhoea, anaemia, related to malaria, constitute the most common cases. Mortality rate is low for U5s and above. The general nutritional status of the IDPs is reasonably good, with the exception of a few cases of malnutrition. In Gbado and Jenneh, the WATSAN situation is favourable, with 15 and 19 standpipes in both towns respectively, constructed by Water Aid and UNICEF. There are six toilets serving the host population and IDPs at Jenneh.

Simbaru Chiefdom

The assessment team couldn't get to Boajibu on the 15 of July due to a broken bridge at Babawahun. The team went on bikes the following day. There were two health centres, KDDO-supported clinic and a government health centre supported by MERLIN. ACF operates a mobile clinic and takes all referred cases to Blama and Bo. The host population at Boajibu refused the IDPs land for camp construction. They are presently in the catholic and Ahmadiyya schools while a few managed to stay with the host population.

Jawei Chiefdom -- Daru

MSF-F traveled by road to Daru to assess the spread of measles and to conduct a nutritional screening. They report an outbreak of measles in Daru, Malema and some of the villages surrounding Daru. They subsequently vaccinated target groups including children between six months and 15 years of age. A total of 4,567 children were immunised. A nutritional screening of 1,013 U5 children revealed 22 were severely malnourished while about 50 per cent were moderately malnourished.

Dama Chiefdom - Naiawama camp

On 23 July, the assessment team visited Niawama camp. IDPs were mainly from the Kailahun district, including Segbewema, Dia, Malema, Peje Bongre and other areas. They had completed 274 bamboo booths covered with grass. The camp had three shallow wells and no medical facilities. IDPs walk about 15 miles to Giema to attend clinic. There are about three TBAs without equipment. A total of 4,910 IDPs have been registered and the mortality rate was on the high side. The team counted 173 graves though most were thought to be old graves. The IDPs however claimed that the deaths occurred between June and July. Out of 179 U5 children nine were moderately malnourished and five were severe cases of kwashiorkor.

Konia Camp

The IDPs at this camp produced a register containing 4,933 names. Some 110 booths had been erected but not yet completed and occupied. The nearest health post supported by MERLIN was at Giema about 10 miles from the camp.

Gofor Camp

The IDPs here completed 275 booths to accommodate an estimated population of about 10,000 IDPS. There is a health centre operated by AFRICARE. The situation was not too grave since they received food supplies from CRS in June and July.

Recommendations/Action:

AFRICARE is to provide medical services to the Niawama camp, SLRC/ICRC will give two-week rations. Agencies were however concerned about distributing food at the Niawama camp which is close to Kailahun, where rebel groups remain armed. MERLIN recommends that vaccination and nutritional screening should be done regularly at this camp.

The IDPs at Kandu Leppiana and Simbaru chiefdoms have started receiving food from WFP. However, access to Boajibu remains difficult due to the broken bridge at Babawahun. IDPs were advised to go to the nearest accessible village for their supplies. There is an urgent need to negotiate the opening of the roads leading to Segbwema and Daru and the rest of the east to enable humanitarian relief agencies start accessing people living in bushes.

Kenema District

Mondema, Baama and Konta villages

The mission, undertaken during July, confirmed that the road from Bo to Grima junction in the Valunia chiefdom was relatively in good condition. There are 39 bridges between Grima junction and Baama village, 16 of which are in very bad condition and are made of palm trunks. These are located mainly between Mondema and Baama villages. Aid agencies have recommended that trucks be prevented from using the Mondema - Baama road until repairs are carried out.

At the Vengema village, the team learned that there were 1159 IDPs from Kono and Makeni staying in bush camps around the village. The IDPs were said to be surviving on bush yams and cassava. Rice and other commodities are acquired from Bo and Kenema. In Mondema village, the team observed a large concentration of people, mostly lactating mothers from bush camps. About 500 IDPs were said to be residing in the area, mainly from Kono and Masingbi. Almost all the houses in the town which is about 14 km from Masingbi, had been burned down by rebels.

The 18 km road from Mondema to Baama was still not open to vehicular traffic. Coping mechanisms were at the lowest here. Although some farming activities were evident, no agency had supplied seed rice and other farming inputs. A cup of rice when available is sold for Le 500. The team ascertained the lack of clean drinking water and poor toilet and medical facilities. The population depends on the river source for drinking water. They reported deaths from dysentery, diarrhoea, malaria and worm infections.

At Konta village, the section chief informed the team of the presence of 5,000 IDPs staying in the camp and 10,000 in the 17 surrounding villages. The team observed only one well and no toilet facilities in the town. Like in Mondema, the civilians told harrowing stories of suffering and deprivation. MERLIN offered some medical assistance on cost recovery basis. At the Konta displaced camp, the camp manager informed the team that 35 people, including nine children and 26 adults had died in April of hunger, malaria, dysentery and diarrhoea. Eight were said to have died in May and five in June. However, the death rate drastically reduced after the intervention of MERLIN. They reported that since the camp was established, they had received food from CRS twice (covering May and June). The living condition of the camp inmates remains deplorable. Children and adults alike are malnourished, as they live mainly on bush yam, cassava and other wild foods. The camp manager confirmed a caseload of 11,032 instead of the 1

5,000 stated by the section chief. The number of booths estimated by the team was about 200. Just over 5,000 IDPs reside in the camp while about 10,000 is reported to be in surrounding villages. There are no WATSAN facilities in the camp.

After the assessment, WFP led an inter-agency team to carry out a two-day registration and verification exercise from 16 to 18 July. According to their report, the following figures were derived: Mondema - 3,491, Konta - 5,449 bringing the total registered and verified to 8,940. The team did not encounter any security incidents during the trip. They learned that the area had been calm since the Ceasefire took effect on 24 May. They were informed that initiations were continuing by Kamajors, although one initiator claimed that they were in support of peace and would be ready to disarm.

3. Tasso Island - Port Loko District (input from IMC Report, July 1999)

Diarrhoea and dysentery accounted for 27 percent of all morbidity on Tasso Island. Among the 347 cases detected from January to April 1999, 23 resulted in death, a case fatality rate of 6.6 percent. The Island's community health post could not handle the outbreak as it lacked drugs and equipment and urgently needed rehabilitation. The problem was compounded by the large number of internally displaced persons whose presence more than tripled the island's population from 2,673 to approximately 7,718. This influx overwhelmed the island's capacity to provide for its residents.

In response to the situation, the International Medical Corps (IMC), in cooperation with MOHS, initiated an emergency health intervention project on the Island. By June, the Community Health Post had been rehabilitated. UNICEF and WHO supplied drugs while the MOHS provided health workers, enabling the CHP to effectively treat diarrhoeal diseases. As a result, there has not been a single fatality on Tasso Island from diarrhoeal disease or dysentery since the beginning of June.

Utilizing a boat procured from UNICEF and MOHS, IMC is undertaking bi-weekly visits to the Island to monitor the situation. These follow-up visits have revealed prevalence of high malnutrition cases among children. As of mid July, 536 of the under-five children screened were diagnosed as being malnourished. The severely malnourished (about 70%) were transported to ACF's TFC in Kissy, eastern Freetown. With the slow improvement of conditions on the Island, the number of severely malnourished cases is said to be on the decline. In order to prevent further deterioration of the situation, IMC established a supplementary feeding program for the moderately malnourished cases. High protein food, donated by Cap Anamur, along with supplementary food donated by WFP, is being used to feed pregnant women and breast feeding mothers at the health centre.

In addition to controlling the current outbreak of diarrhoeal diseases, IMC is putting in place long-term prevention measures. Work has already begun on the implementation of a health education campaign, and plans to train Blue Flag Volunteers are in the pipeline. The aim of this campaign, which is to be conducted in collaboration with WHO is to reduce the high rate of diarrhoeal disease on Tasso by raising community awareness about the importance of good sanitary practices. In order to improve sanitary conditions, IMC is finalizing a deal with a donor to get funds that will be used to build protected wells and V.I.P. latrines in all of the six villages on Tasso.

Continuing Challenges: While effective prevention measures have helped to reduce the number of cases of diarrhoeal diseases on the island, it must be noted that the incidence of bloody diarrhoea is still high. WHO and IMC are investigating the causes, and are planning appropriate intervention to address the situation. Another concern is the fact that the number of patients being seen at the Health Post has risen in recent weeks. In order to meet this rising demand for health services, funds for the construction of a new Health Centre are being sought.

1. Political Developments

The return of Chairman Foday Sankoh and Major Johnny Paul Koroma continues to improve prospects for peace in the country. Since their arrival in Freetown on October 3rd the RUF/AFRC leaders have been visiting civil society groups, IDP camps, DDR campsites and others. They are expected to work closely with the GOSL in the formation of a Government of National Unity. They are also making plans to visit their various locations to further sensitize their men on the DDR programme. Addressing about 800 people including some ex-combatants at Lungi on October 8, Chairman Sankoh said he had moved from guerrilla warfare to political warfare. He urged the ex-combatants to ask the forgiveness of all Sierra Leoneans and to do something positive for the country.

The UN Security Council is currently meeting to discuss the peacekeeping force for Sierra Leone, and is likely to adopt a resolution before the end of the month.

In other developments, Britain has notified the UN Security Council Sanctions Committee that it will be exporting live ammunitions and military equipment to Sierra Leone for use by the new military. The shipment includes 4.5 million pounds promised by Britain to help re-train the Sierra Leone army. Some 5.5 million pounds has already been paid directly to ECOMOG.

On October 5, the Government, with the support of Britain's Department for International Development (DFID) held an anti-corruption workshop as part of the on-going effort to eradicate corruption in the public services. Participants included cabinet ministers, senior government officials and RUF/AFRC leaders Chairman Foday Sankoh and Major Johnny Paul Koroma. Presidential spokesman Septimus Kaikai reported that the workshop focused on three main areas: Prevention, Enforcement and Education. Mr. Kaikai also reported that an anti-corruption bill was before Parliament. When enacted, the Bill will provide the legal basis for establishing an anti-corruption commission.

2. SECURITY

The security situation has not significantly improved since in the last week. On October 4, it was reported that rebels on the Masiaka - Mile 91 highway, attacked a Sierra Leone Road Transport bus bound for Kenema. The bus was reportedly stopped at a checkpoint five miles to Masiaka on the Freetown highway. According to the report, all the commuters were ordered to disembark while the band of armed men stripped them of all they had, and abandoned the bus at a nearby bush-path. Human Rights Watch interviewed some of the passengers on the bus who confirmed that some of the girls had been raped. One pregnant woman reportedly aborted after suffering physical abuse by the captors. Such abuses are said to be on the increase in the northern region. The RUF/AFRC have blamed bandits for the incident.

These security incidents are hindering access to RUF/AFRC-controlled areas, particularly in the north. Concern Worldwide (CW) which has been attempting to re-start relief activities on the Magburuka - Matotoka axis, reports that it has been prevented from moving into the area by RUF/AFRC Commanders who are demanding that food be distributed in their district. According to CW, travel to Matotoka is not possible at the moment. Terrorism in villages around Magburuka and Matotoka is on the rise. Residents are forced to give food to the Paramount Chief who in turn gives to the armed combatants. Sometimes, the rebels go directly to the farmers for food, causing them to be doubly taxed. OSM officials in the area are reportedly afraid of the commanders, all of whom seem to be at the same level of command. UNOMSIL has been informed and is looking into the matter.

Makeni residents reportedly went into a panic when shooting broke out in parts of the town on 3rd October over a period of three hours. The Bishop of Makeni, Bishop Biguzzi (who was on a visit to the town) was prevented from leaving the town until the situation was brought under control. He reported that a meeting between the RUF and AFRC led to a resolution of the situation.

There are also persistent reports of armed groups attacking civilians (seizing properties, demanding money and beating civilians) in villages in the Kambia district. The harassment has reportedly led civilians (some of them just returning from refugee camps in Guinea) to flee these villages and head back to the refugee camps or to settle in villages very close to the border with Guinea. The security situation in Port Loko district is also of concern. An aid agency working in the district reported some difficulty in the implementation of its programme due to the fragile security situation in the district. Groups of the AFRC are reported to be harassing civilians along the Port Loko - Lungi road and also at Loko Masama. Rape cases were also reported in this area.

In the Western Area, there are continuing reports of armed robbery attempts and the harassment of civilians by unidentified groups of young men suspected to be ex-combatants. According to UNOMSIL, there are reports of weapons being smuggled into the city.

The security situation in the southern region remains calm. However, elements of the CDF in the Bumpah area continue to pose threats to the security of the people in the town. According to aid workers, these individuals are harassing innocent civilians. They confirmed that CDF personnel shot a pregnant woman dead on suspicion that she was having an affair with another man. The matter is under Police investigation. The peace-building and reconciliation committee and NCRRR are also following up on the issue.

3. Humanitarian Highlights

Inter-Agency Assessment Mission to Kailahun District

Following the inter-agency assessment mission to Kailahun District last week, WFP and other relevant agencies are beginning to take some practical steps to address some of the urgent needs. A detailed report of the mission is attached.

Health

The main health event during this period was the start of National Immunization Days (NIDs) on October 9, aimed at eradicating polio in Sierra Leone. Some 800,000 children under five are targeted for immunization countrywide. The whole of the southern region and parts of the northern and eastern regions were covered in this first phase. WHO, UNICEF and Rotary International, are the main supporters of the government in mounting the campaign. Their goal is to reach the entire country by the end of the third round. UNICEF and WHO reported that the first round got off to a good start as parents turned up in their numbers to immunize their children. In Freetown, President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah immunized the first child to kick-off the occasion. Over 5,000 children were reported to have been immunized by noon on the first day.

The programme was also undertaken in the RUF/AFRC-held northern towns of Makeni, Kabala, Kambia, Kono and Port Loko. Despite the overall success thus far, there have been a number of hitches. On 7 October, a scheduled helicopter flight to deliver vaccines to Makeni for the programme had to be cancelled, as there was no clear approval from the RUF/AFRC commanders for the helicopter to land. An assessment was made of the situation based on information from a number of sources (NGOS, UNOMSIL, ECOMOG) which led to the decision that at that time, it was not advisable to proceed to Makeni. The organizers managed to provide alternative means of transporting the supplies to the town. A serious security incident occurred during the exercise in the eastern town of Segbwema. Six MOHS staff members and NID volunteers have been missing since 9 October, and their abandoned vehicle has been found. Contacts have been made and negotiations are ongoing to secure their release.

It is hoped that by the end of the programme, at least 70% of the target group would have been covered. Community Health Organizations (CHOs), nurses and other health staff/volunteers have been fully trained for the programme. Intensive sensitization and awareness building programmes are being carried out throughout the country. The 2nd and 3rd phases will be undertaken on November 6th and December 11th.

Reported cholera cases in the Western Area have now increased to 927 cases with 9 cholera related deaths. There were however no new cases reported at the IDP camps. Efforts continue on all sides to combat the outbreak (See SITREP 23-30 September 1999). In Port Loko District, the District Medical Officer confirmed 40 cholera-related deaths during the month of September. Some 400 cases are currently being treated at the health center.

During the past week, a seven-year old died of measles at the METCHEM section of the National Workshop Camp in Freetown. An outbreak of measles is also reported at the Approved school camp. Concern Worldwide is handling the situation at its camp clinic.

The MOHS has announced the start of the Cost Recovery Program as of October 1, 1999 in all areas, with the exception of Kono, Kailahun and the displaced camps. The outpatient Units in Magburaka, Kambia, Port Loko and Makeni are now operational. Malnutrition cases are the most prominent in these locations.

Food Aid

During the past week, WFP served 12,885 IDPs in all camps in Bo and 777 IDPs with host population at Mandu in the Bo North cluster. CRS also provided food for 4,273 beneficiaries in TFCs, SFCs and institutional programmes. At the Songo-Masiaka axis, WFP, ACF, ADRA carried out food distributions to 5,957 persons. These distributions will be followed by a distribution to 3,130 beneficiaries at villages between Masiaka - Makeni. Also, food pipeline agencies are soon to complete the third month of Food-For-Agriculture in their areas of operation.

As more areas of the country are accessed, the collective resources of food aid agencies will be insufficient to address increasing needs. There are reports of continuing food shortages in many areas in the north, including Fadugu and Kabala. The food situation in Makeni (in spite of the last distribution) is said to be getting bad. Some agencies have recommended a second distribution to avoid further deterioration.

CARE, WFP and CRS provided 3,946 mt of food aid to 276,190 IDPs and war-affected populations during the month of September. At the time of writing, WVI figures were not available.

Food Distribution - September 1999

Nutrition

MERLIN reported an increase in the cases of malnutrition in Kenema town, IDP camps and in some chiefdoms within the district. They reported a total caseload of 411 and 176 severely malnourished cases in Kenema and Blama respectively. MERLIN is in the process of handing over its supplementary feeding caseload to GOAL. They are working closely with GOAL and CRS to address the nutritional problem in the area, through a joint distribution/ screening exercise planned for all under 5s in Kenema. This will be undertaken in a few weeks.

Agriculture

In an effort to strengthen the existing coordination mechanism in the agriculture sector, FAO, in collaboration with MAFE and the Ministry of Fisheries and Marine Resources (MFMR), has embarked on the production of a monthly newsletter called AGRISIL. The first edition has just been distributed to partners. The monthly newsletter will attempt to highlight agricultural relief and rehabilitation activities carried out by the government, UN Agencies, International Organizations and NGOs in Sierra Leone. It is expected that AGRISIL will serve as a medium of information exchange among agencies in the agriculture sector.

Celebrations for the World Food Day are underway. FAO, in collaboration with MAFE, other agencies and farmers associations in the Western Area, has lined up activities to mark the day on October 16. "Youth against Hunger" has been selected as the theme for this year's celebrations, to highlight the potential contribution of young men and women in achieving food security for all.

FAO has in principle, agreed to provide US$6,000 to fund the needs assessment survey referred to in SITREP 23-30 September. It is expected that the exercise will guide stakeholders in the agriculture sector to better plan for the year 2000.

Distribution for the last phase of the planting season is still in progress. FAO, MAFE and NGOs are currently distributing seed rice, vegetable seeds, tools, groundnut and sweet potatoes to 8000 Farm Families. MAFE recently concluded the distribution of 1.3 Mt of vegetable seeds to Farm Families in the entire country. It is expected that at the end of October 1999, agencies will make their input distribution reports available to the NGO Desk and HACU for collation and analysis.

Finally, a tools selection-clearing house has been established within the Ministry of Agriculture to help NGOs and other interested organizations to select the right tools for their beneficiaries.

IDP Update

There was no significant change in IDP figures during this period. Registration done at Lunsar town for VGF distribution revealed a total of 30,616 war-affected persons (not encamped).

Water and Sanitation

ACF has constructed 4 (4 x 4) latrine structures on Kendeyella site 1 camp in Bo. These are now in use by 750 IDPs. The following is being done on site 2 by ACF:- 12 x 4 squat blocks of latrine pits dug; 6 x 4 squat blocks of latrine foundations cast. Latrines are expected to serve up to 6,000 IDPs. The first phase of sensitization on hygiene promotion at site 1 has commenced. At Splendid and Kendeyella camps, ACF also completed general spraying of latrines and drainage at Splendid, Lebanese and Kendeyella camps. At Splendid, 7 latrine blocks have collapsed and have been closed. ACF is also engaged in dismantling old latrines at the former Tikonko road camp, and has completed the construction of 1 x 4 squat block latrine at Yele. Another 2 x 2 block of VIP latrines has been completed at Yele for the community health center. ACF intends to provide additional ones once space is available. CARE has completed one latrine at the Lebanese camp to complement the existing ones that are expected to serve 1,131 IDPs.

OXFAM has rehabilitated nine wells on Kendeyella site 2 with one awaiting hand pump from UNICEF. Four more wells are on standby and will be completed according to demand. In Koya rural, WSD and OXFAM are rehabilitating 100 wells constructed by Plan International.

At Kaffu Bullom chiefdom in Port Loko district, OXFAM has completed and fitted three new lined wells fitted with hand-pumps. Two more wells are under construction. Family latrine projects are underway in eight more villages in the chiefdom and 500 latrines are planned. Support is also being given to the Lungi Hospital cholera ward in the form of buckets, plastic drums, plastic sheeting's, gloves and chlorine. Temporary latrines are being constructed at the site to complement the poor sanitation systems. CARE International is also planning to resume its water and sanitation programs in three chiefdoms in Port Loko District.

In Kenema, OXFAM has repaired 6 latrine blocks and construction is underway for 12x5 latrine blocks. Four full latrine blocks have been shut down. At Nyawama camp, - installation of a gravity water system will provide water to 3,500 camp residents.

In the Western Area, Guma Valley has solved the water situation at Parade grounds camp, and UNICEF is supplementing shortfalls with daily trucking of water to the camp. OXFAM is in the process of building three new latrine blocks and two wash areas for IDPs at Approved School camp.

Child Protection

Some 90 people were released in Lunsar on October 2nd, of which 72 were children. On October 3rd, another 29 children were released. On October 6, RUF/AFRC commanders turned over 78 children to UNOMSIL and CARITAS - Makeni.

Refugees

UNHCR reported that the recent crisis in Lofa County has seen the movement of about 2,000 Liberian refugees and Sierra Leoneans back to the Kailahun area. They are proposing increased monitoring in this area by humanitarian agencies. Although the people did not appear in poor condition, their shelter situation is of concern.

3. Socio-economic

UNDP organized a press briefing on the National Human Development Report on 8 October 1999, in preparation for the launching of the Report on 11 October. The launching will be followed by a two-day workshop in Freetown.

4. DDR

The DDR camp for 2000 ex-combatants in Port Loko is now ready, but will have to be increased so as to accommodate their families, which makes it only 80% ready to use. The newly constructed water wells have been found to be salty so alternate water supply has to be looked into. SRSG Ambassador Francis Okelo led a mission to the demobilization camp in Port Loko at the end of the week, including the DFID program manager, political and human rights officers. Ambassador Okelo confirmed significant progress in preparation of the site and commended DFID and ECOMOG for a job well done. He said the demobilization phase of the DDR process should start soon and should ensure the full participation of Chairman Foday Sankoh and Major Johnny Paul Koroma. The new campsite is attracting a lot of commerce in the area and it is expected that up to Le16 million will go into the local economy daily.

During the week, officials from the DDR secretariat, on their visit to Bo, announced that Bo (Gerihun) has been designated as one of the DDR centers in the country. Pre-planning will commence in the near future. It is expected that more than 10,000 CDF personnel in the region will be disarmed and demobilized. Child combatants will form the core of the total number of CDF to be disarmed. Meanwhile, in certain areas in Bo and Pujehun districts, the CDF is expressing their desire to disarm, return to their homes and engage in meaningful projects, which will help rebuild their shattered lives. The DDR site at Kenema is ready and the operation is expected to start by mid October. The programme is also expected to begin in Daru at the same time. RUF Brigadier Mike Lamin has been in the area sensitizing the combatants. A total of 50 ex-combatants are now at the site in Lungi. In Makeni rebels have not allowed the inspection of DDR campsites.

 FIRST PROGRESS REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL ON THE
UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN SIERRA LEONE

I. INTRODUCTION

1. By paragraph 19 of its resolution 1181 (1998) of 13 July 1998, the Security Council requested me to submit an initial report within 30 days of the adoption of the resolution and every 60 days thereafter on the deployment of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone (UNOMSIL) and its progress in carrying out its mandate, and also to inform the Council on plans for the later phases of the deployment of UNOMSIL when security conditions permit these to be implemented. The present report, which is submitted pursuant to that request, describes developments since my fifth report on the situation in Sierra Leone (S/1998/486) dated 9 June 1998.

2. The present report is also submitted in accordance with paragraph 10 of resolution 1162 (1998) of 17 April 1998 and paragraph 8 of resolution 1171 (1998) of 5 June 1998.

II. SITUATION IN SIERRA LEONE

Activities of the Government of Sierra Leone

3. Since my last report, the Government of Sierra Leone has continued to strengthen its authority and improve its organization and functioning, including through the adoption, following a wide-ranging parliamentary debate, of a budget for the remainder of 1998. On 7 August, President Kabbah visited the provincial towns of Bo, Kenema and Makenie. Some 45 of the 52 paramount chiefs have returned to their districts in the south of the country.

4. Significant improvements have occurred in relations between Sierra Leone and Liberia. On 22 and 23 June, a Liberian delegation led by Senator Kekura Kpoto visited Freetown to deliver a special message from President Taylor to President Kabbah concerning ways to promote peace between Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone, the Mano River Union countries. The delegation also denied allegations that the Liberian Government was supporting the remnants of the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC) and the Revolutionary United Front (RUF), and expressed concern that some Liberian dissidents were reported to be planning to use Sierra Leone as a base from which to attack Liberia. At the conclusion of the meeting, President Kabbah issued a statement reaffirming his commitment to subregional peace and security and calling for strict adherence to the existing non-aggression pact and good neighbourliness treaty contained in the Mano River Union Agreement.

5. On 1 July 1998, during my visit to Abuja, together with the President of Nigeria, General Abdulsalam Abubakar, I jointly convened a meeting between President Taylor and President Kabbah, the Heads of State of Liberia and Sierra Leone. The two Heads of State reached agreement at that meeting on a number of confidence-building measures to improve relations between their countries. The Presidents, inter alia, strongly condemned the continued rebel activities in Sierra Leone, as well as the horrendous atrocities committed there, and agreed to exchange official visits. The communiqué issued at the end of the meeting was circulated as document S/1998/629.

6. On 20 July 1998, President Kabbah paid a one-day visit to Monrovia at the written invitation of President Taylor to attend the Liberian National Reconciliation Conference. The meeting of the two Presidents was held in the presence of the Reverend Jesse Jackson, Special Envoy of the President of the United States of America to Africa. In a joint communiqué issued after the meeting, President Taylor and President Kabbah again condemned all atrocities and violations of human rights committed by combatants in Sierra Leone against civilians, as well as the continued rebel activities in that country. They reaffirmed their commitment to non-aggression against the territorial integrity of each other's country and pledged to continue their cooperation towards peace and security in the subregion. Both leaders renewed their call to the United Nations and the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) to deploy observer units on the Liberia/Sierra Leone border and agreed to coordinate border security activities. President Taylor accepted an invitation from President Kabbah to visit Sierra Leone at a date to be announced.

7. In a later development, the Government of Sierra Leone has denied any involvement in an alleged plot to overthrow the Government of Liberia, which has been widely reported in Monrovia.

8. On 25 July 1998, the Nigerian Government released the leader of RUF, Corporal Foday Sankoh, to Sierra Leonean custody in Freetown. The Government of Sierra Leone has now detained Corporal Sankoh and issued a public statement calling on his supporters, who are still fighting, to surrender to ECOMOG, to my Special Representative or to any religious organization by 8 August 1998. The Government statement called for an end to fighting and urged Sierra Leoneans to turn their attention and energies to the elimination of poverty, disease and illiteracy. In a television appearance with the Sierra Leonean Minister of Information, Corporal Sankoh appealed to the remnants of RUF to halt atrocities against the people of Sierra Leone and to surrender to United Nations observers or to the Military Observer Group of ECOWAS (ECOMOG). A subsequent Government statement issued on 3 August reiterated the 8 August deadline for the amnesty. There has been no significant response to the Government's call.

9. Following the visit to Sierra Leone of my Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, Mr. Olara A. Otunnu, in May, the Government has accorded special attention, and has welcomed efforts by United Nations agencies, to promoting the welfare, rights and protection of children and to addressing challenges posed by the "youth crisis" and the high growth rate of the population. In July, Vice-President Albert Joe Demby publicized the 1998 edition of the UNICEF report, The Progress of Nations, while the Minister of Finance, Development and Economic Planning, Mr. James Jonah, delivered a radio address on World Population Day, in which he highlighted the Government's intention to rehabilitate and reconstruct all war-affected areas, increase the rate of economic growth faster than population growth and reduce poverty.

Activities of the Military Observer Group of the Economic Community of West African States and the military and security situation in Sierra Leone

10. Since the end of June, the military and security situation in Sierra Leone has improved somewhat as reports of atrocities committed by elements of the former junta have markedly declined. Despite the onset of the rainy season, ECOMOG, has maintained its pressure on Kailahun district, the remaining stronghold of the former junta in the eastern part of the country. At the same time, ECOMOG positions in Koidu, also in eastern Sierra Leone, have repeatedly come under mortar attack during the last few weeks and the situation in the north-east remains volatile and unpredictable, as was shown by the rebels' capture and brief occupation of Kabala.

11. Security in Freetown has generally been good. However, on 19 July 1998, a gun battle lasting approximately one hour broke out in Freetown between ECOMOG and a band of 15 men described as robbers. The men were all captured the same day without bloodshed.

12. In the countryside, elements of the former junta are concentrated around Kailahun and Koidu in relatively large numbers, while smaller groups have been operating in northern and central Sierra Leone. Sometimes these groups have harassed ECOMOG units and the civilian population, perpetrating atrocities and destroying property, but on a much smaller scale than was the case in June. Attacks by ECOMOG, including air strikes, are thought to have inflicted significant casualties on the rebels and broken them up into smaller groups, curtailing their activities. Reported shortages of food and ammunition among the rebels have increased the risk that they could attack ECOMOG convoys and isolated settlements in order to resupply themselves. The southern part of the country and the area around Freetown in the west have been calm, except for the incident described above.

13. On 27 July 1998, apparently after seizing weapons and ammunition in an attack on ECOMOG units at Bendugu in north-eastern Sierra Leone, junta supporters attacked ECOMOG troops in the town of Kabala. The attack, which was preceded by a feigned offer to surrender, was well-coordinated and launched from three sides. The rebels succeeded in taking the town and temporarily driving out the ECOMOG defenders. At about the same time, the rebels attacked a civilian bus about 10 kilometres south of Kabala, killing seven passengers.

14. By 31 July, ECOMOG troops moved back in force into Kabala as rebel forces withdrew. The rebels caused extensive property damage, including the destruction of some 200 houses, plundered the town and extorted money from the civilian population, whom they threatened to use as human shields in the event of a counter-attack. No mutilations have been reported.

15. During the past few weeks, ECOMOG has inducted fresh troops into the Kenema sector in south-eastern Sierra Leone, with a view to reinforcing its presence near Kailahun. The deployment of an additional brigade, comprising three battalions, has enabled ECOMOG to mount more aggressive patrols, at times in conjunction with the Sierra Leonean Civil Defence Force. ECOMOG has also reinducted former Republic of Sierra Leone Military Forces (RSMLF) personnel, amounting to approximately three battalions, or 2,500 men, alongside its own troops to assist with the protection of supply lines and, in some cases, in combat duties. The provision of logistical assistance to ECOMOG, thanks to the bilateral contribution of the United States of America, has helped to improve operational capacity. ECOMOG has also been withdrawing exhausted troops with a view to rotating them. Nonetheless, ECOMOG, with an estimated 10,000 troops in theatre, is still overstretched and in need of significant additional logistical support, in order to contain the rebels and restore and maintain order in the eastern and northern parts of the country.

16. While the Civil Defence Force is nominally under the command and control of ECOMOG, reports continue to be received of unruly or criminal behaviour on the part of some members of the Force outside their own home districts. Strains that developed between ECOMOG and the Civil Defence Force in some places appear to have been successfully resolved or contained through the intervention of senior commanders. Some members of the Force have also been accused of human rights violations and criminal acts, including looting, confiscation of vehicles and civil disturbances, although allegations of summary killings and the torture of prisoners have dropped sharply since the end of May, apparently as a result of intervention by the Government and ECOMOG. The Civil Defence Force has made a commitment to end its practice of recruiting and initiating child soldiers, who comprise a high proportion of their ranks and who have been sent into combat.

III. ACTIVITIES OF THE UNITED NATIONS

Deployment of UNOMSIL

17. Pursuant to the creation of UNOMSIL by the Security Council by resolution 1181 (1998), I wrote to the President of the Council on 16 July 1998 to inform him of the countries that were contributing observers to the mission (see S/1998/673 and S/1998/674) and of the appointment of Brigadier-General Subhash C. Joshi (India) as Chief Military Observer. In accordance with paragraph 9 of resolution 1181 (1998), I took advantage of the presence of President Kabbah at the special conference on Sierra Leone, held at Headquarters on 30 July 1998, to propose to him the terms of a status of mission agreement. As I informed the President of the Security Council in my letter of 3 August 1998 (S/1998/714), the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Sierra Leone, Mr. Sama Banya, at once replied indicating his Government's acceptance. As I also mentioned in my 3 August letter, on the basis of the Government of Sierra Leone's programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants, issued to participants at the special conference, I have written to the Chairman of ECOWAS proposing arrangements by which ECOMOG would be responsible for the security of United Nations personnel in Sierra Leone.

18. In accordance with resolution 1181 (1998), the eight military liaison personnel already deployed in Sierra Leone since May 1998 pursuant to resolution 1162 (1998) have now been redesignated United Nations military observers. The additional 32 officers who are in the process of being deployed, including those in the first phase, are from China, Egypt, India, Kenya, Kyrgyzstan, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Russian Federation, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Zambia. As of 10 August 1998, a total of 26 officers have been deployed in Sierra Leone, with more to come over the next few days (see annex). The medical unit is expected to arrive in the country by 20 August.

19. As indicated in my report of 9 June and as outlined in the Government plan mentioned in paragraph 17 above, one of the priority tasks of the military observers, in accordance with the mandate set out in resolution 1181 (1998), is to monitor the demobilization of former combatants already disarmed by ECOMOG and concentrated in secure areas of the country, primarily at Lungi. In addition, in order to continue to monitor and report on the military and security situation, two observers are already deployed at Bo and two at Makeni, with the headquarters of ECOMOG brigades based there.

20. The Chief Military Observer and his staff will continue to be based at Freetown and an observer team will cover the area around the capital, including Hastings. The largest deployment outside Freetown will be at Lungi, with smaller teams deployed to the ECOMOG brigade headquarters at Bo, Kenema and Makeni, as the security situation permits and as the Government makes progress in the implementation of its disarmament and demobilization plan. Further deployments are planned in due course to cover locations in the north, south and centre of the country, co-deployed with ECOMOG units, including in Sumbuya, Sulima, Zimmi, Joru and Kabala. Eventually, as order is restored to the parts of the country where fighting has been taking place and subsequent phases of deployment take place, it is envisaged that United Nations observers would also be co-deployed with ECOMOG units at Kailahun and Koidu.

21. As I informed the Council in my report of 9 June (S/1998/486, paras. 78-79), I have pursued with President Taylor the possibility of an eventual co-deployment of United Nations military observers with ECOMOG troops at the border between Liberia and Sierra Leone. This proposal was reiterated in the communiqués following the meetings between President Taylor and President Kabbah at Abuja on 1 July 1998 and at Monrovia on 20 July 1998. My Special Representative will, at the appropriate time, dispatch a small team of observers from Freetown to examine the feasibility of such a deployment and I will revert to the Council accordingly.

22. In accordance with resolution 1162 (1998), a civilian police adviser, Deputy Commissioner Maritz du Toit (Namibia), was deployed in Sierra Leone in July. Following the adoption of resolution 1181 (1998), four more advisers will be deployed as soon as possible. Their role will be to assist in restoring the confidence of the Government and people of Sierra Leone in the police force, which incurred widespread public contempt for its role in supporting the junta, and to advise the Government on training and re-equipment needs. The United Nations civilian police will work closely with a team of police advisers deployed at the request of the Government from Commonwealth countries.

23. Since his arrival, Deputy Commissioner du Toit has established close relations with the Government and with his counterparts and has paid extensive visits to Sierra Leonean police stations within and outside the capital. He has also met with the Commonwealth police advisers to discuss cooperation between the Commonwealth and the United Nations in the conduct of their respective mandates.

Special Conference on Sierra Leone

24. As outlined in my report of 9 June 1998 (S/1998/486, para. 64), on 30 July 1998 I convened a high-level conference at Headquarters to mobilize assistance for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan, for the provision of logistical support to ECOMOG, for immediate humanitarian needs and for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Sierra Leone. The conference was preceded by an organizational meeting on 24 June.

25. President Kabbah, accompanied by the Minister of Finance, Development and Economic Planning, Mr. James Jonah, and the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Sama Banya, made a statement before the Conference, setting forth his plans for national reconciliation and rehabilitation, including improvements in internal security and the Government's plan for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of Sierra Leonean former combatants. Representatives of some 55 countries, including the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the Gambia, Guinea and Liberia, the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs of China, the Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs of Ghana, the Assistant Secretary of State for Africa and the Assistant Secretary for Population, Refugees and Migration of the United States of America attended the Conference. Other participants included the Secretary-General of the Organization of African Unity and the Secretary-General of the Commonwealth, as well as the Executive Secretary of ECOWAS. United Nations specialized agencies and the relevant departments also sent representatives. The ECOMOG Force Commander, General Timothy Shelpidi, addressed the Conference on ECOMOG's needs.

26. Participants agreed on the need to establish an international contact group to mobilize and coordinate further support for Sierra Leone. I am presently reporting in greater detail on the conference, directly to the President of the Security Council, in a letter to be circulated as a document of the Council.

IV. DISARMAMENT AND DEMOBILIZATION

27. In a letter dated 11 August 1998 (S/1998/741), the Government of Sierra Leone conveyed to the President of the Security Council the programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants adopted by the Government of Sierra Leone. The programme describes in detail the institutional structures established by the Government to carry out its provisions, the financial management arrangements, the implementation schedule and the roles of UNOMSIL and ECOMOG in the reinsertion and reintegration of former combatants. The disarmament process will be carried out by ECOMOG, with the monitoring of UNOMSIL, in accordance with its mandate as set out in resolution 1181 (1998).

28. The essentials of the Government's disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan were described in my report of 9 June (S/1998/486, paras. 53-62). The objective of the exercise is to consolidate the security of the State through the disarming, demobilization and reintegration into society of an estimated total of 33,000 former combatants (8,000 RSLMF and RUF and 25,000 CDF) in three phases between July 1998 and June 2001, at an estimated cost of $33.6 million, of which $17.3 million would be required for phase one. It is anticipated that the first phase would comprise the demobilization of the disarmed former RSLMF and RUF personnel now in detention and an estimated 5,000 CDF combatants. Particular emphasis will be devoted to the psychosocial reintegration of former child combatants from all sides.

29. The programme will be implemented under the guidance of the National Committee on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration, under the chairmanship of President Kabbah and comprising representatives of the Government, ECOMOG, donors and my Special Representative on behalf of the United Nations community. The Committee will operate, in collaboration with other Government departments, donors and non-governmental organizations (NGOs), through an Executive secretariat responsible for overall programme planning and implementation, as well as the transparent and accountable administration of the programme and the monitoring and evaluation of its progress.

30. Following the formal adoption by the Government of the programme, the National Committee has commenced work and the members of the Executive secretariat, which will be assisted by a technical adviser, have been nominated. On 16 July 1998, a team representing the Committee, including the Ministers of the Interior and Information, the National Security Adviser and my Special Representative, visited the camp site at Lungi where more than 4,000 disarmed former members of RSLMF are currently detained by ECOMOG, awaiting demobilization and reintegration. The object of the visit was to explain the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process to the disarmed men and to the local community. Similar visits to other locations are planned for the future.

31. RSLMF has effectively been disbanded and is in a state of disgrace as a result of its participation in the illegal military coup of May 1997 and the subsequent junta rule. Though consideration is being given to reconstituting the Sierra Leone armed forces, it is considered unlikely that many of the ex-RSLMF personnel will be accepted for membership in it. The men detained at Lungi appeared to be well-treated, disciplined and receptive to the prospect of demobilization and rehabilitation. They were also aware of the intense hostility felt towards them by the general public and none have attempted to escape. Recently, some of the former RSLMF personnel have been reinducted into the ECOMOG force to assist in military operations.

32. One aspect of the reintegration process that has given cause for concern is the hostile attitude of the general public to former RSLMF personnel.

Resentment at the atrocities inflicted by the junta and its supporters is so widespread as to pose a threat to the physical safety of anyone associated with the junta. As I have reported earlier, a number of revenge killings have been reported throughout the country since the recapture of Freetown in February. My Special Representative will assist the Government in carrying out a vigorous sensitization and education campaign to increase public acceptance of former army personnel undergoing reintegration, an effort that could also be supported by donor contributions.

V. HUMAN RIGHTS

Abuses committed during and since the junta period

33. The human rights adviser working with my Special Representative for Sierra Leone has continued to compile accounts of atrocities committed both during and after the period of junta rule. Though some of these have yet to be rigorously examined, there is strong evidence of the systematic and widespread perpetration of multiple forms of human rights abuse against the civilian population, including rape. In recent weeks, elements of the former junta have continued to shell population centres such as Koidu and Daru and have used civilians as human shields in their military operations. There have been numerous instances of arbitrary execution, including of women and children, followed in some cases by mutilation of the bodies.

34. Though incidents of mutilation appear to have greatly declined since the end of June, it is feared that for each of the 600 or so persons attacked since March 1998 who survived and sought medical attention, at least 4 others are either dead or unaccounted for. The victims of these attacks are still making their way in small numbers to medical centres.

35. A survey of 9 of Sierra Leone's 150 chiefdoms indicates that some 700 civilian war-related deaths have occurred since February, including 200 in one village, Yifin, in late April. About 1,600 people have suffered war-related injuries in these chiefdoms since February, of whom 30 per cent are children. In Koidu, a reliable source has stated that 663 bodies were buried following the fighting in the area in mid-June. A significant percentage of the dead were women and children. At the same time, the killing of some 44 of the 144 paramount chiefs during that period indicates a deliberate attempt to target them.

36. The rebels are estimated to hold several thousand civilian captives, including women and children. They are used as porters, human shields and for forced sexual activity. Abductions continue to be reported in the north. It is believed that many RUF/AFRC fighters were themselves abducted as children and subjected to brutal initiation ceremonies.

37. Rebel forces tend to destroy property and homes in the villages they attack. Though no precise figures are available, there are indications of extensive damage to the housing stock in all areas that they have ravaged. The study of the 9 chiefdoms referred to above found that 1,619 homes had been destroyed. A survey of 3 other chiefdoms identified 600 destroyed houses and, on 12 July alone, in a village near Masingbi, some 40 houses were destroyed. As noted above, the rebels also destroyed property in Kabala at the end of July.

38. The rebel campaign of terror and their military activities have resulted in the displacement of at least 350,000 people since February. Some 250,000 of these are now in Guinea and Liberia and the remainder are internally displaced in Sierra Leone. The persistence of the rebellion not only prevents their return, but also causes grave humanitarian problems for a significant element of the displaced population, as described in more detail below.

Treason trials and the administration of justice

39. The State is prosecuting 58 persons in the regular courts on a range of charges including treason, murder and arson, and two further trials are scheduled to begin soon. All defendants, if found guilty, face the possibility of the death penalty. The trials are proceeding against a background of widespread public anger and a desire for quick justice.

40. The court martial of 38 soldiers has begun before a judicial panel comprising Sierra Leonean army officers and presided over by a Judge Advocate who is an ECOMOG officer. Early concerns regarding procedure were speedily rectified by the Government after they had been raised by UNOMSIL, which continues to monitor both the courts martial and the proceedings in the regular courts. UNOMSIL is also continuing to persuade the Government to establish a channel for judicial appeals from court martial findings.

41. The Government concedes that the judicial system in Sierra Leone is entirely inadequate. Outside Freetown, the courts are not functioning at all and the traditional court system has collapsed. Sustained support will be needed to restore the judicial system in keeping with Sierra Leone's distinguished legal traditions.

42. There are six functioning prisons in Sierra Leone, but prisoners are also held in an unverifiable number of other facilities, including military camps. Most detainees in civilian facilities are being held pursuant to the emergency powers legislation introduced by the Government shortly after its restoration in March 1998. Conditions in many facilities are overcrowded and unsanitary and the food and medical care are inadequate. About 2,000 prisoners are being held in Freetown.

43. Reliable reports are being regularly received of poor discipline within the Civil Defence Force. In various locations throughout the country they have been accused of harassing the local population and engaging in extortion. It has also been reported that the initiation of new members, including children between the ages of 15 and 17, occurred near Magburaka during the third week of July. ECOMOG has established a complaints procedure to investigate any allegations of harassment of the local population by ECOMOG troops.

44. UNOMSIL has commenced a human rights technical cooperation needs assessment and has already identified widespread requirements, many of which should be addressed as a matter of urgency. These include the need for human rights education for government officials, traditional leaders, police officers, teachers of civic education, lawyers, journalists and NGO personnel. It is also necessary to provide technical support to the Government and the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights to facilitate the application of human rights principles to State policy and practice. United Nations military observers will also receive training in aspects of international humanitarian law relevant to their duties.

VI. HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

45. The humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone continues to give cause for concern, especially in the light of the poor response to the Inter-Agency Appeal for Humanitarian Assistance to Sierra Leone. To date, only 5 per cent of the $20.5 million requested has been received. Humanitarian organizations in Sierra Leone continue to face fundamental questions on the modalities for the delivery of relief assistance in an environment characterized by unpredictable hostilities and systematic human rights abuses. The effort to balance the rights of civilians in need of assistance with the requisite level of operational security has required the constant review and modification of the United Nations and NGO codes of conduct and protocols for humanitarian agencies operating in Sierra Leone, in order to reflect the current situation.

46. Despite the ongoing debate, humanitarian assistance continues to have a significant impact on the dire health and nutritional status of hundreds of thousands of war-affected Sierra Leoneans. The most significant humanitarian activities since my last report include efforts to address the serious humanitarian crisis at Masingbi in north central Sierra Leone, the influx of spontaneous returnees from Liberia and the repatriation by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) of Sierra Leonean and Liberian refugees. The United Nations Humanitarian Assistance Coordination Unit in Freetown now estimates that the number of internally displaced persons since the ECOMOG intervention in February 1998 has grown to more than 166,000. The recent clashes between rebel forces and ECOMOG around Kabala have provoked further displacements.

47. A rapid nutritional assessment carried out in Masingbi by the NGO, Action Contre la Faim, for children under the age of five revealed a global malnutrition rate of 39 per cent. Owing to insecurity in the Masingbi area during July, humanitarian organizations were forced to suspend operations and withdraw to Makeni. However, the United States NGO, CARE, succeeded in distributing assistance to more than 16,000 beneficiaries. Internally displaced persons continue to flow into Masingbi at a rate estimated at between 50 and 100 persons a day.

48. In collaboration with the Ministry of Health, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) is supporting the health care delivery system in Masingbi as well as in western Kono district, where they are providing drugs and basic medical equipment. The latest data on morbidity from Masingbi and Kono district have shown that the measles outbreak that was prevalent in the area is now under control as a result of the vaccination campaign carried out by the Ministry of Health and UNICEF.

49. Masingbi remains a critical focus for humanitarian intervention in terms of shelter for the current rainy season and coordination of other sectoral activities. The NGO, Concern Worldwide, has recently agreed to support shelter activities, while UNICEF and Action Contre la Faim will collaborate on water and sanitation matters. Food distributions by CARE and health activities by UNICEF, NGOs and the Government have had a significant impact in contributing to reducing the death rate in Masingbi and its environs from 899 deaths during June to 29 in July.

50. A joint Government, UNHCR and the World Food Programme (WFP) mission to Pujehun district in southern Sierra Leone has confirmed that there has been an influx of returnees from Liberia, who are thought to be crossing the border at the rate of some 90 per day. The most urgent needs of the returnees are food, health and shelter, which are to some extent being met by WFP and by NGOs.

51. UNHCR has continued to repatriate Sierra Leonean refugees to Freetown. A total of some 7,500 Sierra Leoneans, mainly from Guinea and Gambia, have been assisted in returning home. Furthermore, it is planned to bring 3,000 Sierra Leoneans home by air from Guinea during the month of August. UNHCR has also repatriated some 440 Liberian refugees from Sierra Leone.

52. A United Nations Humanitarian Assistance Coordination Unit database has been established to detail the condition of more than 166,000 internally displaced persons, the number of people displaced since the ECOMOG intervention in February 1998. However, this figure represents only a portion of the total number of internally displaced persons in the country. UNHCR estimates that, during the same period, more than 250,000 Sierra Leoneans have sought refuge in neighbouring countries.

53. A mission to Kabala, undertaken only days before the 27 July attack, estimated that some 18,000 civilians were residing in the town, including a large number of internally displaced persons from Kono district. As a result of the hostilities, unconfirmed reports indicate that the majority of the civilians were displaced to villages to the north and north-west of Kabala. It has been reported that large numbers of civilians were abducted from Kabala, as has been the practice of the RUF in the past. Furthermore, all reports indicate that all relief goods, medical supplies and logistics for humanitarian efforts were looted or destroyed during the brief occupation. Now that the situation has calmed, the humanitarian community is assessing the damage and making efforts to meet the needs.

VII. OBSERVATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

54. The decision by the Security Council to create UNOMSIL and to expand its functions has been warmly welcomed by the Government and people of Sierra Leone, and the early signing of the status of mission agreement between the Government and UNOMSIL has also been of great assistance in providing a firm basis for our activities there. The adoption by the Government of Sierra Leone of a comprehensive programme for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants, containing clearly defined roles for ECOMOG and the United Nations, has set the tone for UNOMSIL's future efforts.

55. The deployment of the first phase of UNOMSIL's 70 military observers and their equipment is also well under way. I am grateful to the troop-contributing countries for the dispatch with which they have acted in making these personnel available.

56. In my report of 9 June (para. 69), I identified three criteria which would govern subsequent deployments of military observers: the security situation, the progress of implementation of the Government's disarmament and demobilization plan and the availability of the necessary logistical equipment and resources. As I indicated then, I am keeping all three criteria under very close review and will keep the Council informed of all relevant developments while preparing for the next phase of the deployment. I am heartened by the progress made by ECOMOG in improving the security situation in the countryside, especially in eastern Sierra Leone, and renew my call to donors to contribute to ECOMOG's logistical requirements.

57. In this context, I am gratified by the success of the special conference on Sierra Leone, held at Headquarters on 30 July 1998, and look forward to working closely with the international contact group to be established to coordinate further support for Sierra Leone. In the meantime, I reiterate my call to donors to contribute to the Inter-Agency Appeal for Humanitarian Assistance to Sierra Leone in order to assist Sierra Leoneans in meeting their most basic and urgent needs.

58. The sharp reduction in human rights violations perpetrated by elements of the former junta since the end of June is to be welcomed, but I remain deeply concerned about the plight of innocent civilians in the country, who may still be suffering from the depredations of the rebel forces or at risk from future attacks. In parallel with the efforts being made by ECOMOG to restore law and order throughout the countryside, I continue to believe that every effort should be made to end the threat posed by the rebels.

59. For this reason, I believe that the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan adopted by the Government, and to be implemented with the assistance of ECOMOG and UNOMSIL, represents the best hope in the immediate future for consolidating the stability of the country and bolstering the authority of the Government throughout the territory of Sierra Leone. I therefore reiterate the plea I made on 30 July at the special conference for the donor community to lend every possible assistance to the Government in carrying out its plan. I welcome the commitment of the Government and the Civil Defence Force not to recruit children under the age of 18 as soldiers or to send them into combat, and urge them to implement their undertaking to demobilize any children currently under arms as soon as possible.

60. The development of technical capacity by the Government in the field of human rights deserves support. The results of a technical cooperation needs assessment performed by the office of my Special Representative reveal training needs. I encourage donors to assist the Government in meeting these needs.

61. Pursuant to resolution 1181 (1998), I will continue to keep the situation in Sierra Leone under close review and report to the Council on developments there and on the progress made by UNOMSIL.

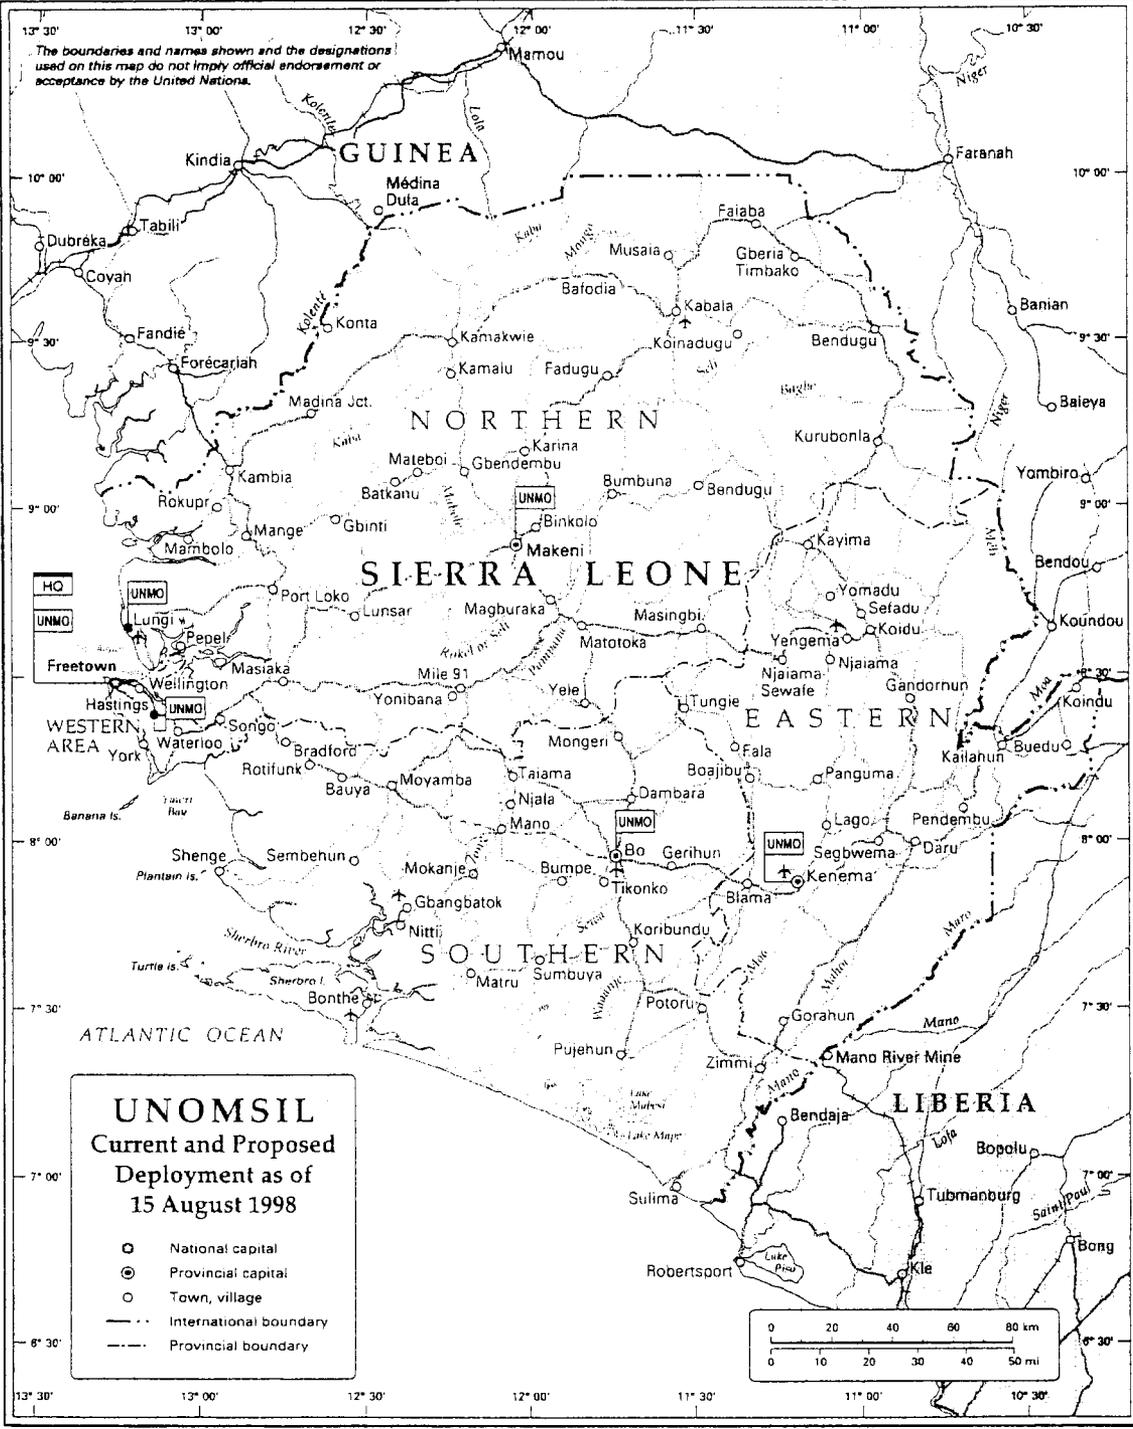

62. I would like to express my appreciation to my Special Representative, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, to the Chief Military Observer, Brigadier Subhash C. Joshi, and to the civilian and military personnel of UNOMSIL for the efforts they are continuing to make to deploy the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone in accordance with the mandate provided by the Security Council.

SECOND PROGRESS REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL ON THE

I. INTRODUCTION

1. By paragraph 19 of its resolution 1181 (1998) of 13 July 1998, the Security Council requested me to submit an initial report within 30 days of the adoption of the resolution and every 60 days thereafter on the deployment of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone (UNOMSIL) and its progress in carrying out its mandate, and also to inform the Council on plans for the later phases of the deployment of UNOMSIL when security conditions permit these to be implemented. The present report is submitted pursuant to that request and describes developments since my first progress report on UNOMSIL (S/1998/750), of 12 August 1998.

II. POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

2. The Government and Parliament of Sierra Leone have continued to take steps to extend their authority and to reform and strengthen national institutions, with a view to increasing efficiency and eliminating corruption and duplication, as well as enhancing security and stability.

3. On 2 September 1998, President Ahmad Tejan Kabbah outlined plans for the creation of a new national security system, based on the reconstitution of national armed forces, the reform of the police force and the integration of the Civil Defence Forces (CDF). Under this policy, the new armed forces would comprise a total of 5,000 troops under effective civilian management and constitutional control.

4. Another prominent issue is the handling of the trial of the leader of the Revolutionary United Front (RUF), Corporal Foday Sankoh. After Corporal Sankoh had been brought back from Nigeria and placed in Government custody, RUF announced on 17 August 1998 a terror campaign against civilians, CDF and the Economic Community of West African States Monitoring Group (ECOMOG) if the Government failed to release Corporal Sankoh within seven days, suggesting that peace negotiations could resume only thereafter. However, the Government has made it clear that Corporal Sankoh will stand trial and that there will be no resumption of negotiations or peace talks in view of the failure of RUF and the junta in the past to comply with the provisions of the Abidjan and Conakry peace agreements.

5. Vice-President Albert Joe Demby and the Deputy Minister for Defence and CDF Coordinator, Chief Hinga Norman, have temporarily relocated their offices to Kenema in the eastern province in order to organize and direct the large-scale mobilization of the Civil Defence Forces for the operations aimed at clearing the remaining rebel-controlled areas. The Vice-President has reaffirmed the Government's determination to pursue the military option against the elements of the former junta. His statement has been reinforced by a call from Chief Norman to all CDF members to report for combat duty.

Relations between Sierra Leone and Liberia

6. In my report of 12 August, I mentioned the improvements that had occurred in the relations between Sierra Leone and Liberia. Since then, relations between the two countries, after a period of improvement following the meeting of President Kabbah and President Taylor in Abuja in July, have recently experienced complications arising in part from the continuing armed conflict in the east of Sierra Leone.

7. On 13 October 1998, President Kabbah informed me of alleged preparations by Liberia for the dispatch of fighters for an incursion into Sierra Leone. The allegations were vigorously denied by President Taylor. United Nations military observers also detected no evidence of an armed incursion from Liberia. On 16 October the two Presidents were reported to have spoken by telephone, and to have described the matter as "a misunderstanding that has been clarified". The two leaders were reported to have agreed to be in regular telephone contact in order to work towards strengthening relations. I welcome this constructive approach.

Follow-up to the Special Conference on Sierra Leone

8. Following the Special Conference on Sierra Leone held at United Nations Headquarters on 30 July 1998, the Government of Sierra Leone has established a 10-member working group charged with following up on the commitments and pledges made at the Special Conference. The Working Group met for the first time on 28 August 1998 and discussed possible steps for approaching donor countries and funding agencies that had agreed to support the reconstruction of Sierra Leone. As called for by the Special Conference, the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland has taken the initiative of convening an international contact group on Sierra Leone in London early in November. The Working Group will meet again beforehand, probably in late October, to assess the progress made.

III. MILITARY AND SECURITY SITUATION

Rebel activities

9. Since my last report, the security situation in Sierra Leone has experienced considerable fluctuations. A relatively quiet phase in July was followed by some volatility in late August and September, marked by a considerable increase in rebel attacks. These were accompanied by a resurgence of atrocities of the nature and scale last observed during the period from April to June, including the complete destruction of villages, and the torture, mutilation and execution of large numbers of civilians. These disturbing developments are reflected in more detail below.

10. The rebel build-up has been most significant in the north and brought the area of rebel activity closer to the centre of the country. Activity around the Koinadugu area has also intensified, as well as around Kambia and Kabala. The current concentration of rebels in the north-west indicates that they may be preparing for a major strike against Makeni or Port Loko. Such operations would sever ECOMOG's main supply route between Guinea, Freetown and Makeni and provide the rebels with a foothold close to the capital city. On 8 October, the rebels attacked Mange, between Port Loko and Kambia on the road between Lungi and the Guinean border, but were driven off. The situation in Freetown itself has remained safe and stable, and the whole of the southern province has remained free of rebel activity.

Civil Defence Forces/ECOMOG offensive into Kailahun district

11. On 1 October 1998 the Civil Defence Forces, with strong ECOMOG support, launched an offensive to capture one of the rebels' main strongholds in Kailahun district and thus disrupt their operations elsewhere in the country. The effects of the offensive are starting to be reflected in a reduction of the intensity of rebel activities in the north. Reports of the dispersal of the rebel stronghold at Koinadugu have also been received. Continued logistics support to ECOMOG is needed from the international community in order to ensure the effectiveness of those operations.

12. Several countries in the region have already pledged to contribute some of the additional 6,000 ECOMOG troops required to assist ECOMOG troops already in the country, whose number has been estimated at 10,000 to 12,000. The Governments of Côte d'Ivoire, the Gambia, Guinea, Mali and the Niger have indicated their readiness to provide contingents, stating that they could be deployed if the international community is prepared to bear the costs of transporting them to Sierra Leone. My Special Representative, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, has initiated discussions on this matter, and the Chief Military Observer of UNOMSIL has been meeting with contingent commanders from the countries involved concerning their deployment and related expenses for in-country maintenance and other needs.

Deployment of the Mission

13. At the end of August 1998, UNOMSIL completed the first phase of the deployment of its military component, consisting of 40 military observers, the Chief Military Observer and a medical team of 15 personnel. In addition to mission headquarters in Freetown, UNOMSIL has deployed military observers to five team sites, namely, the three provincial capitals Bo, Kenema and Makeni, the main demobilization site at Lungi, and Hastings airport (see map). The observers have been well received by the communities and have established good relations with the local authorities as well as with ECOMOG and CDF personnel.

Though there have been occasional restrictions on their movement for security reasons, the observers have not so far experienced any disruption in their operations or threats to their personal safety.

14. Over and above their tasks of closely monitoring developments in the military situation, the military observers play an important role in the monitoring of international humanitarian law and promote humanitarian assistance through the investigation of incidents. They also provide security advice to humanitarian personnel and liaise between them and ECOMOG, CDF and the local authorities. They have been frequently called upon to intervene with ECOMOG and CDF on behalf of other United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations.

15. Pursuant to paragraph 9 of resolution 1181 (1998), I wrote on 3 August 1998 to General Abdulsalami A. Abubakar, Head of State of Nigeria, to propose that, in conformity with the disarmament and demobilization programme adopted by the Government of Sierra Leone, ECOMOG forces assume responsibility for the security of United Nations personnel in Sierra Leone. On 28 September 1998 General Abubakar replied, stating that ECOWAS was perfectly amenable to the proposals set out in my letter, which therefore constituted the terms of an agreement between our two organizations. General Abubakar confirmed in his letter that the ECOMOG mandate in Sierra Leone included the protection of all United Nations personnel and all staff of humanitarian and aid agencies.

IV. DISARMAMENT, DEMOBILIZATION AND REINTEGRATION

16. As described in my report of 12 August, the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme targets an estimated total of 33,000 ex-combatants, most of whom are members of the Civil Defence Forces, and is scheduled to be completed in three phases by June 2001. The first phase covers the demobilization of former Republic of Sierra Leone Military Forces (RSLMF) and RUF personnel who were captured and disarmed by ECOMOG and later encamped at Lungi. Their screening and registration commenced on 2 September. UNOMSIL deployed additional military observers to the Lungi team site to assist in several aspects of the registration, including the initial assessment of the candidates. While these activities go beyond the monitoring role of UNOMSIL, the additional effort was required to ascertain the identity and eligibility of the ex-combatants since UNOMSIL was not present during the initial disarmament by ECOMOG. The exercise was completed on 25 September with a total of 2,145 persons screened and registered. The full demobilization of those ex-combatants is scheduled to be completed in December 1998.

17. While the registration and screening process was implemented fairly smoothly, the pace of the programme lags behind the original goals since it is now being implemented against the background of a continued war effort. Since most of the ex-RSLMF soldiers, amounting to four battalions, who had been encamped at Lungi have been reinducted by ECOMOG, the number of individuals to be demobilized during the first phase of the programme has been considerably reduced. It is expected, however, that these soldiers, who are currently fighting alongside ECOMOG, will eventually undergo the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process. In addition, though 5,000 members of the Civil Defence Forces were expected to be demobilized during the first phase, there is no indication to date that any CDF units have started the process, although in some areas registration exercises have been initiated.

18. As I mentioned in my last report, there is still concern about the hostile attitude of the general public towards former RSLMF personnel, which could potentially derail the reintegration process. Given the continued volatility of the overall security situation, it is important to ensure that former soldiers are not cast out of society because they may, as a group, turn into a destabilizing factor in the long run. A sensitization campaign under the auspices of the Ministry of Information, Communications, Tourism and Culture is now under way to increase public acceptance of ex-combatants. Successful reintegration will also depend on the benefits extended to those communities to which ex-combatants return in order to avoid the perception of a preferential treatment for the former soldiers.

19. A major challenge also remains concerning the start of the pre-discharge orientation programme which is to follow the screening and registration process. An initial programme of pre-discharge activities will be established at Lungi by the Executive Secretariat of the National Committee on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration. These will include workshops for community sensitization, attitudinal education for ex-combatants, and general information on reinsertion and reintegration.

20. Regarding the future of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, the Executive Secretariat of the National Committee has already indicated its intention to open a disarmament and demobilization centre in the interior in preparation for the next phase of the programme. A team composed of National Committee staff, UNOMSIL and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), in collaboration with ECOMOG, is currently undertaking reconnaissance visits to identify suitable sites for the exercise.

V. HUMAN RIGHTS

Human rights abuses

21. Since my last report there has been a resurgence of human rights abuses committed by the rebel forces. During the month of September, UNOMSIL received an escalating number of reports of mutilations, amputations, summary executions, abductions and house burnings. For instance, in just a single week, 20 villages were attacked and destroyed in four small chiefdoms in the north-west of the country. The attacks were preceded by the destruction of the principal local population centre, Kamalu, on 6 September. Forty people, including children, died in that attack. Photographic evidence suggests that a number of the dead had first been subjected to forms of extreme torture and sexual abuse; others appear to have been burned alive. It is reported that no less than 50 people were abducted. The rising incidence of mutilations and amputations is also illustrated by the admission to hospital of 14 amputees following just one attack on Kokuna on 27 September. From a number of locations UNOMSIL has received reliable reports of other forms of atrocities, including the detention of elderly or incapacitated men in huts which were then set on fire and the carving of slogans, such as 'AFRC', into the flesh of victims.

22. It remains difficult to estimate the exact number of rebel attacks and the casualties inflicted, not least because of the inaccessibility of many of the targeted locations and the high number of victims who never reach medical assistance. There is also very little reliable information regarding the plight of the captives of the rebels and of villagers living in areas under their control. However, interviews with former captives and escapees from those regions report such abuses as multiple rape of women, summary executions and slave labour. In the coming months, the four members of the UNOMSIL human rights unit, in cooperation with the military observers deployed in the provinces, will try in a systematic manner to compile and assess information regarding the human rights situation within the areas under rebel control.

23. There is also continued concern about the ongoing armed deployment of under-age boys and, in some locations, their continued initiation into the Civil Defence Forces. The renewed attention drawn to these matters by the Executive Director of UNICEF, Ms. Carol Bellamy, during a visit to Sierra Leone on 1 and 2 October, has greatly assisted efforts to end the recruitment and deployment of child soldiers by CDF units.

24. The discipline of many CDF units has improved significantly. Nevertheless, there are reports of interference by some CDF elements with the delivery of humanitarian supplies and acts of harassment against the civilian population. Reports of the prevalence of child prostitution in some heavily militarized areas of the countryside have, moreover, been substantiated. Together with UNICEF, the UNOMSIL human rights unit is seeking to assist the Government and ECOMOG in addressing this problem. Some reports have also suggested that certain ECOMOG personnel do not consistently ensure full respect for provisions of international humanitarian law, such as those regarding the protection of non-combatants in combat situations and the proper treatment of combatants during surrender or capture. UNOMSIL is encouraging the ECOMOG leadership to raise awareness among all troops to ensure full respect for all relevant aspects of international humanitarian law. The mission's human rights unit stands ready to assist ECOMOG with technical advice if needed.

Treason trials

25. The State is currently prosecuting, for treason and related charges, some 40 people in two civilian trials. A court martial was concluded on 12 October, and further trials are scheduled to commence in the coming weeks. A separate civilian trial of RUF leader Foday Sankoh commenced on 24 September 1998. Given the highly-charged atmosphere surrounding the trial, the Attorney-General has requested the assistance of the UNOMSIL human rights adviser on several occasions to ensure that Corporal Sankoh's rights are respected. However, the Government's failure so far to persuade a Sierra Leonean lawyer to represent Corporal Sankoh is a cause for concern. All the accused face the possible imposition of the death penalty. Already, 16 civilians and 34 of the defendants in the court martial have been sentenced to death. Under Sierra Leonean law, only the civilians have the right to appeal their sentences to the Sierra Leone Court of Appeal and, ultimately, to the Supreme Court. If the sentences are upheld throughout the appeals process, there is still the possibility of a pardon should the Head of State decide to exercise the prerogative of mercy under national law. A further avenue of consideration of the sentences is available by virtue of Sierra Leone's ratification of the First Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, whereby individuals may petition the United Nations Human Rights Committee.

26. So far, UNOMSIL and observers from the International Bar Association have found that the civilian group trials are being conducted in a manner which appears to comply with international procedural standards. It is also apparent that the Government is largely committed to conducting transparent and fair trials. It remains a matter of concern that those tried by court martial are deprived of their right to judicial review of the judgements and sentences. UNOMSIL is also concerned as to whether the manner in which a number of defendants were repatriated to Sierra Leone from neighbouring countries was in accordance with applicable international standards. The concerns of UNOMSIL continue to be conveyed to the Government in a timely and forthright manner. On 15 October 1998 the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights wrote to President Kabbah, asking him to intervene in the process to show mercy.

Training initiatives

27. The UNOMSIL human rights unit also plays an important role in improving coordination and exchange among the different public and private institutions involved in human rights work in Sierra Leone. Moreover, special attention is given to the provision of technical assistance to help the Government meet its reporting obligations under the international human rights treaties, commencing with those arising under the Convention on the Rights of the Child. UNOMSIL also seeks to facilitate national efforts to re-establish a functioning judicial system in provincial areas.

28. In line with the institution-building aspects of the UNOMSIL human rights mandate, the Mission has started several training initiatives in close collaboration with the Government and with national and international human rights non-governmental organizations and the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights. In September, UNOMSIL has successfully undertaken the training of the National Commission's human rights monitoring committees, and it has facilitated the first inter-non-governmental organization human rights training workshop. The Mission's human rights unit is also facilitating preparations for a major human rights monitoring and training programme to be implemented in November and provides a human rights module as part of the ongoing programme of retraining the police force.

29. These activities aim to strengthen local capacity to monitor, report on and promote human rights in the country, by both Government representatives and members of civil society. It is particularly important that training initiatives should be continued and consolidated.

VI. CIVILIAN POLICE

30. In accordance with resolution 1181 (1998), UNOMSIL has to date deployed a total of three civilian police advisers, and two additional officers are under recruitment. In carrying out their mandate, the civilian police advisers work closely with the UNOMSIL human rights unit and the Commonwealth Police Development Task Force for Sierra Leone, which is advising and assisting the Government in police training.

31. In order to assess the current situation, the UNOMSIL advisers have undertaken visits to different police regional headquarters, divisional headquarters, departments, courts, police stations and posts, assisted in determining work methods, logistical and training needs, and identified a number of problem areas. In addition, they met with President Kabbah, the Chief Justice, various Members of Parliament, ambassadors, the commanders of ECOMOG and the Civil Defence Forces and various non-governmental organizations to discuss their activities in assisting the Sierra Leone police force. UNOMSIL has distributed to all concerned a report containing preliminary findings and recommendations.

32. The reform of the police force in Sierra Leone poses great challenges. As a result of the wanton destruction caused by the rebel war, many police stations in the country have been severely damaged or destroyed, and equipment vandalized. Parts of the country are without police presence, since many officers were killed or abandoned their posts during and after the conflict. Moreover, little or no training has been available for years, which has affected not only the skill level and capacity for policing but also the quality of leadership and strategic planning. Notwithstanding the rapid expansion of the force over the last few years, the police suffer from inadequate logistical support, lack of equipment, unattractive salaries and poor conditions of service. No vehicles or other means of transport are available to ensure the effective mobilization of officers to prevent and investigate crimes. This situation is exacerbated by the breakdown of the general law enforcement system. Outside Freetown, the courts are hardly operational except for the magistrates courts in Bo, Kenema and Makeni, and detention facilities are in poor condition.

33. The Government has outlined the principles and priorities which will guide the reform process, including specific steps based on the recommendations made by the UNOMSIL civilian police advisers and the Commonwealth Task Force. Moreover, a police mission statement has been announced, emphasizing the need to balance respect for human rights with law enforcement and to take account of local concerns through community consultation by the police force. Implementation of the reform process began in August, and a three-year draft plan, for the period 1999-2001, is currently under discussion. Strong emphasis is being placed on the development of police training initiatives, some of which are already being implemented.

34. While the progress made to date is impressive, resource constraints present serious obstacles to the effective and fast implementation of the reform. The Governments of Germany and the United Kingdom have already provided funds and equipment in support of these efforts, but further donor assistance will be required.

VII. HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

Humanitarian crisis

35. A humanitarian crisis of serious proportions is developing in isolated areas of Sierra Leone, particularly the north-east. Since the incursion of former junta elements into Kabala at the end of July 1998, humanitarian agencies have been unable to assess needs there because of unpredictable security. The countryside between Kabala and Koidu, up to the border with Guinea, is also out of reach owing to insecurity and inadequate roads and airstrips. Similar conditions apply, inter alia, to the area east of Kambia in the north-west and in the Kailahun district.

36. Continuing insecurity has resulted in increased displacement of populations. During the reporting period, some 14,000 Sierra Leoneans were displaced from south Kenema district into Kenema Town. At the same time, the number of needy beneficiaries in Masingbi has swollen from 16,000 to more than 35,000. The United Nations Humanitarian Coordination Unit/Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs estimates that up to 250,000 persons have been displaced in the fighting that followed the ECOMOG intervention in February 1998, an increase of about 70,000 persons since my last report. It is feared that a considerable number of internally displaced persons remain unrecorded.

37. The number of Sierra Leonean refugees in Guinea is now 357,000, of which an estimated 217,700 have arrived since February 1998. Most of these fled to the Guéckédou area, but some 7,700 have recently arrived in Forécariah following a rebel attack on 28 September at Kukuna near the border with Guinea. There are also 90,000 Sierra Leonean refugees in Liberia, including 40,000 new arrivals. Another 10,000 Sierra Leoneans have taken refuge in other countries in the region, mainly in Côte d'Ivoire, the Gambia and Senegal, for a total of 457,000 Sierra Leonean refugees in the subregion. So as to determine more accurately the number of refugees in Liberia, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) will carry out a registration exercise in November 1998.

38. In response to the newly emerging internally displaced person situation in both the eastern and northern parts of the country, UNICEF, in collaboration with non-governmental organizations, is providing high-energy biscuits to counter malnutrition and providing support to malnourished children referred to therapeutic feeding centres and supplementary feeding programmes.

Activities of United Nations organizations and non-governmental organizations

39. The World Food Programme (WFP) continues to provide humanitarian food assistance to vulnerable groups, farmers and institutions in accessible areas of the country. During August and September, WFP distributed over 4,641 tons of assorted food commodities, of which over 76 per cent benefited community farmers in their efforts to grow more food and become self-sufficient. Over 22 per cent of the quantity distributed during the reporting period went to support vulnerable groups escaping from the war as well as therapeutic and supplementary feeding programmes. WFP targeted an estimated 62,000 vulnerable persons, over 70,000 farmers, 12,600 nutritionally vulnerable persons and 6,823 refugees in food-for-work and training programmes in August and September 1998.

40. However, food assistance has encountered some constraints in supplies because of unacceptably high levels of losses from recent shipments, practically all in the port area. A meeting with the port authorities and security officers has led to proposals for improvements, and the situation is being monitored closely.

41. The intervention of the World Health Organization (WHO) proved crucial in the confirmation of vibrio cholera 0.1 as the causative agent responsible for the unusual increase in incidences of acute watery diarrhoea syndrome, which has caused a number of deaths. A total of 1,170 cases and 55 deaths were recorded from 19 July to 20 September 1998. The epidemic now appears to be on the decline, with the support of UNICEF and WHO, which have provided medical supplies to combat the outbreak. UNICEF is also coordinating cholera prevention through regular chlorination of wells and protection of water sources.

42. The maternal mortality rate is at a world record high of 1,800 per 100,000 live births and remains a primary concern. UNICEF is targeting 1.5 million children and women by revitalizing more peripheral health units to respond to the increasing demand for services.

43. Following an appeal by the Government of Sierra Leone for UNHCR to assist in the repatriation of refugees from neighbouring countries, a UNHCR delegation visited Sierra Leone from 25 to 27 September. As a result, UNHCR is in the process of opening a new office in Kenema. Additional offices will be reopened in Bo, Segbwema and Zimmi once security permits. Moreover, UNHCR has started to facilitate the return of Sierra Leonean refugees. So far, a total of 11,000 refugees have been repatriated to Freetown where, at the request of the Government, priority has been given to the return of skilled professionals, civil servants and students, who could contribute to the ongoing reconstruction efforts. Finally, it should be noted that in August 10,000 refugees returned spontaneously from Liberia to Zimmi and Kenema and, in late September, according to reports yet to be confirmed, some 20,000 refugees returned from Liberia to Zimmi.

44. The World Health Organization commissioned a consultant in August to assess the magnitude of the problem of increased numbers of victims of amputation and has proposed rehabilitative measures to the Government.

45. To help better plan for relief and longer-term development intervention, the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) has begun discussions with the objective of helping the Government to undertake a national demographic and health survey.

VIII. SOCIO-ECONOMIC ASPECTS

46. While a humanitarian emergency still prevails in the north and east of Sierra Leone, the southern and western parts have experienced a certain amount of stability and security. However, they must cope with the continuing influx of displaced populations and the challenges of reconstruction after the trauma and devastation brought on by the junta. The United Nations development system, under the leadership of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), is therefore supporting peace-building efforts within the context of preventive development.

47. To this end, UNDP funds three large-scale programmes, including a programme for support to resettlement, reconstruction and rehabilitation through a preventive development approach. This $4 million programme links emergency humanitarian assistance with the resumption of productive activities for longer-term development. Beneficiaries of the programme include internally displaced persons, returnee refugees, ex-combatants and host communities. UNDP is also funding a $2.5 million programme aimed at raising public awareness of issues of national reconciliation and peaceful coexistence.

IX. FURTHER ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY THE UNITED NATIONS

48. In my fifth report on the situation in Sierra Leone, of 9 June 1998 (S/1998/486, para. 69), I stated that additional deployments of United Nations military observers beyond the first phase would depend on the security situation within the country and the progress made by the Government in carrying out its disarmament and demobilization plan.

49. The security situation in Sierra Leone has not improved significantly since my last report and, in some parts of the country, may have deteriorated. In the last two months the northern province has seen a resurgence of rebel activity, including atrocities, with no sign of weakening in rebel resolve, numbers or organization.

50. Largely for this reason, the progress made by the Government in carrying out its disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme has been less than was hoped for. The intensification of fighting caused by the launching of the CDF/ECOMOG offensive and the consequent large-scale mobilization of both CDF and re-inducted RSLMF personnel do not at present provide the best conditions for the rapid progress of disarmament and demobilization.

51. On the other hand, should the CDF/ECOMOG offensive lead to large-scale surrenders among the former junta elements and their participation in the disarmament and demobilization programme, it may be necessary to deploy United Nations observers very rapidly.

52. I am therefore keeping the situation under careful review, and intend to deploy additional observers only after taking full account of the security situation. I am, however, prepared to deploy observers rapidly if the situation so permits.

53. Against the background of the continuing military conflict and its effects on security, the need for the Government to improve the functioning of the Sierra Leonean police force has become all the more acute. In view of the success already achieved in implementing its current mandate, I recommend that my Special Representative, assisted by the Mission's civilian police component, now proceed to seek donor funding for the reform and restructuring of the Sierra Leonean police force, while continuing to work closely with the Government in carrying out the three-year strategic plan referred to in paragraph 33 above.

X. OBSERVATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

54. The continuing conflict in Sierra Leone imposes immense suffering on the people of that country. I strongly condemn the summary executions, torture, mutilations, rapes, looting and other acts of barbarism carried out by former junta elements and call on them to lay down their arms and surrender. I am particularly outraged by the senseless acts of terror perpetrated against children, such as the amputation of limbs of boys and girls as young as six years of age, and support the efforts to bring to justice the authors of these especially abhorrent crimes.

55. The human rights abuses committed by the rebels also give rise to the humanitarian emergency in Sierra Leone, as they continue to cause the widespread dislocation of local populations. Though United Nations humanitarian personnel and non-governmental organizations have done much to aid the victims of attacks and displacement, more needs to be done as a matter of urgency, especially in regard to the provision of medical and surgical capacity, specific services for amputees and psychosocial treatment for the trauma suffered by the victims and their families. To this end, I reiterate my call to donors to contribute to the Inter-Agency Consolidated Appeal for Humanitarian Assistance to Sierra Leone in order to meet the basic needs of the people.

56. The continuing commitment of ECOMOG has been essential in assisting the Government of Sierra Leone to restore peace and security throughout the country, and the efforts being made to deploy additional troops from ECOWAS countries are welcome. In view of the importance of the present offensive into the east and the wresting of the initiative from the rebels, I appeal to the members of the Security Council and the international community to extend all possible technical and logistical support to achieving the successful conclusion of the conflict in Sierra Leone.

57. At the same time, I am encouraged by the focus of the Government on strengthening democratic control over the reconstituted armed forces. Equally commendable is the thoroughness applied to the restructuring of the police force and its reform in line with the standards of democratic societies. In this context, I should like to express my appreciation to the Governments of Germany and the United Kingdom for the support they have lent to the Government's efforts.

58. The long-term stability of the country will also depend vitally on the successful implementation of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme adopted by the Government. I therefore reiterate the plea I made on 30 July at the Special Conference on Sierra Leone for the donor community to lend every possible assistance to the Government in carrying out its plan. I look forward to working closely with donors to ensure that the commitments made in this and other respects at the Special Conference will be honoured. I wish to commend the United Kingdom for the important role it has played by providing equipment and logistical support for the screening and registration exercise, and by continuing to provide food and emergency medical assistance to the ex-combatants as well as water to the larger community at Lungi.

59. The Government of Sierra Leone has made commendable efforts to ensure that the procedural aspects of the civilian group trials are in conformity with international human rights standards. However, I must express my concern that those sentenced to death in the recently concluded court martial have no right of legal appeal under Sierra Leonean law. Accordingly, in the light of the human rights issues which arise, I urge the Government, at a minimum, to consider a stay of execution of sentences pending review of the proceedings before relevant international monitoring bodies. I also encourage the Government to continue to take all reasonable steps to ensure that persons facing serious criminal charges are legally represented.

60. I should like to express my appreciation for the generous manner in which the International Bar Association has provided expert trial observers who have worked closely with UNOMSIL. I also encourage the international community to support human rights training programmes, to be carried out in close consultation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, for the benefit of those involved in law enforcement, as well as members of the legal profession and the judiciary.

61. The latest developments in the situation between Sierra Leone and Liberia are a cause for deep concern. I urge the Governments of Sierra Leone and Liberia to continue to exercise maximum restraint, pursue dialogue and implement the confidence-building measures aimed at improving relations between the two countries which they agreed upon in July 1998. In doing so, the two Governments would continue to show their commitment to subregional peace and security and their adherence to the Non-aggression Pact and Good Neighbourliness Treaty contained in the Mano River Union Declaration of 1973. In this context, should both parties agree, the deployment of ECOMOG troops at the border, subsequently accompanied by United Nations military observers, could help to stabilize the situation and restore mutual confidence.

62. Finally, I wish to thank all Member States which have contributed military observers for deployment with UNOMSIL for the speed with which the officers were dispatched. I hope that, under the right conditions and the necessary improvements in security, the second phase of deployment can be implemented with equal success.

63. Pursuant to resolution 1181 (1998), I will continue to keep the situation in Sierra Leone under close review and report to the Council on developments on the ground as well as the continued work of UNOMSIL. In particular, I will examine with great care any realistic proposal to end the armed conflict with minimal further loss of life to combatants and to innocent civilians, and to promote lasting peace and national reconciliation in Sierra Leone.

64. I would like to express my appreciation to my Special Representative, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, to the Chief Military Observer, Brigadier Subhash C. Joshi, and to the military and civilian personnel of UNOMSIL for their work in accordance with the mandate provided by the Security Council.

THIRD PROGRESS REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL ON THE UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN SIERRA LEONE

I. INTRODUCTION

1. By paragraph 19 of resolution 1181 (1998) of 13 July 1998, the Security Council requested me to submit an initial report within 30 days of the adoption of the resolution and every 60 days thereafter on the deployment of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone (UNOMSIL) and its progress in carrying out its mandate, and also to inform the Council on plans for the later phases of the deployment of UNOMSIL when security conditions permit these to be implemented. The present report is submitted pursuant to that request and describes developments since my second progress report on UNOMSIL (S/1998/960) of 16 October 1998. The present report is also submitted pursuant to paragraph 8 of resolution 1171 (1998) of 5 June 1998.

II. POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

2. Since my second progress report, the Government of Sierra Leone has continued its efforts to consolidate its position, to restore the stability of the country and to improve relations with its neighbours. The Government has launched initiatives to strengthen the civil service and to fight corruption. Sierra Leone is also increasingly active in the regional and international arena.

3. On 30 October 1998, the Government launched a nationwide consultative exercise, organized with the support of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), aimed at enhancing the capacity of Government ministries, other national institutions and civil society to take charge of the development process. The consultations exercise is expected to conclude on 14 December with the adoption of a national consensus on major policy issues, including national reconciliation.

4. The Government has also pursued legal proceedings against both military and civilian supporters of the illegal coup of May 1997 by the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC). On 19 October 1998, after a court martial had sentenced 34 officers found guilty of treason to death, 24 of them were executed by firing squad. The executions took place despite appeals from the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and others, including myself, for a stay of execution and the grant of the right of appeal. On 23 October 1998, a jury at the High Court in Freetown found Corporal Foday Sankoh, the leader of the Revolutionary United Front (RUF), guilty of treason and related offences and sentenced him to death by hanging. Corporal Sankoh, who had not been legally represented during his trial, has now selected legal advisers to undertake his appeal following efforts by the Government, with UNOMSIL assistance, to secure legal representation for him.

5. At their summit meeting in Abuja on 30 and 31 October 1998, the Heads of State and Government of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) agreed to combine the strengthening of its Monitoring Group (ECOMOG) with efforts at dialogue to achieve lasting peace and national reconciliation in Sierra Leone. The Heads of State and Government also expressed gratitude to Ghana, Guinea and Nigeria for contributing troops to ECOMOG in Sierra Leone, encouraged Benin, Côte d'Ivoire, the Gambia, Mali and Niger to deploy the troops they had promised to contribute as soon as possible and appealed to the international community to provide the necessary logistical support. The arrival of these additional troops is still being awaited.

6. On 7 December 1998, the Chairman of the Security Council Sanctions Committee and Permanent Representative of Sweden, Ambassador Hans Dahlgren, arrived in Freetown for a four-day assessment mission. Ambassador Dahlgren met with President Kabbah; the ECOMOG Force Commander, Major-General Timothy Shelpidi; the ECOMOG Task Force Commander, Brigadier-General Abu Ahmadu and others from the United Nations and the international community. During his visit to the front-line areas, the local authorities conveyed to Ambassador Dahlgren their requests for United Nations assistance in controlling the border with Liberia through the establishment of a buffer zone, the deployment of United Nations military observers and assistance to ECOMOG in patrolling the frontier. Ambassador Dahlgren also visited Monrovia.

7. Following his visit to the Gambia on 9 December, President Kabbah reportedly accepted an offer from the President of the Gambia to mediate a peace agreement with the rebels.

Follow-up to the Special Conference on Sierra Leone

8. As called for by the Special Conference on Sierra Leone held at United Nations Headquarters on 30 July 1998, the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland convened a meeting of the International Contact Group of donors to Sierra Leone in London on 5 November. The objectives of the meeting were to build up international support for Sierra Leone's efforts to restore peace, democracy and human rights; to encourage further assistance to ECOMOG and contributions to the United Nations Trust Fund for Sierra Leone; to try to match specific ECOMOG requirements to donor offers; and to encourage the Government of Sierra Leone to develop political dialogue and national reconciliation beyond the programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants and to encourage participation in it.

9. The London meeting, which was opened by Mr. Tony Lloyd, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, was attended on behalf of the Government of Sierra Leone by Mr. James Jonah, the Minister of Finance, Development and Economic Planning, the ECOWAS Executive Secretary, Mr. Lansana Kouyate, and my Special Representative for Sierra Leone, Mr. Francis G. Okelo. The meeting expressed strong support for the dual-track approach (military and diplomatic) agreed upon at the ECOWAS summit on 31 October, by which efforts to strengthen ECOMOG would be accompanied by the opening of dialogue to achieve lasting peace and national reconciliation.

10. The meeting agreed on a series of next steps to be taken by the Government of Sierra Leone, ECOWAS and ECOMOG and the international community. In particular, the Government would pursue the above-mentioned dual track approach for restoring peace and stability in Sierra Leone. Troop contributors would continue their efforts to augment ECOMOG, with the aim of completing the additional deployments by the end of 1998. For its part, the international community would press on with financing and other support to help ECOMOG remain in Sierra Leone and expand its operations, including through contributions to the Trust Fund to Support United Nations Peacekeeping-related Efforts in Sierra Leone, as well as bilateral contributions.

11. It has provisionally been decided that the next meeting of the International Contact Group will be held in New York in January 1999. In Sierra Leone, a Government working group chaired by the Minister of Finance is continuing to follow up on the commitments and pledges made by donors. The membership of the working group also includes UNOMSIL and donor representatives.

Relations between Sierra Leone and its neighbours

12. On 12 November 1998, at the invitation of President Lansana Conte of Guinea, President Ahmad Tejan Kabbah of Sierra Leone and President Charles Taylor of Liberia participated in an extraordinary summit meeting of the Mano River Union in Conakry. The summit was also attended by the Reverend Jesse Jackson, the Presidential Special Envoy for the Promotion of Democracy and Human Rights in Africa, as well as my Special Representative for Sierra Leone and my Representative for Liberia, Mr. Felix Downes-Thomas.

13. In a communiqué issued after the meeting, the three Heads of State announced their decision to rejuvenate the Mano River Union. They further pledged to ensure the strict observance of the 1986 Non-Aggression and Security Cooperation Agreement between Liberia, Sierra Leone and Guinea that had been signed and ratified by the three member States. The three Heads of State agreed to work collectively to restore peace in Sierra Leone and maintain stability in the subregion.

14. After the summit, in a meeting with President Kabbah in Freetown, Reverend Jackson stressed the advantage of negotiations over confrontation and called for a negotiated settlement to the conflict in Sierra Leone. A Liberian delegation, led by the Minister of National Security, concluded a two-day visit to Sierra Leone on 9 December. The Liberian Government subsequently announced that President Kabbah had agreed with President Taylor's request for cooperation on joint border patrols.

Activities of the Mission relating to the security situation

15. While reaffirming its commitment to end the ongoing rebel war as soon as possible, the Government has expressed its readiness to address any grievances the rebels might have on condition that they first stop fighting, lay down their arms and surrender to ECOMOG or UNOMSIL. There has also been discussion in Government circles of a possible offer to provide safe passage to five persons identified as leaders of the two factions comprising the rebel forces - Johnny Paul Koroma and S. A. J. Musa of the AFRC and Sam Bockarie, Dennis Mingo and Eldred Collins of the RUF - to leave the country for a non-neighbouring country of their choice.

16. In this context, UNOMSIL has cooperated closely with the Government and with ECOMOG in following up indications that S. A. J. Musa, along with several of his supporters, might be prepared to surrender to UNOMSIL. Despite suspicions that this reported offer might be a feint, UNOMSIL has made provisional preparations to accept the surrender of individuals or groups of rebels if this can be arranged under proper security conditions. UNOMSIL has also been in contact with S. A. J. Musa to try to secure the release of a Catholic priest, Father Mario Guerra, who was kidnapped near Makeni on 17 November 1998 by elements of the AFRC.

17. Since the establishment of UNOMSIL, my Special Representative has consulted the resident agencies, funds and programmes on a regular basis and has instituted weekly United Nations coordination meetings to address issues covered under the respective mandates of the organizations. Moreover, a joint security committee meets weekly to share and assess information about the situation on the ground. UNOMSIL has also actively pursued close contact with representatives of civil society, including good working relations with local non-governmental organizations and participation in civic events, such as symposia and workshops.

III. MILITARY AND SECURITY SITUATION

18. On the basis of the information received by UNOMSIL on the strength, organization and activities of the rebels, there appear to be six rebel battalion-type formations comprising approximately 300 fighters each. Two of these are primarily AFRC and are based in the north. The other four, believed to be RUF with some AFRC elements, are deployed around Kailahun. It is believed that the AFRC units receive supplies of arms and ammunition from the Kailahun district.

19. In the north of the country, and especially in the north-west, rebel attacks against civilians have persisted and have recently intensified. In the first few days of December 1998, a large rebel force moving southwards and westwards launched coordinated and well-planned attacks on several locations near the road from Freetown to the Guinean border, including Mange, Lunsar and Masiaka, inflicting heavy casualties on civilians and property damage and causing thousands to flee and take refuge in the capital and surrounding districts. This rebel force is believed to be under the command of S. A. J. Musa.

20. There is much speculation concerning the motive behind these attacks, which have taken place at a time when Musa has publicly offered to surrender to UNOMSIL. These atrocities are taking place against the background of a rift which appears to have arisen between the AFRC remnants in the north and the RUF in the east. ECOMOG and the Civil Defence Forces (CDF) have done much to disrupt the supply of arms and ammunition from Kailahun to the rebels in the north.

21. In the north-east, the rebel capacity to concentrate and coordinate their forces appears to have eroded since the time of their attack on Kabala in July. The rebel concentration in Koinadugu area was broken up by combined efforts of reconstituted battalions of former soldiers of the Republic of Sierra Leone Military Forces (RSLMF) and ECOMOG, thus reducing the threat to Makeni and to the Koidu-Lunsar road. Repeated rebel attempts to gain control of the diamond-rich Koidu area have been unsuccessful. However, the situation remains unpredictable and the area is still in danger from rebel attacks.

22. In the south-east, rebel attacks during October and November 1998 seemed designed to surround and cut off Kenema both from Freetown and from the Liberian border by controlling the road that links Daru with Joru and Zimmi. UNOMSIL, in close collaboration with ECOMOG and CDF units based at Kenema, is standing by in case the rebels' failure to achieve their objective should lead some of them to open talks with the Government.

23. The south and south-west of the country, including Freetown, have remained calm, though tension in the capital rose during December following a rebel attack on the road linking Masiaka and Rogberi.

Civil Defence Forces/ECOMOG/RSLMF

24. In the north, ECOMOG has shown increased willingness to engage the rebels in the bush, while the CDF, which essentially originated in southern Sierra Leone, has begun to operate in the north. These developments, as well as the reinduction of former RSLMF soldiers into combat alongside ECOMOG, appear to have taken a toll on rebel strength in the north-east. As noted above, an important objective of the pro-Government forces has been to disrupt ammunition supply lines between the main rebel stronghold in the Kailahun district and rebel units in the north of the country. In the south-east, the CDF, with ECOMOG support, has now established fairly effective control of the area south of Kenema after stemming the rebel offensive along the Daru-Joru-Zimmi road.

25. The CDF in both the north and the east has, however, been hampered by serious shortages of ammunition, communications, food, transportation and medicines. In addition to logistical shortages, there have been occasional lapses in coordination between ECOMOG and the CDF. Air strikes launched by ECOMOG to disperse rebel preparations for an attack on Joru on 15 November reportedly caused casualties among a CDF concentration nearby, underlining the need for improved coordination between the two forces.

26. Despite efforts to organize and fund the deployment of reinforcements, ECOMOG also remains overstretched in terms of manpower and requires urgent logistical support. Nevertheless, there are indications that ECOMOG has been concentrating its resources to support operations into Kailahun district, apparently in preparation for more intensive activity now that the rainy season has ended. The Government continues to be fully committed to concluding the war as soon as possible.

Deployment of the Mission

27. Since my second progress report, UNOMSIL's military deployment has remained unchanged, with 40 observers, in addition to the Chief Military Observer, General Subhash C. Joshi (India), and the medical team of 15 personnel (see annex). The observers based at Lungi, Hastings, Makeni, Bo and Kenema have continued to maintain close liaison with local government authorities, ECOMOG and the CDF, to gather information through contacts and regular patrols, and to keep my Special Representative fully informed of developments. The UNOMSIL observers also give advice on humanitarian law in the field, provide security advice to other United Nations agencies, non-governmental organizations and other humanitarian agencies and assist them in their liaison with ECOMOG and the CDF as necessary.

28. In view of S. A. J. Musa's reported offer to surrender and the prospect of ECOMOG's increased activity in the east, UNOMSIL, notwithstanding the continued volatility of the situation in the north, has prepared contingency plans to deploy teams in Kabala, Kambia, Koidu and Kailahun in order to be able to respond rapidly to any willingness on the part of the rebels to surrender. The presence of UNOMSIL observers in these tense areas, to encourage and facilitate humanitarian activities and to monitor the human rights situation, would also be important. Thus, additional observers may have to be deployed expeditiously when conditions permit, within the limits authorized by the Security Council in resolution 1181 (1998).

29. In addition to making regular visits to the military observers' team sites, some members of the medical team, over and above their normal duties, have also undertaken honorary teaching assignments in the local medical college and have offered advice to local hospitals and clinics, especially those treating amputees. These contacts and services are clearly appreciated by the general public.

Creation of a new Sierra Leonean army

30. The Government of Sierra Leone is continuing to develop its plans to rebuild the armed forces under civilian management and the overall democratic control of the Government. Since October 1998, two visits to Sierra Leone have been undertaken by a British joint security sector mission to assess the Government's plans for the creation and training of new armed forces and to produce an assessment of the prospects for assistance from the United Kingdom. The Government has also requested UNOMSIL's assistance in this process, while the Chief of Defence Staff, Brigadier-General Maxwell Khobe, is currently engaged in a sensitization tour of the country to prepare for new recruitment.

IV. DISARMAMENT, DEMOBILIZATION AND REINTEGRATION

31. The first phase of the Government's programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants, as described in my last report, was to cover the demobilization of former RSLMF and RUF personnel who were captured and disarmed by ECOMOG and later encamped at Lungi. The total number of ex-combatants so far registered at Lungi is 2,973. Pre-discharge orientation activities have been held since October, but the actual reintegration process, including such programmes as vocational training, will commence as and when the funding contributed for these purposes has been made available.

32. Following the registration of 52 children at Makeni, another group of 33 child ex-combatants, mainly from the RUF, were registered at Lakka near Freetown on 21 November 1998. A further group of 94 children, mainly from the RUF, were registered at Bo on 3 December. There are also some 70 RUF and CDF child ex-combatants to be registered at Port Loko as soon as the security situation improves. Once the registration is completed, social services will take over the reintegration of the children into society. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) is closely involved with this exercise to ensure the proper treatment of the children during demobilization and reintegration.

33. Following commitments made to my Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, Mr. Olara Otunnu, during his visit to Sierra Leone in May 1998, the Executive Committee of the National Committee on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration has agreed to ensure that the CDF do not initiate persons under the age of 18 and that they cooperate with the registration of children already within their ranks. They also agreed to request that ECOMOG release children in detention to UNICEF, UNOMSIL or the Ministry of Social Welfare.

34. A national sensitization programme on this subject has also been under way since early October with full radio and television coverage and a nationwide arts competition on the theme "Join Hands for Peace". The Lungi ex-combatants have embarked on community welfare work in the area, which has been well received by the local community. This, together with the programme of pre-discharge orientation, has gone a long way towards facilitating the acceptance of the ex-combatants in the Lungi area.

35. The National Committee, chaired by President Kabbah, is continuing its activities and its secretariat is functioning well. The Committee has now also identified two additional disarmament, demobilization and reintegration sites at Magburaka and Gerihun and preparations for their opening are under way. However, the pace of the programme continues to lag behind the original goals since the intensity of the war effort has not yet subsided. A further 830 ex-RSLMF soldiers are being prepared for re-induction into combat as a fifth battalion fighting alongside ECOMOG. As with the other four battalions re-inducted from among the ex-RSLMF personnel at Lungi, it is understood that most of these soldiers will undergo the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process once the war has been concluded. There has been no progress in the demobilization of CDF fighters in safe areas. Apart from the registration of CDF personnel in a few localities, there are no indications yet that the CDF are ready to begin the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, since they are still fighting.

V. HUMAN RIGHTS

Conflict-related human rights abuses and violations

36. Widespread rebel attacks on civilian populations have characterized the period since my last report. Attacks and forms of abuse of civilians exhibited a characteristic modus operandi: amputation of limbs, mutilation, actual or attempted decapitation, rape, burning alive of men, women and children, destruction of homes, abduction and looting. In one typical incident, at the end of October, five farmers were burned alive by rebels in a house some ten miles from the town of Alikalia, in the north-east. In early November, the entire northern township of Bafodia was destroyed. At the end of November, the northern town of Yifin was again devastated in a rebel attack, during which up to 50 youths were abducted.

37. During September and October 1998, the incidence of hospital admissions for amputations and mutilations reached levels similar to those during May and June, with 71 admissions in just two hospitals in the west of the country and an unverifiable number in other regions. It is likely that the hospital admission figures are much lower than the actual levels of civilian fatality and injury. During November, although the overall number of atrocities reportedly fell, there was an escalating rate of reports of actual and attempted decapitation. Particularly since late October, rebel elements have indicated that attacks were motivated by a desire for revenge against the sentencing to death of Corporal Foday Sankoh.

38. Since my last report, there have been further complaints regarding the behaviour of certain CDF contingents. One incident, investigated and confirmed by UNOMSIL, involved the killing by the CDF of four captured alleged rebels at Romeni, near Port Loko. UNOMSIL has indicated to the Government of Sierra Leone its willingness to assist in the training of key CDF personnel regarding provisions of human rights and humanitarian law applicable to their activities. There have also been reports of inappropriate behaviour by certain elements of ECOMOG, including unlawful detention. My Special Representative has taken this matter up with the Force Commander of the Monitoring Group.

39. Since my last report, there have been frequent reports of children being sent into combat environments, notwithstanding indications of some ECOMOG commanders refusing to allow under-age CDF combatants to serve under them. However, on 25 November, the Government reiterated its commitment to non-recruitment and demobilization of combatants aged under 18.

Treason trials

40. In the absence of an appeals process under court martial proceedings, most of the 34 military personnel sentenced to death in the first court martial sought recourse through petitioning the United Nations Human Rights Committee pursuant to the provisions of the Optional Protocol to the International

Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. Despite the Committee's formal request for a stay of execution pending its consideration of the petitions, 24 officers were executed by firing squad on 19 October 1998. On 4 November, the Human Rights Committee adopted a strongly worded decision and requested the submission of a report by Sierra Leone pursuant to the provisions of article 40 of the International Covenant. At the request of the Committee, I brought its decision to the attention of President Kabbah in a letter to him dated 16 November 1998. In the same letter, I appealed to President Kabbah to give every consideration, once the appeals process had been exhausted, to extending mercy to those who had been condemned to death.

41. Two separate group treason trials ended, on 21 October and 5 November 1998, respectively, with the sentencing to death of a further 26 civilians, with right of appeal. Among those given prison sentences was a former Head of State of Sierra Leone, Joseph Momoh. All of those convicted have appealed their sentences.

Technical cooperation

42. UNOMSIL continues, within the limits of its resources, to advise and assist the Government and civil society in matters relating to the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms. This includes advising the Government on how to meet its reporting obligations under the Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. For instance, UNOMSIL has facilitated the donation to the Government of law books for use by the legal profession and has hosted a seminar on judicial reporting for the Sierra Leone media. The human rights component has also provided other forms of advice to the United Nations community in Sierra Leone.

43. Human rights technical assistance and training support continues to be extended to the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, the Sierra Leone police force and civil society, including the community of non-governmental organizations, as well as UNOMSIL military observers. During November 1998, UNOMSIL facilitated the most ambitious human rights monitoring and reporting skills training programme ever implemented in Sierra Leone, with 70 participants from all parts of the country. The trainees will now replicate the training nationwide. Other training activities since my last report include facilitation of the project of human rights training for religious leaders, primarily implemented by the World Conference for Religion and Peace and partially funded by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights.

44. In order to offer a broad range of human rights related services, UNOMSIL has sought funding under the 1999 consolidated humanitarian appeal for Sierra Leone for four human rights projects: to enhance monitoring capacity regarding rebel activities, to provide enhanced human rights training for the police and for the humanitarian community and to further strengthen the capacity of civil society to monitor human rights. Other project proposals, in course of completion in close consultation with the Government and other stakeholders, address the human rights training and resources needs of the judiciary, legal profession and prison personnel.

45. On 24 November 1998, the Government of Sierra Leone reaffirmed its regulations on the manner in which the media may report on conflict-related issues. The regulations are based on the provisions of the state of emergency instituted in March 1998, elements of which may not be in compliance with applicable provisions of international human rights law. On 9 December, the Government arrested three journalists on charges related to these regulations. UNOMSIL is monitoring the situation.

VI. CIVILIAN POLICE

46. UNOMSIL has now deployed its full complement of five civilian police advisers and they are working closely with advisers deployed by the Commonwealth and with the Government of Sierra Leone and the police force in the reform and restructuring process.

47. Policing suffered a major setback during and immediately after the junta period. Many police officers had collaborated with the junta and others were killed or forced to flee, leaving much of the country without a police service. Following the reinstatement of the Government, the poor relationship between the police and public obliged the Government to undertake a comprehensive restructuring of the police force. Although policing activities have now returned to normal, many police stations are still not functional and will have to be rebuilt. Policing has not been reintroduced in certain areas of the country owing to rebel activity and/or the shortage of funds to reconstruct buildings. The CDF has established its own police force in some of the areas under its control, which operates independently of the Sierra Leonean police force.

48. The reintroduction of policing throughout the country also requires the retraining of police officers, a process hampered by a shortage of funds. The provision of minimal financial assistance would allow the introduction of limited training programmes. Towards this end, UNOMSIL civilian police have assisted in the development of a decentralized training programme, the production of training manuals and the conduct of refresher training.

49. After the introduction of the Government Policy Statement, the Police Mission Statement and the Strategic Development Plan (1998-2001), the civilian police advisers, in collaboration with the Commonwealth, have held detailed discussions with the Sierra Leonean police force on the restructuring process, the importance of respect for human rights, the role of the police in a democratic society and the disciplinary code of conduct. After consultations with all concerned, and with the financial support of the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom, pilot projects have been introduced in certain police areas to improve communications and equipment and to introduce effective and efficient policing based on local needs and community involvement.

50. As part of the effort to improve the effectiveness of the Sierra Leonean police force, restructuring has begun in the departments of human resources management, personnel development, financial and logistical accountability, operations and crime management, with the aim of streamlining and restructuring the departments and ensuring that police officers are carefully selected, properly trained, directed by highly motivated officers and financially and logistically supported so as to be able to render acceptable service.

VII. HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

51. Since my second progress report, humanitarian agencies have managed to maintain the delivery of relief assistance to populations fleeing insecurity in the north and east of the country. Most of the displaced are concentrated in a string of settlements between Makeni and Koidu in the centre of the country, in Kenema in the east and in Freetown. Fighting in the east has limited access to populations around Kenema, while hostilities in the north-west near the end of the reporting period have curtailed access there, as well as road access to Makeni. Growing insecurity along the arterial road network bodes ill for continued access and the delivery of assistance.

52. Displacement of civilian populations continued during the period under review. By mid-November, the United Nations Humanitarian Assistance Coordination Unit estimated that 308,695 persons had been displaced since February 1998, an increase of 58,000 internally displaced persons since my last report. The hostilities, which have continued since mid-November, have driven approximately 6,000 additional persons from their homes. As fighting continues into the dry season, the optimum period for military operations, the humanitarian community is concerned that access will continue to be constrained while displacement increases.

53. In an effort to further ensure the impartiality of relief operations and advocate for access, the Sierra Leonean humanitarian community came together at a workshop held from 19 to 23 November that resulted in a revised code of conduct for humanitarian agencies. The UNOMSIL human rights component also participated in the elaboration of the revised code, which is designed to reinforce a self-regulatory and coordinated approach for the delivery of humanitarian assistance and to ensure that the parties to the conflict recognize and observe the impartiality and inviolability of humanitarian principles.

54. Despite the prevailing hostile environment and logistical constraints, the humanitarian community has been able to avert potential humanitarian disasters through the provision of a wide range of relief programmes to the most affected war victims in Masingbi, Kambia, Kenema and Freetown.

55. A good harvest is expected in most secure areas as a result of the distribution of agricultural support packages to vulnerable farmers. Discussions are taking place in all agencies with respect to their 1999 food aid programmes, which are expected to equal the 1998 levels.

56. The delay in the issuance of transport clearances to food aid agencies by ECOMOG continues to constrain the movement of humanitarian food aid to vulnerable groups. There has also been an increase in harassment, abuse and intimidation of aid workers at some security checkpoints. Instances of ECOMOG personnel commandeering aid vehicles, including a World Food Programme (WFP) truck at Masingbi, have been raised with ECOMOG by UNOMSIL. Interventions relating to a similar situation at the port in Freetown have led to significant improvements. Ms. Catherine Bertini, the Executive Director of WFP, will visit Sierra Leone from 10 to 12 December 1998 to assess food security issues in the country and the requirements for WFP assistance.

57. UNICEF undertook mass immunization campaigns in Freetown, Bo, Kenema, Makeni, Kambia, Port Loko and Kabala, covering an estimated 1.1 million people, about 25 per cent of Sierra Leone's population. UNICEF and the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) are supporting the Ministry of Health and Sanitation in trying to reduce the maternal mortality rate, which currently averages 1,800 per 100,000 live births. A UNFPA consultant is in the country to examine various aspects of UNFPA's planned activities and issues of coordination between the relevant United Nations agencies and the Ministry of Health.

58. A World Health Organization (WHO) consultant has been working with the Ministry of Health to address future outbreaks of cholera. WHO has also provided drugs and supplies intended to further strengthen the Ministry's preparedness to cope with public health challenges. As a result, the cholera outbreak referred to in paragraph 41 of my last report is now under control. No deaths have been recorded since mid-October.

59. On 14 November 1998, President Kabbah launched activities for the forthcoming National Immunization Days, which will target polio. WHO and UNICEF, along with other agencies, are providing financial and technical support to the polio eradication drive. The first round of immunizations will take place on 19 December and the second round on 2 February. WHO has also taken steps to deal with outbreaks of meningitis.

60. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has continued to facilitate the repatriation of students and professional civil servants to Sierra Leone. During October and November, UNHCR repatriated about 1,660 Sierra Leoneans from Guinea. In close consultation with the Government and others, UNHCR is continuing to develop a reintegration strategy for returnees and internally displaced persons.

61. United Nations agencies, in consultation with the Government, national and international non-governmental organizations and donors, have completed the 1999 consolidated inter-agency appeal for Sierra Leone in the amount of $28 million. The 29 projects in the appeal range from immediate life-saving needs to longer-term projects aimed at creating a favourable environment for the promotion of peace and sustainable socio-economic development. The appeal was released in Geneva on 3 December by the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and will be launched on 17 December 1998.

VIII. ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ASPECTS

62. On 23 November 1998, the European Union signed an agreement with the Government of Sierra Leone to provide 111.5 million European currency units ($124.88 million) to help rebuild its economy. The funds, to be disbursed over five years, are to support rehabilitation of infrastructure, the development of social and public sectors and good governance. The aid will include eight million European currency units ($8.92 million) in risk capital, provided by the European Investment Bank, for projects in power supply, mining and private sector investment.

63. On 27 November, the Government presented the budget and statement of policies for the financial year 1999 to Parliament. The budget, which is being debated by Parliament, focuses on continuing the process of rehabilitating basic infrastructure and rebuilding dislocated institutions, as well as pursuing stabilization and economic reform policies.

64. The Executive Board of the International Monetary Fund has approved the Government's request for assistance under the post-conflict emergency assistance policy for Sierra Leone in the amount of approximately $15 million.

65. According to Government data, there are encouraging signs of a steady recovery in economic output. This is reflected in the 0.7 per cent growth rate in the gross domestic product in real terms, compared to negative 22 per cent for the same period last year. Increased activity in the manufacturing, services and construction sectors reflect the return of consumer and investor confidence. On the other hand, output in mining and agriculture continues to be depressed owing to persistent insecurity, especially in the east and north.

66. The generally weak economy has contributed to the continued pressure on the exchange rate. Gross external reserves have dwindled to 1.8 months of imports in 1998 compared to 5.7 months in the corresponding period for 1997. Consequently, the exchange rate, which had strengthened from 2,340 leones to the dollar in January 1998 to about 1,630 in March, depreciated to 1,850 leones in January 1998 to about 1,630 in March, depreciated to 1,850 leones in November. It is anticipated that increased donor support, particularly balance-of-payments assistance from the international financial institutions, the European Union and the Department for International Development of the United Kingdom, will reduce the pressure on the exchange rate. The Government's economic management policies have helped contain inflation and restore confidence in the private sector, bringing about the present decline in the inflation rate to 12.5 per cent as at December 1998.

IX. FINANCIAL ASPECTS

67. The General Assembly, by its resolution 53/29 of 20 November 1998, appropriated an amount of $22 million gross for the establishment and operation of the Observer Mission for the period of 13 July 1998 to 30 June 1999. This amount includes $9.1 million gross for the period from 14 January to 30 June 1999, equivalent to some $1.6 million gross per month, subject to the decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Observer Mission beyond 13 January 1999.

68. Should the Council decide to extend the mandate of the Observer Mission as recommended in paragraph 76 below, it is anticipated that the estimated additional requirements of some $0.6 million gross arising during the 1998-1999 financial period in connection with the modest expansion of civilian staff of UNOMSIL recommended in paragraphs 78 and 79 below, would be met from resources already provided by the General Assembly.

69. As at 30 November 1998, the total outstanding assessed contributions for all peacekeeping operations amounted to $1,642.2 million.

70. Pursuant to the Council's Presidential statement of 26 February 1998 (S/PRST/1998/5), on 26 March 1998 I established the Trust Fund to Support United Nations Peacekeeping-related Efforts in Sierra Leone. As at 11 December 1998, voluntary contributions to the Trust Fund totalled $1.79 million from the Governments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland ($0.83 million) and Japan ($0.96 million). In addition, the government of the Kingdom of the Netherlands has pledged to the Fund an amount of $1 million.

X. OBSERVATIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

71. Despite the progress made by the Government in consolidating its authority, I am disturbed at the continuing attacks inflicted by the rebels on civilians in the north and the atrocities and abductions that accompany such attacks. I condemn these serious violations and abuses of human rights and international humanitarian law and call again on the RUF and the AFRC to desist from attacks against their unarmed compatriots and to lay down their arms and surrender.

72. The elaboration of a dual-track approach to the resolution of the conflict following the ECOWAS summit of 31 October 1998 and the London meeting of the International Contact Group of 5 November is a welcome development, and UNOMSIL will work with the Government to pursue this approach. ECOMOG, the CDF and the re-inducted Republic of Sierra Leone Military Forces personnel have done much to defend the Government and people of Sierra Leone against rebel attacks and should continue to do so. At the same time, I call on the Government to explore ways to encourage the rebels to lay down their arms and surrender in order to avoid more bloodshed.

73. Clear evidence has emerged during the national consultative process described in paragraph 4 above to demonstrate that the people of Sierra Leone are willing to reconcile themselves with the rebels, on condition that they accept the authority of the Government, lay down their arms and surrender. UNOMSIL will continue to offer its services to the Government in facilitating such surrenders, provided this can be done under acceptable security conditions. UNOMSIL is also prepared to work with the Government concerning assurances that those who surrender will be humanely treated, in accordance with internationally accepted standards, and that any rebels who face criminal prosecution for their acts receive a fair trial.

74. I am particularly encouraged by the outcome of the extraordinary summit meeting of the Mano River Union on 12 November 1998, at which President Kabbah, President Taylor and President Conte agreed to continue to strengthen the Union and improve their mutual relations. The importance of this subregional approach to the strengthening of stability and security in all three countries cannot be overemphasized. I look forward to further steps by all three Governments to prevent the use of their territory by armed groups who would seek to undermine stability and would use their territory for the illegal transit of weapons and ammunition, especially where this is in violation of United Nations resolutions. I am prepared to assist, through my Special Representative in Sierra Leone and my Representative in Liberia, in developing and implementing a viable strategy for a subregional approach.

75. The onset of the dry season in Sierra Leone has opened the way for more effective action by ECOMOG, the CDF and the re-inducted personnel of the RSLMF. In order to maintain the pressure they have exerted to split the rebel forces, the military forces assisting the Government need to continue to receive adequate logistical support. In this context, I would like to express my appreciation to those Governments that have already made contributions to the Trust Fund to Support United Nations Peacekeeping-related Efforts in Sierra Leone and to encourage others to make similar contributions or to consider providing the necessary assistance bilaterally to ECOMOG or to individual ECOWAS countries.

76. UNOMSIL has proved its value to the Government and people of Sierra Leone as they pursue their recovery from the illegal seizure of power by the military junta, in May 1997, and all its nefarious consequences. In particular, the deployment in the countryside of United Nations military observers has demonstrated to the Government and people of Sierra Leone the commitment of the broader international community to the restoration of order and peace in the country under the legitimate Government. UNOMSIL has also provided crucial support for humanitarian operations in the countryside. I therefore recommend to the Security Council that the mandate of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone be extended for a further period of six months, until 13 July 1999.

77. The uncertain security situation in parts of the country and the delays to which the government's disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme have consequently been subjected make it premature at this stage to proceed with further deployments of United Nations military observers, as authorized by resolution 1181 (1998). However, in view of the prospect that rebel fighters might begin surrendering as a result of the military operations directed against them in the east and the north, and the Government's willingness to accept their surrender under the conditions outlined above, UNOMSIL will continue to stand ready to deploy the additional observers rapidly as and when they may be required. I will keep the Security Council fully apprised of any developments in this regard and of any action I decide to take in response.

78. However, in order to address the growing demands on the ground and to be able to assist the Government and people of Sierra Leone in their efforts to normalize the situation, I am planning a modest expansion of the civilian staff of UNOMSIL. In particular, the enormity of the human rights abuses the rebels have perpetrated on the people of Sierra Leone and the large scope of human rights tasks to be performed have underlined the need for a strong human rights component. The deployment of five additional human rights officers in the provinces, in addition to the five now operating in the country, would do much to assist the Government to maintain and improve its commitment to the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms in Sierra Leone. I also urge Member States to consider contributing bilaterally to UNOMSIL's human rights activities in Sierra Leone.

79. UNOMSIL could also help the government develop more fully a dialogue with the rebels in keeping with the dual-track approach. To this end, I intend to deploy three additional public information officers to develop radio programmes and other information activities aimed at reaching out to rebels in the countryside to persuade them to surrender and generally to pursue the goal of national reconciliation. The additional public information staff could also help to explain the role of UNOMSIL and the international community. At the same time, the addition of another political officer in the Office of my Special Representative would assist him to coordinate these activities.

80. The restoration of stability in Sierra Leone will be a long and arduous process and will continue to require military support as well as various other forms of assistance. In particular, the Government needs assistance in its efforts to establish a new professional armed force under civilian control, as well as an effective and well-motivated police force. The commitment of all Sierra Leoneans to achieving peace through dialogue and national reconciliation will also be essential. The United Nations, through UNOMSIL, is ready to play its part in that process.

81. In conclusion, I wish to express my appreciation to my Special Representative, Mr. Francis G. Okelo, the Chief Military Observer, Brigadier-General Subhash C. Joshi, and all the military and civilian personnel of UNOMSIL. My thanks also go to the Government of Sierra Leone and to ECOMOG, as well as to Sierra Leonean civil society, for their continuing cooperation with the United Nations.

SIXTH REPORT OF THE SECRETARY-GENERAL ON THE UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN SIERRA LEONE

I. INTRODUCTION

1. By paragraph 11 of resolution 1231 (1999) of 11 March 1999, the Security Council requested me to keep the Council closely informed on the situation in Sierra Leone and in this regard to submit a report, by 5 June 1999, with recommendations on the future deployment of the United Nations Observer Mission in Sierra Leone (UNOMSIL) and the implementation of its mandate. The present report is submitted in accordance with that request.

II. POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

Dialogue process

2. Since my report of 4 March 1999 (S/1999/237), the peace process in Sierra Leone has made significant progress, culminating in the signing of a ceasefire agreement on 18 May 1999 (see S/1999/585, annex) and the start of dialogue between the Government of Sierra Leone and the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) at Lomé on 25 May.

3. The signing of the ceasefire agreement and the inception of talks with RUF to a large extent reflect the outcome of a number of important initiatives undertaken by the Government of Sierra Leone. In early to mid-March, President Ahmad Tejan Kabbah visited several key countries in the subregion, including Côte d'Ivoire, Ghana, Nigeria and Togo, to discuss the situation in Sierra Leone and possible ways forward with the support of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) and its Monitoring Group (ECOMOG). In a radio address to the nation on 14 March, President Kabbah expressed his appreciation for the assistance provided by those countries and reaffirmed his commitment to the dual-track approach, which involves strengthening ECOMOG while being prepared to talk to RUF and the Armed Forces Revolutionary Council (AFRC).

4. The Government's initiatives were accompanied by considerable diplomatic activity in the subregion on the part of a number of Governments and organizations in the subregion and elsewhere, including the current Chairman of ECOWAS, President Gnassingbe Eyadema of Togo; the ECOMOG troop-contributing countries, namely Nigeria, Guinea, Ghana and Mali; the Governments of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America and the United States Presidential Special Envoy for the Promotion of Democracy in Africa, the Rev. Jesse Jackson; and my Special Representative for Sierra Leone, Francis G. Okelo.

5. The opening of talks between the Government and RUF at Lomé on 25 May followed internal consultations there between the RUF leader, Corporal Foday Sankoh, and a delegation of 14 RUF representatives from within Sierra Leone. At the Government's request, UNOMSIL transported Corporal Sankoh from Freetown to Lomé on 18 April. Subsequently, UNOMSIL also transported the 14 other RUF representatives from other parts of Sierra Leone to Lomé via Monrovia with the cooperation and support of the Government of Liberia and the assistance of the United Nations Peace-building Support Office in Liberia. UNOMSIL has also provided some logistical support for the Government of Togo, which is hosting the talks, through the use of the Trust Fund to Support United Nations Peacekeeping-related Activities in Sierra Leone.

6. Although Corporal Sankoh was still pursuing his appeal against his conviction and sentence to death for treason, the Government granted him judicial leave to pursue the dialogue process. On 29 May, the Government and the RUF delegation reached an understanding on the status of Corporal Sankoh. The Government undertook to take the appropriate legal steps to grant him an absolute and free pardon, and Corporal Sankoh said that his delegation would proceed with the dialogue.

7. The internal RUF talks lasted from 26 April to 10 May and resulted in a position paper reflecting the RUF/AFRC views and demands. The position paper calls, inter alia, for a blanket amnesty for all personnel of RUF and AFRC, which had organized the coup d'état in Sierra Leone in May 1997; and the establishment of a four-year transitional Government. The main functions of the transitional Government would include the drafting of a new constitution; the reform of the national security forces and civil service; the encampment, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of all combatants; and the establishment of a national electoral commission. RUF expressed readiness to convert itself into a political party.

8. RUF stipulated that a neutral peace monitoring group should be deployed as part of the ceasefire arrangements following the signing of a peace agreement. Other demands include the departure of all foreign troops and mercenaries from Sierra Leone within 14 days of the signing of the agreement, and the termination of the Status of Forces Agreement between the Governments of Sierra Leone and Nigeria.

9. On 14 May, the Government of Sierra Leone issued a response to the RUF position paper, stressing the unconstitutional nature of the proposal for a transitional Government. At the same time, the Government emphasized that the proposal for an amnesty for all combatants would be examined with a view to achieving permanent peace, while taking into account gross human rights violations committed against the citizens of Sierra Leone. The government statement endorsed the importance of the transformation of RUF into a political party and pledged the Government's full support for that process.

10. In order to help create conditions conducive to the success of the Government-RUF talks, my Special Representative proposed a cessation of hostilities for the duration of the dialogue process. This proposal was strongly supported by the Government of Togo and resulted in the signing, on 18 May, of an agreement between the Government and RUF to cease fire (S/1999/585, annex). According to the agreement, which came into effect on 24 May, both parties were to maintain their respective positions and refrain from hostile or aggressive acts. Other provisions included the guarantee of safe and unhindered access by humanitarian organizations to all people in need; the immediate release of prisoners of war and non-combatants; and the deployment, subject to the authorization of the Security Council, of United Nations military observers to observe compliance with the ceasefire agreement.

11. The peace talks have started off well, with the two parties expressing their firm commitment to the peace process and determination to work together to resolve the conflict. The dialogue process is being guided by a Facilitation Committee chaired by the Foreign Minister of Togo, with the participation of ECOWAS, the Organization of African Unity (OAU) and my Special Representative. Within Sierra Leone, the dialogue process has benefited from the active involvement of the Parliament and civic groups. Among these, the Inter-Religious Council of Sierra Leone, supported by the World Conference on Religion and Peace, has played a particularly active role. President Kabbah has proposed that the Council, whose role has been appreciated by both sides, should become one of the moral guarantors of a future peace agreement.

12. On 2 June, the Government and RUF decided to ask UNOMSIL to establish a committee to effect the immediate release of prisoners of war and non-combatants in accordance with the 18 May ceasefire agreement. The committee, which is to be chaired by the UNOMSIL Chief Military Observer, comprises representatives of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), other United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations.

Relations between Sierra Leone and Liberia

13. There have been continued allegations of arms shipments reaching the rebels in Sierra Leone either through or from Liberia. On 8 April, the ECOMOG Force Commander, Major-General Felix Mujakperuo, announced that ECOMOG had confirmed the involvement of the Governments of Liberia and Burkina Faso in the shipment and delivery of arms to the rebels on 14 and 15 March. The details of this incident and another alleged incident on 20 April were brought to the attention of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1132 (1997) concerning Sierra Leone. The Government of Liberia has denied the allegations.

14. Given the persistent tension between Sierra Leone and Liberia resulting from allegations of arms supplies to the rebels, the Security Council requested me, in resolution 1231 (1999), to consider, in coordination with the countries of the Mano River Union and other States members of ECOWAS, the practicality and effectiveness of the deployment of United Nations monitors, along with ECOMOG forces, at the Sierra Leone/Liberia border. Such a presence could improve the security climate and build confidence between the two countries. Accordingly, I wrote to both the Chairman and the Executive Secretary of ECOWAS on 12 April,

seeking their views on the possible deployment of ECOMOG troops and the subsequent deployment of United Nations personnel along the border.

15. In his reply, dated 26 April 1999, the Executive Secretary, Lansana Kouyaté, stated that the Chiefs of Staff of the countries contributing troops to ECOMOG in Sierra Leone, who had discussed my letter at their meeting at Abuja, welcomed the proposal in principle. However, citing the difficult terrain along the border and the consequent need for adequate equipment, Mr. Kouyaté proposed that the United Nations should assist in providing the necessary logistical equipment, including helicopters, communications and ground transportation. He requested the United Nations to dispatch a technical team to discuss with ECOMOG the modalities and requirements of deployment. On 7 May, the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, Bernard Miyet, invited ECOWAS to indicate how many ECOMOG troops would be required, and the time needed for their deployment, and requested a detailed statement of ECOMOG's logistical requirements. This information can be provided to the Security Council as soon as it is received.

16. There have also been positive developments in the relations between Sierra Leone and Liberia. For example, there is increased contact among civic groups in both countries as demonstrated by the visits to Liberia of the Inter-Religious Council of Sierra Leone and the National Union of Sierra Leone Students. Moreover, a delegation of the Liberian Senate met with President Kabbah in Freetown in early April to offer the support of the Government and people of Liberia for the resolution of the armed conflict in Sierra Leone. The delegation proposed that the three parliaments of the countries of the Mano River Union should work together, under the coordination of Mali, to help to end the conflict.

17. On 27 May, the first annual conference of the Mano River Parliamentary Union opened in Monrovia. Although no Sierra Leonean representative attended the conference, President Taylor stated in his address to the delegates of Liberia, Guinea and Mali that he would do his utmost to ensure peace and security in Guinea and Sierra Leone, since peace in Liberia could be assured only if its neighbours were also at peace.

III. MILITARY AND SECURITY SITUATION

18. The military and security situation in Sierra Leone has remained fluid and complex. Following his assumption of the command of ECOMOG in late March, the new Force Commander, Major-General Felix Mujakperuo, launched an offensive to provide a larger security cordon around Lungi and Freetown. As a result, ECOMOG succeeded in opening the roads connecting Freetown with Lungi, Port Loko and Kambia in the western and north-western parts of the country. Moreover, the clearance of a subsidiary road from Freetown to Bo via Moyamba opened up a land route for supplies to Bo and Kenema. ECOMOG also retains its positions at Kabala and Bumbuna. Since my previous report, ECOMOG's military capabilities have been further strengthened with a substantial increase in communications facilities and air assets.

19. However, RUF/AFRC continue to dominate many areas of Sierra Leone, particularly in the Northern and Eastern Provinces. They also have considerable freedom of movement in parts of the Western Area and the Southern Province, where they retain the capability to interdict ECOMOG lines of communication and carry out raids. The Kono diamond mining area is also still under RUF/AFRC control. Two attacks on Kenema have recently been repulsed, although a large rebel group has advanced to around 15 miles north of the town. Continued reports of arms supply reaching RUF/AFRC indicate that their fighting capacity remains strong. In addition, they have significantly strengthened their anti-aircraft capabilities, an achievement attributed to the use of foreign expertise. The existence of pockets of forces behind the other party's lines, especially around the north-south Bo-Kabala axis, is expected to complicate the monitoring of the ceasefire.

20. Both before and after 24 May, when the ceasefire took effect, rebel activity in the north-west increased considerably, amid mutual accusations by the parties of violations. A rebel group, largely composed of troops of the former Republic of Sierra Leone Military Forces (RSLMF), has been detected in the area north of Occra Hills/south of Port Loko, and there is a large build-up of RUF/AFRC in the area north of Lunsar and Port Loko. This build-up poses a threat to Port Loko/Rogberi and possibly to Lungi, which ECOMOG has warned it will forcibly resist. Prior to the ceasefire, RUF/AFRC attacked some ECOMOG positions in the area of Port Loko, including Port Loko itself, and in the Occra Hills where both sides have suffered casualties. RUF/AFRC also undertook raids on undefended villages, committing atrocities at a scale not seen since their retreat from Freetown in January (see sect. V below). Freetown remains subject to a curfew, albeit at reduced hours, and ECOMOG continues to operate checkpoints to curb rebel infiltration.

Creation of a new Sierra Leone armed forces

21. As detailed in my second progress report on UNOMSIL of 16 October 1998 (S/1998/960), the Government's efforts to improve security involve the creation of a new armed forces of 5,000 troops, the restructuring of the Civil Defence Forces (CDF) and the reform of the Sierra Leone Police Force.

22. On 10 May, the first 562 troops completed three months of elementary training and, at the initiative of the Government of Nigeria, elementary cadet training has been provided for 81 future officers at the Nigerian Defence Academy. The efforts to create a new Sierra Leone army have received significant support from the Government of the United Kingdom, which is providing both training assistance and equipment.

Reconstitution of the Sierra Leone Police Force

23. Another aspect of these efforts concerns the rebuilding of the Sierra Leone Police Force, which suffered severely during the rebel invasion of Freetown, with some 200 officers being killed and many police stations destroyed. With donor assistance, the Government has made considerable progress in reconstituting a functioning police presence in the capital, but reversing the extent of the damage and the collapse of the police structure in most parts of the country will require substantial external assistance.

24. As noted in my earlier reports, the support provided by the Commonwealth Police Development Task Force and the UNOMSIL civilian police advisers had contributed significantly to the Sierra Leone Police Force reform efforts. In April 1999, two Commonwealth police advisers visited Sierra Leone with a view to the eventual resumption of their activities. I will present to the Security Council at an appropriate time in the near future my plans for a resumption of activity in Sierra Leone by United Nations civilian police advisers to render tangible assistance in cooperation with bilateral donors.

IV. DISARMAMENT AND DEMOBILIZATION

25. Since my report of 4 March 1999 (S/1999/237), the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme has been at a near standstill. A joint World Bank/British Department for International Development team found in March that some of the original programme assumptions and guiding principles were no longer applicable and that the programme would have to be re-adjusted to reflect the changed political environment and security situation. Based on their recommendations, the pilot phase of the programme, which was designed to accommodate existing ex-combatants as well as those who might surrender before the signing of a new peace agreement, has since resumed. However, any subsequent large-scale disarmament, demobilization and reintegration activity will require the implementation of a peace agreement and the stabilization of the security situation. This matter is still under consideration by the National Committee on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration.

26. The approximately 1,300 ex-combatants, who had been originally part of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process at Lungi, continue to be housed under appalling conditions in Freetown. Despite a decision on 12 April by the National Committee on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration to move them to Lungi, ECOMOG opposes their relocation because of continued insecurity in the area. As a result, plans are under way to improve their current living conditions. This matter is also under consideration by the National Committee.

27. Meanwhile, under the framework of its child protection network, UNICEF, in cooperation with ECOMOG and UNOMSIL, has been providing services to children released by RUF/AFRC as part of the overall peace negotiations. Child welfare agencies have also begun developing strategies and policies for child soldiers within the overall framework of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme, while the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) is reviewing its involvement in the reintegration phase of disarmament, demobilization and reintegration. Other specialized agencies of the United Nations system and humanitarian organizations have started conceptualizing and examining possible links to humanitarian assistance and rehabilitation programmes.

V. HUMAN RIGHTS

28. The reporting period has been marked by a resurgence of rebel atrocities against civilians, most of them reported from the provincial towns of Masiaka and Port Loko. Based on eyewitness accounts, the human rights abuses by RUF/AFRC have included significant numbers of summary executions, mutilations, limb amputations, abductions and sexual abuse, as well as the large-scale destruction of property. Civilians in the affected areas are also suffering significant humanitarian deprivation.

29. Although there was a drop in the number of reported cases of gross human rights violations during March, escapees from rebel-held territories continued to provide disturbing accounts of abusive rebel behaviour against civilians, including physical and psychological torture and harassment. In Makeni and Koinadugu, escapees reported that RUF/AFRC had imposed punitive food taxes, restricted the movement of civilians and operated a harsh justice system. A UNOMSIL investigation team that visited Masiaka after the town's recapture by ECOMOG/CDF received testimonies of ill-treatment of civilians, some of whom were killed or mutilated after being accused of sympathizing with pro-government forces. Moreover, a large number of boys and male adolescents in the area had the letters "RUF" engraved across their chests with razor blades.

30. During a rebel attack on Port Loko on 7 May, over 20 civilians are believed to have been summarily executed by a group of RUF/AFRC at nearby Mangarma village. Survivors also reported summary executions in other areas around Port Loko, which were attributed in at least two villages to a well-orchestrated rebel strategy carried out at the orders of rebel commanders. In the Masiaka area, the UNOMSIL team observed a number of bodies and received credible reports that eight decapitated bodies and severed heads of civilians had been displayed on the roadside by retreating RUF/AFRC. In one incident in Masumana village between Masiaka and Mile 38, eye witnesses described the murder of several infants by RUF/AFRC.

31. RUF/AFRC forces have also continued their practice of limb amputations, and at least a dozen victims have suffered this form of torture over the past month alone. In Mangarma village, RUF/AFRC reportedly amputated the arms of two of their civilian captives and then instructed them to walk to Port Loko town to alert the Malian contingent of ECOMOG of the RUF/AFRC impending attack. One victim, a male teacher, was hospitalized in Freetown after RUF/AFRC cut off both his arms, as well as his ears and lips.

32. A large number of civilians are believed to have been abducted by RUF/AFRC over the past three months. The abductions have reportedly followed a consistent pattern where RUF/AFRC retreating from a town or village have forced men, women and children to go with them to serve as porters, potential recruits or sex slaves. Most of these abductees are still being held by RUF/AFRC. In Matteh village near Masiaka, the section chief estimated the number of abductees in the area to be in the thousands. Most of the people interviewed in the Port Loko and Masiaka areas said they had lost close family members through abduction. One man told UNOMSIL that 15 members of his immediate family had been abducted by RUF/AFRC.

33. My Special Representative in Sierra Leone has already expressed to RUF/AFRC the deep concerns of the United Nations over the reported abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law. Following the fact-finding visit by UNOMSIL human rights officers to Masiaka, the Special Representative shared the findings of the mission with Corporal Foday Sankoh, and presented the RUF delegates with an aide-mémoire on human rights issues. RUF has since pledged to set up an internal investigation to probe these allegations and has requested support from the international community.

34. After concerns had been raised by my Special Representative and others regarding human rights violations attributed to ECOMOG and CDF soldiers in the wake of the rebel incursion into Freetown in January (see S/1997/237), the ECOMOG High Command has taken concrete positive steps to address this issue. In April, the ECOMOG Force Commander initiated the formation of a Civil/Military Relations Committee which will, inter alia, investigate allegations of human rights violations against individual members of ECOMOG and CDF and recommend appropriate action to the higher authorities. Membership in the Committee includes representatives of the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, the Bar Association, the police, the media, civil society and the Government, with UNOMSIL participating in an observer capacity.

35. In spite of the goodwill exhibited by the ECOMOG High Command, there have been a few reports of ill-treatment of the civilian population by ECOMOG, CDF and Civil Defence Units (CDU). It is also reported that detainees from rebel-controlled areas face a high risk of intimidation and even execution as alleged rebel collaborators. For instance, information has been received of the execution of up to 30 escapees by CDF forces (Kapas) at Kagbantama, near the town of Gbinti in the Northern Province. In a separate report, a woman from Moyamba District in the south-west provided detailed information on an alleged attack on the town of Bradford by CDF forces (Kamajors) in which at least six civilians are believed to have lost their lives. In April, a reliable informant reported the severe beating and detention for two days of a man and a woman in central Freetown.

36. Various sources, including United Nations agencies, report that there is continued widespread recruitment of children by CDF in the Southern and Eastern Provinces, especially at Bo and Kenema. Agencies also report that a number of children who had been demobilized from CDF are known to have been subsequently re-recruited. This is an issue of great concern, especially considering the promise made last year by the Government of Sierra Leone to my Special Representative on Children and Armed Conflict to demobilize and discontinue the practice of recruiting children under 18 years of age into the armed forces of Sierra Leone. My Special Representative in Freetown continues to monitor the situation closely and raises the relevant issues with the Government. Government officials in the Southern Province have reportedly acted to halt underage recruitment by CDF elements.

37. On 27 April, President Kabbah announced the establishment under statute of a new Human Rights Commission for Sierra Leone, replacing the human rights role of the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights. The body will have some form of adjudicatory authority and considerable implementation powers. UNOMSIL has informed the Government of its support for this initiative and has promised to provide, in collaboration with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the necessary technical assistance.

38. In the context of its technical cooperation activities, UNOMSIL also continues to provide full secretariat support to the Sierra Leone Human Rights Committee, comprising the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, national non-governmental organizations and United Nations agencies. Membership also includes the Inter-Religious Council of Sierra Leone and Human Rights Watch. The Committee remains a valuable forum for the exchange of information and for strategy development. In this context, UNOMSIL is assisting the non-governmental organization community to develop positions on the role to be played and issues of human rights within the peace process. Renewed efforts are being made to identify funding whereby the Committee can develop its own institutional identity.

39. The United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mary Robinson, has accepted the invitation of the Government of Sierra Leone to visit the country towards the end of June, accompanied by a panel of prominent human rights personalities. The purpose of the visit will be to support the peace process, to encourage future programmes for the promotion and protection of human rights in the country, and to draw attention to the plight of children, women and civilians bearing the brunt of the excesses in Sierra Leone. With the coordination of UNOMSIL, which is hosting the visit, a range of civil society actors in Sierra Leone are already exploring ways to maximize the impact of the visit of Mrs. Robinson with regard to both the short- and long-term human rights needs of the country.

VI. HUMANITARIAN SITUATION

40. Since my previous report, an already desperate humanitarian situation has worsened. Rebel gains have increased the number of needy people while at the same time limiting aid workers' access to affected areas. At present, nearly half, or 2.6 million, of the Sierra Leonean population in the Northern and Eastern Provinces is effectively out of the reach of humanitarian agencies. Another 480,000 have become refugees. While the number of internally displaced persons in accessible areas remains relatively constant, at about 370,000, there are many more civilians countrywide who have been directly affected by the war in and around their own homes and villages. Many of these have been forced to live under rebel control and denied their right to sufficient food, shelter and health care. In addition, it is estimated that well over one million civilians countrywide still require some form of humanitarian assistance.

41. Even in government-controlled areas, despite some successes, obtaining access to civilians remains a challenge. For instance, it has been possible to access areas such as Pujehun, Bonthe and Bo districts in the Southern Province as well as parts of Kenema district in the Eastern Province. Additionally, owing to recent ECOMOG advances, agencies have assessed needs in a few towns in the north, such as Yele, by road from Bo. However, it remains impossible to move humanitarian goods to the east and south by road owing to RUF blockades of key junctions on the Freetown-Bo highway. While some aid can reach the provincial capitals of Bo and Kenema by air, the inability to transport food by road has led to a depletion of stocks in these areas. Additionally, the security situation in the immediate environs of Kenema remains unclear, and has prevented humanitarian intervention in many chiefdoms.

42. Given these difficulties, urgent measures are now being taken in cooperation with the Government to explore other ways of transporting food aid. At present, food agencies have leased a ship to transfer food to Nitti port, where it can then be driven by road to Bo. If successful, this route will allow for the supply of food to war-affected people. The World Food Programme has also requested to send food along the Freetown-Bo highway, which was recently re-opened by commercial transporters, but had not received clearance from the Government at the time of the present report. In the meantime, the remaining limited amount of food in these areas has been prioritized for therapeutic and supplementary feeding centres as well as camps for internally displaced persons.

43. Meanwhile, in government-controlled areas, including Freetown and parts of the southern and eastern areas, the humanitarian community has mobilized to provide some form of support to about 370,000 individuals. At present, more than 120,000 registered internally displaced persons living in camps are receiving a comprehensive package of assistance, including food, shelter and health services. However, with more than 80 per cent of the buildings destroyed in some parts of Freetown, many thousands more are squatting in other areas or staying with relatives. A war-ravaged economy, characterized by low incomes and high costs for food and other basic items, has compounded their suffering.

44. To address chronic food insecurity, emergency seeds and tools have been distributed to farmers who lost their property to armed groups in Port Loko, Kenema and Bo districts as well as the Western Area. The United Nations continues to support the Government in its efforts to buy imported rice and to access food on a bilateral basis from donor Governments.

45. Basic support for clinics and hospitals has continued to come from UNICEF, the World Health Organization (WHO) and the medical non-governmental organizations. Some 25 health centres and eight mobile clinics are now functioning in Freetown, with 25 operating in southern Bo, Pujehun and Bonthe districts. Large-scale expanded programme of immunization campaigns have successfully headed off a measles epidemic around Freetown, Kenema and Bonthe, with more than 65,000 children vaccinated in those areas.

46. As of mid-May, UNICEF had registered a total of 3,384 children who had been missing since January 1999 from the Freetown area. More than 500 of these have been traced and reunified with their families. However, abductions of large numbers of children persist. The Child Protection Network continues to trace such incidents and to provide programmes to help unaccompanied children, demobilized child soldiers and other children with special needs.

47. Finally, water trucking, well chlorination and waste management activities in most camps for internally displaced persons have reduced the level of waterborne diseases such as cholera and diarrhoea. Plastic sheeting, nails, wood and kitchen sets have been provided to some urban households and to displaced persons in camps in the west, east and south. The needs in this area, however are considerable and require continued intervention as well as resources.

48. While the humanitarian situation remains dire, the recent ceasefire and initiation of dialogue between the parties to the conflict has been welcomed by the humanitarian community as the best possible means for resolution of the long-standing crisis. The provision in the recent ceasefire agreement for safe and unhindered access for humanitarian organizations to all people in need is a significant step towards ensuring the countrywide delivery of assistance. However, turning the combatants' humanitarian commitment into a reality requires careful planning, good faith and confidence-building. As noted earlier in the present report, my Special Representative has provided the parties to the conflict with a proposal on humanitarian access, detailing, inter alia, the obligations of the parties under international humanitarian law to provide the enabling environment for humanitarian intervention. This proposal, prepared by the United Nations country team under the guidance of the United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator, is seen as a first step towards building with the parties to the conflict a dialogue on access. In order to further the humanitarian imperative and to ensure the smooth delivery of life-saving humanitarian assistance, it is necessary that:

(a) The issue of humanitarian access must be on an equal footing with, and not contingent upon, the military and political elements of the peace process. Moreover, as the combatants' observance of the right of civilians in need to humanitarian assistance is based upon international law, the concept is non-negotiable and can only be discussed in terms of mechanisms for access;

(b) Given the fragile state of the peace process and the steadily degrading humanitarian situation, it is imperative that the humanitarian community has immediate and independent access to the parties to the conflict, in order to establish working modalities for accessing all Sierra Leoneans in need.

VII. FUTURE ROLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS OBSERVER MISSION IN SIERRA LEONE

49. UNOMSIL currently consists of 24 military observers, including two medical personnel, as well as 29 international and 24 national staff members. This includes 10 military observers recently deployed to assist in the expanded tasks of the Mission. The planned deployment of a further 16 observers during the month of June, together with the necessary support personnel, vehicles, communications and other essential equipment, will restore the mission's military capacity to the level it had attained last December. The security situation permitting, I would then proceed to deploy additional observers up to the limit of 70, with an additional 15 medical personnel, as authorized by the Security Council in its resolution 1181 (1998) of 13 July 1998. In view of the security considerations, the need to improve medical and casualty evacuation capacity and the enhanced monitoring and observation role being played by UNOMSIL, an additional helicopter will be required.

50. UNOMSIL's intensive preparations for the intra-RUF and RUF-Government talks have required my Special Representative and his immediate staff to travel to Monrovia and Lomé, in addition to consulting closely with the Government in Freetown. In view of the likelihood that the peace talks and related activity will require a high level of United Nations involvement, I intend to increase the civilian staff in the office of my Special Representative by two political officers. The human rights section also needs to be restored to its previous staffing level of five persons in view of the significant human rights monitoring and technical cooperation requirements in Sierra Leone. In this connection, there is a need for forensic experts, and I would ask donors to consider making available their services.

51. UNOMSIL's military component, thus restored to its former strength, will continue to monitor the ceasefire within the limits of its resources. It will also continue to establish, maintain and improve contacts with local RUF commanders with a view to establishing joint military commissions. The functions of these commissions will include identifying and locating forces on the ground; obtaining written assurances from rebel commanders of their commitment to the ceasefire and guarantees of security for United Nations personnel; and generally to build confidence, facilitate contacts and resolve disputes. Provision would also be made for deploying teams of five or six members to Lungi, Hastings, Port Loko and Bo, depending on the security situation. Observers outside Freetown would be co-deployed with ECOMOG to ensure their security.

52. I have given much thought to activities that might be carried out by an expanded UNOMSIL presence in the event of a peace agreement. To that end, I dispatched a military assessment and planning team to Sierra Leone at the end of May to develop a revised concept of operations for a possible enlargement of the Mission.

53. My detailed recommendations to the Council on the size, mandate and configuration of an eventual expanded UNOMSIL will depend on the provisions of any peace agreement that the Government and RUF may sign in Lomé, and on the considerations on the ground, notably security.

54. One important consideration in redefining UNOMSIL's tasks would be the future strength, activities and state of deployment of ECOMOG. While these are not yet known, I would anticipate that ECOMOG would remain in Sierra Leone as a stabilizing influence, with a well-defined mandate that would include ensuring the security of vital areas of the country.

55. At this point, however, I envisage the need for UNOMSIL itself to be prepared to ensure the security of United Nations personnel if it is to deploy effectively to assist in the implementation of an eventual peace agreement. To this end, bearing in mind the likely security situation and the confused and unpredictable nature of the conflict, there might well prove to be a need for the deployment of a sizeable number of infantry and additional observers, along with the necessary equipment and military logistical support. Subject to Council authorization, these troops would be deployed in phases to accomplish a range of possible tasks.

56. These can be more precisely defined only in the light of an eventual peace agreement, but are likely to include the following:

- (a) Monitoring and supervising the ceasefire;

(b) Supervising, monitoring and assisting in the encampment, disarmament and demobilization of former combatants;

(c) Providing security to United Nations personnel, including military observers;

(d) Providing assistance to humanitarian efforts;

(e) Providing planning and logistical support for an eventual election.

57. I will revert to the Council with detailed proposals for a revised mandate and concept of operations for its consideration as soon as a peace agreement has been signed. However, in addition to the military requirements outlined above, I would also envisage a significant expansion of the civilian personnel, including those engaged in political, human rights and logistical support functions. Moreover, any enhanced role that UNOMSIL might play, whatever the final shape of the peace agreement, will benefit greatly from the acquisition of a nationwide broadcasting capacity. Experience has shown the clear advantages to a United Nations peacekeeping mission of access to its own radio facility. I would therefore appeal to donors to consider making such equipment available, and would envisage a modest increase in UNOMSIL's public information staff accordingly.

VIII. FINANCIAL ASPECTS

58. As indicated in my previous report (S/1999/237), the General Assembly, by its resolution 53/29 of 20 November 1998, appropriated an amount of $22 million for the establishment and operation of UNOMSIL for the period ending 30 June 1999. With regard to the subsequent 12-month period beginning on 1 July 1999, my budget submitted to the Assembly in February 1999 (A/53/454/Add.1) amounts to $16.4 million and provides for the maintenance of the Mission at the strength authorized by the Security Council in its resolution 1181 (1998). I intend to seek authorization from the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to use the budgeted resources once the Council takes action on my recommendation contained in paragraph 71 below as to the extension of the Observer Mission's mandate.

59. Therefore, should the Council decide to extend the mandate of UNOMSIL, the cost of restoring the Mission's military capacity to the level it had attained in December 1998 as well as its subsequent maintenance at the restored strength will be within the resources already provided by the General Assembly and my budgetary projections for the 1999/2000 financial period.

60. With regard to the estimated costs associated with the expansion of UNOMSIL, I shall submit my proposals to the General Assembly at a later date, when my detailed proposals for a revised mandate and concept of operations of the Mission will have been finalized and submitted to the Security Council for its consideration.

61. As at 31 May 1999, unpaid assessed contributions to the UNOMSIL special account amounted to $4.7 million. The total outstanding assessed contributions for all peacekeeping operations at that date amounted to $1.6 billion. Contributions to the Trust Fund to Support United Nations Peacekeeping-related Efforts amounted to $2.8 million, with expenditures authorized in the amount of $1.1 million.

IX. OBSERVATIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

62. Despite the continued unpredictability of the conflict situation in Sierra Leone, I am encouraged by the significant progress that has been made in the pursuit of dialogue between the Government of Sierra Leone and RUF. This is the first time in three years that a political settlement might be within reach to break the cycle of violence that has held the country in its grip since 1991. I welcome the Government's readiness to open talks with RUF, and call upon the latter to seize this opportunity to demonstrate its willingness to show flexibility in the interest of peace in Sierra Leone. In particular, as I stated publicly at the time, I welcome the signing on 18 May of the ceasefire agreement, which has helped to create an atmosphere conducive to the success of the peace talks. I reiterate my call to RUF/AFRC, CDF, the Government and ECOMOG to adhere strictly to its terms. I wish to express my appreciation to all the Governments concerned, in particular the Government of Togo and President Gnassingbe Eyadema, the current Chairman of ECOWAS, for hosting the talks, as well as the national and international organizations which have facilitated the dialogue process.

63. Nevertheless, the killings, mutilations and other human rights abuses perpetrated by rebel forces against the civilian population in Sierra Leone as well as the widespread destruction of property wreaked on a country which already ranks among the poorest in the world are deeply deplorable. Any armed opposition that expects to gain legitimacy and recognition in the eyes of the world must be prepared to renounce and atone for inflicting such suffering on non-combatants. I call upon the RUF leadership to prove its sincere commitment to peace and ensure the compliance of all its fighters with international human rights standards and humanitarian law, including the release of all abductees. In this context, I note the announcement made by the RUF leadership of its intention to investigate abuses committed by its troops and to invite international observers to take part in this process, and call upon them to demonstrate without delay their will and capacity to do so.

64. Concern about the extent of human rights violations in Sierra Leone has received increasing international attention. I welcome the intention of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mary Robinson, to visit Sierra Leone in late June to examine the situation on the ground and to obtain tangible commitments regarding the prevention of abuses and accountability of perpetrators. I am also gratified by the proposal by President Kabbah to establish a national Human Rights Commission in Sierra Leone as well as the creation of a truth and reconciliation mechanism as part of a peace agreement. These are important steps in acknowledging the pain of the victims and restoring national dignity and faith as part of efforts to achieve lasting peace, and these measures should receive all possible support from the donor community.

65. In this context, I also wish to commend the initiative of the ECOMOG Force Commander, Major-General Felix Mujakperuo, in establishing a Civil-Military Relations Committee to investigate allegations of human rights violations by pro-Government forces. These investigations are being undertaken with the full participation of representatives of all sectors of Sierra Leonean society, with the United Nations in an international observer role.

66. In line with the dual-track approach, ECOMOG deserves praise for its continued efforts in support of the Government and people of Sierra Leone, as do the Governments of Nigeria, Guinea, Ghana and Mali for their steadfast commitment towards restoring security and stability in Sierra Leone, with the assistance of donor countries, including Canada, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States. I call upon the international community to continue supporting ECOMOG logistically and also to assist the process of the rebuilding of the Sierra Leone armed forces.

67. There is also an urgent need to resume the process of disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of the current ex-combatants and to prepare the groundwork for an expansion of such activities as part of a peace agreement. I hope that the Government of Sierra Leone will continue to provide the necessary impetus to the national disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme and ensure its viability as an incentive for all rebel fighters willing to lay down their arms at this critical juncture in the peace process. It is also important for the Government to work closely with donors on the development of a revised disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan, with a well-defined operational plan and clear funding arrangements, to be put into effect in the context of a peace agreement.

68. There is an urgent need to consider how RUF/AFRC might be transformed into a legitimate political party in parallel with the process of reintegrating former combatants into society. I would also call for an end to all recruitment of children as soldiers, and would hope that any eventual peace agreement would embody commitments on the part of all parties to demobilize their child participants immediately. Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes should consider giving priority to children under 18.

69. The persistent reports of arms supplies reaching the rebel forces are disturbing. Any support for RUF/AFRC by outside parties serves to perpetuate the conflict in Sierra Leone, whether it be motivated by economic interests or other strategic aims. I reiterate my call to all States to comply strictly with the embargo on the sale or supply of arms and related matériel to non-governmental forces in Sierra Leone imposed by the Security Council in its resolution 1171 (1998).

70. The dire humanitarian situation underscores the need to establish mechanisms to ensure unhindered humanitarian access to all parts of the country and to promote effective coordination and cooperation between humanitarian agencies, the Government and RUF. There is a critical need to facilitate the delivery of humanitarian aid to people in need, which requires the protection of and respect for humanitarian relief workers, goods and properties. Negotiation for humanitarian access should be guided by the code of conduct for humanitarian agencies operating in Sierra Leone. While recognizing the considerable constraints of the present situation and from lessons learned negotiating humanitarian access in the Sierra Leone context, the humanitarian community is encouraged by the present political climate, and calls upon the international community for its continued support for humanitarian action. Specifically, the international community is urged to continue its support for dialogue with the aim of achieving unhindered humanitarian access to all areas of the country and, once granted, for their continued support of humanitarian assistance.

71. The recent political developments, including the signing of a ceasefire agreement and the start of the dialogue, have significant implications for the work of UNOMSIL. It is critical that the Mission, under the leadership of my Special Representative, should remain in a position to render effective assistance to the peace process in Sierra Leone. I therefore recommend the extension of UNOMSIL's mandate for a further period of six months, until 13 December 1999, along the lines described above. However, I would hope well within that time period to be in a position to revert to the Council with recommendations for an expanded mandate in implementation of a peace agreement.

72. I take this opportunity to express appreciation to my Special Representative, Francis G. Okelo, the Chief Military Observer, Brigadier General Subhash C. Joshi, and the staff and military observers of UNOMSIL for their tireless efforts and dedication to advance the peace process in Sierra Leone.

Human Rights Situation Report and Preliminary Technical Assistance Needs Assessment, 19 July 1998

UNOMSIL
HUMAN RIGHTS SITUATION REPORT AND PRELIMINARY TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE NEEDS ASSESSEMENT¹
19 JULY 1998

REBEL ACTIONS

The rebels are responsible for systematic and widespread perpetration of multiple forms of human rights abuse against the civilian population.

i. Death, injury and mutilation

The rebels, in recent weeks, have repeatedly shelled population centres such as Koidu and Daru. They have also used captive civilians as "human shields". There have been numerous instances of arbitrary execution, including of women and children. Executions have been carried out by gunshot and various other means. There are, for instance, reliable reports of killings in recent months by disembowelment (of a young girl), burning (for instance, of babies tied down on lighted mattresses) and beheading. It is reported that, on a number of occasions, the bodies of victims have been subsequently dismembered and otherwise violated.

Mortality rates as a result of military attack, targeted executions or death resulting from mutilations are not known. There are, however, certain indicators which assist in formulating approximations. For instance:

- (a) Civilians who survive attacks and seek medical care indicate that for every person who survives and reaches safety, at least four others are either killed or unaccounted for – over 600 people are reported to have sought medical care since March 1998 either in Sierra Leone or neighboring countries.

¹ This report has been prepared in the context of very limited resources and constraints of time. It does not purport to be comprehensive. Nor has the Government had the opportunity to comment on its contents. Attached hereto, however, is a needs assessment of the judicial system which the Chief Justice has asked be given priority attention by the donor community.

- (b) A survey in just nine Chiefdoms in the Northern Province (Sierra Leone has 150 Chiefdoms) indicated 700 civilian war-related deaths since February (including 200 in one village, Yifin, in late April)
- (c) A local source stated that 663 bodies were buried in the Koidu area following the fighting in the area in mid-June. A significant proportion of the bodies were of women and children.

The number of people subjected to mutilation can be estimated from the figures given at (a) above. These have occurred across an arc spanning from Koidu in the East, beyond Kabala in the North and to within 20 miles of Freetown in the West (with one isolated incident in the Freetown environs during June). The mutilations take the form of amputation of body parts, such as arms, ears, lips and legs, as well as the infliction of deep lacerations. They have generally been carried out in a systematic manner, often at the village chopping block and usually in the forced presence of family members of the victims. Some victims have been forced to express thanks to the perpetrators after the incidents. It is reported that female victims are frequently subjected to multiple rape.

During July the rate of mutilations has dropped considerably, though incidents continue to occur and victims of old attacks still trickle into medical centres.

Civilian injury rates from other forms of war related incident cannot be determined at this time. However, the figure just for the nine Chiefdom described above is reportedly 1,600 since February 1998, 30% of whom are children.

ii. Abduction

The rebels hold large numbers of civilian captives. These are used as porters, “human shields” and for forced sexual activity. They include men, women and children. It is difficult to estimate figures, though some suggest that there are some 10,000 captives

(most of whom are probably located in the Kailahun region). Though an unknown number of captives were released in the North East during June reports continue to be received of abductions in various locations in the Northern District.

It seems that a proportion of RUF/AFRC fighters were originally abducted, usually as children. For instance, in one Chiefdom in the Northeast, it is reported that all the rebel child combatants had been abducted (8 of them as recently as June). The initiation rites for new combatants reportedly include de-humanizing elements - information provided in this regard is withheld pending some form of verification.

iii. Destruction of homes

The rebel forces tend to destroy the property in villages which they attack. Though no definite figures are available, indications are of massive damage to the housing stock. For instance, the survey of nine chiefdoms, referred to above, reported the destruction of 1619 homes. 600 destroyed houses were counted in a survey of three other Chiefdoms. 60 houses in one village near Masingbi were destroyed on 12 July.

iv. Displacement

The rebel campaign of terror and military activities have resulted in the displacement of at least 350,000 people since February. Some 250,000 of these are now in Guinea and Liberia. The remainder are internally displaced in Sierra Leone. The continuation of the rebellion not only prevents return but also causes grave humanitarian problems for a significant element of the displaced population. For instance, within Sierra Leone, rebel actions, blocking or impeding movement of humanitarian assistance result in humanitarian emergencies. This was the case, for instance, in Masingbi, in early July, where lack of food, medicine and shelter materials, led to emergency level rates of mortality, malnutrition and illness (mainly measles). Refugees located just over the Guinea and Liberia borders are similarly affected by war-related blockage of access.

There are also allegations from the refugee camps in Guinea of actions by the authorities in contravention of the Refugee Convention, as well as of the presence of armed rebels.

THE PERIOD OF JUNTA RULE

Information continues to be received about human rights abuses perpetrated by forces loyal to the junta in the period before restoration of the Government. From all parts of the country there are reports of extra-judicial killings, rape, arbitrary detention, including for purposes of sexual abuse, torture of children (especially of child-combatants), forced labour, and the looting and destruction of residential and commercial premises and property. It will remain important to document these actions with a view to tackling issues of impunity and as an element in the process of promoting reconciliation and healing of society (see further below)

THE AFTERMATH OF JUNTA RULE

After the fall of the junta there were widespread acts of extra-judicial killings perpetrated against alleged junta collaborators. In just one town, Kenema, there are reports of at least 50 revenge killings. Some of those killed were children. Reports continue to be received, from locations such as Makeni, of arbitrary punishment imposed on alleged collaborators. There are ongoing reports of dismissals from employment or expulsion from schools and third level institutions after similar findings by superiors or ad-hoc investigation committees. The print media frequently purports to identify and condemn alleged collaborators. As a result of a continuing climate of fear it is reported that many alleged collaborators, including children, remain in hiding.

Sometimes the acts of intimidation directed against alleged collaborators contain elements of ethnic discrimination – this is, for instance the case regarding widespread vilification of the Lebanese community.

Issues of detention and deportation are discussed below.

HUMAN RIGHTS AWARENESS IN GOVERNMENT

The Government is sincerely committed to promotion of human rights in the context of consolidation of democracy. This is reflected by its ratification of a wide range of the international instruments and its unconditional welcome for the human rights activities of UNOMSIL. It has also been conscientious in making commitments on such matters as the demobilization of under-age combatants and the maintenance of high judicial standards in the treason trials. With the assistance of UNICEF, the Government has developed modalities to address issues of child rights.

The Government does, however, face difficulties in mainstreaming human rights perspectives in its policy and programme development and implementation. A lack of human rights technical expertise, economic limitations and the ongoing emergency are important constraints in this regard.

The State is not in compliance with its reporting obligations under international human rights instruments.

See further below.

THE TREASON TRIALS / COURTS-MARTIAL

The State is prosecuting 58 persons in the regular courts for charges, variously, of treason, murder and arson. Two further trials are scheduled to begin soon, as are courts-martial. All defendants, if found guilty, face the possibility of the death penalty. The trials occur in a context of widespread public anger and desire for quick justice.

The trials in the regular courts are being monitored by UNOMSIL. A number of procedural irregularities have been identified. However, UNOMSIL interventions have resulted in speedy rectification of the most egregious problems. Current concerns include the speed with which the State is propelling the proceedings, the often biased media coverage and the manner in which one judge treats defense counsel. UNOMSIL has made representations on all of these matters in recent days.

The Government has indicated that there will be no right of appeal from findings of the courts-martial. UNOMSIL has indicated its regret and continues to seek a change in this position.

EMERGENCY POWERS

A State of Emergency was declared on 10 March 1998. It gives the President wide powers to order extra-judicial detention and deportation, limit freedom of expression and impose curfews. Certain of these powers would appear to be practically necessary while the rebel war continues. However, there are some causes for concern:

- i. The regulations do not comply with the requirements for notification to the UN Secretary-General contained in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights
- ii. Elements of the regulations are broader than is permitted by the International Covenant (for instance, the powers to curtail freedom of expression are excessive and the provisions on deportation lack sufficient safeguards; concerning application of these powers see below)
- iii. At least 1,500 civilians and police officers are being detained pursuant to the regulations, almost all in very poor conditions. The Government acknowledges that many of these people are no threat to society. However, a committee, tasked with the vetting of detainees for release, which was established in May, has yet to commence its activities. It is reported in this regard that the Government faces logistical problems such as lack of the necessary office equipment and meeting facilities.

- iv. Large numbers of military personnel and surrendered rebels are also being held at a number of locations. This is not in itself a cause for concern. However, an unknown number of the detainees are child combatants. There are, for instance, 13 children detained at Jui camp. It is a matter of concern that these children are not separated from adult detainees. Also, given Government undertakings in this regard, it is regrettable that they are not speedily demobilized and placed in the care of child protection agencies. UNOMSIL is considering an appropriate form of intervention.
- v. There have been a number of deportations, principally of members of the Lebanese community. These have not been preceded by any form of judicial or appeal process. It seems that they may also have been accompanied by the confiscation of assets.
- vi. The Government has issued stern warning to the media to comply with the limitations on freedom of expression. As noted above these regulations are excessive. In practice, however, the Government has exercised restraint in this matter.
- vii. In recent weeks numbers of children (perhaps over 50) have been arrested in Freetown for curfew violation. Most of the children are displaced, newly arrived in the city and not "street-wise". The arrest and criminalisation of these children introduces them to a criminal lifestyle and is also a cause of great distress. UNOMSIL and other bodies are currently seeking to have the matter addressed.

UNOMSIL will bring its views on the State of Emergency to the attention of the Government and will offer its assistance in addressing the main concerns. See further below.

RIGHTS OF THE CHILD

Serious impediments to enjoyment of child rights have been noted above, in passim.

One of the gravest problems is the high numbers of child soldiers engaged both with the Government and the rebel forces. Figures are not presently available for the numbers of child soldiers. However, observation of CDF suggests a high proportion of children in this 20,000 to 40,000 strong force. Of 4,000 Kamajor in one Chiefdom, 151 are under 15 years of age. Reports from various locations indicate that children are still sent in to combat on a regular basis.

The Government has repeatedly reaffirmed its commitment to cease recruitment of and speedily reintegrate child soldiers into society. Action has not yet been taken in this regard. In June there were reports from the Tonkolili district in the North that initiation of children was still occurring.

Years of instability, the ongoing conflict and economic constraints have severely undermined the educational system. Especially outside Freetown, schools face such problems as lack of equipment and materials, destruction or alternative use of school property and a lack of respect for the teaching profession. Teachers, all very poorly paid, are reportedly under-motivated. Many IDP children do not attend school. Large numbers of children also remain out of the school system because of the economic necessity to work. One related problem in rural areas is the failure of school timetables to take account of the rhythms of agricultural life, whereby families require that their children work in the fields during certain periods (such as to frighten away birds during the planting season). The dropout rate of girls from secondary school is high. This is partly because girls who are sexually active or become pregnant are not encouraged to continue their education.

There is a high incidence of female genital mutilation in Sierra Leone. Difficulties in addressing the issue include an unwillingness of society to confront the problem and its entrenched position in traditional culture.

CIVIL DEFENCE FORCES

Until May 1998 there were widespread reports that the CDF paid no attention to such aspects of the laws of war as the rights of surrendered persons to be taken prisoner and not to be subjected to torture. Since then there has been a sharp drop in allegations of summary killing or of the torture of prisoners. This appears to be largely due to the insistence of Government and the intervention of ECOMOG. There are, however, persistent reports of CDF elements in the provinces committing criminal acts such as looting, confiscation of vehicles, assault and civil disturbance – all in a climate of impunity.

The persistent presence of children in the CDF is referred to above.

THE MEDIA

The print media is concentrated in Freetown and there is very limited distribution to other locations. The media, in any case, reach a very small readership because of high rates of illiteracy and the relatively high cost of newspapers. There are reportedly some 40 newspapers in print, though only some 15 of these are available on a regular basis. One is attached to the Government and the others take a varying range of independent positions. Occasionally the journalists take courageous outspoken positions. Frequently, however, material is of poor quality and is under-researched and inaccurate. Unprofessional reporting of the treason trials and news coverage, which promotes acts of revenge or discrimination, are noted above.

There is one Government controlled television station which, given under-resourcing and limited coverage, exerts very little influence.

In Sierra Leone radio is the most important mass medium. There are at least 4 stations in Freetown and one in Bo. Some of these take strongly independent position in support of democratic governance. Two of the channels re-transmit broadcasts of the BBC and Voice of America.

Government controls on the media pursuant to its Emergency Powers are discussed above. Suggestions for provision of technical assistance are made below.

FUNCTIONING OF THE JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Government concedes that the judicial system is entirely inadequate. Across the country, except in Freetown, the courts are not functioning and the system of traditional courts has largely collapsed. In Freetown there is only very limited activity and most resources are deployed to the treason trials. The decline of the system has been underway for years, largely prompted by lack of resources and, allegedly, corruption. The rebel war and the period of junta rule were the final blows to the system. The lack of an effective judicial system has resulted in wide public contempt for the judiciary and the legal profession, interminable pre-trial detention (in some cases for years) in overcrowded and unsuitable facilities and severe impediments to commercial life. There has also been a widely reported tendency for the police, civil defense forces and others to take the law into their own hands and administer extra-judicial punishments to alleged offenders.

Notwithstanding the gravity of the situation, some positive aspects of the judicial system have survived. These include a strong legal tradition, based on the English system, a pool of competent lawyers and senior judges and a functioning law school. Massive support is, however, needed to reestablish an effective system. Firstly, there is need for financial and managerial support to reestablish the physical infrastructure. Only with that in place, or in tandem with its provision, does the implementation of training, including human rights training, make sense. See further below.

FUNCTIONING OF DETENTION FACILITIES

Currently, 6 prisons are functioning. Prisoners are also held in an unverifiable number of other facilities, including police detention blocks and military camps. Most current detainees in the non-military facilities are being held pursuant to the Emergency Powers. Exact numbers of detainees are not available for the entire country - Freetown holds some 2,000 in its two prisons and in one of its police detention facilities.

Conditions in all detention facilities are poor. Even in the context of general poverty of society, prisoners receive inadequate food and are housed in unsanitary conditions. Overcrowding is endemic. For instance, one 90 square metre facility is reported to house some 70 prisoners. There is only one juvenile detention facility in the country and at other detention centres adult and juvenile prisoners are not always separated.

An apparently well-trained team of officers runs the officially designated prisons and there are few reports of deliberate mis-treatment. However, at least at the main prison in Freetown, their overall control of the facility has been ceded to ECOMOG which frequently impedes family visits, provision of chaplaincy services, etc. The police at police detention facilities, though often performing in a conscientious manner, are not trained for their functions.

HUMAN RIGHTS NATIONAL INSTITUTIONS AND ASSESSEMENT OF CIVIL SOCIETY

The Government has established the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights. This body is tasked with promotion of democratic and human rights values in society as well as the arbitration of individual human rights complaints against the authorities. The Commission is of potentially immense importance and is led by a well qualified and innovative Chairman. However, it currently lacks capacity to undertake effective outreach to all levels of society across the country. See further below.

There is a vigorous NGO community, located mainly in Freetown, but with increasingly effective outreach capacity to all parts of the country (except rebel occupied areas). Some of these groups are highly effective and benefit from strong leadership. The humanitarian assistance and developmental NGOs are grouped in a body termed, SLANGO. International developmental NGOs are similarly organized. NGOs with an interest in human rights issues are gathered in a Forum. A child rights monitoring network is in operation. UNOMSIL is currently facilitating development of a human rights information system, which draws in all the communities of NGOs.

The Christian and Muslim religions have a very strong presence throughout the country and, in a context of sincere and impressive ecumenism, have developed important networks for delivery of humanitarian assistance and promotion of human rights.

All of the NGOs and religious groups require support in order to develop capacity and effectiveness, including through provisions of training human rights monitoring and reporting. See below.

TECHNICAL COOPERATION PRELIMINARY NEEDS ASSESSEMENT

Provision of human rights technical assistance must take account of a number of factors:

- (a) The country remains in a State of Emergency and the rebel war has not yet ended. This need not impede delivery of assistance but requires to be factored into all programme development and implementation. It is no less necessary to ensure that a policy of delivery of assistance does not distract attention from the ongoing requirement to address the human rights emergency situation with a programme of, inter-alia, vigorous monitoring, reporting and appropriate intervention.
- (b) Prior to, or in tandem with, delivery of human rights technical assistance, the basic infrastructural needs must be addressed. For instance:
 - i. As noted above, the judicial system needs such basic things as buildings, furniture, office equipment, vehicles, training for clerks and stenographers, etc. Without these, the delivery of human rights training and resources will be futile. Herewith, as an appendix to this report is a statement of needs which was furnished to us by the Master of the High Court of Sierra Leone. The Chief Justice has endorsed the document. It identifies immediate and compelling requirements.

- ii. Human rights training for the police can be effectively delivered only as part of a scheme for police reform, downsizing, professionalisation, equipping and comprehensive training in police skills
- iii. Delivery of human rights training in schools must be preceded or accompanied by an overhaul of the educational system and an addressing of the root causes of truancy, early drop out rates and poor standards of education delivery
- iv. Provision of advice regarding legislative reform requires to be accompanied by development of legal drafting skills, reform or support to the Parliamentary committee system and development of other parliamentary skills for both majority and opposition members

Taking the above remarks into account it is suggested that a programme of human rights technical cooperation might include the following elements:

1. Promotion of human rights sensitivity in Government policy, planning and programme development and implementation. This could, for instance, be achieved through placement of a human rights expert in the Office of the President or in the office of a cabinet rank minister with responsibility for human rights. The expert would be tasked with development of a human rights integration programme, servicing of the bodies that require to be established, and identification and supervision of delivery of all necessary training.

2. Provision of training and assistance to officials tasked with preparation of periodic reports under the International Human Rights Instruments, and to all relevant officials and law officers regarding application of the Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.
3. Provision of ethnical support for the review and amendment of the Emergency Powers regulations.
4. Technical support to the National Commission for Democracy and Human Rights, including as regards its outreach and project delivery capacity. Also, it would be valuable to either enhance its Ombudsperson role or else to devise a new national institution (perhaps a parliamentary body) to undertake the Ombudsperson function.
5. Development or support to a national programme on women's rights, including development of culturally sensitive strategies to tackle issues of female genital mutilation.
6. Provision of human rights training for police and prison officials – using a train the trainers methodology within the context of existing professional training academies in Sierra Leone.
7. Provision of human rights training to the Paramount Chiefs and other traditional leaders in the context of their governmental and judicial functions.
8. Provision of human rights training and materials for lawyers – using a train the trainers methodology within the context of existing professional training academies in Sierra Leone.
9. Support for a project which would chronicle the human rights situation during the period of junta rule. This exercise would undermine the mythologisation phenomenon, contribute to the process of healing and reconciliation and help address problems of impunity. A full project proposal paper has been prepared and is currently circulating for comments.

10. Support and input to projects for promotion of human rights awareness in the population. There are already some projects in this sector – including those funded by UNDP, USAID (OTI) and, forthcoming, OHCHR.
11. Provision of human rights monitoring, reporting and intervention training to NGOs, using a train the trainer methodology.
12. Provision of training to the media on relevant issues of human rights as well as in journalistic professional standards

UNOMSIL looks forward to further developing these suggestions, in close consultation with the High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Government, with a view to timely and sustainable response to Sierra Leone's compelling human rights needs.

Sierra Leone Humanitarian Situation Report 08 - 14 Jul 1997

This report has been prepared by the office of the United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator for Sierra Leone in Conakry, Guinea

SECURITY

1. On 9 July, the Peoples Army attacked Lungi Airport in a bid to break through ECOMOGs outer security perimeter and destroy the 98.1 FM radio station which has recently served as a mouthpiece for President Kabbah and which they believed to be in the area. (See point seven below). The attack was comprehensively repulsed by ECOMOG troops and reliable Freetown sources have reported that at least 350 Peoples Army soldiers were killed by a combination of Nigerian and Guinean forces. The RUF commander who led the attack, Sam Bockarie (known as Mosquito) was injured in the foot during the fighting and has been seen in hospital by reliable eyewitnesses.

2. During the weekend of 12-13 July, the Peoples Army suffered another significant setback during fighting with Nigerian forces involving heavy artillery in the Jui and Hastings area. Although precise numbers of casualties are unknown, two trucks laden with corpses were observed returning to Freetown on the afternoon of 13th July. While the Nigerians suffered some casualties, the Peoples Army clearly incurred far more severe losses. ICRC reported 26 newly-wounded civilians at Netland and Connaught hospitals on 14 July. AFRC claims that Nigerian troops that were using Guineans as human shields have been ridiculed by ECOMOG Force Commander, Victor Malu. An ECOMOG warplane was observed flying over Freetown at the start of the fighting, but it was not seen to have dropped any ordnance.

3. Nigerian troops are now in control of Hastings Airport and the area up to and including Allen town. Residents from these areas are relocating in large numbers to the hills and into central Freetown. The main road out of Freetown is effectively closed as few vehicles have been observed on this route since 13 July. In Freetown, the Peoples Army have been preparing heavy machine gun positions on the high ground in the Hill station area. Some of these guns are mounted on the back of pick-up trucks and are mobile.

4. There has been sporadic but intense fighting between the RUF and the kamajors during the past week in the Zimmi area and an estimated 1,500 civilians and 300 kamajors are believed to have been forced into Liberia. Control of the strategically-important Bo Waterside bridge on the Sierra Leone/Liberia border has fluctuated between the two sides. Although the RUF was believed to have taken the bridge earlier in the week, Chief Norman, Deputy Minister of Defense and de facto leader of the kamajors, reported that the kamajors were in control of the bridge on 14 July.

5. The Kenema-Kono highway, which was previously controlled by the kamajors, has now been secured by the Peoples Army following AFRC/RUF re-enforcement of the area.

POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

6. The date of Major Koromas proposed meeting with the ECOWAS committee of four has been changed from 15 July to 17 July. The meeting is scheduled to take place in Abidjan and not in Conakry.

7. President Kabbah has made several broadcasts to Sierra Leone over the 98.1 FM radio station which have proved to be a considerable irritant to the AFRC. In his first broadcast on 8 July, Kabbah urged the AFRC to step down to spare the people of Sierra Leone further pain and suffering. He also ordered soldiers and RUF to report to the nearest ECOMOG base and declare their loyalty. This tactic has been partially successful as several AFRC soldiers have since surrendered to Nigerian forces at Lungi.

8. On 8 July, in an attempt to undermine the impact of Kabbah's broadcast which took place earlier in the day, the AFRC announced its 19 member Cabinet. The majority of the posts are filled by former representatives of the National Provisional Ruling Council (NPRC). For example, Captain SAJ Musa, Secretary of Mineral Resources and Chief Secretary; Victor Brandon, Secretary of Development and Economic Planning; Col. Dr. KIS Kamara, Secretary of Health and Sanitation; Major Kula Samba, Secretary of Social Welfare, Children and Gender Affairs.

9. The Finance Secretary, Joe Amara Bangali, was a former minister in the APC and the Foreign Secretary; Dr. Paolo Bangura, was a former Ambassador to the UN. The RUF are represented through the appointment of Foday Sankoh as Deputy Chairman and SB Rogers as Acting Secretary of Lands and Environment. Two portfolios, namely Trade, Industry and State Enterprises and Energy and Power, have not been filled but the posts have been reserved for representatives of the Peoples Army. 37 posts in the Supreme Council have also been created, but only 22 have been filled to date. The extent to which nominees were consulted prior to their appointment is debatable. In a radio broadcast on BBC's Focus, Mr. Saaba Tumor, who was appointed Director of Information and Broadcasting, denied all knowledge of his appointment.

10. In a statement issued on 11 July following its meeting with the Committee of the four ECOWAS Foreign Ministers, the UN Security Council reiterated its view that the attempt to overthrow President Kabbah's government was unacceptable and called for the immediate and unconditional restoration of constitutional order in Sierra Leone. The Security Council expressed deep concern over the negative humanitarian consequences of the continuing crisis in Sierra Leone as well as its threat to regional stability. The Security Council welcomed the mediation efforts initiated by ECOWAS and expressed its full support for these efforts as set out in the communique issued at the meeting of the ECOWAS Foreign Ministers in Conakry on 26 June. Finally, the Security Council stated that it would continue to follow the progress of efforts aimed at the peaceful resolution of the crisis and that it was ready to consider appropriate measures if constitutional order in Sierra Leone is not restored without delay.

11. The Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group, on which nine different Commonwealth countries are represented, convened on 10-11 July to review developments in Gambia, Nigeria and Sierra Leone. In its discussions on Sierra Leone, the Group urged the international community to continue to deny recognition to the AFRC and decided that participation of Sierra Leone in the councils of the Commonwealth would be suspended pending the restoration of legitimate government.

12. On 10 July, the EU issued a statement welcoming ECOWAS efforts to resolve the crisis in Sierra Leone. The EU particularly, welcomed the inclusion of the OAU on the ECOWAS committee of Four. With regard to its aid programme, it was stated that Pending the return of the legitimate government to Freetown . . . the EU maintains its view that development aid to Sierra Leone cannot be continued in the present circumstances.

HUMANITARIAN DEVELOPMENTS

13. The Inter-Agency Standing Committee (IASC) has endorsed the joint UN/NGO Strategy and protocols for Sierra Leone as well as the United Nations Strategy for Inter-Agency Emergency Humanitarian Response. See Sitrep dated 24-30 June for more details. The US-based NGO consortium, INTERACTION, has also expressed written support for these strategies.

14. There has been much speculation over the status of the embargo in Sierra Leone as envisaged in the ECOWAS communique. There is no doubt that there are four Nigerian warships off the coast of the Western Area as at 14 July. Although these vessels are not visible to Freetown residents, they have successfully prevented commercial ships from docking at Freetowns port. Rocketing insurance premiums have also been a significant deterrent to shipping companies. There have, however, been many reports of pirogues and other small vessels successfully circumventing the blockade.

15. Media reports of an influx of a million people into Bo town are hugely exaggerated. ACF and MSF, both of whom have a presence in Bo estimate that less than 10,000 people have moved into Bo since the coup.

FOOD AID

16. The increase of the price of rice in Freetown to 40,000 leones per bag from its previous cost of 25,000 leones per bag is a clear indication that rice shortages are becoming increasingly acute. Although retailers still have rice available in their stores, wholesalers have exhausted their stocks as no food vessels have arrived in Freetown since the coup. Attempts by the business community to import rice into Freetown at the request of the AFRC have been unsuccessful primarily due to the exorbitant cost of insurance. Food agencies have managed to transport limited quantities of commodities (approximately 500 MTs) to Makeni and Bo during the past week. There is still a capacity of approximately 1,400 MTs in warehouses in Port Loko and Kambia.

17. The food aid pipeline for humanitarian relief remains healthy. Providing there are no unforeseen complications, there will be 10,000 MTs of food aid in Conakry available for programmes in Sierra Leone by the end of July. Another 5,000 MTs of food commodities are due to arrive in Conakry during August 1997. Distribution modalities will be determined by the Committees on Food Aid.

18. Existing targeted feeding programmes as outlined in previous sitreps continue. A one-off emergency distribution is being planned for approximately 8,000 displaced in Kabala in Koinedugu district in the Northern province of Sierra Leone. As the normal population of Kabala is estimated to be 10,000 people, this new influx is putting considerable strain on the coping mechanisms of the local population.

HEALTH

19. Freetown. There is a concern over the maintenance of the drug pipeline for the eight clinics currently being operated by ICRC, SLRC and MSF in Freetown. Staff from these agencies are investigating how long existing stocks will last. The caseload for the ICRC/MSF surgical programme has continued to decrease notwithstanding recent admissions due to the fighting in the vicinity of Hastings. ActionAid has agreed to make incentive payments to Blue Flag volunteers working on cholera prevention in Freetown.

20. Bo. An assessment of the MSF-supported hospital in Bo on 5 July revealed that the hospital building has not been damaged by recent fighting although the emergency department is still under rehabilitation. There is deemed to be sufficient local surgical capacity to treat casualties from possible future clashes. There were only 40 in-patients in the hospital as at 5 July this is attributable to insecurity and inaccessibility due to poor public transport to local areas.

21. Kenema. Merlin continues to support the Kenema government hospital in the Under Five clinics (the Pediatric Ward and the Lassa Fever Ward). Support is provided through the provision of therapeutic and supplementary foodstuffs and essential drugs and equipment. Merlin also plays a supervisory role as well as enhancing cholera preparedness. The programme is supervised by Merlins Medical Coordinator who is based in Monrovia. Although Merlins drug supplies were left intact, the pharmacy in Kenema hospital was completely looted. ICRC is seeing an average of 800 patients per week at the Nongowa clinic in Kenema. Drugs are provided by ICRC, Merlin and UNICEF.

CHILD PROTECTION

22. Although the family tracing and reunification network in Sierra Leone was temporarily disrupted by the coup and the departure of several key staff, efforts are being made to restart the reunification programme as the regional focus organisations, ADRA and Christian Brothers are still operational.

23. At the first Child Protection meeting in Conakry on 7 July, it was acknowledged that there were several impediments to successful implementation of child protection/demobilisation programmes in addition to security constraints namely: lack of reliable numbers of child soldiers as the only source of information was the former Disarmament, Demobilisation and Reintegration (DDR) Unit under MNRRR; uncertainty over potential AFRC counterparts (e.g., the former programme manager of the DDR Unit, Major Kula Samba, is now Secretary of Social Welfare, Children and General Affairs and the former Army Chief of Staff, Col. Max Kanga is now Director of the National Relief, Rehabilitation and Demobilisation Commissions); the degree to which any programme might apply to the kamajors; and the current capacity of NGOs to implement any programmes. UNICEF is exploring the possibility of a pilot demobilisation project for 50-100 children to test the publicly-stated commitment of the AFRC to demobilisation of child soldiers.

REFUGEES

24. Concern Worldwide, the Irish NGO which still has one expatriate in Freetown, has reported that a caseload of 7,700 Liberian refugees have been receiving WFP food on a regular basis since the coup. All Liberian refugees have moved out of Jui camp to Waterloo camp, Clay Factory Camp and Freetown. Concern Worldwide continues to run a medical and therapeutic feeding programmes in Segbwema.

25. 200 of the 489 Sierra Leonean refugees who have been living in Waterloo camp in Freetown since their repatriation prior to the coup have indicated that they would like to return to their areas of origin. The first group of 40 will return by bus to the Eastern province as soon as possible.

SECURITY

1a). During the night of the 3 September Nigerian forces at Lungi shelled a Greek-Cypriot registered vessel with a cargo of rice, anchored off Destruction Bay near the Eastern coast of Freetown, in an attempt to enforce the embargo imposed by ECOWAS against the AFRC. On 4 September it transpired that civilian residences in 3 different areas bordering Destruction Bay had been hit. Estimates of numbers of casualties vary from 20-50 but it is confirmed that 13 corpses were subsequently laid by the AFRC outside UN House in the centre of Freetown. Doctors reported treating 17 wounded at Connaught hospital.

1b). On 4 September General Malu, ECOMOG commander in Monrovia, stated on BBCs Focus on Africa that there had been massive firing from the area of Fourah Bay College, which is situated on a hill overlooking Freetown, and Willberforce barracks at the time that the shelling near Destruction Bay took place. He added that there were no ECOMOG troops in these areas. Eyewitnesses also report having seen signs of fire from AFRC positions at Fourah Bay College. President Kabbah denied that Nigerian forces had been responsible for the deaths in a broadcast on 98.1 FM, the clandestine radio station located in the vicinity of Lungi. A statement issued by Nigerian Defence Headquarters in Lagos accused the AFRC of firing on civilians and ECOMOG positions on 4 September and stated that the AFRC had declared total war on ECOMOG forces at Lungi.

1c). An AFRC spokesman subsequently stated that The Nigerians shelled the coastal area of Freetown... just to kill our civilians. In a nationwide broadcast on 4 September Major Koroma, Chairman of the AFRC, accused President Kabbah of ordering the carnage which the Nigerian troops have embarked on. He also declared 5 September a public holiday to respect the dead. Graphic images of dismembered corpses were repeatedly shown on television following the incident. A crowd of several hundred people marched from Freetown towards Nigerian troop positions at Jui to protest against this incident.

2. On 7 September two Nigerian combat aircraft attempted to bomb the Greek-Cypriot registered vessel and two other vessels off loading rice at Freetown port. Two bombs were dropped from the aircraft, one of which detonated causing partial damage to one of the vessels, equipment and nearby vehicles. ECOMOG reported that the other bomb failed to detonate.

3. On 4 September an ECOMOG statement said that eleven ECOMOG soldiers were killed and three wounded in a landmine explosion near Lungi international airport. The statement blamed AFRC forces for laying the mine, and characterised the use of mines as an inhumane practice which posed more dangers to civilians than the ECOMOG troops.

POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS

4. At consultations of the United Nations Security Council it was decided that any further action vis-a-vis the ECOWAS embargo should be postponed until the Security Council had the opportunity to discuss the issues in more detail with representatives from the ECOWAS Committee of Five Foreign Ministers. The Committee of Five will brief the UN Secretary-General on 11 September. The Nigerian Foreign Minister has already met Robert Mugabe, OAU Chairman, to explain the outcome of the ECOWAS summit.

HUMANITARIAN DEVELOPMENTS

5. Attempts are being made by the United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator in Conakry to determine on behalf of the humanitarian community the procedure for obtaining exemptions for humanitarian items under the ECOWAS embargo (see point 4, sitrep dated 23 August-1 September). In a meeting with UN Agencies on 8 September President Kabbah said that sanctions-related enquiries should be addressed to General Malu, ECOMOG Force Commander in Liberia. Attempts are also being made to arrange a meeting with the appropriate Guinean authorities and the ECOWAS Secretariat.

6. During the week under review a European Union fact finding mission visited Conakry to evaluate the humanitarian situation in Sierra Leone since the coup on 25 May and to assess the impact of the coup on the Republic of Guinea. The mission included representatives from France, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Sweden, Great Britain and ECHO (from Europe) and Italy, Great Britain and the EU delegation (from Guinea). The mission met representatives from UN Agencies from Sierra Leone and Guinea, the diplomatic community, NGOs and representatives from President Kabbah's Government. The mission was also briefed by the various sectoral committees and visited the refugee camps near Forecariah. The Swedish representative visited the refugee camps near Gueckedou.

7. In a statement issued following its meeting with the EU mission the Government of Sierra Leone in exile (GoSL) expressed appreciation for the EU's humanitarian support since the coup. The statement explained the GoSL's position on humanitarian assistance and sanctions as follows:

a) The GoSL recognised the humanitarian problems affecting the civilian population since the coup but did not believe that they had reached crisis proportions. Medical assistance to cover potential epidemics might be needed by there was no requirement for large-scale intervention.

b) The delivery of humanitarian aid should take into account the ECOWAS position as explained in the communique following the Abuja summit in August 1997.

c) The GoSL was concerned that an influx of aid agencies might create a false sense of normalcy which would give the AFRC undeserved credibility.

d) The GoSL felt that humanitarian assistance was bound to be misappropriated or looted by the AFRC Aid agencies should, therefore, adopt an ethical code of conduct on aid distribution. (Note: A Code of Conduct and Specific Operating Guidelines were drawn up and endorsed by humanitarian agencies in June 1997).

e) The GoSL does not intend sanctions to be used as a means of harming the civilian population.

8. The GoSL appealed for funding from the EU to support ECOMOG to enable it to fulfil its mandate and to organise conferences on Sierra Leone to solicit support from the international community. The first of these conferences would be held in Great Britain in October 1997.

FOOD AID

9. The most recent tally reveals a total of 6,300 MTs relief food available in Sierra Leone, less than previously thought. Consequently, food agencies are investigating the possibility of launching cross border operations through Guinea to address existing shortages. In Freetown ICRC reported that some 3,000 beneficiaries in 28 institutions were supplied in August with enough food until December 1997.

HEALTH

10. UNICEF has reported more outbreaks of measles in two different chiefdoms in Koinadugu district in the Northern province of Sierra Leone. 400 cases and 100 deaths have been recorded in Wara Ware Bafodea chiefdom and 200 cases and 60 deaths in Niene chiefdom.

11. ICRC recently conducted a rapid nutritional assessment of 400 children in Joru in the Southern part of Kenema district using Mid Upper Arm Circumference (MUAC) measurements. The survey revealed severe acute malnutrition at 13 percent and global acute malnutrition at 30 percent. ICRC is currently conducting further assessments to determine the extent to which these results are representative. They do, however, suggest that the nutritional status of populations in other inaccessible, rural areas is likely to be poor.

FAMILY TRACING

12. A network of messages exchange is currently being run in Sierra Leone by the ICRC in cooperation with the Sierra Leone Red Cross (SLRC). The exchange of Red Cross messages has greatly increased in number over the last months. In August there was an average of 400 messages distributed or emitted each week between members of separated families between Sierra Leone, Liberia, Guinea and other countries.

13. The Kenema District Diocesan Office (KDDO), the child protection focal NGO in Kenema, has reported that they are caring for 664 unaccompanied children in day-care centers, most of whom have been placed with foster families pending tracing and reunification. Christian Brothers, the focal NOG for Bo, reported having reunified 632 unaccompanied children. Of the children still not reunified, 208 are in Group Homes, 720 in substitute families and 120 in supervised foster care.

CHILDREN PROTECTION

14. ADRA/CAW have completed their five day mission to the Northern province during which they established child protection committees in Port Loko, Kambia, Lunsar and Makeni to be chaired by the Catholic church. The mission documented the 48 children associated with the RUF living with their families in Port Loko and prepared a small community project to address their needs. The Planning Framework for Demobilisation of Child Combatants was reviewed with the Bishop of Makeni who has access to approximately 250 RUF children in the area. To date, ADRA has registered a total of 130 children associated with the RUF, 49 in Makeni and 81 in the Western Area.

Executive summary

1. In mid-April when the Panel embarked upon its mandate there were active hostilities in the three Mano River Union countries (Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia). Six months on, there are significant signs of improvement in the region. Welcome regional diplomatic efforts are under way to further improve bilateral relations between the three members of the Mano River Union although there is still active conflict in Lofa County in Liberia and the possibility of Sierra Leone gravitating back into the conflict if RUF does not want to release its hold on some of the best diamond areas.

2. There has been a proliferation of the use of non-state actors in these conflicts in the Mano River Union. These groups obtain weapons from state supporters, from their trade in diamonds, alluvial gold, cocoa and coffee or from their military action. Their actions have had and can again destabilize the region. The junction of the borders of Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone has been the fault zone where these groups have thrived.

3. The Revolutionary United Front's (RUF) relationship with Liberia was described in detail in the Panel of Experts report on Sierra Leone (S/2000/1195). In 2001 this relationship has continued, although a split is reported among RUF units that are willing to disarm in Sierra Leone and others that continue to fight in the war that has shifted to the Liberian and Guinean borders. Throughout 2001, RUF units have been fighting with Liberian units in Lofa County.

Transportation and weapons

Lifting of the sanctions on Liberian registered aircraft

4. Irregularities with respect to Liberian registered aircraft were directly related to violations of the arms embargo. This is why the Security Council decided to ground all Liberian registered aircraft until a new and proper registration process, in compliance with international civil aviation regulations, would be put in place. The Panel has closely monitored the progress made in this field and has worked consistently with the new Director of Civil Aviation in Liberia in order to find a way out of the disorderly situation the registry was in. Bits and pieces of documentation on the ownership of many aircraft were gradually found in Liberia and through communication with other civil aviation authorities. By the time the Panel last visited Liberia in the first week of October 2001, 117 planes had been identified on the basis of this information.

5. The problem of Liberian registered aircraft is not yet fully solved because some aircraft may still be operating abroad with an EL-prefix painted on the tail, despite the revocation by Liberia. But this is a matter that is beyond the control of the Liberian Civil Aviation Authority and should be dealt with on the level of the airports where these planes are seen and can be grounded.

Recommendation on Liberian registry

6. The Panel considers that the measures taken so far by the Liberian Civil Aviation Authority are adequate and that the Security Council may consider lifting the grounding order imposed by resolution 1343 (2001) and allow Liberia to reopen an aircraft register in coordination with International Civil Aviation Organization

(ICAO). Those individual aircraft that were effectively grounded and have provided ICAO and the Security Council Committee on Liberia with the documentation showing their registration in Liberia was done in accordance with international regulations, should be given permission to restart their operations.

7. The Liberian Civil Aviation Authority should keep the Security Council Committee on Liberia and the ICAO informed on the follow-up of the investigation and on the registration of every new aircraft on the new Liberian register.

Role of transportation in arms trafficking

8. In most of the arms trafficking cases the Panel investigated, the transport factor seemed once again a crucial element and in all of these cases the planes that were used, had in one way or another been subject to document fraud, forgery of flight plans and irregularities with respect to the registration of aircraft. The Panel found evidence of fraudulent registrations, not only in Liberia, but also in the Central African Republic and to a certain extent in Equatorial Guinea too. The registrations of the aircraft from Centrafrique Airlines in the Central African Republic are of particular importance because these planes were used for arms transportation in violation of the sanctions on Liberia.

Recommendations on illegal aircraft registrations

9. In view of the aircraft registration fraud committed in the Central African Republic, the Panel recommends that the Civil Aviation Authorities there:

- Transmit to Interpol the Court documents about Centrafrique Airlines;
- Publish these Court documents on the Government's web site;
- Coordinate urgently with Equatorial Guinea and the United Arab Emirates over the use by Centrafrique Airlines of forged documents.

10. To other States, the Panel recommends that the Central African Republic, Equatorial Guinea and other African States affected by this type of fraud coordinate with the African Civil Aviation Commission to put the issue of false registrations as an agenda item for its future meetings.

11. During its investigations the Panel found illegally registered aircraft an endemic problem. The Panel travelled to Montreal to discuss the problem with ICAO's Air Navigation Bureau Director. He informed the Panel that countries with an illegal registration problem could cancel or ground aircraft, and that ICAO advised in such circumstances new registration. The Panel felt that ICAO's response was inadequate to deal with this growing problem.

12. To ICAO, the Panel recommends that:

- ICAO proactively educates its members on the dangers of illegal registrations;
- ICAO's member States computerize their registration lists and centralize them on the ICAO web site so that users could check the situation and status of each aircraft;
- ICAO's Safety Oversight programme should place greater emphasis on aircraft registration.

13. To the United Nations Security Council, the Panel recommends that all the aircraft owned, operated or insured by San Air, Centrafican Airlines and West Africa Air Services should be grounded immediately. The grounding order could then be lifted gradually for each individual aircraft, provided all the records (ownership of the plane, operator, operating licence, insurance, airworthiness certificate, certificate of registration and the location of the aircraft) are inspected by both the Civil Aviation Authority in the country of registration and in the country where the aircraft has its maintenance base.

14. The companies concerned should inform the Council, through the Security Council Committee on Liberia, on the exact status and location of each aircraft. A list of those planes is found in annex 3 to the report.

Weapons

15. The Liberian Government's public commitments to comply with the embargo notwithstanding, a steady flow of new weapons continues to enter into the country. The Panel documents in this report five detailed case studies on sanctions violations.

16. Case study one describes how thousands of machine-guns found their way to Liberia in November 2000. The weapons were supposed to be sent back from Uganda to Slovakia but the Egyptian arms broker sold them to a company in Guinea that turned out to be a front for a Liberian smuggling network. The End-User Certificate for Guinea was forged and the plane used for the transport of the guns was chartered by Centrafican Airlines.

17. In case study two it is shown how Liberia set up a ghost airline West Africa Air Services to transport several arms cargoes. A first flight in July 2000 shipped spare parts for military helicopters from Kyrgyzstan to Liberia. A forged End-User Certificate for a company in Guinea was again used to buy the military equipment. Directly after that the plane shuttled between Monrovia and Abidjan (Côte d'Ivoire) to bring over 100 tons of ammunition to Liberia. This deal was organized and financed by Leonid Minin and a partner in Russia, Valery Cherny of the company Aviatrend. Minin was later found in possession of forged duplicates of an End-User Certificate that had been signed by General Robert Gueï, the former head of State of Côte d'Ivoire.

18. In a third case study the Panel describes Liberia's recent quest to obtain additional military helicopters. The Panel was informed that a military helicopter had been seized in the Slovak Republic in February 2001. The Slovak authorities wanted to ship the helicopter back to Kyrgyzstan after repairs had been done.

19. However, in Kyrgyzstan the authorities were not aware of any repair contract for helicopters in the Slovak Republic. According to the broker Kyrgyzstan had dealt with, the helicopters were to go to Guinea. According to the contract signed in Slovakia they were supposed to go back to Kyrgyzstan. Again a false End-User Certificate for Guinea showed up in this case. Had the helicopter not been stopped by customs, it would have gone to Liberia. A second consignment of helicopters was, right after the debacle in Slovakia, seized in Moldova. There two military helicopters were about to be exported to Guinea for repairs.

20. However, Guinea has no repair plant for helicopters and the companies, brokers and transport agents involved in this case were those that were involved in the previous case of sanctions-busting to Liberia. The contract with the Guinean brokering company, Pecos was finally cancelled after the intervention of the authorities in Moldova and after a visit of the Panel to that country.

21. In another case study false End-User Certificates used by the company Pecos in Guinea is analysed. The individuals involved were operating in Central and Eastern Europe but had set up an off-the-shelf company, Pecos, in Guinea. End-User Certificates for this company were found in Kyrgyzstan, in Moldova, the Slovak Republic and Uganda. In all the cases, arms were bought for Liberia and the Panel verified that Guinea had never ordered any weapons through Pecos. Pecos was a follow-up to another company Joy Slovakia that had stopped operating after several law enforcement agencies had started investigating possible arms trafficking and money-laundering cases. The Panel found that the scheme set up with End-User certificates fabricated by the individuals involved with these companies, had been used to supply weapons to Liberia for years.

22. Finally, an analysis is made of the aviation network involved in these arms supplies to Liberia. The evidence on the involvement of Serguei Denissenko, Alexander Islamov, Pavel Popov and Sanjivan Ruprah is overwhelming. All these individuals are directly connected to Victor Bout and the operations of his aircraft. The Panel has investigated the corporate relationships between the companies San Air, Centrafrique Airlines, MoldTransavia and West Africa Air Services, all related to this network of arms dealers. In the course of the investigation different forms of fraud were found, including fraud with the registration of aircraft and with flight plans. The main company behind many of the arms shipments was San Air, in the United Arab Emirates. San Air is an agent for Centrafrique Airlines, the main company of Victor Bout, and the owner of many of the arms trafficking planes involved. San Air's bank accounts were used for many payments for arms deliveries to Liberia and the money trail is described in the section on government expenditures.

23. The Panel also documents in this report, how the Singapore-based mother company of the Oriental Timber Company, a company with significant timber operations in Liberia, arranged a US$ 500,000 payment for an arms shipment in August 1999; how the Bureau of Maritime Affairs in Liberia assisted violations of the arms embargo and paid directly to Victor Bout's San Air bank accounts and how Sanjivan Ruprah, a diamond dealer and partner of Victor Bout had taken residence in Liberia, at the end of the arms pipeline.

Recommendations on weapons

24. The Panel recommends that:

- The arms embargo on Liberia be extended;
- All United Nations Member States abstain from supplying weapons to the Mano River Union countries;
- An arms embargo be imposed on the armed non-state actors in the three Mano River Union countries (namely the LURD and Ulimo-factions, the RUF and the Guinean armed dissident groups).

25. The Panel also recommends that, for reasons of transparency and confidence-building, the ECOWAS moratorium on small arms should be broadened to an information exchange mechanism for all weapons types procured by the ECOWAS member States. The existing Programme for Coordination and Assistance for Security and Development (PCASED) could be further developed to improve the information exchange on current holdings and future arms procurement of West African States. The Panel recommends that this information exchange would be binding and that both supplier States and the receiving countries would be obliged to report each individual arms transaction to the newly established mechanism and include data on all the parties to the arms transactions, including the names and companies of the brokers and the transport agents.

Recommendation on End-User Certificates

26. The Panel recommends that each Member State that has ever procured or supplied arms on the basis of an End-User Certificate mentioning the companies Pecos, Joy Slovakia and/or Morse or the individuals Peter Jusko, Alexander Islamov, Jacob Berger, Andrei Izdebski or Serguei Schwabenland, conduct a thorough investigation on the actual delivery and end-use of the arms. The Panel recommends that the member States involved in any such transactions inform the other State party to these transactions and inform the Security Council Committees on Sierra Leone and Liberia on the findings of their investigation.

27. The Panel urgently recommends the establishment of a United Nations working group to develop the modalities for a standardized End-User Certificate that would include the name, address and telephone number of the signing authority for the Certificate, and name, address, telephone number and arms trading licence of the broker(s) involved.

Liberian Government use of revenue

28. The Panel examined the sources and management of government funds in an effort to establish the financing for sanctions-busting. The principal source of revenue for these activities between 1999 and 2001 was off-budget spending that was not part of regular government expenditures.

29. These expenditures occurred outside the budget process through the allocation of revenue at the source rather than through the central bank. According to IMF "certain timber concessions, government parastatals, and revenue collection agencies undertook expenditure on behalf of government, that was later recorded as "non-cash" revenue with an offsetting outlay on goods and services". This appears to be how sanctions-busting, namely for procurement of weapons and ammunition, was financed as this report will demonstrate below.

Recommendations on Liberian Government expenditure

30. The Panel recommends that the practice of allocating revenues at source for priority expenditure should be eliminated. All revenues should be consolidated in a central government account at the Central Bank of Liberia before being allocated to authorized agencies for approved expenditures.

Logging and wood processing

31. Between January and June 2001 round log production produced 679,253 cubic metres (valued at US$ 46.2 million). These figures are a likely underestimate of real exports by 50 to 200 per cent because of tax evasion by companies and widespread corruption.

32. Logging has long been one of the prime sources of government revenue. Logging is still today a mainstay of export earnings for the Government. President Taylor has also taken a personal interest in the allocation of timber concessions. In January 2000 a new National Forestry Law declared that all forest resources are the property of the Government except for communal and privately owned forest resources that have been developed through artificial regeneration.

33. New concessions require final approval by the President of the Republic. During the 1999-2000 season, many authorized concessionaires continued logging but without assurances that they would be allowed to retain their concessions. This uncertainty encouraged rapid cutting and profiteering, without concern for sustainable forestry practices in order to maximize profits in anticipation of losing concessions.

34. Several Spanish and French enterprises lost their concessions to the United Logging Company, managed by Fawaz and President Taylor's son as chairman. President Taylor has also revoked concessions of the VH Timber Companies giving them to the United Logging Company and to the Mohammed Group. President Taylor is seeking to have the timber industry dominated by a few mega-concessions like the Oriental Timber Company.

35. A number of the timber companies complained to the Panel that making a profit currently in Liberia is difficult, except for the mega-concessions that are engaged in non-selective felling and processing massive volumes of round logs. Limited wood-processing capacity, log jams in France at saw mills because of large volumes of round logs and the difficulty in attracting new investors to Liberia were all blamed for these difficulties. They complain of excessive taxation and difficult operating conditions, making it impossible even to fell and sell timber up to their Forestry Development Agency 4 per cent quota. Presidential favour is an important ingredient in cutting operational costs. A number of logging firms obtained tax waivers for fuel purchases as a result of their close connections to the President.

36. According to FDA rules, 25 per cent of the volume of logs felled should be sawn in the country. This rule is not respected because of the volume of round logs exported by the Oriental Timber Company to China and because of the limited number of saw mills in Liberia.

37. Prior to the 1989-1996 war there were 18 saw mills, three veneering and plywood factories, six dry kilns and three wood-processing factories and domestic timber production surpassed log exports in timber volume. Today there are only 12 operational saw mills and these do not have the capacity to process the volume of logs felled.

38. The World Trade Organization (WTO) currently advises all countries to ban unprocessed log exportation beyond the end of 2000. Liberia urgently needs to phase out this trade and invest in wood-processing facilities. This would enhance the value of timber exported from Liberia, slow felling down and provide additional employment. It would also make production and exporting easier to monitor. The Taylor government has announced a gradual prohibition on the export of round logs as a policy guideline since 1998, but no legislation on the issue has been enacted yet.

39. Some of the timber companies are directly involved in violations of the sanctions against Liberia. One prominent example of this was Exotic Tropical and Timber Enterprises (ETTE). The Panel has received a certain document, which indicates that a payment for a weapons delivery was made directly from the Singapore accounts of the company Borneo Jaya Pte Ltd, a mother company of OTC.

Recommendations on logging and wood processing

40. Timber production is an important source of revenue for the Government and a source of employment in Liberia. It is also a source of revenue for sanctions-busting. The Panel found it difficult to obtain real figures on the current volume of timber production and how much revenue is generated. Without a sound assessment of the timber-generated revenue base, the Panel could not assess how much revenue could have been used from this industry for assisting sanctions-busting. Therefore the Panel recommends that:

- The Government should reach agreement with the International Monetary Fund over the commissioning of an independent detailed report on revenue from the timber concessions for the January 2001-July 2002 period, including exemptions and tax offsets for government-related expenditures during this period;
- That the United Nations should impose a ban on all round log exports from Liberia from July 2002 and strongly encourage local operators to diversify into wood processing before that date.

Diamonds

41. The Panel examined Liberia's diamond industry because it is another crucial source of natural resource revenue for the Government. Liberia's own official diamond exports were said to be only 8,500 carats in 1999, valued at US$ 900,000. Liberia's Minister of Lands, Mines and Energy estimates that this represents only 10 to 15 per cent of what is actually leaving the country.

42. Sanctions were imposed on the export of Liberian rough diamonds following the conclusions of the December 2000 report (S/2000/1195). This report illustrated how diamonds far in excess of the quality or quantity available in Liberia had been imported in provenance and origin. The larger illicit trade provided Liberia with a convenient cover for the export of conflict diamonds from Sierra Leone although many of the so-called "Liberian" production emanated from other sources (most notably Russia), and was falsely declared "Liberian" for tax purposes.

43. With the entry into force of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001) the Government of Liberia indicated that it would comply with the ban. The imposition of an embargo on the export of Liberian rough, coupled with progress in the peace process in Sierra Leone, has resulted in a marked decline of diamonds labelled as "Liberian" reaching international markets. There have been no imports from Liberia recorded in Antwerp since the imposition of the sanctions.

44. The embargo has created a different problem. Since it is impossible to sell Liberian rough officially, dealers and brokers are seeking to camouflage their Liberian diamonds as those from neighbouring countries markets. The Panel itself verified ongoing smuggling of Liberian rough to Sierra Leone and Côte d'Ivoire.

45. The Panel also observed a steep increase in trade of diamonds mined by the RUF through Freetown. Many of these stones passed through Makeni from the Kono fields but lesser numbers reached dealers in Kenema and Bo before entering the official system. Approximately half of Sierra Leone's total production comes from the Kono/Koidu district. Following the imposition of a diamond embargo on Liberia, the closure of the border till September 2001 and the war in Lofa County, little diamond trade now passes through to Liberia from Sierra Leone. This shift in trade pattern is reflected also in the dramatic decline in so-called "Liberian" rough entering markets like Antwerp and a steep decline in the number of diamonds passing through Monrovia. The pressures on other revenue sources in Liberia for Executive Mansion extrabudgetary expenditure demonstrates once again the importance that diamonds had played over the last few years for President Taylor. Because of the loosening of President Taylor's grip on the Kono/Koidu diamond trade, the RUF axis has switched to increasing trade through Sierra Leone.

Recommendations on diamonds

46. The experiences of Sierra Leone, Guinea, Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire discussed below show how difficult it actually is to separate out conflict diamonds from other alluvials. Better monitoring, increasing the cost of getting caught and the requirement to state the source of a stone (origin) rather than just the provenance could help this process. But as with the case of Sierra Leone, without steady progress in the internal peace process it is difficult to see how the distinction between government and RUF diamonds can be maintained effectively.

47. The diamond embargo on Liberia has contributed to the dramatic decline in the misuse of the Liberian label for diamond smuggling. The embargo has, however, reversed the problem in effect with encouraging an increase in the smuggling of Liberian rough out of the country and into neighbouring certification systems. If these certification schemes are to be credible, this situation needs to be dealt with urgently. Better policing of dealers can help, but ensuring that Liberia has its own credible certification scheme will ensure that less Liberian rough are deliberately mixed with rough of neighbouring countries.

48. The annual artisanal production of Liberia is low, approximately US$ 1.5 million per year in total production. Any dramatic increase in exports could act as an early warning system for the Liberian label being once more used to launder non-Liberian diamonds. The Panel encourages the Liberian Government to put in place a credible and transparent certification scheme which is independently audited by an internationally recognized audit company. This scheme should be independently assessed as credible and effective in order to facilitate the consideration of a temporary suspension of the diamond ban by the Security Council. This would also alleviate the genuine hardship that artisanal miners, brokers and dealers are currently experiencing.

Other measures

49. Regular and accurate publication of official annual rough diamond import/export statistics is crucial. Currently only Belgium publishes a detailed list. A better international library of each diamond type, from each region and detailed records of run-of-mine alluvial samples in conflict zones would also be an important step forward in this region. It is also important that countries issue their own Certificates of Origin that are consistent with a fully integrated certification system. But in the end, the only guaranteed way to resolve the conflict diamond issue is to create conditions in a country that result in the label "conflict" being made redundant. Under such conditions, the principal challenge of the alluvial diamond trade in West Africa would be to curtail endemic smuggling for tax evasion purposes. Sierra Leone's attempt to redistribute diamond revenues back into the community is part of a solution.

The maritime and corporate registry

50. With 1,734 vessels registered under its flag, Liberia is the second largest maritime fleet in the world. The register has traditionally had a high proportion of tanker tonnage. In January 2001, Liberia accounted in tonnage for 35 per cent of all the world's oil tankers. The register is generally regarded as one of the quality open registries (called by some, flag of convenience). The registry also provides some 25 per cent of government revenue. In 2000, the Liberian registry and corporate fee programme generated some US$ 25.72 million officially which netted according to the Bureau of Maritime Affairs some US$ 18 million for the Government.

51. LISCR, the registry agent has ring-fenced the revenue it generates from the maritime and corporate registries. Their accounts are audited annually by Arthur Andersen LLP, an auditing firm of international repute, and these were open to inspection by the Panel. The collection of registry revenues and government taxes and fees, and any subsequent distribution of funds due to the Government, is accomplished in accordance with the agreement between LISCR and the Liberian Government.

52. Collections are initially deposited into one of several registry bank accounts, dependent upon the nature of the collection, and as specified in an agreement between LISCR and the Liberian Government. This is routine procedure. However, the Panel obtained bank transfer details for two LISCR transfers to San Air General Trading at Standard Chartered Bank, Sharjah, the United Arab Emirates, for US$ 525,000 on 21 June 2000 and US$ 400,000 on 7 July 2000. These two payments were for arms and transportation in violation of the sanctions. The sanctions-busting activities of San Air General Trading are documented in the Arms and Transportation Section below.

53. LISCR admitted to the Panel that it had made four payments to non-government accounts in 2000. The disbursements were made following four separate written requests instructing LISCR, from the Commissioner of Maritime Affairs. LISCR became increasingly uncomfortable at the growing regularity of requests for divergence from standard procedure in late 2000. Following a new request for disbursement on 17 August 2000, LISCR informed the Commissioner of Maritime Affairs that it would no longer honour such requests.

54. Having found resistance from LISCR, Liberia's Bureau of Maritime Affairs changed strategy, and directed four payments from their part of the maritime revenue directly to San Air via arms dealer Sanjivan Ruprah.

55. The Commissioner of Maritime Affairs and his Maritime Affairs Bureau are little more than a cash extraction operation and cover from which to fund and organize opaque off-budget expenditures including for sanctions-busting. For as long as there is an arms embargo on Liberia the funds from the registry will need to be protected from Bureau misuse.

Recommendations on the Liberian corporate and maritime registry

56. The Liberian corporate and maritime registries provide an important source of revenue to a poor country. The maritime registry is of international repute but it is vulnerable because of the use of the funds it generates for opaque off-budget expenditure including for sanctions-busting.

57. The Panel recognizes that the open registry business is very competitive, that any sanction on the registry would see client flight, and that these clients would be unlikely to return. The Panel would not wish to see an exodus to other open registries of ship owners currently with LISCR.

58. LISCR should not have made those four payments to non-government accounts in 2000. The payments were contrary to their agreement with the Liberian Government and showed a complete lack of due diligence. LISCR seems to have learned from its mistake and took action to stop this practice. In 2001 there has been no further pressure of this type from Monrovia and no evidence of further payments to non-governmental accounts.

59. The Panel recommends that:

- An escrow account should be set up by the Security Council Committee as the ultimate destination for all revenues generated from the shipping and corporate registry. The Panel believes that the Government of Liberia and IMF should reach an agreement to audit this account in order to determine all revenues generated by the shipping and corporate registry and to determine the use of the revenue in this account;
- The funds in this account should be designated for development purposes.

The travel ban

60. The travel ban has generally worked successfully. The Panel actively sought to monitor compliance with the travel ban. It verified 27 violations of the travel ban, the majority through Abidjan.

Recommendations on the travel ban

61. The travel ban has been the source of the greatest number of complaints received by the Panel. Individuals on the list requested to know on what grounds their names had been placed on the list and how to appeal. In each case the Panel referred them to the Security Council Committee as the appropriate body responsible for drawing up the list.

62. The Panel encourages the Security Council Committee to reply to individual requests about the ban promptly and expeditiously. The Panel also recommends that the Committee set up a Liberia travel ban web page where the Committee's criteria on how names have been put on the list is described. The web page should also provide information on how to apply for travel exemptions and have a section on who currently has an exemption to travel. This web site should be publicized as a resource for immigration and law enforcement agencies to keep track of who is on the travel ban list, and who has exemptions.

63. The Security Council Sanctions Branch in consultation with the Committee should also compile a photographic database of key individuals on the ban list to counter attempts by a number of individuals on the list to travel under a different name. These photographs could be put on the web site.

64. The Panel does not believe that the list should be set in stone. For humanitarian reasons a few names should be dropped; the Committee should also consider new names too.

To the Côte d'Ivoire Government

65. A loophole at Abidjan airport needs urgent attention. The Council should strongly encourage the Ivorian authorities to adopt a less passive attitude towards the implementation of the travel ban. A verifiable system should be set up at Abidjan airport to check that arriving passengers from Monrovia are not on the list or if they are, they have obtained a United Nations travel exemption.

Recommendations for the continued monitoring of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001)

66. The United Nations Secretariat should appoint a Liberian officer within the Sanctions Department of the Department of Political Affairs. This person should conduct ongoing monitoring of compliance of resolution 1343 (2001) from New York, develop databases of violation reports and write request letters and make telephone enquiries about such reports. This person should also act as an in-house researcher for the Security Council Committee, able to assist in monitoring compliance of the travel ban and requests for travel exemptions. A motivated United Nations Secretariat staff member, with administrative support from the assistants to the Committee, could fill this requirement efficiently and cost-effectively. The Angolan Monitoring Mechanism already has attached to it a political officer who has efficiently conducted a number of these tasks. Individual consultants could be hired for a short period of time to investigate a specific case of violation of the sanctions whenever the need arises, in order to keep pressure on Liberia.

67. There should be an ongoing assessment of Liberia's compliance to resolution 1343 (2001) on the ground, too. A way to achieve this in a targeted and cost-effective manner is to renew the mandate for this Panel of Experts for two short periods in 2002 for missions to visit West Africa with the Liberian officer appointed by the Secretariat. These missions should be:

- An assessment mission by the Panel to Liberia and neighbouring States for a period of four weeks starting in April 2002 to investigate and compile a short report on compliance. This report, an independent audit of compliance with recommendations, would then be submitted through the Committee to the Council for consideration in May 2002;

- A second six-week mission to Liberia in September 2002 resulting in a final submission to the Committee in November 2002. This report would also be an independent assessment of total progress of the sanctions regime and the Government of Liberia's compliance over the year.

68. The advantages of this system are that it will over 2002 strengthen internal United Nations capacity to monitor Liberia and other States' compliance of resolution 1343 (2001). It also uses the expertise of the Panel in a targeted and cost-effective manner and ensures that the momentum created by the Panel's work in 2001 is not lost.

Introduction

A. General

69. Pursuant to paragraph 19 of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001) concerning Liberia, adopted on 7 March 2001, the Secretary-General appointed a Panel of Experts on 29 March 2001 (S/2001/268), with the mandate to:

- Investigate violations of the new tightened arms embargo, the ban on export of Liberian diamonds and the travel ban on senior officials of the Liberian Government;
- Collect information on the compliance by the Government of Liberia with the demands to expel all members of the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) from Liberia, cease all financial and military support to RUF, cease all direct or indirect import of Sierra Leone rough diamonds, freeze funds or financial resources or assets controlled by RUF in Liberia and ground all Liberian-registered aircraft;
- Further investigate possible links between the exploitation of natural resources and other forms of economic activity in Liberia, and the fuelling of the conflict in Sierra Leone and neighbouring countries, in particular those areas highlighted by the report of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1306 (2000);
- Collect information linked to the illegal activities of the individuals referred to in the report of Panel of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1306 (2000) concerning the situation in Sierra Leone;
- Collect information concerning any other alleged violations of resolution 1343 (2001).

70. The Panel took note of the report of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1306 (2000) concerning the situation in Sierra Leone (S/2000/1195) of 19 December 2000 and the responses received from countries and individuals mentioned in the report. The corrective actions taken by such countries have been duly noted by the Panel.

71. The Panel recognized that the demands made to the Government of Liberia under paragraph 2 of resolution 1343 (2001) to immediately cease its support for RUF in Sierra Leone and for other armed rebel groups in the region were intended to further the peace process in Sierra Leone.

72. The Panel took particular note of paragraph 4 of this resolution, which demands that all States in the region take action to prevent armed individuals and groups from using their territory to prepare and commit attacks on neighbouring countries and refrain from any action that might contribute to further destabilization of the situation on the borders between Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

73. On 22 March 2001, the Permanent Representative of Liberia to the United Nations transmitted the text of a letter addressed to the Secretary-General from Charles Ghankay Taylor, President of Liberia. This letter delineated the measures the Government of Liberia has taken in compliance with the resolution (S/2001/264). The Panel remained cognizant of the contents of the letter and all such subsequent correspondence from the Government of Liberia, made available to it by the Security Council Committee on Liberia and the Task Force of the Government of Liberia.

74. The Panel of Experts¹ consisted of Mr. Martin Chungong Ayafor, (Cameroon — Chairman), Mr. Atabou Bodian (Senegal — Expert from the International Civil Aviation Organization), Mr. Johan Peleman (Belgium — Arms and Transportation Expert), Mr. Harjit S. Sandhu (India — Expert from Interpol), and Mr. Alex Vines (United Kingdom — Diamond Expert) (S/2001/268, annex 1).

75. The Panel had its first organizational meeting at United Nations Headquarters in New York from 16 to 27 April 2001, and it was agreed with the Security Council Committee on Liberia that the Panel's report would be submitted on 15 October 2001. It was subsequently submitted on 17 October 2001.

76. The Panel committed itself to holding regular consultations with Panels of Experts/Monitoring Mechanisms and other Security Council Committees working on similar issues. The Panel also kept the Security Council Committee on Liberia informed of the progress of its work, as and when necessary, as per paragraph 4 of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001).

77. The Panel received a great deal of logistical and moral support from the Security Council Committee on Liberia, the United Nations Secretariat, the United Nations Resident Coordinators and UNDP officials in almost every country it visited. Many Governments helped with detailed information and advice, and many individuals provided helpful information.

B. A reminder to the background of the mandate

78. The Panel's mandate is described in section A above. The Panel was reminded of the background to its mandate, however, during its field visits in Sierra Leone, Liberia and Guinea. In Sierra Leone, thousands of civilians, many of them women and children, victims of unspeakable brutality, face a future without hands or feet. The Amputees Camp in Freetown is a cruel testimony to the havoc created by the forces that supplied arms to rebels. In addition to the amputees who have been condemned to a life without hands or feet, tens of thousands of Sierra Leoneans, Guineans and Liberians have lost their lives, half a million have become refugees and three or four times that number has been displaced in the subregion. The Panel visited the Amputees Camp in Freetown, refugee and internally displaced persons (IDP) camps in all the three bordering countries of Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone.

79. As the Panel concluded its report, the situation on the borders between Sierra Leone, Liberia and Guinea remained volatile and the best diamond-producing areas in Sierra Leone still remained in rebel hands. In several border areas of Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone, people lived without access to medical assistance, education or the means to a secure livelihood. The Panel remained cognizant, throughout its work, of its role and its responsibility in helping to end the suffering of the people of the subregion.

Methodology of investigation

80. Questionnaires: The Panel requested specific information from the relevant countries, through their Permanent Missions to the United Nations, regarding certain arms shipments and the movement of suspicious aircraft used for illegal transportation of arms and ammunition. The Panel also requested statistics dating back to 1987 on diamond exports from major producing countries, and imports to countries with significant trading, cutting and polishing industries. The reason for going back to 1987 was to determine what trends might have prevailed before the wars in Sierra Leone and Liberia. In September 2001, the Panel sent reminder letters to all Governments, through their Permanent Missions to the United Nations, which had not yet provided the requested statistics. The Panel would like to record special appreciation for Cyprus, Italy, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Moldova, Slovak Republic, United Arab Emirates and Uganda for their detailed replies and additional information that proved very useful for investigation.

81. Interviews: In each country, Panel members interviewed government authorities, and where relevant, diplomatic missions, civil society organizations, aid agencies, private sector firms and journalists. The Panel also contacted a number of key individuals whose names have been a subject of interest and controversy in recent months in connection with the crisis in the subregion (annex 2). Given the sensitive nature of the subjects investigated by the Panel, however, it should be noted that many individuals spoke under conditions of confidentiality. Several meetings held in various countries have therefore not been listed.

82. Visits to countries: The Panel travelled extensively to countries involved, or believed to be involved, in the trafficking of weapons and related materiel to Liberia in violation of Security Council embargoes and to countries involved in the diamond trade. The entire Panel visited Liberia twice, and some Panel members visited three times. The entire Panel also visited Belgium, Côte d'Ivoire, Czech Republic, the Gambia, Guinea, Moldova, Russian Federation, Sierra Leone, Slovak Republic, Turkey, Ukraine and the United Arab Emirates. Travel was undertaken by one or several of the Panel members to Austria, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Central African Republic, Equatorial Guinea, Ghana, France, Italy, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kyrgyzstan, Mali, Niger, Norway, Senegal, Spain, Switzerland, Uganda, the United Kingdom, Washington, D.C. (USA).

83. Field trips: There had been a lot of mystique attached to several places in the subregion of Liberia, Guinea, Sierra Leone and Côte d'Ivoire. The Panel decided to visit all such areas. In Liberia, the entire Panel visited Gbatata training centre for anti-terrorist unit (ATU) and the Buchanan Port where most of the activities of Oriental Timber Company (OTC) are concentrated. Three members of the Panel visited Lofa and Bong Counties. In Sierra Leone, two members of the Panel visited Bo, Kenema, Koidu, Yengema, Moyamba, Bauya, Waterloo and Daru. In Guinea, two members went all the way by road from Conakry to Kissidougou to Guéckédou to Macenta to Kuankan and Kola, to Nzérékoré and onwards to Côte d'Ivoire. In Côte d'Ivoire, two members visited Man, Biankouma, Guiglo, Danane, Niela and Guessessou.

84. During these field visits, the Panel spoke to various factions involved in the conflict in the subregion. The prominent ones being RUF, CDF, Liberians United for Reconciliation and Democracy (LURD) and Armed Forces of Liberia (AFL). The Panel also interviewed a large number of IDPs spread over all the four countries of the subregion. The Panel witnessed the disarmament, demobilization and rehabilitation (DDR) programme in Sierra Leone, spoke to combatants and picked up certain leads on the origin of arms and ammunition.

85. Assistance from international and regional organizations: The Panel received useful cooperation and assistance from several international organizations such as Interpol, ICAO, IMO, etc. and made proper use of their expertise.

86. Police and judicial records: The Panel was able to access police and judicial records of several under-investigation and under-trial cases linked to trafficking of arms and ammunition in the West African subregion. The Panel scrutinized interrogation statements of several former RUF cadres and the documents recovered from the premises of suspects.

Standards of verification

87. The Panel agreed at the outset of its work to use high evidentiary standards in its investigations. This required at least two credible and independent sources of information to substantiate a finding. Wherever possible, the Panel also agreed to put allegations to those concerned in order to allow them the right of reply. However, certain individuals whose role is highlighted in the report did not make themselves available to the Panel despite serious attempts by the Panel to give them a chance to explain their conduct.

88. During the investigation, where possible, the Panel shared the relevant information and cooperated with the States concerned for further thorough investigation at their level. Where appropriate, the Panel also brought the information collected during the course of investigation to the attention of authorities to allow them the right of reply as stated in paragraph 20 of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001). A significant number of countries came forward with useful information on individuals behind certain shady companies and their financial transactions.

89. In the past, allegations against various parties to the conflict in the subregion have always been denied with the question, "Where is the evidence?". An example of this is the standard response to charges that weapons have been channelled to RUF through Liberia and that President Taylor continues to support RUF. In the report that follows, we have dealt in great detail with this particular allegation and several cases of arms shipments having reached Liberia in violation of Security Council arms embargoes.

90. Following the paper trail and the chain of events: To satisfy the oft-repeated rhetoric "Where is the evidence?", "If you have evidence, show it", the Panel has traced the entire sequence of events starting from the origin of weapons to the end-destination using documentary evidence and direct eyewitness accounts of the persons involved. The Panel has in its possession the following documents concerning the planes involved in illegal arms supply to Liberia:

- Copies of contracts signed by the contracting parties;
- Requests and permissions for overflight and landing;
- Flight plans;
- Cargo manifests;
- Airway bills;
- Documents showing owners or operating agency of the aircraft involved;
- Pilots logbooks;
- Payments made;
- Insurance documents for the cargo and the planes involved.

91. Analysing these documents, the Panel traced the entire flight route taken by the aircraft bringing weapons to Liberia. In addition to this, the Panel spoke to pilots and the other crew members who were on board the aircraft in question. Practically in all listed cases, the aircraft involved were physically located by the Panel and their photographs were taken. Some of the arms traffickers involved tried to hide but the Panel succeeded in locating them and confronting them with the details. In one such case, the Panel visited a prison and interviewed the suspect in the jail premises, after obtaining permission from the concerned judicial authorities.

92. In addition to its own detailed verification, the Panel also received corroborating information from international law enforcement agencies. The assistance of Interpol specialists was also taken as and when required. In all the cases delineated in the report that follows, the Panel did not rely solely on oral testimonies. Corroborative documentary and circumstantial evidence was always insisted on. The evidence, therefore, is incontrovertible and irrefutable.

Part I

Liberia and the region

Regional security in the Mano River Union

93. In mid-April when the Panel embarked upon its mandate, there were active hostilities in the three Mano River Union countries (Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia). By mid-May according to United Nations figures, there were 2.3 million internally displaced people in Guinea along with 110,000 Sierra Leonean refugees and 81,000 Liberian refugees. In Sierra Leone, there were 400,000 internally displaced people and 6,000 Liberian refugees, and in Liberia there were 60,000 internally displaced people. There were also 120,000 Liberian refugees in Côte d'Ivoire and 2,000 Sierra Leonean refugees.

94. Six months on, there are significant signs of improvement in the region. Welcome regional diplomatic efforts are under way to further improve bilateral relations between the three members of the Mano River Union, although there is still active conflict in Lofa County in Liberia and there is the risk of Sierra Leone gravitating back into the conflict if RUF does not want to release its hold on some of the best diamond-producing areas.

Sierra Leone

95. At the time the Panel first visited Sierra Leone in April 2001, fighting was under way in the Kambia area and the regionalization of the conflict was very visible. Guinea was engaged in military operations against RUF, with the tacit agreement of the Government of Sierra Leone. Persistent force was used by Guinea in action aimed at punishing RUF for its raids into Guinea from September 2000. Guinean troops entered deep in Sierra Leone in Northern Kambia District and created a "sanitized zone" on the north bank of the Great Scaries River to prevent further RUF activity.

96. The Government-sponsored militia Civil Defence Force also attacked RUF positions in the east of Sierra Leone during that month but eventually a ceasefire was restored. Guinea also stopped its raids against RUF in Kambia by May although there was Guinean shelling and helicopter raids against several RUF targets in July.

97. On 2 May, the major parties to the conflict reaffirmed their commitment to the peace process in Abuja. There followed talks in Freetown and on 18 May 2001, both sides entered the DDR programme in large-scale numbers. Since early July the security situation in Sierra Leone has remained stable, closely monitored by UNAMSIL.

98. In early September 2001, Sierra Leonean President Ahmed Kabbah and RUF leader Issa Sessay met in Koidu and shook hands, declaring the war over. The peace process, however, remains fragile in the run-up to multiparty elections in 2002 but outright hostilities appear to have ceased for the time being.

Liberia

99. Following Security Council resolution 1343 (2001) and the entry into force of sanctions on Liberia on 7 May 2001, President Taylor and his government increasingly signalled a desire to restore avenues of dialogue with their neighbours in the Mano River Union. The war in Lofa County continued to be a primary concern for the government and humanitarian agencies.

100. The first incident of armed conflict was in Voinjama on 21 April 1999. Rebels with semi-automatic rifles, a few mortars and shotguns attacked the town. They were a rag-tag group, some uniformed and some smoking marijuana. While looting the town, they claimed they were tired of the Sierra Leone war and wanted to overthrow the government of Charles Taylor. After the brief rebel attack the Liberian security forces entered Voinjama and also looted.

101. There was a further wave of insurgent attacks in Lofa County between July and October 2000, succeeding in widening their front to attacking the Douley region of Nimba County by late November 2000. The Liberian Government blamed Guinea and filed a formal diplomatic complaint to the then Organization of African Unity, ECOWAS, and the Guinean Government.

102. In mid-January 2001, the Government deployed more troops along the north-eastern border with Guinea. This move followed shortly after the defence heads of Mali, Niger, Nigeria and Senegal met in Abuja, Nigeria to discuss the deployment of a force of 1,700 troops along Liberia's borders with Guinea and Sierra Leone. But the deployment of the ECOWAS force at the border confluence of Sierra Leone, Guinea, and Liberia in the Mano River region did not occur for two reasons: firstly, ECOWAS waited for a strong mandate from the United Nations for its contingents and, secondly, Status-of-Forces Agreements with Guinea and Liberia were never agreed upon.

103. Liberia's relations with Guinea deteriorated further in 2001, with the Government accusing the Guinean military of shelling the town of Foya in January and claiming two of its diplomats had been arrested and tortured in Conakry in September 2000. In February 2001, the rebels crossed again from Guinea and attacked villages in Lofa. The Government claimed that the villages of Boiwamei, Masizu and Turaszued, were razed to the ground during two days of fighting.

104. In April 2001, the Liberian Minister of Defence, Daniel Chea announced heavy fighting between government forces and rebels in upper Lofa county near the border with Guinea. The brunt of the fighting was near the towns of Foya and Kolahun. However, he denied claims by the Liberians United for Reconciliation and Democracy (LURD), that they had seized control of large parts of Lofa County and the Government began mobilizing and retraining former fighters of the now defunct NPFL. By late April fighting had spread south into Salayea district, 80 km north of Gbarnga in Bong County. The battle for control of Zorzor in Lofa County was reported to be intense.

105. Liberia closed its borders with Sierra Leone and Guinea in mid-March and gave the ambassadors of Sierra Leone and Guinea three days to leave the country. The ambassadors were expelled for activities incompatible with their status and their embassies were informed that they needed to vacate their current premises. This Liberian action was at a time of increased regional tension because of the intense fighting in Lofa County and because one of the two diplomats had been well located to witness some sanctions-busting in progress.

106. In late July, continued fighting in Lofa forced a new wave of refugees to flee across the border to Côte d'Ivoire. The Lofa rebellion, part of a subregional dispute, had resulted in Liberia to accuse Guinea and Sierra Leone of harbouring dissidents. With an intensification of the conflict in April 2001, over 4,000 refugees fled to Côte d'Ivoire and Sierra Leone in May and June. The United Nations reported that in a year the conflict has created more than 40,000 refugees.

107. By August, fighting continued between rebels and government troops, especially around the towns of Kolahun and Voinjama. Not all the fighting was by rebels. There were also incidents where different Liberian government armed groups fought each other for loot and control of resources. On 29 August 2001, the Liberian rebels attacked a lumber camp at Gbopolu in the west, showing that they could make attacks beyond upper Lofa County.

108. Between March and October 2001, independent observers were not allowed by the Liberian Government to visit Lofa County. This restriction was lifted in October, and the Panel visited Lofa in the first week of October. The situation there was visibly tense. In the area around Zorzor, the town that was completely destroyed during an incursion by rebels from Guinea, the Panel observed many soldiers and armed young boys carrying new weapons and driving around in newly acquired Isuzu pick-up trucks. The pattern of destruction of the houses showed that the rebels from Guinea resort to hit-and-run tactics and do not occupy the territory.

Guinea

109. From September 2000, there were rebel incursions into Guinea supported by RUF. Guéckédou (a town with around 30,000 inhabitants) was badly damaged in late January when it was seized by rebels, who Guinean sources claimed belonged to Ulimo-K and RUF. The town was recaptured by the Guinean army in February. Ulimo-K had been a Guinean ally in its campaign against RUF but there had been some sort of dispute about recent Ulimo-K recruits in the Guinean military. There was more fighting along the border and a six-hour artillery battle in mid-March south of Guéckédou with rebels who had originated from Liberia.

110. The reduction in hostilities between RUF and the Sierra Leone Government by May 2001 has resulted in RUF abandoning its support for Guinean rebels, who were seeking to overthrow President Conté and his government. Following the major onslaught by the Guinean military in May, these rebels have realized they cannot fight alone and have become dormant.

Armed non-state actors in the Mano River Union

111. There has been a proliferation of the use of non-state actors in these conflicts in the Mano River Union. These groups obtain weapons from State supporters, from their trade in diamonds, alluvial gold, cocoa and coffee, or from their military action. Their actions have had and can again destabilize the region. The junction of the borders of Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone has been the fault zone where these groups have thrived. This Kailahun Salient is a very volatile area with notoriously difficult terrain, a highly permeable border and belligerents in close proximity to each other; it is an area that lends itself to the attacker — not the defender.

RUF and Liberia

112. RUF's relationship with Liberia was described in detail in the Panel of Experts report on Sierra Leone. In 2001 this relationship has continued, although a split is reported among RUF units that are willing to disarm in Sierra Leone and others that continue to fight in the war that has shifted to the Liberian and Guinean borders. Throughout this year RUF units have been fighting with Liberian units in Lofa County. In March, a RUF unit fought at Voinjama.

113. On 1 April 2001, General Sessay arrived in a camp at Vahun for discussions with Liberian commanders about additional RUF military assistance. The Liberian commanders came in a helicopter and Sessay arrived by vehicle and accompanied by General Dennis Mingo (alias Superman). Following the meeting, there was a public address to RUF fighters which was not well received; they grumbled about having to fight in a foreign war.

114. In mid-April, the Liberian Government refused to allow RUF to travel through Liberia to attend an ECOWAS meeting in Bamako, Mali. Liberia claimed it had severed its links with RUF. However, on 18 April the United Nations Security Council published a list of RUF members residing in Liberia and asking the Government to expel them.

115. The RUF-Liberian relationship is important for President Taylor, but it is also strategic for RUF. The Kailahun region in Sierra Leone constitutes RUF's strategic lifeline into Liberia without which its source of resupply is seriously affected. Liberia offers sanctuary and a location to store weapons and keep armed units active and trained. An area of particular concern is the concession of the Liberian logging company SLC, along the border with Sierra Leone. The area comprises a road into Sierra Leone and an old military base of the Liberian Armed Forces, Camp Alfa. It is, since early 2001, controlled by the son of President Taylor and the Lebanese businessman Abbas Fawaz. Several sources indicated to the Panel that this is an area where weapons for RUF are stockpiled and where RUF can freely enter Liberian territory.

116. In June, President Taylor met with RUF representatives in Folima and offered them additional funding for their further assistance in the Lofa war. According to several RUF officials a number of them said they were tired of combat and were worried that the conflict might spill over into Sierra Leone and undermine the peace process. They also complained that the Guineans were providing better support to the Liberian dissidents than what they received from Taylor. This was followed by a second meeting of Guinean dissidents and RUF at the Executive Mansion in Monrovia. Taylor once more offered funds in return for their services to fight the Liberian dissidents in Lofa.

117. The Panel has interviewed many RUF members about their Liberian connections. Since August, RUF has moved weapons to Liberia via Kailahun, then caching them in the "Kuya area". Before disarmament in Kono district, RUF used to maintain its main ammunition dump in Kono. They have since also moved many of these arms and ammunition to Vahun in Liberia.

118. Eyewitnesses told the Panel of RUF combatants in Kono District and Kabala loading their infantry support weapons to Kailahun to avoid surrendering them for the DDR. The Panel has inspected the weapons handed in for destruction by RUF in Kono. They have been submitting .50 mm (12.7 mm) mortar and artillery bombs for the DDR process but not the guns to fire/launch them.

119. RUF units have on several occasions confronted Liberian government troops that have entered into Sierra Leone. Following fighting in July in Vahun between the Liberian army and dissidents, some AFL soldiers fled into Sierra Leone. RUF detained 17 private AFL soldiers overnight at Senga and then escorted them back to the border the next day.

120. In April, RUF had asked a group of AFL to disarm after they fled into Liberia following an earlier dissident attack on Vahun but the Liberians had refused on that occasion to leave their weapons because they outnumbered the RUF unit.

121. The recent killing of General Dennis Mingo (alias Superman) was in all probability because of an internal squabble about the distribution of money from Charles Taylor for RUF's assistance in clearing Lofa County of dissidents. Mingo was murdered just across the Sierra Leonean border in Liberia close to the United Logging Company compound on the road from Vahun to Monrovia. Superman had been on his way to attend a meeting at the Executive Mansion in Monrovia.

122. The RUF structure in Liberia is difficult to determine. The RUF have probably around 600 men, consisting of four companies and a support element in Liberia right now. They are being primarily used as a counter-insurgency force in the bush against the dissident activity in Lofa County. Their main base is Camp Najma, a camp where Liberian RUF are trained. The Commander at the camp is Liberian Special Security Service Kissi Captain Tamaba Malin. Recruitment is mainly from refugee camps where men are offered US$ 300 as an incentive to join.

123. Liberian liaison officers continue to be stationed in Sierra Leone with RUF. Names the Panel heard were Colonel Shenkoleh, Colonel Lion, Colonel Monica, Colonel Base Mingo. The Panel also noted that in Yengema in Sierra Leone a number of Liberian RUF members had successfully entered the DDR process.

Where is "Mosquito"? (Sam Bockarie alias Moskita)

While Foday Sankoh was imprisoned in Nigeria, Sam Bockarie de facto headed the RUF in Sierra Leone. In October 1999, Dennis "Superman" Mingo, smarting over allegations that he had embezzled RUF diamonds from a 1997 diamond sale, fomented contention in the RUF ranks. He wrote to Foday Sankoh from Liberia, warning him that Sam Bockarie could not be trusted and that Sankoh's life was in danger. He also claimed that Bockarie and his men had squandered funds from diamond sales and that Bockarie bought a house in Liberia and France. Shortly thereafter, a military confrontation occurred between forces loyal to Foday Sankoh and those loyal to Sam Bockarie. Several combatants were killed. Sam Bockarie subsequently went into exile in Liberia and has remained close to President Charles Taylor ever since.

In late December 2000, a group of religious and civic groups, including 11 opposition political parties called in public on President Taylor to expel RUF from Liberia, including Sam "Moskita" Bockarie. On 8 January 2001 Bockarie reacted to this call by issuing a press statement in which he offered to return to Sierra Leone at once. He also invited representatives of the Catholic Justice and Peace Commission (CJPM) to monitor his crossing the border into a RUF-held part of Sierra Leone. The CJPM replied that the Government of Liberia should be responsible for Bockarie's departure.

Liberia claimed that it expelled Sam Bockarie from its territory, but could not tell when and from where. The Foreign Minister of Liberia in his letter dated 28 June 2001 to the Chairman of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1343 (2001) concerning Liberia, stated that the Government was not under obligation to show documentary evidence on the departure of Sam Bockarie.

The Panel has investigated the whereabouts of Bockarie. Multiple independent eyewitness accounts put Bockarie in Lofa County leading a number of military operations against Liberian dissidents in 2001. He was also seen in the Monrovia area at the Holiday Inn, at the ELWA Junction and at a refugee camp between January and April. In late April, Bockarie was again in Lofa, leading anti-Liberian dissident operations.

Increased international attention on the whereabouts of Sam Bockarie resulted in President Taylor arranging for Bockarie to lay low outside West Africa, reportedly in Zambia in May. In June, Bockarie moved to Ghana and has resided in three different locations in Accra, protected by General Abou, a former deputy commander of the ATU who has returned to Ghana following the change of government.

Bockarie is able to travel freely in Liberia and has, since June, visited Liberia a number of times, spending time at Timber Village, often accompanied by Special Security Commander Ben Yeaten.

Bockarie travelled to Libya in June for a brief trip. He also travelled to Burkina Faso in early September staying at a Presidential Compound at Ziniare (outside the capital). He left Burkina Faso on 26 September on a Chad-registered aircraft for Libya accompanied by General Ibrahim Bah (alias Balde) to try and enlist further support for RUF. He has since returned to Accra.

Through the mediation of President Taylor the differences between General Issa and Bockarie appear to have been settled. Bockarie freely travels to Liberia and has been provided a EX-SLA body guard, Salamy Kaba.

Bockarie has travelled under different names. The Panel was told he has used the name Sam Ben Johnson, Michel Samba and Michel Toure.

Liberians United for Reconciliation and Democracy (LURD)

124. A group of rebels attacked Liberia from Guinea in April 1999. It was difficult to initially establish who these dissidents were, but a number of former members of the ethnic Mandingo wing of ULIMO (called Ulimo-K after its civil war leader Alhaji GV Kromah) seemed to be among them.

125. More attacks occurred in late 1999 and since the beginning of the latest round of incursions in July 2000, attacks on Liberian territory have been claimed by a group called the Liberians United for Reconciliation and Democracy (LURD). The LURD is composed of former fighters from the civil war of 1989 to 1996, many of whom became refugees in Guinea and Côte d'Ivoire after the end of the war.

126. LURD claims to have been formed in 2000 and not to be associated with any former warlord. Its supporters told the Panel that it is a resistance force dedicated to building democracy in Liberia through a political and military campaign.

127. The reality is more complex. LURD has enjoyed its main support from Guinea where it has a foothold in towns like Kissidougou, Macenta and Nzérékoré. Like the Sierra Leone Donzos were used against RUF, LURD was encouraged by Guinea to keep Charles Taylor tied up militarily in Lofa County. Guinea has supported LURD with cross-border artillery fire from time to time in 2001 and Guinean liaison officers have crossed into Lofa County to assess LURD's progress. Guinea has only given limited ammunition and weapons support to the Liberian rebels. One LURD official complained to the Panel that he had had to trade coffee, cocoa and diamonds to a Guinean commander to supply his men with shotgun cartridges (Guinea produces these in Conakry). Other weapons have been captured in hit-and-run operations in Lofa.

128. The leadership of LURD is opaque. Conakry-based Sekou Kone is a Provisional Chairman of the Executive Committee — his prime role is to liaise with President Conte of Guinea. Self-styled Gen. Joe Wylie is a key military adviser, also based in Conakry. In September there were some changes; Prince Seo was appointed the new Chief of Staff. Seo was a Krahn fighter who fought with Roosevelt Johnson, one of the former warlords in Liberia. He recently joined LURD with some 100 Ulimo-K fighters loyal to him. Seo replaced Charles Dent, a former Ulimo-K chief-of-staff in August. This reshuffle has caused discontent among LURD fighters.

129. There also is a strong rift between the Krahn and Mandingo elements of LURD. The military wing wants Guinea to stop dealing with Sekou Kone, who is a Liberian Mandingo. There appear to be three ULIMO units, a group of some 230 fighters stationed in the forest region along the Guinea/Liberia border. A second group of several thousand in Sierra Leone (many may be Kamajors) and a third group of ex-Lofa Defence Force fighters based in the Lofa currently.

130. The rebels do seek supporters in refugee camps. In April, the Ivorian security forces arrested six suspected Liberian dissidents in Danane, who they said were trying to recruit refugees to join their operations in Guinea. The Panel also interviewed refugees who had declined such advances by dissident supporters. Indeed, a significant number of newly arrived refugees had fled Lofa County because of dissident activity. The rebels attacked villages, looted and sought to forcibly recruit their young men.

131. In October 2001, LURD appears factionalized and Guinean support declining. If the August agreement by the foreign ministers of the Mano River Union to take steps to round up armed groups waging a messy war in the junction of the borders of Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone is real, the activities of LURD may have peaked.

Guinean dissident groups

132. From September 2000 there were rebel incursions into Guinea supported by RUF. RUF ex-combatants told the Panel how some of them had been forced to board trucks at gunpoint by their leaders and escorted to Foya to fight in the offensive. Others were paid a US$ 200 retainer and given the understanding that they could freely loot. Guéckédou was badly damaged in late January when it was seized by the rebels.

133. N'Faly Kaba, has called himself the leader of Guinean rebels based in Sierra Leone and Liberia. Kaba is a former adviser to Diarra Traoré (executed by President Conté after a purported coup in 1985). Kaba claimed to head an organization called the "Union des forces pour une Guinée nouvelle" (UGFN), and that they had been behind rebel attacks against Macenta, Ourekaba, Korecariah and Guéckédou since September 2000.

134. UFGN is the third group claiming responsibility for cross-border raids into Guinea. The "Rassemblement de forces démocratiques de Guinée" in December 2000 and the "Union de forces démocratique de Guinée" have also claimed responsibility.

Mano River Union dialogue

135. Following months of hostility between Liberia and Guinea, dialogue began with telephone contact between President Taylor and his Guinean counterpart, President Lansana Conté on peace in the subregion in early June.

136. There had been a number of phone calls between President Taylor and his Sierra Leone counterpart, President Kabbah, too. The release of two Sierra Leonean captives by Liberia and six Liberians by Sierra Leone in early June also helped in the confidence-building process among the three heads of State.

137. The Sierra Leone Foreign Minister visited Monrovia in July for a day on his way to the OAU summit in Zambia. The initial contacts helped prepare the foreign ministers of Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia to hold a ground-breaking meeting in Monrovia on 14 and 15 August to discuss a summit between their presidents, aimed at ending the conflict in their border regions. At this meeting they decided to reactivate the Joint Security Committee Established by the 15th Protocol on Defence and Security in May 2000.

138. A meeting of the Joint Security Committee was held in Freetown on 22 and 23 August and on 8 to 10 September in Conakry. At the end of these meetings they agreed to "apprehend and turn over to their country of origin, individuals, armed groups and other para-military forces involved in the destabilization of member States". They also agreed to a series of other recommendations, including on the implementation and deployment of joint border security and confidence-building units along common borders.

139. Following the Joint Security Committee meeting in Conakry the Statutory Meeting of the Foreign Ministers met on 10 September. The Ministers accepted the Joint Security Committee's recommendations and proposed a further Joint Security Committee meeting to be convened in Monrovia from 25 to 28 September to work out and finalize the work plan and timetable for implementation of the recommendations.

140. The Joint Security Committee reconvened in Monrovia between 25 and 28 September to further work on implementation of the recommendations. A review meeting of the Foreign Ministers and Chairmen of the Joint Security Committees of each member State is to be convened in Freetown on 10 December 2001. A Summit of Heads of State of the Mano River Union will follow in early 2002.

Part II Transportation and weapons

A. Background to the grounding of Liberian registered aircraft

141. The report (S/2000/1195), in its section on arms and transportation, described how irregularities of Liberian registered aircraft contributed to violations of the arms embargo. The Security Council, in resolution 1343 (2001), therefore decided to ground all Liberian-registered aircraft.

142. In the case studies that follow this is again illustrated. In most of the arms trafficking cases the Panel investigated, the planes that were used had in one way or another been subject to document fraud, forgery of flight plans and other irregularities. The Panel found evidence of fraudulent registration, not only in Liberia, but also in the Central African Republic and to a certain extent in Equatorial Guinea. Liberia, in a response to the Panel on Sierra Leone's request, had produced a registry consisting of 11 aircraft only. The Panel had knowledge of many more aircraft flying the Liberian flag and suspected that some of those had been used for violations of the arms embargo.

143. The problem turned out to be a complex one. Years of civil war and the difficult transitional process had created opportunities for aircraft owners and civil servants to exploit the registry, for instance to avoid costly safety inspections and requirements for old aircraft. This resulted in the Civil Aviation Authorities in Liberia having lost control and oversight of the planes flying on its registry. It also created a situation that enabled arms trafficking networks to camouflage their operations through fake registrations, document fraud and — as the case studies show — the setting up of a mystery airline, with the full knowledge of the Liberian authorities in order to avoid detection. The violations of the arms embargo and the problem with the registry were therefore directly linked.

Civil aviation in Liberia

144. The Liberian civil aviation authorities reacted to the publication of the report (S/2000/1195) by:

- Appointing a new Director of Civil Aviation and revoking, on 12 April 2001, the registration of 11 aircraft on the Liberian registry, which bear the prefix EL- and notifying all Directors of Civil Aviation of ICAO member States of the action;
- Informing the Directors of Civil Aviation of ICAO member States, on 13 April 2001, of this revocation and of the ban on flights by such aircraft and on the closure of the Liberian register;
- Asking the Directors of Civil Aviation, on 18 April 2001, to provide information on any Liberian aircraft grounded pursuant to the grounding order from Liberia.

145. Since the beginning of its mandate, the Panel has closely monitored the progress made in this field and has worked with the new Director of Civil Aviation in Liberia to find a way out of the disorderly situation the registry was in. Bits and pieces of documentation on the ownership of many aircraft were gradually found in Liberia and through communication with other civil aviation authorities. By the time the Panel last visited Liberia in the first week of October 2001, 117 planes had been identified on the basis of this information. These were aircraft that had been registered in Liberia since 1985 but a great number had obtained registration in the last five years (annex 12). The documentation showed that fraud had been committed under different ministers of transport. Sometimes, documents had just been forged or foreign businessmen had been given authorization to register planes in Liberia from offices abroad.

146. Identification and locating these aircraft is still ongoing and the newly appointed Director of Civil Aviation expressed his determination to the Panel to investigate the full extent of the problem of false registrations before proceeding to open a new registration list. The problem of Liberian registered aircraft is not yet fully solved because some aircraft may still be operating abroad with an EL-prefix painted on the tail, despite the revocation by Liberia. This is beyond the control of the Liberian Civil Aviation Authority and should be dealt with by the airports where these planes are seen and can be grounded.

147. The Panel considers that the measures taken so far by the Liberian Civil Aviation Authority are adequate and that the Security Council may consider lifting the grounding order imposed by resolution 1343 (2001) and allow Liberia to reopen an aircraft register. Those individual aircraft that were effectively grounded and have provided ICAO and the Security Council Committee with the documentation showing their registration in Liberia done in accordance with international regulations, should be given permission to restart their operations. The Liberian Civil Aviation Authority should however keep the Security Council Committee and ICAO informed on the follow-up of the investigation and on the registration of every new aircraft on the new Liberian register.

148. A second measure taken by Liberia was a decision to take over operation of their own airspace, which had been controlled from Conakry (Guinea), where the Flight Information Centre (FIC) of the Flight Information Region (ROBERTS FIR) is located. This airspace will be controlled exclusively by Liberian nationals.

149. In its discussions with the Panel, the Liberian Government argued that increased national security concerns were the reason for this decision. As per Article 1 of the Chicago Convention regulating international civil aviation, every State has complete and exclusive sovereignty over the airspace above its territory, so Liberia has the right to manage flight movements in its own airspace.

150. At a meeting in Dakar, on 26 and 27 March 2001, under the auspices of ICAO, it was agreed that, prior to any takeover of responsibility for Liberian airspace by Monrovia, a number of measures would have to be taken. These measures would include providing a minimum of communications equipment necessary for the safety of air traffic and the signing of letters of agreement among all parties for the coordination and transfer of air traffic.

151. The Panel relied for its investigation on information from different Flight Information Regions in West Africa, to get a good picture of all non-scheduled aircraft that had landed in Liberia in 2000 and 2001. Liberia did not supply such a list. Although information on landings and departures of every aircraft is information that is kept at every airport in the world, the airport authority in Liberia had consistently claimed that such a list was only kept for a short while and then destroyed.

152. Liberia can, in agreement with its partners in the Roberts Flight Information Region and in accordance with ICAO regulations, start to manage its own airspace. The Panel wants to express its concern, however, that Liberia's plans to renationalize its airspace, as opposed to the global trend of ever more integrated and regional airspaces, and to man its control centre with Liberians only, seem to suggest a desire to keep certain flight movements and landings secret. The Panel does not think that the issue should be subject to any sanctions, but would advise the Liberian Government to reconsider its decision as a matter of goodwill.

B. Arming and disarming in the region: an overview

Liberian arms embargo

153. The United Nations Security Council imposed through resolution 788 (17 November 1992) a "general and complete embargo on all deliveries of weapons and military equipment to Liberia", citing the need to establish peace and stability. In March 2001, this embargo was replaced by a renewed and tightened weapons and military equipment embargo as part of a wider package of sanctions mandated by United Nations Security Council resolution 1343 (2001).

154. In 1999, Liberia conducted a weapons destruction programme. The exercise, which began on 25 July, involved the destruction of 19,000 small and heavy-calibre weapons and more than three million rounds of ammunition collected by the United Nations and ECOMOG during the disarmament exercise in 1996-1997. A symbolic arms-burning act took place in Monrovia but the real weapons destruction occurred at an abandoned iron ore mine northwest of the capital. About 40 per cent of these weapons were rusted or unusable but others were in good working order. The weapons and ammunition were of both small and large calibre, including 900 hand and smoke grenades (from China, Britain and the former Czechoslovakia), two 120 mm rockets, rocket launchers, thousands of rocket-propelled grenades (RPGs), recoilless weapons, and machine guns, old M-1 rifles, AK-47 assault rifles, PBK light machine guns and around 12 million rounds of small-calibre and 12,000 rounds of large-calibre ammunition.

155. Despite the Government's public effort to demonstrate its commitment to disarmament, it was consistently procuring new supplies of weapons for itself and assisting RUF to procure weapons via Liberia.

156. Following the first dissident incursions in April and August 1999 in Lofa County, the Government launched a campaign to get the arms embargo lifted, claiming that in the face of external attacks the country was unable to defend its citizens. The then Deputy Information Minister claimed that the rebels could only be crushed if the embargo was lifted, but added that Liberia "could easily bypass the ban, but we don't want to do that".

157. Public commitments to comply with the embargo notwithstanding, a steady flow of new weapons continued to enter into the country. The Panel documents in this report how the Singapore-based mother company of the Oriental Timber Company arranged a US$ 500,000 payment for an arms shipment in August 1999; how the Bureau of Maritime Affairs assisted violations of the arms embargo in 1999 and 2000 and how Leonid Minin provided weapons in July 2000. In 2001 Liberia continues to try and violate the embargo.

158. Yet Liberia, in a letter dated 23 February 2001 from President Taylor to the United Nations Secretary-General, claimed that "As you are aware, Liberia destroyed all her arms and ammunition several years ago and currently remains disarmed. Accordingly, it would seem only fair, in the light of threats from Guinea, that this country be allowed to secure equipment for its legitimate defence needs". A second letter by Liberia in May asked the United Nations Security Council to temporarily lift the arms embargo so it could "import essential military supplies for the sole purpose of its self-defence".

159. Despite nine years of an embargo on arms and military equipment to Liberia, a steady supply of weapons have reached the country. Indeed, the Liberian authorities in their conversations with the Panel appeared not bothered about the embargo, and never complained about it. In contrast, they regularly complained about the United Nations travel ban on key individuals associated with the Government.

Security situation in neighbouring countries

Sierra Leone

160. The Government in Sierra Leone have had Mi-8 and Mi-24 helicopters since 1996 and the procurement of these or of spare parts and engines for these helicopters was always compromised by the involvement of controversial brokers and shadowy procedures. The Republic of Kazakhstan provided the Panel details of its export of two helicopters to Russia. The export licence was given against an end-user certificate for the helicopters, for their end-use in Russia. The helicopters were later detained by Russian customs, on their way to Freetown in Sierra Leone, without a valid export licence. The transaction was organized by Boris Fedoulov, a Russian national who is the owner of the commercial helicopter company Paramount Airlines in Freetown. The Panel interviewed Fedoulov in Moscow, where he confirmed the seizure of the helicopters. Fedoulov showed the Panel documentation on the case and explained that the helicopters had meanwhile been exported for use in Sierra Leone. In Kazakhstan, however, the authorities told the Panel that they believe that a crime has been committed under the Criminal Code of Kazakhstan by the procurer of the helicopters, Boris Fedoulov. In his testimony, Ya'ir Klein, who was arrested in Sierra Leone in January 1999 on suspicion of supplying and training the rebels of RUF, admitted the forgery of certain documents in his deal of supplying helicopter engines to the Government of Sierra Leone. The Sierra Leone Government is currently also involved in court disputes with several other suppliers of helicopters and helicopter spare parts. In some cases these had been supplied during the rule of Valentine Strasser. The Panel does not suggest that these arms transactions were violations of the arms embargoes, but wishes to draw international attention to the lack of transparency and inadequate control systems in the procurement procedures for sophisticated weaponry and related materiel to Sierra Leone.

Disarmament in Sierra Leone

161. With the signing of the Abuja agreement on 2 May 2001 and the signing of a new agreement on disarmament, demobilization and reintegration (DDR) between the warring parties in May 2001, cautious optimism is warranted. At the time of writing of this report, around 21,000 ex-combatants had been disarmed (the break-up being RUF — 7,000; CDF — 13,200 and AFRC — 260). It is still unclear what the total number of combatants in Sierra Leone was before the disarmament and demobilization process started. A majority of RUF and CDF are yet to join the DDR programme.

162. The ex-combatants have so far handed in around 8,200 weapons, 500 of which were group weapons such as mortars and heavy machine guns. The rest are various types of assault rifles, submachine guns and machine guns for individual use. The Panel was able to inspect many of the weapons in several of the DDR-weapons stores. Detailed lists are kept with the serial numbers and year of production of the weapons and the date and location where they were handed over. This data is not sufficient to trace the suppliers of the weapons. A breakdown of the types of weapons handed in shows that approximately 60 per cent of the individual assault rifles are AK-47 and AK-58 Kalashnikov types, 10 per cent are FN-FALs and around 6 per cent are G3s. All these commonly used rifles are produced under licence in many different countries. They are some of the most widely used weapons in the history of conflict.

163. Hardly any of the weapons bear sequenced serial numbers that would suggest its origin from a specific producer or from a particular stockpile. Most of the weapons handed in under DDR are of very poor quality. The harsh weather conditions in West Africa, especially the high humidity and the jungle terrain, the type of warfare the different factions have been engaged in and the complete lack of discipline of the rebels, affect the condition of the weapons adversely. The Panel gave some old listing of weapons handed in to several United Nations Member States to check on possible matches in their database systems. No results have come out of this so far.

164. It is hard to estimate the number of combatants remaining in Sierra Leone. It would be even harder to estimate the number of weapons that are still in the hands of the different warring factions. The poor quality of the weapons handed in and observations in the field suggest that most of the ex-combatants have turned in weapons that were no longer of use to them and that the bulk of functional weaponry has been stockpiled elsewhere. Further success of the peace process in Sierra Leone and specifically the success of the disarmament programme will have a bearing on the availability of weapons in the hands of private groups and individuals in Sierra Leone and the wider subregion, a situation that may undermine the security situation in the countries concerned over a longer period of time.

165. At a subregional level, the ongoing war in Lofa County in Liberia, which is bordering Guinea and Sierra Leone, certainly has negative side-effects on the disarmament situation in Sierra Leone. The demand for weapons and ammunition in Lofa creates a market, both for the individual combatants who can bring their personal weapons and ammunition to the border and sell it and for RUF as a rebel movement. The hardcore RUF-fighters may, in coordination with their former sponsor President Taylor, stockpile weapons on Liberian territory or just hand over their weapons to the Liberian side before they can be disarmed in Sierra Leone. The Panel examined a sizeable number of RUF cadres who joined DDR. According to most of them, the better condition and heavy calibre weapons have been sent to Liberia and not handed in to DDR.

Guinea

166. A good mechanism is in place to deprive non-governmental forces in Sierra Leone of getting arms and ammunition and for monitoring the arms procurement by the Government of Sierra Leone under resolution 1171 of the United Nations Security Council. No such restrictions, however, exist for Guinea. The country is known to have purchased a significant amount of arms and ammunition in the past few years in order to cope with the incursions along its borders with Sierra Leone and Liberia. Such weapons have been supplied from Eastern Europe and from Western countries alike.

167. The Panel witnessed during its visits to the war zone on the Guinean side of the border with Libéria, the presence of great numbers of non-state armed groups in different towns and villages in the provinces bordering Libéria. Those armed men are called "volunteers" by the local administrators but it is clear that towns like Macenta, Guéckédou and Nzérékoré are harbouring hundreds of fighters of the LURD. Guinea has also acquired new heavy artillery transport and combat helicopters. The Panel members during their visit to the border towns saw that two new Mi-24s were based in that region. Guinea also has a small number of fighter aircraft. Two of those were recently displayed in the airspace above the capital.

168. The Guinean authorities told the Panel that many forged Guinean end-user certificates were circulating in Eastern Europe. During the course of its investigation, the Panel obtained several copies of orders and end-user certificates for small arms, missiles, helicopters and cargo aircraft, apparently all with the Guinean armed forces as the end-user. The Panel during its visit to Guinea in August 2001, showed these copies to the acting Chief of Staff of the Guinean armed forces and the officer in charge of procurement; they identified six different end-user certificates for Guinea as forgeries. All these had been used by a network of brokers to obtain weapons for export to Libéria as shown in the case studies covered in this report.

Côte d'Ivoire

169. Côte d'Ivoire is also affected by a volatile internal situation between the contenders of the last elections and the current government. The presence of General Gueï, who was leading a military junta in the country until the elections, has also created unease over the loyalties of some units of the armed forces. This element, and the fact that countries such as Guinea and Sierra Leone have acquired helicopter gunships, has incited the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to engage in negotiations about the procurement of helicopter gunships.

170. During discussion with the authorities in Côte d'Ivoire, the Panel learned that the Defence Ministry had been approached by a broker representing the company Pecos who was involved in some of the violations of the embargo on Libéria. This report describes the fraudulent activities of this company, Pecos Compagnie SA, in the case study on End-User Certificates. The Panel has also described how weapons that were imported legally in Côte d'Ivoire ended up in Libéria in July 2000. The transaction was financed and set up by Leonid Minin. After his arrest in Italy, copies of the End-User Certificate for these weapons, signed by General Gueï, were found in Minin's possession. Minin also had several forged copies of the End-User Certificate for Côte d'Ivoire.

171. As shown in the case study on helicopters, Libéria has tried to match the build-up of weapons systems, despite the arms embargo. The most recent cases in Libéria's persistent hunt for combat helicopters on the international black market are dated February and March of 2001. Thanks to the intervention of the arms export controlling authorities in Moldova and the Slovak Republic, the helicopters were intercepted before departure.

172. The Panel is concerned that the procurement of weapons in the Mano River Union, especially in view of the embargo against Libéria, should be better regulated. The easy availability of small arms and ammunition to volatile areas like the Mano River Union countries is a regional and internal security threat to the three Union members. The use of unscrupulous arms dealers, even for the legal importation of arms by the non-embargoed neighbouring countries of Liberia itself encourages and provides opportunities for violations of the Liberia embargo.

173. In the case studies that follow, the Panel has painstakingly gone into details, followed various paper trails and put together pieces of the jigsaw puzzle to complete a picture of how Liberia has managed to get a regular supply of arms and ammunition despite an embargo on it since 1992.

C. Case studies

Case study: ER-75929 and the She-guns

174. When the Ugandan military discovered that a consignment of assault rifles did not correspond to the contract specifications, they demanded that the Egyptian arms broker send the delivery back to the manufacturer in the Slovak Republic. In October 2000 the broker agreed that a batch of one thousand of the rejected rifles would be dispatched back to Slovakia.

175. The broker, however, also found a new buyer for the weapons, Pecos company of Guinea. Initially the Ugandan authorities were unaware of this new arrangement. They assumed the broker was going to fly the weapons back to the sender and an Ilyushin-18 arrived in November 2000 in Entebbe, Uganda, to pick up the weapons and bring them back to the Slovak Republic. It flew to Monrovia instead.

176. This Ilyushin-18 arrived in Monrovia on 22 November 2000 carrying the cargo. The plane was registered in Moldova (ER-75929) but operated by the company Centrafrique Airlines of Bangui in the Central African Republic.

177. Three days later the same aircraft arrived back in Uganda to pick up a second consignment of 1,250 submachine guns. By that time the Ugandan authorities knew that the Egyptian broker was dealing with the Guinean company. An inspection of the plane showed that the pilot was trying to get official permission to fly to Guinea, but the routing on his flight plan suggested he intended to fly to Liberia. This resulted in the Ugandan authorities deciding to impound the cargo and contact the arms broker for additional information.

178. The arms broker, Sharif Al-Masri, responded on 26 November 2000 in a letter to the Ugandan authorities. The letter, a copy of which was obtained by the Panel, shows the letterhead of the brokering company Culworth Investments Corporation with an address in Monrovia, Liberia. In it, Mr. Sharif explains that the rejected arms had been sold to Pecos in Guinea and that the client had supplied him with an acceptable end-user certificate. The end-user Mr. Sharif sent to Uganda to corroborate was signed by the Director of Cabinet of the Guinean Ministry of Defence. It is dated 2 July 2000, almost five months previous to the planned delivery of the arms. Being not satisfied with the explanations of the arms broker and considering the risk of these weapons falling into the hands of rebels in West Africa, the Ugandan authorities decided to pay for the impounded weapons and keep them in the country. In early December 2000, the Panel of Experts on Sierra Leone received information from the Ugandan authorities about the incident.

179. At the time of receiving that information, that Panel was in the process of submitting its final report. So no further investigation was possible by that Panel.

This Panel decided to investigate the matter further. In May 2001, the Panel visited the Republic of Moldova. The Ilyushin-18 that had been chartered to deliver the weapons was owned by the company Vichi, a private agent for the Moldovan Ministry of Defence. The Moldovan authorities were not aware of the Uganda incident but organized meetings for the Panel with the Civil Aviation Authority in Chisinau. In close cooperation with the Moldovan officials it was established that a suspicious incident had occurred in November. After receiving permission for a chartered flight to Ras-al-Khaimah in the United Arab Emirates on 4 November 2000 to pick up passengers, the Ilyushin had disappeared for almost three weeks. On 24 November 2000, the plane arrived back in Moldova without passengers from the United Arab Emirates. Computer records inspected by the Panel showed it had come from Liberia, via Uganda, instead.

180. During the discussion with the Ministry of Defence in Moldova, representatives of the company Vichi were summoned for cross-examination by the Panel. The deputy director of the company explained the plane had been chartered by a company MoldTransavia. MoldTransavia's own aircraft, a Tupolev-154 had a technical problem in the United Arab Emirates and had chartered the Ilyushin to pick up some passengers there and fly them back to Moldova. When the Ilyushin arrived in the United Arab Emirates, however, MoldTransavia's plane had been repaired and carried the passengers back.

181. The crew of the Ilyushin, while in the United Arab Emirates, were then contacted by a Russian, Serguei Denissenko, representing the company Centrafrican Airlines. A contract was signed for a cargo flight from the United Arab Emirates to Uganda and from there to Liberia. When the Ilyushin arrived in Uganda, seven tons of sealed boxes were loaded on board and the plane left for Monrovia, Liberia. The representative of Vichi was unable to tell the Panel what was in the sealed boxes. The contract that was signed with Centrafrican Airlines, the charter company of the aircraft, describes the cargo load as "Technical Equipment".

182. After the first delivery had been made in Liberia, the plane returned to Uganda to pick up a second consignment of sealed boxes. After arrival, the crew were taken to a hotel near the airport of Entebbe. There they learned that the charter company had problems and that the cargo could not be cleared. The plane then flew back to Chisinau in Moldova. As per the original contract, the charter firm mentioned on the flight documents was no longer Centrafrican Airlines but the original contractor for the cancelled passenger flight, MoldTransavia.

183. In Moldova the Panel was also able to interview the manager of the company MoldTransavia, Mr. Pavel Popov. Mr. Popov was invited for a meeting with the Panel in the offices of the Moldovan Aviation Administration but turned out to be very unhelpful. Mr. Popov seemed unable to even show the panel documentation on the ownership of his own passenger plane, the Tupolev-154 that was supposed to have had a technical problem in the United Arab Emirates. Mr. Popov only said he leased it from a company in Sharjah in the United Arab Emirates by the name of San Air but refused to reveal the name of the owner of the aircraft. Asked about his background in aviation, Mr. Popov explained that he had only started operating his own aircraft after working for years as an agent for AirCess, a company of Serguei Bout and Victor Bout.

184. After the meeting with Mr. Popov, the Directorate of Civil Aviation supplied the Panel with the documentation on Mr. Popov's plane. It showed the plane was owned by Victor Bout and that Popov had signed a contract with Bout's company Transavia Travel Agency of Sharjah in the United Arab Emirates to lease the aircraft.

185. The plane was indeed insured by a company San Air, also registered in the United Arab Emirates. The general manager of that company is one Serguei Denissenko, the same man that had chartered the Ilyushin-18 for the arms deliveries from Uganda to Liberia. The Panel was given a copy of the charter contract signed by representatives of the Moldovan company Vichi and the company in the United Arab Emirates, Centrafrian Airlines. Another document shows that Vichi was paid for this contract by the company San Air General Trading of Sharjah, suggesting San Air and Centrafrian Airlines are basically one and the same company.

186. The Panel was also able to establish some further details on the Liberian side of the illicit arms transaction. Documents obtained from Uganda include a handwritten statement that was made up to confirm the loading of 1,000 of the submachine guns aboard the Ilyushin-18 with registration number ER-75929. The document is signed by the Ugandan Inspector General of Military Equipments and countersigned by a Mr. Muko, representing the arms brokerage company of Sharif Al-Masri and by a Mr. Popov, on behalf of Peter Jusko. This means Mr. Popov was present when the weapons were loaded. Mr. Jusko is known to the Panel from a series of documents on illicit arms deals to Liberia. On these documents Mr. Jusko acts as a representative of the company Pecos in Guinea (see section on End-User Certificates). Arms broker Al-Masri had obtained an end-user for Guinea from this company.

187. As already described, the flights between Uganda and Liberia were arranged through a contract between the company Vichi and the company Centrafrian Airlines, signed on 9 November 2000. Another document the Panel obtained showed that one day before the signing of this contract, on 8 November, Centrafrian Airlines signed a contract with the company West Africa Air Services Inc. of Monrovia. This "Cargo Air Transportation Contract" referred to the same plane ER-75929 and the same routing. The document mentioned a cargo of 14.5 tons, the exact weight if the plane had flown the full amount of rifles to Liberia in two separate air transportations. The charter contract foresaw "the performance of several air transportations", suggesting that more weapons were expected. A copy of this contract was supplied to the Panel by the General Manager of San Air General Trading, Mr. Denissenko. The signature for West Africa Air Services was that of Sanjivan Ruprah (annex 8).

188. The plane flew twice between Uganda and Monrovia but the second consignment never left Uganda because the Ugandan authorities intervened. The crew members of Vichi described how a Portuguese-speaking man accompanied them on both the flights as a representative of the Liberians. The Panel obtained more information on him. Nicknamed "Beto", Carlos Alberto La Plaine held a Portuguese passport issued in Kinshasa that showed he was a diamond dealer. Sanjivan Ruprah admitted to the panel that "Beto" was one of his colleagues.

Case study: The case of the mystery plane, EL-ALY

189. In May 2000, the Kyrgyzstan Defence Ministry received an order for rotor blades and spare parts for military helicopters. The broker was a known arms dealer, Alexander Islamov. The order for the helicopter equipment was from Pecos, a company that claimed to be a procurement agency for the Guinean armed forces. The Panel investigated the sale of these rotor blades and spare parts because the Guinean Ministry of Defence confirmed to the Panel that they had not ordered them. Meanwhile the Panel received reliable information that the equipment had been diverted to Liberia. On investigation, the case turned out to be related to a mysterious plane the Panel of Experts on Sierra Leone had found to be operating in Liberia.

Transportation of the helicopter spare parts

190. The Security Council report S/2000/1195 described how a phantom plane had been identified by air traffic controllers in West Africa. The plane was of interest to the Panel because it had landed on several occasions at Roberts International Airport in Liberia.

191. The aircraft was an Ilyushin-18, showing a Liberian registration EL-ALY. The Panel had asked Liberia to provide records of landings and departures from its airports but according to the Liberian authorities no such records were kept. In November 2000, Liberia provided the Panel of Experts on Sierra Leone with a full list of its aircraft registry. The Ilyushin with the Liberian registration was not among the 11 aircraft on the list.

192. But according to records on overflights and landings in several other African countries, a plane with this registration number operated for the West Africa Air Services company. West Africa Air Services operated the Ilyushin-18 from early July until October 2000.

193. According to the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), West Africa Air Services was not registered as an operating agency or an airline. The flights, according to documents obtained by the Panel, were operated with a call sign "WAS 123". This unique three-letter designator is a code that is used in aviation to communicate and identify specific flights or commercial operators in the air. The designator "WAS", however, belonged to an airline in Ontario, Canada.

194. A company with a slightly different name, West African Air Service existed in the Republic of Mali. The Panel obtained information and documentation from Mali on the registration and ownership of that company but it had never operated any flights beyond the borders of Mali. Besides, this company used "WAM", not "WAS" as its three-letter designator. During its investigation, the Panel on Liberia obtained additional documentation and conducted interviews with pilots and plane owners that revealed that the plane EL-ALY and the company West Africa Air Services did exist and that the plane was involved in weapons shipments on behalf of the Liberian Government.

195. The flight movements for West Africa Air Services as recorded by different Flight Information Regions in Africa and Europe are shown in the table below:

196. One document obtained by the Panel is a copy of an overflight and landing request for flight WAS 123 with registration EL-ALY issued on 17 July 2000. The plane arrived in Liberia from Bishkek (Kyrgyzstan) via Cairo and carried 7 tons of cargo described as "spare parts to equipment of aircraft".

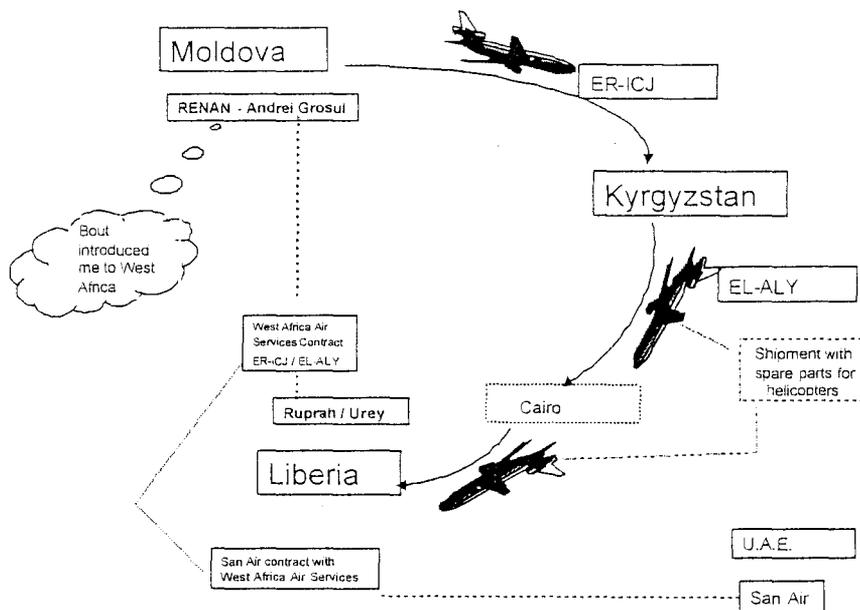

197. The document also showed that the West Africa Air Services Ilyushin-18 was owned by a large airline company, Renan. The authorities in Moldova organized a meeting between the members of the Panel and several airline owners including Andrei Grosul, the general manager of the company Renan. The Panel obtained documents that provided more detail about West Africa Air Services. Furthermore, the Panel cooperated with the authorities in Kyrgyzstan, Moldova and traffic controllers in Ghana, Guinea, Senegal and Côte d'Ivoire to corroborate the plane's movements.

198. The documents obtained by the Panel included the leasing agreement between Renan and West Africa Air Services. This contract dated 6 June 2000 showed that West Africa Air Services was registered in Liberia, with an office at P.O. Box 5620 Monrovia, 1926 Liberia. The company was represented by Mr. LeRoy Urey, who also signed the contract (annex 7). Mr. LeRoy Urey is the Liberian Deputy Minister for Administration and Public Safety.

199. The contract with Renan stipulated that the aircraft would be registered with the State Administration of Civil Aviation of the Republic of Moldova and will carry the marking of Moldova. The Panel inspected this plane later in Moldova and its tail number was the Moldovan ER-ICJ. This was exactly the registration number referred to in the contract.

200. The contract also stated that: "In case there is a necessity to repaint the Operated Aircraft and to change the above mentioned marking it shall be done at the account of West Africa Air Services". Inspection of the plane in Moldova showed that the marking on the tail of the aircraft had been recently repainted.

201. The Panel interviewed the owner of Renan and the pilot who had operated the plane during the leasing contract in Liberia. The Ilyushin had flown to Bishkek in Kyrgyzstan on 15 July 2000. In Bishkek the helicopter spare parts and rotor blades were picked up. On 17 July the plane then flew to Cairo, with a cargo manifest and an official flight plan for a flight to Guinea. On 18 July 2000 the plane arrived in Monrovia, however, and the helicopter spare parts were offloaded.

EL-ALY — The Mystery Plane: Flow sheet diagram showing the helicopter spare parts going to Liberia

The arms dealers and brokers

202. The authorities in Kyrgyzstan were not aware that the cargo had been diverted to Liberia, not Guinea as the arms broker Alexander Islamov had claimed. Alexander Islamov had provided Kyrgyzstan with an end-user certificate for Guinea (see section on End-User Certificates).

203. On the Liberian end of the transaction, another contract was set up. The company West Africa Air Services not only organized the transport with the Ilyushin-18 but also signed a contract with the company San Air General Trading for the procurement of rotor blades for a Mi-2 helicopter. San Air is a company registered in the United Arab Emirates. The director of the company, Serguei Denissenko is a close associate of Victor Bout. The contract bearing number Mi-2/RB/2000 was signed on 27 April 2000. The company West Africa Air Services in this case, is represented by Sanjivan Ruprah, who is also a close business associate of Bout.

204. Serguei Denissenko of San Air told the Panel that he had bought the rotor blades from Alexander Islamov, who is a regular supplier to San Air, and sold them to Sanjivan Ruprah of West Africa Air Services in Monrovia. He described Ruprah as a business partner of Victor Bout in Africa.

205. When the Panel requested information on the whereabouts of Sanjivan Ruprah in Liberia, the authorities claimed the man was unknown to them. LeRoy Urey, who had signed the leasing contract for West Africa Air Services, also denied knowing Ruprah. Ruprah, however, is known to have entered the European Union travelling with Liberian diplomatic passports, under different names. According to the passports, he was travelling on behalf of the Liberian Maritime Authority. The Commissioner for Maritime Affairs of Liberia, Benoni Urey, is a brother of LeRoy Urey. Benoni Urey also denied knowing Ruprah and knew nothing about the diplomatic passports. Mr. Ruprah is no longer in Liberia but had stayed for a long time in a house almost opposite to the one of Benoni Urey. When the Panel interviewed Mr. Ruprah he acknowledged this and confirmed that his house was that of the late Joe Tate, the former Inspector General of Police of Liberia who died in 2000 in a helicopter accident.

206. According to Denissenko no end-user certificate for the helicopter blades was needed because the Mi-2 is a non-armed transport helicopter. The end-user certificate that Alexander Islamov presented to the authorities in Kyrgyzstan to purchase the helicopter blades however clearly states that the blades were for Mi-24 helicopters (annex 6). The Mi-24 is a heavily armed helicopter gunship. The authorities in Kyrgyzstan told the Panel that Islamov had bought rotor blades for an Mi-24. Those rotor blades plus several tons of spare parts for helicopters were delivered to the Liberian end of the pipeline via San Air.

The case of Aviatrend

207. West Africa Air Services was set up for such smuggling operations only. The pilot of the plane told the Panel that he had been transporting some Liberian officials on the plane and the aircraft does have a number of passenger seats in front. However, the pilot also mentioned that the individual overseeing the operations of the plane knew more about ships than about aircraft and that his nickname was "Mr. Sanji". Sanjivan Ruprah signed West African Air Services documents and travelled on diplomatic passports issued by the Liberian Bureau of Maritime Affairs. He is the same person the Panel on Sierra Leone identified as an arms dealer involved in the Liberian procurement process.

208. Asked about the trips from Monrovia to Abidjan and back during July and early August, the pilot claimed the plane had been "empty". The Panel, however, also interviewed Sanjivan Ruprah extensively. He said those trips from Abidjan to Monrovia were for transportation of ammunition.

209. The chronology of the West Africa Air Services flights Abidjan-Monrovia and back coincides with the arrival at Abidjan airport (Côte d'Ivoire) of an Antonov-124 on 15 July 2000.

210. In cooperation with the Ukrainian authorities the Panel obtained details on this flight. The Air Waybill showed that the Antonov-124 carried a cargo of 113 tons of 7.62 mm calibre cartridges. The plane left the Ukrainian airport of Gostomel on 14 July 2000 and arrived in Abidjan, after a fuel stop in Libya on 15 July 2000. In Abidjan, the cargo was unloaded by the military.

211. The End-User for the five million cartridges and for a long additional list of weapons was signed by General Robert Gueï who was the head of State of Côte d'Ivoire at the time of the delivery. A stamp on the document showed that the signature of General Gueï was authenticated by the ambassador of Côte d'Ivoire in Moscow on 2 June 2000 and on that basis the Ukrainian authorities issued an export permit and authorized the flight. An additional document was requested by the authorities in Ukraine, a guarantee that the arms would be used in compliance with the ECOWAS moratorium on small arms. Ukraine also sent a military officer with the plane to verify the actual delivery of the weapons to Côte d'Ivoire.

212. The plane used to transport the cargo was chartered from the Antonov Design Bureau. The broker for the five million cartridges and the charterer of the plane was the Moscow-based Aviatrend company, represented by Valery Cherny. Cherny was an associate of Leonid Efimovic Minin. Minin had been key to the transportation of 68 tons of small arms from Burkina Faso to Monrovia in March 1999. Minin's private jet had then shuttled several times between the airports of Ouagadougou and Bobo-Dioulasso in Burkina Faso and Monrovia to carry the entire 68 tons.

213. Leonid Minin was arrested on 5 August 2000 in Monza, Italy. When the Italian investigators searched his hotel, a significant quantity of documents were found. Among these documents were faxes sent by Valery Cherny of Aviatrend to Minin and correspondence from the son of President Charles Taylor to Minin. Remarkably, several apparently original copies of the End-User Certificate from Côte d'Ivoire were also found in Minin's documentation. Bank transfers also show that Minin paid $1 million to Aviatrend. One payment, of US$ 850,000 to an Aviatrend account at the Alpha Bank in Nicosia, Cyprus, on 7 June 2000; a second payment of US$ 150,000 to an Aviatrend account with the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York on 13 June 2000 through one of Minin's many offshore companies Sulico Holdings. The reference for both the payments was "Buying Technical Material/Wood Extractions Tools".

214. The Panel interviewed almost every player in this particular case. The Ambassador of Côte d'Ivoire to Moscow who had authenticated the signature of General Gueï on the End-User Certificate was interviewed. When he saw copies of the End-User Certificate, the Ambassador acknowledged that he had signed one of them but said that the other copies found in Minin's possession were forged. Minor details on the document showed that Minin was carrying fraudulent copies of the End-User Certificate and that the Ambassador's signature was different from the one on the original that the Panel obtained from the authorities in Ukraine (annex 4).

215. In Moscow the Panel interviewed Valery Cherny of Aviatrend. Cherny could not explain why there were multiple copies of the Côte d'Ivoire End-User Certificate. When asked why Minin had paid him US$ 1 million when only five million cartridges had been sold (the approximate market price was US$ 250,000) Cherny acknowledged that more arms were stockpiled and waiting for delivery to Côte d'Ivoire. After the 14 July shipment had left Ukraine and preparations were made for additional deliveries Minin "disappeared". Later Cherny heard that Minin had been arrested in Italy. The weapons were waiting for delivery ever since, Cherny claimed.

216. The Panel also interviewed General Robert Gueï who, after the elections in Côte d'Ivoire, fled the capital to his home village in the west of the country. The General acknowledged that he had signed the End-User Certificate. He had signed only one document. He explained that when he took office, after a coup d'état in 1999, he wanted to replenish depleted Ivorian army stocks. As a first step he asked the Heads of State of other African countries, including Burkina Faso, Libya, Morocco and Liberia to supply small quantities of ammunition and light weapons. The Liberian President, General Gueï said, supplied some arms and even sent an emissary to help the General out. This emissary was the Liberian Ambassador-at-large Mohamed Salamé, a resident of Abidjan, and owner of a timber business in Liberia. Salamé offered his services and asked General Gueï to sign the End-User Certificate. A split-up would then be made between Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia for those weapons. The General acknowledged that some of the ammunition had remained in Côte d'Ivoire but most of it had been for Liberia.

217. The practical arrangements were made by Ambassador Salamé, according to the General. When the Panel contacted Ambassador Salamé, he flatly denied any knowledge of ammunition transactions. His business was exclusively timber, he said. However, when the Panel interviewed Leonid Minin in prison in Italy, he credited Mohamed Salamé for assisting the Côte d'Ivoire part of the Aviatrend arms deal. Minin said the deal had been organized by Mohamed Salamé on behalf of the Liberian President, in return for a beneficial deal for Minin's timber company Exotic Tropical and Timber Enterprises in Liberia. Leonid Minin also acknowledged that his arrest in August caused the cancellation of further deliveries of the weapons on the End-User Certificate. He had already made advance payments for those weapons. Leonid Minin also stated that the son of President Taylor, Charles "Chuckie" Taylor (Jr.) had tried to become part of some of these arms transactions, in order to collect commissions. Another business partner of Leonid Minin, a Finnish national with companies in Turkey and Switzerland, had dealt with Charles Taylor Jr. and documents found in Minin's possession show that this individual was sending documentation on different types of equipment to Minin. In some of these documents, "special packages for Junior" are mentioned. The Finnish individual, Erkki Tammivuori, acknowledged to the Panel that he had travelled a few times to Liberia with Leonid Minin and that he had been asked to broker non-lethal security equipment.

218. The Panel took particular interest in one letter sent to Minin by Mr. Tammivuori mentioning that arms could be delivered with or without End-User Certificate, and that a bidding procedure could be avoided if no end-user certificate was needed, thus making the arms cheaper. The letter is faxed to Minin in March 1999. It is printed on stationery of a company MET A.S. in Turkey, but sent from Tammivuori's address in Switzerland. The arms offered on the document are Konkurs missiles, configuration "Tandem Warhead for Reactive Armour". Sanjivan Ruprah, during his interview by the Panel showed on the computer screen of his cellular phone a list of weapons that had been delivered in May 2000 to Liberia, with the Ilyushin-76 bearing registration TL-ACU. The list contains several missile types, including Strela and Iгла missiles and launchers for Konkurs missiles. Mr. Ruprah explained that this equipment had so far not been used in the war, because no trainers had been sent to Liberia to operate the missile systems.

219. The son of President Taylor was also involved with the ammunition deal between Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia. Both Leonid Minin and Sanjivan Ruprah mentioned this. When the 113 tons of ammunition arrived in Côte d'Ivoire on board the Antonov-124 (registration UR82008), Minin was in Italy. The supplier of the weapons, Valery Cherny, was in the Ukraine at that time. The final delivery to Liberia was arranged between the military at Abidjan airport, Sanjivan Ruprah, Mohamed Salamé and Charles Taylor Jr. Minin said a special plane was organized from Monrovia to pick up the ammunition.

220. This is where the Ilyushin-18 of West Africa Air Services played an important role again. An Ilyushin-18 is a relatively small aircraft, as compared to the 113 tons that needed to be transported. This is why the plane had to fly eight times to bring the entire cargo over to Liberia, Mr. Ruprah told the panel. The operations started on the very day the Ilyushin had come back with the helicopter spare parts from Kyrgyzstan.

221. When Minin was arrested in Italy, the operation had to stop. Valery Cherny did not have the necessary contacts in Liberia, whereas Leonid Minin had been dealing with the Liberian presidency all along. President Taylor, as reported by the Panel on Sierra Leone, had reached an agreement with Minin to use his private jet to fly weapons from Niger and Burkina Faso. Minin also had important investments in the Liberian timber industry. Minin had documents in his possession when he was arrested, signed by the Minister of Justice in Liberia, showing that the Liberian Government still owed Exotic over $2 million in prepaid taxes. Since Minin never exported any significant amounts of timber, this money could only be owed for other services rendered to the Government of Liberia.

222. The Ivorian End-User Certificate, with its multiple copies in possession of Minin and Valery Cherny, provides an indication of the amounts of weaponry that were still in the pipeline to be supplied to Liberia, had Minin not been arrested by the Italian authorities. The public prosecutor of the court of Monza in Italy, at the time of writing of the report, was still investigating the full extent of this sanctions-busting case.

223. The pilot of the Ilyushin-18 also told the Panel in Moldova that after those flights from Abidjan, there had been little work for him and the crew. Clearly, the weapons ordered through the Minin-Aviatrend pipeline were directly related to the operations of the mystery Ilyushin (EL-ALY) that had been leased by Sanjivan Ruprah and his Liberian partners, Benoni and LeRoy Urey. It explains why the leasing contract between Renan and West Africa Air Services was finally called off. In September, the plane made one last flight, to fly members of President Taylor's Anti-Terrorist Unit to Abidjan to assist General Robert Guei when his residence came under attack by a rioting army unit. The plane then flew back to Chisinau, Moldova, where the fake tail number was removed and replaced with its original Moldovan registration ER-ICJ.

Case study: Liberia's quest for helicopters

224. The Panel has discovered that Liberia has been trying hard to obtain military helicopters. Transport helicopters (Mi-8, Mi-17) and especially helicopter gunships (Mi-24 or Mi-35) have found their way from factories and stocks of Eastern European countries to African conflict zones. In Sierra Leone Mi-24s played a significant role in the operations of Executive Outcomes, by the South African mercenaries in 1996. Guinea has in the past two years acquired several Mi-24 helicopters, several of which are stationed along the borders with Sierra Leone and Liberia. The Ministry of Defence in Côte d'Ivoire, in its discussions with the Panel, stated that the presence of these helicopters in neighbouring countries was a potential threat to Ivorian security and that the Government was going to procure similar helicopter gunships to match this build-up.

225. Liberia was not known to have any Mi-24s but the arms embargo imposed on Liberia has not prevented the country from importing several other military helicopters. The Panel on Sierra Leone mentioned the shipment of those in its report (S/2000/1195, para. 233) and identified the arms smuggling network of Victor Bout as the main supplier. During its visits to Liberia in July and October 2001, this Panel observed two Mi-17s, one with the markings of the Anti-Terrorist Unit, based at the airport of Spriggs Payne, close to the city of Monrovia; another one is grounded with technical problems in a hangar at Roberts International Airport since early 2001. Two Mi-2 helicopters were also supplied by Sanjivan Ruprah in October 1999 and spare parts for Mi-17 and for Mi-24 helicopters were obtained from Kyrgyzstan in July 2000. The Panel also spoke to Sanjivan Ruprah who, as a partner of Victor Bout based in Liberia, had been key to the procurement of the deliveries of the Mi-8 helicopters.

226. Helicopter pilots stayed in Hotel Africa, the hotel owned by one of the most influential businessmen in Liberia, Gus Kouwenhoven. The Panel visited Hotel Africa in July and found that the majestic hotel was almost completely empty. The pilots were the only regular clients. Gus Kouwenhoven lives in one of the villas that are part of the hotel complex. Mr. Kouwenhoven told the Panel in October 2001 that the pilots had left his hotel. One of these pilots, now returned to Eastern Europe, confirmed that he and his colleagues had left.

227. Liberia's quest for Mi-24 helicopter gunships appeared to have been unsuccessful so far. But there have been two recent attempts to obtain additional Mi-17s and even Mi-24s. The authorities of Moldova and Slovakia assisted the Panel in its investigation of these cases.

The first consignment

228. In March 2001, the Security Council Committee on Liberia received information from the Slovak authorities that their customs authorities had stopped a helicopter gunship from being transported to the Republic of Kyrgyzstan. They had been suspicious that the aircraft with the helicopter on board planned to go to another destination, in possible violation of United Nations sanctions.

229. An investigation into events leading up to this incident indicated that on 2 July 2000 the LOT helicopter repair plant at Trencin signed a contract with the Ministry of Defence of the Republic of Kyrgyzstan for the repair and refurbishment of two Kyrgyz helicopter gunships. Contractual arrangements had been made between the Ministry of Defence and a Defence Attaché from the Republic of Kyrgyzstan to Moscow, Major General Urazmatov. The Defence Attaché had first enquired about the possibility to have two Mi-24 helicopter gunships repaired at the helicopter repair plant in Slovakia. A first helicopter had arrived in Slovakia in late June 2000, after approval of the Slovak Ministry of Defence. After the contract was signed, it had been refurbished and repaired and had been flown back to Kyrgyzstan a few weeks later. The second helicopter had arrived in October 2000 and an Ilyushin-76 was to pick it up again in February 2001. The transport in both cases had been arranged through charter contracts with the private airline company Centrafrique Airlines.

230. A detailed analysis of the case shows that the first helicopter had arrived in June on board an Ilyushin-76 and stayed at the repair plant for about one month. The same Ilyushin-76 (registration TL-ACU) had transported the helicopter back to Kyrgyzstan. However, by the time the second helicopter had been repaired in Slovakia, in February 2001, the authorities started to become suspicious and sought additional confirmation about the legitimacy of the deal from their counterparts in Kyrgyzstan because the second helicopter was ready to be flown back there.

231. Kyrgyzstan reported that the helicopters were not supposed to come back. In fact the Ministry of Defence in Kyrgyzstan was not even aware of any repair contract in Slovakia, correspondence between the customs departments of both countries shows. Instead, the helicopters had been sold by Kyrgyzstan to a broker, Alexander Islamov. The client for the helicopters was a Guinean company called Pecos. This information, received from Kyrgyzstan, led the authorities in the Slovak Republic to block the second helicopter and to inform the United Nations Security Council Committee about the case. The Panel found out later that it was the Military Attaché of Kyrgyzstan, Major General Urazmatov, who had set up the deal with the Slovak repair plant, without the knowledge of the Defence Ministry in Kyrgyzstan. The Major General was fired afterwards.

232. A few days after the grounding of the helicopter on 22 February 2001, a national from the Slovak Republic, a Peter Jusko presented himself as the representative of Pecos and claimed to be the new owner of the helicopter. Mr. Jusko was already known to the Slovak authorities as a director of an arms brokerage company called Joy Slovakia. Alexander Islamov, the broker who had dealt with the Ministry of Defence in Kyrgyzstan was also a director of that company. The military in the Slovak Republic had previously done business with Joy Slovakia and showed the Panel a copy of an end-user certificate of the company for the sale of small arms to Guinea in 1997. The Panel later verified in Guinea that the arms had never been ordered by the Defence Ministry there (see section on End-User Certificates). The End-User Certificate was a forgery.

233. Even before customs had grounded the second helicopter, the cargo plane that would come to pick up the helicopter had raised some suspicion with the Civil Aviation Authority in Bratislava. Requests for landing of the cargo aircraft had come from the company MoldTransavia, in Moldova, but the company wanted to perform flights with aircraft registered in the Republic of the Congo and the Central African Republic, with a billing address in the United Arab Emirates. The Slovak Civil Aviation Authority first contacted the Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation in Moldova to establish if the company MoldTransavia was duly entitled to operate international non-scheduled flights, if MoldTransavia had a valid air operator certificate and if the airline was entitled to operate an Ilyushin-76 cargo aircraft. The Moldovan reply was that MoldTransavia had a valid operator certificate but was only authorized to operate a passenger aircraft, not the Ilyushin-76 it wanted to operate for the transport of the helicopter gunship.

234. Meanwhile, MoldTransavia tried to send copies of insurance documents to the Civil Aviation Authority in Slovakia to show that it was duly insured to operate two Ilyushin-76s. The insurance documents showed that since December 2000, one Ilyushin-76 with registration number TL-ACU was insured for both the companies MoldTransavia and a company San Air. Another Ilyushin-76 with registration TN-AFS was insured for the Government of the Congo and again, the company San Air, but not for MoldTransavia. MoldTransavia had sent these certificates of insurance to Slovakia on 12 February 2001, but by that time the negative answer from the Aviation Authority in Moldova had arrived.

235. The Slovak Civil Aviation Authority refused to grant MoldTransavia permission to perform the flight for the transport of the helicopter. But then another series of requests arrived from the company Centrafrique Airlines. Centrafrique requested permission to land in Slovakia and to pick up the same helicopter. The plane it wanted to use was again the Ilyushin-76 with registration TL-ACU. This time, Centrafrique Airlines would be the operator.

236. By then, the Slovak Aviation Authority was already in possession of the insurance certificate it had obtained from MoldTransavia for this particular aircraft, the Ilyushin-76 with registration TL-ACU. The insurance document did not show that the company Centrafrique Airlines was entitled to operate the aircraft, so again, the aviation authorities wanted to check the air operator certificate of Centrafrique Airlines and the insurance certificate showing the company was authorized to fly the Ilyushin-76.

237. On 19 February 2001, Centrafrique sent an insurance certificate for the plane. This time it covered insurance for the owner San Air and two operators, MoldTransavia and Centrafrique Airlines. The plane, according to the certificate, was insured for all these companies since 4 December 2000.

238. Centrafrique Airlines also sent an Air Operator's Certificate issued in the Central African Republic and with a company address in the United Arab Emirates. On 20 February 2001, permission was finally granted for the Ilyushin-76 to land in the Slovak Republic, pick up the helicopter and fly it back to Kyrgyzstan. On 22 February, the aircraft arrived to collect the helicopter gunship but then the Slovak customs authorities intervened.

239. The Panel visited the Republic of Kyrgyzstan to get a better understanding of the contractual arrangements and of what had happened with the first helicopter that should have arrived back there, according to the contractual agreement the Slovak repair plant had with Kyrgyzstan. However, Kyrgyzstan did not have any knowledge of such a contract. The Ministry of Defence in Kyrgyzstan cooperated with the Panel and provided details on their involvement in the helicopter deal. The Ministry of Defence in Bishkek had been dealing with a representative of Pecos, Alexander Islamov. He had always presented himself as a regional representative of the company Pecos in Guinea, who procured weapons and related materiel on behalf of the Ministry of Defence of Guinea. As described in the case above, Islamov had bought spare parts for helicopters in Kyrgyzstan, too. Islamov is a co-director with Peter Jusko in a number of arms dealing companies that are known to have been set up for illegal arms transactions and sanctions-busting activities. In the case of the helicopters, Islamov presented the Defence Ministry in Kyrgyzstan with an end-user certificate for Guinea, dated 1 July 1999. This document, as the Panel later established during a visit to Guinea, was a forgery and the helicopters had not been ordered by Guinea.

240. When the Ilyushin-76, Victor Bout's plane, had arrived in Kyrgyzstan on 26 June 2000 to pick up the first helicopter gunship, it did take off and fly to the repair plant in Slovakia. There it departed again on 2 August 2000, to fly the helicopter back to Kyrgyzstan with a fuel stop in Chisinau (Moldova), according to the flight permission given in Slovakia, but it never went to Kyrgyzstan at that time. It only arrived in Kyrgyzstan on 22 August for a fuel stop, coming from Tbilisi (Georgia) and then it took off, according to the logs of the traffic controllers in Kyrgyzstan, to Conakry in Guinea. Records of the traffic controllers in West Africa, however, show that the plane did not fly to Guinea, but landed at Roberts International Airport in Liberia instead, on 23 August 2000. At the time of writing, the Panel was still waiting for a response from Georgia on the cargo on board the Ilyushin. Hardly two months earlier, as described in another case in this report, a plane had also flown from Kyrgyzstan to Monrovia, with 7 tons of spare parts for Mi-8 and Mi-24 helicopters. Again, the authorities in Kyrgyzstan had been led to believe that the final destination would be Guinea, not Liberia.

The second consignment

241. After the refusal of customs to allow the helicopter to depart from Slovakia, the Ilyushin-76 of Centrafrican Airlines went to pick up another helicopter consignment. On 10 March 2001, the cargo aircraft arrived at the military airfield of Marculesti in Moldova. Centrafrican Airlines had a contract with the local airline company MoldTransavia to pick up two Mi-8 helicopters. This was immediately after the debacle with the helicopter in Slovakia. The Panel obtained a copy of this charter contract, signed on 15 February 2001, provided to the Panel by Sergei Denissenko, the General Manager of San Air which is an agent for the flights of Centrafrican Airlines. The Panel also obtained copies of money transfers by San Air to the repair plant in the Slovak Republic.

242. In Moldova, the deception with flight plans went on. There, the helicopters were two Mi-8s, owned by the Moldovan Air Force. The Ministry of Defence of Moldova had signed a contract with Andrei Grosul, General Manager of the Moldovan company Renan, to have the helicopters repaired and then lease them to a third party. This was done through yet another company, the company Pecos in Guinea. A joint cargo insurance certificate obtained by the Panel shows that Renan and Pecos insured the transport of the two military helicopters Mi-8 from Chisinau (Moldova) to Conakry (Guinea).

243. During its visit to Moldova in June 2001, the Panel cooperated with the authorities to find out more about the case. The issue had already caused a dispute between the Defence Ministry and other government branches because normal arms export procedures had been bypassed and no authorization had been given for the export of the helicopters. The case shows an exceptional type of deception because the export of helicopters was done without an End-User Certificate. Copies of End-User Certificates would eventually turn up, but only after the helicopters had been stopped from departing.

244. One of the brokering companies, Renan, and the suppliers of the helicopters, the Defence Ministry of the Republic of Moldova, argued that in the case of a leasing contract, no end-user was needed. The helicopters were to be sent to Guinea for repairs and would then be leased to Guinea and later Namibia. Only after completion of the repairs in Guinea an exploitation contract for their use would be signed and only then, the normal export procedures for military transactions would be followed. When the helicopters were ready to depart from the military airfield of Marculesti in Moldova to Guinea, the Moldovan security service intervened and stopped the cargo aircraft carrying the helicopters from departing. This was in March 2001. When the Panel visited Moldova, the helicopters were still being held. Shortly before the Panel arrived in Moldova, Renan cancelled its contract with Pecos in Guinea. The Panel obtained a copy of the agreement on the termination of the contract. That document, signed on 31 May 2001 in Chisinau, Moldova, clearly shows that Renan was not just sending the helicopters to Guinea for repairs. Pecos, in the document, is called the Lessee, Renan the Lessor. The document was signed one week before the Panel arrived in Moldova.

245. The Panel questioned the General Director, Andrei Grosui, of the company Renan at length. Renan had signed one contract with the Ministry of Defence in Moldova on the one hand and with Pecos Compagnie in Guinea on the other hand. Being short of money to maintain its helicopters, the Moldovan military were interested in this contract. Renan offered to pay for the repairs of the helicopters in Guinea, money that would be gained back afterwards when they would be leased to a third party for temporary use. Part of these profits would then be split between Renan and the Moldovan Air Force. The package deal also included contract work for pilots of the Moldovan air force, another aspect that was considered beneficial to the Moldovan Ministry of Defence.

246. The problem with this arrangement is that Guinea does not have any helicopter repair facilities. The Guinean authorities were also unaware of any contract being signed with either Renan, the Defence Ministry in Moldova or the Guinean company Pecos. All this was verified by the Panel.

247. In Moldova, the company Pecos was represented by an Israeli citizen, Jacob Berger. A document presented by Berger in Moldova to the Defence Ministry, shows that he had power of attorney to act on behalf of Pecos. Both Jacob Berger and Peter Jusko, as representatives of Pecos and of another company, Joy Slovakia (see section on end-user certificates), had procured weaponry from Moldova before. None of these weapons had ever been delivered to the destination stated on the documents they provided to the exporting countries. In the records of the Moldovan Defence Ministry, an end-user certificate was found for a case where Jusko and Berger had acted as brokers. The stated end-user on this document was Guinea, but as the Panel verified in Guinea, the weapons had never gone to Guinea. The Guinean authorities categorically stated that the country had never used Pecos as a broker for any of its arms procurement transactions. As the other cases in this report illustrate, Pecos is a company that has systematically been used by brokers to violate the arms embargo imposed on Liberia. If the helicopters had not been stopped in Moldova, they would certainly have ended up in Liberia, too.

248. Pecos is not the only indication for this. The company, Renan, had previously been in business with Liberia. It was Renan that signed the charter agreement for the mystery plane with registration number EL-ALY, that was used for several arms shipments to Liberia. At least one of those included helicopter spare parts and rotor blades for military helicopters, again with Pecos at the receiving end.

249. Another strong indication that the helicopters would have gone to Liberia is the transport plane that arrived in Moldova on 10 March 2001 to pick up the helicopters to ship them to West Africa. Victor Bout's Ilyushin had been used on previous occasions to ship weapons to Liberia, as was shown in the report (S/2000/1195). The owner of MoldTransavia, the company that organized the operating and landing permits for the Ilyushin in Moldova, is Pavel Popov, an individual the Panel identified as a close business partner, or rather an employee, of Victor Bout. Popov can be considered the ground manager for Victor Bout's arms shipments from Central Europe. It is Popov who applies for flight permissions and issues the false flight plans. Popov was also a key player in the Ugandan case where AK-47s were diverted from their stated destination and flown to Liberia. It was Popov who signed the clearance document, on behalf of Peter Jusko of Pecos (see case of the She-guns).

250. The Moldovan authorities arranged for the Panel to meet with Pavel Popov, who confirmed that he worked for Victor Bout. Pavel Popov refused to give the Panel documentation on the owner of the plane. The Panel obtained the documents, however, from the Civil Aviation Authority in Moldova, where under normal international procedures, documents on the owners and insurers are kept. The documents show that Popov's company, MoldTransavia, operated its own passenger plane. The Certificate of Registration states that the owner of the aircraft was Transavia Travel Agency, in Sharjah, United Arab Emirates. The leasing agreement between MoldTransavia and Transavia Travel Agency was signed in June 2000 by Pavel Popov and Victor Bout, respectively. An airworthiness certificate attached to the documentation shows the plane was registered in the Central African Republic before it had been registered by Pavel Popov in Moldova (see also section on Centrafrique Airlines). The latter certificate, the Panel found out while visiting the Central African Republic, was a forgery but it was used to change the name of the aircraft owner Centrafrique Airlines to Transavia Travel Agency. Other documents show that Victor Bout had bought the plane from his brother, Sergueï Bout. The payment of $1 million was made from Transavia Travel Agency's account at the Standard Chartered Bank in Sharjah, an element that would later prove important to the Panel when bank transfers from Liberia to the companies of Victor Bout were analysed.

251. Shortly after the Panel had visited Moldova, the plane of Popov was excluded from the Moldovan aircraft register. This means MoldTransavia could no longer operate from Moldova. Information obtained from Bulgaria shows that Transavia Travel Agency, represented by Victor Bout, sold the plane on 21 May 2001, exactly two weeks before the Panel arrived in Moldova, to San Air General Trading FZE in Ajman, United Arab Emirates, represented by Serguei Denissenko. San Air's General Manager Serguei Denissenko also represents Victor Bout's airline Centrafrique Airlines.

252. On 11 June 2001, four days after the Panel had interviewed Pavel Popov, he leased his plane to Union Trans Service in Bulgaria, who in turn leased the aircraft to Balkan Bulgarian Airlines. The plane now carries the new registration LZ-LTV. Renan, after cancelling the leasing contract for the helicopter with Pecos in Guinea, signed a new agreement with a brokering company in Hungary. Under a new agreement signed on 25 June, two weeks after the Panel had left Moldova, the helicopters were now finally leased to Namibia. There is little doubt that the helicopters would be in Liberia, if the authorities in Moldova and Slovakia had not intervened in a timely fashion. There are strong indications that advance payments for the helicopters were made to Centrafrique Airlines, through the accounts of its representing agency, San Air, in the United Arab Emirates (see section on Government Expenditures).

Case study: The Pecos End-User-Certificate Trail

253. Copies of Guinean end-user certificates used by Pecos were obtained by the Panel in Slovakia, in Moldova, in Kyrgyzstan and in Uganda. The Defence Minister of Côte d'Ivoire also mentioned Pecos as a company that had recently offered him its services to procure military helicopters for the Ivorian armed forces. An End-User Certificate mentioning Pecos and signed by the Defence Ministry of Namibia was also found. The latter, dated 28 March 2001, is a forgery. This was confirmed by the Namibian authorities. The Panel also verified that none of the weapons on the many different end-user certificates presented by Pecos of Guinea ever went to Guinea.

254. The structure of Pecos is simple. The company was established in Conakry, Guinea, in October 1997. The company's main focus was dealing in weapons. The statutory manager of the company is Mohamed Yansané, a Guinean citizen and agronomical engineer. He went to university in Czechoslovakia with Peter Jusko. Peter Jusko, a national from the Slovak Republic, came to see him in 1997 and asked him to set up a company in Guinea.

255. Jusko visited Yansané a few months after his arms dealing company, Joy Slovakia, in the Republic of Slovakia had become the focus in a criminal investigation by several European police services for suspected involvement in money laundering and arms trafficking.

256. Yansané's involvement was restricted to be, nominally, the manager of the Pecos company. When confronted by the Panel with all the end-user certificates bearing his signature, Mohamed Yansané did not recognize any of them. He recognized one document, dated February 2001, that was signed by him and stamped by a notary in Conakry, Guinea. The document gave full power of attorney to Peter Jusko to represent Pecos and was made up urgently to allow Jusko to get a combat helicopter released that was kept by customs authorities at the airport of Sliac in the Slovak Republic.

257. The notary's stamp and signature on the document was genuine, it was of Mr. Yansané's wife. Another document that provided similar representation to Jacob Berger, an Israeli citizen, was not recognized by Mr. Yansané. The Panel obtained this document in Moldova where the export of two helicopters was blocked by the authorities because of irregularities. The helicopters were, according to the documents, supposed to be sent to Guinea for repairs, and then to Namibia. Guinea has no helicopter repair facilities.

258. Mr. Yansané told the Panel that in 1997, around the time Pecos had been registered as a company, Peter Jusko had supplied medical equipment to Guinea for a military hospital. An official of the Ministry of Defence had signed for the delivery of that equipment. The stationery paper, the stamps and copies of that signature were then later used, Mr. Yansané explained, to produce forged end-user certificates. The Chief of Staff of the Guinean Armed Forces and the Procurement Officer of the Guinean army also said that none of the items on any of the Pecos end-user certificates the Panel presented to them had ever been ordered by Guinea.

259. Pecos was a front company for illicit arms imports into Africa from arms-exporting countries. Although the Panel's investigation was limited to a small number of specific arms transactions to Liberia, many of these end-user certificates showed up. Those documents show a wide range of arms, from helicopter gunships to transport aircraft, missiles, artillery pieces and massive quantities of small arms and ammunition. In combination with the false flight plans for the transport of the weapons, most of the exporting countries took Guinea for the real end-user. Had any of the exporting countries tried to actually verify that Guinea was the real end-user, Pecos might not have lasted until 31 May 2001, the date on the most recent document the Panel obtained.

260. An analysis of the chronology of events shows that Peter Jusko's plan was to set up a front company in Guinea, following the start of investigations by some Western and Central European police agencies into the activities of his other company, Joy Slovakia. In practically all the countries where the Panel discussed the issue of the Pecos end-user certificates, Peter Jusko or some of the other individuals involved with Pecos were also known as representatives of Joy Slovakia.

261. In 1998, new legislation was also enacted in the Slovak Republic making it a requirement for arms dealing companies to register and get a special permit. Since then, Joy Slovakia has become less active. The company changed its name into Morse s.r.o. in 1999, but that new company never had any registered commercial activities, an investigation by the Slovak authorities shows.

262. In some of the cases investigated, the date on the end-user certificates is much older than the actual delivery of the weapons. In the case of the helicopter spare parts and rotor blades from Kyrgyzstan that were shipped to Liberia in July 2000, an end-user dated 25 September 1998 was presented by Alexander Islamov to the Defence Ministry in Kyrgyzstan. Although end-user certificates have an indefinite validity, the signature on the documents is from an official in Guinea who left the Government years ago. None of the export controllers in the exporting countries seemed aware of that and only depended on the documents and the broker as a guarantee for the safe delivery of the arms.

263. Also, if arms-exporting countries would have reported all their arms sales to a centralized database such as the United Nations Conventional Arms Register, the magnitude of so-called "Guinean procurement of weapons" should have triggered the attention of several arms-exporting agencies.

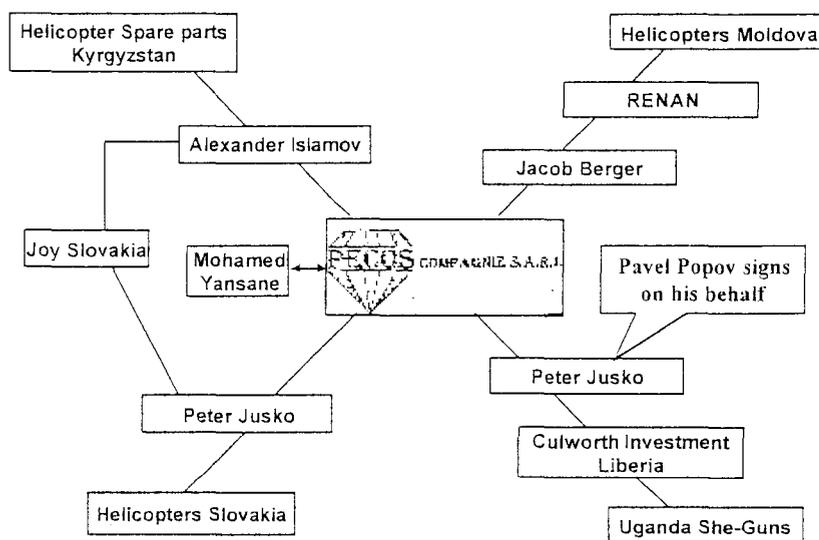

264. The occurrence of individuals associated with Joy Slovakia and Pecos in the violation of the arms embargo on Liberia was systematic. Although these brokering companies may have been used for arms deals to other embargoed countries or non-state actors, individuals associated with the company played a very important role in arming Liberia and Sierra Leone. Peter Jusko, Alexander Islamov and Jacob Berger are three individuals whose names were mentioned during interviews with officials of arms-exporting agencies in several countries.

265. These names also appear on the documentation collected by the Panel. Since all the arms in these cases went to Liberia, all these individuals were involved in the use of forged end-user certificates and the illicit trafficking of weapons to a country under United Nations sanctions. The Panel asked the cooperation of the authorities and law enforcement agencies in several countries to locate or at least get a contact number for these individuals. Mohamed Yansané was found after a long search in Kipé, Ratoma, a district of the capital of Guinea that was mentioned on some of the stamps on the end-user certificates. The Panel managed to find the notary who turned out to be the wife of Yansané and was able to question both of them.

266. The Panel also wanted to confront Peter Jusko, Alexander Islamov, and Jacob Berger with the evidence but only was able to locate Peter Jusko, who contacted the Panel himself in October 2001. Jusko claimed he knew nothing about the use of all these end-user certificates and blamed Alexander Islamov in Moscow, who was indeed his former associate, and the network of Victor Bout for the wrongdoing. He did not want to explain why then, he had taken the initiative to contact the Panel. When asked about the phone number or a contact address for Islamov, Jusko said Islamov changed phone numbers all the time and only contacted him. This was an often heard statement when the Panel tried to locate other arms dealers and brokers too.

267. When the Panel interviewed Sanjivan Ruprah, in September 2001, he explained that Jusko was one of the main suppliers of end-user certificates to his organization. Islamov is a supplier of many weapons and spare parts for the companies of Bout. Ruprah, who is both the owner of diamond mines in Liberia and an arms dealer, works in close cooperation with Victor Bout. Ruprah lived in Monrovia, Liberia, from 1999 until January 2001. He showed the Panel a recent arms wish list for Liberia with prices for different types of arms and ammunition. The price for the end-user certificate, as marked on the list, was US$ 50,000. "24 hours required to obtain end-user" is marked on the document.

Case study: The case of Centrafican Airlines

268. An Ilyushin-76 (registration TL-ACU) became a key focus of the Panel. In several of the cases analysed by the Panel, this plane was used for the transport of weapons in violation of the United Nations embargo. When not in operation, the plane is parked at Sharjah or Ras al-Khaimah, two airports in the United Arab Emirates. The Panel members saw the plane at the airport of Ras al-Khaimah during their visit to the United Arab Emirates. It is owned by Centrafican Airlines, an airline company with offices in the Sharjah Airport Freezone. In early 2001, the company offices moved to P.O. Box 2190 in Ajman, another emirate in the United Arab Emirates.

269. The company is owned by Victor Bout, but Bout himself is not involved in the day-to-day management. The commercial manager of the company is Serguei Denissenko, a Russian living in the United Arab Emirates who used to work as an employee for Victor Bout but now runs his own company San Air General Trading.

270. Mr. Denissenko claimed during interviews with the Panel that he no longer works for Victor Bout, but his company San Air shares a business address and phone numbers with Centrafican Airlines in the United Arab Emirates. Victor Bout's main operating agency, Transavia Travel Agency, also shared this address but that company has ceased operations in early 2001 according to Mr. Denissenko.

271. Centrafican Airlines is still operational with San Air General Trading acting as the commercial and operations agent. In March 2001, San Air and Centrafican Airlines moved to new offices in the Ajman Freezone. When calling the switchboard of these companies, it seems both companies are now part of an entity called the CET Aviation Enterprise. To make things more complicated, a company CET Aviation exists in Malabo, in Equatorial Guinea. That company is run by a Valerii Naido, also a former employee of Victor Bout, who now assists an agency to register planes in Equatorial Guinea. Serguei Bout has most of his aircraft registered there; some of the planes of Centrafican Airlines were in the process of being transferred to that register at the time the Panel was writing its report. In Rwanda, another associated company exists, with the name Central African Airways.

Centrafican Airlines

272. The Panel is in possession of documents showing it is Victor Bout who signs as the owner of Centrafican Airlines. Contracts for the sale of aircraft and bank documents are signed by him. As the name would suggest, the founding address of Centrafican Airlines is not in the United Arab Emirates but in Bangui, in the Central African Republic. The company was registered there by Victor Bout on 28 May 1998. The principal shareholders are a company SouthBound Ltd., P.O. Box 398, Suite 52 and 553 Monrovia House, 26 Main Street, Gibraltar, controlled by Victor Bout. Another company of Victor Bout under the name ATC Ltd. and a company WestBound Ltd., P.O. Box 399, 26 Main Street, Gibraltar, are also shareholders of the company. The latter, WestBound, is owned by a Belgian pilot, Ronal De Smet. De Smet has been a partner of Bout since 1995.

273. On 25 July 1998, upon special instructions from the Ministry of Transport, with a view to facilitating the registration of the company, Centrafican Airlines obtained an Air Operator Permit from the Civil Aviation Authority of the Central African Republic authorizing the company to operate flights domestically. Thus, Centrafrique Airlines had no authorization to operate international or continental flights. Its fleet consisted of three aircraft, one Tupolev-154 and two smaller Antonov-24s, recorded in the registration book.

274. Those were the only planes that the company ever registered in the Central African Republic, but in early 2000, the Civil Aviation Authority there discovered a major case of fraud in its registry. A Director of Civil Aviation, in close collaboration with Victor Bout and his partners, but without the knowledge of the authorities in the Central African Republic, had produced many false permits for Centrafrique Airlines. About 20 planes and possibly more, many of them large freighter aircraft, operated in different parts of the world under the Central African Republic flag. None of these planes had been properly registered. The plane registered as TL-ACU is one of those illegally registered (annex 5). The plane was insured until mid-September by the company Willis, a well-known insurance broker in the United Kingdom. During the Panel's visit in the United Arab Emirates, Serguei Denissenko told the Panel that he has very good contacts at Willis and that his company San Air takes care of the insurance for Victor Bout's planes. The insurance documents for the Ilyushin illustrate how the plane operates for different companies, including Centrafrique Airlines, San Air and MoldTransavia, Moldova.

275. Centrafrique Airlines and San Air are clearly two agencies of the same company. MoldTransavia is another front company that operated only one passenger aircraft. The company, however, uses its three letter designator "MLT" for cargo flights of the Ilyushin of Centrafrique Airlines. Both the general manager of San Air and the general manager of MoldTransavia in Moldova are former employees of Victor Bout's company, Transavia Travel Agency, as they themselves acknowledged when the Panel interviewed them.

276. The Panel has obtained several copies of recent insurance certificates for the Ilyushin. These documents show that the name of San Air, MoldTransavia or Centrafrique are randomly interchangeable. Bank transfers also suggest that the accounts of San Air are used for payments made by Centrafrique and vice versa, again illustrating how Victor Bout and his partners just use different companies to disguise their activities. For instance, while the plane is registered with Centrafrique Airlines in Bangui, it is insured for flights by San Air of the United Arab Emirates. Landing and overflight requests are done by MoldTransavia from an office in Moldova and the flights are conducted under the three-letter designator CET, which is again Centrafrique Airlines. The billing address used for flights is that of Transavia Travel Agency or of San Air.

277. AirCess, the company of Victor Bout's brother, Serguei, also operates from offices in the United Arab Emirates, but the company's registered address is in Equatorial Guinea. Serguei Bout denied any links between him and his brother's companies. Only after the Panel confronted him with his own signature and a $1 million payment from Victor Bout's account to that of his company AirCess, did Serguei Bout acknowledge that he does have an ongoing business relationship with his brother.

278. Mr. Denissenko also claimed to have severed all links with his former employer, Victor Bout. He presented himself as the general manager of San Air and claimed only vague links with Centrafrique Airlines. However, a bank document shows that Denissenko's company San Air paid US$ 20,000 for a contract between a company in the Slovak Republic and Victor Bout's company, Centrafrique Airlines.

The Panel later found documents proving that many of the weapons that went to Liberia through Victor Bout's and Sanjivan Ruprah's network in 2000 and early 2001, were paid for to San Air's bank account No. 01-01-5712572-01 at Standard Chartered Bank in Sharjah.

279. Pavel Igorevich Popov, the General Manager of MoldTransavia told the Panel he had worked for years for Victor Bout as a broker, for the flights of Mr. Bout's companies. When the Panel asked him to produce documentation for some of those flights, Mr. Popov said he never kept any documents. He also had no business address during the days he worked as a broker for Bout. A cellular phone was sufficient. Mr. Popov also refused to clarify the ownership structure of his company, MoldTransavia. However, the Panel obtained documents from the Civil Aviation Authority in Moldova showing Mr. Popov's company is merely a front for Victor Bout's interests.

280. San Air is the owner of the MoldTransavia plane that Mr. Popov operated. The Panel also gathered documents in Moldova, the Slovak Republic and Uganda showing Mr. Popov was personally involved in arms deliveries to Liberia in November 2000 (see sections on Helicopter and machine gun sales to Liberia).

281. Some of the activities of this group of companies include legal passenger and cargo flights, but many of the planes operated by these companies and a wide range of associated companies are for deliveries of weapons or related equipment to war zones and countries under United Nations sanctions. Additionally, many of the planes operated by this group of companies have a track record of illegal registration and document fraud.

The Gambia New Millennium air incident

282. In January 2000, the President of the Central African Republic travelled to the Agenda 2000 summit of African heads of State in Libreville, Gabon. When the presidential delegation arrived in Libreville, they were congratulated for a beautiful aircraft standing at the airport. The plane, an Ilyushin -62, carried the registration number TL-ACL.

283. It also carried the flag of the Central African Republic and "Centrafrique Airlines" was written in bold letters on the plane. The authorities in Gabon thought it was a new acquisition of the Central African Republic's President. The President, however, had never heard of such a plane, and upon inspection it seemed another official delegation from Gambia had arrived in this particular aircraft. Because of the embarrassing situation, an investigation was carried out by the Ministry of Transport and the Prosecutor of the Central African Republic, in cooperation with ASECNA, the African air navigation and safety organization.

284. The investigation discovered two documents that had allowed the plane to operate, a "Temporary" Certificate of Registration and an Airworthiness Certificate. These documents were forged and had been issued and signed by Armand Fulbert Doungovo, the Director of Civil Aviation of the Central African Republic. On 24 January 2000, the investigating authorities ordered the immediate arrest of Mr. Doungovo, Mr. Bout and the local manager of Centrafrique Airlines, Mr. Bouroukine. The Director General of Civil Aviation was ordered to conduct a more thorough investigation, and on 14 February 2000 a Ministerial Decree put an end to all the activities of the company Centrafrique Airlines in the Central African Republic. The Panel verified that the offices of Centrafican in Bangui were indeed closed and are now used by the company Sudan Airways. It remains unclear why the other shareholder of Centrafican, the Belgian pilot Ronal De Smet, who has been a long-time partner of Victor Bout, was not indicted in this case.

285. The Director General of Civil Aviation had earlier tried to obtain information from Director Doungovo on his relationship with Centrafican Airlines. A letter sent to Doungovo dated 22 June 1999, shows the Director General's suspicion was raised when he discovered that the Director was travelling abroad to negotiate traffic rights as a representative of the company, Centrafican Airlines. The incident in Gabon, however, had accelerated things.

Massive fraud

286. This investigation showed that Mr. Doungovo and Victor Bout had fabricated airworthiness certificates, air operator permits and certificates of registration for a great number of aircraft. Most of these had earlier been deregistered in the Kingdom of Swaziland, where Victor Bout and his partners had set up a similar scheme. Before that, Mr. Bout's planes had been registered in Liberia.

287. The Gambia New Millennium plane had been bought by a Gambian a few weeks before the Gabon incident. A copy of the sales agreement shows that the seller was Victor Bout, General Manager of Centrafican Airlines. The buyer was Gambia New Millennium Air, represented by Mr. Baba Jobe. The bank details show that the final beneficiary of the transaction was the holder of an account at the Standard Chartered Bank, Sharjah branch. This account with number 01-5624312-01 is of the Transavia Travel Agency, another company of Victor Bout.

288. The Panel was able to interview Mr. Baba Jobe in Banjul, Gambia, in September 2001. Meanwhile, the aircraft has changed registration and is now legally registered in Gambia. Mr. Jobe, who is a civil servant and close adviser of the Gambian President, denied knowing Victor Bout. He said he had never heard of that man and had dealt with a Mr. Hajazi, a Lebanese citizen who acted as a representative of Libya. The plane was considered a gift to the Gambian President and not to Baba Jobe, nor had the Gambian authorities been aware that the aircraft had been involved in a case of fraud in the Central African Republic. Some suspicion exists on the activities of Mr. Baba Jobe, first of all because the Panel does have a copy of the sales agreement showing both his and Bout's signatures. Also, among Mr. Jobe's acquaintances are Ibrahim Bah, one of the RUF rebels who is very active in the diamond business. Mr. Jobe acknowledged knowing Bah from the time he had been a student in Libya, where many of the RUF were trained before the wars in Liberia and later in Sierra Leone. Mr. Jobe stated that it had been years since he had spoken or seen Ibrahim Bah.

289. The Civil Aviation Authorities in the Central African Republic found many more incidents in connection with the fraudulently registered aircraft of Centrafican Airlines. In one case, the company had issued a false flight plan. After inspection, it was also found that all the documents authorizing the plane to operate were again false. Also, two helicopters belonging to the company had made emergency landings due to technical problems. Those helicopters, too, were operating on false documentation. These helicopters were, in 2001, operating in the rebel areas in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. A flight log obtained from the Ugandan Civil Aviation Authority shows a landing in Uganda, in November, of a Let-410 aircraft, with the Liberian registration EL-MLC. The operator was also Centrafrique Airlines. The Panel on Sierra Leone obtained the complete Liberian aircraft registry in November 2000. The helicopter is not among the aircraft on the list, again indicating a fraudulent use of a registration number.

Victor Bout escapes from justice

290. When the authorities in Bangui issued a warrant for the arrest of the Director of Civil Aviation, for the Russian manager of Centrafrique in Bangui and for Victor Bout, Bout was still in the country, but he managed to escape. On 16 June 2000, Doungovo, the director of Civil Aviation was convicted with a year of imprisonment for fraud and forgery. Victor Bout was also charged and convicted in absentia with two years in prison. The Court in Bangui also issued an international arrest warrant for him. But subsequently, on 28 June 2000, Bout was acquitted of the charges. The Panel did not get any information on the circumstances of this acquittal.

291. The Central African Republic's Civil Aviation Authority noted that despite the dissolution of the company Centrafrique Airlines in February 2000, the fraudulently registered aircraft were seen at many airports across Africa and elsewhere. After the investigation had started in Bangui, the offices of the Civil Aviation Authorities had been burgled. Official stamps and documents had disappeared. The Director General of Civil Aviation sent messages to all his colleagues in the African subregion, warning them about the status of Centrafrique Airlines and the planes of the company, but the Panel noticed, during its meetings with Civil Aviation Authorities in more than 30 countries, that few knew about the Central African Republic case. Annex 3 shows some 25 aircraft that were or still are operating illegally but the investigation in Bangui is ongoing and possibly more aircraft are yet to be located and identified.²

Equatorial Guinea

292. Equatorial Guinea has been an open registry for the aircraft industry for many years. Open registries, also known as aircraft registers of convenience, are used for commercial and tax reasons. In the arms business, those registers of convenience can be useful, because of the poor oversight of the aircraft and the operator by the country where the aircraft is registered. Most open registries of convenience are in small countries with a limited monitoring capacity and with very little aeronautical activity. The Panel discussed the issue of the open registry with the authorities in Equatorial Guinea. The Civil Aviation Authority is aware of the problem of fraud and abuse of its registry and has appointed a private company to regulate new aircraft registrations and identify irregularities in old registrations.

293. Many countries only register aircraft that use their territory as a regular base. Aircraft that are registered in countries of convenience are hardly ever seen in the country of registration because they keep their maintenance facilities and main operational offices elsewhere. This also creates certain airports of convenience, where many planes are based, flying foreign flags of convenience. The country of registration is often totally unaware of the operations or whereabouts of these planes.

294. The brother of Victor Bout has his main company AirCess registered in Malabo, Equatorial Guinea. Victor Bout's operating agencies, and those of his partners, still clearly prefer the airports of the United Arab Emirates. There, the General Civil Aviation Authority cooperated with the Panel's investigation and enabled the Panel to meet with Victor Bout's brother, Serguei Bout, and with the commercial manager of Centrafrique Airlines, Serguei Denissenko. Denissenko is also general manager of San Air.³

295. In January 2001, the authorities of the United Arab Emirates enacted new aviation legislation that would remove all foreign commercial air transport operators that operate planes registered in countries of convenience from the Air Operator Certificate of the United Arab Emirates. Aircraft that use the United Arab Emirates for commercial air transport operations have to be registered in that country. Exempt are only those aircraft that use the United Arab Emirates for a limited period, which will not exceed one year. These provisions entered into force on 1 January 2001, but the airlines were given a transitional period of one year. On 1 January 2002, aircraft operating agencies that are not registered in the United Arab Emirates will thus no longer be authorized to use that country for their operations. The measure would apply to most of the aircraft of Centrafrique Airlines, San Air and AirCess, the company of Victor Bout's brother.

296. Centrafrique Airlines today still has offices in the United Arab Emirates and so does San Air, which owns some of the aircraft operated by Centrafrique Airlines. The companies recently changed offices and moved from Sharjah to the other Emirate of Ajman in the United Arab Emirates. But Centrafrique Airlines no longer exists in the country where it was established and where it maintains its stated address, at P.O. Box 2760 in Bangui, Central African Republic. Centrafrique was in the process of reregistering some of its aircraft in Equatorial Guinea, during the course of the Panel's investigation. On 10 September 2001, San Air General Trading FZE obtained a new Certificate of Registration for the Ilyushin -76 (TL-ACU) in Equatorial Guinea. The plane now carries the registration number 3C-QRA.

297. The Panel compiled a list of aircraft (annex 3) that were all carrying a tail number or registration number indicating registration in the Central African Republic (type TL-XXX); only three were ever legally registered there. Also included in the table are those aircraft of companies of Victor Bout that have recently shifted their registration to Equatorial Guinea (type 3C-XXX). The table also includes all the aircraft that could be identified to have flown for West Africa Air Services (see the case of the mystery plane EL-ALY). The table also shows the strong links between San Air and Centrafrique Airlines.

³ Victor Bout was himself not in the United Arab Emirates when the Panel arrived there, despite an appointment made with a member of the Panel. After one phone call to a mobile phone of Victor Bout, he could no longer be reached. His partners in the United Arab Emirates and elsewhere refused to give the Panel a contact number, despite several attempts made between June and October 2001 to obtain a contact address or number for Victor Bout. The Panel later met with Sanjivan Ruprah who claimed to represent the interests of Victor Bout and that he had Bout's authorization to speak to the Panel.

D. Weapons by land and sea

298. During the Panel's investigations, there were persistent reports of ships to Harper, Greenville, Buchanan and Monrovia unloading weapons. The Panel investigated 105 shipping movements to Monrovia Freeport and Buchanan in 2000 and 2001 but was unable to obtain irrefutable evidence. The persistence of reports makes it plausible that weapons are delivered by sea and this should be a continued area of vigilance.

299. Likewise, there are a number of accounts of trucks carrying weapons from Côte d'Ivoire into Liberia in 2000 and 2001. These trucks either brought weapons from San Pedro or Abidjan or originated from Burkina Faso, according to eyewitness accounts. Refugees from Lofa County reported that two Burkinabe trucks loaded with weapons had been surprised in Voinjama by Liberian dissidents in April.

Recommendations on transportation and arms

300. The Panel considers that the measures taken so far by the Liberian Civil Aviation Authority are adequate and that the Security Council may consider lifting the grounding order imposed by resolution 1343 (2001) and allow Liberia to reopen an aircraft register in coordination with ICAO. Those individual aircraft that were effectively grounded and have provided ICAO and the Security Council Committee on Liberia with the documentation showing their registration in Liberia, was done in accordance with international regulations, should be given permission to restart their operations.

301. The Liberian Civil Aviation Authority should, however, keep the Security Council Committee on Liberia and the International Civil Aviation Organization informed on the follow-up of the investigation and on the registration of every new aircraft on the new Liberian register.

302. In view of the massive fraud with aircraft registrations committed in the Central African Republic, the Panel recommends that the Civil Aviation Authorities there:

- Transmit to Interpol the court documents about Centrafrique Airlines;
- Publish these court documents on the Governments web site;
- Coordinate urgently with Equatorial Guinea and the United Arab Emirates over the use by Centrafrique Airlines of forged documents.

303. The Panel further recommends that the Central African Republic, Equatorial Guinea and other African States affected by this type of fraud coordinate with the African Civil Aviation Commission to put the issue of false registrations as an agenda item for its future meetings. To ICAO, the Panel recommends that:

- It proactively educate its members on the dangers of illegal registrations;
- ICAO's member States computerize their registration lists and centralize them on the ICAO web site so that users could check the situation and status of each aircraft;
- ICAO's Safety Oversight programme should place greater emphasis on aircraft registration.

304. To the United Nations Security Council, the Panel recommends that:

- All the aircraft owned, operated or insured by San Air, Centrafrican Airlines and West Africa Air Services should be grounded immediately. The grounding order could then be lifted gradually for each individual aircraft, provided all the records (ownership of the plane, operator, operating licence, insurance, airworthiness certificate, certificate of registration and the location of the aircraft) are inspected by both the Civil Aviation Authority in the country of registration and in the country where the aircraft has its maintenance base;
- The companies concerned should inform the Council, through the Security Council Committee on Liberia, on the exact status and location of each aircraft. A list of those planes is found in annex 3 to the report.

Recommendations on arms

305. The Panel recommends that:

- The arms embargo on Liberia be extended;
- All United Nations Member States abstain from supplying weapons to the Mano River Union countries;
- An arms embargo be imposed on the armed non-state actors in the three Mano River Union countries (namely the LURD and Ulimo-factions, the RUF and the Guinean armed dissident groups).

306. The Panel also recommends that, for reasons of transparency and confidence-building, the ECOWAS Moratorium on Small Arms should be broadened to an information exchange mechanism for all weapons types procured by the ECOWAS member States. The existing Programme for Coordination and Assistance for Security and Development (PCASED) could be further developed to improve the information exchange on current holdings and future arms procurement of West African States. The Panel recommends that this information exchange would be binding and that both supplier States and the receiving countries would be obliged to report each individual arms transaction to the newly established mechanism and include data on all the parties to the arms transactions, including the names and companies of the brokers and the transport agents.

Recommendation on end-user certificates

307. The Panel recommends that each Member State that has procured or supplied arms on the basis of an end-user certificate mentioning the companies Pecos, Joy Slovakia and/or Morse or the individuals Peter Jusko, Alexander Islamov, Jacob Berger, Andrei Izdebski or Serguei Schwabenland, conduct a thorough investigation on the actual delivery and end-use of the arms. The Panel recommends that the member States involved in any such transactions inform the other State, party to these transactions and inform the Security Council Committees on Sierra Leone and Liberia on the findings of their investigation.

308. The Panel urgently recommends the establishment of a United Nations working group to develop the modalities for a standardized end-user certificate that would include the name, address and telephone number of the signing authority for the Certificate, and name, address, telephone number and arms trading licence of the broker(s) involved.

Part III

Sources of revenue and government expenditure

Government expenditure

309. The Panel examined the sources and management of government funds in an effort to establish the financing behind sanctions-busting. The principal source of revenue for these activities between 1999 and 2001 was off-budget spending that was not part of regular government expenditures. This was also the preferred method to finance the war in Lofa.

310. According to President Taylor, US$ 15 million was diverted from the US$ 73 million budget for the 2000/01 fiscal year (July to June) to meet the costs of the war in Lofa in December 2000. This sum was deducted from the designated Spending for the Special Government Commitment (under the Executive Mansion control) and increased substantially in the last six months of 2000, relative to the first six months, from US$ 9.1 million to US$ 16.83 million or by 84.5 per cent. Most of this increased expenditure was for defence. This extrabudgetary spending significantly disrupted the Government's medium-term economic strategy.

311. The total revenue for the Government in 2000 was approximately US$ 85.8 million. The principal budgetary allocation (chart 1) under the 2000-2001 budget was for General Administrative Services (41.0 per cent), followed by Government Special Commitment projects (34.0 per cent), and Social and Community Services (22.0 per cent). However, the Economist Intelligence Unit reported that there were extrabudgetary expenditures of approximately US$ 73,000 in December 2000 for helicopter repairs and Christmas presents for the President's family and friends. The Ministry of Finance informed the Panel that the National Budget for the year 2001-2002 was approximately the same as the previous year.

312. Government spending in 2000 increased by approximately US$ 24 million over 1999 from US$ 66.50 million (1999) to US$ 90.53 million (2000). However, expenditures exceeded revenues by 6.1 per cent (US$ 5.23 million), according to the Central Bank.

313. The total expenditure for the first quarter of 2001 increased by 12.2 per cent over the same period in 2000. The prime reason for this increase was defence expenditures due to the war in Lofa County.

314. The International Monetary Fund expressed serious concerns about off-budget expenditures in its Staff Monitored Programme assessment from January to June 2000. The IMF recorded that extrabudgetary expenditures of US$ 9.3 million during the first half of 2000 and that "expenditure by the Office of the President represented 28 per cent of total". Purchases of goods and services amounted to 21 per cent of total expenditure (25 per cent of current expenditure). While detailed data was not provided to the IMF, the authorities indicated that these expenditures were largely related to presidential and security priorities. These expenditures also included road rehabilitation for the timber concessions on behalf of government (US$ 3 million in the first half of 2000).

315. These expenditures occurred outside the budget process through the allocation of revenue at the source rather than through the Central Bank. According to the IMF "certain timber concessions, government parastatals, and revenue collection agencies undertook expenditure on behalf of government, that was later recorded as 'non cash' revenue with an offsetting outlay on goods and services". This appears to be how sanctions-busting, namely for procurement of weapons and ammunition, was financed as this report will demonstrate below.

Depreciation of the Liberian dollar

316. This year, the Liberian dollar has been performing poorly against the United States dollar. According to statistics from the Central Bank, the average exchange rate in the first quarter of 2001 was L$ 44.64:US$ 1. By September, the rate had worsened, to around L$ 52:US$ 1. Since the Liberian dollar lost its fixed official parity with the US dollar in 1998, its quarterly average exchange value had never fallen above L$ 44:US$ 1 (only in September and October 1998 did the monthly average reach that rate).

317. According to the Central Bank, United Nations sanctions are exclusively blamed for eroding confidence in the Liberian dollar and contributing to the devaluation of the currency. Independent assessments by the Economist Intelligence Unit indicate that other factors may have contributed such as the "behaviour of local (mainly Lebanese) traders, who are reported to be hoarding US dollars and refusing to do business in the local currency, has probably led to the US dollarization of parts of the economy".

Recommendations on Liberian government expenditure

318. The Panel recommends that: The practice of allocating revenues at source for priority expenditure should be eliminated. All revenues should be consolidated in a central government account at the Central Bank of Liberia before being allocated to authorized agencies for approved expenditures.

Sources of revenue: the structure of Liberia's key industries

319. Liberia's agricultural sector (including forestry) comprises 72.7 per cent of estimated real GDP. Logging and rubber production are the main sources of foreign exchange for the Government. Mining contributed to about 2.0 per cent of GDP in 2001, even though the mining sector has not recovered since the civil war following the closure of the iron ore mining companies. There has also not been a sustained investment in gold and diamond mining, though there was some limited investment in 1998 and in 2000.

Rubber

320. The agricultural sector (including forestry), which represents 72.2 per cent of real GDP, continues to serve as the major source of growth in the economy. Logging and rubber production are the major foreign exchange earners for the Government. Rubber production grew in 1999 to 62,705 metric tons (valued at US$ 33.3 million) from 48,916 metric tons (valued at US$ 28.9 million) in 1998. In 2000, production rose to 102,412 metric tons valued at US$ 53.2 million. During the first quarter of 2001, a total of 27,567 metric tons of rubber were produced compared to 16,617 metric tons produced during the first quarter of 2000. Rubber tends to be relatively well controlled by foreign investors, most notably Firestone and the Liberian Agricultural Company because of the structure of the plantations and the need for long-term collection/processing investment. Rubber is a less easy source for "at source" off-budget expenditures, although once the profits enter the government accounts there is no guarantee on how they are used.

Logging

321. The Liberian Timber Association estimates that the Liberian forest covers about 4.8 million hectares. This forest in 1978 was estimated to contain 81.3 million cubic metres of merchantable species which could permit felling of 3.2 million cubic metres annually on a twenty-five year felling cycle. Total round log production in 2000 rose to 934,066 cubic metres, representing an increase of 178.4 per cent over 1999 output. Round log exports during 2000 grew to 934,066 cubic metres with a value of US$ 60.9 million. Between January and June 2001, round log production reached 679,253 cubic metres (valued at US$ 46.2 million). These figures are likely to underestimate real exports by 50 to 200 per cent because of tax evasion by companies and widespread corruption.

322. Logging has long been one of the prime sources of government revenue. During the 1989-1996 civil war, timber provided Charles Taylor and his NPFL rebels their main independent source of revenue. Logging is still today the mainstay of export earnings for the Government.

FOB value (US$)	21,099,959	68,137,065	50,541,617

Source: FDA.

323. In addition to the above, figures must be added for exports through San Pedro in Côte d'Ivoire. In 1999, these were 27,653 m³ in volume of logs of which 17,067 m³ was recorded as exported volume. These figures rose in 2000 to 60,805 m³, resulting in 49,218 m³ of exported volume. This represented 7.9 per cent of the volume directly exported from Liberia.

324. Because of the decline in price of the last couple of years of m³ FOB and taking account of the export of secondary species to China, the Panel estimated that the FOB exports should be around US$ 75 million in 2001. The three main destinations in the first six months of 2000 were China (46.6 per cent), France (17.9 per cent) and Italy (9.3 per cent).

325. Timber production and exports are an important source of revenue for the Government, contributing officially about US$ 6.7 million in official tax revenue in 2000, according to the National Bank of Liberia. The Forestry Development Agency has a higher figure of US$ 13,203,514 in its semi-annual report for 2000. The Panel's own estimate, given on figures provided by the industry, is that Liberia's timber industry should today provide just under US$ 25 million [based on 30 per cent of total value exported by Oriental Timber Corporation (secondary species) and 45 per cent for other exports] in taxation for the Government.

326. Taxes gained for forest activities are as follows:

- severance fees: US$ 1.50/m³
- reforestation fee: US$ 3.00/m³
- conservation fee: US$ 1.50/m³ to US$ 3.00m³ depending on species
- forest search fee: US$ 0.50/m³
- export taxes: US$ 0.40/m³ to 30.60m³ depending on species
- industrialization incentive: US$ 1.44/m³ to 58.56/m³
- land rental fee: US$ 0.50/acre whatever the volume is cut

327. The total amount of taxes paid by loggers is approximately 30 per cent to 45 per cent of the FOB value depending on the timber species, the size of concession and the volume cut. In order to make an estimate of total annual taxes paid to government (if these taxes are normally paid), a calculation of 30 per cent of the total value exported by OTC (secondary species) and 45 per cent for the other exports would yield this result:

• OTC FOB value export:	30% x 38,471,329 = US$ 11,541,398
• Other Loggers:	45% x 29,665,735 = US$ 13,349,580
Total	US$ 24,890,978

328. This is only an estimate because some companies do not or cannot afford to pay the taxes. OTC, for example, has been given certain tax exemptions such as reforestation and for road building. Some other taxes also do not appear in government figures. For example, OTC pays the National Port Authority (NPA) US$ 1 million a year for the use of Buchanan port: but this payment does not appear in the NPA's accounts. OTC should have paid approximately US$ 12 million in taxes in 2000 but coincidentally it claimed to have a US$ 12 million loss in 2000. The Central Bank of Liberia assessments of final tax figures derived from timber from paper work submitted by each logging company's production compared with the FDA (Forestry Development Agency) figures suggest a significant diversion of the timber revenue for extrabudgetary activities.

329. President Taylor has taken a personal interest in the allocation of timber concessions. In January 2000, a new National Forestry Law declared that all forest resources are the property of the Government except for communal and privately owned forest resources that have been developed through artificial regeneration. On 1 July 2000, the Liberian Government issued Executive Order No. 4 "restricting the Ministry of Finance to the collection of 50 per cent of all Land Rental Fees and 98 per cent of all Stumpage fees". The FDA was mandated to collect the balance. However, the FDA noted that they only collect a small portion of the funds that they are supposed to receive.

330. The Forestry Development Authority was also empowered to rescind many logging concessions and salvage permits unilaterally. New concessions require final approval by the President of the Republic. During the 1999-2000 season, many authorized concessionaires continued logging but without assurances that they would be allowed to retain their concessions. This uncertainty encouraged rapid cutting and profiteering, without concern for sustainable forestry practices in order to maximize profits in anticipation of losing concessions.

331. Several Spanish and French enterprises lost their concessions to the United Logging Company, managed by Mr. Fawaz and President Taylor's son as chairman. President Taylor has also revoked concessions of the VH Timber Companies giving them to the United Logging Company and to the Mohammed Group. President Taylor is seeking to have the timber industry dominated by a few mega-concessions. In early 1999, a Russian group sought a concession but the plans quickly collapsed. Shimmer International, a subsidiary of the Malaysian giant, Rimbunan Hijau, also declined to invest in a Lofa County mega-concession because of security concerns.

332. The President aspires to create two mega-concessions in addition to the one operated by the Oriental Timber Company (OTC). However, it has been difficult for him to find investors that are able to develop such large-scale concessions.

The main logging operations in Liberia

Oriental Timber Company (OTC)

333. The Chairman is Dutch national Gus Kouwenhoven, a close friend of Charles Taylor, who managed logging operations for him through rebel-controlled Buchanan in the early 1990s. In July 1999, OTC was granted a 1.24 million hectares concession in the south-east of the country, and then because of the poor quality of the species in the concession, a second one, further north in the primeval forest, taking the total concession to 1.6 million hectares. According to the FDA, this represents about 42 per cent of Liberia's total productive forests.

334. OTC is linked to the Hong Kong-based Global Star Holdings, which is part of the Djan Djajanti group of Indonesia, with offices in Singapore and Hong Kong and major investments in Indonesia and China. Djan Djajanti has taken responsibility for 70 per cent of the capital investment of the concession. Gus Kouwenhoven remains the chairman although he owns, according to documentation he showed the Panel, only 30 per cent of the capital and Joseph Wong Kii Tai, son of Djajanti's chairman, was made the manager. The Djajanti group has invested some US$ 110 million in the project. President Taylor has publicly defended OTC calling it his "pepper bush", a Liberian phrase for something important and personal.

Royal Timber Company (RTC)

335. RTC is the second largest timber operation in Liberia, with three distinct concessions in the western part of the country, totalling 370,000 hectares. It is also run by Gus Kouwenhoven and exported 8654.122 m³ (FOB value US$ 990,785.08) in the first six months of 2000.

Mohammed Group Companies

336. They exported 26,482 m³ in 2000, with concessions in Nimba and Grand Gedeh (the Salami Molowi Inc (SMI) and Bureaux Ivorian Ngorian (BIN)). This company is owned by Mohammed Salamé, a Liberian "ambassador-at-large", based in Côte d'Ivoire, who has been involved in assisting sanctions-busting arms transfers to Liberia. Much of BIN's production is exported through the port of San Pedro in Côte d'Ivoire.

Inland Group

337. The Inland Logging Company is managed by Maurice and Oscar Cooper, both long-term associates of President Taylor. Like Kouwenhoven, the company's roots go back to the 1990s when they extracted and exported timber for the NPFL rebels during the war. It has a 300,000 acre concession in the south-east of the country. Logs are being sold exclusively through a Swiss company to France and Turkey. The company reports that it exported 19,815 m³ of logs in 2000, but there are indications that this figure should be much higher, around 50,000 m³. The ILC also maintains a private militia in Sinoe County and manages the port of Greenville.

Forest Hill Company

338. This company has a 300,000 acre concession in Lofa County where it fells only Niangon, and sells it exclusively to France through Interwood. The company's Chairman is Victor Haikal, whose commercial operations have been badly impacted by the war in Lofa County.

VH Timber Companies

339. This group is owned by Victor Hanning and has a concession of 163,200 hectares in Lofa and Cape Mount Counties. He has also invested more than US$ 800,000 in a sawmill in Monrovia, which currently produces in two shifts about 70 m³ of Niangon timber per day. He exported 10,000 m³ of round logs in 2000.

Liberia Wood Management Company

340. This company runs a concession about 100 km north of Monrovia. The company does logging and sawmilling and is owned by Rudolph J. Merab and Victor Hannig. The company exported around 13,000 m³ in 2000. Export volumes on cargo manifests for 2001 suggest a similar volume for this year. In late August, rebels attacked the concession base, badly destroying property and assets, including houses and a school for the workers. The attack was claimed by the rebels of LURD and a spokesman for LURD said they had targeted the company to discourage them from doing business with President Taylor.

Maryland Wood Processing Industry and United Logging Company

341. This is the second best exporter of timber in 2000. The company is owned by Mr. Fawaz, who owns also the United Logging Company. It has concessions in the north-east of the country in Grand Gedeh and River Gee. In 2000, these two companies exported 83,781 m³, 13.4 per cent of the total volume exported by Liberia.

342. A number of the timber companies complained to the Panel that making a profit currently in Liberia is difficult, except for the mega-concessions that are engaged in non-selective felling and processing massive volumes of round logs. Limited wood-processing capacity, logjams in France at sawmills because of large volumes of round logs and the difficulty in attracting new investors to Liberia, were all blamed for these difficulties. They complain of excessive taxation and difficult operating conditions, making it impossible even to fell and sell timber up to their FDA 4 per cent quota. Presidential favour is an important ingredient in cutting operational costs. OTC, RTC and the Inland Group are known to have obtained tax waivers for fuel purchases as a result of their close connections to the President.

Wood processing

343. According to FDA rules, 25 per cent of the volume of logs felled should be sawn in the country. This rule is not respected because of the volume of round logs exported by OTC to China and because of the limited number of sawmills in Liberia.

344. Prior to the 1989-1996 war, there were 18 sawmills, 3 veneering and plywood factories, 6 dry kilns and 3 wood-processing factories and domestic timber production surpassed log exports in timber volume. Today, there are only 12 operational sawmills and these do not have the capacity to process the volume of logs felled. The OTC plywood factory is scheduled to start production in late 2001 or early 2002. Sawn timber production is on the increase. In 1999, it increased to 22,746 cubic metres which represented 1,802.4 per cent rise over the 1998 output level. In 2000, it rose again to 224,824 cubic metres. However, in the first quarter of 2001, there has been a 25.8 per cent decline when compared with the previous quarter due to a clampdown by the FDA on pit-sawing and the impact on logging establishments in Lofa County.

345. The World Trade Organization (WTO) currently advises all countries to ban unprocessed log exportation beyond the end of 2000. Liberia urgently needs to phase out this trade and invest in wood-processing facilities. This would enhance the value of timber exported from Liberia, slow felling down and provide additional employment. It would also make production and exporting easier to monitor. The Taylor government has announced since 1998, a gradual prohibition on the export of round logs as a policy guideline but no legislation on the issue has been enacted yet.

The timber industry and violation of sanctions

346. Some of the timber companies have violated the sanctions against Liberia. One prominent example of this was Exotic Tropical and Timber Enterprises (ETTE), a company set up by Leonid Minin and his partners Vadim Semov and Fernando Robleda. The document (S/2000/1195) described how Minin's private jet was used to ship weapons from Niger and from Burkina Faso to Liberia in March 1999. Just before his arrest, Minin was involved in setting up other arms deals for Liberia. Minin was arrested in Italy on 5 August 2000. He had in his possession a great number of documents showing his involvement in timber but also in the arms shipments to Liberia.

347. The Panel had access to this documentation. Among more than 1,500 documents seized from Minin, there were a number of maps showing that he was negotiating the possibilities for a mega-concession in the north-west of Liberia, comprising the Lofa war zone. The Panel was not interested in the details of Minin's failure in Liberia's timber business, where he finally had to sell his equipment and assets to a company of his partner of Forum Liberia, a Spanish-owned company. The case was only of interest to the Panel because of the link to violations of the arms embargo.

348. In the weeks before his arrest, Minin was planning the delivery of huge quantities of small arms and ammunition to Liberia, via Côte d'Ivoire. A first consignment was shipped to Côte d'Ivoire in July 2000 and then diverted to Liberia by means of an Ilyushin-18 that was leased by Liberian government officials in a deal with a Moldovan company and the arms dealer, Sanjivan Ruprah. Minin claimed, in an interview with the Panel, that Liberian ambassador-at-large Mohammed Salamé and his brother Yussuf were key to the Ivorian part of the operation. The Panel made several attempts to confront Ambassador Salamé in Abidjan with these allegations. He could finally be reached over telephone after the Panel had left Côte d'Ivoire and he denied his involvement. He said his only business was timber. However, General Gueï, who signed the end-user certificate for the weapons, Minin, who organized and financed it, and Sanjivan Ruprah, all confirmed that Mohammed Salamé had played a key role in the diversion of the weapons to Liberia. The case is described in detail in the section on violations of the arms embargo.

349. The Panel has received a bank document which indicates that a payment for weapons delivery was made directly from the Singapore accounts of the company, Borneo Jaya Pte Ltd, a mother company of OTC. This document shows transfer of US$ 500,000 to the arms trafficking company San Air (one of the companies of Victor Bout) through Sanjivan Ruprah, paid by order of Dato Seri Bong Uray on 26 August 1999 using Chase Manhattan Bank N.Y.

Recommendations on logging and wood processing

350. The Government should reach agreement with the International Monetary Fund over the commissioning of an independent detailed report on revenue from the timber concessions for the January 2001-July 2002 period, including exemptions and tax offsets for government-related expenditures during this period; that the United Nations should impose a ban on all round log exports from Liberia from July 2002 and strongly encourage local operators to diversify into wood processing before that date.

Diamonds

351. The Panel examined Liberia's diamond industry because it is another crucial source of natural resource revenue for the Government. Liberia's own official diamond exports were said to be only 8,500 carats in 1999, valued at US$ 900,000. Liberia's Minister of Lands, Mines and Energy estimates that this represents only 10 to 15 per cent of what is actually leaving the country. This is a far cry from the late 1970s when Liberia's production and export averaged at half a million carats with 70 per cent of gem quality. All of Liberia's production is currently artisanal alluvial although a Canadian company, the Mano River Resources, Inc. is engaged in kimberlite diamond exploration in Western Liberia.

352. In 2000, diamond production increased to 22,112 carats, representing a 162.1 per cent rise over 1999. In the first quarter of 2001, diamond output increased by 78.5 per cent to 3,885 carats when compared to the output of 2,177 carats for the corresponding quarter of 2000. However, there was a 27.5 decline in output compared with the last quarter of 2000, directly related to the introduction of the sanctions on the diamond trade. Since May 2001, after sanctions on Liberian diamonds were imposed, there has been no official export of diamonds from Liberia, and Central Bank statistics indicate no transactions at all.

353. Sanctions were imposed on the export of Liberian rough diamonds following the conclusions of the report (S/2000/1195). This report illustrated how diamonds far in the excess of the quality or quantity available in Liberia had been imported into Belgium. Invoices from "Liberian" firms — none on the list of licences provided by the Liberian Government — accompanied Belgian import licences. In 1999, official Liberian exports grew slightly to 8,500 carats, at an average value of US$ 105 per carat. "Liberian" imports into Belgium declined to 1.75 million carats, but the stated value increased to US$ 247 million, or US$ 140 per carat.

354. Most of these diamonds were illicit diamonds from other countries, taking advantage of Liberia's involvement in the illicit diamond trade, its inability or unwillingness to monitor the use of its name internationally and the ability to use the corporate registry as camouflage. The larger illicit trade provided Liberia with a convenient cover for the export of conflict diamonds from Sierra Leone although many of the so-called "Liberian" production emanated from other sources (most notably Russia), and was falsely declared "Liberian" for tax purposes.

355. With the entry into force of Security Council resolution 1343 (2001), the Government of Liberia indicated that it would comply with the ban. President Taylor wrote to the Secretary-General in a letter dated 22 March 2001, stating "A ban has been placed on the entry into Liberia of all uncertified rough diamonds from countries with certification regimes; a ban has also been placed on the export of all rough diamonds from Liberia for a period of 120 days, and pending the establishment of an internationally acceptable and transparent certification regime in Liberia." The three official diamond exporters in Monrovia were written to on 10 May by the Acting Minister of Mines emphasizing that "We further would like to inform you that during the period of this sanction, there will be absolutely no export of diamonds from Liberia until otherwise decided by the United Nations." The Government also placed Mineral Inspectors into the buying offices in Monrovia to monitor and keep record of daily diamond purchases on the internal market. These inspectors also ensured that the diamonds were only bought from legitimate diamond miners or brokers and were also tasked to certify that the Reporting Forms provided to the Dealers by the Ministry were filled in daily and correctly.

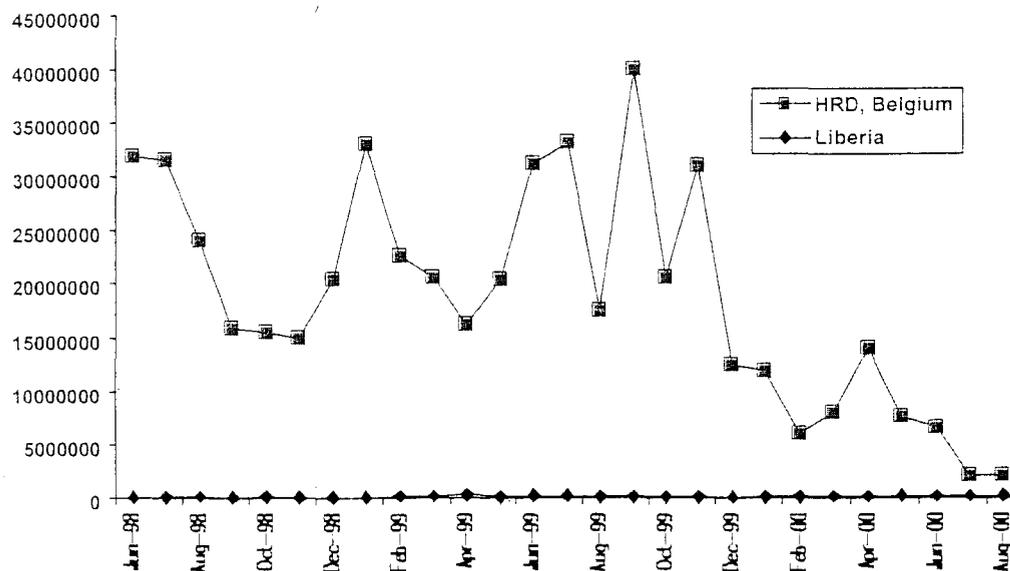

Chart 2: Diamond Export Statistics (June 1998-August 2000) showing actual Liberian diamond export versus diamond export reported by the Diamond High Council (HRD), Belgium.

356. There are currently three diamond dealers/exporters in Liberia in 2001:

- MARS Diamonds;
- The Empire Diamond Company;
- Diandorra Minerals.

In addition to these exporters, there are 12 recognized diamond brokers and 10 diamond broker agents. Liberia has 20 Diamond Mining Districts, 12 of them are all located in western Liberia, neighbouring Sierra Leone.⁴

357. The exporters reported to the Panel that these inspectors had frightened off their trade which was based on discretion. Many of their clients were fearful of entering their offices when inspectors might be nearby. The sanctions had also resulted in a cash flow crisis because they could not export diamonds, they could not get fresh cash injections to reinvest in ongoing mining. Diamond miners and brokers also complained to the Panel that they no longer got the support of rice and equipment from their sponsors, and the exporters. There is no doubt that the artisanal trade in rough has been impacted by the embargo providing additional hardship to those who seek to make a living out of this sector. Some miners and brokers had tried to diversify into alluvial gold, but low world gold prices until after the events of 11 September in the United States made this unattractive. The artisanal trade is a significant employer in Liberia, some estimated 20,000 to 30,000 people in the rural areas are dependent on the trade.

358. The imposition of an embargo on the export of Liberian rough, coupled with progress in the peace process in Sierra Leone, has resulted in a marked decline of diamonds labelled as "Liberian" reaching international markets. There have been no imports from Liberia recorded in Antwerp since the imposition of the sanctions.

359. The embargo has created a different problem. Since it is impossible to sell Liberian rough officially, dealers and brokers are seeking to camouflage their Liberian diamonds as those from neighbouring countries markets. The Chairman of the Diamond Dealers of Liberia admitted to have had Liberian diamonds he had tried to sell in Freetown rejected by an evaluator. However, he admitted that smuggling of Liberian rough regularly occurred with stones that could be passed as Sierra Leonean or Ivorian being put in mixed parcels to avoid detection; those that were too distinctive were smuggled to other West African countries before being exported to Europe.

360. There is no doubt that despite the official efforts of the Liberian Government, smuggling with and without official knowledge continues from Liberia. Neighbouring countries are also more attractive for smuggling as they command better prices per carat and less harassment and diversion by officials of profits.

361. The Panel itself verified ongoing smuggling of Liberian rough to Sierra Leone and Côte d'Ivoire. In Bo, Sierra Leone, a dealer interviewed by the Panel specialized in buying Liberian rough. The dealer, a Sierra Leone national, had lived many years in Liberia and his Liberian brokers travelled from Liberia via Zimmi to Bo to trade with him. He claimed that the Sierra Leone Certificate of Origin scheme made it easier for him to launder Liberian rough, rather than having to go through complicated smuggling efforts through other West African countries. Since the Sierra Leone Army deployed in Zimmi in early September 2001 there had, according to this dealer, been a significant decline in the rough he was receiving from Liberia.

362. Diamonds from Nimba County in Liberia are smuggled out via Danane to Abidjan in Côte d'Ivoire. The Panel was told of three dealers in Abidjan that had become specialists in laundering Liberian rough since the diamond embargo entered into force in May. Investigations by the Panel confirmed that two dealers operated through the Hotel Ivoire in Abidjan, using a Lebanese middleman who carried the parcels from Monrovia.

363. Liberian rough also appears to have been smuggled out of Lofa County to Guinea. Rebel LURD supporters admitted to the Panel that they had seized diamonds during their operations in Lofa County and had sold them to Guinean brokers in Conakry.

364. The issue of so-called "Gambian" diamonds continues to remain a matter of concern. Gambia, a non-diamond producing country, continues to figure as a source of diamonds in markets like Antwerp. Investigations by this Panel found dealers in Liberia and Sierra Leone travelling regularly to Banjul. Despite this trade, the Gambian authorities insisted that they have never had any record of an official diamond transaction through Gambia nor a smuggling incident on its territory.

365. In Liberia, uncorroborated stories refer to high-level go-betweens, senior government officials, and financial transactions made on behalf of President Taylor. Several individuals linked to the diamond trade complained that although the artisanal trade was suffering from the embargo, President Taylor and his senior officials sponsored ongoing diamond production and had special arrangements for the export of high value stones. One Lebanese businessman, who had for many years worked in the diamond trade in central Africa, claimed that he could not enter the diamond trade in Liberia because any high-quality operation was controlled by President Taylor. He has since entered into the timber business, which he claimed was less in the grip of the Executive Mansion.

366. Diamonds feature prominently as an interest of people associated with the Bureau of Maritime Affairs. This has been dealt in detail under "Maritime and Corporate Registry".

367. Sanjivan Ruprah's role in sanctions-busting to Liberia through the Bureau of Maritime Affairs was already described in the report (S/2000/1195). Ruprah is also involved in the diamond business and he told the Panel he had interests in a diamond mine in Liberia, the Liberian Diamond Mining Corporation. Carlos Alberto La Plaine, a Portuguese associate of Sanjivan Ruprah, assisted several sanctions-busting flights to Monrovia: on his immigration card in Uganda, where one of the arms trafficking planes was stopped, he gave his profession as "diamond dealer".

368. When Leonid Minin was arrested in Italy, he had in his possession a significant quantity of polished and rough diamonds valued at around US$ 500,000. In the documents seized by Police from Minin at the time of his arrest, documents of a Mauritian diamond company called Black Stella Diamonds and letters showing Minin's attempts to set up a diamond-exporting chain from West Africa, through a polishing plant in Mauritius to Russia and China, were also found. Minin's office in Liberia also had diamond weighing equipment in it.

369. RUF ex-combatants talk of having brought diamonds to Liberia for President Taylor but admit this practice has declined. Several RUF officials said Ibrahim Bah, operating from Burkina Faso, has continued to obtain diamonds from senior RUF figures, including from General Sesay and these are then smuggled via Liberia or Côte d'Ivoire to Europe.

Diamonds and the RUF

370. The Panel also observed a steep increase in trade of diamonds mined by RUF through Freetown. Many of these stones passed through Makeni from the Kono fields but lesser numbers reached dealers in Kenema and Bo before entering the official system. Approximately half of Sierra Leone's total production comes from the Kono/Koidu district. The main interest of Freetown traders is Koidu, the capital of the Kono diamond fields. The city is ruined, but diamond digging continues apace, even undermining the foundations of the ruined buildings in the town. The traders bring in diesel, petrol, soap, rice, second-hand clothes and other consumer goods in return for diamonds, cassava and mangoes. RUF maintains a firm grip of all high-value stones and all diggers are taxed by the former rebels. The traders then sell the stones they have bought to licensed dealers in Sierra Leone or smuggle the stones to elsewhere in West Africa. A large number of these traders are from Mali or Gambia. There are indications that RUF collects millions of dollars a year, through taxation of the diamond trade and direct sales to smugglers of these diamonds, even though they often sell stones to smugglers at a discount.

371. In early July 2001, at the Third Tripartite Meeting of the Government, RUF and UNAMSIL, RUF and the state-backed civil militia Civil Defence Force (CDF) agreed to a moratorium of diamond mining in Kono under UNAMSIL supervision. But this ban immediately failed, ignored by all. When UNAMSIL attempted to implement the ban in Koidu, local residents protested, demanding to know how they should now make their living without diamond revenue and there has been no further attempt in Koidu to implement the agreement.

372. When police raided a premise of a Lebanese businessman suspected in illicit diamond trade in August 2000, they were surprised to find RUF spokesman Gibril Massaquoi present, with a bag containing at least US$ 15,000. Papers confiscated at the house indicated that Bassem Mohamed, code named "Shark" by RUF had been organizing diamond deals. One paper showed he was organizing payment to Emmanuel Shallop/Mirib Shallop of Belgium for washing plants and batteries. Shallops, according to the documents, were to be paid through a bank in Geneva, Switzerland. In another incident, in July 2001, Massaquoi testified to police in a complaint about being defrauded that during a deal to obtain 69 vehicles for RUF he had provided an individual US$ 110,000 in cash and 2,600 carats of gold. Both incidents indicate that RUF is not short of ready cash, its origin mostly from the diamond trade.

373. Following the imposition of a diamond embargo on Liberia, the closure of the border till September 2001 and the war in Lofa County, little diamond trade now passes through to Liberia from Sierra Leone. This shift in trade pattern is reflected also in the dramatic decline in so-called "Liberian" rough entering markets like Antwerp and a steep decline in the number of diamonds passing through Monrovia. The pressures on other revenue sources in Liberia for Executive Mansion extrabudgetary expenditure demonstrates once again the importance that diamonds had played over the last few years for President Taylor. Because of the loosening of President Taylor's grip on the Kono/Koidu diamond trade, the RUF axis has switched to increasing trade through Sierra Leone.

Certificate of Origin schemes

Sierra Leone

374. The adoption of United Nations Security Council resolution 1306 (2000) on 5 July 2000, resulted in a ban on the import of rough diamonds from Sierra Leone except those authorized with a Certificate of Origin from the Sierra Leonean Government.

375. Following a trilateral mission of the United Kingdom, the United States and Belgium in July 2000, the Certificate of Origin Monitoring System was set up for imports of rough diamonds from Sierra Leone under United Nations Security Council resolution 1306 (2000). The certification regime was approved by the Security Council on 6 October 2000 and became operational from 27 October 2000.

376. The Certificate of Origin regime consists of a specifically designed tamperproof printed Certificate of Origin, in combination with a set of rules that forms the export and import procedure. According to the Government "Under the system only diamonds that are legally mined are allowed to be exported. Legally mined means that they come only from areas under the control of the Government of Sierra Leone, and are the product of a chain of legally authorized transactions, from use of land, permission to mine, purchase by authorized dealers and agents, and export by licensed exporters". The Government of Sierra Leone has set up a Cabinet subcommittee to monitor all diamond exports, oversee the implementation of Security Council resolution 1306 (2000) and report to the Cabinet periodically.

377. The Government reports that the system is working reasonably well. The volume of exports and particularly the quality of stones entering the system has improved, providing important tax revenue to central government.

378. During its investigations in Sierra Leone, the Panel observed that although this system was working, there was no doubt that smuggled stones from Liberia were being laundered through the system. The GGDO evaluators were rejecting stones and a Liberian dealer admitted he had had stones rejected in Freetown, but other stones, especially from areas along the Liberian border, Lofa County and Weasua were entering the official system. The same is true of a much larger volume of diamonds originating from RUF-managed alluvial production. This is not necessarily the fault of the GGDO evaluators but rather a reflection of weak monitoring by a government agency in the diamond buying centres such as Bo and Kenema.

379. As long as all the diamond fields in Sierra Leone have not been brought under government control, these deficiencies will continue. Freetown can only investigate the origin of larger diamonds, not for every carat brought to the capital. Moreover, the Government rightly fears that when the controlling system is implemented too rigorously, buyers might prefer to go to countries in the region where the Certificate of Origin has not been introduced yet and where the old paperwork, the mere letterhead of a country is still considered sufficient for customs in the importing markets for diamonds. The country address on the invoice from the sending country is then recorded as "country of provenance".

Diamond revenue in Sierra Leone to fund rural development

Taxation of the alluvial diamond trade is fraught with difficulties. Several years ago, donor-appointed consultants recommended that a 2.5 to 3 per cent taxation of the actual value of the diamonds would drive the trade underground. A recent World Bank study estimated that US$ 138 million worth of diamonds was exported from Sierra Leone in 1999, of which only US$ 1.2 million was legal. The Government currently levies a 3 per cent tax on the value of exports by dealers. The Government in August announced that one quarter of this revenue would be allocated to rural chiefdoms located in areas where alluvial mining occurs. These funds will then be earmarked to improve local schools, health clinics and community projects and will be divided according to the number of mining licences granted in each chiefdom. This could provide local authorities with an incentive to crack down on illegal mining. This is the first time that the Government has allocated diamond mining for community development schemes since mining began in 1956 under the alluvial diamond-mining scheme.

Guinea

380. Guinea has followed the lead of Sierra Leone. In June 2001, it introduced a Certificate of Origin scheme, which is controlled by the centralized "Bureau national d'expertise de diamants et autres gemmes" (BNE). The BNE diamond evaluation office in Conakry is housed in the "Banque centrale de la republique de Guinée" and a second office is in Kankan, the second exclusive diamond buying centre of the country. According to the Ministry of Mines, Geology and the Environment, the certificate system is working well. According to statistics from the BNE, Guinea exported in 2000 some 369,263 carats and up to July 2001, some 264,140 carats worth of diamonds. The value of the annual production going through the official system was around US$ 40 million. The Certificate of Origin is certainly an improvement in the Guinean diamond business but smuggling is still a major problem. The Guinean Ministry of Mines underlined that only a few years ago, no diamonds at all were being exported through the official system. According to official estimates, around 65 per cent of all diamonds produced are still leaving Guinea illegally. Controlling authorities clearly face a lack of capacity in terms of equipment, training of customs agents and border controls in general, in an area where borders are very porous.

Liberia

381. The Ministry of Lands, Mines and Energy has produced a draft certificate of origin and has sought assistance from the United Nations and the Diamond High Council for technical support to print. The draft certificate is based on the model encouraged by the Kimberly Process. The Ministry, in conjunction with the Central Bank of Liberia plans to open a centralized evaluation office in the bank, where diamonds for export would be evaluated, certified and put in sealed packages ready for export.

382. The Minister of Lands, Mines and Energy is well-versed on the progress of the Kimberly process and obtained a travel exemption from the Security Council Committee to attend the London meeting in September 2001 and subsequently held consultations with the Belgium Diamond High Council in Antwerp.

Côte d'Ivoire

383. Côte d'Ivoire has also participated at some of the Kimberly process meetings and has expressed an interest in having a regional certification scheme. Currently, Côte d'Ivoire has nine licensed export dealers of diamonds but the Panel found evidence of a number of other dealers who exported diamonds, including Liberian rough as Ivorian. In 2000, 320,207 carats were exported from Côte d'Ivoire. By September 2001, 290,407 carats had been exported.

The challenge of alluvial diamonds

384. The experiences of Sierra Leone, Guinea, Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire show how difficult it actually is to separate out conflict diamonds from other alluvials. Better monitoring, increasing the cost of getting caught and the requirement to state the source of a stone (origin) rather than just the provenance (country) could help this process. A better definition of origin would help this monitoring. But as with the case of Sierra Leone, without steady progress in the internal peace process, it is difficult to see how the distinction between government and RUF diamonds can be maintained effectively.

Recommendations on diamonds

385. The Panel encourages the Liberian Government to put in place a credible and transparent certification scheme which is independently audited by an internationally recognized audit company. This scheme should be independently assessed as credible and effective in order to facilitate the consideration of a suspension of the diamond ban by the Security Council. This would also alleviate the genuine hardship that artisanal miners, brokers and dealers are currently experiencing.

Other measures

386. Regular and accurate publication of official annual rough diamond import/export statistics is crucial. Currently, only Belgium publishes a detailed list. A better international library of each diamond type, from each region and detailed records of run-of-mine alluvial samples in conflict zones would also be an important step forward in this region. It is also important that countries issue their own certificates of origin that are consistent with a fully integrated certification system. But in the end, the only guaranteed way to resolve the conflict diamond issue is to create conditions in a country that result in the label "conflict" being made redundant. Under such conditions, the principal challenge of the alluvial diamond trade in West Africa would be to curtail endemic smuggling for tax evasion purposes. Sierra Leone's attempt to redistribute diamond revenues back into the community is part of a solution.

Liberian maritime and corporate registries

Origins of the registry

387. Liberia's maritime and corporate registry is of international repute. It has also been a steady source of revenue for the Liberian Government. From 1949 to 1999, the registry remitted around US$ 700 million to the Government. During the 1990-1996 civil war and interim period, revenue from ship registry represented 90 per cent of total state budget. Previously, it had been 10-15 per cent. Today, the revenues account for about 50 per cent of the country's official budget, according to the Bureau of Maritime Affairs, although figures provided by the Ministry of Finance suggest it is closer to 25 per cent.

388. In 1948, the Monrovia-based International Trust Company was founded. A United States-based off-shore maritime registry opened and the first commercial ship was registered on 11 March 1949. This registry later became the International Registries Inc of Virginia (IRI) which administered the registry until 1999.

389. In the 1970s, the Liberian registry, coupled with a bank in Monrovia, operated by the International Trust Company of Liberia, grew to approximately 75 million tons. Liberia held the number one position for shipping tonnage registered under its flag until 1994.

390. In 1990, the IRI began dealings with the Marshall Islands registry. In 1991, the Marshall Islands had 28 ships of 4.2 million dwt on its registry; by 1997, the fleet was 168 ships dwt. The decision by IRI to adopt the Marshall Islands register in addition to maintaining the Liberian registry, marked a period of decline for Liberian registered tonnage.
