I. INTRODUCTION

1. The Prosecution submits this filing under Rules 73, 89(C) and 92*bis* of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the Special Court for Sierra Leone (“Rules”).
2. The Prosecution gives notice under Rule 92*bis* of its intention to seek admission of the prior trial transcripts and related exhibits which relate to the testimony of TF1-060, TF1-062, TF1-122 and TF1-125 in other proceedings before the Special Court for Sierra Leone (“SCSL”)¹.
3. The material which is the subject of this filing is relevant to the crimes charged in the Second Amended Indictment and committed predominantly in Kenema District, Sierra Leone.

II. APPLICABLE LAW

4. Rule 89 sets out the basic principles to be applied by the Court in relation to the admission of evidence. Rule 89(B) provides that the Chamber: “... shall apply rules of evidence which will best favour a fair determination of the matter before it and are consonant with the spirit of the Statute and the general principles of law”. Further, Rule 89(C) provides the Chamber with the discretion to admit relevant evidence.
5. Rule 92*bis* of the Rules provides that:
 - (A) In addition to the provisions of Rule 92*ter*, a Chamber may, in lieu of oral testimony, admit as evidence, in whole or in part, information including written statements and transcripts, that do not go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused.
 - (B) The information submitted may be received in evidence if, in the view of the Trial Chamber, it is relevant to the purpose for which it is submitted and if its reliability is susceptible of confirmation.
 - (C) A party wishing to submit information as evidence shall give 10 days notice to the opposing party. Objections, if any, must be submitted within 5 days.
6. Rule 89 constitutes the basic rule regulating the admission of evidence which applies in addition to the more specific provisions contained in Rule 92*bis*.² Rule 89(C) only requires that evidence be relevant to be admissible. There is no

² Prosecutor v. Slobodan Milošević, Case No. IT-02-54-AR73.4, “Decision on Interlocutory Appeal on the Admissibility of Evidence-In-Chief in the Form of Written Statements”, 30 September 2003, paras 9-10.

requirement that the evidence be both relevant and probative.³

7. The procedural requirements of Rule 92*bis* must be met by the party seeking admission of a transcript or statement in lieu of oral testimony, in addition to the requirements of Rule 89. Accordingly, for evidence to be admitted pursuant to Rules 89(C) and 92*bis*, the evidence must not go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused, must be relevant and its reliability susceptible of confirmation. Rule 92*bis* does not otherwise limit the evidence which might be admitted under it.
8. The Prosecution, therefore, notifies the Court of its intention to seek the admission of the specified prior trial transcripts and related exhibits under Rules 89(C) and 92*bis*.

III. BACKGROUND

9. On 4 April 2007, the Prosecution filed its Rule 73*bis* Pre-Trial Conference Materials.⁴ As part of these materials, the Prosecution filed a witness list (“Witness List”) and, in the introductory pages to the Witness List, advised the Court that it might seek to present the evidence of some witnesses through the admission of prior testimony under Rule 92*bis*. TF1-060, TF1-062, TF1-122 and TF1-125 were included on the Witness List and identified as being such witnesses.
10. TF1-060 testified in the RUF trial on 29 April 2005. The witness’ testimony consisted of one half day of examination-in-chief and cross-examination. In the RUF trial, RUF Exhibit No. 26 was admitted under seal through TF1-060. The prior trial transcripts of TF1-060 were disclosed in redacted format to the Defence on 17 May 2006 and in unredacted format on 18 January 2008. For completeness, the Prosecution also seeks to admit RUF Exhibit No. 8 which was referred to during the testimony of TF1-060 but which was not tendered through the witness’ testimony.

³ Prosecutor v. Brima et al., SCSL-04-16-T-280, “Decision on Joint Defence Motion to Exclude all Evidence from Witness TF1-277 Pursuant to Rule 89(C) and/or Rule 95”, 24 May 2005, para. 13.

⁴ Prosecutor v. Taylor, SCSL-03-01-PT-218, “Public Rule 73*bis* Pre-Trial Conference Materials”, 4 April 2007 (“Pre-Trial Conference Materials”).

11. TF1-062 testified in the AFRC trial on 27 June 2005. The witness' testimony consisted of just over one half day of examination-in-chief and cross-examination. The prior trial transcripts of TF1-062 were disclosed in redacted format to the Defence on 17 May 2006 and in unredacted format on 18 January 2008. For information, this witness also testified in the CDF trial⁵ on 11 February 2005. However, the witness' testimony in the CDF trial was specific to the charges made against the three accused in those proceedings and is not relevant to the current proceedings.
12. TF1-122 testified in the AFRC trial on 24 June 2005. The witness' testimony consisted of one day of examination-in-chief and cross-examination. In the AFRC trial, AFRC Exhibit No. 24 was admitted through TF1-122. TF1-122 also testified in the RUF trial between 7 and 8 July 2005. The witness' testimony consisted of one half day of examination-in-chief and approximately one day of cross-examination. In the RUF trial, RUF Exhibit No. 31 was admitted through TF1-122. The prior trial transcripts of TF1-122 were disclosed in redacted format to the Defence on 17 May 2006 and in unredacted format on 18 January 2008. The Prosecution also seeks to admit RUF Exhibit No. 28 which was referred to during the testimony of TF1-122 but which was not tendered through the witness' testimony. It should be noted that AFRC Exhibit No. 24 is a certified copy of RUF Exhibit No. 28.
13. TF1-125 testified in the RUF trial on 12, 13 and 16 May 2005. The witness' testimony consisted of approximately two and half hours of examination-in-chief and two days of cross-examination. In the RUF trial, RUF Exhibit Nos. 27, 28⁶ and 29 were admitted through TF1-125, Exhibit Nos. 27 and 29 being admitted under seal. The prior trial transcripts of TF1-122 were disclosed in redacted format to the Defence on 17 May 2006 and in unredacted format on 18 January 2008.

⁵ Prosecutor v. Norman et al (SCSL-04-14-T) ("CDF trial"). The transcript was reviewed for Rule 68 material and none was found.

IV. SUBMISSIONS

14. The jurisprudence of the SCSL clearly establishes that the Rules “favour a flexible approach to the issue of admissibility of evidence.”⁷ The jurisprudence of the SCSL also supports the view that expedient and fair trials are promoted where sworn testimony before the Court is admitted in a subsequent trial in lieu of the Prosecution carrying out a second examination-in-chief over several days.⁸ This jurisprudence applies the principles enshrined in Article 17 of the SCSL’s Statute regarding the Accused’s right to a fair and expeditious trial, and the principles underlining Rule 26*bis* which require that trial proceedings be conducted in a fair and expeditious manner.

The evidence is relevant

15. As required under both Rules 89(C) and 92*bis*, the evidence of witnesses TF1-060, TF1-062, TF1-122 and TF1-125 is relevant to the current proceedings as it concerns inter alia crimes committed in Kenema during the Indictment period.⁹ In particular, the witnesses give evidence of unlawful killings and forced labour occurring in Kenema during the Indictment period. Further, TF1-062 and TF1-122 both give evidence regarding the use of child soldiers by the AFRC/RUF. Evidence of forced labour in Kailahun District is also provided by TF1-122. In addition to specific crime base evidence, the witnesses also provide evidence on the contextual elements of the crimes charged in the Indictment such as the widespread or systematic nature of the attack, the nexus between the violation or crime and the armed conflict and the civilian status of the victims.

Sesay et al.*, SCSL-04-15-T-618, “Decision on Prosecution Notice Pursuant to Rule 92*bis* to Admit Information into Evidence”, 2 August 2006, p. 3, quoting with approval Prosecutor v. Sesay et al., SCSL-04-15-T-391, “Ruling on Gbao Application to Exclude Evidence of Prosecution Witness Mr. Koker”, 23 May 2005 (“Gbao Ruling”), para. 4.

⁸ See: Prosecutor v. Sesay et al., SCSL-04-15-T-448, “Decision on the Prosecution Confidential Notice under Rule 92*bis* to Admit the Transcripts of Testimony of TF1-026, TF1-104 and TF1-169”, 9 November 2005; *Prosecutor v. ⁹ See also the summaries of the witnesses’ evidence provided as part of the Pre-Trial Conference Materials.

16. As also required under Rule 92bis, the transcripts and exhibits referred to in this notice are susceptible of confirmation. At this stage the Prosecution is not required to prove that the evidence is in fact reliable, only that the reliability of the evidence is susceptible of confirmation.¹⁰ The phrase “susceptible of confirmation” contained in Rule 92bis (B) has been interpreted by the Appeals Chamber in the CDF trial to mean that the “proof of reliability is not a condition of admission: all that is required is that the information should be capable of corroboration in due course.”¹¹
17. This Trial Chamber in the AFRC trial reiterated that “evidence may be excluded because it is unreliable, but it is not necessary to demonstrate the reliability of the evidence before it is admitted.”¹² The Trial Chamber further considered that “reliability of the evidence is something to be considered by the Trial Chamber at the end of the trial when weighing and evaluating the evidence as a whole, in light of the context and nature of the evidence itself, including the credibility and reliability of the relevant evidence.”¹³

The Rule 92bis evidence does not go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused

18. The evidence which the witness provides on the RUF command structure, the AFRC/RUF command structure and the relationship between the RUF and the AFRC during the Indictment period is all relevant to the several forms of liability alleged by the Prosecution in this case, including the Accused’s participation in a common plan, design or purpose, and his liability based on superior authority for the crimes committed by the AFRC and RUF alliance. In relation to this evidence, it is acknowledged that Rule 92bis specifically excludes evidence which goes to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused. However, only acts and conduct of an accused which are sufficient of themselves or central to establishing the accused's liability are excluded under Rule 92bis(A). The acts and conduct of others are not excluded.

19. The jurisprudence of the ICTY has found that there is a:

"clear distinction [to be] drawn ... between (a) the acts and conduct of those others who commit the crimes for which the indictment alleges that the accused is individually responsible, and (b) the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment which establish his responsibility for the acts and conduct of those others. It is only a written statement which goes to proof of the latter acts and conduct which Rule 92bis (A) excludes from the procedure laid down in that Rule."¹⁴

As noted in the Galić Decision referred to in the Karemera Appeals Decision, any other interpretation of this rule "would effectively denude it of any real utility."¹⁵

20. The jurisprudence also makes it clear that the term acts and conduct of the accused does not limit the admissibility of acts and conduct of persons other than the accused, including co-perpetrators, co-participants in a joint criminal enterprise, and subordinates. In the Karemera Appeals Decision, the Chamber stated that there is a distinction to be made between "facts related to the existence of a joint criminal enterprise and the conduct of its members other than the accused—and, more generally, facts related to the conduct of physical perpetrators of a crime for which the accused is being held criminally responsible through some other mode of liability" and facts related to the acts and conduct of the accused.¹⁶ While this discussion was held in the context of a consideration of Rule 94(B) (judicial notice of adjudicated facts), the Appeals Chamber refers to the Galić Decision concerning admissibility under Rule 92bis.¹⁷
21. The prior trial transcripts and related exhibits which the Prosecution seeks to admit under Rule 92bis do not go to the acts and conduct of the Accused as that term is defined and limited by the jurisprudence.

V. NOTICE

22. The Prosecution gives notice of its intention to submit for admission into evidence the parts of the prior trial transcripts relating to TF1-060, TF1-062, TF1-122 and TF1-125 provided in Annex A. As permitted under Rule 92*bis*, the Prosecution seeks to admit parts only of the prior testimony into evidence and wishes to exclude those sections which concern: (i) legal argument which had no impact on the evidence of the witness; (ii) trial administrative matters; and (iii) evidence of the acts and conduct of the Accused. Accordingly, portions of the transcripts set out in Annex A have been redacted on this basis.¹⁸
23. Due to the nature of the protective measures applicable to the witnesses, Annex A of this notice is filed on a confidential basis.¹⁹
24. Should the prior trial transcripts be admitted into evidence, the Prosecution would not seek to examine-in-chief the witnesses concerned.
25. The Prosecution gives notice of its intention to submit for admission into evidence the exhibits related to the testimony of the above mentioned witnesses which are set out in Annexes B and C. Copies of RUF Exhibit Nos. 8 and 31 are not provided as part of this filing as these are large maps. Instead, the Prosecution is providing copies to be distributed by Court Management when serving this filing.²⁰ Annex C is filed on a confidential basis because the exhibits contained therein were filed under seal. While the Rules do not specifically provide for the admission of exhibits under seal, the purpose of this procedure and the practice at the SCSL has been to seal these exhibits from disclosure to the public and effectively to treat such exhibits like closed session transcripts.²¹ As the exhibits are evidence the parties to these proceedings and the Trial Chamber must have the ¹⁸ This procedure also conforms to the procedure adopted at the ICTR. At the ICTR statements tendered pursuant to Rule 92*bis* are reviewed. Where a statement is tendered that includes information that falls within Rule 92*bis* and information that falls outside the Rule, the statement is admitted but the paragraphs or information that fall outside the Rule are simply not admitted into evidence. See for example Prosecutor v. Bagosora et al, ICTR-98-41-T, "Decision on Prosecutor's Motion for the Admission of Written Witness Statements Under Rule 92*bis*," 9 March 2004.

¹⁹ The nature of the protective measures are set out in more detail in Annex A.

²⁰ The Prosecution has provided Court Management with 6 copies (4 x judges, 1 x Chambers Legal Officer, 1 x Defence).

²¹ See TF1-334 Rule 92*bis* Decision, page 6 where exhibits admitted through TF1-334 in the AFRC trial under seal were admitted in the RUF trial under seal.

right to review them and use them for all relevant purposes.

VI. CONCLUSION

26. The Prosecution hereby gives notice under Rule 92*bis* of its intention to seek admission into evidence the material identified in paragraphs 22 and 25.

Stanislav GALIĆ

DECISION ON INTERLOCUTORY APPEAL CONCERNING RULE 92bis(C)

Counsel for the Prosecutor:

Mr Mark Ierace, Senior Trial Attorney

Counsel for the Defence:

Ms Mara Pilipović & Maître Stephane Piletta-Zanin

The background to the appeal

1. Pursuant to a certificate granted by the Trial Chamber in accordance with Rule 73(C) of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence ("Rules"), as Rule 73 then stood,¹ Stanislav Galić (the "appellant") has appealed against the admission into evidence of two written statements made by prospective witnesses to investigators of the Office of the Prosecutor ("OTP"). Both prospective witnesses have died since making their statements.
2. The appellant, as the Commander over a period of almost two years of the Sarajevo Romanija Corps (part of the Bosnian Serb Army), is charged in relation to an alleged campaign of sniping and shelling against the civilian population of Sarajevo conducted during that time by the forces under his command and control. He is charged with individual responsibility pursuant to Article 7.1 of the Tribunal's Statute and as a superior pursuant to Article 7.3 for crimes against humanity and for violations of the laws and customs of war. The prosecution concedes that it is no part of its case that the appellant personally physically perpetrated any of the crimes charged himself.² Its case pursuant to Article 7.1 is that he planned, instigated, ordered or otherwise aided and abetted the commission of those crimes by others.³ Its case pursuant to Article 7.3 is that the appellant knew, or had reason to know, that his subordinates had committed or were about to commit such crimes and that he failed to take reasonable steps to prevent such acts or to punish those who carried out those acts.⁴
3. The first written statement admitted into evidence was made by Hamdija Čavčić. He was a chemical engineer employed by the Department for Criminal and Technical Investigations in Sarajevo as an expert in investigating the traces in the case of fire or explosions. As such, he investigated a shelling on 12 July 1993 in which twelve people had been killed. He prepared a contemporaneous Criminal and Technical Report in which he deduced the direction from which the particular shell had been fired. His written statement to the OTP investigator, which is dated 16 November 1995, annexes that report and confirms that the findings which he had made in it were true. He also explains in greater detail how he had reached those conclusions. In addition, the written statement describes a similar investigation of a shelling on 5 February 1994. These two incidents are identified as incidents 2 and 5 in the schedule to the indictment.

4. The second written statement admitted into evidence was made by Bajram Šopi. He was present on 7 September 1993 collecting firewood when a man was killed by a sniper's shot. His statement to the OTP investigator says that both he and the man who was killed were dressed in civilian clothes. It describes his own wounding by shooting and the damage to his house by shelling in two incidents during 1992. It also describes the injuries to his daughter by shelling at an unspecified time. He further states that there were military units behind his house in a school building which had been "levelled". Only that part of the statement which describes the incident on 7 September 1993, which is identified as incident 11 in the schedule, was tendered.

The relevant Rules

5. The appeal principally concerns two rules in Section 3 of the Rules (headed "Rules of Evidence"), Rules 89 and 92*bis*, and the interaction between them. It is convenient, therefore, to quote each of those two Rules in full:

Rule 89 General Provisions

- (A) A Chamber shall apply the rules of evidence set forth in this Section, and shall not be bound by national rules of evidence.
- (B) In cases not otherwise provided for in this Section, a Chamber shall apply rules of evidence which will best favour a fair determination of the matter before it and are consonant with the spirit of the Statute and the general principles of law.
- (C) A Chamber may admit any relevant evidence which it deems to have probative value.
- (D) A Chamber may exclude evidence if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the need to ensure a fair trial.
- (E) A Chamber may request verification of the authenticity of evidence obtained out of court.
- (F) A Chamber may receive the evidence of a witness orally or, where the interests of justice allow, in written form.

Rule 92*bis* Proof of Facts other than by Oral Evidence

- (A) A Trial Chamber may admit, in whole or in part, the evidence of a witness in the form of a written statement in lieu of oral testimony which goes to proof of a matter other than the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment.
 - (i) Factors in favour of admitting evidence in the form of a written statement include but are not limited to circumstances in which the evidence in question:

- (a) is of a cumulative nature, in that other witnesses will give or have given oral testimony of similar facts;
 - (b) relates to relevant historical, political or military background;
 - (c) consists of a general or statistical analysis of the ethnic composition of the population in the places to which the indictment relates;
 - (d) concerns the impact of crimes upon victims;
 - (e) relates to issues of the character of the accused; or
 - (f) relates to factors to be taken into account in determining sentence.
 - (ii) Factors against admitting evidence in the form of a written statement include whether:
 - (a) there is an overriding public interest in the evidence in question being presented orally;
 - (b) a party objecting can demonstrate that its nature and source renders it unreliable, or that its prejudicial effect outweighs its probative value; or
 - (c) there are any other factors which make it appropriate for the witness to attend for cross-examination.
- (B) A written statement under this Rule shall be admissible if it attaches a declaration by the person making the written statement that the contents of the statement are true and correct to the best of that person's knowledge and belief and
- (i) the declaration is witnessed by:
 - (a) a person authorised to witness such a declaration in accordance with the law and procedure of a State; or
 - (b) a Presiding Officer appointed by the Registrar of the Tribunal for that purpose; and
 - (ii) the person witnessing the declaration verifies in writing:
 - (a) that the person making the statement is the person identified in the said statement;
 - (b) that the person making the statement stated that the contents of the written statement are, to the best of that person's knowledge and belief, true and correct;
 - (c) that the person making the statement was informed that if the content of the written statement is not true then he or she may be subject to proceedings for giving false testimony; and
 - (d) the date and place of the declaration.
- The declaration shall be attached to the written statement presented to the Trial Chamber.
- (C) A written statement not in the form prescribed by paragraph (B) may nevertheless be admissible if made by a person who has subsequently died, or by a person who can no longer with reasonable diligence be traced, or by a person who is by reason of bodily or mental condition unable to testify orally, if the Trial Chamber:
- (i) is so satisfied on a balance of probabilities; and
 - (ii) finds from the circumstances in which the statement was made and recorded that there are satisfactory indicia of its reliability.
- (D) A Chamber may admit a transcript of evidence given by a witness in proceedings before the Tribunal which goes to proof of a matter other than the acts and conduct of the accused.
- (E) Subject to Rule 127 or any order to the contrary, a party seeking to adduce a written statement or transcript shall give fourteen days notice to the opposing party, who may within seven days object. The Trial Chamber shall decide, after hearing the parties, whether to admit the statement or transcript in whole or in part and whether to require the witness to appear for cross-examination.

The issues in the appeal

6. The appellant has raised a number of issues in his Interlocutory Appeal:
 - (1) The appellant says that both statements did not fall within Rule 92*bis* because they go to proof of "the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment".⁵ The prosecution responds to this issue in three alternative ways. Either (a) the statements do not go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused charged in the indictment,⁶ or (if they do go to such proof) (b) Rule 92*bis*(C) does not exclude proof of the acts and conduct of the accused by a written statement of a deceased person,⁷ and (c) the evidence is in any event admissible under Rule 89(C) without the restrictions of Rule 92*bis*.⁸
 - (2) The appellant says that the Trial Chamber did not evaluate what is said to be the requirement of Rule 92*bis*(C)(i) as to "the probability of the said statements".⁹ The prosecution responds that the appellant has misread the requirements of Rule 92*bis*(C)(i).¹⁰
 - (3) The appellant says that the Trial Chamber "did not engage in establishing the question of reliability".¹¹ The prosecution responds that the Trial Chamber correctly determined that there were satisfactory indicia of the reliability of each statement in the circumstances in which it was made and recorded.¹²
 - (4) The appellant says that Rule 92*bis* does not relate to expert witnesses, whose evidence is admissible only under Rule 94*bis*, so that the statement of Hamdija Čavčić (described in par 3, supra) was inadmissible upon that basis also.¹³ The prosecution responds that Rule 92*bis* is directed to any witness whose statement does not go to proof of the acts or conduct of the accused, including expert witnesses,¹⁴ and that Rule 94*bis* is directed to experts who are not in a position themselves to testify directly about the facts upon which they base their expert opinion.¹⁵

- (5) The appellant says that it is not in the interests of justice to admit into evidence part of a written statement, and that the other party must be given the opportunity to argue that the statement should be admitted in its entirety because he has no possibility of cross-examining the maker of the statement.¹⁶ The appellant also argues that, if the statement includes material which is irrelevant, the whole statement must be rejected.¹⁷ The prosecution responds that it has the prerogative to tender evidence which it deems to be relevant to its case provided that it is prima facie credible.¹⁸

Counsel for the appellant orally informed the Appeals Chamber that his client did not intend to file a reply to the prosecution's Response, but relied upon what is said in his Interlocutory Appeal in answer to the prosecution's arguments.¹⁹

7. The certificate given by the Trial Chamber pursuant to Rule 73(C) (as it then stood) – that it was appropriate for the continuation of the trial that an interlocutory appeal be determined – related only to the first of these issues, as to the proper interpretation of the exclusion in Rule 92bis(A) of statements which go to proof of “the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment”.²⁰ It is, however, within the discretion of the Appeals Chamber to determine also other, related, issues where it considers it appropriate to do so, at least where they have been raised in the interlocutory appeal and the respondent to the appeal has had the opportunity to put his or its arguments in relation to those related issues. It is clear, from the present case and from other cases presently being tried in the Tribunal, that it will be beneficial to the Trial Chambers and to counsel generally that all of these matters be resolved in the present appeal. The Appeals Chamber proposes therefore to deal with them all.

1(a) The “acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment”

8. The appellant emphasises that Rule 92bis excludes from the procedure laid down any written statement which goes to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment.²¹ He says that, as the indictment charges the appellant with individual criminal responsibility –

(i) as having aided and abetted others to commit the crimes charged, and ²¹ Interlocutory Appeal, p 5.

(ii) as the superior of his subordinates who committed those crimes, the acts and conduct of those others and of his subordinates “represent his own acts”.²² The appellant describes those “others” as “co-perpetrators”, and he says that the “acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment” encompasses the acts and conduct of the accused’s co-perpetrators and/or subordinates.²³ This argument was rejected by the Trial Chamber.²⁴

9. The appellant’s interpretation of Rule 92bis would effectively denude it of any real utility. That interpretation is inconsistent with both the purpose and the terms of the Rule. It confuses the present clear distinction drawn in the jurisprudence of the Tribunal between (a) the acts and conduct of those others who commit the crimes for which the indictment alleges that the accused is individually responsible, and (b) the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment which establish his responsibility for the acts and conduct of those others. It is only a written statement which goes to proof of the latter acts and conduct which Rule 92bis(A) excludes from the procedure laid down in that Rule.

10. Thus, Rule 92bis(A) excludes any written statement which goes to proof of any act or conduct of the accused upon which the prosecution relies to establish –

- (a) that the accused committed (that is, that he personally physically perpetrated) any of the crimes charged himself,²⁵ or
- (b) that he planned, instigated or ordered the crimes charged, or
- (c) that he otherwise aided and abetted those who actually did commit the crimes in their planning, preparation or execution of those crimes, or
- (d) that he was a superior to those who actually did commit the crimes, or
- (e) that he knew or had reason to know that those crimes were about to be or had been committed by his subordinates, or
- (f) that he failed to take reasonable steps to prevent such acts or to punish those who carried out those acts.

²² Ibid, p 6.

²³ Ibid, p 2. The present appeal is not the occasion to consider whether the expression “co-perpetrator”, rather than “perpetrator” or “principal offender”, is an appropriate description of those persons who actually commit the crimes which the indictment charges the accused with responsibility.

²⁴ Decision on the Prosecutor’s Motion for the Admission into Evidence of Written Statement by a Deceased Witness, and Related Report Pursuant to Rule 92bis(C), 12 Apr 2002 (“First Decision”), p 4; Decision on the Prosecutor’s Second Motion for the Admission into Evidence of Written Statement by Deceased Witness Bajram Šopi, Pursuant to Rule 92bis(C), 18 Apr 2002 (“Second Decision”), p 4.

²⁵ This is not any part of the prosecution case in this present matter.

Where the prosecution case is that the accused participated in a joint criminal enterprise, and is therefore liable for the acts of others in that joint criminal enterprise,²⁶ Rule 92bis(A) excludes also any written statement which goes to proof of any act or conduct of the accused upon which the prosecution relies to establish –

- (g) that he had participated in that joint criminal enterprise, or
- (h) that he shared with the person who actually did commit the crimes charged the requisite intent for those crimes.²⁷

Those are the “acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment”, not the acts and conduct of others for which the accused is charged in the indictment with responsibility.²⁸

11. The “conduct” of an accused person necessarily includes his relevant state of mind, so that a written statement which goes to proof of any act or conduct of the accused upon which the prosecution relies to establish that state of mind is not admissible under Rule 92bis. In order to establish that state of mind, however, the prosecution may rely upon the acts and conduct of others which have been proved by Rule 92bis statements. An easy example would be proof, in relation to Article 5 of the Tribunal’s Statute, of the knowledge by the accused that his acts fitted into a pattern of widespread or systematic attacks directed against a civilian population.²⁹ Such knowledge may be inferred from evidence of such a pattern of attacks (proved by Rule 92bis statements) that he must have known that his own acts (proved by oral evidence) fitted into that pattern. The “conduct” of an accused person may also in the appropriate case include his omission to act.

12. This interpretation gives effect to the intention of Rule 92bis, which (together with the concurrent amendments to Rules 89 and 90)³⁰ was to qualify the previous preference in the Rules

²⁶ In Prosecutor v Tadić, IT-94-1-A, Judgment, 15 July 1999 (“Tadić Judgment”), at par 220, this liability is described as that of an accomplice.

²⁷ Tadić Judgment, par 196; Prosecutor v Brđanin & Talić, IT-99-36-PT, Decision on Form of Further Amended Indictment and Prosecution Application to Amend, 26 June 2001, par 31.

²⁸ See also Prosecutor v Milošević, IT-02-54-T, Decision on Prosecution’s Request to Have Written Statements Admitted Under Rule 92bis, 21 Mar 2002 (“Milošević Decision”), par 22: “The phrase ‘acts and conduct of the accused’ in Rule 92bis is a plain expression and should be given its ordinary meaning: deeds and behaviour of the accused. It should not be extended by fanciful interpretation. No mention is made of acts and conduct by alleged co-perpetrators, subordinates or, indeed, of anybody else. Had the rule been intended to extend to acts and conduct of alleged co-perpetrators or subordinates it would have said so.”

²⁹ Tadić Judgment, par 248.

³⁰ At the same time that Rule 92bis was introduced, Rule 90 was amended by deleting par (A), which stated: “Subject to Rules 71 and 71bis, witnesses shall, in principle, be heard directly by the Chambers”, and Rule 89 was amended by adding par (F), which states: “A Chamber may receive the evidence orally or, where the interests of justice allow, in written form”.

for “live, in court” testimony,³¹ and to permit evidence to be given in written form where the interests of justice allow provided that such evidence is probative and reliable, consistently with the decision of the Appeals Chamber concerning hearsay evidence in Prosecutor v Aleksovski.³² Far from being an “exception” to Rule 89, as the appellant claims,³³ Rule 92bis identifies a particular situation in which, once the provisions of Rule 92bis are satisfied, and where the material has probative value within the meaning of Rule 89(C), it is in principle in the interests of justice within the meaning of Rule 89(F) to admit the evidence in written form.³⁴ (The relationship between Rule 92bis and Rule 89(C) is discussed in pars 27-31, infra.)

13. The fact that the written statement goes to proof of the acts and conduct of a subordinate of the accused or of some other person for whose acts and conduct the accused is charged with responsibility does, however, remain relevant to the Trial Chamber’s decision under Rule 92bis. That is because such a decision also involves a further determination as to whether the maker of the statement should appear for cross-examination.³⁵ The proximity to the accused of the acts and conduct which are described in the written statement is relevant to this further determination.³⁶ Moreover, that proximity would also be relevant to the exercise of the Trial Chamber’s discretion in deciding whether the evidence should be admitted in written form at all.

³¹ Prosecutor v Kordić & Čerkez, IT-95-14/2-AR73.5, Decision on Appeal Regarding Statement of a Deceased Witness, 21 July 2000 (“Kordić & Čerkez Decision”), par 19.

³³ Interlocutory Appeal, p 10.

³⁴ The admission into evidence of written statements made by a witness in lieu of their oral evidence in chief is not inconsistent with Article 21.4(e) of the Tribunal’s Statute (“In the determination of any charge against the accused pursuant to the present Statute, the accused shall be entitled to the following minimum guarantees, in full equality: [...] to examine, or have examined, the witnesses against him and to obtain the attendance and examination of witnesses on his behalf under the same conditions as witnesses against him; [...]”) or with other human rights norms (for example, Article 6(3)(d) of the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms provides: “Everyone charged with a criminal offence has the following minimum rights: [...] to examine, or have examined, witnesses against him and to obtain the attendance and examination of witnesses on his behalf under the same conditions as witnesses against him; [...]”). But, where the witness who made the statement is not called to give the accused an adequate and proper opportunity to challenge the statement and to question that witness, the evidence which the statement contains may lead to a conviction only if there is other evidence which corroborates the statement: Unterperthinger v Austria, Judgment of 24 Nov 1986, Series A no 110, pars 31-33; Kostovski v The Netherlands, Judgment of 20 Nov 1989, Series A no 166, par 41; Vidal v Belgium, Judgment of 22 Apr 1992, Series A no 235-B, par 33; Lüdi v Switzerland, Judgment of 15 June 1992, Series A no 238, par 49; Artner v Austria, Judgment of 28 Aug 1992, Series A no 242-A, pars 22, 27; Saïdi v France, Judgment of 20 Sept 1993, Series A no 261-C, pars 43-44; Doorson v The Netherlands, Judgment of 26 Mar 1996, par 80; Van Mechelen v The Netherlands, Judgment of 23 Apr 1997, Reports of Judgments and Decisions, 1997-III, pars 51, 55; A M v Italy, Judgment of 14 Dec 1999, 1999-IX Reports of Judgments and Decisions, par 25; Lucà v Italy, Judgment of 27 Feb 2001, 2001-II Reports of Judgments and Decisions, pars 39-40; Solakov v Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Judgment of 31 Oct 2001, appl No 47023/99, par 57.)

³⁶ Milošević Decision, par 22.

Where the evidence is so pivotal to the prosecution case, and where the person whose acts and conduct the written statement describes is so proximate to the accused, the Trial Chamber may decide that it would not be fair to the accused to permit the evidence to be given in written form.³⁷ An easy example of where the exercise of that discretion would lead to the rejection of a written statement would be where the acts and conduct of a person other than the accused described in the written statement occurred in the presence of the accused.

14. The exercise of the discretion as to whether the evidence should be admitted in written form at all becomes more difficult in the special and sensitive situation posed by a charge of command responsibility under Article 7.3 of the Tribunal's Statute. That is because, as the jurisprudence demonstrates in cases where the crimes charged involve widespread criminal conduct by the subordinates of the accused (or those alleged to be his subordinates), there is often but a short step from a finding that the acts constituting the crimes charged were committed by such subordinates to a finding that the accused knew or had reason to know that those crimes were about to be or had been committed by them.³⁸ Where the criminal conduct of those subordinates was widespread, the inference is often drawn that, for example, "there is no way that [the accused] could not have known or heard about [it]",³⁹ or "[the accused] had to have been aware of the genocidal objectives [of his subordinates]".⁴⁰

15. In such cases, it may well be that the subordinates of the accused (or those alleged to be his subordinates) are so proximate to the accused that either (a) the evidence of their acts and conduct which the prosecution seeks to prove by a Rule 92bis statement becomes sufficiently pivotal to the prosecution case that it would not be fair to the accused to permit the evidence to be given in written form, or (b) the absence of the opportunity to cross-examine the maker of the statement would in fairness preclude the use of the statement in any event. It must be emphasised, however, that the rejection of the written statement in any of these situations is not based upon any identification of that person's acts or conduct with the acts or conduct of the accused.

³⁷ Prosecutor v Brđanin & Talić, IT-99-36-T, (Confidential) Decision on the Admission of Rule 92bis Statements, 1 May 2002, par 14 [A public version of this Decision was filed on 23 May 2002.]

³⁸ Prosecutor v Delalić et al, IT-96-21-A, Judgment, 20 Feb 2001 ("Delalić Judgment"), par 241. There is a helpful list of indicia as to whether a superior "must have known" about the acts of his subordinates provided in the Final Report of the UN Commission of Experts (M. Cherif Bassiouni, Chairman), established pursuant to Security Council Resolution 780 (1992), 27 May 1994 (S/1994/674), under the heading "II Applicable Law - D. Command Responsibility".

³⁹ Prosecutor v Delalić et al, IT-96-21-T, Judgment, 16 Nov 1998, par 770.

⁴⁰ Prosecutor v Krstić, IT-98-33-T, 2 Aug 2001, Judgment, par 648.

16. The Appeals Chamber is very conscious of the fact that, in many cases, the evidence tendered pursuant to Rule 92bis will be relevant at the same time both to (i) the prosecution case that the accused has command responsibility under Article 7.3, and (ii) its case that the accused has individual responsibility under Article 7.1 (including participation in a joint criminal enterprise) other than personally perpetrating the crimes himself. However, Rule 92bis was primarily intended to be used to establish what has now become known as “crime-base” evidence, rather than the acts and conduct of what may be described as the accused’s immediately proximate subordinates – that is, subordinates of the accused of whose conduct it would be easy to infer that he knew or had reason to know. The Appeals Chamber does not believe, therefore, that the concerns which it has expressed as to the use of Rule 92bis in Article 7.3 cases where it relates to the acts and conduct of the accused’s immediately proximate subordinates will unduly limit the advantages to the expeditious disposal of trials which the Rule was designed to achieve. It may be that, where the evidence which the prosecution wishes to establish by extensive use of Rule 92bis in a particular case is specially pivotal to that case because it deals with the acts and conduct of the accused’s immediately proximate subordinates, it will have to elect between the alternative formulations of its case which it has pleaded if it wishes to take advantage of the Rule in relation to that evidence.

17. Returning to the present case, the two statements admitted into evidence by the Trial Chamber pursuant to Rule 92bis(C) did not go to proof of any acts or conduct of the accused, and the objection by the appellant upon this basis is rejected. The issue then arises as to whether they should nevertheless have been rejected in the exercise of the Trial Chamber’s discretion.

18. The written statement by Bajram Šopi, who was present collecting firewood when a man was killed by a sniper’s shot, does not indicate the source of the shot and (on its face and taken by itself) it appears to be of no particular importance to proof of the responsibility of the appellant. No question of discretion arises in relation to that statement. However, the statement of the expert (Hadija Čavčić) concerning his conclusions as to the direction from which the particular shell had been fired, could – for the reasons given in pars 15-16, supra – be of substantial importance to the prosecution case if it is the vital link in demonstrating that the shell which is alleged to have caused many casualties was fired from a gun emplacement manned by immediately proximate subordinates of the accused. A question of discretion would therefore appear to arise as to whether it would be unfair to the accused to permit this evidence to be given in written form in any event, particularly as there can be no opportunity to cross-examine him.

19. The Trial Chamber's Decision in relation to the expert's statement deals in careful detail with the arguments raised as to the statement's compliance with the requirements of Rule 92bis,⁴¹ but it does not discuss any issue of discretion as might have been expected if that issue had been considered by the Trial Chamber. This may well be because counsel for the accused appears to have rested her opposition to the application by the prosecution exclusively upon the argument that the acts and conduct of the accused included those of his subordinates and upon the absence of any opportunity to cross-examine the expert, and she did not address the issue of discretion. In the opinion of the Appeals Chamber, however, it would be preferable that a Trial Chamber should nevertheless always give consideration to the exercise of the discretion given by Rule 92bis whenever the prosecution seeks to use that Rule in the special and sensitive situation posed by a charge of command responsibility under Article 7.3 where the evidence goes to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused's immediately proximate subordinates.

20. In the present case, there have been two witnesses who have already given oral evidence concerning the shelling described in the expert's statement (Mirza Sabljica, who conducted the investigation with Hadija Čavčić, and Sead Besić) and a third witness (Muhammed Jusufspahić) has yet to give oral evidence concerning it.⁴² The Trial Chamber concluded that the opportunity which the accused had to cross-examine those witnesses made up for the absence of such an opportunity in relation to the now deceased Hadija Čavčić.⁴³ It may well be – it is not possible to tell on the rather limited material before the Appeals Chamber – that the evidence of those witnesses will reduce or even remove any suggestion that the statement of Hadija Čavčić, despite the absence of the opportunity to cross-examine him, is sufficiently pivotal to the prosecution case that the shell was fired by subordinates of the accused as to render it unfair (because of their immediate proximity to him) to permit the evidence to be given in written form. The Appeals Chamber is, therefore, not in a position in this case to exercise its own discretion in the place of the Trial Chamber as it ordinarily would be.⁴⁴ In these circumstances, and in the light of the ⁴¹ First Decision.

⁴³ Ibid, p 3.

⁴⁴ cf Prosecutor v Milošević, IT-99-37-AR73, IT-01-50-AR73 & IT-01-51-AR73, Reasons for Decision on Prosecution Interlocutory Appeal from Refusal to Order Joinder, 18 Apr 2002 ("Milošević Appeal Decision"), pars 4, 6.

Appeals Chamber's rejection of the other issues argued in the appeal, it will be necessary to uphold the appeal against the order made in the First Decision so that the matter may be returned to the Trial Chamber for it to consider the exercise of its discretion in accordance with this present Decision in relation to the statement of Hadija Čavčić.

21. For these reasons, it remains appropriate to deal also with the two alternative responses put forward by the prosecution in relation to the exclusion of any written statement which goes to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused.

1(b) Does the exclusion apply to Rule 92bis(C) written statements?

22. The prosecution tendered the two statements in question under Rule 92bis(C), which concerns written statements by persons who have since died or who can no longer with reasonable diligence be traced or who are unable to testify orally by reason of their bodily or mental condition. The prosecution's argument is that Rule 92bis(C) does not exclude proof of the acts and conduct of the accused where the person who made the statement tendered under that Rule has since died. This argument is based upon what is described as a "contextual" interpretation of the Rule.⁴⁵

23. The prosecution submits that Rule 92bis(A) contemplates written statements made by persons who could still be called to give evidence, and that its purpose is to save the time of the evidence being given orally. On the other hand, the prosecution submits, Rule 92bis(C) contemplates statements made by persons who cannot be called to give evidence, and that its purpose is to permit the "best" evidence available to be given.⁴⁶ The prosecution claims support for this submission in the fact that, whereas both Rule 92bis(A) and Rule 92bis(D) (which concerns the admissibility of a transcript of evidence given by the witness in proceedings before the Tribunal) refer expressly to the exclusion of such written statements which go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused, Rule 92bis(C) does not make any reference to that exclusion. The prosecution calls in aid the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius.⁴⁷ Such a maxim must always be applied with great care in statutory interpretation, for it is not of universal application. It is often described as a valuable servant but a dangerous master. Contrary to the ⁴⁵ Response, pars 7-8.

⁴⁶ Ibid, pars 12-13.

⁴⁷ The express mention of one person or thing is the exclusion of another (Co Litt 210a).

prosecution's argument, however, the context which Rule 92bis provides for the particular provision in Rule 92bis(C) demonstrates that the maxim is irrelevant to its interpretation.

24. Rule 92bis(A) makes admissible written statements in lieu of oral testimony, but limits such written statements to those which go to proof of a matter other than the acts and conduct of the accused as charged in the indictment. Rule 92bis(B) sets out the form of a declaration which must be attached to the written statement before it becomes admissible under Rule 92bis(A) in lieu of oral testimony. Rule 92bis(D) provides a separate and self-contained method of producing evidence in a written form in lieu of oral testimony by the tender of the transcript of a witness's evidence in proceedings before the Tribunal. Rule 92bis(C), however, does not provide a separate and self-contained method of producing evidence in written form in lieu of oral testimony. Both in form and in substance, Rule 92bis(C) merely excuses the necessary absence of the declaration required by Rule 92bis(B) for written statements to become admissible under Rule 92bis(A).

25. The prosecution argument that Rule 92bis(C) does not exclude proof of the acts and conduct of the accused by a written statement of a deceased person is rejected.

1(c) Admissibility under Rule 89(C) without Rule 92bis restrictions

26. The prosecution's third response to the appellant's arguments that the two statements admitted into evidence go to proof of the acts and conduct of the accused was that they were in any event admissible under Rule 89(C) without the restrictions of Rule 92bis.⁴⁸

27. Rule 89(C) – "A Chamber may admit any relevant evidence which it deems to have probative value" – permits the admission of hearsay evidence (that is, evidence of statements made out of court), in order to prove the truth of such statements rather than merely the fact that they were made.⁴⁹ Hearsay evidence may be oral, as where a witness relates what someone else

⁴⁸ Response, pars 15-24.

⁴⁹ Aleksovski Decision, par 15: "It is well settled in the practice of the Tribunal that hearsay evidence is admissible. Thus relevant out of court statements which a Trial Chamber considers probative are admissible under Rule 89(C). This was established in 1996 by the Decision of Trial Chamber II in Prosecutor v. Tadić [IT-94-1-T, Decision on the Defence Motion on Hearsay, 5 Aug. 1996 ('Tadić Decision')] and followed by Trial Chamber I in Prosecutor v. Blaškić [IT-95-14-T, Decision on Standing Objection of the Defence to the Admission of Hearsay with no Inquiry as to its Reliability, 26 Jan. 1998 ('Blaškić Decision')]. Neither Decision was the subject of appeal and it is not now submitted that they were wrongly decided. Accordingly, Trial Chambers have a broad discretion under Rule 89(C) to admit relevant hearsay evidence. [footnote continued on next page]
