LEADERS OF EVIDENCE:

1. Mr. Ozonnia Ojielo
2. Ms. Martien Schotmans
3. Mr. Abdulai Charm

WITNESS NAME: Tamba Finnoh

WITNESS NO: 001

REFERENCE NO: 4/150/5016

The Commission Chairman, Bishop Joseph C. Humper welcomed all present and asked that someone in the audience lead in the opening prayers. While the opening prayer was led by Rev Fornah, the Muslim prayer, Al fatiha, was taken collectively.

The Amputee Welfare Association rendered a song titled: "Fambul dem nar so den do we".

The chairman gave an opening remark and read out the hearings procedures.

The oath on Tamba Finnoh, a Christian, was administered by Bishop Humper. After that he reminded Tamba Finnoh of the rules concerning testimony.

TESTIMONY

I am Tamba Finnoh. I am currently residing at the amputee camp in Hastings. Before my present condition I was a farmer and a businessman in Kono. It all started after the ECOMOG intervention in Sierra Leone in 1998 .I hasten to note at this juncture that it is regrettable that even though we look at Kono as the economic backbone of this country, there was no security presence. Most of us were behind rebel lines with nowhere to go; because any thought of going to the South easily evaporated at the thought of the Kamajors ,which was dreadful. At that time I had no documents, and there was no way I could identify my self.

When ECOMOG intervened, they only occupied Koidu and other big towns. The areas covered by ECOMOG were the safest areas for civilians. The road that links Freetown to Kono was closed; so we had no access to relief supplies. The only alternative for us then was to go into the bush in search of food. And that was very risky.

Whilst we were in search of food one day, we fell into a rebel ambush. And I can still remember the day they caught us. We were held bound, stripped naked and then taken to a distant village called Yopomar. Suddenly, I heard a helicopter flying over us. The RUF and the AFRC who were rebel allies rushed to hide. I tried to take that opportunity to run into hiding. Unfortunately for me I was again caught and held bound. A man that I clearly recognised, that goes by the name Sahr Sessie, caught up with me. He asked me if I had the intention of escaping; but I pleaded with him to let me go and help save my life. Whilst we were on this discussion, I think the others overheard us and they ordered him to kill me if I had attempted to run. Upon this order he stabbed me with a bayonet on the side of my stomach. They gave me a good beating and my teeth were broken and they took us to Yogorma. We met one man whom they referred to as "Brigadier". He told us that we were not in support of them and so, they were going to teach us a lesson. On the same spot, a man who had attempted to escape was held and beheaded; as a warning for us not to attempt to escape. Another man had his lips pierced and padlocked and was given a letter to deliver to ECOMOG that they were coming. They lined us up and I decided to bring up the rear, with the hope that the same helicopter would fly over us again; because I was afraid of being killed. They called on us one at a time and then, began to cut off our limbs.

When it was my turn and I was beaten with a machete and my hands were chopped off. Fortunately for me, a boy came to my rescue, untied me and ordered me to leave. On my way going, I met other amputees who were dead because they could not bear the pains. However, I met one alive, but he was unable to move. I told him to get up so that we could seek medical treatment on the way but he made a sign to me that he could not. Shortly after I had left him, I with him any longer. All I am concerned about is what the Commission, Government, International Community and the Civil Society would do for me. I am ready to reconcile with him.

Bishop Humper : What are your views about ECOMOG?

Mr. Finnoh : ECOMOG was here to liberate the country and as we all know as human beings we have our sentiments and emotions. ECOMOG felt that because of the loss of their colleagues they should be unfriendly. I think it is a lesson to all Sierra Leoneans that we should always live together.

Bishop Humper : What recommendations would like to make to the Commission?

Mr. Finnoh : The first thing is that most of us have lost our dignity and we can not physically fend for our selves any longer. We have been reduced to beggars. Even those who used to respect us no longer do so. I recommend that the Commission put in place a mechanism that will ensure sustained provisions for us and our children. Also, I want the Commission to recommend that those amputees who have basic qualification be allowed to enter the university and other Institutions if they are ready to do so. I further suggest that the Commission recommend the setting up of Micro Projects for amputees and there dependants. Although the Commission offered one month employment which helped in easing some of my problems I ask that they find a way of extending it.

Justice Marcus Jones: Did the rebels say why they were chopping off hands or why a padlock was put on the other man's lip?

Mr. Finnoh : They gave no reason why they padlocked the man's lips but for the hands, they said they were cutting them because we used them to vote for Tejan Kabbah.

Justice Marcus Jones: Did Sahr Sessie have any grudge against you?

Mr. Finnoh : I can't remember him having any grudge against me because I taught him in form three. May be as a student he may have had a different perception about certain things but I didn't do him any wrong. Initially, before he joined the rebels, we had been on the run for our dear lives together and at one point almost quarrelled with my wife when she had refused him food. When I saw him he would be my saviour. I attempted to with the rebels I thought

Commissioner Jow : Can you tell the ages of the child combatants who were with the rebels and what reason they gave for the things they did?

Mr. Finnoh: The one who actually cut off my hands was between the ages of 14-17. I want to believe these children were being manipulated because they were acting on orders of their leaders.

Commissioner Torto : Can you give the name of the man whose head was cut off?

Mr. Finnoh : His name could be either Sahr or Tamba Joe of Yorpoma .

Commissioner Torto : These people who came to help you were they actually Kamajors or Donsos

Mr. Finnoh : I think they were Kamajors because the Kamajors wherever they went, they initiated people.

Bishop Humper : Do you have any question for the commission?

Mr. Finnoh : I first of all want to say that the amputees at first refused to cooperate with the commission because we felt that the Commission's recommendation will not be adhered to as it was the case with the Lome Peace Accord which made provision for a victim fund that up till date is yet to be set up.

So, I want to ask what guarantee the Commission has that its recommendations would be adhered to.

Bishop Humber : According to the TRC Act, the President must ensure that the recommendations made by the Commission are met. Furthermore, the Moral Guarantors to the Lome Peace Accord will monitor these recommendations and ensure that they are adhered to.

Mr. Finnoh : Finally, I recommend that a member of the victim group be included in the body that will monitor the recommendations of the Commission so that our interest will be protected.

The Leaders of Evidence didn't ask questions.

She was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner. She is a Muslim by religion. He further welcomed Rugiatu and said that he was happy that she had come to give testimony to the Commission.

TESTIMONY:

I have come to explain about the past. I reside at 9 Benjamin Lane. One morning, we were at Bundu Fence in Kingtom when we were told that ECOMOG were coming and the rebels were pulling out. At 1.p.m. we saw Kamajors and I told my brother that we were expecting ECOMOG but unfortunately I saw the Kamajors. We were all lined up out side.

My brothers were dealers in fuel; so one of the kamajors told us that they wanted to carry out routine checks . They met a drum of diesel and a drum of petrol. They asked what we were doing with them and my brother told them that they are for sale. They told him to call on all the others who were in the business. They lined up all of them and one Kamajors took out a knife and chopped all of their ears and chewed one. After this, my brother was saying to me that he is dying. Unfortunately one of the Kamajor heard what we were saying and asked what the matter was? I then spoke from behind and in response to that he called me out and said that I should laugh. My elder sister was telling me to keep quite but I refused. They then put all seven of them in a vehicle including my two brothers.

After a while they came back with seven heads (witness started to cry) and I started crying saying that they had killed my brothers. They then called me out side to come and identify my brothers' heads and laugh at the same time. I did it as there was no alternative.

Shortly after they left, ECOMOG came in and we were still crying. We explained everything to them and they asked me whether I could recognise any one of them and I said yes. But they were unable to find them. After some time, I went out for business at Brookfields Hotel where I saw one of the Kamajors who chopped off my brother's ear and chewed it. I beckoned to the lady that I was with but, she advised me to keep quite. The girl also spoke about an incident that occurred, when a woman was beaten and stripped naked. I was unable to tell this to my mother until some months later.

Bishop Humper : How many women where with you, when this happened?

Miss Kamara : There were a lot of women and one woman's child was also killed

Bishop Humper: How were you able to identify your brother's heads?

Miss Kamara : I had stayed with them ever since my childhood and I knew them well.

Bishop Humper : When they told you to laugh were you really laughing or pretending to laugh?

Miss Kamara : I was forced to laugh because guns were all around me.

Bishop Humper : Can you identify them?

Miss Kamara : Yes I can.

Justice Marcus Jones: When you explained to ECOMOG what did they do?

Miss Kamara : They could not do any thing because they were unable to find them.

Commissioner Torto: Did you report the matter to any of their officers?

Miss Kamara : No, I was there once when a case was reported to them; but no action was taken.

Commissioner Jow : Was your house the only house searched?

Miss Kamara : No they searched all the other houses.

Ms. Schotsmans: If I understand you well, you said you once came across one of those Kamajors, the one who chew your brother's ear and that you know their faces. Do you know any of their names?

Miss Kamara: No, I don't.

Ms. Schotsmans: Have you been able to see any one of them in town or do they live in your neighbourhood?

Miss Kamara: Following the end of the war, I was in a business at Brookfields Hotel when I saw one of them; the one who chewed my brother's ear.

Ms. Schotsmans : Have you been able to have a talk with anyone of them, about what they did to your brothers?

Miss Kamara : I was afraid to make any comment.

Ms.Schotsmans: Is there any way you can help the Commission find these people?

Miss Kamara: Even if I should see them now, the done cannot be undone. They cannot bring my brothers back to life. I just wanted to unburden my mind through the Commission. In any case should I see them that would aggravate my anger; I live everything with God.

Commissioner Torto : What were the names of your brothers?

Miss Kamara : Their names were Mamoud and Abu Kamara.

Bishop Humber : What more do you have to tell the Commission?

Miss Kamara : I have nothing to say except that Abu left his child with me and Mamoud's child is with my mother in Bo. If the Commission can do any thing for me I would appreciate it. At present, I am the only surviving child of my mother. She even refused to come today because she does not want to recall the ugly incident.

Bishop Humber : Have you said these things to anybody before?

Miss Kamara: In fact everybody knows about it. I was forced to tell your statement taker when I met somebody talking about the incident to her without knowing the detail.

Commissioner Jow : Have you been consoled by any group or individual for all these things that you went through?

Bishop Humber : We thank you for this time which you have spent with us. We hope that you together with others will help the Commission in carrying out its mandate. You can rest assured that we'll do our best in addressing the issues as they come to us and that we will share our findings not only with you but also with the entire nation and the world at large.

TESTIMONY:

One afternoon in 1998 we went to work in our uncle's farm. When we returned to town, I later went to the forest to cut wood. Upon return to town, we learnt that the town chief had lost one of his children. We were asked to bury the child because she was only two months old. We were there when I started feeling sick so I left them to go home. I had wanted to cross a path when I saw that the veranda had got a very high fence; as I was just about to consider my next line of action, three men came out of the building and asked where I was going to. Because I could not say anything they removed my clothes and tied me up and said that I should not cry or they would kill me.

Within two minutes, they started bringing people. They caught eight of us. One of the commandos said that they are going to kill all of us and pointed at my uncle and took him to the back of the house. He started begging them that they should leave him because he is a very young man. They were listening to what he was saying when the commander told them that if they did not kill him he would eliminate all of them. Immediately they started cutting our ears and started eating and said that we must all drink the blood. They gave us two letters for Tejan Kabbah after which they left us.

My brother decided that we should go to Fadugu but as we were going I fainted because of the bleeding, I could not hear what my brother was saying. I fell down again on the way going and my brothers left for Fadugu and reported the matter there. They later came and took me to Fadugu. I was brought to Freetown by the ECOMOG, and taken to Connaught hospital and from there I was taken to Waterloo. I stop so far my brother will give further information.

Testimony

In 1998, May 27, it was on a Saturday, we went to do some work for my uncle. We worked for him all day and returned back to town about 7pm. I took my bath and later heard that one of my sister's children had died. I went to commiserate with the family and met them digging the grave. I gave a helping hand. I had just reached a place when I met one guy who asked me whether the bad guys are around and I replied we've not heard anything about them; he was wearing a "Ronko" gown. We came to narrow path approaching the village, two strange men came and held my hands, and they took hold of me and tied up my hands.

I was there when they came with my uncle, (who is sitting by me now). He was fighting and I told him to keep quiet. They hit him with the gun and later pointed to one of my uncles and took him to the back of the house. Somebody pleaded on his behalf; but the commander overheard the conversation and said that if they refuse to kill him he will eliminate all of them. They drew a stick and hit him on his back. He was crying saying that they were killing him. The commando later came and asked whether they had finished with him.

He then called on Couple Blood and told him that he should cut off our ears. They came to my uncle saying that since he was fighting they would cut off his pair of ears; they did that and said that we should all laugh at what they had done. They later gave us a letter to take to Tejan Kabba. I was the only one who was brave and I told them that we must go back to Fadugu for medical treatment. We arrive at Fadugu and met the ECOMOG and they took us to the hospital but there were no drugs and the ECOMOG made a call to Kabala and we were taken to Kabala and from there to Freetown. But the doctors were not around; so we had to spend the night there. The next day, we were taken to Waterloo and later to the Aberdeen road camp. That is all I have for now.

WITNESS NAME: Kolley Sesay

REFERENCE NO: 4/150/5004

Good afternoon everybody. I heard of the war but thought it was far away. We never knew they were very close to us. We went to work for one of our brothers and we were not expecting anything like the rebels. We came back to town and heard people crying and they said that the chief's daughter had died. So, were told to go to the house and bury the child. While we were praying for the child, they were in the process of digging the grave. We buried the child and left for our own place. I was accompanied by one old man. I was leading he was behind me. But he was a little distance away from me. As we were going we met a man and he asked us where we were going? It was then that it occurred to me that the town was quiet.

Where I stood I saw a man behind me in a T-shirt and when I looked in front, the old man was far away running. I wanted to run also but I was caught by one of the men and they told me that if I dared attempt to escape they would kill me. I was taken to where the others were hemmed. They said that they were going to kill all of us. They took my brother Foday Sesay to the back of the house. He begged them and one of them said that they should not kill him. But one rebel said that if they did not kill him he will eliminate all of them. So, they had no alternative but to kill my brother.

He called on one "Couple Blood" and said that he must do his job. He started to cut our hands and later our ears. They came to me and said that since I was putting up resistance they would chop off both ears. And so they did. Then, they collected the blood and said that we must drink the blood. We drank the blood. They said that we must laugh which we did. And they wrote a letter and gave it to one of my brothers and they later released us and said that we must take the letter to Tejan Kabbah. After an hour an old man came and asked whether they had gone and he cut loose the rope and we were there crying. I told one of my brothers that we must leave and seek for help. He tried to get up but fell. I left him there and went ahead. We met the ECOMOG and they told us that there were no drugs; that we should find money to buy drugs. By then ECOMOG had made a call to Kabala and we were later brought to Freetown at Connaught and later taken to Waterloo. We were there again when the rebels entered in January 6.

Bishop Humper: Which group did this people belong to?

Mr. Alusine Turay : They were rebels.

Bishop Humper: Had the rebels visited areas around your village before?

Mr. Alusine Turay: They had never come around our village. We only used to hear that they were about some forty miles away .Then at about 2p.m. on that day, we heard that they were around our town.

Justice Marcus Jones: Were you able to bury your brother?

Mr. Alusine Turay: He was buried the next day, but my other brothers were not there because they had left for Fadugu.

Commissioner Torto: Can you tell me the name of your brother that was killed.

Mr. Alusine Turay: His name was Foday Sesay

Commissioner Torto: All of you mentioned that a letter was given to you by the rebels, can you tell us the content of the letter ?

Mr. Alusine Turay: We were all illiterates.

Mr. Kolleh Sesay : The letter in my pocket was soaked with blood, so in the morning when my relatives took it out they burnt it.

Mr. Hassan Turay: The ECOMOG soldiers read the letter given to me and they told me that the rebel had written that they are around and we should inform Kabbah about it.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify the perpetrators or has somebody told you about the perpetrators?

Mr. Hassan Turay : No

Commissioner Sooka : You all suffer from much injury, can you tell us how you feel now?

Mr. Hassan Turay : Yes. I cannot use my hands properly after some time I experience the pain all over my body.

Mr. Alusine Turay: At times I am ashamed because people are always looking at me. Even children, they sometimes run away when they see me coming. Whenever I am dressed, I have to put my hands in my pocket. I am not feeling good at all. I am appealing that you help us.

Mr. Kolleh Sesay: You see my ears, at times when people talk to me from afar, I cannot not get them properly. If I put my hands in water it gets numb; no feeling; because of the injuries sustained. We are appealing that you help us.

Prof. John Kamara : I thank you all for coming here to tell us about what these people did to you. I would like you to make things clear to me. You all are saying that you don't know the people who harmed you. But Alusine said that somebody spoke to him in Limba?

Mr. Alusine Turay: I said that he was part of them. He was the only one who spoke to me, but there were other people who spoke different languages.

Prof. John Kamara : The person who spoke Limba to you what did he do after you had been harmed?

Mr. Alusine Turay : He consoled me. I can't say he was one of them, however, when he left me he went back to town.

Mr. Ojielo: Can you remember the kind of clothes the armed men were wearing?

Mr. Kolleh Sesay : Those that held me were all dressed in black.

Mr. Hassan Turay : They were dressed in black.

Mr. Alusine Turay : The one who held me was dressed in country clothes called "Ronko".

Mr. Ojielo : Can you tell me the approximate number of armed men who attacked your village?

Mr. Kolleh Sesay: They were over 50 in number they had women with them.

Mr. Ojielo: When these people attacked, can you tell if other people were affected and did other people suffer injuries or lose properties?

Mr. Kolleh Sesay : Well, they destroyed and looted properties but I must assume that they didn't harm any woman. At a point, a woman was brought to the commando but he let her go. Our village is big; when they took over the village, ran away. They took all our clothes and properties. fairly

Mr. Ojielo: In your village, was there no real fighting between the combatant groups, were there only attacks on civilians?

Mr. Kolleh Sesay : They came from Koranko area. There is a river between our village and Koranko area. We later learnt that they killed forty people from that village. I was a farmer and with my hands chopped off, I can't work any longer.

Bishop Humper: Turay, Turay and Sesay, we've heard what you have to say and we have asked you questions. Now is your turn. Do you have any question or recommendation you may want to make to the Commission.

Mr. Hassan Turay : The government should help us but if the Commission is able to help us we will appreciate it. We were farmers but we can't farm no more. My uncle who was killed had children they are all out there with nobody to assist them. Our uncle used to care for our mother now that he is dead; we have nobody to help her. We should have been the ones to look after the family now but with our present condition, we cannot. He had two wives before but one of them has left because there is no one to care for her. Also we are appealing to you to help us with medication. In addition, we are appealing that assistance is rendered to us. So that we can engage in some form of business and be able to look after ourselves and our children.

Bishop Humper : Thank you all and we'll take into consideration all that you have told us. We have come to the end of the day. I would want to inform you that as from tomorrow, all subsequent hearings will be held at the YWCA New Hall. At this point I want to announce that we have heard testimonies as to the death of fifteen people. I now ask that we all stand up and observe a minute silence in respect of all these people..... I pray that their soul rest in perfect peace.

Hearings ended for the day at 4.45pm.

THE TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION

FREETOWN HEARINGS

DATE: 15th April 2003

COMMISSIONERS PRESENT:

1. Bishop Joseph C. Humper [Chairman]
2. Justice Laura Marcus-Jones
3. William Schabas Presiding
4. Satang Jow
5. Sylvanus Torto
6. Prof. John Kamara

WITNESS NAME: Sahr Orlando Gbekie

WITNESS NO: 006

REFERENCE NO: 3/150/4405

Professor William Schabas welcomed all to the hearings and introduced the commissioners. He called on the audience to give opening prayers. A Muslim prayer was said by Mohamed Alhajie Samura. Christian prayer was done by Mrs Bondu Manyeh. A chorus was sung by all : “Tell papa God tenki”. Sahr Gbekie was sworn on oath.

TESTIMONY:

I am Sahr Gbekie. I reside at Babadorie Lumley. I am a retired police officer and I am married to Rebecca Gbekie. We had 7 children and 4 are alive. On the the 6TH January 1999, rebels entered the city. I was seated with my family when my son, Tamba Pujeh Gbeki, 20 years old produced the examination papers with which he sat to class examination at the Technical Institute Congo Cross on the 4th of January 1999. My daughter Kumba Gbeki, she was staying at Leona Hotel Wilberforce Street, Freetown, with her husband. On the 7th they rang us and told me that the rebels had entered the hotel, shot one inmate dead and they were now frightened out in the street. On the 8th, the rebels took them out to say 'We want Peace' in the street. They were among several thousands of inmates to say 'We want peace'.

When we heard this information from them on the telephone, my son Tamba Gbeki, said to us; me and his mother; that he was going to look out for his sister at Leona Hotel. By then ECOMOG and some CDF Kamajors had occupied the West end part of the city. He went to Leona Hotel. That day he did not come back this way again, because no civilian would have entered this end because the war was just at the bridge – Congo Bridge. He told us later that he managed to go to Thunder Hill, to his aunty – my wife's elder sister. We all stayed in that period of confusion, not knowing what must have happened to him. But when the rebels RUF entered Kissy and abducted Bishop Ganda, Tamba Gbeki and his aunty were just neighbours to Bishop Ganda; they all fled to different directions. The aunty came down to us at Babadorie, with her entire family and told us that she had been staying with Tamba, at Kissy but since the rebels had abducted Bishop Ganda, everybody fled in different directions.

We continued praying. On the 22nd January 1999, one of my nephews Charles Macarthy came to us and said T-boy was on his way. We were all happy and we prayed and indeed he came home. Not too long after we had given him soap and everything to wash, I saw one ECOMOG soldier, Cpl. Yusuf Salifu, a Nigerian ECOMOG and one SLA called Carew aka. Gibo, who was attached to one businessman as security guard around us. They came into my compound and demanded Tamba. That was around 5pm 22nd January. Then all the family members, the mother, the aunt, the sisters, we came out. I questioned Why?. He said T boy had passed their check point which was about sixty yards away from my house, without being searched. They took him away. The mother, Mrs, Rebeka Gbeki, Kumba Ngeba, (seated by me) and my other daughter Agnes Gbeki, Vice President Fourah Bay College Student Union rushed to the ECOMOG base. They were prevented from reaching the base. They returned crying.

Later the SLA soldier came back and told me that T-boy was his classmate at St. Edwards Secondary School, but when they searched him they found cocaine in his shoe; thereby he was arrested and taken to Wilberforce guardroom. Well it's terrible. The family all gathered around me. I told them that we must put everything into prayers. Around 7 pm, Gibo the SLA and another SSD officer entered our parlour; they were smoking Cannabis Sativa – diamba. They had their AK 47 ready for action. They asked all of us to come out and sit on the floor of the parlour. That was terrible. I had children that were 7 and 8 years old around me. They were frightened when they saw the AK 47 with them. They said T-boy had given them information that he brought dollars for us, therefore they were coming to search my house. They were there, they told me not to answer telephone, told me to sit on the floor. Then I said, 'No, this is my house. If you want to kill me you can do so, but I'm sure Christ is with me. Up to 9pm, no re-enforcement came. They asked me to list down the names of the family members in the house. We were over thirty. I listed it down, gave them one copy and kept the other one. They said they were coming at 7 am the following day. And really on the 23rd January 1999 they came, started searching, went into my wardrobe. They went into the ceiling, but there was nothing to find. They asked my wife and I to go to their checkpoint to make statements. Rebeka and I left with their guns pointed at us. Just about reaching up the street, then they asked me in Krio -“Pa wi nor se nar tin. Wetin yu go do fu fri yu sef.’ I took them home; and gave them Le 30,000. They left me.

By then T-boy was already in detention with ECOMOG at Wilberforce Barracks. On 24th January, we had a telephone call and T-boy spoke to us. We asked him 'where are you?' He said:” I'm here at Wilberforce Guardroom”. To confirm that, I spoke with one ECOMOG officer again on the telephone. He said we must send him food, medicine and some clothes. The mother did that on the 24th and again on the 25th. News reached T-boy while in detention, that my neighbours, particularly the family of John Massaquoi whom I'm sharing a fence with, were alarm calls to the ECOMOG officers on the phone that T-boy was a rebel and said that he was with them at Wilberforce. On the 27th, T-boy told me, that he's heard in his detention that my neighbours, especially John Massaquoi and family had threatened the ECOMOG officers on the phone that Tamba was a rebel and if the mother continued taking food to them, they would report to Maxwell Khobe that they were siding with collaborators. Then I said to my wife, “Don't ever go there again.” She stopped going there on the 26th.

On the 28th January 1999 around 12pm we were in the house. We saw T-boy enter the compound. We gave him soap to wash and we started taking care of the wounds. Then Mrs. Jenny Massaquoi stood out in the street and started shouting 'Oona cam o rebel don cam; Tboy nar rebel'. She called out the youths, the kamajors were around and she called out to them. They came and started firing in the air in my compound. Then ECOMOG also came. They said to them: 'You took this boy away on the 22nd and today we have seen him'. Then ECOMOG Corporal Salifu Yusuf, some CDF and the Kamajors who were around took T-boy on the 28th January 1999. We didn't know where they took him to -7 pm on 28th January 1999, I received a phone call. Somebody called me that they have released T-boy - 7 pm. Then I cautioned the caller; 'you know curfew is 6 pm, if you release T-boy, you are sending him now to John Massaquoi and his agents. By 9 pm we were all seated, when one or two youths came down to my house they said "Pa you sidom den don chap T-boy nar dory road to Lumley, den don set tyre pan am'. That was terrible. When they asked me to go that night, perhaps my wife and I would have been the first target. So, we didn't go. On the morning of the 29th youths and some kamajors were all spread along the street, with my neighbours if some of us had gone out they would have said 'den nar rebel, nar collaborator'. We somehow managed and went to find the site. Where they had indicated, the site was completely cleaned up overnight. That was a heavy burden to my family. I telephoned my daughter in London and she said we must pack up and go away. She sent money, I went to immigration, renewed my wife's and Kumba's passports took police clearance and allowed them to cross over to Lungi on 3rd February. .

On the 3rd of February, the responsible Kono elder, chief Ngeba, a neighbour called and told me that if my wife and I did not leave my house in three days, something terrible will happen to both of us. He said John Massaquoi gave him that information. With the little money I had collected from my daughter I had managed to get them out of the country. On the 6th of February, I had my country cloth around me at 7 O'clock in the morning and with slippers in my verandah, when one of John Massaquoi's Kamajors and two ECOMOG officers entered my compound. One of the ECOMOG officers was holding a list in his hand. He said, 'who is S O Gbeki?' I said 'I am'. He asked for my wife, 'who is Rebeka Gbeki?' Then, I said she was not in the compound and she was not in Sierra Leone'. John jumped up and said I was telling lies and that he saw Rebeka yesterday night. They conducted their usual search. Based on the information three of us, including one Fatmata Kalawa my niece, were on the ECOMOG list to be arrested that morning. I told them that Fatmata Kalawa was at Malama. Before we crossed the streets to go into the ECOMOG Land rover, I saw John Massaquoi and the ECOMOG officer with a handset. I was taken into the vehicle and we went to Malama in search of my niece Fatmata Kalawa. The house was surrounded with ECOMOG officers. In that terrified manner, they took us to Hill Station; to one of their security checkpoints. We were locked up from 10am. 5pm in the evening, they sent one CID officer to take statements from us. They asked me to make a statement. When I asked why the officer told me that they had information that my son T-boy was a commando, they were in the bush fighting. He was not prepared to disclose the source of information to me. I was very composed that evening and told the officer that whosoever must have told him had lied to him that my son was an SLA, Kamajor or RUF; my son was a student. I gave him all this background in my statement. He also obtained statement from my niece Fatmata Kalawa.

When on the 6th of February, the statement was taken up to the Captain, the senior ECOMOG officer; he came down and met me in the cell. He said that I was telling lies and that my son had confessed to them that he was a rebel. But I asked: 'Where is this son now?' He was killed on the 28th of January 1999 and you don't expect me to lie". By the time they took me to their detention I had managed to get into my room quickly, took my discharge card from the Police. I had a photograph of me in my police uniform, T-boy's passport, all his documents, and my passport. "See all these documents. I am not lying to you. I served this country for thirty eight years 1957 -95 when I was retired as Superintendent of Police". Then he said we must go home at 6 pm. Then I said "Officer, curfew is at 6 O'clock; I don't mind sleeping here. Let me not be another victim as my son". As a result of my statement as well as the evidences that I had provided in support of my position and what I told him about curfew, he provided their vehicle and escort to bring us to Babadorie. He said I must report the following day, on Sunday. Sunday he sent his vehicle for me. Then in my mind I started realizing that they had begun to take another look at the facts. The two days I visited their security post they asked me not to report again.

On the 9th February, at 9pm we heard some noise at John's compound. They were saying that they were going to burn down my house – 'We go burn am, we go burn this house today'. Then I alerted my boys in the compound that all of us should take positions with sticks. But that could not have given me much help. I used the telephone and called the ECOMOG commander and some other people that I could access. Well, we did not sleep that night and our house was not burnt down. Around 8.30 the following morning 10th February, I saw a group of people entering my compound – ECOMOG included. The person who was heading the group introduced himself as Mr. James Allie, the then Secretary to the President and said that he had heard all that has happened to me and he consoled me. He went to John's house but he was not there. He consoled me saying the situation was getting better and that the Police and ECOMOG were now functioning better. That anyone who disturbs our peace as from then on, we must seek immediate redress from the Police and ECOMOG. He warned all the CDF who were seated by the border junction leading to my house.

From the 10th of February there was some relief for my family. It was a blessing that I used the telephone in the name of God, because we couldn't have done much with sticks or any other thing if God had not intervened in the matter. I had been in my house for 22 years and my neighbour John Massaquoi came around in 1987. We had been so close; sharing everything in common. Although they carried no weapons I considered them as people whose statements brought about my son's death. On the 9th April 2000, my daughter (who sent me money from London) died there, so I travelled to London with my wife Rebeka. As a lady she was uncomfortable to come home being that my only son was killed. So she decided to stay in London. I decided to come home and say the truth, as I am doing today. I know if we had made it very secretive, without the public knowing what happened, the son who is today in another world would continue to torment us; because it would have been a burden. When you have something to say and you don't say it, it is a load. Today I am sure the international body that helped organised this and who helped us greatly in Sierra Leone and within our own Sierra Leonean society, my mind and that of my family is free. Why we are saying that, and I am giving evidence in the open, is that we have something common in Sierra Leone that when somebody is asking for forgiveness, you must see the other side and then if T-boy had not ever come back to us and John Massaquoi and family had never used such statement as to lead to the death of my son, I would not have bothered so much. But we are very close like the two glasses sitting down; it's just a common wall. We are saying the truth. What capacity has the commission to refer some of these to neighbours who are very close to bring peace and reconciliation? If you don't know the person who burns your house then that it is the war. My family is scattered all over, some in America, Banjul, London, we thank God that we are alive today and this is my humble statement before the commission. I thank you all.

Professor Schabas : Thank you very much for that statement. You have spoken to us very frankly about your feelings and you have a story of terribly personal suffering. I want to express on behalf of my colleagues, the fact that we share your grief at the loss of your son and we also very appreciate your comments on this difficult problems of reconciliation. I am going to ask my colleagues if they have any questions for you.

Justice Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for sharing your experience with us. A horrible one and we are sorry that you had to go through such an ordeal. Very bold of you and patriotic of you to come here to tell of what happened. What worries me is what could have been the cause of such hatred on the part of your neighbours. Do you know of any reasons why they hated you so much?

Mr. Gbeki : This is not to my knowledge. As I said, we used to do things in common. We were surprised that they had to go that length. If they were Christians or Muslims they would have come to me and my wife and said, your son has done us so much; so we could amend. But I do not know.

Justice Marcus Jones: Thank you we are sorry again about your loss.

Commissioner Torto Thank you very much Mr. Gbeki. I admire your courage for relating this kind of gruesome experience with the commission and the public in general. I just have a couple of clarifications that I would want you to make for me. Since you went through this terrible ordeal did you take this matter up by any other means concerning John Massaquoi?

Mr. Gbekie: Considering the 28th January 1999 and what was very very prevalent in Sierra Leone community – was to classify somebody as collaborator so you dare not go to anybody to complain, 'nar so den do me' so then commissioner, I did not.

Commissioner Torto: Can you tell us where Gibo is at present?

Mr. Gbekie : He was an SLA at that time, 1999. He is Carew alias Gibo. He was attached to a business man called Foday Sayenu. But I don't know his whereabouts. The ECOMOG was Corp. Yusuf Salifu. I don't know their whereabouts Commissioner Torto: Would you know the present whereabouts of Jane and John Massaquoi.

Mr. Gbeki : I said we still continue to live as neighbours

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much

Bishop Humper : I was listening to all what you said; I want to know whether John Massaquoi has children and if they had been interacting with T-boy?

Mr. Gbekie : Yes chairman. T-boy lives very much with John Massaquoi's children particularly the elder son; Junior. Junior used to stay with T-boy when things were very difficult in their house.

Bishop Humper : Would you like us to contact this man John Massaquoi ?

Mr. Gbekie: I have given my evidence. I have indicated that we are neighbours. If that suits the Commission you can go ahead and invite him; I have given my evidence in the open.

Commissioner Jow: Thank you very much for your statement. We have listened very carefully to what you have said, and we know as Sylvanus had said you are a truth patriot and that is why you stayed on so that this point in time you could come and give us your statement publicly. I just want a point of clarification. You have said in your statement that your family is abroad except for your daughter who is sitting by you. I want to know whether your family wants to come back and join in the reconciliation process?

Mr. Gbekie: Commissioner, when somebody leaves here on a personal accord to go to America, London, coming back ... To me having said it in the open, I have done so on their behalf – the Gbeki family and when they call me I'll say I've said it and we'll put it behind us. Having a refugee status does not matter, it is the mind and I will communicate with them that I have said what happened.

Professor Kamara : Thank you very much. I want to join my colleagues in appreciating what you have done. We know you have suffered terribly and therefore it has not been very easy for you to tell us what you have told us .But we need to pursue this matter and ask you a number of questions for clarification. I am particularly interested in one issue - the issue of your protection. I want to know, since you told us that from the beginning more or less you had information to contact higher authorities and you did; I want to know what held you up from the beginning until very late. Why did you did not contact those people you contacted and save your life to have saved your son?

Mr. Gbekie: The thing happened as I said simultaneously. On the 8th of January my child left in search of his sister. On the 22nd he came back and they said he was a rebel. They took him ECOMOG and others. He was released on the 28th he came back. On that same day Jenny Massaquoi and others alarmed that he was a rebel. The same day they arrested him and that same night he was killed. I was arrested on 6th February. On 9th February, they said they would burn my house. Then I knew by that time I should make reference to ... by telephone authorities, to use telephone. And that was the only opportunity I had; I used the telephone. And it yielded some blessing for me when Mr. James Alie the then Secretary to President came to my compound on the tenth and consoled me. Since then nobody has disturbed my peace. Before then I couldn't have dared report the matter to ECOMOG or Police. If I had gone to the Police, my evidence would have been bordered on circumstantial evidence to say that this family used words. So on those circumstances, my son died and I am now connecting them to that.

- Mr. Ojielo: I have a few questions to help the commission get a full picture of what happened to you and your family. Do you think you and your family were targeted?
- Mr. Gbemie : Perhaps they considered that. My wife and I were married in 1964. She is Limba and I am a Kono. I don't know, perhaps.
- Mr. Ojielo: Those that came and attacked your family and killed your son, were they of one particular ethnic group or was it a multiplicity of groups?
- Mr. Gbemie : I cannot say because the uniform people were around, ECOMOG, CDF; I cannot tell.
- Mr Ojielo : But like the CDF people that came and attacked your family, the commanders of that group, did you know them before?
- Mr. Gbemie: I am relying on their agent the Massaquoi family, John Massaquoi and his wife because they invited them – 'oona cam o rebel don cam'. They had no need to go to my house, if they had not told them we were rebels.
- Mr. Ojielo: Would you say that Mr. Massaquoi was a CDF or one of the officers of the CDF ?
- Mr. Gbemie: I know he is my neighbour. I don't know, maybe he has some double role: I cannot tell.
- Mr. Ojielo : Before then was he an influential person in the neighbourhood?
- Mr. Gbemie: Very much. We usually visited each other. It was only because of that incident that I raised my fence up a little so they could no longer see what goes on in my compound, because I need to protect myself.

Mr. Ojielo: Do you then have any idea how the CDF was organised in your area for example?

Mr. Gbekie: What happened was that everybody became a watchdog. They had their checkpoint, calling themselves CDF. It was not under any organised body: The one that I know of and that was operating in Freetown in January to February. They youths in certain areas will converge at certain area burning tyres at night; they usually said that they were there to keep watch.

Mr. Ojielo: They were not reporting to anybody like the leaders in the community ?

Mr. Gbeki: I don't. Know. At times they come to us and as elders we give them token and encourage them to keep watch.

Mr. Ojielo : Were there other persons in your neighbourhood who also were harassed by these same youths.

Mr. Gbeki: Quite a number, but I will not name them. Everybody has his own story.

Mr. Ojielo: The commission is interested in knowing as many of these people as possible because when they come and tell stories to the commission or give testimony they give the commission a clear picture of what people went through.

Mr. Gbeki: Chairman, when I am on oath and my statement is there I say things for the benefit of all present but it is not my business to say Mr. A B C was arrested. No.

Mr. Ojielo: One final question if you don't mind. You said the secretary to the President came to your house, and then warned those boys to stop disturbing your peace and since then they have never bothered you again? Will it then be right to say in terms of control they were reporting to government?

Mr. Gbeki: I can't tell.

Professor Schabas: It's now your turn. Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Mr. Gbekie: They say Truth and Reconciliation and I made mention about that earlier. Where the victims are alive, and the perpetrators are alive, and they all seem to be living together, how could the Truth and Reconciliation bring them together ?

Professor Schabas: It is our objective as much as possible and these hearings in particular and the Truth Commission to provide a forum for victims and perpetrators to come together and we will endeavour to the extent possible to see that process take place in your particular case.

Mr. Gbeki: That's all from me; thank you very much, if you've finished with me

Professor Schabas: Thank you again for coming. You've made a very important contribution to our work and one that I think help the whole process over the months to come. I thank you again

DATE: 15TH April 2003

WITNESS NAME: MORLAI BIZO CONTEH

WITNESS NO: 007

REFERENCE NO: 1/151/1134

Morlai Bizo Conteh was called to take an oath before the hearings, and was also asked to identify himself.

Professor Schabas : Welcome to the TRC. I understand that you have a testimony to give to us about victimization that you personally suffered in 1999.

TESTIMONY;

I have come here to tell what they did to me in 1993. My name is Morlai Bizo Conteh, I am here to testify what happened to me. I was a businessman residing at 2 Leah Street and my mother was a nursing sister in Koidu Town. I wrote her a letter telling her that we had been apart for a long time. She invited me to visit her in Kono and in April 1993 I decided to pay her a visit in Kono. I bade farewell to my sister and my younger brother and told them that I was going to visit my mother in Kono.

On my way going, we fell in an ambush at Giaya town. I had in possession my bag which contained some money and my credentials. I had over a hundred and fifty thousand Leones in my pocket. We were detained and they told me that I had fallen into an ambush and should not move any further. When the rebel saw that I was trembling, they thought I was going to put up some resistance. He got hold of my throat and held on tightly to it. One of the rebels who was in military fatigue and who was also having a cutlass hit my hand seriously and chopped off the right arm. The arm did not fall off completely but hanged dangling. I bled profusely and fell unconscious. When I regained consciousness, some people came to my rescue and asked me my name and address. I told them and that I was going to see my mother in Kono. They took me to 8 Koribondu Street Kono - the residence of my mother. She was could not believe her eyes when she saw me and collapsed. After recovering, I told her that it was because of the promise that's why she was seeing me. I was treated traditional herbs and later taken to the hospital. A doctor in Koidu told us that no matter what they did to my hands it will not be cured.

I was taken to the Makeni (Arab) Hospital for a surgical operation where they cut off my hand. After a while I returned to Freetown to see my brothers and sisters. They consoled me until now that I have had the opportunity to come and testify in this commission.

Professor Schabas : Thank you for your testimony. May I ask you a question to clarify – the date when this happened was it in 1995 or 1993?

Mr. Conteh : 1993

Professor Schabas : The other victims of the ambush are they still alive, do you know?

Mr. Conteh: I was unconscious. I didn't know what was happening.

Professor Schabas: I want to tell you how much we sympathise with what you've suffered since this terrible attack and I understand that you continue to suffer. You have all our sympathies.

Commissioner Sooka: I would like to ask you some questions for clarity. Could you tell us before you became unconscious how many of you were in this group?

Mr. Conteh: I can't say

Commissioner Sooka: You said in your statement that it was the rebels. Can you tell us how you came to know that it was the rebels? How did you identify them ?

Mr. Conteh: At that time there were no soldiers around, also taking into account their manner of dressing. No one was dressed in military attire.

Commissioner Sooka : Can you tell me what they said to you when they chopped off your hand. You mentioned it in your statement but you haven't said it in your evidence.

Mr. Conteh: I can't recall that they said anything to us in the vehicle but the moment we alighted the vehicle (on their orders) they only told us that we had fallen in an ambush.

Commissioner Sooka : Can you remember the number of people that attacked you?

Mr. Conteh: The person who stopped the vehicle was not the same person who chopped my hand. Not long after we heard heavy gunshots

Commissioner Sooka : When you heard gun shots how many people do you think were around firing these shots?

Mr. Conteh: I can't tell..

Commissioner Torto: Having told your story may actually have got rid of the psychological impact you may have had by now. I just wanted you to clarify whether you could remember the people that did these things to you?

Mr. Conteh: It was an unexpected attack. I cannot remember, because it had taken a long time now; most times I have not been well, that's why I was even late today.

Commissioner Torto: During the incidence, you did not remember any name being called either?

Mr. Conteh: No, they only told us that they were rebels.

Commissioner Jow: Thank you Mr. Conteh for telling us your story. We are very sorry for what happened to you during the conflict. According to your story, you were travelling from Freetown to Koidu and you were stopped at the checkpoint? We all know the distance to Koidu is very long; can you tell us at what point in the journey, near what village for instance or town this attack took place?

Mr. Conteh: I was not conversant with the area, but I was told that it was Ngaya

Commissioner Jow: You said you were a businessman, do you think you were targetted because of your profession?

Mr. Conteh: I don't want to believe that.

Bishop Humper: Morlai, we thank you for coming; your testimony is one revealing some many things that had happened in our country. There are a few things we want you to clarify for us. Firstly, I want to know whether your mother is still alive?

Mr. Conteh: Yes, she is still alive

Bishop Humper: Are you the lone child or are there many of you ?

Mr. Conteh: We are five in all, but I am responsible for two and the others are with our mother.

Bishop Humper : When the rebels amputated your arm and gave you a letter saying ' go and give the government, which govt did they refer to ?

Mr. Conteh : NPRC GOVERNMENT

Bishop Humper : Do you have any idea or any inkling why they asked you to go and give the government ?

Mr. Conteh: They didn't say anything about that that I should go and tell the government anything.

Professor Kamara : I want to thank you too. I hope you will answer at least one question from me. Our records here don't seem to be complete about the identity of the people who caused you this harm. We don't know their ethnic group – the tribe they belonged to, but you repeatedly told us they were saying things to you or at least to your group. In what language were they saying these things to you?

Mr. Conteh : I was unconscious for a long time. I can't remember.

Professor Kamara : When they stopped you they said you had fallen into an ambush. In what language did they tell you that?

Mr. Conteh : The one who held me was not the one who told us we had fallen into an ambush but those who had surrounded us. They spoke in krio.

Abdulai Charm : Thank you Mr. Conteh. I know you were unconscious when this thing happened to you but were you able to tell after you gained consciousness if anything happened to any of those with whom you were travelling?

Mr. Conteh : I can't say that they chopped off their arms but they too were also running away from the vehicle. However, I can say that they held me because they saw me with a heavy bag.

Professor Schabas: We are happy that you've come to testify openly about what happened and for being so cooperative and for clarifying these questions. It is now your turn. Do you have any questions or requests that you would like to make of the TRC?

Mr. Conteh: I want to know whether they have any help for me or just to testify of my experience and ordeal.

Professor Schabas: The Truth Commission is in a position to make recommendations to the government. Your experience and your testimony can contribute to those recommendations. Do you want us to make any particular recommendations in your case? Do you have anything that you think we should recommend to the government ?

Mr. Conteh : I want the government to assist me financially because I now depend on my friends to sustain me , also there is no business for me and my sister who was giving me an helping hand is no longer doing business. My brother is no longer going to school.

Professor Schabas : Thank you Mr. Conteh, do you have anything else that you would like to say today?

Mr. Conteh: I have nothing more to say.

Professor Schabas: I wish to thank you again on behalf of the TRC. Your participation in this process is extremely important and we appreciate it very much,thank you.

LEADERS OF EVIDENCE:

1. Mr. Ozonnia Ojiello
2. Ms. Martien Schotsmans
3. Mr. Abdul Charm

Justice Marcus - Jones greeted everyone and asked everybody to stand for the opening prayer.

Firstly, the Muslim prayer was led by one of the witnesses. The Christian prayer was said by another witness. The chorus, "I have a very big God" was sung; Mrs. Manyeh led the audience in the singing.

Marcus Jones welcomed everybody on behalf of the Commission and said that a witness would be called upon to give a testimony and that the witness was free to ask questions and make recommendations; and that at the end of the hearings the commission would write a report in which such recommendations would be included.

TESTIMONY

The witness, a Muslim, was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner.

Testimony

Ishmeal: {He started by thanking the Almighty Allah In Arabic}. This war destroyed us. People were targeted in that during the war. People who were fortunate or had made it were those that were hated and targeted. After I graduated from Magburaka in 1993, I started teaching at Mile 91. The war spread to Mile 91 and this led to the closure of all the schools. We went to our village and started swamp farming. Rebels attacked us and burnt down the village.

At that time, whenever we got news about rebels we would run away. The rebels came to our village and crowned a man as town commander and a woman as town lady. The people in the other village had registered with the rebels. Before that, we used to get information whenever rebels were about to attack. However, since the people in the other village registered with the rebels we got information no more. We began to face surprise attacks now and then. They called on the town commander and the town lady and asked that some men and women be given to them so that they could launch attacks on other villages. People were running here and there when they learnt that rebels were on the way.

I saw a rebel who pointed a gun at me and threatened to shoot me if I moved. I was scared and I dropped my bicycle and they said that they were going to take me away, "In fact, we are going to kill you" they said. They took me away with them and when the people saw me they asked me what had happened, since most of them knew me in that village; my sisters were married there. They gave some of the looted items to me to carry for them. Since I was popular in the village, the rebels said they were not going to give me a body guard; I was left to carry the load alone. The load was heavy, so I had to drop a bag of bulgur in the bush.

One of them beckoned to me to run away, and told me that they were planning to take me to their base, so I should escape. I did not want to take any chances as I was so afraid of the consequences of any failure. However, I managed to escape. Two days later, I returned to the village and went to the place where I had hidden the bag of bulgur so that I could collect it. At that time there was no food in the village except that when vehicles passed by the village, they dropped this bulgur for us. As I was passing by, one of their agents saw me and asked me about the bag that I was carrying. He asked whether it was rice and I said that it was bulgur. He claimed that I had stolen a bag of rice from the rebels and said that he was going to report the matter to the rebels if I did not buy him a bag of rice. He reported the matter to the commander.

The commander sent for me and said that if I refused to go they would burn down our village. My father sent for his brothers and lodged the complaint that his son had been sent for by the rebels and that he was afraid he would be killed if he went there. My father said that since that village was full of rebels he, being an older man, would rather go and plead with them and if they would not agree, he would rather die in my place. During the rainy season I had to run away, by then all the rebels knew me so I had to run to Freetown, I had not been paid for about four months.

When the rebels came, my head teacher's child was killed, and since he could not withstand the situation he had to run away. When he came back, I was putting up a structure on a plot of land which had been allocated to both of us and he saw that I had had to face a lot of suffering for water. He advised that I use the school tap. The boys who were voluntarily in charge of the tap refused to allow me use the tap which they had locked. We had a serious row; my headmaster and I versus the boys. They called my headmaster a rebel and called the kamajors on him. They were trying to drag him to Kebbay's compound, and if he had gone there he would have been killed; so I shouted out to Mr. Kanu not to go along with them.

I advised that we should go to the junction or an ECOMOG base and make a report. The other man hit me with the shovel which I was working with, on my head and they started shouting: "Rebels, rebels". None of our people came to our rescue because of fear of being considered accomplices. They continued shouting until an old man who is currently in the camp met us and identified us as teachers. He said that we were his teachers and asked them about where they were taking us. They replied by saying that we were rebels. I thought they were taking us to the ECOMOG base; instead they took us to the Kamajors. Then the old man said that where ever they took us, even if it meant killing us, he would go with us. They warned him not to come along with us, and that if he did, they would kill him. He responded by saying that that was what he wanted. The old man reminded the Kamajors that it was they who contributed their monies to ensure that they were initiated and now they wanted turn against them. The old man said that he would not budge and that where ever we were taken, he would go with us.

The headmaster and I were brought before their commander; all the false allegations were taken to their boss, they even referred to witnesses, including teachers of the school, to testify that Mr. Kanu was a rebel. It was then that that old man stood up and said that Mr. Kanu was not a rebel and that he had been the head master since that camp was built. He further stated that Mr. Kanu's child was killed when the rebels came and that they even burnt down his house. They wanted him dead because they were envious of his position. The commander investigated the matter thoroughly and warned against toying with people's lives, because life has no spare. He also stated that whosoever was proven to be a rebel would be killed.

After this point the old man left the scene to attend a meeting and promised to come back after the meeting. They then turned round and said that the head master was not a rebel; that I was the rebel. They then turned on me and started beating me with sticks, kicking me and punishing me in various ways. According to them, they did those things to me because I had interfered in their attempt to deal with the head master. They even used guns to beat me up. I became helpless and could not even move. They forced me to walk on even though I could not walk properly, and threatened to kill me if I refused. One of the kamajors called out to me and asked me whether I knew him, he stated that it was their group that had burnt down '91, and he said his name was "After the war" but that he had become a Kamajor.

They eventually released me but by that time my legs could hardly carry me, luckily I was able to get a car which took me to Freetown. When I got to Freetown I explained my dreadful ordeal to my brother who said he had nothing to do about it because at that time there was no where to lodge such complaints and everyone was afraid of being in conflict with the kamajors. We had Carew who was our brother but he was by then working on the side of the Government in pursuit of peace. We then decided to take the matter to the mosque for special prayers. Nothing came out of it. The people who tortured me are my neighbours, and whenever I see them I feel unhappy. The Youth Reintegration Training and Education for Peace taught us to forgive since to fight with someone who has wronged you would lead to an endless war.

We could have used fetish practices to make such offenders go mad, but God has asked us to wait for him to fight for us. At one time a kamajor gave my brother's children loads to carry. It was approaching curfew time so my brother could not leave his children to go alone, so he went with them. When they got to their destination they asked my brother and his kids out, and at that time curfew hour was on. They forced them out and as they came into the streets they were arrested by soldiers and ECOMOG and locked up to be killed the next day. My brother told them that he was not a rebel and that he had a store at Guard Street and that the kids were his children, but the ECOMOG were still reluctant to release my brother and his children. But when the people at the stadium saw him; they all recognised him, and they confirmed that he was the owner of a store at Guard Street and that he was not a rebel. That was when they released him.

Justice Marcus Jones: Thank you very much for sharing with us all those bitter experiences. We believe that having said all these, you are feeling a little better and a little relieved. Now, the commissioners will ask you some questions just for clarification.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming to testify before the commission and for sharing your experience with the commission. I just want you to make one or two clarifications for me. The people you had this incident with whom you describe as kamajors, did you, before the time of your capture, have any animosity with them?

Mr. Bangura: I had no fracas with them, but I understand that there was a quarrel between them in the school.

Commissioner Torto: Between whom?

Mr. Bangura : When the head teacher left that school and transferred to another school, the school which he built close to the school which he had left was the source of the problem; they said that he should not have built a school just by the school which he had left. but he said that we were displaced persons and that if we were lucky to have assistance from the Arabs, that was for the good of our children. That fracas continued until police from the barracks had to intervene; they said that it was right to build another school there. I was not there.

Commissioner Torto: What brought about all this misunderstanding, who was actually in control before?

Mr. Bangura: The original care taker was killed, so it was controlled by anyone; volunteers.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Jow: Ishmael, thank you for your testimony. You did mention somebody you called a Mende Pa who intervened on your behalf. Can you tell us his name and why he acted the way he did?

Mr. Bangura: The Pa is in the camp and he is a generator mechanic. His name is Pa Jasper. He is a member of the school. He would have been the head master, but because he studied French which is not a major area here, that was why he did not become the head master. He is currently in the camp.

Commissioner Jow: O.K. one more question for clarification Ishmael. In your testimony, you said your head master; Mr. Kanu did not have the support of the teachers in the school. Can you tell us why?

Mr. Bangura: When the incident took place, most people had fled and if they said that you were a rebel people would not come closer for fear that they would be killed. The head master was the only brave man who stayed behind

Commissioner Jow: Thank you.

Ms.Schotsmans: Are you still living in the same neighbourhood or in the same camp as Mr.Maxwell and Mr. Gallo?

Mr. Bangura: Yes, We live in the same camp.

Ms. Schotsmans: And you said that every time when you see them you feel bad?

Mr. Bangura: Yes, because the pain which I have now, I am always with medicine. There times when he greets me I reply, there times when he greets me I do not reply; there times when I see him I turn my back; I don't even want to meet him on the road..

Ms Schotsmans: Did you ever have an occasion to sit down with him, or did anyone organize a meeting where the three of you could sit down and talk about what had happened?

Mr. Bangura: To bring us together is not the problem, but whenever I see him I feel bad; had it not been for the TRC and that the war will continue... because the way in which I currently feel the pain...

Ms.Schotsmans: Would you like the TRC to invite those people?

Mr. Bangura: To call them... to all what I have said, there is a witness in the camp right now, they are all in the camp. One of them was with us, he was the first to give his statement as regards his child who was killed; he was not beaten, I was the only one who was beaten. Should they call me and call him now, the only thing which will happen is to beg; I want to surrender everything to for the world hereafter, but should they call us, I have no qualms with that. But should they give me a hundred or two hundred thousand Leones, I will not take it because that will not satisfy me.

- Ms Schotsmans: Can you tell the commission their complete names, please?
- Mr. Bangura : One of them is Maxwell, the other one is Kolo.
- Ms. Schotsmans: Would you know their complete names?
- Mr. Bangura: I can't tell you because our relationship has now gone sour. I was not beaten up by them but they caused me to be beaten up.
- Ms. Schotsmans : Thank you very much for sharing your experience with us.
- Justice Marcus Jones : Do you have any question for the Commission?
- Mr. Bangura: Yes. (1) People who come to TRC to give testimonies are they supposed to be in charge of transportation?
- Marcus Jones: TRC is willing to collect witnesses and bring them to this venue and will even help in other ways.
- Mr.Bangura: Will TRC be able to give medications or not?
- Justice Marcus Jones: TRC cannot give out tablets but could refer you to the briefer who will direct you to areas where tablets could be given to you.
- Mr. Bangura: Something which should be done is that TRC should organize the hearings in the Provinces to be done according to sections because of transportation.
- Justice Marcus Jones: Hearing will be held in Freetown for 2 weeks, and then we will move to the provinces. So, it will be between the Provinces and Freetown. Reports will be produced, at the end of the entire process.

Bishop Humper: Tell your brothers and sisters not to be afraid to come and testify because even in the provinces transportation will be made available for witnesses.

WITNESS NAME: ISATU KAMARA

WITNESS NO:

REFERENCE NO:

OATH: The witness, a Muslim, was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner.

Justice Marcus Jones: So Isatu, we are all listening to you, tell us what happened to you.

TESTIMONY:

ISATU: I was born at Fogbo. My mother's name is Amie Kamara. She took me to Masiaka, when I was just a little eight year old girl. My mother had gone to sell her wares on the day the village was attacked. My mother escaped. They gathered us together and locked us in a room, and they started taking us out one after the other. Some had their ears cut off; some had their arms cut off. There was a pregnant woman whose stomach was split open; the child died and she also died. They came to me; they took me, out stretched my foot and cut it off with a cutlass. I fainted, I went unconscious.

Later, a government vehicle had to take me to town, and they brought me to Connaught hospital where they attended to me. Having attended to me, I was there for quite some time. I was later discharged, and I went to the village. The village was also attacked soon after my arrival (less than a month). We went to the other side. Where we went into hiding, we suffered a lot: water was difficult to get. We were there for quite some time; I misplaced my hospital card. This is my testimony. I do not have much to say because I was quite young then. Otherwise, I would have remembered and said more. There was a woman who was called Aminata Bangura, together we were victims. She was residing then at 5 ECOWAS Street, but she is doesn't live there any more; I do not know where she lives at present.

Justice Marcus Jones: We thank you very much Isatu, for relaying to us the very sad experience that you had which has left you with disability. We will now go on to ask you questions; just questions to clear some points and to help us write an accurate report.

Professor Kamara: Isatu Kamara, Good morning. We thank you very much for this statement you have given to the commission. The commissioners sympathize with you. You told us that after you were discharged from Connaught Hospital you went to a village, what village is that ?

Miss Kamara: Fogbo.

Professor Kamara: That is where you are living right now?

Miss Kamara: Yes.

Professor Kamara: What are you doing now for a living?

Miss Kamara: I am not doing anything.

Professor Kamara: Well, how are you supported?

Miss Kamara: My brother is there

Professor Kamara: What is your brother doing?

Miss Kamara: My brother is not doing anything

Professor Kamara: Well, if he is not doing anything; how is he supporting you?

Miss Kamara: People fish where we live.

Professor Kamara: So, he is a fisherman?

Miss Kamara: Yes.

Professor Kamara: And he is doing fairly well?

Miss Kamara: Yes.

Professor Schabas: How old were you when this happened to you?

Miss Kamara: I was 8 years old.

Professor Kamara: And how old are you?

Miss Kamara: I am 19 years old.

Professor Schabas: Do you know the people who did this to you, do you know who they were?

Miss Kamara: I don't know them.

Professor Schabas: Do you know if they belonged to any other armed group or the army?

Miss Kamara: They were rebels.

Professor Schabas: How do you know that?

Miss Kamara: They were the ones who arrested us and locked us in a room.

Professor Schabas: How many of them were there?

Miss Kamara: They were many. I can't remember.

Commissioner Jow: Isatu, before the incident were you in school?

Miss Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: After the incident did you continue any formal education?

Miss Kamara: No.

Commissioner Jow: Was that out of choice or was there no provision?

Miss Kamara: Financial Problem.

Commissioner Jow: Have you been back to your old school to see whether they could take you in again?

Miss Kamara: It was at Fogbo, I went up to class five.

Commissioner Jow: You still live at Fogbo, don't you?

Miss Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: The question I am asking is whether you have been back to your old school to see whether they could help you?

Miss Kamara: No

Bishop Humper: Since you went back to your place did you learn any trade ?

Miss Kamara: No.

Bishop Humper : Are you desirous to develop your own skills so that you can do something to help yourself?

Miss Kamara : If I have a benefactor, I will.

Commissioner Torto: Isatu, we thank you very much for coming. I just want you to clarify something for me. From the written statement in front of me and answers to the questions especially from Commissioner Schabas; I am inclined to believe that the RUF rebels were betting over this pregnant woman's child, what was the sex of this unborn child. Do you remember how much they were betting on?

Miss Kamara: It was a boy; they were not betting on any amount. There was not cash on the bet.

Commissioner Torto:After disemboweling the woman what was the reaction after proving the sex of the baby?

Miss Kamara: They laughed and shouted.

Mr. Charm: Thank you very much Isatu, I just want to ask you a few questions for clarification. According to your statement you said there were about 200 people in the room. Although you were very young at that time can you remember whether all those people were arrested in the same village or not?

Miss Kamara: No. I don't know the names of the villages.

Mr. Charm: Can you also help us with the composition of these people; were there boys and girls or men or women?

Miss Kamara: We were mixed

Mr. Charm: So, you were not the first to be amputated from that group?

Miss Kamara: No.

Mr. Charm: Will you be able to tell us if anything happened to those who were amputated before you?

Miss Kamara: I don't live where they live?

Justice Marcus Jones: Isatu, we have been asking you questions, have you any questions you want to ask us about the work of the commission, our progress?

Miss Kamara: One of our companions whose arms were chopped off is currently being assisted by a white man to erect a structure. I want to know whether the TRC will help do the same?

Justice Marcus Jones: TRC through the debriefers, will only tell you where you can possibly get help from. Maybe you will be able to give more details of the person helping your friend to the debriefers and then the TRC will be able to direct you on how to get help.

Miss Kamara: I don't know the white man.

Justice Marcus Jones: Have you have any recommendation that you would like to make for the report? You are a young person but I'm sure you have your own ideas about a better country.

Miss Kamara: You know better and I leave it to you.

Justice Marcus Jones: Thank you very much. Our recommendations will include recommendations for women and for people who are handicapped like you. We thank you for coming to tell us about your experiences. Thank you.

WITNESS NAME: Bankole Isaac George Vincent

WITNESS NO:

REFERENCE NO

Bankole Isaac George Vincent was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY

My name is Bankole Isaac George Vincent and Retired Senior Civil Servant. Before the advent of the rebels, I had lived with my family of eight persons in my house at 9 Cemetery Road, Kola Tree, Allen Town.

At present I am an internally displaced citizen and I live at 37E Wilkinson Road Freetown.

On the 9th of January 1999 at about 10.30 am, a group of 10 rebels entered my house at 9 Cemetery Road, Kola Tree, Allen Town and placed my family and myself under gun point. They requested me to give them five million Leones but I told their commando that I am a retired civil servant and do not possess such a colossal amount. Consequently, he ordered me to give them all the money I had in my possession and warned me that if I do not cooperate with them, I shall swim in my blood.

I went into my room under escort and removed the five hundred thousand Leones (he cried) I had in my box; under great shock I handed the money to them. The commando ordered one of his men to give me two slaps which he did very brutally. The commando ordered his men to lock my family and myself inside one room whilst they ransacked all the 6 rooms and the roof of the house and the store. All the articles they looted were loaded inside a lorry but before they departed, they ordered me to dance and laugh and express my gratitude to them for looting my house and destabilizing my Mercedes Benz beyond repairs. I did exactly as they ordered me; otherwise I would have been summarily executed.

The rebels promised to come back in two days time and ordered me not to vacate the house as they would bring me some good gifts including money; they also told me that if they came and did not meet my family and myself, they would hunt for us and kill us. However, knowing the notorious character of the rebels and acting on the advice which an old lady gave me, my family and myself immediately left our house and sought refuge in different places.

We were later told that just one hour after we had left for dear life, the rebels came back and enquired about us; when they did not see us, they burnt my house - my house I took 8 years to build. I laboured in Germany for 8 years; was destroyed in a twinkle of an eye- and remarked that if they had met us, they would have tied every one of us inside the house, poured petrol on us and burnt us inside the house, because they were told that we are strong supporters of the SLPP Government. These documents are on this paper and it would be handed over to the Commission, since I don't want to waste the time of the Commission. I am over 70 years old.

All the members of my family are displaced and live in different parts of Freetown under strenuous conditions. We are at present traumatised and depressed because our family life has been distorted by the rebels and "sobels".

Attached overleaf, are details of all my properties that the rebels burnt and looted.

Justice Marcus-Jones: Thank you Mr. Vincent. We appreciate the distress you are telling us about and that you are an elderly man. As you said yourself, you escaped for dear life and that dear life you have now. We have seen the list of the items in your paper but as you already know the TRC cannot give compensation; the TRC can only make recommendation in the final report. In order to be able to give an accurate account of what you have told us in our report we're going to ask you some questions.

Commissioner Sooka: Mr. Vincent, thank you for telling us your story. You mentioned that you are now an internally-displaced person. I wonder if you could tell us a little more about that; whether you live with your children or whether they are separated. Where is your family now?

Mr. Vincent: My daughter Hannah is at Wilberforce; my son, Ansu lives at Old Wharf; my other daughter Josephine Vincent lives at Kola Tree with her mother.

Commissioner Sooka: Obviously you've lost everything that you've earned, how do you support yourself now?

Mr. Vincent : It is a very good question, Commissioner. I am a retired Civil Servant. I receive only 44 thousand Leones as my monthly pension. Also in my church, Ebenezer Methodist Church, I have good friends like Mr. Doherty, Arthur Carter, Olufemi Roberts, Moshe Roberts who at times give me handouts and also I am a professional auto mobile mechanic. The boys that I trained usually come to me to seek advice on some mechanical problems they may have encountered. I often help them and like the ten virgins in the bible, at least one may come and give me some thing as a sign of appreciation. Also some of my former school mates of the Methodist Boys High School usually invite me to visit their homes, some give me money and clothes but I am not used to that. As I said earlier, my car was destroyed. Thirdly, my wife is a German. I have her picture here with me and I can show it to you if you like. We were married in Sierra Leone on 20th June 1970 at St. Mark's Church Lumley. Formerly, she used to send some things for me -pocket money and clothes. Unfortunately, some bad people told her that I have married twenty wives and thirty children-within this short period that I returned home. Naturally out of jealousy which is very common among women she has stopped assisting me.

Also unfortunate, is that whenever I applied for a job, they would tell me that I am qualified but they can't give me the job because of my age. Notwithstanding my age, I am still strong to work. What I am with humility requesting this commission to do for me, is to recommend to Government to give me a micro- credit loan of about one million Leones. I have a vast land of about 70 acres of land at my home town in Yormandu. I could engage in agricultural activities and I may be able to harvest twice a year. I must confess that there are times when I can't go to church because of my fare. As a retired Society Steward at Ebenezer Methodist Church, and Leader, after serving twenty one years, I usually feel guilty that I cannot go to church as I would love to.

Commissioner Torto – Mr. Vincent thank you very much for coming and I must congratulate you for summing up courage after that kind of agonizing experience. From the written statement I have in front of me here, you mentioned that you are asking the Commission to tell your perpetrators to stop provoking you?

Mr. Vincent - About six months ago, I stood outside my burnt house and I saw three young men passing by and I heard one of them say, "Nar wi burn da pa dae in ose". My Lord, to be honest with you, Sir, if at that material time I had certain things I'd have asked God to forgive me. I would have shot him. I asked them if they were referring to me and they said, yes. The other one remarked that: "Since you have been supporting Tejan Kabbah, why can't he rebuild your house". Then I shivered and slowly I collapsed. I was helped by a woman who took me into the house and advised that I take some rest. I prayed to God to give me a peaceful mind and to be courageous. That is why I said that government should warn rebels not to provoke victims. The other then commented that to do evil is fine, because they who have committed atrocities and burnt people houses have been rewarded by Government with 600,000 and university, secondary and technical education. He asked what I have benefited from the government. That depressed me most. I didn't take any food for two days even with persuasion from my daughter.

Commissioner Torto - How often has this happened to you; can you remember their faces, do you know where they are?

Mr. Vincent - I don't know; I lost consciousness. I have receipts of the things I bought from Germany which were destroyed and I would like to show you, to buttress what I have just said.

Justice Marcus Jones - We believe all what you have said.

Commissioner Jow - In your testimony, you mentioned that there were two women among your attackers, were they in uniform and what roles did they play?

Mr. Vincent - They were rebels.

Commissioner Jow - What role did they play?

Mr. Vincent- They all looted, infact, it was one of them who saved my life. They wanted to kill me so Kabbah could give back my life. She told them not to kill me because I had no money. One rebel had suggested that they kill me but she came to my rescue, rubbing my chin, she commented that I am a handsome man so let them not kill me.

Commissioner Jow - Did you recognise any one of them?

Mr. Vincent - No. Also I want to add that I have handed some documents to Ozonia, and it contains a lot of information. Sorry Bishop, I was there when you were embarrassed. I witnessed the rebels baptising little children in hot burning oil. They butchered ten women alive.

Bishop Humber -I join all the commissioners in thanking you. We believe all what you've said and we need no supporting document. The flow of your testimony itself will absolve you. Do you think you were targeted?

Mr. Vincent - Yes, although other people lost properties in the area, they told me that they did those things to me because I was one of Tejan Kabbah's strongest supporters.

Bishop Humber - Do you have school-going children?

Mr. Vincent - No.

Justice Marcus Jones - Do you have any question for the commission?

Mr. Vincent - This question is not for you directly, but since you act as the post office, for information to the government, let me ask this question - Most victims could not understand why the rebels who committed atrocities worse than Hitler are being helped by the government whilst peaceful citizens like us are left in the cold. There will be no peace without justice. I am with the grassroots; most youths are disgruntled because they are saying that if you want the Government to consider you, you have to be a hardened criminal. I have been trying to dissuade them from such thinking. However, if nothing is done, most of them are saying that if any war would break out again, they would commit worse atrocities than those already committed for the Government to consider them. I was glad when I heard on the BBC focus on Africa programme at 15.15 and 17.15pm yesterday that President Mbeki of South Africa had said that they are going to pay reparations of $380,000 to 20,000 Apartheid victims. The Commission must ensure that justice is done to all.

Justice Marcus Jones - As regards justice during the war, the Special Court will take care of that, however, I want to assure you that, your recommendations will be seriously considered for inclusion in our final report. I want to tell you that your testimony will help the commission in its recommendations. Do you have any further recommendations?

Mr. Vincent - Yes,

- 1 Government should give reparation to victims whose houses were burnt for example, building materials.
2. Government should give micro-credit loans to victims in order to help with restoration.

3. Government should help youths who are qualified to enter into colleges and provide technical education and jobs as they have done for ex-combatants.
4. Commission should have hearings at chiefdom level to reduce transport expenses.

Justice Marcus Jones - Thank you, we hope that this peace may continue to flow in your heart. Thank you.

Kumba she was sworn on oath. She is a Christian.

Justice Marcus Jones - Kumba I want to assure that you have nothing to worry about; take your time and tell your story.

TESTIMONY

I was at staying at Sefadu and my child was about to be married; it was on a Friday morning when the rebels attacked. My in-laws and I ran into the bush but we had nothing on us. We went into the bush, but while we were hiding, they came after us and we went further into the bush. They walked with force; they were still after us - we went to the villages; my children and I had no clothes. They told us that if we ran away, they would kill us; my children ran away. My grandchild came out of hiding and was about to run when they shot him in the chest. He was buried. After a while, we went again into the bush.

My daughter, who is alive, was trying to run away when she was shot and injured by a rebel. I cried when I saw her, I took her and started healing the wounds. She suffered in the bush, but nothing happened to her. We then ran to a village called Gbatti Fanda. We later came out of that village. When the rebels attacked, they took away my two children - Yapo and Sorie. After sometime, I was approached by somebody who asked me if I had heard anything about my children and if I knew that they had been killed. She consoled me and told me to be strong. I was then taken to Kokyeima, to my in-laws' place.

My in-laws advised me that it would be in my best interest to come to Freetown and stay with my sister. In Sefadu, my in-laws houses were burnt; the place was burnt to the ground. It has become overgrown with weeds. All my children were killed, except my eldest daughter. She consoled me and promised to take care of me. My in-laws paid fare to come over to my sister in Freetown. I am not well. I only survived almost on kola nuts during for the five months that I was in the bush. The water was not pure. That's what they did to me. I gave birth to 12 children; the others were not killed during the war. But my two boys and daughter were.

I am here today on the advice of my daughter who asked that I should come to a place where I would be consoled. I thank God, because I was told by the old man sitting down over there to come and testify. He met me yesterday and told me to come.

Justice Marcus Jones - We can see that you're a very old woman and you have lost your house, children and grand children. We have heard your testimony but there are few questions we would like to ask.

Professor John Kamara: You told us that you had about 12 children; you lost 3, which means that you have 9 of them who are still alive.

Mrs. Conteh - No, I only have one.... People are laughing at me, I'm being scorned.

Mr. Ojielo - Have you been able to receive any help from any organization?

Mrs. Conteh - No, That's why I am here.

Mr. Ojielo - Were members of the family able to give your children a fitting burial?

Mrs. Conteh - No

Justice Marcus Jones - Do you have any question for the commission?

Mrs. Conteh - I have nothing to say, I want the commission to help me, to console me; my mind is heavy.

Justice Marcus Jones - When you leave here, you have our briefers to talk to. I thank you very much.

Mrs. Conteh - I feel good now. I thank you, especially Mr. Kamanda who brought me here. At times people say that I'm mad. I can't eat. People should not be taunted; it is not good to taunt people.

Justice Marcus Jones - We thank you.

Name: Joe Fancy Yusuf Black Kamara

Witness No.

Ref. No.

Good morning audience. My name is Joe Fancy Yusuf Black kamara. I'm here purposely at this commission to blow and clear my chest for the unlawful death of my late father Chief Alhaji Abulagbu Black Kamara former Temne Tribal headman Western Area and to speak for those who cannot speak for themselves, for the rights of all who are destitute, to defend the rights of the poor and needy in our family.

My father was a prominent trader in the Western Area and was inaugurated by the Minister on Interior and the Temne people of this country to succeed Paul Kamara that was in 1991. When the NPRC took power from the APC in 1992 he was arrested and detained at the Pademba road prison for one and half day and by the power of the God Almighty he was released and proven to be innocent of any political charges.

Failing to work with the resolution of the NPRC in 1996 he was suspended by the cabinet of the NPRC and when the SLPP won the election his throne was given to another person for no comprehensible reason.

On 25th May 1997 he was invited at the National Stadium for contributions towards the search for peace by the AFRC junta force and he responded with his own suggestions towards a peaceful solution concerning the conflict in our beloved country.

On the 12th February, when the ECOMOG led force dislocated the AFRC junta force out of Freetown, some supporters of the SLPP and ECOMOG officers entered our father's compound, broke into his residence and destroyed all the beautiful treasure, and ended up burning the houses of our father including one Mercedes Benz which was his patrolling car.

On the 14th February at 2.00 p.m. in the afternoon our father was captured by youths of this country who were in an identified SLPP uniform at the Montague streets and also one Gibrilla Mansaray, who lives at 7 Manfred Lane, was the first person to hit at my father with a stick and throw water all over his body. In a hopeless condition some ECOMOG officers rescued him and took him to the Pademba road prison with no medical care.

On the 15th February, I Joe Fancy Yusuf Black Kamara and some family members sought refuge in Mambolo town, Kambia district. There we heard about the death of our late father. That was on the 28th February 1998. His corpse was released from the prison and buried on the 2nd March 1998 by the Temne people of this country.

An honorable man: Governing over four hundred people inside his residence; a prominent peaceful citizen of this country with seven wives and twenty three children. Elders of this land and in respect of this commission, I want you to speak and judge fairly for us, as required by law to the loss of our father. As you all know the law is supreme. A person is presumed innocent until he \she has been proved guilty. A person can only be punished for distinct breach of law established in a manner before the court of the land

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. The story was very clear and I want you to clarify something for me. When was your father arrested?

Mr. Kamara: When the NPRC took over power he was accused that he was a collaborator between one party to another.

Mr. Ojielo: In what uniform were the SLA soldiers?

Kamara: They were wearing the SLPP T-shirts.

Mr. Ojielo: Who takes care of your younger brothers and sisters?

Mr. Kamara: I take care of them.

Mr. Ojielo: You mentioned about Gibrilla Mansaray?

Mr. Kamara: Gibrilla was a handicap and our relative. I was surprised that he should behave in such a manner.

Mr. Ojielo: Would you like the Commission to call both of you to iron it out?

Mr. Kamara: Yes. It will be an everlasting peace.

Justice Marcus Jones: Do have any question to ask the commission?

Mr. Kamara: Yes, I want the Commission to speak the truth for us.

Justice Marcus Jones: The Commission would like to see what the SLPP

Government will do towards these issues. Do you have any recommendation to add to our report?

Mr. Kamara: Commissioner, my family is handicapped. So, I want you to look into my plight.

Justice Marcus Jones: The commission will looked into your recommendation and we hope you will have the courage to go through your life. We thank you.

TESTIMONY

Jonathan Kenawa Kamanda was called upon to take his seat. He was asked if he is a Christian or Muslim he said he is a Christian and he was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner.

Justice Marcus Jones - I am happy that you are here to testify in this public hearing. We want you to tell the Commission about your experiences and what happened to you.

TESTIMONY

After leaving school, I was employed at the Sierra Leone Railway. I worked there for seventeen years. After the closure of the Railway, I took up appointment as a Police Officer in the Freetown City Council. I was retired during the AFRC but later recalled.

When I got my annual leave, I went to my wife at Bakonia Chiefdom in the Moyamba district. After 2 weeks, we heard that there was an attack at Buedu. When they entered, they fired shots into the air and we all went into the bush. When we came back, we realised that all our properties had either been destroyed or taken away. They entered by Taiama. They took away five goats and many fowls. Five houses were burnt including my sister-in-law's house - Fatmata. Even in the bush, we suffered and sustained injuries. My son fell down and injured his arm. We were there till the end of July and I badethem farewell and returned. All what I had gathered for a lifetime and stored with my wife were all taken away.

Justice Marcus-Jones - Thank you for coming here to testify. We may now want to ask you some questions for clarification.

Commissioner Torto - Thanks for coming, we appreciate you. We know you have gone through a lot of trauma. I want some clarifications. The people who attacked you which group did they belong to?

Mr. Kamanda - They were in a group of ten to fifteen and they were dressed in military fatigue.

Commissioner Torto - Are they SLA, RUF or Kamajors?

Mr. Kamanda - Since they were in combat, I could not identify the group.

Commissioner Torto - In your statement, you mentioned, Kumba Conteh. What was the nature of her involvement at the time you were giving the statement ?

Mr. Kamanda - In 1992, I came to know Kumba in Kono (at her sister's) and I intended marrying her.

Professor John Kamara - Thanks for the experience you have shared with us, we sympathise with you for all that you have lost. We can see that you are interested in agriculture in producing food for this country. What I want to know is, whether you came back to Freetown after this ugly incident in 1994, or that since then you have never been back because you've lost your properties?

Mr. Kamanda – Yes, I came back in 1999 and I was still working at the Freetown City Council. I have been going to my wife, although her house was burnt down. She is still in Moyamba living with a neighbour.

Professor John Kamara - Are you still working for the Freetown City Council?

Mr. Kamanda - No, I retired last year. I am planning to go back to the provinces. Things are not that bad but I am barely surviving.

Mr. Charm - We would like to know if there was fighting between the warring factions that led to the destruction of your village?

Mr. Kamanda - The formation of the CDF and Kamajors came in the later stages of the war. It was only the government soldiers and the rebels who were engaged in combat.

Mr. Charm- For how long were these rebels in your village?

Mr. Kamanda - They were operating from outside; while attacking the village intermittently.

Mr. Charm - Did anything happen to the other inhabitants in the village?

Mr. Kamanda - As far as I know, only five houses were burnt and about five people killed but this was not in the statement.

Mr. Charm- Can you name these people?

Mr. Kamanda - I can't tell because I am not familiar with the people in the village.

Mr. Charm - Were people abducted to carry loads?

Mr. Kamanda - Yes, anytime they entered, they captured young boys, I know of one boy whose name is Sorie.

Charm - Were there females among group of people who attacked you?

Mr. Kamanda - Yes, they had women and children.

Justice Marcus Jones - Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Mr. Kamanda - Yes, does the commission have any way of assisting us with the distress that we went through?

Justice Marcus Jones - You must know that there are several people who suffered the same loss, but the TRC does not have the money to give to people that are victims of the war. But there are things that the Commission could recommend that may be done in your community and help individuals.

Jonathan - If the commission could help I would be grateful. I suggest that this exercise reach the grassroots in the provinces.

Justice Marcus Jones - I assure you that the TRC will go to the province and all recommendations made will be included in our final report. Thank you for your testimony. We have now come to the end of today's hearing session. Today the TRC has heard testimonies as to the tragic loss of a number of victims. As a mark of respect to these people, I ask we stand and observe a minute silence for these people.

The Presiding Commissioner Professor Schabas called the session to order by a welcome note, and requested for an opening prayer by the audience;

Christian prayer: Mrs Manyeh, A chorus "Tell papa God Tenki" was sung by all.

Muslim prayer: Mr. Charm (Al fatiah) by all.

Mr. Ozonnia Ojiello, Leader of Evidence called the first witness of the day. The witness Rtd. Capt. Moigboi Moigande Kosia was then sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner Prof. Schabas.

Testimony

In the first place, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all officials here for the formation of the TRC; a lot of innocent people had suffered in silence. And nothing had been done. I thank God today, that I am here to give this testimony before the TRC. Before I start my testimony, I would like to crave the indulgence of the Commissioners to allow me to introduce myself.

My name is Retired Captain Mogboi Moigande Kosia. I was born in Pendembu in Kailahun and also a retired commissioned officer of the Sierra Leone Army. I was enlisted in the army in 1954 as a boy soldier at the age of 13. In 1959, I was absorbed into the main service in the Army and I was posted to the Army Headquarters, which was the seat of the Force Commander. I was the first serving officer in the Sierra Leone Army, to go to Nigeria as a student, when their Academy was opened.

In 1964, I took the qualifying examination to become an officer and I was successful. I spent 18 months in the Military Academy. Upon return, I was posted to Moa Barracks in Daru as a Recruiting and Training Officer. In 1971, I Moigboi Moigande Kosia sitting before you today, was one of the accused officers, in the first court martial trial for one John Amadu Bangura and eight others. At the end of the trial, I was honourably acquitted and discharged because I was falsely accused. I was still at the Pademba Road Prison, when four of the eight convicted officers: Brigadier John Amadu Bangura; Major F.L.M. Jawara; Major S.E. Momoh and Lieutenant Kolugbonda were executed.

After my release, I was roaming the streets of Freetown seeking employment. Fortunately for me, I met one of the soldiers with whom I had trained; he was a Security at State House to the then President Siaka Stevens. He arranged a meeting for me with the President and after listening to my story, I was later reinstated in the Army. I was posted again to Moa Barracks, but some officers were not happy. In 1973, two weeks to the general elections, I was hurriedly and unceremoniously sent back to Freetown; two days later I was given a letter of retirement. I tried all I could to see Momoh who was then the Force Commander but I could not. I wrote a letter of petition to the President through the assistance of one Junior Officer, who had some political connections. I was then invited to see the President once again. At the President's office, I met Momoh, he told the President that during my stay in Daru, at about the time of the elections, I was campaigning for the SLPP in my chiefdom and other chiefdoms. He further told the President that I was training people in my chiefdom as mercenaries. At that time, I was training some officers in life firing exercise. I was dismissed.

I was abandoned, neglected and I started roaming the streets of Freetown once again. Then I had no political affiliation and wherever I went to seek employment, I was asked to produce a party card or they'll ask if I was sent by a politician. Whenever there was a coup or an attempted coup, I was always the first to be arrested. I was in this condition when I finally resolved to go back to my home town with my family and engage in small scale farming. I was there till 1991 when the war broke out. I was captured in my home town Pendembu, on April 10th 1991. I was with the RUF throughout these years until I was disarmed and demobilised and reintegrated. So, that the brief history of myself.

Before I start my testimony, I would like to crave the indulgence of the commissioners to have patience with me because I have a long history to tell.

Some of the fundamental reasons which gave birth to the war started in the Army. In 1965, immediately after the Africanisation of the army; when it was left in the hands of Sierra Leoneans, after the last British Force Commander, Brigadier R.G. Blackie had left, that was when nepotism, tribalism and segregation started in the army. The first black enlisted officer in the Army, Brigadier David Lansana, was made Force Commander and his deputy was Brigadier John Bangura who was the second black man to be enlisted in the army. Lansana came from the East and his allegiance was to Albert Margai and the SLPP whilst John Bangura who came from the North his allegiance was to Siaka Stevens and the APC. They were like two parallel lines that would never meet. As a result of this division between these senior officers, the army was deeply divided right down the ranks. We had the North-Western alliance and the South-Eastern alliance.

As a result of this division, the military experienced the first coup attempt in 1967, masterminded by Brigadier John Bangura and senior officers from the North. These officers Brigadier John Bangura, Abu Noah, Farrah Jawara, A.O. Kamara, M.S. Tarawallie, P.G.O. Caulker, Seray Wurie and some other ranks were all detained at the Pademba Road Prison before, during and after the election in 1967. After the election in 1967, Brigadier David Lansana declared a martial law in Sierra Leone. Less than two hours, there was a counter coup led by Maj. Charles Blake, Maj. S.B. Jumu and Major Kaisamba and the National Reformation Council (NRC), was formed. Late Juxon Smith was called from London to head the NRC. The army was split by then and the detained officers were still at the Pademba Road Prison. In his first address to military officers at the Myhuang Officers Mess, he told us that as soldiers, we must stay away from politics. He further said that politics was for politicians.

In addition to that, he said that he was not going to allow any military coup in Sierra Leone. He said that he had evidence to try and convict all the detained officers at Pademba Road Prison for treason in a court martial. However, in order to rebuild the military and in order for unity to prevail once again in the military, he was not going to try anyone. He therefore decided to send the two senior officers; Lansana and Bangura, out of the country on external appointments. In addition to this, all other detained officers at Pademba Road Prison from 1966 were released and reinstated into the military with their full ranks.

The NRC began its work and many Commissions of Enquiry were set up. For the first three months, the NRC was working as a group; after that, they were divided. Brigadier Smith had his own group and Blake, Jumu and Kaisamba had their group. Later Juxon-Smith was accused of being power conscious and that he was not listening to advice. As a result of these divisions, the NRC became ineffective. It was like a "chicken trying to sit on a hammock"; it existed but only on paper. At that time, late Lansana and Bangura had been given external appointments. We started hearing rumours, that John Bangura was in Guinea recruiting and training men and it was then that the ISU started. Soldiers started running to Guinea. This information started flying like wild fire. Since the NRC was divided, the senior officers didn't do anything to educate the junior officers about Brigadier John Bangura's presence in Guinea. Thus, the NRC decided to hand over power to a civilian government, after an election that was to include all the political parties which contested the 1967 elections.

In a meeting at the Officers Mess at Wilberforce, Juxon Smith sought our opinion as to how to go about the transition. Some officers were in favour of the transition whilst some were against. Some were of the opinion that it must be done gradually since the Commissions of Inquiry that were set up had started bringing out some results. Most former ministers and civil servants who were found guilty were to be banned from holding any public office for ten years. Midway through these deliberations, news of this meeting was scattered all around Freetown. Towards the end of the meeting, the politicians were all around the barracks; inciting junior officers that the Queen of England had sent money for all soldiers which the senior officers had eaten. This angered the junior officers and since Blake, Jumu and Kaisamba were against Juxon-Smith, they master minded a coup which was led by Rogers, Patrick and Kengenyeh; who were all junior officers.

Some senior officers including myself and senior police officers were arrested and detained at Pademba Road Prison. Whilst we were in detention, an argument ensued among the coup plotters as to who was to head the army. Bangura was finally selected; he came back to Sierra Leone and was appointed head of the army. He however handed over power back to Siaka Stevens. We were at Pademba Road Prisons, when some officers were released and reinstated back into the army; whilst we the officers from the East and the South were left in detention. For some of us, we were lucky to be released and reinstated because of our popularity among the other ranks. Bangura succeeded in dividing the army. He established the Military Intelligent Branch (MIB). He brought into the army something which had never existed in the army before i.e tribal returns in a bid to know the number of Temnes, Limbas and those from the South-East were shortlisted. Every four months, Officers from the South-East were prematurely retired. Most of us were pre-maturely retired. We were there but had nothing to do just moving about.

This continued for a while. Then in 1970, another political party was formed by someone. Late Bangura, switched his allegiance to this new political party. Bangura who had been a close friend of Siaka Stevens became unpopular to him and J.S. Momoh then became the President's "blue eyed boy". There were rumours filtering that Bangura would be retired and given an external job but he was against it. That brought about the coup in 1971 and I was falsely accused because I was in Freetown to take the qualifying examination for promotion from lieutenant to captain. As the coup was being planned, Bangura wanted the coup to go on but Momoh was against. Some junior officers were aware of what was happening but others were not. A very serious quarrel ensued amongst the senior officers and their juniors. It was then suggested that Momoh should be arrested but his supporters were there to protect him and it was also suggested that Bangura should be arrested but his supporters were there to protect him. So, there was chaos. Everybody was in a state of confusion; not knowing what to do and Guinean troops were in Freetown with their jet flying all over the city.

A junior officer then suggested that both Momoh and Bangura should come forward and explain what their positions were. When Bangura was asked to speak, he spoke in riddles but he failed to make a definite statement and Momoh when he was called forward did not say anything. Foday Sankoh, who was attached to the SLBS TV as a photographer, was around when the coup took place. He saw all of us lining up. When Momoh and Bangura failed to say anything that could convince us, he came forward and told them that they were the leaders but if they failed to come to a unified solution, then they, the other ranks, will take charge of things and he promised them that they'll all be detained as it was the case in 1968. Immediately after he had spoken, Momoh and Bangura embraced themselves and Foday Sankoh took their photograph and it was that photograph which took him to prison.

He was detained at Pademba Road. Whilst in detention he vowed that since he had been jailed for a coup he was not part of, even if it took him 20 years, he will definitely revenge. He was later released and he was in Freetown for a while and later he went into hiding. He went somewhere, someplace. He later surfaced in Kailahun, taking pictures and inciting people that APC had destroyed the country and they have escaped many coups. He even said that even the students who had made a legitimate call for a change of government, the ISU had been sent on them to shoot and kill them without any justification. He further said that Joseph Saidu Momoh had been imposed on the people as and he even made mention of the press with particular reference to Pious Foray. He further said that people like Kebbie, who was the president of the Labour Congress and Fatorma who was the Student president had been bought by the APC. He said that he was of the opinion that no strike, no coup, student demonstration or political party would be able to remove the APC from power. He said the only thing that could remove the APC from power would be the arms which they had they been using to kill people.

He later sought assistance from people who had been dismissed from college. They went to somewhere in North Africa. He then met with a brother from one of our neighbouring countries, who was training his people for an attack on his country; he was ready to offer him a helping hand. This man came to Sierra Leone to see how best he could use Sierra Leone as a base to launch his revolution and after some monetary exchanges; the man was arrested and deported. He however went to another country which he used as a base to launch his revolution in his country.

After the man launched his revolution, Foday Sankoh met him and they decided to be friends. Later Sierra Leone was made ECOMOG base to fight against this man. This didn't go down well with this big man, he therefore arrested most Sierra Leoneans who were in Liberia and whenever an NPFL rebel was killed in an ECOMOG air raid, ten of these arrested Sierra Leoneans would be executed. I would want everybody to know that during the war in Liberia, our soldiers who were deployed at the border had befriended the rebels from Liberia. They jointly organised football matches and other recreational activities. They were also engaged in a barter system by exchanging commodities such as rice for looted properties from Liberia.

However, the soldiers were unfaithful to these rebels, so a complaint was lodged to the section chief of the area who was called Von Kallon but nothing was done. The last straw which broke the camel's back was when a looted vehicle; a pick up van, was swindled by a Sierra Leonean officer for his own personal use and he refused to pay the NPFL fighters. The NPFL commanding officer who was Anthony Bengonabe then decided to launch a long range attack in order to retrieve all their swindled looted goods. They then launched a simultaneous attack on both Bomaru and Koindu.

Then Foday Sankoh was still at his base unaware of the situation. He however pleaded with this man for the release of these detained men so that they could join his training at his base. These were called the Vanguard of the RUF. After this initial attack into Sierra Leonean territory, the international media was with the impression that it was this big brother who had invaded Sierra Leone. This big brother then felt that Foday Sankoh should immediately put his war machinery into gear and make use of the opportunity offered, to begin his revolution. Although Foday Sankoh was not fully prepared as he lacked some basic logistics, his big brother instigated him and he provided him with added man power, arms and other logistics.

I would like to inform the Commission that although the 1991 attack would come have, it would not have come so early. It was hijacked by somebody. This man placed his men in charge of everything and they were over 5000. On the 10th April 1991, they made a simultaneous attack on both Bomaru and Koindu. Within a week, almost all the villages and chiefdoms in the Kailahun District had been captured. Our officers who were deployed at the border ran away for their lives leaving all their logistics and the civilians whom they were supposed to protect at the mercy of the rebels. They retreated and mounted a check points behind Bunumbu Moa. Thus, anybody who attempted to cross over was captured and beheaded. Civilians were afraid to cross over the Moa River. By then the NPFL and the RUF had merged under the guise of RUF.

I want would like to tell you the intention of this man, and I will tell you later how I came to know about all that I am saying here today. After capturing these places, the desire was that these areas will become part of Liberia and a defensive wall was to be mounted to provide defence against ULIMO K, ECOMOG or the SLA entering into Liberia. However, after capturing these places, they became complacent and they engaged in widespread looting because they felt they had reached Kuwait. For three months they were doing nothing until ECOMOG was deployed, at Daru Moa Barracks.

After capturing these places we fell under the control of RUF, Foday Sankoh paid his first visit to Kailahun at Pendembu. We were all assembled at the Court Barri and I was singled out, my people were frightened, they thought I would be killed. Foday Sankoh then addressed me as his boss, his officer and his colleague. There and then I was appointed as General Staff Officer 1(GSO1) in the RUF. I was not with them till then. After a while, the NPFL soldiers were withdrawn and we were under immense pressure and our supply line from Liberia cut off by the ULIMO K. Also our base was coming under heavy attack from ECOMOG, Kamajors, and Sierra Leone Army forces.

I therefore decided to take my men out to the jungle but on our way, one of my men was captured and he disclosed my position. I was later captured and detained at the Pademba Road Prison until after the Abidjan Peace Accord was signed and I was released and left with nothing in Freetown. I tried to contact some influential people in the country but they refused talking to me on the excuse that we brought war to Sierra Leone. They were ignorant of what was actually happening because they were in Freetown and all what they knew was hearsay. I was in Freetown during the May 25th 1997 military takeover by the AFRC. I was then invited by Mosquito and others to once again be part of the RUF as an Administrator. I was with them until the ECOMOG intervention in 1998 and I went together with them into the bush. At present, I have been disarmed, demobilised and reintegrated with my family.

A ten minutes break was observed.

Prof. Schabas: I understand that you've known Foday Sankoh for some time now; can you tell us, what was your relationship when you first met him?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I had known Foday Sankoh since 1957; not only that, Foday and myself worked together and I should say he was my stepfather because he married my mother's younger sister.

Prof. Schabas: You spoke about the formation of the RUF long before now when exactly was the RUF formed?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: It was formed immediately after the 1973 general election.

Prof. Schabas: Can you tell us the kind of people who were part of the RUF in those formative stages?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: It then consisted of politicians, former students, business men, Paramount Chiefs, foreigners, and a lot of other disgruntled people in the country who were victimised by the former regime of the APC.

Prof. Schabas: You are referring to this organisation, was it then known as RUF during those early years?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: It was later named RUF; it was a loose organisation formed by disgruntled Sierra Leoneans.

Prof. Schabas: Can you name some of these people?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Dr John Karefa Smart, Sir leaf Easmon, Late Alikali Modu, Kassim Basma of Kono, former students from our university like Rashid Mansaray and Mohamed Tarawally and others.

Prof. Schabas: If this organisation was not called RUF then which name was it referred to then?

Rtd. Captain Kosia : During the early days, there was no name given to this organisation it was just called “Rescue Operation”. It came to be known as the RUF at about 1989.

Prof. Schabas: In your testimony you referred to one country in the North, is this country Libya?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Yes.

Prof. Schabas: Did you know the people who went to Libya for training?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Yes, Foday Sankoh, Mike Lamin, Rashid Mansaray, Mohamed Tarawally, Tankora etc...With some students who later broke away from the organisation because of money transaction. These were referred to as the Special Forces.

Prof. Schabas : Can you tell the number of people who went to Libya for training?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: They were 30 in number, only eight of them returned; they broke up because of monetary squabbles.

Prof. Schabas: Do you know the nature of the training that was given to these people, was it military or political?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: They received training on military affairs, political ideology, revolutionary ideology, jungle training, the Green Book and RUF too wrote a book titled Footpath to Democracy part 1 and 2...

Prof. Schabas: Mr. Kosia we've already heard testimonies from people about atrocities against them such as the amputation of limbs. Can you tell anything about these malpractices? Was it done by the RUF or by somebody else?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I am under oath here, I am going to say all that I know and all that I saw. In 1993 some RUF fighters who were captured by the soldiers had their hands chopped off and they were sent with a note that if the RUF did not drop their guns they would continue to amputate their limbs. Upon seeing this, the RUF too responded in like manner whenever they captured an SLA. To be honest with this Commission, these things happened only when Foday Sankoh was not around because he had put a stop to it. Amputation in the Frontline became widespread during the run up to 1996 elections; when it was done in the North to prevent people from voting. Amputations only took place in the absence of Foday Sankoh. Also it happened from 1991 to 1993 when the NPFL were around.

Prof. Schabas: So, you are saying that the limbs of civilians were not chopped off during these early periods?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - If you talk of looting, harassment, rape and the molestation of civilians, I can accept; but for amputation it was only done in 1996 when the elections were approaching.

Prof. Schabas: You spoke about looting and harassment, I take it that this was looting and harassment against civilians in the 1993 period?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Looting, molestation, rape, started when the RUF was combined with the NPFL. In the RUF we had three groups; NPFL who were Liberians, also we had Sierra Leoneans who were captured and trained here in Sierra Leone and we had Liberians and Sierra Leoneans who were trained in Liberia. These are the Vanguardians. Let me explain who the Vanguardians were. We had two groups; Liberian citizens who during the war had no food and had nothing to survive on, they were recruited into the RUF. The other group comprised of Sierra Leoneans who were arrested in Liberia by Charles Taylor, to be killed in retaliation to the raids made by the ECOMOG jet. Foday Sankoh took them from him and recruited them into the RUF and gave them training at his base called Camp Nyama which is commonly referred to as Camp Zogoda. These people were; Jonathan Kposowa who was the General Adjutant, Eldred Collins, Peter Vandi, Prince Taylor, Augustine Gbao, Philip Palmer, Mosquito, Morris Kallon, Issa Sesay who was recruited in the Ivory Coast and others.,

Prof. Schabas: You mentioned some atrocities carried out against civilians. Were these carried out as policy of the RUF or was done by some undisciplined units within the RUF?

Rtd. Captain Kosia:As the GSO1 by then, I drew up rules and regulations on warfare for our combatants and there were punishments for offenders. If it pleases the commission I would give some of these regulations. Rape, unlawful killings, smoking of marijuana and others were prohibited. As for rape, it was execution. I can recall four incidences when combatants were executed because of rape. During the time of the NPFL we were unable to control the combatants but after the split, we were able to control our boys.

Prof. Schabas: Can you tell us about cannibalism during the conflict?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Cannibalism started in 1991. But it was carried out by especially the Gios and Manos from Liberia. It was not widespread. It became widespread in 1992 when the civilians and the junior commandos, were tired of the treatment meted out to them by the NPFL, we therefore decided that they must go back. So, Edward Fengbe who was one of the Vanguardians and Morris Kallon decided that these people should go back. I established a base at an undisclosed location in Kailahun; called Borbor Gawei to give advanced training to the newly recruited soldiers; so that they will be able to drive out the NPFL soldiers. I was there with about 300 men but NPFL eventually came to know about our plans. The NPFL by then who had a very large number, detained a lot of these soldiers but others like Mosquito and Issa Sesay went into the jungle. Unfortunately for me, I was caught along side some other officers; I was detained in Liberia. That was when cannibalism came into effect. By 1991, they had eaten all the cattle, the dogs and all the other animals, therefore by 1992, they started eating human beings. I knew of a village where they had a big pot in which human beings were boiled for consumption. I also knew the people who were doing it. They had a Liberian called Jim Kawei and another called Tapor. They had certain villages like Nyandewu Manbab and Mende Buwima, if any civilian attempt to venture there, he'll be eaten.

Prof. Schabas: The people who went to Libya, later returned to West Africa. Was the Government of Libya involved on continuing basis during the conflict here?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I don't know. What I know was that, Foday Sankoh told me about one of his friends in Libya who was helping him. He was sending support through our senior brother Charles Taylor in Liberia.

Prof. Schabas: You said that the SLA were chopping hands of the RUF, did the RUF revenge and do likewise?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Foday Sankoh was not around by then, so the rebels too started revenging and when he returned he stopped the amputations.

Prof. Schabas: You said in your statement that amputation started again when the elections was approaching in 1996?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: Yes, the RUF started it in the North. The amputation started again when the RUF were chased out by ECOMOG. In 1996, the aim was to prevent voters from voting, those who were caught at the polling station had their hands chopped off. In 1998, the AFRC/RUF did it to punish civilians who they claimed were against them.

Prof. Schabas: You referred to a period when you were at the Pademba Road Prison. After your release did you resume active service with the RUF?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I was at Pademba Road Prison from mid 1994 on to 1996 after the signing of the Abidjan Peace Accord. After my release from Pademba Road Prison I was still in Freetown because the rebel war was still on, and at that time the rebels were at my village in Kailahun, if I had gone back to Kailahun, I would have been killed. In 1997, when the rebels came to Freetown, I was located by Mosquito and I was again reinstated into the RUF. Prior to that time, immediately after my release, I went to people in authorities for them to understand the causes of the war, but I was ignored.

Prof. Schabas: I may want to know the period you are talking about?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: It was in 1996, after my release from Pademba Road Prison.

Prof. Schabas: During the period of 1996, when the Abidjan Peace Accord was signed on to July 1999 when the Lome Peace Accord was signed, did you have knowledge of any atrocity committed by the rebels?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: In 1996, the RUF, were in the jungle all around the provinces, I am not in a position to talk about what I heard from the commanders because I was in detention. However, I am in a position to tell you what I saw in 1998 when I was with them. I am in the position to tell you what happened during that period on to 2001.

In 1998, when we retreated, we passed through Makeni and Kono on our way to Kailahun where we referred to as Burkina Faso. In Kailahun, I was asked to establish a training base at a place called Bunumbu. All the civilians that we had abducted went through the training until they were commissioned. They were later distributed to the various frontlines. In 1998, when Kono was captured I was in Buedu. Mosquito asked me to go to Kono and establish a training base at Yengema at the Secondary School there. When Makeni was captured, all the abductees were sent to Kono and I knew of all the atrocities committed. Apart from being GSO1, I also held various posts. I was Chairman, Joint Security Board of Investigations and President of the Court Martial Board. I knew of all the atrocities which took place except the ones which were not brought before me. I knew of all the molestations faced by civilians during these periods. I became an advocate for the civilians and I knew of a number of rape cases committed by the RUF. I have documents to prove although some had been destroyed. I have evidence of atrocities committed by RUF, in, 1998, 2000, 2001 and 2002.

The atrocities only stopped after the DDR had commenced. A lot of people - both civilians and junior commandos of the RUF, were killed for things like diamond, gold and foreign currencies.

Prof. Schabas: What was the role of diamonds in the conflict in Sierra Leone in your opinion?

Rtd. Captain Kosia In 1991, the RUF only had command over a small portion of the Kailahun District. By then small scale mining was embarked on in places like Jojoima, Dodokotiema and Geiwa. We started mining on a large scale in 1999 when Kono and Tongo were captured. We had mining units and Issa Sesay was in charge. We had the different officers who were mining commanders. The diamond we were mining were handled by Mosquito & co. If a junior rank is caught with a diamond, he will be beaten until he's killed. When we had the diamond, it was transported to Issa and then from him Mosquito. Later it is taken to our sister country in Liberia what happened after I cannot tell but it was from these diamonds that we got arms and other logistics. This continued until when the Kono people returned to their base.

Prof. Schabas: Where children recruited into the RUF?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I was responsible for recruiting and training, according to my military knowledge, I set up a recruiting team in all the units. In my letter to them I always told them not recruit children. Whenever an attack was launched all those who were captured were recruited.

Some of the commandos and their wives normally abducted these children, to use them as slaves, and spies. They would be with them in their houses. I can remember when I was in Kono, I am asking the Commission to find out, I had over 85 SDUs and SBUs with me at Camp Lion base in Yengema. These children were captured, from Magburaka, Makeni and some other places, some were captured and some joined us voluntarily. After the training I gave them passes to go their parents. Some of the commanders refused to let go of them. Some even took them and married them.

Prof. Schabas: You told us that you were a boy soldier yourself at the age of 13 or 14. Were these boys abducted about this same age?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: To say the truth, some of them were even below the ages of 13 and 14.

Prof. Schabas: Did these things happen earlier in 1991/92 or in 1998/99?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: In 1993, some children were abducted and they were between the ages of 14,15 and some were even at the age of 9. In 1998, when we were chased out by ECOMOG, some the children we abducted were between the ages of 13 and 14.

Prof. Schabas: You spoke earlier of atrocities that were committed against civilians in 1998/99 and that you were the head of a court martial. Can you tell us the people who were responsible for these atrocities?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: In 1998, some abducted civilians who were with us, on the way, some of them wanted to escape, they were executed, but this was not to the knowledge of the high command.

In 1999, except, civilians wanted to escape because when the jet was flying over, they may want to cross over to Guinea or Liberia, most of the commanders who were manning check points killed civilians who were attempting to escape. After some of these civilians had left for Guinea and they want to return they would be accused of being spies. A lot of civilians were killed because of diamonds. I have documents to prove, but it was not to my knowledge, it was only when investigations were made that I became aware. When some of the combatants are detained for these crimes, at night, some top officials would release them on the excuse that they need men to fight and you cannot question that.

Prof.Schabas: Were you witness to some of these atrocities you are talking about?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I witnessed some of these atrocities. For instance, in 1991, I was at the base, when some recruits, who were sent from Makeni, were undergoing training, but some of them were unable to go through, and they decided to escape. Unfortunately, they were caught by the RUF and were sent back to base. The training commandant informed his immediate commando who was Issa Sesay and he ordered that they should be executed. I was not around, on my return I met all the boys, I told the commander to wait, so that I could negotiate with Issa. However, there was one who was singled out as the ringleader among the boys, he was killed and later the rest were killed on Issa's orders.

Civilians were killed because of diamonds, if your husband was a miner and he is suspected of having diamonds, you'll be tortured until you die. I witnessed about four or five of such cases. The other thing I witnessed was between an SLA - I have forgotten his name and Morris Kallon. He was killed because he said he was unable to join his colleagues to destroy a bridge. After they had been instructed by Morris Kallon, in a mustard parade.

Also on one occasion, Issa, Morris and I were travelling in a vehicle, and unfortunately one of Issa's body guard's trigger mistakenly went off and hit Issa's brother. He was killed by Issa with a pistol. I witnessed a lot of these incidents.

Rtd. Captain Schabas: Would you be ready to assist this Commission by bringing these documents forward?

Rtd. Captain Kosia -Most of the records have been destroyed; but the ones which I could lay hands on would be tendered to the Commission. Some of these records were top secrets and they are not here with me. I left them up country.

Prof. Schabas: You have spoken about the evil deeds of the commandos, I want to ask: was the RUF high command which you were part of aware of these atrocities?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: As far as I can tell the leader of the RUF didn't have these intentions initially. It was the people who made it what it turned out this way.

Prof. Schabas: You have spoken a lot about the atrocities perpetrated by the RUF; I want to know whether you yourself feel any personal responsibility for some of these things?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: I feel guilty of the atrocities committed by the RUF, but that doesn't mean that I was a perpetrator. For me personally, inhabitants of Kailahun and its environs would testify that I have never committed any atrocity to any one.

Justice Marcus Jones: It is good to have you here with the TRC, I only have a few questions to ask you. Were you comfortable to remain one of the RUF?

Rtd. Captain Kosia: No, but, when Foday came, he told us that he had come to liberate us from the rotten system. Since I was one of those victimised by the APC regime, I joined him.

Justice Marcus Jones: Did you get any benefit for the time you spent with them?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - No, because the people he came with had corrupted the revolution, I did not get any benefit. However, the only alternative I had at that time was to stay with the RUF because if I had come over to the other side they would have arrested me because I was being accused of deserting the army to become a rebel.

Justice Marcus Jones - Were you given any nickname?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I was the GSO I. I was responsible for training and recruiting. I was called Jungle Wizard.

Commissioner Torto - We really appreciate you for coming. I have series of questions to ask you. You have named a few people that were in the RUF such as Kassim a Lebanese; can you tell me the role he was playing?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Foday told me that those people were the founding members of the RUF and they were giving their support to the RUF before the initial attack in 1991.

Commissioner Torto - One of your responsibility as the GSO I was to plan attacks, we would want to know why the highways were ambushed?

Rtd Captain Kosia - We started ambushing the roads when we were under immense pressure. I was the master planner of those attacks. As a "Jungler", when you leave in the jungle you have to find ways to survive .

Commissioner Torto- If I understood you clearly, the aim of the ambushes was for food, but many a time people were killed and brutalised?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I am sorry that those things happened. It was because the commanders were not responsible enough to carry out their functions. They were going out of stipulated rules and regulations.

Commissioner Sooka: Thank you very much, I may want to ask you some questions for you to clarify certain things for us. I want you to tell us the name of the “big brother” you were referring to in your testimony?

Rtd.Captain Kosia - The Big Brother I was talking all these while about was Charles Taylor, his nickname by then because of security reasons was "Butterfly".

Commissioner Sooka. We would like you to tell us the link that was between Charles Taylor and Foday Sankoh?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - In my testimony, I said that in 1991, during the first attack at Bomaru, Charles Taylor and Foday Sankoh were in the dark. Foday was still at Camp Zogoda training his men. But when the international community blamed Charles Taylor for the attack, that was when he convinced Sankoh to launch his revolution.

So, he sent his men with very few vanguards. I want the Commission to know that of the 3,000 RUF recruited in Liberia, the majority were Liberians. The Liberians were fully in charge and Charles Taylor’s personal security and bodyguard was in overall command. I want the Commissioners to know that Foday Sankoh had no say in the organisation then. We took all instructions from NPFL; they had the arms, vehicles, radio. So, all instructions came from Charles Taylor.

Commissioner Sooka - What were the roles played by Charles Taylor?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Diamonds were transported to Charles Taylor in Liberia, what he did there I don’t know.

Commissioner Sooka - Earlier you told us that you were in charge of court martials ,did you report any of these atrocities to the high command?

Rtd Captain Kosia - If something happened in the war front, if I did not get any situation report, I would not have knowledge of anything. After I had conducted the investigation which composed of all the units in the frontline, if the leaders agreed, I mean when Foday, Issa were there , they may take any action.

When we were under the command of Foday Sankoh, we were surrounded by boys who took marijuana. In fact, most of the things they did in their houses, they were more often than not available in the office. When I investigated and made recommendations ; I was accused of being a dictator.

From 1991 up to 1994, I was the only combatant officer in the ranks of the RUF; so if I had not used my head, I would have been in the grave by now.

Commissioner Sooka- you said that you were responsible for recruitment and training, were women amongst those that were recruited and trained by the RUF?.

Rtd. Captain Kosia - We had women recruits and instructors up to 1994. In fact, the latest training commander I had was a woman. However, at a point in time, I suggested that we should not recruit women into the RUF because they took arms against themselves out of jealousy and quarrels.

Commissioner Sooka- You spoke about rape and molestation, could you tell us something more about these things?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Raping was rampant in 1991 up 1993 but from 1994 upwards it was not too rampant. But they were still doing it, not forgetting that we had rules and regulations. I have documents to the effect. Some commandos and some fighters were involved in raping, for instance, when they captured a town or an area they raped people. But some girls and even some women were ashamed to say it out and if it is not reported, no action would be taken.

Commissioner Jow - I would like to ask you few questions, in personal details. You told us that you were trained as a boy soldier when you were 13 years old, the Commission would like to know if this was a policy of the Colonial Administration?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - They told us that we were being trained to become future leaders in the country. It was a policy to train young men to become technicians and leaders of tomorrow. I want the Commissioners to know that most of us who passed through the boy's army, eventually became commissioned officers; like Hinga Norman and myself.

Commissioner Jow- Can you tell whether this policy continued after independence?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - No, I wish I knew.

Commissioner Jow- Can you tell us the criteria used to recruit boys into the RUF?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - In 1991, people went with the idea that people joined the RUF voluntarily. At about 1992, 1993 boys were abducted and forced to join the RUF, if you attempted to escape you'll be killed and their parents would be killed and their houses burnt down. There were those who joined the RUF because they were tired of being used as human caravans.

Commissioner Jow- Can you tell us what these boys' duties were?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Most of these small boys were behind their commanders, they were trained to use weapons. They were also used as spies and they were mostly sent on espionage missions by their commanders. In 1991, these small boys were used to execute people. They were also instructed to give punishments to civilians, some were even sent to the battle fronts to fight.

Commissioner Jow- I may want to say that somewhere along the way the RUF lost control of its fighters?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - That happened in 1992, when the NPFL knew that we wanted to get rid of them, all. I was one of those arrested; we were taken to Gbarnga, Foday was not there, he had gone into the jungle in hiding, so the only control that existed was that of the NPFL, that was the time killing was widespread. Immediately, they went away, I can tell you that there was no loss of control in the RUF.

Professor Kamara - Mr Kosia , permit me to ask you few questions. I want to take you back to your early statement, especially your reference for the cause of the war itself. You said, what you considered to be the cause of the war, was the split in the army, you joined the army in 1954, about seven years later, we got independence, so you knew what the conditions were in the army before and after independence, can you tell the Commission the major thing that caused the split in the army?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - There are other fundamental causes within and outside the army. I said some of the root causes originated in the army. It started with tribalism and sectionalism, because the two leaders have different loyalties and that went down the ranks. This division was such that we had the North-Western alliance and South-Eastern alliance. This went through right down to the rank and file in the army. That was the primary cause for the first military coup in 1966.

Professor Kamara- After this coup in 1966 which was masterminded by Brigadier Bangura which led to his arrest. You also said that there was an immediate counter coup after the election in 1967, I want to know what was the reason that led Brigadier Lansana to arrest the then Governor General and the then sworn Prime Minister?

Rtd Captain Kosia - After the election, we understood that there was a tie between the APC and the SLPP and because of Brigadier Lansana's connection with the SLPP and Sir. Albert Margai, people thought that he wanted to impose Sir Albert Margai and the SLPP on the nation. That led to his arrest by Blake, Jumu and Kaisamba following a counter coup.

Professor Kamara- Juxon Smith was called to head the government that was formed and you said that there were factions in the army based on region. Was this counter coup masterminded by one of these factions?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - In 1966, there was an attempted coup led by the late Amadu Bangura, with support from officers from the North and West against the SLPP government. These officers were arrested in 1966 and they were detained at the Pademba Road Prison during and after the elections in 1967. After the election in 1967, there was a tie between the SLPP and the APC, the late Brig. Lansana stepped in claiming that the full result had not yet been declared. He ordered the arrest of Siaka Stevens and the Governor General whilst they were at the swearing in ceremony. That was when he was apprehended Blake Jumu and Kaisamba. The NRC came in as a sort of rescue package and Juxon was called upon because he was seen as a neutralist. When he came he told us that he did not want to know anything about tribalism and that we were all Sierra Leoneans.

Commissioner Kamara- Blake and Jumu were encouraging the junior officers to stage a coup in 1968. But I heard you say that after the coup had taken place, they arrested all the officers including Blake, Jumu and Kaisamba, I want you to clarify that?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Yes Sir, I did say that, these officers had wanted to remove the late Juxon Smith from power, the coup boomeranged on them. The initial intention was to arrest all NRC members. However, they lost control of the situation; so all senior officers, including senior police officers were arrested. Prior to that, I had wanted to use a platoon which was under my control to launch a counter coup but I was restrained by a senior officer who said he did not want further bloodshed.

Professor Kamara- In 1971 there was an attempted coup; you said that Sankoh went in and made a statement, to the two senior officers and they made comments. However, when reaction was made to the coup, only one of the officers was arrested. Can you tell us why that happened?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - By 1971, Bangura was the Force Commander and Momoh was Battalion Commander. Whilst the fracas was on at the Wilberforce Barracks between the other ranks, that was when Momoh and Bangura were called to come forward and make certain clarifications. Momoh was really not in favour of the coup. It was Bangura who wanted the coup to take place. It was when he had instructed that the coup be staged, that was when Sam King and Caulker went on the air to announce that everything was under control. It was after this announcement that Bangura and others were arrested. At about the time we were at the meeting, Momoh was in constant communication with Siaka Stevens because they had formed the MIB and there was someone going in and out of the meeting.

Bishop Humper - I may want to ask you one personal question. What would you say; are your experiences when you were in the jungle and also when you were enlisted in the Army before?

Rtd.Captain Kosia - I think it is a very bitter experience I would not forget in a hurry. For the past thirty years, my family has suffered a lot. It was not through my own making. My duty to join the Army; was to contribute towards the development of my country. To my dismay, I was unjustly and hurriedly dismissed, so I decided to go back to my home town. After that I joined the RUF. On to this day, I am regretting it. It was a very sad experience.

Mr. Ojielo - I would like you to explain about the command structure in the RUF and what was the role of the key players in the RUF?

Rtd.Captain Kosia – Between 1991/1993, the command structure was in the hands of the NPFL, all the commanders were members of the NPFL. After the withdrawal of the NPFL, Foday called a meeting and he formed a seven man High Command and we were all non-combatants. Foday Sankoh was the Chairman and Tengbeh, myself, Deen Jalloh and three others whose names I can't remember, were members. At the frontline, we had the Brigade Commander who was called Mohamed Tarawallie aka.Zino (deceased), also we had Rashid Mansaray who is also dead and he, together with Zino were trained in Libya. We had Mosquito who started to fight in Pujehun, when he was chased out of that axis by the Kamajors, ULIMO K and the SLA, he came back to join us in Kailahun. Issa was also a frontline commander.

Mr. Ojielo - Between 1997 and 1999, who were the various frontline commanders in the various regions?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I left them in 1994 but before I left them, I wrote an Operation Order on Guerilla Warfare. The RUF frequently changed commanders. In the different areas I knew that Mosquito was responsible for one of the provinces, so also was Issa Sesay, Dennis Mingo, Morris Kallon and Mohamed Rogers who were all different commanders in charge of different areas. They were responsible for the training and supervision of their own men. However, the headquarters was still at Kailahun.

Mr. Ojielo - Can you tell us about the attack and looting of Makeni?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - In what year ?

Mr. Ojielo - In 1998 or 1999

Rtd. Captain Kosia - When the AFRC/RUF were retreating, a lot of looting took place, not forgetting that there were SLA and RUF in Makeni. By the time we reached Makeni, we met the town completely looted and vandalised. I walked on foot from Freetown to Makeni so it was practically impossible for me to loot. In all honesty, I would say that the RUF, SLA and AFRC were all responsible.

Mr. Ojielo - Who was in charge of Makeni?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Morris Kallon was in charge, but SLA commanders were there representing the AFRC. Morris Kallon was the senior. We had the RUF, AFRC and the SLA in Makeni. The same for Lungi, Bo, including Kono.

Mr. Ojielo - Was there any punishment for those who looted Makeni and if there was what type of punishment was meted out to them?

Kosia - To my knowledge, in 1998 whilst we were retreating there was no punishment for looters. It was after December 1998 when Kono was captured and in 1999 when Makeni was captured; when the junior commandos had started looting, that was when Issa said that nobody should loot his hometown. As a result, confusion ensued because people like Dennis Mingo were of the opinion that since other peoples places had been looted, nobody was going to stop them from looting Makeni. There was killing and Issa started killing people who were looting.

Mr. Ojielo - I want to get this right. Issa said that people should not loot and then people started looting. He killed those that were looting and that caused problems between him and Dennis Mingo?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Yes.

Mr. Ojielo - Could you discuss the abduction of UN Peace Keepers and can you tell who were responsible for these abductions?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - There was a time at about the time ceasefire was in effect and the RUF boys were running short of money. In order to get money, they will go the UNAMSIL Peace Keepers with their arms on the pretext that they wanted to disarm and in exchange the Peace Keepers will give them money. After a while these boys would return to get back their weapons and the Peace Keepers will disagree. So Morris Kallon and Issa Sesay, were in charge, decided that the only way to bring pressure to bear on these peace keepers was to arrest them. I would say that Morris Kallon and Issa Sesay were responsible. They took them to Kailahun, via Kono.

Ms. Schotsmans - The first thing I wanted to ask is a question about amputation. Would you confirm that this was a policy from the RUF high command?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I disagree with you, it was not a policy from the RUF high command, I am a living witness to testify that there were rules and regulation governing the RUF on issues like harassment, molestation and amputation. When the boys were at the frontlines, it was difficult for the high command to know of they were doing.

Ms. Schotsmans - Are you telling me that RUF high command was not aware of these amputations?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Well then I must say I was at the rear. It was not everything that I had knowledge of. Maybe some people had knowledge of these things or they may have instructed the boys to do such things but I must say I was not aware.

Ms. Schotsmans - Are you saying that the high command of the RUF put in place a structure they had no control of and did things that they could not know of?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Prior to the institution of the high command, the NPFL was in control. After it was set up, I did not spend much time with them and when I returned, I don't think the high command was in operation any longer.

Ms. Schotsmans - Up to what level were commanders aware of what was going on in the frontline?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - In the frontline, we had the battlefield commander who was responsible to move around and monitor what was happening at the battlefield. Then we had the battle-group commander who was responsible for making recommendations to the high command and the company commanders and people like Mosquito and Issa Sesay were meeting with these people to evaluate and assess the needs of the operations. Most things were settled out in the frontlines.

Ms. Schotsmans – So, these people that you named, Mosquito and Issa Sesay, they knew what was happening?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Yes, they were aware, because they had vehicles, hand sets, security guards who monitor people's activities. They must have known.

Ms. Schotsmans - Did they give orders to stop such acts?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - If they were part and parcel of it, could they give orders?

Ms. Schotsmans- If they knew what was going on do you think they could have given orders to stop such violations?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Not to my knowledge. I have never seen a memo. written to commanders in the frontline to stop them from looting. Whenever, a rape case is reported to me the person would be detained. Before I could conclude my investigations, the accused will be released and sent to the war front. On many occasions, that was the situation.

Ms. Schotsmans -In your opinion, no punishment was given except to detain the perpetrator in the guardroom?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - There were punishments. I am a living testimony, when the NPFL were withdrawn, two boys were executed for rape; most times people were detained for negligence of duty.

Ms. Schotsmans - You said boys and girls were abducted and later used as wives or slaves. I want you to clarify how these marriages came about. Did the girls consent?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - We do not have mother-in-laws and father-in-laws in the jungle; when a beautiful woman was captured she automatically became a wife to a commando.

Ms. Schotsmans - Can you tell their ages?

Rtd. Captain Kosia - Some were grown-ups and some were between the ages of 14 and 15 years old.

Professor Schabas - You have been with us for the past 6 hours, now its your turn to ask us question or give us some recommendations to include in our report.

Rtd. Captain Kosia - I want to thank the Chairman and Commissioners for their patience and understanding in letting me give my testimony. If I say I should go on I would continue like this for three years. I had waited for such an opportunity in pain, in sorrow and with bitterness; for thirty years. Also, I want to assure this Commission that I will avail myself any time they need me. If there is any document that you may require from me, I will be ready to come forward with them.

I want to make this known to the government through this Commission that I had suffered for so long and other people too had gone through this same ordeal. I have been victimised in the army since 1973, I was stripped of all my benefit.

I want Momoh and others to come and testify here, Mr. Chairman, if I had seen Momoh at Kailahun he would have been in his grave .

For people like us who were prematurely retired, I would want them revisit the army structures and ensure that that these issues are addressed and those whose benefits are due receive them.

When the war started, you were in the city, the soldiers who were responsible for what had happened, they came out and told lies, I would like them to be brought before the commission.

Professor Schabas - If you have any other recommendations, you can write them and send them to the commission. We want to thank you for the courage.

Date: 17th April, 2003.

THE OATH:

I, Alfred Boyzi Tugbe Toby, do solemnly swear, before this commission, that the testimony I shall give, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So, help me God.

TESTIMONY

Mr. Chairman, before the commencement of my testimony, from the bottom of my heart, I say, to God be the glory, for the implementation of this commission. I wish the Chairman and his Commissioners success in their endeavours for a good report that will benefit both present and future generations of this our beloved nation.

Bishop Humper : Thank you, you can go ahead to give your testimony.

TOBY: My testimony is this. I recall the dates; 12TH / 13TH February, 1998 when the news of the departure of ECOMOG intervention contingent led by the late Mitikishi Maxwell Khobe from Kosso town to Freetown had been the talk of the town. May his soul, rest in peace. On that day I had been threatened by a brother in the faith, whose name I do not want to disclose because I love him still .His threat caused me to abandon my home until ECOMOG contingent took control of the entire city on the 13th instant. On the very 13th, I moved from my hideout to see my family at Ferguson Lane, and on seeing my wife, I composed myself with a smile. And regrettably, her response was a responsible shock to me; the news of my son, Frederick Toby's critical condition with the Red Crossers. And, according to her his condition resulted from a Rocket Propelled Grenade attack where he and some others had sustained wounds. The grenade attack hit them at the Ferguson Street Municipal School compound where the entire Ferguson Lane community had fled to for safety when a bomb blast had killed two people within the said Ferguson Lane community. According to information, the weapon was used as a vengeance strike by the supporters of the then illegitimate government which the ECOMOG Contingent successfully and triumphantly unseated, to facilitate the reinstatement of the legitimate government then in exile. The suspects in the shooting incident were allegedly: {1}. A soldier named Desmond Johnson and a police; SSD, known as Koleh, both of Benjamin Lane, Freetown. On the very 13th instant, I went to the Red Cross Centre to see my son. But to my utter dismay, I was told that Frederick had died in the early hours of the 13th and that he had been buried in a mass grave. It was as if the cloud was resting upon my head. I encountered a sudden depression in my nervous system; only Jesus, on that spot, sustained me. Sometime this year, a TRC male statement taker called at my address and informed me of his mission. He was welcomed. I gave him the necessary information he required with a documentary evidence of my son's death. Subsequently, I was invited at the TRC office on the 8th instant, to which I responded and entertained accordingly, to my delight. That's all I have to say.

Bishop Humper: Brother Toby, we'll give you a few minutes to catch your breath. We want to thank you for coming to this commission today. We know what it means to lose a child. We hope that your coming here will make a difference in your life. I will like to invite commissioners, may be they may have some questions to ask for clarification.

Commissioner Jow: Thank you for your testimony. We thank you for your courage in appearing before the T R C. We are sorry and, we sympathize with you about what happened to your son. We would like to ask a few questions to clarify your testimony further. In your testimony you did say that you left your home because you were threatened by a brother. The commission would like to know the nature of the threat; not the name of your brother, and why?

Mr. Toby: He threatened me because I was not in support of the government at that time, that illegitimate government; and I was one of those that were expecting the intervention. So, when the news came that the ECOMOG contingent was on the way coming to Freetown, the brother approached me and said to me, in Krio language: “Yu Pa Toby, na una de sopot intavenshon, if intavenshon fail, a go point yu”. That was his remark.

Commissioner Jow : Thank you Mr. Toby, a further question, how are you getting on with this brother, are you still living in the same area?

Mr. Toby: No.

Commissioner Jow: Would you like the commission to arrange a meeting between you and your brother for the purpose of reconciliation?

Mr. Toby: To me, the essence of this commission is to know the truth and forgive. I have forgiven him, I don't want him to meet with me; I've forgiven him as a Christian. What he had meant for me, God didn't allow it to happen; so I am an overcomer, there is no need for me to meet with him. I talk to him now and again, we meet, we chat. There is no need.

Professor Kamara: Mr. Toby thank you for what you've done, I would just like you to clarify this point. Do you, at any time, or perhaps even now connect this shooting at this campus with this threat which your brother made?

Mr. Toby: No.

Bishop Humper: The soldier and police, who were they?

Mr. Toby: They were members of the AFRC.

Commissioner Torto: Please make one thing clear for me. According to your testimony, Koleh and the soldier saw a group of boys playing soccer in that school yard and shot into them, was it then that your son was killed?

Mr. Toby: Yes; the elders were in the building and the children were in the field, playing. I was not in the area, I was told by those who were around.

Commissioner Torto: Is there anything to show that your son was targeted?

Mr. Toby: My son was not the only one who was killed; other children died too; they were buried in a mass grave.

Commissioner Sooka: How many children died that day, since you said that your son was buried in a mass grave?

Mr. Toby: I cannot say exactly, but I know a friend, one David Greene, who also lost his 21 year old son.

Justice Marcus Jones: Thank you for coming to help the TRC. Have you any idea where the mass grave is?

Mr. Toby: Yes. The address is written in the testimony I gave to you. It is Calmont Road.

Ms.Schotsmans: We sympathize with you. Did you know these two perpetrators before the shooting?

Mr. Toby: One I knew as a school boy, but I am sure he had nothing against me, it was just that they were working in support of their government.

Ms. Schotsmans: I believe that these two perpetrators are still living in Freetown?

Mr. Toby: The other one was showed to me and I have no business with him. Kolley I had known even when he was going to school and I have no close dealings with him.

Ms.Schotsmans: After your son's death, did you ever meet with them or ever had cause to talk with them?

Mr. Toby: No.

Ms. Schotsmans: The commission will like to call them to come and testify since you have mentioned their names.

Mr. Toby: I can't stress that on the TRC because I have no evidence; I only learnt this by hearsay.

Bishop Humper: Thank you for coming. We have been asking you questions, do you, in turn, have any question or recommendations to make to the commission?

Mr. Toby: Just a recommendation, in respect of the lawlessness in the country, due to idleness. Government should do something about it. We need a responsible and good structured government which will care for its people, give better accommodation, building schemes, low cost housing for less fortunate people. The wealth of our country is all over the world; there is no reason why people should suffer. There should be job opportunities and better salaries, medical facilities, quality education. Agriculture should be given a priority; a state farm should be implemented; reinstatement of the railways will help the country greatly. The judiciary; people's time are wasted unnecessarily when they know that the matter has no legality; poor police investigations done willfully to receive bribes; Anti-corruption should be given the mandate to look into matters.

Bishop Humper: Thanks. I think that your recommendations are all embracing, we will look into the matter, and the TRC will continue to identify itself with you and prays that God continues to touch you.

THE OATH:

I, Sahr Meh-meh Nicol, do solemnly swear that the testimony I shall give before this commission, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So, help me God.

TESTIMONY:

I thank the TRC for the opportunity given to me to lighten my bosom. I was at the east end of town, 36 Newcastle Street, Kissy. I was a CDU and we used to mount check points at Newcastle Street junction, via Passonage Street. By 1:00pm one night, a group of people from Calaba town area came around. We interrogated them and they told us that rebels had entered into the city.

We told them that those people were not rebels; by then it had been announced on 98.1 Radio that ECOMOG was on a mopping up operation in the hills. At 1:30 the same night, we saw another large group of people, and we told them the same story. They told us that those were not ECOMOG. The firing became more intense and we woke our neighbours up and told them that the rebels had come. We ran to the city hall. In the morning, we tried to move towards Congo town, but we saw rebels coming from Connaught and Government Wharf. So, we decided to go back to city hall. We were afraid to continue our journey because of the way in which we were dressed; we were afraid of being termed as rebels. I decided to return home; I saw some of our neighbours in our vicinity. That night, my neighbours and I slept in the cemetery; we were afraid of sleeping in our houses.

On the 7th, I had SLA and RUF visitors. One of the SLA soldiers was my close neighbour and my "name sake". I accommodated them out of fear; they had guns. We all sat together, but Sahr came with a girl whom he had abducted. They slept together in the house and I slept in the cemetery. In the morning of the following day, one of the rebels accused us for not sleeping in the same place with them, and that we came around in the morning only. I told them that I did not sleep in the house where they slept because of the lack of enough space to accommodate all of us. At that time they were setting houses on fire; in the process, the girl whom Sahr had brought to the house, escaped. When he came back and did not find the girl, he asked us her whereabouts? But we did not know anything about her whereabouts, and we told him that. He was very angry and was mad at us. He asked his colleagues to take their possessions out of the house. After they had taken out their possessions, Sahr set the house; our house, ablaze. I was there until the flames came down. He then gave me his belongings to carry. When we went to his own residence (former residence), he went into the house, came out and then asked me to go with him. As we went up the hills towards Mess-Mess, we heard the sound of the ECOMOG jet and we dashed into hiding. When we got to Brima Lane, the jet fired shots and they rushed into hiding. I then threw his load which I was carrying, and I took another route. I saw a friend whose two arms had been chopped off. I met the guys who had chopped off the arms of my friend I took a by-pass route. A sergeant Blood asked me to stretch my hands, but I began to plead with him. He did not listen to my plea, and since I did not have anybody to plead on my behalf, I decided to put up a fight. They had an axe with a wooden short handle and a metal head which they said that they got from Dock Yard. As we were wrestling, one of them hit and wounded my hand. I was shouting as I ran away; they were shooting at me.

On my way, I met a woman who wrapped my hand with her wrapper. We walked through Leicester unto Sorie town. I met a woman who had lived in the east end of town, who helped me greatly. She took me to a Dr. Dumbuya and paid the bill for the treatment of my hand. However, my hand was not properly treated; I feel pain whenever the weather is cold. When the raining season approaches, I usually ask aunty to put money aside for P.O.P which is always put on my hand until the end of the rainy season.

Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming.

Justice Marcus Jones: Did the other Sahr, the SLA, have any grudge against you?

Mr. Nicol: No.

Justice Marcus Jones: Why do you think he did not give you any help?

Mr. Nicol: I don't know.

Justice Marcus Jones: Sahr, do you think he was under the influence of any drugs?

Mr. Nicol: Yes.

Justice Marcus Jones: Do you know the whereabouts of the other Sahr?

Mr. Nicol: He lives at 65 Davies Street, Kissy.

Commissioner Torto: Is he still with the army?

Mr. Nicol: I don't see him in military fatigue anymore, so I don't know.

Commissioner Torto : Is there any relationship between you now?

Mr. Nicol: No, instead when he sees me now, he does not look at me in my face.

Commissioner Torto: Would you like the commission to arrange a meeting between you?

Mr. Nicol: Yes.

Professor Kamara: Let me take you back to Sahr, your friend, as you said you said, you knew him well, before the incident of 6th - 8th January. How much did you really know Sahr; were you close friends?

SAHR: He was not my close friend, but there was a woman who sold cooked rice in their compound, and I used to go there to buy food. We used to see and talk to each other, and when he learnt that we had the same name, he began to call me "Torma".

Professor Kamara: You said that you would like to meet with Sahr so that he could testify you have said the truth. Would you like to go beyond that to, at least, settle your differences?

Mr. Nicol: Yes, because I have no grudge for him, and I hate it when he looks away whenever he sees me.

Professor Kamara: Do you know the present address of the woman who helped you?

Mr. Nicol: Yes, I don't live in the east end anymore; she lives at Congo town, and I also live in a camp at Congo town.

Ms Schotsmans: Do you know Sahr's second name?

Mr. Nicol: No, I only know his first name.

Ms. Schotsmans: You said that Sahr came along with a girl, did she come along voluntarily or was she forced?

Mr. Nicol: She was abducted.

Ms. Schotsmans: Was this girl raped?

Mr. Nicol: I wouldn't know; they stayed in a separate room.

Ms.Schotsmans: How old do you think she was?

Mr. Nicol: She must have been between 20 and 25 years.

Ms. Schotsmans: Was she one of your neighbours?

Mr. Nicol: No.

Bishop Humper: We have asked you questions, now it is your turn to ask questions or make recommendations to the commission.

Mr. Nicol: All I ask the government is to help all those who had been victims of the war.

CHAIRMAN: We thank you and we sympathize with you for your loss. We hope and pray that you and those helping to put the report together will help to keep your respect and dignity.

WITNESS NAME: IBRAHIM

REFERENCE NO:

THE OATH:

I, Ibrahim, do solemnly swear, before this commission, that the evidence I shall give, shall be the truth, the whole truth and nothing, but the truth. So help me Allah.

TESTIMONY:

Bishop Humper: You are a special person to the TRC and we welcome you. You are just as important as any other person around. You will help the commission to help the nation solve some of its problems.

IBRAHIM: I thank the TRC for encouraging me and giving me the opportunity to meet with important personalities. I thank God and pray that I will be like them some day.

On a Friday, January 22nd, I was at home preparing food for me and my friends to eat. Then my wife had just put to bed and had travelled. My two friends and my brother were in the house cooking, when we saw boys enter the compound and surround the house. When my in-law saw them he dashed into hiding under a bed in the bedroom. My other friend hid himself in the mattress by the wall. They came and captured one of my friends and me, and enquired about the inmates. I told them that the others had escaped and that I had no authority to keep people. My response angered them and one of them threatened to shoot at us; there were six of them but only one of them had a gun. One of them that was drinking beer threw the empty pint at me, but I dodged it. The friend who was with me was very nervous whilst I was talking to the rebels. I tried to console him by telling him that even if we were going to die, we should die like men. At that point, the guys who came said that I was a great guy because I was not afraid of them. The guy who was drinking the beer, and who had thrown the empty pint at me, took the gun from his colleague and shot at my friend. My friend had a shirt on, and I was half naked. Seeing that, I thought that the next target was me, so I rushed at the guy who had shot at my friend, and I grabbed the gun; they had only one gun, and I even doubted whether they had enough ammunition. They then shouted out that they had seen Kamajors. That they had shot at my friend and that they had started referring to me as Kamajor. I put up a stiff fight. I had knocked four of them to the ground, and was wrestling with the fifth one who seemed to be the fittest, when I saw another group approaching. I had to run away. I was running towards TEXACO when I met another batch at Ferry junction. I had no means of escape, so I had to stay with the rebels. I told them that I had lost my brother and that I wished to go with them into the jungle. One of them whose face was familiar asked whether I actually wanted to go with them into the jungle, and I said yes. He advised me to escape; he pointed a gun at me in the guise of threatening me, and told me to use that as a cover to escape. On my way, in the east end of town, they arrested me and accused me of being a rebel. I told them my father had left me in the house, and that if I was a rebel, I would not have been there; I told them that I was even there the previous day. After they had beaten me, they sent to ECOMOG that they had caught a rebel; they hoped that ECOMOG would come and kill me. I was wounded, and should I shave my head, even now, you would see the scars. The guy who had run away from my house was among the crowd which came to see who the rebel was. When he saw me, he intervened on my behalf; he even brought out a picture which we had taken together. At that point, a taxi driver called Mohamed, came with a long stick and hit me on the back; when I raised my head, he recognized me and he threw the stick and started pleading with the crowd on my behalf. He told them that I was his friend's son, and that whenever he went to our house, I gave him water to drink. By that time, ECOMOG was approaching. I was then taken to the Rev. Father for identification and he testified that I was not a rebel. I was then released and I went down the street to a man who administered medication to me. He stitched my head without anesthetic.

Justice Marcus Jones: I thank you very much Ibrahim. Do you know what happened to your friend who was shot, did he die?

Mr. Ibrahim: We came back to take care of the corpse.

Justice Marcus Jones: When and how did you do that?

Mr. Ibrahim: A while after I had been treated, I got some friends who helped to drag the corpse to clay factory where we shabbily buried the body. When the whole thing subsided, his body was exhumed and given a befitting burial by a group which went around for that purpose.

Commissioner Torto: We sympathize with you, most people cannot go through all what you went through. I have one question for you. Do you know the group of people who attacked?

Mr. Ibrahim: They were the junta men who came on January 6th.

Commissioner Torto: Could you identify which group they belonged to; kamajors, donsos, rebels or what?

Mr. Ibrahim: I am convinced that those were not kamajors or SLA, they were the jungle group.

Commissioner Jow: I join other commissioners in thanking you. In your statement, you said, “Boys”, were they really young boys?

Mr. Ibrahim: No.

Commissioner Jow: You said that they had arms, can you tell which kind?

Mr. Ibrahim: They called it G3.

Commissioner Jow: Can you identify any one of them?

Mr. Ibrahim: No, it’s a long time now. I think that it was towards the end of the disarmament process that I saw one of them; a fair in complexion one.

Commissioner Jow: Was Santigie your true biological brother?

Mr. Ibrahim: No, we grew up together and we planned and did every thing together.

Commissioner Jow: Did his family know about his death and did they bury him properly?

Mr. Ibrahim: Yes.

Bishop Humper: I have a few questions for you. Talking about what you saw and your experiences at the stadium, you said that they entered and were killing suspected rebels, is that correct?

Mr. Ibrahim: Yes. I left the stadium because the kamajors were arresting and killing indiscriminately, and by then I had sustained injuries, so I had to leave lest the worst should befall me.

Bishop Humper: Did you see any killings take place at the stadium?

Mr. Ibrahim: Yes, the kamajors killed a woman called Zainab.

Bishop Humper: Was the security at stadium manned by the kamajors alone?

Mr. Ibrahim: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Were they the only security present?

Mr. Ibrahim : Yes; where I was at the stadium; I was at the hostel, I did not walk about because I felt pain; I sat on the piazza and went inside when I was tired. The only security I saw were kamajors.

Bishop Humper: We have asked you a lot of questions, do you have any questions to ask, suggestions or recommendations to make?

Mr. Ibrahim: I do not have any question to ask, but I have a recommendation.

I thank the TRC for this opportunity. May god bless all the leaders who mean well and want to bring peace to this country so that generations yet unborn will enjoy. We have wasted ten years of our lives. All those who have suffered should be properly taken care of and I am appealing to you that we all join hands together to work for the good of this country.

CHAIRMAN: We thank you very much for coming to testify before the commission.

Date - 22 April, 2003

Witness Name - Moses Sam Kossaba

Witness No:

Reference No :

The witness was sworn on oath by the Commissioner Satang Jow, the Presiding Commissioner. He is a Christian.

Testimony:

I am 33 years old. I live at 105 Pademba Road Freetown. I am here on behalf of my late brother who was killed in a Kamajor ambush. He was travelling to Kono from Tongo on some diamond business. On his way to Kono, he fell in an ambush. Three of them were arrested. They were searched and beaten with machete from which they sustained some severe injuries. The Kamajors discovered that my brother had some money and diamonds on him. As a result of this, they then decided to take my brother away from the others. One of the other two abductees said that they heard the commander saying he was not satisfied with my brother because he was very strong; he felt he was a soldier. The commander said they were going to prepare my brother for their meal. He was taken further into the forest but not too far from where the others were waiting. Shortly after, they heard a gunshot and it was followed by jubilation and merry-making from their captors. At that time, night was fast approaching. The other two decided that it was an opportunity for them to escape because they felt that after Sam Kossaba - (my brother), it will be their turn. Whilst they were hiding in the bush, they said, they saw the Kamajors carrying some meat which they placed on palm fronds. They were able to manoeuvre and they left the area for another village. The people in that village provided lodging for them and the following day facilitated their return to Koidu.

Commissioner Sooka ...Who told you what happened because you were not present at the scene?

Mr. Kossaba : One of the men who had escaped. They were admitted at the Koidu Government Hospital. I met them there and one of them narrated this to me.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell where they are at presently?

Mr. Kossaba: No.

Commissioner Sooka :Can you tell us the name of this individual who told you about the incident?

Mr. Kossaba : His name is Sheku, but I don't know his surname.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you know anything about your brother's business?

Moses He was dealing in diamonds.

Prof. Kamara - Where did this incident take place?

Moses Between Kono and Tongo

Prof. Kamara - Did you try to find out what happened to the body of your brother?

Moses I tried but the Kamajors were everywhere.

Prof. Kamara - Did people in the village where these two boys went to, tell you anything more than what the other boys in the hospital said to you?

Moses No. My father sent his brother who was living around the village to gather more information about the incidence but he couldn't get anything to add.

Prof. Kamara - Could you tell of any other such incidence of cannibalism beside that of your brother?

Moses That was the first incident I heard about. However, I later heard of about two or more of such incidences.

Justice Marcus Jones - Did these other fellows see the Kamajors eating the flesh of your brother?

Moses. They did not say that to me

Justice Marcus Jones - Whilst these Kamajors were jubilating, were these boys able to identify in what language they were jubilating in?

Moses They were singing in Mende.

Comm. Torto .Since you know that it was the Kamajors who arrested your brother, did you make any move to take the matter up with any higher authority?

Moses No. Many people in Kono knew about the incident. Also we don't know who in particular to hold responsible.

Comm. Jow - Did your brother have any other influence in Kono?

Moses No

Comm. Jow - Did he associate himself with any military or political group?

Moses No

Martien Schotmans thanked the witness and said that she has no question to ask Moses.

The chairperson I thank you for coming to testify. Have you any question to ask.?

Moses..... I have no question. I am a Christian and believe in God. I have no recommendation. I am here in the interest of peace.

Thank you for coming.

HAWAH KOROMA - 2ND WITNESS

Hawah Koroma was sworn on oath. She is a Muslim.

It was on a Friday that the war reached us. My grandchildren and I were three in the house. One was pregnant. The other was an adolescent and in puberty age. A man holding a gun approached us in the house and shot into the air. My grandchildren fled the house running and they were pursued by the attackers. The pregnant woman was shot and killed; the adolescent one was also killed. I fled into the bush and wept. I was there for the rest of the day crying and did not see them. Those who returned to the town told me that they have killed my grand-children. I cried. I did not know whether they were given befitting funeral. Also Alhaji Umaru was killed. All our belongings left in the house when we went away, were looted. We were in the bush for quite sometime. Later I went to Kenema and one day I heard sporadic gunshots. There was pandemonium and people were running helter-skelter. I was not properly dressed at that time and the weather was very cold. I slept in the bush and in the morning, people came and told us to go back to town. After that nothing happened again. This is my testimony.

Comm Jow – We thank you for coming despite your age. We at the TRC, are happy that you brought out the truth and we are happy that once the truth has been acknowledged we can sustain the peace in Sierra Leone.

Comm. Torto - Who was this Alhaji Umaru?

Hawah - He was a prominent personality in Janjahun. He was a learned man but I could not remember his status.

Comm. Torto - Was he a chief?

Hawah - He was a prominent man and a learned man.

Comm. Torto - Were these people speaking in languages you do not understand?

Hawah - Yes.

Justice Marcus Jones - We are sorry for the experience you had and the loss of your third grand daughter. Did she have treatment for her bullet wound?

Hawah - She was treated and she is now married.

Prof. Kamara - We are in sympathy with you. We know that you went through a very difficult time and now I see that your address here is No.6 Wilson Street, Freetown. When did you come down to No. 6 Wilson street, Freetown?

Hawah - During the dry season this year.

Prof. Kamara - All the time you were in the province. Was it in Kenema?

Hawah - I was in Kenema. It was when I left Kenema that I came to my current abode.

Prof. Kamara - How are you managing to survive?

Hawah - I am currently leaving with my son. My children are the ones taking care of me. The person who catered for me was killed. It was towards the end of the war that he was killed.

Prof. Kamara - Was he killed by rebels or through natural death?

Hawah - I left him in Kenema where they killed him.

Mrs Jow - Can you tell us why your three grand daughters were leaving with you in that village?

Hawah - When they attacked their place, they moved to my place.

Mr. Charm - Apart from your two grand daughters and this Alhaji Umaru who were killed - were there other people killed?

Hawah – No. When we were hiding in the bush they told us that other people were killed.

Mr. Charm - Apart from this incident do you know of anything in the village?

Hawah - I will lie if I say anything. I can't say anything

Comm. Jow - This is now your turn to ask questions or you may wish to make any recommendation for the commission to consider.

Hawah - Just the killing of my three grand children I went through a lot of suffering. I did not get anything to eat only empty sauce.

Comm Jow – We thank you very much for coming and I want to assure that what you have said will be included in our report.

ADAMA BABY SANKOH - 3RD WITNESS

22ND April, 2003

Witness name Adama Sankoh.

My name is Adama Sankoh. I am a muslim. sworn by the Quoran.

The rebels burnt down my grandfather's house. He had wanted to resist them but they hit with a stick before the house was burnt. One of my aunt and her children who were up the provinces; she was partly blind and was killed at the place she had gone to seek refuge; my elder brother's body was mutilated; he couldn't withstand the pain. He eventually died. This is my story.

Prof. Kamara - I thank you for coming and for your testimony. What happened to you after the incident in 1999?

Adama My grandfather's house was burnt and he was beaten with sticks because he resisted them and my aunt who was partly blind had wanted to escape but was killed. My elder brother was beaten with a machete.

Prof. Kamara - What did you do and where did you go?

Adama I was in Freetown.

Prof. Kamara - Did you go to any of the camps?

Adama I did not go anywhere.

Prof. Kamara - I see you have your baby with you. Are you with your husband?

Adama I am with my mother in law who is taking care of me and my baby.

Bishop Joseph Humper - Were you present when your aunt was killed? If no, who told you about it?

Adama My cousin, her son.

Bishop Joseph Humper - Do you know the name of the son?

Adama Yes. His name is Mohamed Conteh.

Comm. Sylvanus Torto - You said those who did this thing to you were rebels. How did you know they were rebels? What type of rebels?

Adama I cannot tell which group they belonged to because my cousin told me about it.

Comm. Jow - In your testimony you said that your cousin told you about what happened. Is he still around or was he in the village when that happened?

Adama Yes he was there.

Comm. Jow - Did you know whether he made statement to the statement takers?

Adama No. I donot think so.

Comm. Jow - Is there any way we can contact Mohamed?

Adama Yes.

Comm. Jow - Where does he stay?

Adama He usually moves up and about. Most time he is in the provinces and at times in Freetown.

Leaders of Evidence

No questions

Comm. Jow - Adama, We have heard your story. We have asked you questions. It is now your turn to ask questions and make recommendations.

Adama - Now this thing has happened we have forgotten about it. Since you send your statement takers to take statements, we have testified. We do not know what you will do for us.

Comm Jow – The TRC cannot do anything for you readily. However we have listened to your story and I want to assure that what you have said will form an integral part of our report.

CLOSED HEARINGS

WITNESS NAME: FATMATA KAMARA

WITNESS NO:

REFERENCE NO:

TESTIMONY

The witness was sworn on oath by the Commissioner Yasmine Sooka, the Presiding Commissioner.

She is a Born Again Christian.

Comm. Sooka While many of our staff know what the purpose of the hearing is, it might be useful just to explain for your benefit, that it is really an opportunity for people to come forward to talk about their experiences but also to ensure that we are able to put mechanisms in place so that these things don't happen again. And so we would welcome not only your testimony but also your own feedback about what can be imposed so that people can get on with their lives.

Testimony

I was staying at Kingtom when the rebels came into Freetown. When the rebels entered the city they started shooting, but I did not know that the rebels had entered. We asked some people running from Kroo Bay what happened but they refused to tell us. A man told us that we should be on the run, as rebels had entered Kingtom. The rebels wanted to take over the power house that was why we were told to leave Kingtom. Some ECOMOG officers were at the power house. The rebels wanted them to leave the power house or else all the civilians would be endangered. I and my sister went into hiding at Prince of Wales School but bullets were flying all over so we were unable to stay. The rebels asked all of us to leave the area. The elders were asked to leave the place and find somewhere safer. My father asked me to leave the area but I refused. My brother, myself, and one of my elder sisters, left for a mosque at Kingtom. We were at the mosque and the area was bushy. There was a lady who was cooking outside and she saw the rebels. As soon as we heard the woman talking to the rebels, we realized that they had located us. We were advised to hide at Fawaz compound at Kingtom, the place was very quiet initially and the rebels didn't know that we were there. They later located us and demanded that we give them some pigs. We were not sure whether somebody had not told the rebels that we were inside the mosque. Later on at night, they came back to the mosque and knocked; we suspected that some boys had told them that we were there.

They called out a man's name; he was surprised they knew his name. A woman advised that we must not open the door. I was afraid.

They started firing into the mosque and killed some people; six of us had to hide. My younger sister was afraid, because a bullet had hit her on the shoulder. I had to hold her on my chest but out of fright and pain, she shouted and the rebels knew that people were there. Immediately they entered and pointed guns at us and we were asked out of the building.

The rebels were dressed in full combat uniform. So they took my sister and said that because I didn't respond to their earlier call, they will kill my sister. They beheaded my sister and took us to Seven Up garage. They killed two of my friends. At that time I was a virgin, I have done nothing wrong, they have killed my sister, my mother and father. (Crying)

After they had chopped off Aminata's head, the commando said that I was good looking and he raped me. The commando was not satisfied in doing so, he also ordered one of his boys and he too raped me. I told them that they should kill me instead of raping me. "Oh God, Why me."

After amputating my friend's hand, he called one of his boys and he raped me, they said they were still not satisfied, they tied us and chopped off our feet, after chopping my feet I became unconscious. I was there for four days no body came to my aid. My feet were rotten and maggot was coming out of my feet. After four days I gained consciousness, I called out one of my friend who was lying close to me, but she was dead. Then I said that it was useless for me to be alive. On the fifth day, I was half conscious and I saw some of the ECOMOG soldiers, they were in a burnt house; as soon as the ECOMOG soldiers wanted to pick me up I became unconscious. I was later taken to the Connaught hospital, not knowing the whereabouts of my friends. I was taken to the theatre and after regaining consciousness, I asked for my friends. I saw the ECOMOG officers again, they told me that they picked me up from Kingtom, but did not know the whereabouts of my friends and parents.

Monica promised me that I would be admitted at ward one. Unfortunately for me, Monica's husband was abducted and his feet amputated. She had promised to take me out of the country before then.

I overheard one Dr Bundu, explaining that I was pregnant. He was afraid to give me the information but Monica counseled and consoled me. She lifted me up and put me on the wheel chair and took me to the back of the hospital and explained everything to me, saying that I was pregnant. As soon as she told me that I fell down from the Wheel chair and started knocking my stomach. I asked Monica what would happen to me. She said that I must choose what I would like her to do with the pregnancy. I told Monica that I had no parents, how can I be pregnant without boyfriend and no parent. I told her to do abortion. Monica advised me not to do the abortion. I told her that the baby would have no father; she said no and promised to take care of the baby. The next morning, they were preparing breakfast using some bread knives; I took one of the knives and said if they refused to do the abortion, I would kill myself and anybody who attempted to come closer because I had no where to go. I later came to stay with one of my friend at Bay. I was later directed to the Amputee Camp, where I am still residing. I later attended a class at one hairdressing saloon, I have completed the course but I had no tools to do the job. I have nothing to eat, at times I had to go down to town begging for alms. That is my story.

Comm. Sooka - We are deeply touched by what you told us. What we want to do now is to ask you questions that will help us to understand what happened to you and your friends.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Thank you Fatmata for sharing your experiences with us, we are deeply sorry for what happened to you. We want to ask you some questions. The time you were hospitalized, can you describe your experience in the hospital?

Fatmata – I was not feeling good when I was hospitalized, because I was pregnant without a husband and it wasn't out of pleasure. I had an abortion but that is not the point for me now. The problem for me now is I have been taught a trade without having help from people. I have to go out in the street begging alms. I am begging the Commissioners that the people who had committed these atrocities, if by any means they would get hold of them, my suggestion is that they should pay the price.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Do you know their whereabouts?

Fatmata – I don't know their names, but if I set eyes on them I can recognize them.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Were you strong to complete this course?

Fatmata - I was having some problems with my amputated legs.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Do you have peaceful night rests?

Fatmata – I do not have peaceful nights because I am always thinking of my hairdressing tools.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Have you been able to contact any of your family members?

Fatmata – No, because my former residence was burnt.

Comm. Jow – I want to join my colleagues in thanking you and I admire your courage, we are all women and we have children. We have understood all your ordeals, we have tried to empathise with you. I want to ask you some questions to clarify what you have told us. We would like to know your personal circumstances before the incidence. What did your family comprise of? Who were the people you lived with?

Fatmata – I was staying with a friend of mine.

Comm. Jow - You mentioned about your parents?

Fatmata – My mother was staying in Lungi, she only came for visits

Comm. Jow - Do you have any other relative?

Fatmata – Yes, they are all staying in Lungi, because of the transport problem, they are unable to visit.

Comm. Jow - How old were you when they raped you?

Fatmata - About 15 to 16.

Comm. Jow - Have you ever been to school?

Fatmata– No, there was no money. My parents were in the village and I was brought up by my grandparents. When they died I went to live with my friend.

Comm. Jow - After this ordeal, have you got any formal education. Can you read and write?

Fatmata – No.

Comm. Jow- Would you like to have formal education?

Fatmata - Yes

Comm. Jow - Apart from your amputation, do you have any medical problem related to the rape you suffered?

Fatmata – I have pains, but I have my normal period?

Comm. Jow - Since the incident, have you any relationship (love affairs)

Fatmata - Yes.

Comm. Jow - It is a different relationship, would you like to marry and have a family?

Fatmata– yes.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Where do you do this hairdressing?

Fatmata – I started with one woman at Kingtom called Kosoh.

Comm. Marcus Jones – For the time being have you explored the possibility of working with her in her saloon?

Fatmata – Her shop was burnt and she went out of the country.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell me, how many of your own relatives were killed in the incident?

Fatmata – Three people, I do not know the whereabouts of my parent, my sister's head was chopped off and the woman I was staying was killed and her house burnt down.

Comm. Sooka – Who is Aminata to you?

Fatmata – Aminata was my best friend

Comm. Sooka – How many of you were raped?

Fatmata – I was the only one raped.

Comm. Sooka – What happened to your nephew?

Fatmata – Nothing happened to him, I am now taking care of him and I have sent him to my grandmother at Waterloo.

Comm. Sooka – Apart from staying in the amputee camp, do you have anybody to stay with?

Fatmata – I have no body to stay with, I don't want to stay with my uncle.

Comm. Sooka - What are the facilities you have in the camp?

Fatmata – Some people from America and Arab state, Red Cross used to visit us and give us some assistant.

Comm. Sooka - Is there any plan to prepare a proper structure for the amputees?

Fatmata – Yes, I am on the waiting list.

Comm. Sooka - Did you feel any instant pain, after you were raped,

Fatmata – After the rape, I was unconscious.

Comm. Sooka - Did the doctor examine you?

Fatmata – After the abortion I was given some stitches.

Comm. Sooka - After the incident, how are you feeling now?

Fatmata - I am not feeling good.

Comm. Sooka - Are you able to sleep at night?

Fatmata - My problem now, is that I don't have my tools for me to practice my hairdressing.

Comm. Sooka - The time you were raped, you felt guilty and started crying “why me”

Fatmata – I felt bad, because I had done nothing to them. After killing my sister, I begged them to have mercy. But they told me that God is on top and they were down.

Comm. Sooka - How old were the perpetrators?

Fatmata - They were youths

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell me their ages?

Fatmata - I can't tell their ages, because the commando was an elderly person.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell me the language they spoke?

Fatmata - They spoke in some Liberian accent, I only heard the Commando who spoke krio once.

Comm. Sooka - Do you know the name of the one who raped you?

Fatmata – The second one was called “blood money”.

Comm. Sooka – Do you recognized them as rebels?

Fatmata - They were putting on full combat fatigue.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell us something about Monica’s husband?

Fatmata - Monica’s husband was transporting drugs to different places

Comm. Sooka - Where did they attack Monica’s husband?

Fatmata - The attack was on the Kenema highway.

Comm. Sooka - What happened?

Fatmata - I was not around, I was told that the rebels amputated him.

Comm. Sooka - What did they tell you about the attack?

Fatmata – when they were attacked, Monica’s husband was about to enter his car, when they were interrogated, they said he must offer some treatment to them. When he was about to perform that he was beaten and amputated.

Comm. Sooka - You said you don’t know their names, but can you identify them?

Fatmata – Yes , if the perpetrators saw me, they will not say anything.

Comm. Sooka – Have you ever seen any one of them after this incident?

Fatmata - I saw some of the them when they visited the amputee camp, and they apologized to me.

Comm. Sooka – Did they go to the camp?

Fatmata – I saw one of the perpetrator, at the amputee camp, but he was only on the scene, he did not tamper with me, the time I saw him I had accepted Jesus as my personal saviour. The man went down on his knees begging me.

People were asking who the man was, but I refused to tell them anything. I told the man to go but he refused, I left him and went to the Aberdeen Bridge.

Comm. Sooka - Mrs Satang asked you whether you are currently in a relationship?

Fatmata yes.

Comm. Sooka - Have you ever been forced to have sexual relationship when you were in the camp?

Fatmata - No.

Comm. Sooka - So you feel quite safe in the camp?

Fatmata – I say thanks to God.

Comm. Marcus Jones – You said you were staying at Kingtom, did these people thought you were having any connection with the Army or Police?

Fatmata – While I was staying at Kingtom, I have never been in contact with any police officer?

Comm Jow - Are you using any preventive?

Fatmata - No.

Comm Jow - Have they sensitized you about aids?

Fatmata yes.

Comm Jow - Do you have a permanent relationship?

Fatmata - yes.

Comm. Jow - You spoke about Monica, have you heard about her?

Fatmata – No, I don't have her contact address, because she was worried when she left.

Comm Jow - Have you met a sierra Leonean, who was nice to you as Monica do?

Fatmata - No, it was only when I came to this Commission.

Martien - You were asking about your friends?

Fatmata - The ECOMOG did not see any of my friends, I was surprised.

Martien - In your written statement, you said that forty people were abducted, do you know what had happened to them?

Fatmata – No, I did not see them again.

Martien – Were they abducted when you were conscious?

Fatmata - Yes.

Martien - How did you know that those people were abducted?

Fatmata - I saw them whilst we were at the building

Martien - What did you see happened?

Fatmata - After they had beheaded my sister, I was worried, I did not know anything that happened to them?

Martien – Have you met those people you were staying with when you were at the mosque?

Fatmata - no

Martien – How many of you were in the Mosque?

Fatmata – We were plenty in number.

Martien - Did the ECOMOG tell you how they came to know that you were lying somewhere injured?

Fatmata - It was a woman who told them that some people were in the mosque. When I regained my consciousness, the ECOMOG soldiers explained to the Doctor and I was later told the story.

Martien –have you ever been with an NGO responsible for handicaps, can you explain why you were not given artificial feet?

Fatmata - They said I did not have any balance (weight) so I was taken to the phsio, they thought me to use the crotch, whenever I wanted to stand up I have serious pains on my feet. My feet were not strong enough for me to use them.

Martien - Can you tell the Commission all that you would need to go ahead with your practice?

Fatmata - There is no light at my saloon, If I can have Le200 or Le300,000 to start with it will be appreciated.

Comm. Sooka - Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Fatmata - I have already asked some of my friends present here. The question is I want to know why these rebels did these things to us?

Comm. Sooka - We are asking these questions because we wanted to know the root cause of these atrocities caused by the rebels.

Fatmata – I thank the Commission for what they were able to do for us, if you were not here the people would have started to mock us. But by saying these to the Commission these people will not mock us again. I say thanks to the Commission and I pray for God's protection.

Comm. Sooka - we are sorry that we have made you to recall your trauma. Without stories like yours, we would not be able to give report on this issue. I thank you for coming.

TESTIMONY

On January 6th, 1999, we were sitting down in our house at 28 Looking Town, when we heard that there was a curfew, so we went into our house. My father was inside the house when the rebels came. They said they wanted to take my father out, my brother had wanted to open the door, my stepmother told him not to do so. I went to the back of the house and my dad and brothers ran away, so I went to a neighbouring house and hid underneath a bed. They wanted to abduct my stepmother but she convinced them to abduct me instead. She took them to the place where I was hiding. When they asked for me, they were told that I was not around. Later, a rebel took out a machete and chopped off the old man's hand and the man told them that I was under the bed, I came out. They took me to the private school that I was attending. They said they would not kill me but they would write RUF on my leg. They did the same to all those who were around. Later, I tried to sneak but I did not know my whereabouts, so I had to stay with them. I was with them when we were chased out. We were taken to Benguema Barracks, where I was deflowered. I started bleeding and a woman came and asked me what had happened. The woman said I should take her to the person who raped me. I did that and the man's hand was amputated. I was bleeding till we went to six mile. I was bleeding continuously and the woman was worried and said that she would not be able to carry her luggage and at the same time carry me. So she ordered a man to kill me. The man told the woman that she should not have taken me along with her to the bush, if she knew; she would be unable to take care of me. The woman said that I was a witch and I was taken to an HERBALIST endorse her accusation. The woman asked the herbalist to tell her whether I was a witch. The herbalist told the woman that I was not a witch it is because I had been deflowered and said that I should be rushed to the hospital or else I will die. The woman asked the herbalist to give her some herbal treatment. The woman was with me until I regained consciousness. Then I started walking with a crotch.

When the alpha jet was bombarding, we had cause to go to Magbele, I was still with the woman who asked me to do something for her. But the woman refused to let go of me. One day they made an announcement that all children must be released. The woman refused and said that she liked my behaviour, and said she would not release me until she is back in Freetown. I insisted because I wanted to attend school. At that time, I was in Class 3, but the woman refused, and started beating me with stick. The woman's husband helped me to escape. I went to my sister but the woman continued searching for me. They told her that I have gone with the UN. By the time she could chase the lorry that the UN provided to convey us to Freetown, we had left.

When I came back, I met my daddy dead, so they said they would not release me because I was under age. They later informed my brothers that I was with ECOMOG. When my brother went to their base, they told him that I have been taken to the Lakka village. So he went to Lakka and signed for my release. As soon as I saw him, I asked about my dad. They said they would not bury my dad in my absence. They took me and my mummy back to the house, where I am presently residing.

Comm. Sooka – we are going to ask you some questions so that we can capture the details about what had happened to enable us give our report.

Comm. Jow – Augusta, can you tell us about the rebels who came to your house, on the 6th January, were they in uniform?

Augusta – they were putting on T-Shirts.

Comm. Jow – How many of them?

Augusta A large number.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell us about your father?

Augusta – They also mentioned my grandfather's name but he was dead. They met my father, they wanted to break the house, they wanted to kill him so I went to the back of the house, opened the door and he escaped.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell me your father's name?

Augusta - Mr. Amara, he was a boat builder.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell us about your stepmother?

Augusta - She didn't have children for my dad, she was a fetish woman. I caught her one day when she was preparing okra soup for my father when she spit into the soup, so I reported the matter to my dad, that was the time we became enemies.

She was maltreating my brothers. I was later adopted by one woman who was a Creole. But still my stepmother did not accept me because she had already asked my brothers out of the house. My grandfather said that I should not go anywhere, I must stay with my father, my daddy was treating me fairly unlike my stepmother. My dad was praying earnestly, but my stepmother overcame him. I came to stay with them in August 1998. It was in 1999 when the rebels came that my stepmother sent them after me. I was unfortunate, the rebels located my hiding , the rebels were in sympathy with me because we spoke the same language, they disclosed everything to me and even showed me the knife which my stepmother had given them to kill me. After they had left that was the time my father was killed. Before my stepmother left the house, she promised that my father would be dead in two weeks time. He was killed before the end of the two weeks. People had known that whenever she is married to a man, she would kill the man and burn down the house.

My mother came after my father's burial, and offered some prayers in the house. But my stepmother came and buried some charms in the compound. After the burial of my dad, my stepmother went to the cemetery and buried some charms there saying that my dad would be powerless.

Comm. Marcus Jones – I express my sympathy, where was your mother before the rebels came?

Augusta – My mother was in the provinces because she was having problems with my stepmother.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Was your mother aware of all that happened to you?

Augusta - My mother was unaware of all that happened but some people went to the provinces to report the matter. She went to my father and told him that I am her only daughter, if anything happens to me, she would have my father to blame.

Comm. Marcus Jones – When your mother came for your father's burial, did you explain anything to her?

Augusta – yes,

Comm. Marcus Jones – What did she do?

Augusta – She said I should pray to God and I was later taken to the hospital.

Comm. Marcus Jones – You told us that you have stopped bleeding, are you okay now?

Augusta - Yes, but I lost weight.

Comm. Marcus Jones – How long were you in hospital?

Augusta - I was not admitted but I reported for medical checks for over a year.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Why were you taken to the hospital?

Augusta - I was taken to the hospital to undergo an operation to remove the RUF sign on my chest.

Comm. Marcus Jones – what are you doing now?

Augusta – I am going to school.

Comm. Marcus Jones – What form are you?

Augusta - I am in form one.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Are you treated normally in school?

Augusta - yes.

Comm. Sooka - how many of you were abducted when the rebels entered?

Augusta - I was unable to count, because I had no experience at the time

Comm. Sooka - How girls were in the room when you were raped?

Augusta – we were 20 in number.

Comm. Sooka - from where did you walk to?

Augusta –We walked, from Freetown to Makeni unto Magbele

Comm. Sooka – Where were you raped?

Augusta – I was raped at the Benguema barracks, I had been with them for a month.

Comm. Sooka - How many times did they rape you?

Augusta - only once

Comm. Sooka -What was your physical condition like, when you were raped?

Augusta – I was unconsciousness, because I was forced.

Comm. Sooka – What was the name of the man that raped you?

Augusta - His name is Abdul.

Comm. Sooka - Is he a commando or an ordinary member of the group?

Augusta - No, he was only a guard.

Comm. Sooka – Who was the commando by then?

Augusta - She was a woman, named Gbessay.

Comm. Sooka – Where you raped in front of the other people?

Augusta - I was with other people when I was raped.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell us something about the Commando?

Augusta - She was annoyed when I told her that I wanted to leave.

Comm. Sooka – You said that the woman was annoyed with the one who raped you, and she had the hand of the perpetrator chopped off?

Augusta - Yes, she said I must identify the one who raped me, and she then amputate his hand.

Comm. Sooka – What happened to the other girls who were raped?

Augusta – I was unconscious when I was raped, when I became conscious I saw them bleeding.

Comm. Sooka – What kind of medication were you on?

Augusta – They gave me herbs and drugs.

Comm. Sooka -Did you have any problem after you were raped?

Augusta – The only problem I encountered was with my menstruation.

Comm. Sooka – Have you started menstruating before you were raped?

Augusta – I started a year before I was raped

Comm. Sooka - Who wrote the RUF on your chest?

Augusta - She was a member of the RUF, but I cannot tell her name, I had them calling her “ Money people”.

Comm. Sooka – How long were you with the rebels?

Augusta – I was with them for 8 months.

Comm. Sooka- You were forced to work, who did you work for?

Augusta – The “Mamy Queen”

Comm. Sooka – During the time you were with the rebels, were you forced to marry any one of them?

Augusta – No, but I was forced to work.

Comm. Sooka - Were you prevented from harassment from the rebels?

Augusta - No.

Comm. Sooka - when you came back to Freetown, did you tell anybody your ordeal?

Augusta – I told my story to UNAMSIL and in the hospital near me.

Comm. Sooka – Which hospital?

Augusta – PCMH

Comm. Sooka - Do you remember the name of the UNAMSIL personnel you told your story to?

Augusta - No

Comm. Sooka - do you always have a flash back of what had happened to you?

Augusta – yes, whenever I am in a quiet mood.

Comm. Sooka - did anybody counsel you?

Augusta - yes,

Comm. Sooka - have you had any sexual relationship with any other person after you were raped?

Augusta - yes.

Comm. Sooka – Is he your permanent boyfriend?

Augusta – yes, he had proposed to marry me?

Comm. Sooka - Did you have any side effect or any pains when you were raped?

Augusta - No.

Comm. Sooka - Did your principal, or member of staff know about what had happened to you?

Augusta - No , only my Business Studies teacher.

Comm. Sooka – Did you want your principal to know?

Augusta - Yes.

Comm. Sooka - How are you coping with your studies?

Augusta – I am trying very hard to succeed.

Comm. Jow - Have you been in any way connected with FAWE?

Augusta - Yes,

Comm. Jow – Have they offered some counseling to you?

Augusta - yes.

Comm. Jow - Why didn't you attend the FAWE school?

Augusta - I was not aware of such a school.

Comm Jow – Who is responsible for your education?

Augusta - My mother.

Comm. Jow - Have you met anybody who would be in place to help you?

Augusta – No.

Comm. Jow – Will your mother be able to take care of your education right through?

Augusta – I don't know, but she is trying her best.

Comm. Jow – How do you feel about men generally?

Augusta - I am afraid of them.

Martien - Which part of the country did this happen?

Augusta – We walked through the bushes and came in to town.

Martien – When you were with these rebels, did they attack any village?

Augusta - No, they did not attack any village, it was only the ECOMOG who attacked their position.

Martien - When you were with these rebels for eight months, did they engage in any violation?

Augusta - Yes, I saw them doing many atrocities.

Martien - Can you tell us some of these activities?

Augusta - I saw houses burnt, dead people lying on the road.

Martien – How many rebels were you staying with?

Augusta – A large group

Martien – Were they in one group?

Augusta - No, they were separated.

Martien - What was your job when you were with them?

Augusta – I carry their luggage and fetch water for them.

Martien - While you were with these rebels, did you see them rape other girls?

Augusta – No, only the time that I was raped.

Martien – Those rape victims, were they forced to marry these rebels?

Augusta - Yes, some of the girls were forced to marry.

Martien – Can you tell me their ages?

Augusta - They were adults.

Martien – Those that abducted you, were there women or children among them?

Augusta – Yes, there were two women, and the rest were men, but I was the youngest.

Martien – You said one of these women was a commander?

Augusta - Yes.

Martien - Were you treated fairly?

Augusta – During my first three months, the woman treated me fairly, but after a while they started maltreating me; I was beaten and locked up in a round box made of board.

Martien - How long were you locked up in those boxes?

Augusta – For a long time.

Martien – How many times were you locked up in those boxes?

Augusta – Two times.

Martien – What did they use to beat you?

Augusta - They used stick.

Martien – How many times were you beaten?

Augusta - Many times. If we fail to do our work, we will be beaten.

Martien – Did you have any injury in the cause of these beatings?

Augusta - Yes, I sustained one.

Martien - Were you given enough food?

Augusta - Yes.

Martien – Did they share your food?

Augusta - No, those of us who were abducted ate from the same place.

Martien – Did you eat with the rebels?

Augusta - No, they ate all by themselves.

The witness was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner, Yasmine Sooka.

TESTIMONY:

When the rebels, came, I was at home with my husband, we were at home for about nineteen days and had nothing to eat. We were there when the Ramadan came. On the 20th day, they wanted to burn down our house but they did not. On the 21st day, they came and burn down our house. After that my husband advised that we should not stay together. My younger sister and I went out of the house. After the house was burnt down, my husband took the burnt zincs to put them together but he sustained cuts on his hands. I had left, when the Kamajors came and attacked my husband; he ran for safety and hid in a nearby mosque. I was at Kissy when I heard that my husband had left the mosque. I had left Kissy before my husband got there. On the 22nd I had to sleep at Kissy. On Friday the 23rd I was able to reach Kissy, I met some ladies who told me that my husband had left kissy. We agreed to meet at a certain place, but when I went there, my husband was no where to be found. I looked everywhere but my husband was not around, people knew that my husband had been killed, but they were afraid to tell me. After seven days, I went to his sister to enquire about him. Whilst we were waiting for his arrival, some boys told me that he had been killed by kamajors because of his cut on his hands, the kamajors thought he was a rebel.

Comm Marcus Jones - Were you the only two in your family?

Aminata – We had a daughter, 13 years old.

Comm. Marcus Jones – How old was she then?

Aminata – I gave birth to her in 1990.

Comm. Marcus Jones – What happened to the child?

Aminata – The child was with me, I left my husband and she is still with me.

Comm. Marcus Jones – When you were running away was the child with you?

Aminata - Yes when we were running away the child was with me because my husband advised that we must separate.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Is she going to school, what class is she?

Aminata - she is attending, the St. Michael's Primary and she is in class 6.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Have you been able to settle down without your husband?

Aminata - When my husband died, I was leaving with my sister, but things were not too good, so I had to stay with a friend who is taking care of me.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Is he your boyfriend?

Aminata - Yes, he has promised to marry me?

Comm. Marcus Jones – Do you have any child with him?

Aminata - Yes, a boy.

Comm. Jow - Did the house belong to your husband?

Aminata – The house was my husband’s family house. He lost both parents and we were living there not paying rent.

Comm. Jow - Was your house the only house burnt down?

Aminata – No other houses were burnt down, but I am only particular about my own house.

Comm. Jow - Did you remember how many of them came into your house?

Aminata – They were in large number, they wore military uniforms, a neighbour came to help us put out the fire, but he was shot and later buried in front of the house.

Comm. Jow - In your statement, you said that a small boy killed your neighbour, can you tell me how old was the boy?

Aminata – He was around the age of 10 but I could not identify him.

Comm. Jow - The two weeks you were in search of husband, did have any help from people?

Aminata - No, I had no other help. I was with my daughter, we used to go around in different camps enquiring about my husband.

Comm. Jow - Can you tell us about your brother-in-law who told you that they killed your husband?

Aminata - It was my husband’s elder brother, who told me not to search for him because they saw him over CNN.

Comm. Jow - Did you see the remains of your husband?

Aminata - No, they only told me that his corpse was taken somewhere for burial.

Comm. Sooka - Did you try to find out from anybody after your husband was killed?

Aminata – Yes, those who saw his corpse.

Comm. Sooka - what did they tell you?

Aminata - They were able to identify him, by the clothes he wore and the cuts he sustain when he was shot?

Comm. Sooka - Did you go back to the house where you were staying?

Aminata – Yes, I went there for the burial rite, I normally go there to visit them and my child also goes there for visits.

Comm. Sooka – Do you the names of the witnesses who told you of your husband's death? Will they be willing to come and testify?

Aminata – I don't know whether they will be in place to testify to the TRC.

Comm. Sooka – What happened to your sister in law?

Aminata – I thank God, nothing happened to her.

Comm. Sooka -In your statement, you said that your daughter was abducted by the rebels and stayed with them for almost nine months. I want you to clarify that.

Aminata – the child in question in my statement is not the one I had with my husband. She was a child of my husband from a different mother.

Comm. Sooka – Where is the child now?

Aminata - She is now staying with my sister

Comm. Sooka - Did she tell you of what she went through when she was with the rebels?

Aminata – She told me that she was raped, given marijuana to smoke, after she came back I enrolled her in a school, but now she has left the school and roaming about, so I had to take her to live with my mother in the provinces.

Comm. Sooka - Was she pregnant at any stage?

Aminata – When she came back, she was taken to the hospital and a family site for medication.

Comm. Sooka –Is she not going to school?

Aminata – No,she is at home, but my sister wants her to learn something.

Comm. Marcus Jones - the child you spoke to me about is she the child of your husband?

Aminata - yes.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Do you care for your first daughter?

Aminata - Yes, I do care for her, though she is staying with my sister, she is my first child.

Comm. Jow -Where was your daughter when she was abducted?

Aminata - she was leaving with my sister?

Comm. Jow - How were you informed about what happened, was it the same time that you lost your husband?

Aminata - Yes, it was the same time.

Comm. Jow - How did you cope?

Aminata - I stopped going to the mosque, and started going to church, the pastors, visited and comforted and prayed for me.

Comm. Jow - When did she return from the jungle?

Augusta - Three of them came back, she had no hair on her head, I was shocked, by then I was staying with my sister.

Comm. Jow - Were you happy when you saw her?

Aminata - Yes, I was happy, after that, I was sad again, because I had lost my husband.

Comm. Sooka - Was your daughter able to talk to you freely about her experiences?

Aminata - when she came back she couldn't say anything, I started putting pressure on her, after a while she explained that she was raped and tied up.

Comm. Sooka - Was she forced to be a member of the movement?

Aminata - Yes, but she did not kill, but they went about looting and taking things from people forcefully.

Comm. Sooka -We know that she was not forced to go with the rebels, did she tell you where they have been for the past nine months or were they moving from place to place?

Aminata – They were stable, they were not moving from place to place, they stayed in a village around Okra Hill.

Comm. Sooka - Apart from looting was she asked to do any hard thing for the rebels?

Aminata – She was asked to smoke marijuana.

Comm. Sooka – When she came back, did she continue smoking?

Aminata – No she did not continue to smoke, but now she is so indisciplined.

Comm. Sooka - Did she know the person who abducted her?

Aminata – No, but she knew the person who raped her.

Comm. Sooka – Do you know the name of your daughter's commander?

Aminata – No

Comm. Sooka – Do you know the person who killed your husband?

Aminata - No.

Martien - When was your daughter born, and when was she abducted?

Aminata - She was born in 1983 and abducted in 1999.

Martien - Did you know the group of people who abducted your daughter?

Aminata - she might know them, but I do not.

Martien – How many times did she say she was raped?

Aminata - The first man who raped her, was tied and beaten, after that she went with another man.

Martien – so two of the them raped her?

Aminata - yes

Martien – Do you know whether she was given as wife to one of the rebels?

Aminataa – No except the one who took her away.

Martien – After she came back did she tell you that she saw the person who raped her?

Aminata - No

Martien - Did she tell you whether she was beaten by these rebels?

Aminata - No, she came back well.

Martien - Do you know, when she came back if she was helped by any NGO?

Aminata - Yes, she had been assisted by the City Council?

Martien – Do they still continue their support?

Aminata - yes

Comm. Sooka - Does your husband help you to take care of your daughter?

Aminata - yes

Comm. Sooka - Did you have any question to ask the Commission or would you like the government to help you?

Aminata - Yes, all I want is some assistant for my daughter who has lost her father.

Comm. Sooka - What type of help do you need?

Aminata - I want my daughter to be educated.

Comm. Sooka - we can't make any promises now, but we have taken all your testimony and we will send our report to the government.

Comm. Sooka – we thank you for coming, we know that it was not easy for you to come here to testify.

Aminata - yes, that is why I am here, to say something about the death of my husband and daughter.

Comm. Sooka – we thank you for coming.

TESTIMONY:

My name is Kadiatu Koroma. I am a muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Sooka.

When the rebels came on the 6th of January 1999, I was staying at 91 Blackhall Road. That night when they came, they knocked at my door and said that the people who we were waiting for are now here. I went outside, I was there with my kids, till the next day when they killed a gentleman who was staying in my compound. I had to run away. That night the rebels came and stripped me naked and said that I must give them all that I have. I had some money that I had collected for osusu, I did not know how much was in my pocket and I was stripped naked in front of my children. I was separated from my kids that night, the next day, my husband advised that we go to 17 Cassell Farm with my kids. When we got to Cassell farm we slept there for three days, the next day was Pray Day. That same day, they burnt down my house. My daughter, Aminata Koroma, came to tell me that my other daughter Fatmata Koroma was killed but I was unable to go to the area where she was shot.

Not too long after that, my brother came to tell me that my husband was injured on his foot by a fragment. My daughter was living at Hastings with my sister. I had to move to Ferry Junction after our house at Casell Farm was burnt. My sister came to tell me that my daughter had been killed. I went to cottage where I was told she was admitted at ward four. We were there but I had still not seen my daughter who was shot. My child was at connaught but there was no proper treatment for the foot, so I had to take her away for native treatment, she has still not recover from that injury, I am now staying at 91 Blackhall road with my children, that is all I have to say.

Comm. Sooka – We would like to ask you some questions.

Comm. Jow – Can you give us the names of all your daughters, were they all staying with you when the rebels entered?

Kadiatu – Yes they were all with me, but I do have some who were my wards. The six children are all mine, two boys and four girls.

Comm. Jow – They were all staying with you?

Kadiatu - They were all staying with me except the one who was staying with my sister at Hastings and she was killed.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell us about the rebels who came to your house?

Kadiatu - I don't know them, I cannot identify them because it was at night, all they said that we must give them all that we had.

Comm. Jow – What was the reaction of your two sons?

Kadiatu – One of my sons told me to give them the money I had collected for osusu.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell us why you were stripped naked? Is it for your money?

Kadiatu – Yes, it was because of my money.

Comm. Jow – Can you tell us where you kept the money?

Kadiatu – The money was kept in the pocket of the trousers I had on.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Which house did the rebels burn down, was it the one at Cassell Farm or Blackhall Road?

Kadiatu- 91 Black hall Road .

Comm. Marcus Jones - Have you gone back to 91 Blackhall Road.

Kadiatu - yes

Comm. Marcus Jones - Do you have a dwelling place there?

Kadiatu - yes

Comm. Marcus Jones - Can you tell me the name and age of your daughter who was shot?

Kadiatu - She is 21 years old.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Can you tell me where she is at present?

Kadiatu - I don't know, she was pregnant, so I asked her out.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Does she have problems with the foot?

Comm. Marcus Jones - Yes, and at times she could not walk properly

Comm. Marcus Jones - Don't you know that she needs your support?

Kadiatu – She is now staying with the man who impregnated her.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Don't you think that you should reconcile with her?

Kadiatu - Well I don't know, her sister said that she is going to visit her this Sunday.

Comm. Marcus Jones - What happened to your husband, you said he was wounded?

Kadiatu - We took him to the hospital, his foot was cured, and he is doing fine.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Is he doing any work now?

Kadiatu - No,he was a tailor, his machine was burnt down

Comm. Marcus Jones - What are you doing for your living?

Kadiatu – I am engage in small scale business and heading an osusu club.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Have you repaired the house which was burnt down?

Kadiatu – No, we were on rentage, there is some quarrel over the land and nobody knows who the right owner is.

Comm. Marcus Jones - How secure and safe are your children in the house you now live?

Kadiatu – I am a business woman, who had established in that area, my father has a house but I could not go there because of my business.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Are your children going to school?

Kadiatu – yes

Comm. Sooka – Do you know how many people were killed when you were attacked?

Kadiatu - No

Comm. Sooka – Are you the bread winner of your family?

Kadiatu - yes.

Martien – You said your daughter Mariatu was not staying with you?

Kadiatu – she was not staying with me, she was leaving with my sister.

Martien –How old was she then?

Kadiatu - She is now 21 years old.

Martien - Was your sister there when your daughter was killed?

Kadiatu – No

Martien –Was you sister at home when your daughter was killed?

Kadiatu - I don't know, we were not living in the same house, all I know was that my daughter was killed.

Martien – Have you met your sister since 1999?

Kadiatu - No she has gone back to the provinces, it was the rebel war that brought her to Freetown.

Comm. Sooka - We want to know whether you have any question to ask or any recommendation that will enable us give a comprehensive report?

Kadiatu - I thank you very much, but I don't know what the Commission would like to do for us.

I don't have questions to ask, all I want is for the Commission to assist me.

Comm. Sooka – we are going all around collecting statement from people so that we can understand what had happened to you when you were attacked by rebels, so that we can give a comprehensive report about the sufferings of you all during the war. In that same report we will report all these things to the government and hope that the government would look into your matter. We thank you for sharing your story with us.

Testimony

I bless you all, we are happy that TRC came to Sierra Leone; they have to rebuild our country. As you have come to rebuild, we believe that it is the truth that you want. I thank you all for that. May God help you to succeed.

I will start with my statement I gave to the statement takers. I ask for your forgiveness, I know that is what you want.

There is something which we thought was very difficult, we sat peacefully and we saw rebels entered our country. Some of them came from Burkina Faso, we are happy that they were removed from the country. But our brothers turn around and started doing what those boys were doing. The rebels were in the bush, destroying the country, destroying life and properties. Those who were responsible to defend us joined them in order to destroy lives and properties. We realized that we should not sit back and see this country destroyed. We stood up to defend our country.

In 1995, we formed ourselves into a group to defend our country, after we have formed CDF. We did not have any weapons. But we had our plans. There was a time when we received a letter from the Government inviting us to defend our country. We must stand strong to defend our country. We were happy because we were told to defend our country. The paramount Chief, who dispatched this letter, said that he would take the matter up to the Government. "Those who have single barrel guns should take it up to defend our country." We saw it happened. We received supply from government.

In 1997, when the rebels entered, we were not expecting them; they captured most of us, young boys. Now that they have started, whenever they came we were ready for them. They went and attacked a village six miles off from our location. When we went there we met them. They killed one of our colleagues, Osman. We told civilians to leave the area. We went there but we were repelled. Wherever we were deployed we told the civilians to leave the area and find a safer place for them. We told them that anytime they heard gunshots they must go into hiding. After that, we heard that all CDF must be trained. Those of us who formed that security group were not in large number. We did not disturb any civilians. They told me that rebel had attacked their village. But it was a lie; it was their relatives who wanted to see them.

When we arrived, they told us that they have burnt down our village. I had my wife and children there. I will tell you that person who claimed to be a CDF, but he was a rebel. He went and took some boys at Madina; he recruited them into his own CDF. He was born of the area. He held six of them and two of them escaped. One of them who was called Abdul took the message to us. If we had not gone there that morning he would have killed the remaining four people. He wrote a letter and gave us two policemen as escort, the letter was handed to him and he read the letter but he gave us negative answer, he said that they were not with him. I told him that he was telling lies. He had killed them, because he claimed to defend civilians but had started killing them; it was a surprise to me. We took the matter to Makeni but because the war was on, they said that we should wait. One man told us that the rebels had attacked the same village again. We slept and we left there in the morning hours on a Friday. We told ourselves that we were happy because we did not meet rebels there. But they had gone into hiding, so we were happy. They got information that the CDF were in that village. So they opened fire on us, but we were unable to fight back. When my colleagues, saw that I was shot and bleeding, they left. I tried to take care of myself, but I could see the rebels from my hiding place. They chased my colleagues, shooting, they went to one village and burnt down the whole village. I went into a farm house to hide, I did not have anything to eat or drink, but I thank God.

Somebody took me from that area and I was brought to 34 Military Hospital, the doctor refused to touch me but I begged him to.

When I was discharged they took me to Hinga Norman. I was with him in his house. I told him that we were not supposed to be in his house. He said he would find a place for us to leave in. He finally said they have located Brookfields Hotel for us. We were staying there when somebody told me that they would produce artificial limbs for us. We went to the amputee camp but they refused to let us stay there claiming that we were kamajors, we were not supposed to be there. We were there at the Brookfields Hotel suffering. We went to Hinga Norman again to make complaints but he said that he was tired of begging the government for us. He insisted that he had nothing to do and that we should go back to our villages. He told us that in time to come we will enjoy.

We were given two bags of rice to be repatriated to our villages. But some of us had wives and children. We were confused, we were there for sometime and they stopped giving us our ration. If you fail to assist us now who then should we put our burden on.

We know that we have not done anything wrong. For us it is only God that will console us. At times if people stare at me for a time long, I always feel bad. We decided that the government is there. We went to S.B Marah, we were 15 in number. I thank God that our Chairman is here with us. SB wrote a letter and our names were listed, the letter was later forwarded to Norman but he refused to do something. The response S.B Marah got from Hinga Norman was negative; he said that he (S.B. Marah) must not interfere in his office. So we had no alternative other than to appeal to the government to assist us. I am an illiterate, I have my children and they are not going to school. When I was physically fit, I used to work hard for my living. We have asked for the erection of houses for us, as they have done for other amputees, we had done a lot but up till now we have not seen any response. That's why we have come to TRC, so that they can pass on our message to the Government for assistance in the future.

Comm. John – I thank you very much. I will now ask my colleague Commissioners to ask you questions for clarification.

Justice Marcus Jones - I want you to tell us, I want you to react to the allegation made by you people. They said that you people were involved in looting, raping and killing of civilians.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - No, if we did that, it means that we were not fighting for the civilians, we were not guilty of such offence.

Justice Marcus Jones - How long were you at the Brookfields Hotel.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - We went there in the year 2000.

Justice Marcus Jones - How long were you there?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Till 2003.

Justice Marcus Jones - Could you describe how your days were at the Brookfields hotel when you were lack of supply?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - When we were called by Hinga Norman, he neglected us; it was only the inmates who sometimes assisted us. We were there when the government said that they wanted the building. We were given Le10, 000 and a bag of rice.

Justice Marcus Jones - Some people say that they were equally afraid of you just like the rebels.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - In spite of the fact that the country is small, as the saying goes “one bonga fish spoil the whole fish” but if you look into the matter we were not guilty of such offence.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell me what you were doing before you joined the Kamajor.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - I was a farmer.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell me the type of training you received before you joined the Kamajor.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Were trained to maneuver and to hide from our enemies.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell us who were responsible for the training? Your commander?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - The man was taken from Bo, he was an ex soldier called Dumbuya.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell us about the composition of the unit, were there smalls boys recruited.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - When we started initially, we did not recruit children, because we did not want to go against the wishes of civilians.

Comm. Sooka - Can you tell us some of the atrocities you did to the rebels?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - According to my testimony, we joined the CDF, in the year, 1997 , they entered unexpectedly, some of our colleagues were abducted, I went to the war front only once, the second time I attempted to go that was when I sustained this injury.

Comm. John Kamara - Did I hear you say Burkina Faso, NPFL rebels, and the soldiers were fighting them, and they were chased out by the soldiers? You also mentioned that after these people were chased out, our soldiers too join force and fought alongside with them.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Yes,

Comm. John Kamara - did I hear you say that the CDF, stood firm to defend the country and have support from government.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Yes, they usually send us some rice.

Comm. Sooka - Many of the witness indicated that they suffered from the CDF as they did from the rebels group, can you tell something about that?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Like I told you, it was not a secret, the country is small but it is very deep, I was staying in a different area, I only knew about myself, if they committed atrocities, I don't know because I was not with them. I made a parable earlier "one bonga fish spoil all of the fish". You should not fight for civilians and at the same time harass them. If you go back to my village nobody will tell you that the CDF committed any atrocities there, now I am willing to go back to my village.

Comma Sooka - You mentioned Hinga Norman, and you know that he had been indicted in the Special Court to answer for the atrocities caused by the Kamajors.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - I can't tell you, the reason for which Hinga Norman was arrested. I cannot say I was against or I am happy, because I do not know the crime he has committed. So I can't say anything concerning that.

Comm. Sooka - So to your knowledge, you can testify that your own group of CDF, did not commit any atrocities, like burning of houses, looting?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara:- As you are sitting down, and hear that enemies are approaching you and when they came they took all your property you would be considered as enemy to that person. We were only defending the civilians not to harass them. We did not rape. God is our witness.

Martien - How long have you been in that group, since you were recruited before you sustain that injury?

Ibrahim - We were trained in 1998, and I sustained the injury in that same year.

Martien - How many months?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara:- I said it earlier, it was only two months.

Martien - How many men were recruited in this unit?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - According to registration for training in our chiefdom, we were 316, but some of them did not continue.

Martien - Do you know whether other chiefdoms recruited CDF?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Yes

Martien - Who was the highest commander?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Hinga Norman

Martien - Did you meet him during this training?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - He promised to visit but I can't tell whether he was there after I sustained my injury.

Martien - Who was the person next to him?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Dumbuya

Martien - Can you tell me his rank?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - I can't tell.

Martien - Can you tell us something about the Paramount Chief?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - We did not tell him everything, when our colleagues were killed that was the time we went to inform him.

Martien - Did the paramount played any role in recruiting and training?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara:- No, the only thing he did was that he gave us material support by providing cow for us when we were passing out.

Martien - You said you were involved in two attacks with the rebels.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - yes

Martien - I would like you to tell us something about the attacks.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - On the first attack, one of our colleagues was killed, so we had to retreat because we were not properly armed.

Comm. John Kamara - We want you to ask us any questions you wish to ask.

Ibrahim - my question goes to you, is it bad that when we fight for our country, we were left out? We defended our country and they have forgotten about us.

Comm. John Kamara - I can't answer, and I don't think any one of us will be in place to answer this question.

Bishop Humper - You said that you were not cared for, what we want from you is to have your testimony, and in our final report all that you have said will be taken into consideration.

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: I wanted to say something, later the former VP called us to a meeting and said that they will prepare a pension scheme for us but up till now we have heard nothing from them.

Comm. John Kamara - Do you have any recommendation or question to ask?

Ibrahim Brima Kamara: - Earlier, I said, our children are not going to school, we want assistant from the government. We are appealing that they put up some structure for us as they did for other amputees. We want government to assist in medication because we are now sick and we don't have money to take care of ourselves. We also want the pension scheme to be in effect.

Comm. John Kamara - I thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Abdul K. Kamara:

Witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by the presiding commissioner, Commissioner John Kamara.

Testimony

I thank you Mr. Chairman, and members of the Commission. I want to grave you indulgence to forgive me for what I am about to say if it is not conducive in the terms of this commission. I want to start by quoting what the President Tejan Kabba said "Peace is a process, it is not as some people seeing it, a single act." I will quote again what Kadie Sesay said "Peace, it has become categorical, if we deny it means that we want to destroy" I want to draw your attention in a proverb in the Bible "train up a child the way he should grow so that he will not depart from it" train your child so that he will not become a rebel. "Every new born child is clean like a new pig" a saying by our Prophet Mohamed. After the child had been badly disciplined, they will begin to blame the teacher, from the teacher to mother, from the mother, to the father, from the father to the police.

I was in Kambia in 1995, I heard that the rebels wanted to attack, so I left for Port Loko, I was there again when they said that rebels were going to attack Port Loko so I left there and went to Lunsar. I was there again when I heard that rebels wanted to attack that village, all my properties were burnt down, I left there, walked for 15 miles to Waterloo, I had a very nasty experience. I came to stream, I had no money so I had to sell one of my Arabic suit which I bought it for Le30, 000 but I sold it for Le6,000 for me to cross over. When I went to Waterloo, I went straight to the ECOMOG base and reported the matter and after that I went down to Freetown, later I went to Guinea, after the election I heard some information and I had to come back to Freetown. I went straight to State House, I met the Chief of Protocol, I told him that I wanted to see the President but he said that there are people who had come to see the President for two weeks. In such I told him that I have come to relay an important message to the President for national issue. He said that I must tell him the message and he will pass on the message to him. I refuse, I said that it is only the President that I wanted to see and talk to. I left there in anger, and headed for his house at Juba, I saw the security and explained my mission to them. I sent my brother-in-law to buy me a piece of paper and wrote a letter to the late 1st lady. I do not know whether she got that letter, I sat there until the President came. I greeted him he answered me but he couldn't pick me up, after he entered I open the gate and entered. I was interrogated by the security and he told me that "the Pa is just coming back and he is tired." I persisted that I must see the President for national issue, I said that I have spent over Le30, 000 to come and relay this information.

I told them that they must go and tell the President that somebody has come from Guinea, I want to see him. I told them that they are married women; they have been married to all the presidents before.

I was later called to see the President; I wanted to tell him all that had happened to me. I asked him that if he knew Honorable Hassan Conteh, he went to Kambia to campaign for the SLPP; he told me that you were contesting. I have known him for the past 30 years that was the time he asked me my name.

After that I went to Guinea, a few months later he was overthrown, I was in Guinea when he went there, I was unable to see him because of security reasons, two weeks later I heard that 18 soldiers have been killed by Kamajors. The other time I heard that 30 soldiers have been killed by kamajors. I came down to Freetown.

I heard sporadic shooting, with very abusive language. When I opened the door, they said "you bastard," they went upstairs and said that we must all come down, and they said we must sing "we want peace" we did that for the whole night, they were based at Patton Street, Savage Squire. When they wanted to loot they would tell us to go upstairs, after we would be ordered to come down, that was how we suffered for two weeks, one of my brothers was killed in Kambia. They ask one man who we were staying with for money, he said he has no money and he was stabbed with a bayonet. Then they came to me and asked me for money, I told them that they have attacked me several times, but at that time I was communicating with my God, I told them I have no money if they like they should kill me, they called me "popay" I told them that I am not there father.

I want to tell you that every Sierra Leonean is wicked, people in authority are responsible for all that had happened.

I told them that everybody present in that hall is a rebel, if I don't proved it they must kill me
I gave them instances.

Mr Chairman that VP is a rebel, that minister is a rebel, in fact they are worst than the rebels in the bush, why, because I am going to kill

During the fast month I did not break my fast, some people did, I went around town to view the area, some ECOMOG were killed and the uniform was worn by the rebels, I saw so many dead people. I was up stairs, when I saw a Nigerian business man, being killed, he was burnt down, the same place again, they said that one man was a rebel, he was shot dead, even when he produce his identity card to prove himself.

Money were stolen from the Ministry of Education, over Le15 billion, some of these ministers have sent their children to Europe to further their studies.

You talk about sustainable peace when people are stealing government money, they are the rebels.

Everybody in this country, all the fighting force, you belong to any ethnic groups, we are all rebels, and we must all change our attitude. I want this Commission to tell these people to change, and it must start from the authorities, the average Sierra Leoneans should learn from this war.

I want to stop so far.

Comm. Torto - You made a statement and spoke about looting, but in your verbal testimony you diverted from what you have said, you said that the rebels forced their way into you compound.

Comm. Marcus Jones- I hope that by expressing your views you will be feeling a little bit better now. I want to know what prompted you to run away to Guinea.

Abdul K. Kamara: - I don't want to be killed.

Bishop Humper - the leader of evidence will meet with you for further details.

Comm. Sooka - We look forward to see you when we go to the phase of thematic hearing and would like to take a statement from you.

Abdul K. Kamara:- I want to say all these things in public.

Comm. John Kamara - Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Abdul K. Kamara: - To what extent will you tell the truth to this nation?

Prof John Kamara - If the people are ready to testify in this Commission.

Abdul K. Kamara: - How are we going to reconcile?

Prof John Kamara - Reconciliation in the context as you refer to the President, reconciliation is an ongoing process, the Commission will start it and it would be continued by the community, it will have to go a long way.

WITNESS NAME: Tamba Ngaujah:

The witness was sworn on oath by the presiding commissioner, Comm. Prof. John Kamara.

TESTIMONY:

I say thank you all that you make it possible for me to be here, we have been praying and indeed God has answered our prayers. Before I proceed I want us to observe a minute silent for my colleagues who have lost their lives during this war.

I am Tamba, I came from Kono District. I recall I don't think that I am by myself. The first thing I want to tell you, since the war started in 1991 in Sierra Leone, I was the first victim of amputation, I am now roaming the streets of Freetown, in search of food, but I thank God, as long as there is life, there is hope, I believe God.

In 1991 when the war break out in Sierra Leone, sometimes in 1991, military men were deployed to our areas, they met our Paramount Chief and informed him that they have been deployed but they were not sons of that chiefdom, but they asked for people who know the area for assistant. At that time I was a hunter, so we were handed over to the military. Unfortunately in 1992, the rebels attacked our village and I was captured. I had an identification paper with inscription Hunter. They saw it and said that we were the people they wanted to apprehend. They said when they went to attack, they were killed by these hunters, so they said they will not spare our lives, we were four in number. It was about 4 in the morning when we were captured, we suffered, and one commander told us that he is called C.O Trouble. We were with them, when the commander asked us few questions; he asked why we were joining the military to fight against them. He said we were only paid 10, 000 and a bag of rice, we were suppose to be earning over Le.250. 000 and that if they took over the soldiers will enjoy. He said that the hunters will be killed. At the time they said that we were going to be killed, we were lined up and our hands were placed on stone; The killer came with his machete, cut off the head of one man, the second man was squeezed until he died, the next man's head was be chopped off, I was the last. When it was my turn, there were some arguments, and then he said it now his turn and he wants to play with blood. After the arguments, the commando said that they must not do anything to me. They must release me for a while. The commando decided, and called his secretary he was a teacher at Bunumbu College, he told him to write a note, he said "we the RUF, we are freedom fighters, if you see anything we are responsible, after this, Kono District would be captured, in two weeks time we will head to Freetown" The letter was placed in an envelope tied around my neck; there was also another argument that any soldier captured should be killed. It was a command, they said that they have killed three of my colleagues; they were not going to take it lying down. The last order was that they should cut my left hand off, they chopped my left hand but the machete was not sharp and he said that I was a strong man. They must chop off my hands by all means; my bone was smashed to pieces. After that, my hand was chopped off and I saw my hand on the ground jumping. I was unconscious and after I became conscious, I saw both of my hands chopped off. I tried to get up but I was unable, my hands were bleeding profusely, I then realized that I was loosing sight, but that was my area, after that I went into a bush and saw a stream and fell into the water, hoping that the bleeding will stop. I was there until morning, I was bleeding, I had to stay in the bush for three days, until I found my way, out of the bush and came to the nearest base of our colleagues. I was apprehended thinking that I was a rebel, they told me that they had overran the rebels, but some people were killed and amputated, but they never knew it was me.

I was taken to Major, now Colonel Davies, who ordered his boys to take me to the war front hospital. I met the doctor who bandaged my hands and gave me some drugs. The soldiers were surprised, saying that they had never seen such cases since the war broke out. The major said that I should be taken to Freetown for proper medication, they used the vehicles in which the traders had wanted to bring their goods to Freetown; it was taken from them because of my condition, bad odour has started coming off my body, I entered the vehicle, there was stench all over the vehicle, the driver smoke almost a packet of 555. I was taken to 34 Military Hospital and the operation was carried out.

In 1993, my colleagues sent a letter to enquire about me, the CDS told me that I would be enlisted into the Army, and said that as from that day I was enlisted in Army as a full SLA officer. After the training my colleagues were sent to war front. From May 1993, I was promoted to the rank of Lance Corporal before Bio handed over power to Pa Kabba, I was promoted to full corporal. From 1993 to date I am still enrolled in the army.

Whilst I was in the hospital in 1997, they started amputation, I was taken from the 34 to console victims at Connaught, I told them that since we were victims our only hope was with God and nobody else, the first few months they will be ready to assist you but after a while they would not. Before when I called my daughter, she will run to answer to my call but now when I call her she will tell me to wait.

After listening to my advice, some of them were annoyed; a little girl asked me whether her hands will grow again and I cried. As time went on, they realized my advice, and with prayers, some of them are saying thanks to God because NGOs have taken care of them now, each one of them has now been resettled. When I went to register, they told me that I am an SLA, government should be responsible for our problems. I appealed to them for assistance but they refused. I commit everything to the Lord in prayer. I heard information from one man saying that the SLA were the first to amputate people's hand. I was the first person to be amputated. After my amputation then the SLA started retaliating.

My children are there, I am the only one responsible for them. I only had some assistant from some of my personal friends, but I put my trust in God Almighty. If I continue to call on God, I will achieve. I thank you very much.

Marcus Jones - We are sorry for your horrible experience in life, it was a miracle that you were not killed, once there is life there is hope. You were amputated in 1992 that was a long while, I wonder why they were not healed

Tamba Ngaujah: - I have received my healing but I bandaged it because if anything touches it I feel pain. I bandage my hand for protection, there is no sore on it.

Marcus Jones - Have you been rejected when you applied for artificial limb?

Tamba Ngaujah: - At that time it was locally made, the foreign ones were expensive, the local ones were very heavy, I cannot use them.

Comm. Satang - You said that in 1991, you joined the army as a vigilante; I want you to tell me more about that group.

Tamba Ngaujah: - When I was recruited I was staying in my chiefdom.

Comm. Jow - How many of you were recruited?

Tamba Ngaujah: - We were about 30 in number.

Bishop Humper - We all know that you were the first person to be amputated. What you have told us about accommodation is a pressing issue. What we would want to know, is why you were not helped by the NGOs?

Tamba Ngaujah: - I told you earlier on, that it was because I was an SLA soldier

Bishop Humper - Have you spoken about this issue to your senior in the Army?

Tamba Ngaujah: - It seems as if nobody wants to know about me in the Army.

Comm. Torto - Were you able to identify the group of people who did this to you?

Tamba Ngaujah: - It was the RUF, in 1997, when the military coup took place, I saw the man who said that they must use a sharp instrument, it was the very man who said that they must kill me. When I saw him, I asked him if he knew me, he said no, I went on to explain to him, if he could remember when they were fighting, when they went on a patrol, he said he remember when they killed and amputate some people. He said yes, he said that the man whose hands were amputated is dead; I told him that it was me. He asked for forgiveness, he said even if you don't forgive us, it has already happened and nothing will change it. That same day, I went to Cockerill to one of my boss A.A Sesay, luckily Mosquito, told him to shake hands with me. He said he knew me. He said they heard about me. The information was sent to them. He thought that I was dead. He said if they succeed I will be the number one person to help.

Comm. Torto - From that time you never saw him again.

Tamba Ngaujah: - No

Comm. Torto - At the time you saw him, what group did he belong to?

Tamba Ngaujah: - Peoples Army

Comm. Sooka - I want you to tell me the age of those perpetrators.

Tamba Ngaujah: - The man who chopped off my hands was about 25 years, it was only because of the gun, I would have put up a fight.

Comm. Sooka - Did they give you the reasons for cutting off your hands?

Tamba Ngaujah: - They said that it was because we assisted the soldiers to fight them.

Professor John Kamara - Where these people, Mende, Fullah, Temne, were they Sierra Leoneans?

Tamba Ngaujah: - The man who chopped off my hands, his accent was a Liberian, I don't know whether he was pretending, but when we met in 1997, he spoke krio very well.

Prof. John Kamara - You said that the artificial limb was expensive, do you know the cost of it?

Tamba Ngaujah: - I don't know, one thing is if any human being loses any part of his body it becomes artificial, the only thing we need is assistance. If I am retired from the Army I need financial support, if people are seeing me roaming the street begging it is not out of desire but out need. My first son is attempting the WASC exams this year, my second daughter is attempting the NPSE, so at this stage as regards the artificial limbs it is fine but I need your support, I need accommodation, I need financial support to take care of my children.

Martien - You said the amputees Association had refused to help you.

Tamba Ngaujah: - We had an association in 1997, unfortunately, our Chairman by then was arrested, the government decided that all amputees must be removed from the Army, luckily for me I was given two days pass. When I wanted to return I heard that all the victims were taken to Pademba Road, until 1999 when the rebels came, some of them lost their lives, our Chairman after the release he was seen over SLBS speaking on behalf of the rebels, he was on his way to Ferry Junction when he was caught by some youths who branded him as rebel, before the ECOMOG could intervene the kamajors had shot him. From that time our association collapsed.

Prof. John Kamara - I want to ask you whether you have any questions to ask.

Tamba Ngaujah: - I don't have any question to ask, but to make an appeal to the Commission if they would enroll us in any organization to help alleviate our problems, because we the victims have three major problems: accommodation, financial and our children's education. I know that this Commission your signature is very important, both at the national and international level.

Prof. John Kamara - We will submit our report to the government.

WITNESS NAME: Kadiatu Fofanah:

TESTIMONY:

My name is Kadiatu Fofanah, I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by the Presiding Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

TESTIMONY

I say thanks to the Commission for inviting me here today, things had been very difficult with me.

In 1998, when ECOMOG bombarded the city, I went to Makeni, with my children and my husband. We were there for about six months. We returned after things had quietened down, but we lost everything. In 1999 January 6th my husband woke me up and said that rebels had entered the city. There was sporadic shooting all around the area. My husband said that we must leave the area and went into hiding in the west end of Freetown but I told him to be patient; so we had to sleep in the house. The house I was staying, I own it, when I was doing my business that was when I put up that structure.

In the morning, we the women went to the market to cook for our children. At night the rebels were jubilating, they came from Cline Town unto Up Gun, telling people to dance. When I saw them they said I must not run and if it was Tejan Kabba I wouldn't run. They said we should dance with them. They said this time if they do not say the truth Freetown will turn into dust. As soon as it was night, we were ordered to come out of our houses to dance. On the 12th they started burning houses at Fourah Bay, my husband said that we must leave, but I told him that I don't know anywhere to go. At that time I had some money on me, over Le200, 000. My first son Mohamed, said "mama how are you going to leave us alone in the house." I told him to go with me, but he refused, saying that somebody must be in the house to watch. The landlord ordered us to not leave the house. That the situation became tense and my husband advised that we should leave the area immediately. I said that this might be the last and he said that the war was tense, so we ran out, I had seven children. When we approached Kennedy Street, the rebels passed us and my son told me to lie down on the ground. I said 'my child'. As we went to Emmanuel Street, we met three boys who had already been killed. My child said that we must move on. We went and we used Kissy Road Cemetery by-pass to come to Black Hall Road. I told him not to go but he insisted and he said that his dad had gone. I told him "you are crying for your dad what about me." The rebels had mounted a check point at the point we decided to take a rest.. I told him to talk to the rebel, he refused and then I told him that we must go back. I saw one rebel by the name of "Born Naked", he helped us cross to the other part and that was the time I saw children I had never seen in this country. We arrived back home at around 4p.m. but I met none of my family members. At about 5 p.m my husband came with three of the children. He said that he had been fetching water for the rebels. He helped them cook and he was released. From the 12th of January, we were at Rose Street. On the 18th over a thousand rebels, ordered us to come out of the house. They said we were politicians. They said they are going to kill all of us and we started crying. We asked them what we have done and they told us that we were dancing for Pa Kabba. One of the rebels said that we must take all the money we had with us. One woman said that we must contribute and we ended up giving them Le500, 000; they said that we had money. They said that they are leaving now but the evils ones were behind, "you can't compromise with them".

By that time my husband had taken my children to Leicester, I told him that I was unable to climb the hill, at that time Ibrahim was seven months old. I gave him Le50, 000 to go with the children, but he refused. I told him that we were not born on the same day. But he refused. I told him that if we all perished the same day it will be pathetic. About seven o'clock on the 20th of January, the evil rebels came, they said "bastard." They said they wanted to set fire on our houses. Before we could realize what was happening, they hit one man on the back. The house we were leaving in belonged to one rebel, so they said they must not burn the house because it belongs to the colonel. We were taken to another place where they set fire on the house, we never knew who opened the door, and they started saying that "so you don't want to die". All of us came out trying to escape. They gathered all of us together and separated the men from the women. A rebel called junior was ordered to open fire on the men. I started weeping, saying that I am going to lose my life. After that they came to the women, they said that they were going to send a message to Tejan Kabba. I was the last I was carrying my baby, and an 18 years of age boy came and chopped me; he wanted to chop my boy's head, I grabbed the knife from him but I was unable to get up, I looked at my son, it was night, there was nobody around. Our house had been burnt. One man came and I told him to help me, I told him to take my child the rebel helped me, I dragged myself like snake, I laid down with my child amongst the corpses. I pray that it will never happen in my life again. I took my son in my arms and I said to myself that my husband had told me to go with him. At night some dogs came around to bite my feet but I took stones to hit them. In the morning some came around and said that they wanted to kill my son but one of them said that they must not kill him. Later an SLA was passing and I told the SLA that he should shoot me, I was there again when one rebel said that he wanted to take my child with him but he was afraid of further attack. By that time, they had set fire on the house and the heat of the fire came on me until the house was completely burnt down. The rebel said I am lucky, and I told him that was the reason why I wanted him to shoot me.

I saw a man whom I knew his name was Pa Foday; he said "Kadiatu are you there?" I told him to take my son with him. He said I should wait, by then I had Le5,000 I had tied in my lappa. I knew that I was going to die. He went and informed the commando that I am his wife. He said that he must take my son from me. He was taken to the commando, I overheard them saying that they have contributed in making them loose the war, because that was not their initial aim. He called on five rebel women and ordered them to wash my son, and said that they must carry me. By then the alpha jet was flying, so I was rejected at that point. Two rebels were coming from the hills saying that I was lying with my big buttocks we were the one enjoying Tejan Kabba.

At around 2 p.m., some SLA soldiers came to my aid, they gave me some medication, because at that time I was half naked, I ask them for water, the said that I will die if I drank water. They looked around for food but Ibrahim could not take anything solid. There was no breast milk to breast feed Ibrahim. I heard Margaret shouting "Kadiatu", I told her that I was in the room, I told her to go because the rebels were around. She sneaked and reported the matter to my foster child.

My husband and my son were informed about my condition and they came to take me.

Also some other women went to take their husbands, but they were told not to enter the house. I was lifted from the ground, somebody carried Ibrahim on his back, the alpha jet was flying but my son continue to carry me; by the cemetery we met thousands of dead people. But God gave me the strength to sustain me. They gave the driver Le10, 000, we went to Connaught, I was taken to the theatre, and my feet were placed on a board. We were there for three days, not knowing that the medicine was not good enough. I told my husband to plead with the doctors to kill me. My husband consoled me. He said I must trust in God. The following morning, Dr Maggie, took me back to the theatre, applied another medicine, but thanks to our Christian brothers who were praying for us, the pain subsided. We were there for one month when the MSF staff came; they said that there was no alternative but to cut my feet because they had gone bad. My husband consoled me, 'if my feet were chopped off what will happen to my children?' all my relatives wept. On March 15th, I was taken to the theatre where they chopped my feet. The doctors said that they will give me artificial limbs. After that I was taken up to annex, after regaining consciousness after the operation, I turned around but I did not see my feet. I almost died. They prayed fervently for me. When I asked about my husband they said he had left, because he thought I was dead, I was there for one month. They ask me what I wanted to do now; my house had been burnt down. They later took me to my house, for one year. My husband started putting different attitude towards me. So I decided to go to the camp. I met the Chairman who told me that there was no place for me. But I persisted, I went back to Connaught Hospital, I told them that I now wanted to go to the camp. I was taken to the camp with the MSF staff. I went to stay at the camp, when my husband came, I told him that I am an amputee; I told him that in the future, he will be disappointed but the government will always take care of me. After three days he came back to collect me saying that people will say that he was ungrateful, so I refused to go with him. By that time I say thanks to God, people were coming from all over the world to assist us. We then engaged in petty trading, Red Cross came to our aid, after that Cause Canada came to teach us some skills.

The white man had promised that he would give me artificial feet. A woman Georgiana from America came to my aid, she promised that she will put my case across; she said she will come back for me. In two months time, she sent a letter to me that she will come and collect me, indeed I went with them, and the white doctors said that they were unable to do so.

I started going through my Koran and I realized that the artificial leg, I will benefit from them, so I insisted to come back to Freetown, so that is how I came back, I have now got my house, my toilet, some people are helping my children and that is why I say I am ready to forgive. I am appealing to donor agencies to be assisting us, by visiting us. Murray Town is not an amputee camp, they must be looking out for us. We were not born beggars, we were ashamed to beg, so far I think I will stop here.

Marcus Jones - I admire your courage, in spite of everything, I would call your story a successful story, I believe that quite a number of people have heard your speech. . As a woman I am curious to know what happened to your husband.

Kadiatu Fofanah: - Nothing happened to him he was with the children.

Marcus Jones - Where is he now?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - He is staying with another woman.

Commissioner Sooka - If I could take you back to the incident, do you know how many men and women died on that day?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - 30 men who were killed on the scene, I can recall that, I was the only one that was chopped all over my body. A woman's husband was killed; another woman was also chopped off, the others fled for their lives.

Commissioner Sooka - Can you identify any one of these perpetrators?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - It was at night time so I cannot recognize any one, but the boy who chopped me was about 18 years.

Commissioner Sooka - Can you remember their names?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - I don't have there proper names, they were called all sorts of nick names, Colonel Cut foot and the likes.

Commissioner Torto – We appreciate your courage and willingness to forgive.

Comm. Satang - Can you tell us something about this boy who chopped your feet, was he in uniform?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - He was wearing black trousers and t-shirt.

Commissioner Satang - Did you belong to any political party before this problem?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - No, I was a petty trader, selling cooked food.

Comm. John Kamara - Have you seen any of the abductees after this incident?

Kadiatu Fofanah: - Yes , Ya Marie is back she was pregnant, but she lost the baby, another girl also was pregnant but she lost the baby. The others who were abducted during the January 6th invention escaped when they were at Calaba Town.

John Kamara - We are happy about the successes you have made unlike some of your colleagues. I would like you to ask any questions or make recommendations to this Commission.

Kadiatu Fofanah: - I want to ask a question on behalf of the amputees. What should we do to cater for our hospital and medical needs? We would not like you to leave the entire burden to us for taking care of our children.

Ibrahim always said that he will retaliate in the future. We are appealing to the government not to neglect the children of the amputees.

We who are sitting on wheel chairs, must be supplied proper wheel chair, we have seen wheel chairs in Europe which can take you to a long distant without being pushed. We have requested for a bus but they refused to give us. In New York, they have access buses for disable people. We are pleading, some of us are business like people, and we like to engage ourselves in petty trading. If I had got no children when I went to America, I wouldn't have come back. So you please help us so that we can forgive with all our hearts.

Professor John Kamara - All that you have said will be taken into consideration. We thank you very much.

APPENDIX 3 – PART TWO

THE TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION (TRC)

TRANSCRIPTS OF PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN THE DISTRICT HEADQUARTER TOWNS

PORT LOKO DISTRICT

DATE: 29th April, 2003.

COMMISSIONERS: MARCUS JONES AND SYLVANUS TORTO

LEADER OF EVIDENCE: ABDULAI CHARM

WITNESS NAME: Ibrahim Bundu Kanu

WITNESS NO: 001

REFERENCE NO: 1/78/535

The chairman welcomed all for coming and further explained the goals of the TRC. She further presented the Commissioners to the public she said they have seven Commissioners but they are divided into sections to work with their mandates. And called the first witness to take his seat, He was asked to introduce him self. Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

My name is Ibrahim Bundu Kanu. I sit in front of you this morning to tell you what happened on the 8th June 1995. It was 8 pm when the rebels attacked Port Loko and I was in my house at Falaba Road when I heard the first gunshot; followed by continuous shooting. My family and I ran into the house. The firing became intense as the rebels drew closer to our house and by then it was raining. The rebels entered my house but my family and I escaped through the back door and hide in the toilet. They entered the house and looted our properties; the remaining things they could not make away with were placed on the mattress and burnt. However, a man called Pa Santigie Bangura was the only person brave enough to stay behind and succeeded in putting out the fire although it was too late. In the morning, I left Port Loko for Lokomasama. On 20th August 1999, the rebels attacked Lokomasa and they burnt down all the houses. As I am talking to you now, I have no home; I'm almost living in a shack. After that, I left Port Loko for Lungi together with my family and we were assisted by the Red Cross. In 2001 at around the time the DDR process had commenced, we came back to Port Loko. During the disarmament in Port Loko, I met a lady by the name of Haja who was an ex-combatant. She was narrating how she and the rebels burnt our house and ate our food. She did not know that the house they burnt belongs to my family. I became furious. I would have killed her but was afraid of the reaction of the government. I thought that war victims should benefit but it seems that only the perpetrators are being cared for in spite of all their deeds whilst the victims are left to languish in agony. As victims we have nothing to do but to look up to God. I find it very difficult to educate my children. I depend on friends for my survival. This is my experience during the war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were there women amongst the attackers?

Bundu: From the voices I heard, it was a mixture of men and women

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How were they dressed?

Bundu: It was night time and I could not identify the clothes they were wearing.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us the real name of the Haja you spoke about? Can you also locate her?

Bundu: This Haja I was referring to was an ex-combatant and I cannot locate her but her name was Haja Kamara.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Let me go back to the issue about giving help to the perpetrators. When the war was raging, people wanted peace at all cost. When peace came, these rebels were to be integrated into society and to be made useful. For that reason, they have to be trained so that they can fit into society, so that your children and my grand children will be able to go to school in peace and not loose more houses. I hope you will appreciate what is happening and whatever is being given to them will not be forever. When there is peace we will be able to have development in our country and you will benefit from it.

Commissioner Torto: Can you tell what group does your attackers belong to?

Bundu: I can't tell. Even though we found military caps the following day it was difficult to tell what group they belong to.

Commissioner Torto: What language did they speak?

Bundu: They spoke Krio.

Commissioner Torto: Can you tell if there were foreigners amongst them?

Bundu: It was difficult to tell.

Commissioner Torto: Were you the only one who suffered or were there other people who suffer during this attack?

Bundu: I was not the only sufferer there were other people who suffered and several houses were burnt down and people drowned along the Port Loko River.

Commissioner Torto: Whilst you were running away to Lokomasama was your family with you?

Bundu: I ran with my children and my wife who was pregnant. We walked about 25 miles.

Commissioner Torto: Would you be ready to meet with these people who did these things to you and reconcile with them?

Bundu: If the Commission says so, I am ready to forgive them.

A. Cham: The Haja you mentioned, were you able to talk to her to find out the other people who were with her?

Bundu: At that time I didn't think about it.

A. Cham: During the statement you mentioned one Abdul Keista Bangura. Can you tell what happened to him?

Bundu: Abdul Keista Bangura was my neighbour. His house was also burnt.

A. Cham: Were you able to identify the assailants?

Bundu: I was unable to identify them.

A. Cham: Can you roughly tell me the age of Haja when you met with her?

Bundu: She was around 20 -22 at the time I met her.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any questions for the Commission?

Bundu: Yes I have a few questions. The first question is, as a Commission what recommendations will you make to government with regards victims' plights?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission does not make recommendations on victim's behalf. What recommendations do you want the Commission to include in its report?

Bundu: Will the Commission make its report public?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The report will be made public and your name will be included as one of the witnesses who testified.

Bundu: There are people who are ignorant and apprehensive in coming forward to testify to the TRC and they are victims of this war. How can they come forward and testify to what happened to them?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In my explanation, I told you that it is not possible to meet all the people in all the villages. In any case, there are only seven Commissioners and we are divided into two groups. We have many people assembled hear today. I am sure if everyone is to go out and tell those who are not here about the work of the TRC, it will reach the people in the whole District. Also, I said before those with radios will be able to listen to the hearings and understand what is going on. Do you have more questions?

Bundu: I only have recommendations for the Commission. I want to recommend to Government that they should do all in their power to assist the victims as they did for the perpetrators for the sake of peace. I said this because most of the victims have their children who had left school because of the devastation of the war on the parents.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming.

THE TRTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION
DISTRICT HEARINGS
PORT LOKO DISTRICT
29th April, 2003.

Commissioners: Marcus Jones and Sylvanus Torto.

Leader of evidence: Abdulai Charm

WITNESS NAME: ISHMAEL KANU

WITNESS NO: 002

REFERENCE NO: 1/78/521

TESTIMONY

The Presiding Commissioner swore the witness on oath. He was a Christian.

The testimony I am going to give is about what happened to me as an individual and not anybody else. When Port Loko was first attacked on the 8th June 1995. I left Port Loko for Kasirie town Samu chiefdom in the Kambia District. I stayed in Kasirie for two months and I decided to go back to Port Loko to collect my belongings. On My way to Port Loko, I didn't know there were rebels in the village. I walked a distance of 8 miles to Lungi and rested for sometime at Katoma. At Bundulai I met a friend with whom I attended the Ansarul Islamic Secondary School in Lungi. He had a bike. At that time, there were no vehicles plying the route to Port Loko. He eventually gave me a ride on his bike. On our way, we saw a checkpoint and I thought it was mounted by the SLA. I then saw a small boy emerged from the bush and grabbed the bike. The moment I had wanted to beat the boy, I saw a large crowd coming behind us. The boy ordered us to descend the bike and took the bike and went into the bush. Another small boy came and told us to lie on the ground on our backs. They searched us and I was having money (Le5,000) hidden in my pants. They took my cap and wore it; others remove our slippers and wore them. They dipped their hands into my pants and remove the money. Only God can tell how I felt. My friend was treated in like manner and we were left naked. They were carrying guns with no bullets. When I say bayonets in the guns, I had some relief. I asked God to save my life. We were beaten severely. After the beating, one of the rebels said there was no need to waste their time on us. He told them that we were the ones who asked the government to invite ECOMOG to kill them. I told them that I don't know ECOMOG. He ordered them to kill me. One of the rebels came from the bush saying that no instruction was given by Maskita to kill. They beat and slapped me and I became helpless. They were carrying sticks and guns with no bullets. They beat me and kicked me and I was bleeding through the nose, mouth and my entire body. We pretended as if we were dead and they departed. I raised my head and found my friend severely wounded and helpless. I dragged myself across to him and asked, "What do we do?" He replied, "We have to die here as there is no one to assist us". We saw another group coming our way and we had to had no where to go but to go back to Samu. We walked some distance and rested and arrived at Katoma along the Little Scarcies River at about 1 am in the morning. I knocked on the door of a friend and he ferried me over the Mambolo. On arriving at my aunt's house, she started crying when she saw the wounds on my body. I was admitted at Mambolo for 2 months. She called for my mum. I stayed in Mabololo for two months and returned to Kasirie.

Rebels again attacked the village this time it was during nighttime. They found me with a pack of cigarettes. I ran into the bush and slept in a hole with no clothes on and it was raining. Since then, I had been experiencing cold. In the morning, I went to the town and found the entire town looted. Fortunately for me I did not close my room and God did not lead them to my room. The rebels act was continuous, I then told my parents to leave Kasirie as I have once been beaten by rebels and do not want any repetition. We went into a nearby, I started experiencing the pains of the beating. My mother took me to Kasirie. Upon examining my body, the doctor asked whether I fell from a tree or beaten. My father responded that I was beaten. The doctor told them if I had not gone on time for medical attention, I would have been dead. The doctor did well to save my life. On the day I was discharged from the hospital, I had a bout of cholera and my parents took me to the same doctor. He treated me and I recovered. I told my parents we should depart Lokomasama when I heard the disarmament was about to commence. We bade farewell to our host and came to Port Loko. Shortly thereafter I lost my father. This is my story.

QUESTIONS

Commissionerer Marcus-Jones: In your story, you mentioned a friend, what happened to him?

Ishmael: I noticed he had a wound on his leg.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you been able to trace him since then?

Ishmael: I have not been able to see him.

Commissioner Torto: You mentioned that the rebels said Maskita did not give those orders to kill and knowing that Maskita belongs to the RUF; do you want to say that the attackers were RUF?

Ishmael: Yes, they were RUF dressed in military pants and different shirts

Commissioner Torto: What was the name of the doctor who treated you? Was he an NGO, government or private doctor?

Ishmael: He was a private doctor and his name was Dr. Yandi.

Commissioner Torto: Can you locate him?

Ishmael: No

Torto: Did he request payments after your treatment?

Ishmael: Yes

Comm. Torto: How much

Ishmael: He requested fifty thousand leones, we negotiated and paid twenty-five thousand leones.

Martien: Can you clarify the year in which the event happened?

Ishmael: It was around 1997-1998

Martien: In your statement you mentioned that the rebels identified themselves as Westside Boys. Is this correct?

Ishmael: Yes.

Martien: Did they call themselves West Side Boys or did you imagine them to be west side boys.

Ishmael: I identified them as west side boys because that was the area they were residing.

Martien: Do you remember the government at that time?

Ishmael: Yes, it was the SLPP regime.

Martien: Was it before the coup by AFRC?

Ishmael: Yes

Martien: How old were these boys?

Ishmael: They were between the ages of 17 and 18 years.

Comm. Torto: What languages did they speak?

Ishmael: They spoke Mende, Temne and Limba.

Martien: You mentioned several attacks in this village, were children abducted?

Ishmael: No, they did not abduct any body they only looted properties.

Martien: Did they kill anybody?

Ishmael: No, they only looted.

Martien: Have you any consequences of the beaten you undergone?

Ishmael: I suffered internal pains and I have to see the doctor every three months.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Have you any question for the Commission?

Ishmael: I have one question. The commission has asked us to clear our minds what is the next step.

Comm. Marcus Jones: After clearing your mind I hope you feel better. You have done something for Sierra Leone by sharing your experiences. Whatever went wrong would be corrected and there would be no repetition of such. Do you have any question for the Commission?

Ishmael: No more questions.

Comm. Marcus Jones: What recommendations do you want the Commission to include in its final reports?

Ishmael: I want the government to assist all victims who suffered during the 10-year war.

Comm. Marcus Jones: Thank you very much for sharing your experiences with us. Your recommendations will be included in our reports.

WITNESS NAME: Aminata Sampa BANGURA

TESTIMONY

My name is Aminata Sampa Bangura. I am a Muslim; Commissioner Marcus Jones administered the oath.

I was in a village called Romoria where I was married. One day I was in the village in our farm preparing millet for the evening meal when my husband called out to me to leave what I was doing because the rebels had attacked the village. I did not hear him clearly. By the time I got the message properly, I was face to face with the rebels. I had never seen a rebel before and they captured me. I was so frightened that I urinated on my pants. They captured me together with fourteen others. We were taken to the highway to board a vehicle but there was no vehicle plying the road. They then took us into the house of a Pa Keku Kamara. In this house, my co-wife was first called into a room and she was raped. One of them then called me into the room and asked me to have sex with him. I pleaded that I was a suckling mother; he could not hear my plea. He in fact threatened to kill my child if I don't do as he commanded me. I had no alternative but to accept. After sex he left me to call another woman. During the interval, I escaped through the back window and ran into the bush where I passed the night. In the morning, I traveled through the bush and met with my husband. We then traveled to Port Loko and stayed at Mrs. Fokie Sokoi's house. Whilst in Port Loko, I realized that my child was partially paralyzed. Madam Sokoi advised that we take the child to the government hospital. After the treatment, my child was still paralyzed. Eventually I lost the child. I started suffering from severe stomachache. I got pregnant on two occasions but lost both pregnancies, no known cause. I told my husband that I wanted to go to my brother in Freetown to seek medical attention. He agreed and I departed. Whilst in Freetown, my husband never came to visit or take me back with him. I got married to another man and I now have a child. After childbirth, I am still experiencing severe stomachache. As my husband lives in Benguema, things are very difficult for me here in Port Loko. I solely depend on my aunts and uncles. My sister and I are taking care of our widowed mother. This is all that I have to say.

QUESTION

Comm. Marcus-Jones: The other husband you married in Freetown, are you still husband and wife?

Aminata: Yes. He stays in Freetown and I stay in Port Loko.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Does he know that you are testifying to the Commission?

Aminata: Yes. I had long told him that whenever the Commission sits, I would be going to testify.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Did he agree with you?

Aminata: Yes.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: I hope other husbands will take the lead as Amanita's husband has done.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: The person you referred to be staying in Benguema, who is he?

Aminata: My present husband

Comm. Marcus-Jones: When you went to Freetown to seek medical attention, you mentioned that your husband did not visit you at any one time. Why didn't you come back to him?

Aminata: After a year has passed by and he did not visit me in Freetown, I came back to him but he did not sympathize with my situation, therefore I had to return to Freetown.

Comm. Torto: Can you remember your captors by their faces?

Aminata: I don't know them

Comm. Torto: Can you identify them if they face you?

Aminata: I can't because it was nighttime.

Comm. Torto: What languages did they speak?

Aminata: They spoke Mende, Temne and krio.

Comm. Torto: What fighting forces do they belong to?

Aminata: They were the West Side Boys.

Martien: What year did this happen?

Aminata: I cannot remember. Well I can only remember that it was during the second attack in Port Loko in 1998.

Martien: How old were you at the time of the attack?

Aminata: That was the time I had my third child. I will be 28 years of age this year.

Martien: You mentioned fourteen people captured. What happened to the others?

Aminata: I escaped after I was raped so I cannot tell what happened to the others.

Martien: Can you tell how many times you were raped and by how many men.

Aminata: I was raped by only one of them.

Martien: Can you tell the Commission what is your present health situation?

Aminata: I am not very healthy and I have not been getting proper medical attention. I'm only using native herbs.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: What is the health condition of this baby you are carrying?

Aminata: Fairly satisfactory.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Do you have any question for the Commission?

Aminata: Now that I have made my submission to the Commission, what is the Commission going to do.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: The Commission is going to include your testimony in its report to show one of the ways in which women suffered during the conflict. The Commission is mandated to report particularly on women and children and the Commission will be making recommendations from all what it is gaining from witnesses, particularly women and children in particular. During the war no matter where, women and children are always targeted and we hope our reward would be able to ease the problem in Sierra Leone.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Have you any other question?

Aminata: No.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation for a better life for women in Sierra Leone. This is your opportunity to say it now.

Aminata: Looking at all our sufferings, I propose that the Commission recommends to the government to assist women to regain their health and secondly to empower them.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for coming we appreciate your courage and we advise that you hold to yourself and baby

WITNESS NAME: Momoh Koroma

TESTIMONY

My name is Momoh Koroma and I am a Christian. My story is this. My mother gave birth to ten of us. She had difficulties during childbirth. She lost nine of her children and I am the only survivor. The four other women my mother depended on are also dead. I had to join a society to feed my mother. When I joined this group, my father was left behind to care for my mum.

On 30th January 1998, the rebels attacked our village and we all had to run into the bush. My father was left behind and was killed. What surprised me most was that after they had killed my father, the rebels went in search of me, shouting my name. I was hiding in the bush and did not answer. They finally found my sister and she led them to where I was hiding. I had no option but to follow them. At this time I never realized they had killed my father. They carried me to where my father was lying and ordered me to bury him. I asked some of my friends and other people around to help me bury my father in the bush. We collected his remains and buried him.

I cannot really recollect the faces of the attackers but they spoke Temne, Mende and Krio. They warned us not to be afraid of them but we should be afraid of ECOMOG and the Apha jet. I told them we are afraid of them because they had killed my father and do not know who the next person would be. My father had lots of herds; we were herders in our family. The rebels stayed in the village for more than two weeks, they looted all they can. After they had left, we left the village for Port Loko town. Presently, we are still in Port Loko and we are finding it very difficult to live.

QUESTIONS

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Thank you Momoh, I don't have any question for you

Comm. Torto: Can you remember the person that called you after the death of your father?

Momoh: I cannot remember. Those who came to carry me from the bush were four in number

Comm. Torto: Can you distinguish the fighting force that attacked your village? Where they Kamajors, RUF, Donsos, ECOMOG or SLA?

Momoh: I cannot distinguish them but they were wearing Tupac T-shirts, with military uniform tied around their waist.

Comm. Torto: If you could think properly, who you think the attackers were or which fighting force do you suspect they belong to.

Momoh: I suspected them to be RUF.

Martien: According to your statement, you mentioned that the rebels asked you to come to your father's house. Is that true?

Momoh: Yes.

Martien: What happened thereafter?

Momoh: When they killed my father they searched for my sister and she directed them to where I was hiding.

Martien: Did the rebels take you to your father's house?

Momoh: When they found us in the bush where we were hiding, they grabbed me and took me to my father's house. At that time, I did not know they had killed my father.

Martien: What did they do to you?

Momoh: They did not beat me up or treated me in any brutal way. All they asked was that I should bury my father, but I was afraid. They didn't cause any harm to the other members of my family. All they did was to loot. They looted rice, sheep, money equivalent to one drum of oil and the tape my father had.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Have you any questions for the Commission

Momoh: Looking at the whole situation I am now an orphan. My father whom we depended on has been killed. My father's relations do not care about us. Therefore, I am asking the government to help us.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Are there any recommendations you would like to make?

Momoh: I am recommending that Government build houses for us so that we cannot continue to suffer.

WITNESS NAME: Hassan G. Kanu

WITNESS NO: 006

REFERENCE NO: 2/86/2128

TESTIMONY:

My name is Hassan G. Kanu. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Sylvanus Torto, the Presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

Opening prayers – Christian – the prayer was lead by Mrs. Manyeh, a chorus was sang “leh we tell am tenki”

Muslim - The Alfathia was recited.

TESTIMONY:

I am Hassan G. Kanu, I lived in a village called Mamusa. I stayed in this village for sometime, when I started hearing treats of rebel attack. We were convinced that the rebels would not attack the village. On the 2nd December 1998 we heard the rebels had attacked a village called Kabata. Since this village was a long way from our village, we were still convinced that the rebels would not reach our village. At night we saw a lot of people carrying luggage on their heads. When we ask them, they said the rebels had attacked their village but they did not see the rebels. They stopped at our village to rest.

I sat a while with the strangers, and then went into my room to sleep. By then my wife was pregnant she told me that she was going to her mother to give birth. At about 2pm on 3rd December 1998, I had wanted to ease myself, as I tried to open the door; I heard the sound of a radio. I was afraid to open the door however; it was my late headmaster and one of my colleagues who were outside the house. The headmaster called and told me not to be afraid; finally I got out of the room. I sat with them for sometime, the headmaster told others and myself to go to bed because he was also convinced that the rebels would not attack the village.

At that time, my wife was with her grandmother. As I was about to sleep, I heard the first gunshot and the first time to hear of a rebel attack in that village. The whole village was in a state of confusion. The rebels were uttering abusive languages and obscenities. I tried to open the lock, but couldn't because I was in a panic state. My intension then, was to open my room, so I could run to my wife in the next village. I went through the window. I was unable to take my belongings; I only had my shirt and a short on.

On the way, I met my wife in the bush, I asked her for the baby and she told me that the baby was with her grandmother.

At 5 pm, we came back to the village, I started looking out for my wife's grandmother and the grandmother was looking for my wife as well. At 9 am the following day, I was able to see the grandmother, I asked her for the child. She told me that she thought my wife had the child with her. I went to the house and I found out that the house had been burnt down. When I entered the house, I saw chaff and some tiny bones. The child was burnt in the house. The child was exactly 10 months old at that time. He was born on 3rd of February 1998 and killed on the 3rd December 1998.

QUESTION

Comm. Torto – Thank you for your testimony and we appreciate your coming forward to testify. We are sorry for the loss of your child. Can you tell us who the attackers were?

Hassan: I cannot identify them during that night, but the following morning when we came back to the village, I saw on the burnt walls the inscription "RUF/AFRC".

Comm. Torto: What were your headmaster and friend doing outside your veranda?

Hassan: They were killing time before going to sleep.

Comm. Torto – What was the distance from your house to their houses?

Hassan: We were very close. We shared a big compound.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: We are sorry that you lost your baby; we are glad that you have come to share your experience, was that the only time the rebels attacked your village?

Hassan: Yes

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Apart from your house, how many other houses were burnt down?

Hassan: All the houses in the village were burnt down.

Comm. Torto: Was your wife in the house during the attack?

Hassan: We were not in the same house. She was with her grandmother.

Martien: How many people were killed in the attack apart from your child?

Hassan: Another child was also burnt in a house and five others killed.

Martien: – What was the name of your child?

Hassan: His name was Santigie Kanu

Comm. Torto: – We have asked you so many questions; do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Hassan: I have one question. What is the essence of this Commission?

Comm. Torto: – It is a good question. It is unfortunate that you were not around yesterday when we explained the reasons for the formation of this Commission. It was formed with the aim of forestalling a recurrence of what happened during the ten-year war.

Comm. Torto: – Do you have any other question?

Hassan: No

Comm. Torto: What recommendations would you want to make to the Commission that we may include in our report?

Hassan: My recommendation to the Commission for onward transmission to the government is, I know that my child is already dead. No amount of money can be equivalent to the life of my child. My only recommendation is for the government to assist in the development of my village and the community as a whole especially, as the rains is fast approaching.

Comm. Torto: – We thank you, but the TRC Act does not give us the mandate to compensate victims, the Commission does not have the money to give for reparation. We can recommend to government to assist victims of the war. Your testimony will be studied closely and necessary recommendations will be made.

WITNESS NAME: Brima Kabia

WITNESS NO: 007

REFERENCE NO: 2/86/2110

TESTIMONY:

My name is Brima Kabia. I am a Muslim. Commission Torto the presiding Commissioner administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

I came from a village called, Katik in the Marampa chiefdom. I was in this village with my children. We had a common boundary with Masemira Chiefdom. One day we heard that the rebels were making attempts to ferry across to our village. At the time they informed us that the rebels were heading for our village they did not show up for about a week. So we considered the information to be untrue. Our belongings that we had kept in the bush, we had to take them back to the village. Three weeks thereafter, about 4:30 am we heard the first gunshot in the village, we were all confused; we all ran and hid in the bush. My wife was left behind and she was captured together with fifty. At about 9 pm that same day we came back to the village, I could only find my kids. I looked everywhere and later realized that my belongings had been looted. The rebels looted all I had. They captured captives were taken to a village called Rokfollah. After the captives had carried the looted goods to this village they were released. They stayed with the rebels for five days before their released. When they came back their feet were swollen, because of the long distance they had traveled. I then asked my wife to narrate her ordeal. I asked whether she was beaten, I further asked whether the rebels had intercourse with her she said yes, naturally I was not happy so I stopped asking questions, we had a dispenser in our village and I took her to this doctor for medical treatment. There was another attack; this attack was the last attack before the end of the war. Everybody in the village ran to another chiefdom. We stayed there for about ten months. It was during that time that security prevailed in the village. We return to our village to see what destructions the rebels had done. On our return I found out that my house was not burnt down but everything was looted, even the roof. My other house in the next village was also vandalized. I discovered that the roof was also removed from the house. This is my own experience in the war.

Comm. Torto: Did your wife know any of the people who raped her?

Brima: She could not tell.

Comm. Torto: What group did these attackers belong to?

Brima: I personally cannot identify the group the attackers belong to, but my wife told me that they were in military fatigue.

Comm. Torto: In narrating her ordeal to you, did she mention any killing?

Brima: Nobody was killed in the village all those who were captured were released.

Comm. Torto: From your written statement, you mentioned about Captain Peace, Could you tell me about him?

Brima: My wife mentioned that name to me.

Comm. Torto: Was she a bush wife to this captain?

Brima: Yes, it was Captain Peace who temporary married her.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: What is your wife's present health condition, or immediately after her stay with the rebels?

Brima: My wife's health had been critical from the time she was captured until now she is still not herself.

Comm. Marcus Jones: What is the name of the village in which your wife was taken to?

Brima: The village is called

Martien: In what year did the rebels attack your village?

Brima: I can't remember, but the second attack was in 1999.

Martien: Was it before the general election or after the election

Brima: The first attack took place after the elections in 1996

Martien: I am very sorry for what happened to your wife. It is very important that you had come to testify. You mentioned that your wife is experiencing difficulties. What kind of difficulty is she experiencing?

Brima: She is not very healthy, but once on a while I take her for medical check up.

Martien: Did you take her to the hospital?

Brima: I normally take her to the village dispensary.

Martien: Has the treatment helped her in any way?

Brima: Whenever she goes to the dispensary, after some treatment she feels better but it lasted only for a short while.

Comm. Torto: – Do you have any question to ask the commission?

Brima: I do not have any question to ask the commission, but I have some recommendations to make to the commission. As far as I am concern, one of the reasons for the war is the high rate of unemployment. I want the government to do its best to provide employments for youths in the country.

Comm. Torto: There are some NGOs who can assist and others create avenue for skill training. Do you have any more recommendation to make to the commission?

Brima: No, that's the only recommendation I have.

Comm. Torto to include the final thanks

DATE: 30TH April 2003

WITNESS NAME: Thomas Forfanah

WITNESS NO: 008

REFERENCE NO: 2/86/2118

My name is Thomas Forfanah. I am a Muslim. Commission Sylvanus Torto, the Presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

I spent most of my lifetime in Kono in a town called Masabendu. One day the rebels attacked and we ran into the bush. It was rainy season and we slept in the bush. Those who ran towards the river came back and told us that the rebels had killed Pa Yayah and Pa Musa. We asked our informant about the situation in town. They told us that after they had killed the two people they stabbed the others and departed. With the assurance that the rebels had left, we came back to the village. When we came back to the village we tried to identify the grave where Pa Musa and Pa Yayah were buried. This moved me so much that I decided to go back to the house but was so afraid that I left all my belongings behind. I went to Masabendu Junction where ECOMG were deployed. We stayed there for one month. This period was difficult because there was no food. We had to live on cassava. When the farm owners were not around, we rooted their cassava and ate them. On their return, they found out that their cassava farm had been stolen from. They then reported the matter to the ECOMOG Commander at Massbendu Junction. A group of soldiers was ordered to carry us and we were faced with Captain Sesay who told us that the allegation against us was that we left our village to steal cassava in another village. He then ordered us to brush and clean the surround. I was hit with a stick on the by one of the soldiers..

On the 26th of March 1998, the rebels attacked our village, at about 1.30 a.m. I had malaria and was just from the toilet as I was experiencing frequent stools. As I was about to go to bed I heard gunshots. The rebels had attacked the village. I could see the bullets coming closer to me from where I laid. I had to hide under the bed. There was sporadic firing. From my hiding place, I heard people screaming, the rebels were engaged in killing and stabbing. One of the rebels eventually kicked my door and entered the house, a little while, another entered. They found three people asleep and they woke them up, they then entered my room and found me. We were all assembled in the sitting room while they looted all our belongings. The youngest of us all was taken away and ordered that we be killed. They discovered a bag, which belonged to one of our colleagues who was in Masingbi at that time. The rebels wanted to open this bag so we were asked for the keys. We told them that the owner of the key was not here. They insisted that if we do not produce the key they would kill us. So they started to beat us. I told the rebel to destroy the bag in order to open the bag rather than beating us. Finally they discovered the key and the open the bag the contents were looted away. Another rebel entered and told his colleague that he was wasting time on us. Immediately he started firing. By then I was lying on the floor. One of my colleagues was shot on his bed another was shot on the stomach. I was already helpless thinking that I would be the next. The man next to me was still alive. One of the bullets released by the rebels hit part of my buttocks. They were all standing looking at us. I pretended as if I were dead. They pointed a touch at us to confirm that we were dead; we all lied down as if we were dead. They went into the room took a foam mattress and set it ablaze. When they realize that the house was on fire, they departed. We managed to escape. Only two out of five survived. The other three died. I was bleeding profusely, I discovered that the bleeding came through the bullet wound but the pain was not severe. From where I was hiding, I was not very far from the house and I saw it burnt to ashes. I later went over to the house and found out that the others had burnt down to ashes.

In the morning I called one of the survivor's wives Abie, I informed her about the death of her husband and we went over to the burnt house. On our way, we found out that another person was also killed that night. We decided to leave the village, as it was no longer safe. We walked on foot from..... to there we boarded a vehicle. I still had this wound on my buttocks but there was no medical facility. I had to walk all the way to

During the night the pain became severe, I was almost at the point of death. My sister's husband immediately took me to Makeni, I was admitted there for one week then I was taken to Masingbi hospital, I stayed in the hospital until I recovered. This is all I have to say.

QUESTIONS

Comm. Torto: In order to help us make some judgments in your testimony we would like to ask a few questions. How many people were killed at Masabendu Junction?

Thomas: They were many; I cannot give the exact figure.

Comm. Torto: Can you give the name of the persons killed in the house?

Thomas: Ya Adama Koroma, Amara and Saidu

Comm. Torto: What is the complete name of Pa. and what happened to his body?

Thomas: I cannot tell exactly what happened to his remains. They were all abandoned in the village

Comm. Torto: Can you tell the names of your attackers?

Thomas: It was difficult for me to identify the particular group, I knew they were rebels

Comm. Torto: Can you identify them, were they RUF, Kamajors, AFRC etc., can you identify the particular group

Thomas: They were RUF

Comm. Torto: What was the name of the captain who hit you on your head?

Thomas: Captain Sesay, and he belongs to the SLA

Charm: you said you have to I by the time of the attack, where these ECOMOG still at the Msasabendu junction

Thomas: yes

Charm: Where there any fighting between the ECOMOG and the RUF?

Thomas: There was no fighting at that time

Comm. Torto: Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Thomas: Yes, we observed that the government is taking care of the perpetrators rather than the victims.

Comm. Torto: That's a good question; a lot of witnesses have asked this same question. One reason is; what we are enjoying today - Peace, we have to pay the price for peace. If there had been no peace, the Commission would not have been here today. What had happened to you would have continued. It was agreed in Lomé that some form of incentive should be given to the rebels to help deviate their minds. No body is compensating them for what they have done. I am neither a politician nor a government but I know of some mechanisms that are put in place by some NGOs to assist war victims. That is a form of compensation to victims. We are sorry for what had happen to you. Please don't think that they are compensated for the wrongs they did. Do you have any other question?

Thomas: No

Comm. Torto: Do you have any recommendations to make to the commission?

Thomas: I want to make an addition regarding the last attack, about the continuity of the war after the Lomé Agreement. After the agreement we all thought it was the end of the war but the war continued, today I have been made an orphan. My only brother was beaten to death in Lunsar when the fighting broke out again after the Lomé Agreement.

Comm. Torto: Do you know the perpetrators?

Thomas: They were rebels. My sister was also beaten to death, in the village on the Lunsar, Port Loko highway.

Comm. Torto: Can you remember their names?

Thomas: I cannot identify them

Comm. Torto: You will agree with me that a lot of incidence happened after the signing of the Lomé agreement. You will also remember that on May 8 some people were killed, and the Lomé peace accord had granted amnesty to all fighters for that period. 7th of July 1999.

Thomas: – My recommendation is that the government should do everything in its power to create employment.

Comm. Torto:

WITNESS NAME: Hawa Kanu

WITNESS NO: 009

REFERENCE NO: 2/86/2119

My name is Hawa Kanu. I am a Muslim. Commission Sylvanus Torto, the Presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

I stayed in the village of Mabeseneh. One evening my husband joined others for the evening prayers in the mosque. After he had left, a madman by the name of Osman beat up the wife of an SLA Officer. After the beating, people alerted the officer and then soldiers entered the village. When the soldiers came they entered the mosque and started beating up the people. My husband and others fled, but my husband fell on the wayside. The soldiers found him and gave him severe beating thinking he was the madman. Eventually my husband managed to reach the house. He narrated his ordeal. After a short while, my husband died as a result of the beating inflicted by him. Now I am a widow and single parent and I have to bore all the family responsibilities.

Comm. Torto: Did Osman enter the Mosque?

Hawa: Yes, he use to go to the mosque everyday

Comm. Torto: When did he enter the Mosque?

Hawa: He entered the mosque when he was chased by the soldiers

Comm. Torto: How many soldiers entered the mosque?

Hawa: Four

Comm. Torto: How many people were in the mosque?

Hawa: They were in large numbers.

Comm. Torto: Do you know where the soldiers came from?

Hawa: I cannot tell where they came from.

Comm. Torto: You mentioned that one of people in the congregation was beaten to death. Can you tell the name of that person?

Hawa: It was my husband

Comm. Torto: Did you take him to the hospital?

Hawa: No, there was no hospital at that time

Comm. Marcus-Jones: I am happy that you are here to give your testimony. That was an unfortunate case of missing identity. We are sorry that you lost your husband. How many children do you have?

Hawa: Three

Comm. Marcus-Jones: You said you are responsible for their welfare, Is that correct.

Hawa: Yes

Comm. Marcus-Jones: How old are they?

Hawa: The eldest is a boy, the second is not going to school; the third is a girl she is at the verge of getting married

Comm. Marcus-Jones: The third is a girl, how old is she?

Hawa: she is about 18 years

Comm. Marcus-Jones: what is she doing for a living

Hawa: she is a farmer

Comm. Marcus-Jones: Did you marry after the death of your husband

Hawa: No

Charm: Do you know which fraction did the attackers belong to?

Hawa: SLA

Charm: Can you tell where they were staying?

Hawa: They were deployed at Lunsar; these groups of soldiers that entered were staying at Mabeseneh village

Charm: Do you know the name of the wife of the soldier that was beaten

Hawa: No

Charm: In your written statement, you mention about one Mr. Tee can you tell me about him

Hawa: Mr. Tee was a soldier he was deployed at Mabeseneh

Charm: Was he one of them?

Hawa: I don't know.

Charm: Apart from your husband do you know of any other people beaten by the soldiers?

Hawa: Everybody in the mosque was beaten.

Charm: Did you know of any other person who died as a result of this beating?

Hawa: I only know of my husband.

Comm. Torto: Do you have any question for the commission?

Hawa: I don't have any question; I only have a suggestion and a recommendation. The only recommendation is that government should assist me now that my husband is dead and the responsibility of the children is solely on me considering the fact that I am a widow and single parent.

Comm. Torto: – There is a stipulated mandate that these functions can be performed. It is regrettable that the commission did not have the means but we have the mandate to forward these recommendations in our final report.

I thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Abu Bakarr Baloster Saccoh

WITNESS NO: 010

REFERENCE NO: 2/86/2113

My name is Abu Bakarr Baloster Saccoh. I am a Christian. Commissioner Sylvanus Torto, the Presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

On the 21st of June 1995, the rebels eventually infiltrated into Lunsar after the ninth attempt. At about 4 pm, I heard sporadic firing. I ran into the bush with my family. I could not go with my car. We spent the night in the bush. The following day at about 9 am, I came out of my hiding place. To my utmost dismay, I found my compound grounded and it in flames, my car also was partly in flames. Before then, the SLA was living with us in the village, but on the day of the attack, they were nowhere to be found until the following morning. I asked Yamahokati, the commander in charge in Krio "what happened that you were unable to protect us". He replied that the rebels overwhelmed them. My houses were grounded, until now I could not rebuild them. I am presently a displaced.

On 3rd December 1998, the rebels attacked Mamusa at about 2 a.m. unfortunately for me; I was also in this village. I was asleep when my driver alerted me that the rebels had attacked the village. I was having a car in Mamusa. I escaped through the window by the boy's quarter into the bush. Luckily, the rebels did not do any shooting. I stayed in the bush for sometime then the rebels began to shoot. Upon hearing the gunshots, I lifted my head and saw the village on fire. I then said to myself, "oh! My house had been burnt again".

In the morning, I did not leave my hiding place for fear that I was being targeted. I was a petrol dealer, farmer and a politician. When I came out of my hiding place, I found that my house was grounded, car vandalized and my petrol station burnt. Going around, I found 15 corpses, some of their faces burnt and used to mount roadblocks. I departed for Lunsar where my house had been burnt. Fortunately for me, the store and toilet building of the house were not burnt down and I had to use the store as a living room. On the 4th December 1998, two of the abductees at Mamusa showed up in Lunsar. I met with them and they asked me if I knew S.A.J. Musa and that he was one of their captors. They stated that I was very lucky to escape as I was their target and they were going to launch another attack in Lunsar. The following day, 5th December, Lunsar was again attacked. They attacked the ECOMOG base. A mathematics teacher and some ECOMOG officers were killed during the battle. I again escaped and slept in the bush together with my family. I ferried across the Rokel River to Masimera Chiefdom reroute to Freetown. I returned to Lunsar after normalcy because at that time, Lunsar was a no mans land. As I had given the opportunity to testify this afternoon, I do not have much to say. I was reluctant to testify but as a Christian, "what has been done cannot be undone". The scripture tells us in Hebrews 11:6 "Without faith it is impossible to praise God. For whosoever comes to Him must believe that He exist and He reward those who honestly serve Him". So all is vanity? Mr. Commissioner and all those concern I thank you very much.

Comm. Torto: I am very impressed with the testimony you made, as you rightly said, you were reluctant at first, I am sure that as you have testified, your psychological burden will ease. I urge you to keep the faith as a Christian. Did you loose members of your family?

Abu Bakarr: No, I only lost properties.

Comm. Torto: You talked about your car which of the cars was burnt?

Abu Bakarr: I had two cars.

Comm. Torto: What was your relationship with Yamahokati and his colleagues during the war?

Abu Bakarr: He was the Ground Commander in Lunsar, he was an SLA officer. We regularly held meetings on security issues and the defense of the town. As I did say, the rebels made nine attempts before they eventually succeeded in attacking. The rebels tried to attack Lunsar during the reign of Yamahokati but they did not to succeed. That was why we relied on him for security.

Comm. Torto: Did he tell you where they were after talking to him?

Abu Bakarr: Yes, he said he spent the night at Foredugu and I did see him the following morning coming from Foredugu because I spent the night at a village called Makomb.

Comm. Torto: How would you classify the people that did these things to you, which faction did they belong to?

Abu Bakarr: As I did say, I had a compound which was grounded, when I showed up the following morning, I saw RUF written on my gate.

Comm. Torto: We are grateful that you have come to help the TRC, we are sorry for all the material loss you had and for the anxiety. Once there is life, there is hope. It is good to realize that you have confidence in God. You told us that you were a politician, a businessman and a farmer. Can you point out any definite reason why you were targeted?

Abu Bakarr: As a petrol dealer, I was able to purchase a large amount of fuel and that means money. I was in charge of Mobil station in Port Loko and Mamusa village. The petrol companies needed money as they had run short of cash. They suggested that we should pay in notes rather than bank drafts. I want to believe there were people monitoring our daily movements. They might have seen me offloading my products.

Comm. Torto: Did they succeed in getting the money?

Abu Bakarr: Yes they succeeded in getting my money and some of my petroleum products because at that time our oil company had wanted physical cash. We told them about the dangers involved. Even taking the cash to Freetown was not easy, but we had no alternative because the boss is always right.

Martien: You mentioned about three different attacks, the first one was in 1995, I would like to know if anybody was killed?

Abu Bakarr: Yes, people were killed.

Martien: How many people were killed?

Abu Bakarr: Two people were killed.

Martien: How many people were abducted?

Abu Bakarr: I was told that many people were abducted, including boys and girls.

Martien: Do you have any idea how many people were abducted and their present health status?

Abu Bakarr: When they showed up, some were not quite ok, they had to be taken to the hospital.

Martien: Do you know what happened to them during their stay with the rebels?

Abu Bakarr: I don't know because I was not in their camp.

Martien: Did they tell you or other people what happened to them?

Abu Bakarr: Yes, I saw a suckling mother; she told me her ordeal when she was with the rebels. An NGO called Save the Children, came to Lunsar and collected the abducted children.

Martien: Did they tell you whether they were raped?

Abu Bakarr: Some of them told me that they were forced to go to bed with them; some were forced to carry their arms.

Martien: I want to take you back to the second attack on 5th December 1998; you mentioned that a teacher was killed in that attack. I want to know whether other people were killed.

Abu Bakarr: At the ECOMOG base, they killed one Sgt Major, he was an ECOMOG Personnel, and they were in the same compound with the teachers.

Martien: Was there a fight between ECOMOG and the RUF?

Abu Bakarr: When they left Mamusa, we were expecting them to go to Freetown but they made a U turn and come to Lunsar, where they attacked the ECOMOG base.

Martien: Were the ECOMOG able to defend the people of Lunsar.

Abu Bakarr: They were overwhelmed by the rebels.

Martien: You said, you are a politician, what is your political affiliation?

Abu Bakarr: I was an aspirant of the SLPP and I am still loyal to the government of the day.

Martien: Could that be a reason why you were targeted?

Abu Bakarr: I very much doubt it, being an SLPP member does not mean that I have money, it was because I was a petrol dealer.

Martien: The 2nd attack in 1998, which group of rebels attacked you?

Abu Bakarr: I guess it was a mixture of them, on my return I saw a writing on my gate "AFRC/RUF heading for Freetown".

Comm. Torto: Could you give us a rough estimate of the cash you loose in the hands of the rebels?

Abu Bakarr: I cannot tell at the moment.

Comm. Torto: Since we have asked you so many questions do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Abu Bakarr: What is the composition of the commission?

Comm. Torto: I am sorry, you were not here yesterday, the Commission is composed of 7 members, 4 nationals, i.e. Sierra Leoneans and three international staff, of the four Sierra Leoneans; we have Bishop J.C. Humper who is now in Bo and he is the Chairman, we have Justice Marcus Jones who is the deputy of the Commission, Prof. John Kamara, who was former principal of Njala, Sylvanus Torto, Head of Administration Department at IPAM. The international Commissioners, Yasmine Sooka, she is a South African who was a member of the TRC in South Africa, Prof. William Schabas from Canada and Ireland, a renowned Human Rights Lawyer and Madam Ajaaratou Satang Jow, a Gambian, she was a Minister of Education for a while in The Gambia. The panel was selected by the United Nations.

Abu Bakarr: Now that I have heard the composition of the Commission, I wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors. I do not doubt your integrity and credibility. I do not have any question to ask.

Comm. Torto: Do you have any recommendation?

Abu Bakarr: Lunsar is an unfortunate town when it comes to rehabilitation. The rebels vandalized a town like Masiaka and it has been rehabilitated, on the way to Mabora, villages were vandalized; they had been now rehabilitated. On to Rogbere Junction also on the same highway to Lunsar it was vandalized and it has now been rehabilitated. The big question is what Lunsar has done to be neglected in areas of rehabilitation. I am craving your indulgence so that you can recommend to Government for them to rehabilitate the houses in Lunsar. We now have a young and dynamic Paramount Chief and if given the opportunity he will do well. I thank you.

Comm. Torto: The commission will take your recommendation to the government there are some NGOs who are responsible in assisting victims for rehabilitation.

Comm. Marcus-Jones: I just want to comment that Mr. Saccoh is a politician of the SLPP and he must have some connections in the government of the day, I believe he can advocate for the development of Lunsar.

TESTIMONY

My name is Sheka Kabia and I am a Muslim. Commissioner Sylvanus Torto, the Presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

My name is Sheka Kabia. I am a native of Lunsar in Marampa Chiefdom. I was a trader. On day I went to buy palm oil and groundnut at Konta in Masimera Chiefdom. At about 2 pm, I had collected my goods when I saw lots of men in military uniforms. When the people saw these men in military uniforms, most of them ran away. At that time I had no chance to run away. I was standing with my friend, called Unisa. The men in military fatigue asked me, what I was doing in the village. I told them that I was on business, the rest of the men in uniform shouted at me. By the time I could realize what was happening, two of the men in uniform placed me on the ground and the others turned their attention to the house where my goods were. The others were beating me; they lay me on the ground and some kicked me on the head, some on the chest and some on the buttocks. The one I identified as the head asked the others what I have done to them. They told him that I have not done anything, just that they suspected that I was transacting business for the SLA. He stopped them and ordered my release. The people in military fatigue were then approaching me then I had the opportunity to escape. I went into the bush and I traveled through the bush until I came to the highway between Masiaka and Mile 91. There I boarded a vehicle and returned to Tombo where my sister was staying. Since that time, it was difficult for me to go back to the provinces. This was the ordeal I went through. Until present, I am not doing well at all. I have my mother, wife and my two children to care for.

Comm. Torto: During this attack, did they kill anybody?

Sheika: No

Comm. Torto: What group; did your perpetrators belong to?

Sheika: I believe they belong to the RUF, because they were not in military fatigue they were putting on civilian's clothes.

Comm. Torto: Can you remember their faces if you are to come face to face with them?

Sheika: No.

Martien: I have few questions to ask, how do you know they were RUF?

Sheika: I suspected the group to be RUF because those who attacked us were very young boys; between the ages of 15 and 18. The army does not recruit young boys

Martien: Were there women among them?

Sheika: Yes.

Martien: Who was in charge, was it one of these young boys?

Sheika: He was a man

Martien: In what year did it happen?

Sheika: In 1998.

Martien: – Did you remember the languages they were speaking?

Sheika: Some spoke Krio, Mende, Temne and some spoke Liberian pidgin.

Comm. Torto: Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Sheika: No.

Comm. Torto: Do you have any recommendation to make to the Commission for onward transmission to the government?

Sheika: My recommendation to government is; I suspect that one of the causes of this war was greed and the other was unemployment.

I therefore recommend that government create employment opportunities, and they must ensure that everybody have a share of the national cake.

Comm. Torto: I have a point of observation, I am not defending the government, before the attack you were doing well, you were self- employed, and comparatively you were better than some employees. If one or two of your friends had follow suit, there would not be much problem of unemployment. However, your suggestion will be taken into good part and we sympathize with you for what you suffered.

I thank you very much for coming.

My name is Foday Abdulai Kamara, I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones the Presiding Commissioner.

Opening prayers: Christian – Mrs. Mayen - Chorus: “We give you thanks”

TESTIMONY

My name is Foday Abdulai Kamara. One day, I was in my village called Kamasondo, in the early hours of the morning we heard the sound of gunshots. At that time my dependants were all with me. So I tried to escape with them to a nearby village, we spent the night in our hiding place. It took me the entire day to find a hiding place, we suffered a lot in the bush, we finally spent the night in the bush, unfortunately, it happened during the rainy season. The following morning, I told my family to stay where they were so that I can go back to the village to see what had happened. When I went to the village I discovered that the village was burnt down. I personally inherited three houses from my late father; all those three houses were burnt down. I went round to inspect the other houses in the village I also discovered that they were all burnt. I discovered that one of our elders in the village was killed, I found his corpse. I discovered the corpse of my sister, one of my friends was also killed and a village sub chief was killed. When I saw these corpses, I was terrified, at that time the rebels were around. I later went back to my hiding. I advised that we should move from there to another village.

My step mother who was with me, was so hungry that she was unable to go any further, however, we managed to prepare some porridge for her. We finally get to Lunsar, the rest of my family were dispatched to Freetown. Few of us returned to find out whether the rebels were still occupying our village, fortunately for us they had gone back to their base. All our cattle and sheep were carted away by the rebels. Since we wanted to stay in the village we put up some temporary structure. The house was overcrowded, the following year I got some seed rice and brushed a farm. The rebels came back when it was time to harvest, they harvested all my rice. I will not be able to recount all the problems I encountered during the rebel incursion.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Thank you Foday for giving such a testimony. I am going to ask you few questions to clarify issues you made in your statement. Do you know any Kalilu Sesay?

Ans: Yes.

Comm. Marcus Jones - who is he?

Ans – He is my brother.

Comm. Marcus Jones - Did anything happen to him?

Ans - Yes, his houses were burnt down.

Comm. Marcus Jones – How old was your stepmother at that time?

Ans - I can't tell her age.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Is she with you?

Ans - She is dead.

Comm. Marcus Jones– Is it because of the rebel attack?

Ans - She was not killed by the rebels, she fell ill and die.

Comm. Marcus Jones– Have you been able to improve on those shacks?

Ans - I have actually improved on the shacks because I used the zinc that was burnt by the rebels but I still experience leakages.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Did you know any of the rebels?

Ans - It is difficult to identify them, because when they entered any village nobody was able to look at them.

Comm. - Can you identify them?

Ans - No.

Comm. Marcus – the commission is mandated to work with religious leaders, you are a member of the Muslim Jamaat, have you made any effort to bring these people onboard so that they can continue to live normal lives again?

Ans - I have been doing that, each time we went to the mosque we preached about forgiveness to the people.

Comm. Torto - Can you tell me who Osman Kamara was in Kamasondo?

Ans - Osman Kamara is my son.

Comm. Torto – Did he witness the attack?

Ans - We were together.

Comm. Torto - He does not seem to know anything that happened to you.

Ans - When we escaped to the bush, we were all scattered.

Comm. Torto- You said that you were all scattered around, how did he know what happened to you?

Ans - We were separated in the bush, but we met again later.

Martien – In which year did the rebels attack you?

Ans - It was in 1996.

Martien – Was it before or after the election?

Ans: Immediately after the election.

Martien - You said you found dead bodies in the village?

Ans - Yes.

Martien – Can you give the names?

Ans - Yabowarrah Kamara, Fatu Kamara, Amadu Foulah, Yusuf and O'bai.

Comm. Marcus Jones – We have been asking you questions, do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Ans - My question is - now that I am poor and cannot embark on profitable farming. What will the Commission do to assist me?

Marcus Jones –You did tell us that when you returned to your village, you started farming. Unfortunately, the rebels came and get away with all your harvest. Now that we have peace, you have a better climate to go ahead with your farming; I believe you should go farming. If you cultivate in your farm you will make a lot of profit for you to live a better life, the country should be able to create these facilities for you and to help you get medical facilities in your community. That is why this Commission is formed, so that recommendations and suggestions made will be included in our report for you to benefit in future.

Comm. Marcus Jones -Do you have any other question?

Ans- My next question relate to shelter, like I told you in my testimony, all the houses in my village were burnt down. What assistant can we get so that we can have proper shelter?

Marcus Jones – It is important you look for some NGOs to assist in constructing a better structure for you, they might not be able to give you all the money you required, but they will be able to assist in giving you building materials. The TRC does not give money to people and also it would not be possible for government to go all over the country giving money to people to restructure their burnt houses. It would not be even advisable for TRC to give out money to people because some people will come out to give elaborate story or terrible lies. The Commission is interested in knowing the truth and made its recommendation to government. That is the work of TRC.

Ans - I want to comment on this last response you made to me. You told me that the Commission is mandated or have not got the resources to give to people but there are NGOs who are responsible for that. I am an illiterate and I don't know how to go about finding these people?

Marcus Jones – You can talk to our briefer they will advice you on what to do. Any more questions?

Ans - During the war we have to send some of our children to Freetown at that time Freetown was safe, unfortunately, Freetown was also attacked by the rebels; our children were sent back to us, what we will do now that we are displaced.

Marcus- Jones – In our report, the Commission will make recommendations to the government and these recommendations will be implemented in the future.

Marcus Jones: Do you have recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to Government?

Ans - My recommendation is that Government should assist us get better accommodation so as to forestall overcrowding and the spread of disease. I also recommend that government build a school for our community.

Marcus Jones – I thank you for helping us. We urge you to be a little bit patient and we will be living in a better country in future.

REFERENCE NO: 2/85/2093

TESTIMONY

My name is Ramatu Sesay. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

I say thanks to God. I was with my husband in Kono when the war started and we ran to Makeni. From there I came to a village called Komasendo. I went there to buy palm oil, I bought ten drums. I later sent for my husband to join me in the village. We took the palm oil to Makeni, we spent two days there and on the third day, my husband asked me to go to Kono. I traveled to Kono on a Thursday, I took the palm oil with me, and I arrived in Kono the same day. When I arrived in Kono I found my relatives packing their belongings they asked me why I was there, I told them that I never knew what was happening. Then one of my customers bought a drum of palm oil from me. I left the others in the store. I returned to my house with the intention of getting a vehicle to take me back to Makeni but I couldn't. I was worried because of the information I got from my parents. I spent that night in Kono. At about 5 a.m, I heard gunshots and I woke my brother to inform him about the gunshots I heard. On my way to the store, I met people running helter-skelter. There were firing all over the place, I went back to my brother and told him that I have lost all my commodities. By the time I reached the Community Centre, the whole Koidu Town was in a confused state. I finally left for Kamasondo on my brother's advice. I told him that I cannot return without my goods, he insisted that I must go back to the village, I refused and he left me behind and came to Makeni. On his return to Kono he persuaded me to return back to Makeni, on our way going we met so many corpses. I met one man who asked me where I was going, I told him that I am going to Safroko, we then continue our journey. We walked on feet until we reached Masingbi and then finally board a vehicle to Makeni. At that time my feet were swollen and he took me to the hospital. After I recovered and I went back to the house. I finally decided to go back to Kamasando. The little money I had on me I used to buy 250 bushel of rice, 27 bags of salt, 2 Cartoons of Cosmos Cigarette, 2 bags of soda. It was after I had collected all these goods that the rebels attacked Kamansondo again, I ran to the bush with my husband. Whilst in the bush, we were hiding on top of a hill, he saw rebels entered our house and he told me that rebels had entered my house. They didn't take anything from my house. They went out and there was no way we could go to our house. On the 3rd day they took a vehicle and looted all our belongings. On that day, they found me in the house. A small boy said that I should give him money. I told him I have no money and I asked him why. I then saw many people coming with arms. The little boy took my shoes and he ordered me out to sit under the sun and looked as they went away with my properties. I also have 31 bags of garri in a nearby village, my husband told me to go that village, because the highway was blocked by the rebels. He advised that we follow a by-pass route to Gbinti en route to Port Loko. My husband then returned to the village. After selling my garri, I then went to Freetown to stay with my relatives. Whilst I was in Freetown I had information that the SLA had gone to Kamasando, and they have passed through my village. I was worried about my children who I had left behind in the village. I boarded a vehicle for Port Loko. No sooner the people, who knew me saw me, they started making some gesticulations. I asked them why but they didn't say anything. I asked them about my husband some couldn't talk but others advised that I go to the village. Upon reaching, I met my house wide open, the windows and doors damaged. I saw my children and I asked them about their father, they started crying and told me that he had instructed them to go ahead. As he was going, he met rebels; they beat him and asked him for money. The rebels then asked him about his wife and he told them that I am not around. As they were interrogating him a rebel came out and said that it's the woman who kept the money. They beat him until he was helpless. They gave him their luggage to carry and about 31 people were abducted. When they reached their base, they gave him a bag of husk rice to pound. Wherever he wanted to go, he was given a guard. Any time he wanted to drink they would not allow him and as they moved to their final destination they killed him. I tried to find his corpse but I couldn't. We followed the road and I found my husband's shoes and shirts, the abductees later informed me that my husband was killed. I told them to continue to follow me so that I will find my husband's corpse, but my relatives did not allow me. After two days, I paid some people the sum of 200,000 Leones to help me find the corpse of my husband. I had wanted to give him a fitting burial rite. On the way, there were rebel road blocks, the rebels asked where I was going, I told them that my husband was killed in the next village, I told them that I wanted to find his corpse but they advised that I should not go. When I insisted to go, the rebels took my bag from me. Since it was impossible to get the corpse of my husband, I decided to go back to his village Rosint, in Sanda Chiefdom. Some of his relatives said I should forget about him, some people told me that the rebels had eaten his body; others said that vulture had eaten his body and some also said that his body has decomposed. So I did the traditional memorial rite for him in his village and I came back to my village but I couldn't stay because I was not in a good condition. I decided to go to Freetown but I find life very difficult so I had to return back to my village. Up till now, things are not favorable with me. I have no capital to start business, and no shelter. I depend on my relatives for survival. I used to live well but now I am poor. This is my story.

Comm. Marcus -Jones – we are moved and sorry to hear your testimony, we sympathize with you for the loss of your husband.

Ans - That is my greatest problem; if he was alive I would not have suffered this way.

Comm. Marcus –Jones - I know, but your husband would want to see you brave to take care of your children. You told us about your children, you said your husband sent them ahead, which was how they escaped the rebels. So your husband was very thoughtful about the children. It is now your duty to go on and take care of those children. We thank you for coming to this Commission and giving your testimony, we have heard all you told us, people in their homes or at work place have heard you, and we all acknowledge your suffering and of others during the war. It is now for all survivors to go on and take care of their family and live in a better country where there will be no such violence any more. Will you be able to answer some questions now?

Ans - Yes, I will be able to answer.

Marcus Jones – I would ask some questions for clarification, who were your attackers?

Ans - I can't identify them.

Marcus Jones - Do you know the fighting group they belonged to?

Ans - I was told that the group belongs to the SLA who retreated from Makeni.

Marcus Jones – Do you think you were targeted because of your influence?

Ans - I think so, because people knew I was well to do, the other houses were not attacked by the rebels.

Marcus Jones – who gave you the details that your husband was manhandled by the rebels?

Ans - The abductees who escaped from the rebels. In my testimony, I told you that about 31 people were abducted; some of them escaped and they gave me the information about the death of my husband.

Marcus Jones – Where they able to tell you what happened to the corpse of your husband?

Ans - Some of these abductees told me that the corpse of my husband was eaten by the rebels in a village called Makabo in Marampa Chiefdom.

Marcus Jones - Was your brother abducted as well?

Ans - My brother was unable to tell me that my husband had been killed because it was heavy for him. He was abducted but he escaped.

Marcus Jones -My question was whether your brother was abducted?

Ans - He was abducted but he later escaped.

Marcus Jones - Did your brother see what happened to the corpse of your husband?

Ans - My brother found the corpse of my husband on the way, but they were not allowed to stay, he did see the corpse.

Comm. Torto – We thank you for coming to relate your experience with us. I want to encourage you to make few clarifications. Does the name Sheku Sesay, mean anything to you or what did it remind you of?

Ans - Sheku Sesay was my brother, he was one of the abductees.

Comm. Torto – In your statement you mentioned that your brother was forced to prepare food before he was released?

Ans - I cannot remember making that statement, he was my brother, according to him, somebody helped him to escape when they were cooking, he did not do the cooking himself.

Martien - In what year did this happen?

Ans - I can't remember, the only event I can recall was the time the SLA retreated from Makeni.

Martien – What is the condition of your family now?

Ans - I am going through very difficult times with my family, since my husband was killed by rebels I am staying in my village but I am suffering I did not have any assistance from anybody unless my relatives. I also have a friend called Sarah Kobi who occasionally helped me.

Marcus Jones – I want to ask you some question about your husband’s corpse that the perpetrators did like killings, cannibalism, raping etc. Now that you have answered all these questions do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Ans - Now that the rebels had killed my husbands, looted all my properties, how do I stand now?

Marcus-Jones – That is a difficult question for the Commission to answer. It is for you to decide how brave you are going to be, the example you are going to take from others and how you hope to continue your life in future. It is for you to answer these questions. Whilst you are alive, you are not disable you have your children, you have your relatives, you have your friend, everything is not finish as yet, “as long as there is life there is hope”. Do you have any recommendation to make that we can include in our report?

Ans - Yes I have, out of five children, I buried four of them there is only one survivor. I am appealing for assistance to educate the only one I have now. I would recommend that government assist in education, health and the general welfare of my community as a whole.

Marcus- Jones – Did these children die as a result of this war?

Ans - No, they died naturally.

Marcus-Jones - We thank you for sharing your testimony with us. We appreciate your courage. We know you will make it.

TESTIMONY

My name is Gbessay Kamara. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

When the war started, I was in Boajibu. I was there together with my family, but didn’t feel quite safe. We managed to get food for our survival. My wife advised that we leave another village Kendema which is bigger. When we went there at about 7pm we heard gunshots from across the river. Everybody in the town at that time was confused; I had my kids with me. I told my wife that I will go ahead with some of our belongings and she will have to stay behind. She told me that I should not live her alone with the children; I realized later that we should all go together. Since the attack was about 7pm, we traveled all night to seek refuge. Finally, we slept in a village called Rogbanti and the following morning we managed to get food for the children at this stage the children were unable to walk on foot, they refused going any further, at this point in time there was no vehicle plying the road. We spent the night in the village. Whilst we were there we heard the sound of gunshots and we saw people running away, in the process one of my children got missing from that time I had not been able to set eyes on my child. Since then I became helpless, I decided not to go anywhere, but there was no alternative, I had to move and finally I got to Masingbi and we boarded a vehicle that took us to Makeni. On the next day, I managed to get to my village, Kamansondo. I was there together with my wife and children. I joined my relatives in the village to do some farming but I was very unhappy when I think of my son that got missing. The following year, the rebels attacked Kamansondo. On the first day of the attack they looted all my belongings. It was on a Sunday. At that time we were listening to the result of the 1996 general elections. During this time I saw someone carrying a gun. The first shot I heard, hit one of my brothers who was carrying a bundle of zinc. So all of us had to run away into the bush for quite sometime. While we were in the bush we saw smoke coming from the town. We were informed that the whole village had been set on fire. We asked ourselves what we should do as the village had been burnt. We went to seek refuge and we met my step mother and my brothers. I decided to leave my people in hiding to find out what was happening in my village but I was advised not to go the village. I therefore returned to my parents and told my people that the village had been burnt. The children were hungry as there was nothing for them to eat. I told my father that he has to manage to travel to the highway so that we can board a vehicle to take us back. Upon that decision we resolved to leave our hiding place.

Since the family was large we separated and my mother and father with my family, went to Freetown, whilst my brother and myself went to Makeni, we were advised there by our family to go to the camp. We registered in the camp and stayed there until the end of that year. During that time we were informed that the Lome Agreement had been signed. That all displaced persons must return to their homes. At that time the Red Cross provided vehicles to take us back to our villages. The Red Cross together with our family helped with that process. We manage the burnt zincs to get shelter. We were there leaving happy. On a certain day the rebels attack Kosawai and as usual we escaped. We were in the bush at that time and the rebels were in the habit of hit and run. When we venture to go back to the village thinking they had gone, we saw a large crowd of rebels entering the village, when they got to the village they told us that they have not come to civilians, whilst they were saying that some were entering people's houses looting their properties. They were just cajoling us; they wanted to keep us in the village for human shield. I was not satisfied, I had to escape, I was later told that the rebels had left the village; I was told that they abducted many people in the village.

Some of them stay behind, the ones that were left behind, three men and one woman. I went into my room got some salt, as soon as I was about to come out, a rebel pointed a gun at me. I wanted to run away but I couldn't. I fell on the ground and the rebel picked me up from the ground. The rebels asked me to show them the wealthy people in the village. They took me to their colleague, the one that held me did not beat me, one of his colleagues, slapped me. I saw my nephew and one suckling mother with them. One of them told me to carry his gun. They found a sheep in the village and said I must carry the gun and at the same time carry the sheep but I was unable to move fast because the sheep was sluggish to walk. Unfortunately for them, they follow the wrong route and their colleagues were on there own. In the next village, we met few people in the village but as they saw us they all started running away. The rebels asked the people in the village whether they have seen soldiers in the village they said no. They later removed the gun from me and handed it over the village head man; the suckling mother was later released. They continue to beat me on the way going. Finally we got to another village where we found other rebels and they stopped beating me. The person in charge of that group was called Kosowai; he took the looted goods from us. My child was hungry I told them that I wanted to find something for her to eat. So we were released by those rebels. We all went back to our village; some of the abductees were also released.

Marcus Jones – Have you recovered from the beaten you got from the rebels?

Ans – I must confess that I am impotent, I have lost my manhood.

Marcus Jones – Did you not seek medical advice in your village after your release?

Ans – I did not seek medical attention because I had no money at the time and it was unsafe to go back to the village.

Comm. Torto - I thank you for coming and sharing your experience with us. You were used as human shield for torture. I want you to make some clarification. Who actually abducted you and do you know which of the fighting groups they belonged to?

Ans - The rebels.

Comm. Tort – Which of the rebel groups?

Ans - The SLA.

Comm. Torto - Can you identify their faces?

Ans - I can identify the one who beat me if I see him.

Comm. Torto – Can you remember the name Alhaji, “Kill man no law”?

Ans - The rebel that captured me and took me along with the gun and sheep told me that he is Alhaji.

Comm. Torto – A tall, black man that came from Lunsar?

Ans - The Alhaji that captured me was fair in complexion, very tall, speaks krio and he hailed from Lunsar.

Mr. Charm – You said that when the rebels attacked your village in 1996 one of your brothers was killed; can you tell me the name of your brother?

Ans - It was not my brother but my sister, her name was Fatmata Kamara

Mr. Charm - Was it after the Abidjan Peace Accord or the Lome Peace Accord that you returned to your village

Ans - I cannot tell, all I know was that it was after the last accord.

Mr. Charm – Can you tell whether they were small boys or adults?

Ans - They were youths. There was a young woman with them.

Mr. Charm – How many people were abducted?

Ans - I cannot tell, I was told that they were large in number.

Mr. Charm – How long were you with them?

Ans - I did not spend the whole day with them.

Mr. Charm - Did they identify themselves as RUF?

Ans - One of the women in their group had RUF inscribed on her back.

Mr. Charm – Where you able to speak to this woman to know why RUF is written on her back?

Ans - I was not able to talk to her because she was carrying a whip and she was flogging the suckling mother.

Mr. Charm - How are you coping with your family?

Ans - I want to thank our Paramount Chief who has gone out to get seed rice from some NGOs. It is these seed rice that we are using to farm, from the proceeds we take care of our family.

Marcus Jones - Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Ans - I want to know the relationship between the Commission and victims?

Marcus Jones – The relationship between the Commission and Victims is a very strong one. The Commission is victim-oriented; we want them to share their testimony with us and we later addressed these issue so that there will not be a recurrence of such things in the future. There is a very strong relationship between the Commission and victims.

Apart from relaying their experiences, we encourage the victims to give recommendations and suggestions that will be included in our report for onward transmission to the government. Our report will be dedicated to a large extent to the victims.

Do you have any recommendations to make to this Commission that will be included in its report?

Ans - Yes, I have two recommendations; firstly, now that our community had become inaccessible, the bridges had been destroyed by the rebels it is very difficult for us to go to the market. We are recommending that government restructure our bridges. We have few primary schools but we do not have a secondary school, our children had to go to Freetown or Makeni for their secondary education. The problem is that these children will go astray when they get to those big towns because the parents are not to there to take care of them. We need a secondary school in our Chiefdom.

Marcus Jones – Thank you very much for coming to this Commission. Your recommendation will be included in our report and submitted to government. I encourage you not to give up, but to continue and seek medical attention. I hope you are feeling better now.

Ans - Yes, I now see the essence of the Commission, as I sit here I seem to be getting some relief.

TESTIMONY:

My name is Karayemu Sesay. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the presiding Commissioner.

My experience during the conflict. The SLA that retreated from Makeni and abducted me. They found me in my village Kamasondo and they captured me I was with them for 18 days, I was beaten, they beat me with their guns. I stayed with them throughout the 18 days. We were 43 in all that was abducted. We came down to Mamusa. I was there when they killed Ramatu's husband. They also killed my brother Amadu Sankoh in the village; our children were beaten when they were asked to give them money. When it was night they put on their military uniform and raped us. We were taken as their wives for 18 days. The men who were abducted with us were able to escape; fortunately, I escaped from them when we reached Makeni.

They told us that when we were going back if we were interrogated by ECOMOG we should tell them that we were captured by the rebels. When we explained to the soldiers they provide vehicle for us. We walked for a long distance. When I finally get back to my village, I found out that my relatives were killed. I had nothing to do now that my brothers had been killed by the rebels. The rebels burnt down our village; my husband was beaten and up till now he has not recover from that problem. In our village we have no medical facilities. Our children are not going to school. When I was released I got some medication to treat myself from sexual transmission disease but now I am feeling better except my left eye which is still disturbing me.

Marcus Jones – we are sorry you suffered so much during the war; they attempted to take away dignity from you but I can see that you have recovered in a way and that you have come here with a great courage. We thank you for coming so that others could hear to your story. We would like to ask few questions, to clarify points which are not quite clear to us. Whilst you were held for the period of 18 days how many of them treated you as wife?

Ans - Four of them.

Marcus Jones – You said you were present when the last witness husband was killed?

Ans - Yes, we were captured together, I was present when the rebels hit him and he fell down and eventually died.

Marcus Jones – Were you present when they ate him?

Ans - there were two groups of rebels, the group that captured us beat him and he fell on the highway but the other group actually killed him. I am not sure whether they ate him.

Marcus Jones – Where is your husband and how is he feeling now?

Ans - He is at home healing gradually.

Marcus Jones - You had treatment when returned home but I can see you still have problem with one eye, was it as a result of the time you spent with the rebels?

Ans – Yes I got this eye problem as a result of the beating I got from the rebels.

Marcus Jones – Can you tell us something about your children?

Ans - When the rebels captured me and took me away I left my children behind, they were beaten by the rebels. They took away all our belongings including the food my children were to eat, I returned to find my children in a state of malnutrition. Even if you had money at that time, there was nothing to buy.

Marcus Jones – How many children have you?

Ans - Two sons.

Marcus Jones - Did they suffer any injury?

Ans - Except for the beatings they received from the rebels.

Martien – Apart from your two boys, do you also have a baby daughter?

Ans - Yes I have one daughter, on my return I found her dead and my brother was also dead.

Martien: How old was your daughter?

Ans She was one year two months old.

Martien - How did your child die?

Ans - She died because she had no care and there was no food. She died because of lack of care.

Martien - How old was your brother?

Ans - I cannot tell the age of my brother.

Martien – Can you tell of the circumstances of your brother's death?

Ans - My brother was killed by rebels.

Martien – Can you tell us his name?

Ans - His name was Amadu Sankoh, my brother left his children and they are now with me.

Martien- During your abduction, how many people were abducted along with you?

Ans – We were 43 in number.

Martien – Did all of you come back?

Ans - Out of the 43, 20 were able to escape on the day we were captured, 23 of us were carried away, but all of us returned except for the one who was killed.

Martien – What did they do during this 18 days, did they attack other places?

Ans - We were not stable.

Martien - Where the abductees present when the rebels attacked other villages?

Ans - No

Martien - Where were you when the rebels were attacking other villages?

Ans - From the time they captured us, the rebels did not attack any other villages, all the other villages were rebel free.

Martien – Did they make other women wives as well?

Ans – We were all used as their wives, it is impossible for the rebels to capture a woman not make her a wife.

Martien – How many women were there with you?

Ans - We were 15 in number.

Martien – Can you tell the age of the youngest amongst you?

Ans - The youngest was about 12 years.

Marcus Jones – You said the rebels put on military uniform at night what did they wear during the day?

Ans - The same military uniform.

Marcus-Jones - Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Ans - Yes, the question I want to ask is about the welfare of my community. I know that we have to forgive, forget and reconcile. Our community had been destroyed by the rebels; no school, no road; our goods are perishing. What assistance can we expect from the government?

Marcus Jones - It is more likely that communities rather than individuals are going to benefit from the recommendations and suggestions we have from these hearings. I will be happy if you receive that assistance. We thank you, we are impressed that you are interested in forgiving and reconciling with the rebels and also interested in community development.

Do you have any recommendation to make to the Commission?

Ans - It is our Paramount Chief had made effort to help us rebuilding our lives, but he cannot do it alone, we are appealing to government to assist us in rebuilding our community.

Marcus Jones – Thank you for coming, the commission wishes you good health, improvement on your eye, and wishes you a brighter future.

My name is Mohamed Wusu Sankoh. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY

I lived in the village of Kamasondo and there I was, when the rebels the attacked and abducted me with my younger sister. The first day I was taken to a place called Kabere. When they captured us, they assured us that they will not do any harm to us we should not be afraid. However, the following in this village, they started killing and raping women. I was in captivity for three days together with my younger sister. So after three days, they asked us to go back when we got to Kamasondo, a woman was killed, they also burnt the village. About 4 people were killed in the village that same day. Beside the four they killed that day, we discovered two other corpses in the bush. On the fourth day, my younger sister was raped; she was nine years old at that time. Our duty was to carry their ammunition. Since my sister was raped, she was unable to travel with us and we were told that the Gbethis were on the offensive. I found my younger sister bleeding; I carry her on my back, together with one woman who helped me attend to my sister. We went to Mile 91 where we found some people that came from Bo; they were there to render medical assistance to the displaced. They attended to my sister. I had one my sister, Karayemu Sankoh who was staying in mile 91. I left my sister with her. On my return, I was informed that about 200 people were killed by the rebels in the village. At about this time, one Rev Fr. Mario went to find out whether this number of people was killed. When peace came, it was the time when the rebels stopped killing they went on looting. That was the time the rebels looted all our cattle. When they took the last cow, I insisted, I told the rebel that enough is enough. Because of that statement they gave me a very nasty slap that gave me some teeth problem.

From Kamasondo, they went to Lunsar where they killed about 20 people. That is my experience during the conflict.

Marcus Jones – Thank you Mohamed, you have done well to come to TRC to give your testimony. How is your sister doing now?

Ans - My sister cannot walk properly now.

Marcus Jones – How old is she now?

Ans - She is about 15 years old now.

Marcus Jones – Was she able to go to school?

Ans - She was going to school before she was captured by the rebels.

Marcus Jones – Is she going to school now?

Ans - No.

MARCUS Jones – Is it because of the injury she incurred from the rebels?

Ans - It is not for the bad foot, it is because there is no school in our community and we do not have the resources to educate her.

Marcus Jones – Does she work at all?

Ans - She is not gainfully employed and since I can no longer afford to educate and take care of her, I have given her to a husband.

Marcus Jones - Is she happily married?

Ans - It is better for her to get married than to sit down doing nothing.

Marcush Jones - Can you tell me something about Fr. Mario.

Ans - Fr. Mario got to Kamasondo and later returned to Lunsar.

Comm. Torto – Mohamed thank you very much for your testimony. I have some issue for you to clarify, in your written statement; you spoke of a certain victim. What victim, is it Mahawa Sankoh?

Ans - Mahawa Sankoh is my younger sister. She was raped by the rebels; I and one woman took her to mile 91.

Comm. Torto – Can you remember the faces of these rebels?

Ans - I cannot remember them, during the time they were raping my sister I was locked up in a room. I got to know when I found her bleeding in the morning.

Comm. Torto - What was Fr. Mario doing in your vicinity?

Ans - During the war the Father was supplying us bulgur.

Comm. Torto – Behind rebels' lines?

Ans - He supplied us bulgur immediately after our village was attacked.

Comm. – Torto - Which of the fighting forces attacked your village?

Ans - It was difficult for one to identify the attackers, because all of them wore military uniforms.

Comm. Torto - So you cannot remember any one of them?

Ans - It was difficult at that time to identify any one of them, when you are given their loads to carry, so it was difficult for someone to turn around and watch their faces.

Comm. Torto – You voluntarily went to found out what had happened to your people or were you forced to do that?

Ans - What happened was that we were in a dilemma in our village, the Gbethis will come and call us rebels and the rebels would come and call us Gbethis.

Comm. Torto – I hear you say that Gbethis were maltreating civilians?

Ans – I witness one incident, to show that the Gbethis were harassing civilians. Amongst the civilians they beat was my mother-in-law, secondly they burnt my father's house, and we were forced to carry their loads.

Marcus Jones – Do you have any question to ask the commission?

Ans - Now that we have shared our testimony with you and most of our people are not well, their health is not normal, what would the commission do to help such people?

Marcus Jones - The commission in its final report, will also include your recommendation and the recommendations of others to let the government know the things that people need in their communities. We hope that you will be able to read the report and see all the recommendation made in it for your community and other communities. You have also helped yourself by coming here to tell us all you have suffered, because it is not enough to say you have forgotten it, it helps when you come in the open to talk about it for others to hear about your sufferings. Any other question

Ans - Yes, now that we have honored your invitation by coming to testify we are urging you to seek assistance from NGOs to help us rebuild our community, especially in reconstructing the bridges; we would also like you to assist us in building secondary school.

Marcus Jones – We had similar pleas this morning for you to get access to your village, and the construction of a secondary school as well. There are NGO who are in charge of rehabilitation. The interpreter has said it loud and clear for all NGOs to hear about the recommendations of these people in Kamasondo village. Do you have any recommendation to make to the commission?

Ans - The recommendation I want to make to government through this Commission – is that our community is dire in need of a secondary school. We are in dire need of proper accommodations and communication.

Marcus Jones – Do you have more questions to ask? If none, then I want to take this opportunity to thank Paramount Chief Bai Banta N'Kennedy the second for bringing his people here today to give their testimony in this Commission and to bring their problems out to the public. We hope other Paramount Chiefs will cooperate with us as we go to other towns.

My name is Pa Santigie Kamara. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY:

It was on a Friday morning after the early Morning Prayer, just a few seconds after the prayer, we heard the sound of a gunshot from our neighboring village, that village is called Gbonkli Yama. We also heard another gunshot from another village called Druthongo and another was heard from Rokonta. All these villages were very close to my village called Manarma. As soon as the rebel got into our village and fired the first shot, the Gbethis and the SLAs who were there to protect us, fled to Port Loko. There was a grave which had been dug to bury one woman who had died before the attack but the husband had however refused her being buried in that site so it was open; I went in there to hide. I saw that the rebels had white handkerchiefs on their heads, the others from the other village had no clothes on I saw them captured my children. Those who came from the other village captured five of my children together with my wives from their hiding place. They brought them to town, spread a mat on the floor and they took out a machete. While I was hiding inside this grave I was peeping, they had a solar panel, the commander who was sitting at the verandah made an order and my child Abass was killed, his head was chopped off and he struggled before he finally gave up. The next person was my daughter, Rugie Kamara was also killed. I also saw my wife killed, my second wife Kadiatu Turay was also killed and they also killed my son named Mamudu Kamara. They also killed my elder brother named Mamudu Kamara. They also killed one Gaima Kamara, my sister Koloneh was also killed, my son Allie Kamara and my other wife Aminata Kamara was also killed. My daughter Rugie Kamara was pregnant at the time she was killed; the child was removed from her stomach. These people who did this act, they wore t-shirts with writings at the back and front and they had white bands on their heads. Those that came without clothes had long hairs and those that came from Lunsar, had military uniforms, boots and red cloth tied on their hands. They killed sixteen people on that spot.

I escaped from the grave, before it was 6 in the morning; they had burnt down my four houses. They also went to Rokonta and burnt my two houses. I took eleven days to I bury my family and that was when I discovered that some were killed by bullets, some stabbed, and some had burnt mark on their bodies. They collected 73 people in the village locked them up in a house and burnt them alive. If you are to go to this village, you will find their skulls, the village is called Manarma. I was not myself I became temporarily insane.

I went to Freetown and I stayed at 10 Mammy Yoko Street. I spent some time with my relatives there, after some time we were told that the area is free from rebels, so I decided to come back. When I came back, one of my children Yabom Kamara, somebody told me that they saw her with the West Side Boys and N'nadaywa Kamara. After I got this information, the rebels again attack this village. As far as this chiefdom is concern it will be an individual, who suffered like me during this conflict. Almost all my wives were killed; my children were killed; the only survivors are little kids, I had decided not to testify, because all they have to say is sorry. This is what I suffered during the conflict. The education of my five children is coming to an end; my village is some distance away from Port Loko town. The rebels had burnt all our houses; I have managed to get some plastic sheets to cover my house so that I can manage with my children. We came together to establish a community school but thieves stole the materials like plastic sheet we bought.

Marcus Jones – You said you really don't want to come because all they would have to say is "sorry". I must say that this is not the instance where one person will say sorry to you, but the country as a whole. Can you tell us a little bit about your present status, since you are a traditional leader?

Ans - I am a section chief.

Marcus Jones - Do you think this made you a target?

Ans - I don't think I was a target of the rebels because of my traditional position; it was because of my hard work in the village. I am one of those who are doing fine. I only have to say that is the will of God.

Marcus Jones – What are you doing now?

Ans - It is difficult for me to sit in the village and operate as a section chief. I do not have shelter, wife and no money, so there is no need for me to sit in the village.

Marcus Jones – Can you help the Leaders of Evidence to trace the village where the skulls are?

Ans - yes, I will. (Commissioners and staff visited the site and were shown the site)

Comm. Torto – Thank you for coming. I congratulate you for your courage to give such a testimony. Is there any kind of traditional ceremony to perform for the death of such a large number of people in your Chiefdom?

Ans - I did that after I buried my entire relative, it took me about one year before I returned to the village. I have done so.

Comm. Torto – We are deeply sorry for what happened to you, as the Chairperson had earlier said, would you be ready to lead us to the spot where these skulls are?

Ans - I am quite ready to lead your personnel to this point.

Comm. Torto – How many miles from here to this village?

Ans - Nine miles.

Martien – You said 73 people were burnt in a house, where there other houses burnt beside your own?

Ans - Yes, of all the houses in the villages, 34 houses were burnt down, and I owned four of these houses.

Martien – You said that houses were burnt down in the nearby villages, were your houses also burnt in those villages?

Ans - My two houses were burnt down in Rokonta and also two were burnt down in Makalissa.

Martien – Were other houses burnt in these two villages?

Ans - Besides my houses, they burnt another fifteen houses in Makalissa.

Martien – You told us that two of your daughters were abducted by the rebels, who told you that they were seen with the West Side Boys.

Ans - I was informed by one of my sisters who was also captured by the West Side Boys, but later escaped.

Martien – Where was that?

Ans - They were at camped at Rogbere Gbana.

Martien – Since then did you hear anything from or about them and their whereabouts?

Ans - From the time I got that information, up till now I have not heard about them, I am sure they are alive but I don't know their whereabouts.

Marcus Jones – We are grateful that you have come here today. It will help ease your pain. Can you just tell us who carried all these killings?

Ans - I cannot identify any of these people, all I know is that they emerge from three villages, some came half naked, some had military uniform with red cloths tied round their hand, and some had white cloths on their head.

Marcus Jones - Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Ans - No - I don't have question but I have a recommendation to make to the Commission. I have two recommendations, firstly, is that of my children, I was told that they were with the West Side Boys, I would like this Commission and the Government helps me recover my children. They are Nnadawa and Yabom Kamara, I would be very grateful if you can help me trace my children.

Secondly, is that of education, we have built a school that had 300 children which was destroyed by the rebels. I would like the government to assist this community in building schools in our area.

Marcus Jones – This Commission is not in place to help you with that, but the briefer will help direct you an organization that could help you. I thank you very much for coming.

Ans - I got the information that my daughter, Nnadawa is in Moyamba, I went there and visited the Police Station but I was unable to make progress because of the language barrier.

Marcus Jones – There is a media which you can go through in helping you trace the whereabouts of your daughters.

DISTRICT HEARINGS

PORT LOKO

DATE: 02 May 2003

WITNESS NAME: Hawa Sheriff

WITNESS NO: 018

REFERENCE NO: 3/77/4488

Opening Prayers: Muslim Prayer by my Charm and Christian Prayer by Mrs. Bondu Manyeh; she asked all to recite the 23rd Psalm

Testimony

My name is Hawa Sheriff. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Torto the Presiding Commissioner.

I was in Kono during this conflict when the rebels attacked Koidu; I left and went through Kabala to a village called Faya in the Koinadugu District. I was there with my daughter. We were there for some time and the rebels attacked the village one night. As they were firing, one bullet hit my daughter's head and another hit me on my foot. We bled profusely all throughout the night as there was no where to seek medical attention. The following morning, I saw two men and asked them for a blade; one sold a blade to me which I used to operate on my daughter's head and on my foot. I was not able to identify any of the attackers because when we heard the firing, we went into hiding.

Torto: We are happy that you come forward to testify and that you successfully perform the operation. Since the incident have you sought proper medical treatment?

Hawa: Yes, I took my daughter to Conakry, where I was given a card as a refugee. When we got to the hospital, the doctor said that if the bullet is removed from my daughter's head she will go mad or die. The doctor's name is Dr. Jakitay.

Torto: Where the child?

Hawa: She is here with me.

Torto: What is her present health situation?

Hawa: At present she is attending school but she experiences frequent head aches?

Torto: How old is she?

Hawa: She is 11 years old.

Martein: You said you have the X-ray with you; can you produce it for us to see?

Hawa: Yes. (She produced it)

Torto: You mentioned one bullet and we are now seeing three. How can you explain it?

Hawa: When you look at the x-ray, you may want to think that there more than one bullet but it is actually one.

Torto: Have you any question?

Hawa: I would like this Commission assist my child regain her normal health and also people who have similar problem

Torto: Where do you stay?

Hawa: I stay at Lokomasama.

Torto: Is there any hospital or clinic around that area?

Hawa: Yes.

Torto: Have you tried to contact any of these places in the Lokomasama or Lungi area?

Hawa: Yes. I have made effort to take my daughter to Lokomasama they gave me paper to go to Lungi and then we referred to Mabieseneh.

Torto: Is she getting treatment now?

Hawa: From Mabieseneh, one woman took us to Freetown and after examination; I was told that it is a fragment and not a bullet.

Hawa: My greatest problem for now is that I do not have money to take my daughter to hospital.

Torto: What are you doing in Lokomasama?

Hawa: For now, I have a groundnut farm.

Torto: The government has the micro-credit and I want to believe Lokomasama benefited from it. I want you to explore that avenue to improve your condition. In any case, I don't think I will ever access the micro-credit because it is not being fairly distributed.

Hawa: I only heard about the micro-credit. I was not privileged to get it because am a returnee there, not an indigene. In any case, I don't think I will ever access the micro-credit because it is not being fairly distributed.

Torto: Have you any recommendation?

Hawa: I am pleading with the government through the Commission to help me regain my daughter's health.

Torto: Thank you. I will encourage you to continue your search for better medical treatment for your daughter.

Sinneh Thaim Kamara

WITNESS NO: 019

REFERENCE NO: 3/77/4496

My name is Sinneh Thaim Kamara. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Torto the presiding commissioner.

TESTIMONY:

I live in a village called Lungi Lull, in the Lokomasama Chiefdom. At the time the junta attacked the F.M. 98.1 radio station, they stopped at Lokomasama. They were driven by ECOMOG from Lokomasama. They came to Lungi Lull and stayed in my house. By that time, my wife was not with me; she was staying with her parent. When I woke up, I asked who they were; they said they were the people's army. I had nothing to do because they have surrounded my house and when I looked around; I did not see any body. They told me to open the door for them, I refused to open but they forced the door open. They asked me to lodge them. I have a store very close to my house; this was where I lodge them. I was asked to remove there luggage from the vehicle and one of them pushed me and hit me with a gun in the mouth. I lost three of my teeth. I fell down and fainted up to 7 a.m. when they saw the condition I was in, they sympathized with me. I was with them for 4 days and on the 5th day, I escaped from them. However, they caught up with me and cajoled me to join them. I went back to my house to discover that the two drums of palm oil which I had wanted to sell were gone. Also I had 80,000 Leones which they took. I eventually left the village for the bush. My wife left me because I lost my teeth. They stayed in my village for 2 months and during that period, they ate all my cattle. This is the end of my testimony.

Torto: Thank you for your testimony, in your written statement, you said that they gave you two radio set on their way to attack the radio station, on their return, did they asked you any question or they just came and pounced on you?

Sinneh: Whilst they were going to attack the radio station, they did not pass through my village.

Torto: So they did not talk to you at all, on there way going?

Sinneh: I saw the vehicle whilst they were passing through the village but we did not talk?

Torto: When they caught you and cajoled you to join them, did you join them?

Sinneh: No I was afraid to join them.

Torto: Did you remember these?

Torto: I can not remember their faces but I can recall some of their names. There was Lt. Tafaikoh, "Nasty killer" Patrick, Junior and others.

Torto: Can you identify them by face if you see them?

Sinneh: I would not be able to identify all of their faces.

Torto: Do you know where they could be now?

Sinneh: No.

Torto: Is your wife around?

Sinneh: No.

Torto: Where is she?

Sinneh: She is with her parents.

Torto: So she left you because of the dental problem?

Sinneh: That is what I imagine.

Torto: Which village is she in? Is she easily accessible?

Sinneh: She stays in a village called Masheka, along the Port Loko Creek. It is a remote area.

Torto: What are you doing now?

Sinneh: I am a farmer.

Marcus -Jones: We are sorry for the injury you sustained and for the problems you now have with your wife. These people who attacked you, which group did they belong to?

Sinneh: AFRC.

Marcus Jones: How did you know that?

Sinneh: Because it was the time they invited the RUF to join them.

Marcus Jones: Was there any female among the group?

Sinneh: No, there was no woman in the group.

Marcus Jones: What language did they speak?

Sinneh: They spoke Krio and Mende.

Charm: Since you were with this group for four days, will you tell us the number of armed men in the group?

Sinneh: I can not remember the number.

Charm: Apart from you, were there other victims in your village?

Sinneh: No.

Charm: Do you know whether they destroyed any other village?

Sinneh: All I know is that they looted in other villages but they did not kill any body.

Torto: Do you have any question for us?

Yes

Sinneh: Yes why did the Commission invite me to come and give testimony?

Comm. Torto: The Commission invited you so that you can share your experience with the Commission and with everyone. We want to know what happened to you, who did it but above all the Commission wants to hear from you, your recommendations to pass on to Government. The Commission is interested in you as individual but over and above all, at the end of the Commission, the Commission would be able to know what happened and to know what recommendations to make so that it will not happen in our country again.

Sinneh: I must confess, I really came to get assistant from the Commission because my wife has left me for a year now. I would not be easy for me to get another wife with my dental problem; except a woman who have dental problem like me.

Torto: That was why I asked where the woman was so that we could try and counsel her.

Torto: Do you have any children with the woman?

Sinneh: Yes four.

Torto: Did she take them along?

Sinneh: She took two and left the two with me. I want to ask if you can tell how many years I have been with this woman.

Torto: I have no way of knowing that.

Sinneh: I have stayed with this woman for over 20 years she only left me when I got this problem.

Torto: Do you have any recommendation to make to the Commission?

Sinneh: I have no recommendation.

Torto: Thank you very much for coming, our staff will talk to you about being counseled.

WITNESS NAME: Santigie Kabia

WITNESS NO: 020

REFERENCE NO: 3/77/4491

I am a boat captain. One my friend invited me to collect some items from Lungi Lull to take to Freetown for him. When I left Freetown for Lungi Lull, I we slept at Mabome. At about 10 pm, I went to bed and the rebels attacked the village at about 11 p.m. My friend who took me to this village slept with me and fortunately he was not sleeping yet, he woke me and he went away and left me in the room. Immediately, the rebels entered the house and they found me and my apprentice. My apprentice escaped and the rebels captured me. They removed my trousers, watch and money I had on me. They took me out of the house and their leader at the time, told them not to harm me. One rebel was to guard me and he told me to take off the only short I had on. I refused to give him the short because it was the only thing I had on me. I engaged in a struggle with this rebel but another group saw us and they intervened on their colleague's behalf. They beat me up and released me and took me to another house. They broke that house and looted all the properties. Whilst in this house, they asked me to untie a bag of millet and in the process; I started feeling some the pains. They then told me to carry the bag of millet on my head and follow them. When the others left the room, the few left behind, threatened to kill me. Since the place was dark, I managed to escape and I ran to where my boat was. When I got to the river, they stopped following me and I swam across the river. I got to the other side of the river, that was when the pain became excruciating. However, I managed to pass through the bush. When people heard me screaming, they came to my aid and in the morning, they sent for my parents. I was then taken to a village called Rodaren, where I for about a month. The following day attacked this second village and looted my parents' properties. They did not kill anybody. This is the end of my testimony.

Torto: Thank you very much. During this attack was the whole town attacked or you were singled out by these people?

Santigie: The whole village was attacked?

Torto: Nobody was killed

Santigie: Yes

Torto: Did you identify personalities as you claimed that they were RUF?

Santgie: I can not identify them because they were large in number.

Torto: Can you name the group?

Santgie: It was the RUF

Torto: Can you show us the area in your where you were stabbed?

Santgie: Yes. (He showed the spot.)

Marcus Jones: We are sorry for the way you were treated and for the injury you sustained. When you came from Freetown to collect the load, which village did you go to?

Santgie: I went to Mabome.

Marcus Jones: Which village did your people take you to?

Rodaren

Mr. Charm: The first attack was at the night, when was the second attack?

Sinneh: It took place at about 3. a.m.

Will you be able to know whether there were women or girls in this group?

Yes there were men and women.

Did these women played any active part?

Yes. In fact, it was one of them who took my uncle bicycle.

Have you any question?

Sinneh: Yes, the ordeal I went through left me with so many pains what could the Commission do to assist me?

The assistance you will get is psychological we sympathized with what happened to you and we very much understand your plight. We've said many times that the Act establishing the TRC did not give us the mandate to compensate victims. For various reasons, they left that out. When the Commission shall have made it recommendation to government, a War Victims Fund will be set up to help those who suffered during the war. I don't any of any situation were individual compensation are paid to victims of war. Not even after the Second World War.

Torto: do you have any recommendation for the Commission?

Sinneh: I don't have any recommendation.

I was in my village called Rosint in the Masimera Chiefdom when the rebels attacked. One day, after working in the farm for the whole day, we went home to prepare food. At about that time, my younger brother paid me a visit. When he arrived, my younger sister gave me her child so that she could prepare more food. We didn't know that the rebels were coming closer to our village. They captured me, my friend and my mother who was in the house packing her things. Also another woman was captured; her name is Amie Kamara. They took us to a veranda where there is a big tree including another captured man called Abdulai Kargbo. Another lady who was hiding in the mosque was also captured and she joined us under the tree. We have no where to go to. The rebel with the machete had no clothes on but a big cap that was almost covering his entire face. He brought a big stick and he took my mother's hand, placed it on the stick chopped it off. I attempted to get up but the rebel beat me with his gun and he took me to a different place with the stick. I pleaded with him not to cut my hand and my mother also pleaded with him but he refused. In fact, when I pleaded with him to take me along instead, he took my child and killed him with his machete. He eventually cut my hand and my friend who had wanted to escape was caught and he stabbed her all over her body. He then cut Pa Abdulai Kargbo's hands and released him with a message for Tejan Kabbah that they were around. They took Amie Kamara behind the house, although I did not see what transpired, she was killed. They then go back to my mother and they killed her and they raped me before leaving us. I ran into the bush and I helplessly walked through. At a point, I heard a voice calling from behind and when I stopped, the person came but he was unable to carry me. He however promised to sought help for me in the next village. I managed to walk to a farm hut where I met some people but they were afraid so they abandoned me. I continue my journey until fell down and slept in a cassava farm. Finally, some people came around and carried me to the nearest village which was deserted. I painfully walked until I reached Lomanso where I met one my uncles. My uncle sent a message to Lunsar and my relatives came and they took me to Lunsar from where I was taken by a Rev. Fr. To the Mabaseneh Hospital. Whilst in the hospital, I was informed that my son was also killed. When I was discharged, I went to Lunsar but I left because of insecurity. I eventually went to my sister in Waterloo and she eventually arranged for to go the Amputees Camp in Aberdeen. Fortunately, I am now living in a house which was constructed for me by the Norwegian Refugee Council at Masiaka.

Torto: I want tell you that we feel sorry for this agonizing experience you went through. Do you know the people who did this to you?

Memunatu: I don't know them.

Torto: Can you identify them facially?

Memunatu: I don't want to lie to you. I can't identify them. All I know is that they wore military uniforms and they told us that they are rebels.

Torto: In your written statement you mentioned Karayemu's baby and mentioned one Amie, what happened to them, were they killed?

Memunatu: Aminata joined me later at the hospital; she told me that Karayemu's child was killed.

Comm. Marcus Jones – Memunatu, TRC is sorry that you lost so many people and as you loss a limb as well. It is a miracle you were not killed, for that reason you should be grateful to God. I just want to ask one question. Did you mention your father in the testimony?

Memunatu: No

Comm. Marcus Jones: Where is he now?

Memunatu: He is in Masmera

Mr. Charm: We are sorry for all that happened to you. When did this incident happened to you

Memunatu: April 1997

Mr. Charm – you mentioned one Abdulai Kargbo who was amputated do you know where he is now

Memunatu: he is in Freetown

Mr. Charm - where you able to know the amount of people that were killed in your village at that time

Memunatu: Yes, whilst I was in the hospital, I WAS TOLD that eight of us were killed, they buried with our limbs, in the village

Mr. Charm – where there any CDF in your village at that time

Memunatu: No

Mr. Charm - what is your health position now

Memunatu: from the time I had this experience with the rebels, I had low blood pressure

Mr. Charm - You mentioned about your sister do you know what happened to her?

Memunatu: fortunately, my sister was not captured; she is staying in the village

Comm. Torto - Have you any question for the Commission?

Memunatu: my question relates to my welfare, now that I have lost my limb, I have my children to take care, what assistance did the commission have for us as amputees

Comm. Torto – what you will benefit is the reasons for your presence before this commission. In accordance with this commission in its report all the recommendations made in these hearings will be forwarded for onward transmission to Government to implement your future benefit. We as commissioners are investigating body; we do not have the resource to compensate victims. Your appearance is not a waste of time. Any other question

Comm. Torto – do you have recommendations to make to Government through this Commission?

Memunatu: Yes, before this time I was a business woman, now I am disable by the rebels, I thank God that they have built a house for me. There are people I have who render assistant to me because of my disability. These people are running away from me. Because I cannot take care of them. I would like this commission through the government provide assistance for us as amputees, people who will be responsible to assist in our domestic affairs, to provide subsidies, for our helpers.

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION

DISTRICT HEARINGS

PORT LOKO

DATE: 03 May 2003

WITNESS NAME: Adamsay Bangura

WITNESS NO: 022

REFERENCE NO: New

Christian Prayer: Pastor John Bull

Muslim Prayer: The interpreter

My name is Adamsay Bangura. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus Jones the presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY

I am Adamsay Bangura born of Tonko Limba Chiefdom in the Kambia District. During the time the rebels attacked our village in 1995, I was 11 years old as I was born in the year 1984. When they attacked, we ran away to a village called Maseneta; we stayed in this village for a period of six month but there were few people in the village.

One day, we ran out of food and we were asked to go back to our village to collect some food. When we got there we packed all our belongings and as we were returning, the rebels captured me. I was a suckling mother. I pleaded with them to release me but I was asked where the people kept their rice. I told them that I don't know and they said they are going to kill my child. However, when they removed the child from my back, they didn't kill the child. I traveled to the town with the rebels to collect the rice; unfortunately, another group of rebels had taken the rice. They entered into an argument as to whether to kill me or not. They took my child from me and started beating me.

As I was going along with them, one of them slashed my child's head with a machete and the brain gushed out. Eventually, the child died. When they killed the child, I told them that they should have killed me instead of killing my child and I attempted running away from them. They caught me and then slashed my head; after which one of them raped me. After he had raped me, he took me out side and cut my hand. When the rebels abandoned me, I decided to seek refuge some where but when I remembered the corpse of my child, I came back for it with my hand chopped off. I went to the next village where the rebels had gathered some bags of rice and there was an empty bag which I used to tie my hand. I could have taken my child along and since could not; I took a bowl to cover the corpse from the rains.

Eventually, I got to my village but my father did not know of the ordeal I went through. When I told him that they killed my child and cut my hand, he could not believe until he saw the blood on my hand. I told my father to set fire as the weather was cold and I needed food. For some time after my hand was cut, I received no medical treatment. One day, my mother carried me on her back and took me to Maseneta but since there was no medical centre there, a message was sent to a Rev. Father in Madina, who eventually arranged for me to be taken to Kambia. My hand was operated on at the Kambia Government Hospital and after three months, I was taken the Connaught Hospital in Freetown. I was in Connaught when I got information that my father and mother were later killed by the rebels. From there, I was taken to the Aberdeen Amputee camp until a house was constructed for me at Masiaka by the Norwegian Refugee Council.

Marcus Jones: The Commission feels sorry for you and the audience here is in sympathy with you because you suffered a lot; you lost your parents, your child and your hand was amputated. Can you recall the time this incident happened?

Admasay: Yes it was in 1995.

Marcus Jones: You told us you were 11 years and you went on to say that you were a suckling mother, was that a mistake or you were having the baby at that time?

Admasay: Yes. I had a child at the time. In our village, you are given for marriage at any time and you are not to argue.

Marcus-Jones: Where is that husband?

Adamsay: The man abandoned me because the child was killed.

Torto: I want to express our sympathy. Were you able to know the people who did this to you, or their names?

Adamsay: If I see them, I will be able to identify them.

Torto: Do know where these people are now?

Admasay: No.

Torto: Were you able to identify the fighting group they belonged to?

Adamsay: They were the RUF.

Torto: What languages were they speaking?

Adamsay: They were speaking krio.

Torto: When these happen, were you the only victim or there were other victims?

Adamsay: I was the only victim at the time.

Martein: I want to say sorry for what happened to you. You told us that your father and mother have been killed in the village. Were there other people killed in the village?

Adamsay: Yes but not in my village.

Martein: Can you tell us something about your health condition now?

Adamsay: My present health problem is continuous headache.

Martein: Did you go for medical treatment?

Adamsay: Well I did not go to the hospital because I do not have money.

Marcus-Jones: Who is that sitting next to you?

Adamsay: This man is my fiancé. He has been helping me since I had this problem.

Marcus Jones: Have you any question you may want to ask the Commission?

Adamsay: One of the problems I am having in the community where I stayed is that people taunt me because of my disability. I want this Commission to try in its own way, to put a stop to this.

Marcus Jones: We will make a note of what you have said; people in this country don't have sympathy of people it is because they are not educated. Because if you are educated and you know what we went through during the of rebel war, you would not in your life time laugh at any body. Do you have any other question?

Adamsay: I want to know what the TRC is all about.

Marcus Jones: Is that question from the fiancé or the witness herself?

Adamsay: Yes.

Marcus Jones: She her self should be able to say what she wants to say. However, I will answer the question.

Marcus Jones: The TRC is mandated to make a record of all the violations that took place in this country during this ten year war. The TRC also have to look into the needs of the victims and having heard of these needs, the Commission will write it report based on the recommendations of the victims. The TRC also has to address impunity. When these people listen to your testimony, they will realize that the whole country has heard of what they did and they would realize that they should not do it again. The ultimate result of this whole exercise is that people should never again bring about such suffering and destruction to this country.

Marcus Jones: Do you have any recommendation for the Commission?

Adamsay: The only recommendation I have is that I am pleading to the Government through the Commission to assist me. I am a disable, an orphan and I have my brothers and sisters with me. I would be grateful if the government will assist me.

Marcus Jones: Thank you very much for you recommendation. We've noted it and it is applicable to other people who suffered like you. We are grateful that you have a supportive fiancé beside you. That also should give you hope and courage to move forward and forget about the past. I thank your fiancé as well.

WITNESS NAME: Abdul Sankoh

WITNESS NO: 023

REFERENCENO: New

My name is Abdul Sankoh. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Justice Marcus Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY:

On the 29th April, 1999, we ran from our village called, Madigbo to escape from a rebel attack; we went into the bush to seek refuge. Those brave enough, slept in the village, every afternoon we came to look for our colleagues in the village. One day, when we were coming to the village we didn't know that the West Side Boys, had captured some people in our village, unfortunately, we met some of these rebels, they were eight in number and they put us under gun point. At that time I was together with one Yusuf Sankoh, they asked us to return to the village. Upon arrival to the village, we found they had captured 16 people; they then tied Mr. Usuf and myself, they started flogging these people they had earlier captured, until they killed two of them, and the rest were wounded. They told us to carry some gari and foofoo for them. We left Madigbo and went to a village called Ma Ansumana. On our way going one of our captors, called Hassan Sesay, asked whether I know him but I said no. He told me that he knew me and that I had a friend who was a member of the police force. He said, he is going to kill me because the teachers and police were against them. One of them told him not to kill us because we were young men. Upon arrival, they burnt some houses and a school, we then went to Magbele Junction where we found another group of west side boys numbered up to 60. Hassan still insisted that he wanted to kill me, his colleagues, told him not to kill me, he requested for an axe and they brought it to him. Then he laid me on the main Masiaka - Waterloo highway, he got hold of my right hand and he chopped my hand 27 times with the axe and removed all my fingers. I pleaded with him not to cut my left hand because I am a left-hander; he then chopped it off and gave it to my friend Usuf. I told him to kill me, but he refused, he said that he will make sure that I will no longer write on the blackboard. I started abusing him so that he would kill me; instead, he took a bayonet and cut my upper lips. I continue to abuse him because I wanted him to kill me; he then again took the bayonet, and cut my ear he said that it was because I had lips that was why I was abusing him. I became unconscious, I was thirsty there was no water I drank my blood. I managed to get up and I walked to a village called Magbilla. When I got to this village, I lie down and then I saw one gentleman; I asked him to get me a coconut so that I will drink the water, as soon as he saw me, he ran away. After he had left, I managed to walk to the next village Masiaka. At that time ECOMOG was in control of Masiaka and Mile 38. When I got to Masiaka and when the ECOMOG soldiers saw me, they opened fire at me. They stopped firing when they saw me advancing towards them. They went to me; they asked me who treated me this way. I told them that it was the West Side Boys, I was taken to their medical department, and they put me on intravenous treatment. They eventually brought me to Freetown and took me to the military hospital in Wilberforce. They told me to go to Connaught Hospital. At the hospital I met one ECOMOG soldier who was very friendly to me, we slept in the hospital. In the morning, the first doctor that saw me was one Dr. Dumbuya; he advised that they must remove my upper lips. I abused his mother and told him that had he been my father he would not have said that. I was later treated by a German doctor who worked for one MSF-France. At that time, my family didn't know what had happened to me. It was the Paramount Chief who told my relatives about my plight, my father went to the hospital and he was assisting, until later when my wife joined me. We spent three months in the hospital, until we were taken to the Amputee Camp in Murray Town. The MSF opened a school at the Amputee Camp. I was sent to the psycho-social who trained me to write through Handicap International. I had a friend who helped me with the device, which I studied for three days until I became perfect. During the time President Kabba, went to the camp to hand over some items, I was in the classroom teaching, I was told to write on the blackboard

“Welcome President Kabbah”. I was in the camp until the Norwegian Refugee Council built houses for us in Masiaka, where I am residing with my family. I thank God. That is the end of my testimony.

Marcus Jones - I thank you for coming, I realize that you are somebody that has a fine attitude, and I see that you are determined to move forward. Did you in reality not know Hassan Sesay, or were you pretending not to know him?

Ans - I knew him. He was my school mate; we attended the same primary school in Kambia.

Marcus Jones – Did he have any against for you?

Ans - I don't know. Only he and God know.

Marcus Jones – Where you in conflict before?

Ans - No.

Marcus Jones – Did he have another name?

Ans - He was called Papay.

Comm. Torto – We have heard your story, we are sorry, we want to make some clarifications, and you said that you met your wife in a village. Under what circumstances?

Ans - I didn't say I met my wife in a village, it was one man who told my wife that I have got my hands amputated.

Comm. Torto – Where is Hassan Sesay now?

Ans – My friend told me that Hassan was killed in an attack by ECOMOG at Masiaka.

Comm. Torto – You said that you and Mr. Usuf were tied, how did you manage to untie yourself?

Ans – When my limbs were cut, they were given to Mr. Usuf, it was him who buried my limbs, and he later escape to another village.

Comm. Torto – Where is Mr. Usuf now?

Ans - He is in Madigbo or Mansumana.

Comm. Torto – Mr. Usuf was the one who saw it all, I think he would have been the right person to tell the story to your parents, Why did he not tell them?

Ans - Mr. Usuf was captured at that time he only escaped later.

Comm. Torto – I thank you, and I praise your wife for staying with you. There was an incident yesterday when a man's wife abandoned him because of his dental problem. I encouraged her to continue to stay by you.

Martien - During this incident, were there other victims?

Ans - Yes, they killed two and wounded fourteen.

Martien – Did other people suffer amputations?

Ans - During the time they captured me, I was the only one amputated. I don't whether they did it to other people in other villages.

Martien - Would you explain what the daily life of somebody who has lost both hands like?

Ans - Firstly, I have faith in God, with my present disability, I am unable to do what I had used to do but I thank God that I am receiving assistance from people?

Martien – Do you receive assistance from NGOs?

Ans - Yes, I received assistance from Caritas, World Hope and Handicap International.

Martien: Where you given artificial limbs?

Ans - I did have my artificial limbs but I am more comfortable with my hands as they are and whenever I had these artificial limbs on I easily get temperamental.

Martien – You said you were a teacher in the amputee camp, are you still a teacher?

Ans - No.

Martien – how do you survive?

Ans - I received assistance my friends but I don't go out in the streets begging. I thank God that whenever I want food He provides it for me.

Marcus Jones – Do you have questions for the Commission?

Ans - According to Lome Agreement, there was provision for the setting up of the war victims' fund. How is it going to be effected if it will ever be?

Marcus Jones - The agreement still stands, in the final report of the Commission we will ask the government to implement this that provision. In any case, we hope that the civil society will do something to urge the government to facilitate it. Any other question?

Ans - No

Marcus Jones – Do you have recommendations to government?

Ans - I want to recommend to government through this Commission, that medical care and education provided for our children and to support our wives in micro credit scheme to help them support us.

Marcus Jones – We have heard your recommendations and some other victims had made the same recommendation. We are sure that your recommendation will be included in our final report. I thank you very much for coming to give your testimony, I am advising that you don't allow your ability to waste as you are a teacher, in your community gather the children and help, so that your knowledge will not be wasted.

The session ended at 11.45 a.m.

Bishop Humper called the session to order. The session started with Christian Prayers offered by Bishop Ghandi and Muslim Prayers was said by an Imam in Bo. Bishop Humper gave a brief explanation of the goals, aims and objectives of TRC, which included the writing of an impartial record of violations of human rights committed during the conflict; addressing impunity; responding to the needs of victims and promoting healing and reconciliation. "TRC is here to give all those affected by the war a chance to come and tell their testimonies. We believe that all those who come to give their testimonies will feel lighter and will try to be at peace with those who have hurt them. We also hope that even the perpetrators will show remorse for their wrong deeds. We hope that a better understanding of the price of human suffering and the responsibilities of both local and international bodies regarding the war will prevail amongst the people of Sierra Leone. Lastly, we pray that this process will not only bring peace between individuals but also to the nation as a whole." The Chairman presented the commission to the people of Bo; he told them that the commission was made up of National and International Staff. He then introduced the commissioners and other TRC staff present at the hearing. The Chairman also spoke on the selection of witnesses. He said that witnesses who were called to testify were those who gave their statements during the statement taking phase and they came from different religious and cultural backgrounds. Those who testified, according to the Chairman, would narrate their experiences about atrocities which were committed at different times and at different places during the war and which they witnessed or heard about. "The commission has encouraged witnesses to give statements on a voluntary basis and whosoever wishes to do so hereafter is encouraged to", said the Chairman. The Chairman read out the procedure of the hearings. After which the Leader of Evidence, Ozonnia Ojielo, invited the first witness.

1st

Witness: Kadie Gbongo.

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by the Chairman of the commission; Commissioner Bishop J.C Humper.

Commission Humper –The public and the commission appreciate your coming, Kadie. We know it is not easy to do what you are about to do. You are a very important personality in this country and one of those who will help change this country. Please remain calm and share your experiences, during the war, with us. We are all here to listen to you.

KADIE GBONGO'S TESTIMONY

I was in my house when I heard shooting, and people said that the rebels had come. I asked who rebels were, and they said they were those who had come to catch people. People further told me that the rebels had only come for chiefs, wealthy people and Lebanese. I was in my house when people came running to tell me that two Lebanese; Rada and Mingo, had been killed and they advised that I should go into hiding. I was told that my daughter's shop had been vandalised and they were already making away with everything. By then, my daughter and her husband had fled. I wanted to go to the shop and see for myself, but I was advised not to go there because the rebels had come for chiefs. I was at the riverside when I heard people asking for me, so I hid myself. I heard them saying that they had come for the head of madam Gbongo, so I went to the Sewa river and crossed over to the other side; I could swim. Owing to the fact that my son-in-law was a Lebanese and that the rebels were looking for me, wherever I went, the villagers sent me away; they would not accommodate me. I had to walk through a cave until I got to a town. By then, there was firing behind me. I walked through several towns until I got to Bo. We stayed in Bo for quite some time until we were told that the war was over and we could go back home. I had no problems with accommodation in Bo because I had built a house here. In fact, I opened the Gbongo market. When I went back home, after a year, we heard firing again and learnt that the rebels had come again. I had twenty seven {27} dependants and the rebels killed three {3} of them. During the last rebel incursion of my village, I lost all that I had; everything I had was burnt down, including my family tomb. I ran to a village and built a house there, but the rebels came after me again. They even asked the people in the village to lead them to me, as they wanted my head. I heard the news, and I ran away. I heard of the rebels, but I never saw them nor did they ever see me. I lost, literally, all that I had. There was a time when we were again told that the war was over, and I went back home.

Mr. Johnny Paul Koroma's regime was the worst for me. People were clearing the bushes to chase me wherever I went into hiding. I never saw the corpses of my dependants who were killed during the war; they were never buried. I got a cut off and I could not come to Bo. The paramount chief was in sympathy with me and he sent food for me. Unto this day, it is through the help of the paramount chief that I even eat good food. The war really devastated me. The rebels were hunting for me because they said I was wealthy. They said that if they killed me, people would have peace in that village. I had many dependants and then I did have the resources to take care of all of them. But now, if Chief Steven Bio does not give me food, I would not have anything to eat. They killed my grand - children, my son-in-law and they were hunting for me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mama Kadie, we have heard your testimony. We know that you are one of those who have gone through difficulties from one stage to another. We have a few questions to ask you in order to clarify a few issues. Is it that you were a target that those who came, came purposely for you?

Mama Kadie: I do not know if I was a target, but people told me that the rebels were looking for me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What happened to your Son-in-law?

Mama Kadie: My Son-in-law was not killed; he ran away together with my daughter.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You said that when you came back, after the first attack, you met all your property intact.

Mama Kadie: Yes. We made a shed in the bush where we hid all my property. The first set of rebels were neither looking for goods nor were they burning houses, but the last set of rebels did. They killed my grand daughter, Jenneh. They also killed my nephew, Sidi, whom I brought up. They killed and burnt the house of my host where I went to seek refuge.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Madam Kadie, we appreciate your coming here and, like the chairman said, we sympathize with you. That is why we appreciate your coming. In spite of the difficulty, we know, you had as you narrated in your story; you have given us good information. However, there are a few issues we would like you to clarify. You said that when the people came they were looking for chiefs, Lebanese and wealthy people. How many people do you know, apart from your Lebanese son-in-law and yourself, who were pursued like you were?

Mama Kadie: Even our Paramount Chief was pursued. He became sick, and they did everything for him, but he could not make it; his children had to take him to Bo. The chief's compound was burnt down. They were looking for him in order to kill him; therefore he had to run away. The rebels followed people into the bushes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara – Did you then or up till now believe that those people were acting on information given to them about you?

Mama Kadie: They had information about me; that I was wealthy and that got all my wealth through trading. They then took all my wealth and killed my dependants. They went in search of me from village to village, but I thank God that even though I lost everything, I still have my life.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Do you suspect anybody for this?

Mama Kadie: There was one Foday Sanpha who told them that he knew my hiding place. They told him that if they could not find me, they would kill him. When they went to the supposed hiding place and could not find me, they took him to Tisana, a village, and slaughtered him because he had told a lie to the rebels. Foday followed to every town I went. He even asked me for food sometimes. Little did I know that he was closely keeping watch on me for the rebels. Up to this day, Foday's wife and children are in the village.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You told us about two sets of rebels. You said that the Johnny Paul Koroma's rebels were good, can you explain that better?

Mama Kadie: I said they came in three stages; two came before Johnny Paul Koroma's. By then rebels were engaged in massive looting and killing, and they had no respect for people; they even said that there were no longer chiefs. We saw people we could not identify; they were involved in looting. On all the three occasions when the rebels came, we went into hiding. We went back, upon the instructions of the Kamajors, and we have not seen any rebels since then. Our president had also declared that the war was over. We are happy that we have peace now; though we are poor.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We thank you in your happiness and we hope that this peace will hold.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you for your testimony. We admire your courage and your bravery throughout this period. You have given us a lot of information, but please allow me to ask you a few questions. Apart from your business, did you belong to any other strong group in your community?

Mama Kadie: I was the Women's Leader of my Chiefdom; I belonged to a back yard farming group; I had also given a piece of land in order that a school be built there; I also gave accommodation to soldiers who were sent to my community.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was your relationship with people in your community cordial?

Mama Kadie: I had cordial relationship with all the women at Lugbu. I was the societal head; if I stood out and shouted, all the women would come out running. I have been a section chief for thirty one years. I am eighty seven years old. I don't believe I should have enemies in Lugbu because I have done so much for my people; I don't know why people at Lugbu should hate me. May be they did, but they did not express it openly.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you Madam Kadie, I would ask the Leader of Evidence if he has any questions for you.

Leader of Evidence: I don't have any questions except to ask whether she still wants to come to the closed hearings.

Mama Kadie: I cannot come on Thursday because I am undertaking a construction.

Comm. Bishop Humper – Do you have any recommendations to make to the commission which we could incorporate in our report?

Mama Kadie: I recommend that the government helps to build a hospital at Sumbuya. There are five chiefdoms in that area. If they can have a hospital with doctors and a theatre where surgical operations can perform, that will be fine. I am also appealing that a bridge be built over the Sewa River and that a ferry service be also made available to the communities.

2nd Witness: Mr. Samu Lebbie

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by the chairman, Commissioner Bishop Humper.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We welcome you and we hope that by the time you finish telling your story, you will have peace of mind.

SAMU LEBBIE'S TESTIMONY

We were at Yambama when the rebels came, and we were driven into the bush. We were there, but we had nothing to sustain us. One day, my father asked me to accompany him to Bo. On our way to Bo, we came across the rebels. They arrested us and tied us up with twines. At that time, they were arresting and killing people. They were looking for young people to recruit. They held me up, head down, and started butchering me on the back of my neck. Should it please the commission, I will show them the knife marks on my neck. When they had drawn the knife several times across my neck, I laid on the ground as if I was dead. When the rebels left, the soldiers came, and they picked me up, put me in their vehicle and took me to the hospital. At the hospital, the expatriate doctors came and helped me with my wounds. I later learnt that all of my relatives had been killed. The whites were responsible for my feeding and shelter and I was with them for four months. We were there until the war calmed down and we were taken back to our respective homes. This is what I experienced during the war.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We know what you must have gone through. We know that you have a story to tell this nation. I want you to clarify one point for all of us. You didn't mention a name but we want to know the group that attacked you. Did I hear you say that they were rebels?

Samu Lebbie: They said that they were rebels. However, I could not identify them because they attacked the village late in the night.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: I appreciate your story, we know you have gone through a terrible experience, but we are happy that with God's help you are able to come here today and tell us this story. As you have said, many of your friends and relatives are not here today. I know it won't bother you that with that terrible experience we still ask you questions. You have not given us an exact estimate, but can you tell the number of people with whom you were on that day and how many of them were slaughtered?

Samu Lebbie: Twenty of us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Where they all members of your family?

Samu Lebbie: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You mentioned white people who helped you; where did they come from?

Samu Lebbie: I don't know, they only said that they came from overseas.

Prof Kamara: Where they all white or where there also blacks?

Samu Lebbie: Well, there were some blacks, but the one who treated me was white.

Comm. Prof. Kamara – Was it an organized health center or hospital?

Samu Lebbie – It was a hospital, here in Bo, and I was in ward 2.

Prof Kamara – What are you doing at the moment?

Samu Lebbie – I am alone at the moment. I am not doing anything; my brothers help me out. I feel pain on my neck whenever I raise or bow down my neck?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow – Were other people in the village when you were attacked?

Samu Lebbie – Yes, the rebels came in and attacked the entire village.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: For how long did you stay in the bush?

Samu Lebbie: Two months.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us about conditions in the bush?

Samu Lebbie: When we were in the bush, we lived on the little provision we had taken along with us, and when that got finished, we were on our way again.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us more about the rebels who attacked you?

Samu Lebbie: I can't tell the number of rebels that attacked because it was dark.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were they in uniform?

Samu Lebbie: Yes, they wore military outfits.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: As they chopped you at the back of your neck, what exactly did they say to you?

Samu Lebbie: They were saying that we were informants and that we gave information to the soldiers.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You did mention your cousin, who was abducted. Has he been traced since then?

Samu Lebbie: All of them were killed, except me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: With your experience, did you receive any counselling apart from the medical treatment?

Samu Lebbie: Not yet, but the government says we should forget about all what happened to us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How do you survive?

Samu Lebbie: Thanks be to God. But for the pains from the wounds I sustained, I am fine.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you prepared now to forgive the perpetrators who did this to you?

Samu Lebbie: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you able to perform burial rites for your relatives who were killed by the rebels?

Samu Lebbie: Yes, I was able to travel to my other relatives and we did perform the rites.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Who discovered the dead bodies of your relatives?

Samu Lebbie: Nobody did. However, after some time, the bones were collected and taken to my relatives and the rites were performed.

Leader of Evidence: The group leader did you remember the name of their group; did they have any alias or nick names?

Samu Lebbie: I don't know.

Leader of Evidence: When they attacked you and your family, didn't they call out any names or say anything?

Samu Lebbie: I cannot recall any name at all. All the rebels were saying was that we were collaborating with the soldiers and we were going to be killed for that.

Leader of Evidence: Since the attack, have you ever seen any of the perpetrators?

Samu Lebbie: No.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thanks for coming; we appreciate your being with us. Do you have any recommendation which you would like us to forward to the government?

Samu Lebbie: I need help from the government; I want to be making garden at the back of my compound so that I can sustain my family and myself.

3rd Witness: Brima Moiwo

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by the chairman, Commissioner Bishop Humper.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What you are about to share with us today will not stay with only us, but will go all over the world. Also, at the end of this commission, you will not regret having come here today.

BRIMA MOIWO'S TESTIMONY

I am here today to tell the truth. I am happy about what the commissioner has said to me. We realize that you people consider us and think about us. In 1991, at the beginning of the war, I was in Sumbuya where I had been for forty years; it was in Sumbuya that I had all my kids. I learnt that the rebels would be coming to Sumbuya on a Monday. I saw people getting their property together. The rebels never hit by surprise; they always gave notice. I had, in all, twelve dependants, so I ran away, into hiding, with my family to a village; the rebels were attacking big towns and not villages. The rebels attacked on a Saturday, but they did not attack the village where I was. On Sunday, the rebels came, and everybody, including ECOMOG, went into hiding.

We ran to Madina and the rebels came and took over Madina, and all the people ran away. Whilst we were there, one of my children fell sick; I could not get medication so Kadiatu, my daughter, died. At that time of her death, the rebels entered where we were and asked us to dance for them. I told them about the death of my daughter, and they asked us to throw it away since they were not responsible for her death; they did not want to see the corpse. When we went to Tormia, the rebels went there again and took over the village. They imposed curfew which started at 4 pm; we couldn't come out. My other daughter fell ill and died because of lack of medication; she was 5 years and 6 months old. A leader of the rebel group gave orders to throw away the child, but we went and buried her. Five days after the imposition of the curfew, we learnt that soldiers were on their way; the rebels ran away because they were afraid of the soldiers. The curfew was immediately called off. After three days, the soldiers came and asked everybody to come out of the bush. My children and I joined the first food supply truck that entered into the village in order to move out of the village. I went to a town where I had hoped to meet my relatives. However, all of my relatives had left by the time I got to the town. At Kambia, I made bold and bravely approached one of the rebels and I told him that I wanted to go home together with my people. He enquired about where I wanted to go and, when I told him, he was happy because, according to him, they were in control of the area to which I wanted to go. If I had said that I wanted to go to Bo, they would have killed me. They asked me to list down the names of my dependants; then I had six dependants left. They ordered me to go to my village and that I should pass through Mattru, where another set of rebels were. The only thing which helped me was the Koran; I had wanted to put it on the ground when one of them asked me why I wanted to put it on the ground. I cannot tell the name of the rebel who asked me to take my Koran and released me; but I believe that he was a Muslim. On my return, I found out that one of my kids had died. The day on which I got to Sumbuya was the day somebody gave me the information that one of my wives was also dead and that she was killed in the mosque. I did not have the opportunity of attending the funeral ceremony of my wife; she was like a mother to me. We had six children with only one surviving; he is now in this town. I was sleeping when a rebel knocked at my door; I came out together with my wife. The rebel asked whether I was the one who sold salt; I was not trading in salt. They assembled everybody in the town and asked their chief to ask me if I sold salt, he did, and I said 'no'. They then tied me up tightly; I can still show the marks. They said if I continued to deny the fact that I traded in salt, they would beat me to death. As the argument was going on, one of them hit me on my head, with a gun; unto this day, I experience serious headache and snort, sometimes, run from my nostrils. All those who were with me ran away; they thought that I was dead. At any rate, the rebels came back looking for me later; they found me and treated me. I then decided that I should go and pray, but one of them said that even if I went and prayed, God would not answer me; I responded by saying that he was not my creator. Another rebel said that I could go and pray, so I went. I came back and I reported myself to them. They then sent me to call my wife. When she came, they tied her up and gave her fifty strokes of the cane. Each time they hit her, she would say "my husband does not sell salt". One of the rebels who came from Mattru investigated the matter; he asked them to produce evidence of the salt for which they had been punishing us. Their reply was that they had searched everywhere, but they had not found salt. The rebel who came from Mattru then told the rebels who had been punishing us that they had gone against the objectives of their course. He took them to Sumbuya, and I was happy about the way in which they were punished. During the war, six of my children died, but none of them was killed by rebels. My family house was burnt down and unto this moment, I have not been able to erect it again.

Comm. Bishop Humper: I have heard all what you have said. I need to ask a few questions for clarification. Did I hear you say that in one of the areas, to which you went, you told the rebels that you wanted to go back home?

Brima Moiwo: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did they tell you that all those areas were under their control?

Brima Moiwo: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Did you have any reason for going back home?

Brima Moiwo: well, if one were killed in an area where one were known one would be buried, but if one were killed elsewhere, ones corpse would rot.

Comm. Bishop Humber: You said that there was a curfew, who imposed the curfew?

Brima Moiwo: Indeed it was the rebels who were in the area at the time.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Did I hear you say that during the war rebels did not kill at all?

Brima Moiwo: I said some of them did not kill; some did.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you. Like the Chairman, I will ask you a few questions. It will be on the atrocities committed by rebels. Where did you live between 1991 and 1999?

Brima Moiwo: I was at Sumbuya all the time, in the chief's compound.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All the time; you did not move at all?

Brima Moiwo: I was at Sumbuya when I heard about the rebels, so we had to move; we were moving from place to place.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You spoke about rebels all the time; was there any difference between those rebels?

Brima Moiwo: There was no difference between them. The first set of rebels spoke in Liberian accent but, apart from that, there was no other difference.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You said that the rebels at Sumbuya who maltreated you and your wife were not killing or looting property?

Brima Moiwo: I was not at Sumbuya when they got there, I was at Madina where I was told that a Lebanese had been killed.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: When they were beating you, they said that it was because you traded in salt; didn't they want any other valuables?

Brima Moiwo: All I can tell the commission is that when they got to my house they were only looking for salt. I can't tell whether they wanted any thing else.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You said that something awful was done to those who punished you, but you never told us what was done to them. What was that?

Brima Moiwo: They were flogged for telling lies on me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your testimony, you said that your children died, but that were not killed by rebels.

Brima Moiwo: Yes. They died because of lack of medication.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you see other children from other families die?

Brima Moiwo: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell how many other children died?

Brima Moiwo: I can't say anything about others. I know the figure only for my own children who were dead.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us how your first wife was killed?

Brima Moiwo: I can't tell because I was not there.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thanks for coming to share your testimony with us. Now can you make any recommendation to help us in writing our report?

Brima Moiwo: I am appealing to the government, through this commission, to consider me for help. I have four children all of whom are going to school. Only God knows how we survive. Even my house is in a very poor condition, and I need help.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have heard your recommendations. We are going round the country to get your testimonies and - in the end - we will compile and submit our report. Thank you very much for coming.

4TH Witness: Mr. Hassan Daco Sallu

The chairman welcomed Hassan Sallu who swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Bishop Humper. The chairman commended Hassan Sallu for accepting the invitation to come and give his testimony. He encouraged him to testify and told him that his testimony would greatly help the commission in writing the report.

HASSAN DACO SALLU'S TESTIMONY

I, who sit here before the commission, am a Mende by tribe and a Sierra Leonean born in Sierra Leone. I think not of any other country other than Sierra Leone. When the war broke out, I was one of the Kamajors who fought for this country so that it could not be destroyed. At that time, I did not understand the causes of the war; a war which was perpetrated by the people of this country. The elders and local authorities called us together and told us that we should do something for our country. Our own brothers went to our village and told us that our village and Njayama Bongor were neighbours and that we should not sit by and witness the destruction of our villages. Owing to my love for this country, in spite of my mother's advice and protest, I joined the Kamajors. The Burkinabes did not enter into our village; it was our own people, Sierra Leoneans, who did. At that time, Hinga Norman was a chief at Njayama Bongor. We were asked to come together and fight in order to protect our territory. When we returned, our people tested us by drawing our noses in order to know whether we were dead or alive. At one time, the NPRC asked us to set up a Civil Defence Force unit so that we could protect ourselves. When the war actually broke out, we ran away to Bo. In Bo, we had nothing to eat; our sisters had to go fetching food for us. When our sisters normally went out for food, they were detained at Sewa defence and all the food they would have collected would be prepared for the rebels. Our people resolved that we should go and fight against those who had abducted our sisters and to fight for our country. There were about twenty five {25} of us, and we were taken to Hinga Norman. He said that he was a chief in that area for the British. He told us that throughout his schooling, he had military training, and that he would not sit back and allow people to take this country. By 5:45 pm on a Thursday in April, 1994, we were attacked by rebels. Some survived, but some did not; only seven of us survived. Arthur Demby, the brother of the former Vice President, died during that attack. About 22 of us were in a particular house, about 10:30 am, when we saw some people, who were in very neat military outfits, passing. They were asking our brothers whether people were being trained to fight against them. Later, I opened the door and watched; two of my other colleagues joined me and the others closed the door. As soon as we went out, they fired RPG at us; we fell to the ground as if we were dead and we later crept into a cassava farm. Idriss Kamara and Hinga Norman were in an armoured car and they asked whether we were those who were being trained and who attacked on that day. Hinga Norman said that we were his children. All the people in Hinga Norman's house were killed and buried at the back of the house. While we were there, a native society emerged, and we were then taken to Bo. In 1996, we joined the Kamajor society, we were initiated in Bo, and our aim was to bring our people, who had fled from the rebels, back home. We met Lt. Mbriwa who was the commander. We crossed the Sewa river at night, released nine hundred and fifty five {955} and brought them back to Gerehun. There was a camp called "Kenema Highway camp"; we removed the rebels from there. There was another camp called "Tamaboro", we also removed them from there. The day on which we captured that place soldiers were sent to give us reinforcement. The leader of that group was a soldier named Marah. We went to a place called "Supermarket", where we found little children; one of them was a male child whose skin had been removed down to the sole of his feet. A small girl told us that the child had been treated like that because the rebels believed that his father was against them. We went and captured "Zogoda", there was a training base there and we took all of those we captured to Kenema. Falla Sewa, who was the brigade commander then, took photographs; there was dancing and jubilation. We handed over to the soldiers all the guns we had taken from the rebels. One of our brothers, Alex Gumu, died during the attack on Zogoda; we brought the corpse back with us. We went to places around Matotoka and drove the rebels out of the area. By the time the "Johnny Paul Koroma" war came, we had been fighting alongside the soldiers. However, they asked that the Kamajors be disbanded. While we were there, we saw police and army personnel in a truck and they said that they had come to join us to make peace. Some of the Kamajors joined the truck; I did not; I walked to the police station instead. I was afraid that they may have set an ambush for us. There were armoured personnel carriers and ammunition there; the Guinean contingent was there. They stood by the brigade and we stood on the other side. The only person there was the CPO. The CPO asked us not to fight against the soldiers as they formed the government of the day. Moreover, they had arms and we didn't. We told them that we believed in God and that we voted for a government whose overthrow we won't compromise. A group of women, who went singing, told us that there were other groups of people who were coming to attack us; I ran away with my hand on my head; we didn't have any guns. RPG was fired at us, the CPO ran away. We didn't have any guns, so they started pushing us until we left the town. They said that we should not come to the town again, so we went into the bush. When we heard of the reinstatement of the government, we came to town and drove the rebels out. It was during that time that I was shot in my leg. Should the commission allow me, I will show the part of my body where I was shot. After I had been shot, ECOMOG entered into Bo. When ECOMOG entered, they took me from the scene and sent me back to the village. There was a lady who was treating me with native herbs. A doctor told me that my leg should be amputated. Dr. Jah was the first doctor who did a surgical operation on me. Neither I nor anybody paid him anything. I was there for three days before I was taken to Freetown. I was still hospitalised at Curney Barnes hospital when the January 6th attack on Freetown took place. The hospital was partially burnt down; it only God who saved me. I still feel pain, but I have come back. I now take care of the children of my brothers who were killed during the war. At one time, a rebel asked me a question, he said "You have been fighting for your people and your country, what have they done for you?" The NCDDR is not doing anything for some of our brothers who were disarmed; they still have their cards. Some who were supposed to be trained for one year have had their training reduced to six months; those who were supposed to be trained for six months have had their training reduced to three months. NCDDR has cut down everything. I am saying that everybody in Sierra Leone should be part of the peace and should be happy. Those of us who suffered during the war, for this country, should be considered.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you for coming to share with us something we had not known before; that through you, some 995 women were released - that is very vital for the TRC. You have said a lot about how you became a part of those who were fighting for the country. Did you say that Burkinabes were also fighting?

Hassan Sallu: Yes, they were in the country.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How long do you think the Burkinabes took here?

Hassan Sallu: They were here only during the time of the NPRC.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How many of you were attacked?

Hassan Sallu: About twenty five {25} of us, but only two survived.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You should be regarded as a hero. You have done a lot and have suffered a lot in order to bring peace to this country; we salute you. I have a few questions for you, and I believe that they will help us to understand your story better. You mentioned Hinga Norman and Idriss Kamara; what were both of them doing at that time around that area?

Hassan Sallu: Hinga Norman was the regent chief at Telubongor. Idriss Kamara was the Secretary of State in Bo at that time, so when he heard that that village had been attacked, he went to see what was happening.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: That happened during the NPRC time?

Hassan Sallu: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: This means NPRC encouraged Kamajor activities.

Hassan Sallu: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You also mentioned the training, how long was the training?

Hassan Sallu: We had had only one week training when we were attacked. As a result of the attack, we went to fight and no one had the guts, after that, to go back for training.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: The Kamajors and other groups who were fighting along side the government came to be known as CDF.

Hassan Sallu: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: There were the Tamaboros, Kamajors and other groups. Did I hear you say you attacked and drove the Tamaboros?

Hassan Sallu: Whatever it was, they were all the same.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You spoke of a child whose skin was removed; what group did that?

Hassan Sallu: The child which I spoke about was taken from Bo, here, and he suffered that treatment because his father was allegedly against the rebels.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who did this?

Hassan Sallu: The rebels.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: When you came to Kenema, you said you handed guns over to Falla Sewa; why did you, when you yourselves needed guns?

Hassan Sallu: The rebels were saying that they got guns from the soldiers and that was why we handed the guns over to the head of the brigade.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: When you were recruited into the Kamajor militia, what kind of training did you receive? Was it traditional or conventional warfare training?

Hassan Sallu: Traditional.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us more about the command structure of the Kamajors?

Hassan Sallu: We copied from the soldiers; we used the same ranks.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us what the civilians suffered in the hands of the Kamajors during the conflict?

Hassan Sallu: I wish to say this in the name of God. The people under my own command, in my own area, did not suffer at all.

Leader of Evidence: One of the key mandates of the TRC is that you should tell the truth about all what happened during the war. I am therefore going to ask you questions to help clarify certain things. In 1994 you were one of the first to join the vigilante group, and you joined the Kamajors in 1996. So when did you receive your training?

Hassan Sallu: When we went to Hinga Norman, the ULIMO'S were there; they could train you overnight and you would know a lot of things.

Leader of Evidence: You said you lost some of your men; did they die during training or during an attack?

Hassan Sallu: They were killed during the war, after the training.

Leader of Evidence: You also said that you were trained in traditional warfare and not conventional warfare?

Hassan Sallu: That is correct.

Leader of Evidence: Can you explain, for the benefit of the commission, how that training was done and what was the nature of that training?

Hassan Sallu: We were initiated overnight and we all came out the following morning and prayed to God so that He could help us to fight against those who had taken arms against our people. After that, all the initiates went out and fire shots at one another. From that point, you were a Kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: Does that mean they fired at you and bullets didn't go through you?

Hassan Sallu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Where do you think those powers came from?

Hassan Sallu: We believed that an initiate must not have any erotic contact with a woman. The initiate had certain food which he was forbidden to eat. A Kamajor was also forbidden to fight against his own people.

Leader of Evidence: Were there also children who were trained together with you?

Hassan Sallu: In my own battalion, NCDDR can prove it; we had no children amongst us.

Leader of Evidence: What about the other battalions; did they train children?

Hassan Sallu: There was a ruling that children should not be given guns.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the TRC the nature of the initiation?

Hassan Sallu: I will tell you whatever you want to know about the Kamajors. If you wish to know about the initiation, I will tell you. During the war, if a Kamajor chanted a few words on a cup of water and splashed it on somebody who was not a Kamajor, and that person was shot at, nothing happened to the person. If I was a Kamajor, and I perspired and rubbed the sweat on you, no bullet shot at you would pierce through your body; soldiers can attest to this.

Leader of Evidence: As a commander, what was the strength of your battalion?

Hassan Sallu: In the Kamajor society, whoever was resident in your area automatically fell under your command. Even the chief was under my control at that time; so I cannot exactly tell the number of people whom I had under my command.

Leader of Evidence: I mean Kamajor men.

Hassan Sallu: I had fifty {50} men under my control. Out of that number, only two people died and I was shot.

Leader of Evidence: Did you have any nick name?

Hassan Sallu: Yes, Hassan Dokor was my nick name.

Leader of Evidence: Many people came to Freetown and claimed that atrocities such as drinking of human blood and the cutting off of ears were committed by the Kamajors. Can you attest to that?

Hassan Sallu: The people who have been making these claims are those who came and destroyed their own people. Our society, the Kamajor society, had rules. Kamajors were forbidden to deal with filth or anything that was unclean; we were very Godly. The people of Bo will tell the TRC that the rebels gave Kamajor outfits to non Kamajor fighters and whatever evil things that those people did reflected on the Kamajors.

Leader of Evidence: As battalion commander, what areas were under you command?

Hassan Sallu: Five villages were under my command and I fought against the rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Were you involved in Operation "Black December"?

Hassan Sallu: It almost coincided with the December/January invasion.

Leader of Evidence: Can you explain Operation "Black December" for the commission?

Hassan Sallu: The man, who had all the powers that would enable one to enter into the enemy camp unnoticed, is dead. He was an old man and his name was Jawara.

Leader of Evidence: A lot of people have come to the commission and have testified that you, the Kamajors, did a lot of bad things which included punishing people whom you claimed to be collaborators. How were you able to identify collaborators?

Hassan Sallu: When the Kamajors finally decided to fight, it was to defend the people of this country. Now the very people for whom we fought are saying that the Kamajors committed atrocities. It must be made known that the intention of the people who started the war was to take away everything from this country.

Leader of Evidence: My question was that people have been to this commission to say that you punished people whom you claimed to be collaborators. How did you – as a Kamajor group; not you as a person - identify collaborators?

Hassan Sallu: I want you to understand that the Kamajors had no magic to tell who was a collaborator or not. Soldiers were in the towns, and the civilians for whom we fought, told us who was who.

Leader of Evidence: What was the punishment for these collaborators?

Hassan Sallu: No form of punishment was actually stipulated.

Leader of Evidence: Does that mean it would be left with the commander to decide?

Hassan Sallu: As commander, at that time, we never meted out any punishment; people here can attest to that.

Leader of Evidence: People gave statements that a lot of atrocities were committed by Kamajors against people who belonged to other tribes and lived in the South. Can you make any statement on that?

Hassan Sallu: In my own area, it never happened. There was no incident in which Kamajors committed atrocities against people on the basis of tribal difference. Nothing like that ever happened. I want you to know that, during the fight against the rebels, all tribes were involved. Even when we were fighting as Kamajors, we had people from other areas and tribes. Why then could the Kamajors have decided to commit atrocities against people from other tribes? If I, a Mende, witnessed an incident in which a Fula was trying to inflict pain on any of my Mende brother, I would fight for my brother.

Leader of Evidence: The commissioner asked you a question about the command structure and you said you followed the same pattern as the soldiers?

Hassan Sallu: Yes, I did.

Leader of Evidence: So you are saying you had the same command structure with the army from the lowest rank right on to the highest rank?

Hassan Sallu: Yes; we had all.

Leader of Evidence: How many battalions did you have during the intervention?

Hassan Sallu: We had five battalions during the intervention.

Leader of Evidence: Can you name them and where they are based?

Hassan Sallu: First battalion was in Dambala, Second Battalion at Gerehun, Third battalion was at Bumpeh, Fourth in the North, and the Fifth battalion was in Pujehun district; towards the border.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you. How many divisions and where are based?

Hassan Sallu: There were divisions in the South, North and West.

Leader of Evidence: West would be the Western area?

Hassan Sallu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Who was commander in the west?

Hassan Sallu: The commander in the west was a Creole, I don't know his name.

Leader of Evidence: What about the Commander in the North?

Hassan Sallu: Commander Dumbuya was Commander in the North.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where he is now?

Hassan Sallu: It is quite some time now since we stopped operations; I can't say exactly where he is currently.

Leader of Evidence: But I hope that he survived the war.

Hassan Sallu: Nothing happened to him; he did not sustain even a scratch in the course of the war.

Leader of Evidence: What about in the South; who was Commander in the South?

Hassan Sallu: Eddie Mansallay was the Commander in the South.

Leader of Evidence: Where is he now?

Hassan Sallu: As I said earlier, I can't say where he is now.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know whether he is in Bo or Freetown?

Hassan Sallu: I don't know. Since the government announced that the war was over; we all became civilians. I therefore cannot tell the whereabouts of anybody. If I were able to tell where he is now, that would presuppose the continuing existence of the Kamajor society. In the course of the war, if I were awoken from a deep slumber and asked about the whereabouts of any Kamajor, I would have stated it without any problem. There is democracy now, and even a child knows about his or her rights.

Leader of Evidence: How many members were in the war council; just numbers – we are not asking for names here?

Hassan Sallu: I must say, as I have sworn on oath to say the truth, I don't know. By the time the war council was moved to our end, I had sustained injury and I was not opportune to know its composition.

Leader of Evidence: Could you describe, for the benefit of the commission, what base zero looked like – the structure, size and environment?

Hassan Sallu: That was a base and if you were an enemy, you would never know or set eyes on base zero. Base zero was not in the bush; it was in town - in Sherbro land; it was located in a school compound. As long as you meant bad for this country, even if you flew over it, you would not see Base zero. There was a white man who did not believe anything; he came in the ECOMOG helicopter to find Base zero. He flew round and round, but he could not see the base. Civilians can attest to the fact that Base zero was in town and not in the bush.

Leader of Evidence: Would you like to describe the relationship that existed between Kamajors and soldiers? What led to the fight between the Kamajors and SLA?

Hassan Sallu: One morning at Telubongor, they launched an attack about the time when people were going to the mosque in order to offer the fajir prayer. While the soldiers and UNAMSIL personnel who were on the ground had guns, we had no guns. Some people were still asleep when the attack was launched that morning. People were taken out of their beds and their heads were chopped off by the attackers; a lot of people were killed. When some people heard the sound of the gun, they went into hiding under their beds. The attackers shot through doors and people got killed.

Leader of Evidence: Can you describe for TRC what happened at Koribondo?

Hassan Sallu: I can't tell the Commission about anything that happened at Koribondo because I was not fighting on that axis. It was only after the intervention that the Kamajors were based at Koribondo.

Leader of Evidence: You said that before the war you were a miner, but now you can't do anything for yourself. Can you tell the Commission the conditions that must be met for someone to mine in your area?

Hassan Sallu: We took licenses in order to enable us embark on mining activities. Everyday, we hear the rules regarding the mining ad sales of diamonds on the wires. We abide by these rules in our area that is why Baoma is rated high; we do not mine without licenses.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thanks for coming and for your brilliant answers to questions asked so far. Is there any recommendation that you wish the commission to forward to government?

Hassan Sallu: I want the commission to ask the government this question. After the overthrow, and considering the number of months we spent in the bush, what compensation did they give to the Kamajors? I want the commission to help me so that my voice can reach His Excellency. We are not asking for rewards but, like a rebel once asked me, "after fighting for this nation, what has the government done for you?" Should my children ask me, what would I say to them in response? I want to ask the commission to tell the government to help people who have suffered in the South. We heard that there are structures for amputees; they are putting up buildings here and there, but when we ask them for help, they would say that the South was the first to see the end of the war. We are appealing to the TRC to tell the government to show concern for us who fought and suffered for this country. The children and girlfriends of ministers are either abroad or around driving luxurious cars, while we continue to suffer. I fought, during the war, so that the country could not be destroyed. Now I am injured, so please tell the government not to forget about us. If there is a trust fund for those who were injured during the war, we will be happy because the funds will take care of us. So please don't forget us. I am very thankful to the commission.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Hassan, we thank you for coming. We have listened to your recommendations and we will include them in our report.

THE SECOND DAY OF HEARINGS HELD AT BO TOWN HALL ON 30TH APRIL, 2003.

The hearing was opened with the usual Christian and Muslim prayers. The presiding commissioner then asked the leader of evidence to invite the first witness for that day.

1st Witness: Theresa Blackie

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Please relax and very quietly tell us what you went through.

THERESA BLACKIE'S TESTIMONY

I am here, before this commission, to narrate my experiences during the war. We were by the hearth one morning when we learnt that the rebels had come. We learnt that the back of one of our brother's foot had been slashed. Not too long after we had got the news of our brother's injury, we saw a man, who was dressed in military fatigue, rushing toward us. We all fled into the bush. As we took to our heels, one of the rebels came upon us. Among us was a pregnant woman who was assaulted by the attacker. She was dumped into the water several times and, after that, we were asked to drink from that stream. That was the stream from which, prior to the attack, we fetched water to drink. The town Chief was shot dead and his corpse laid in front of the house. Our brothers asked us to set up a dance which would look like a native dance, and we did. Those who came to release us from the rebels were shot to death. The old people who could not run were locked up in houses and burnt to death. Even my brother who took care of me was also assaulted. My own very sister was assaulted in such a way that she couldn't withstand the pain; she died. Another sister of mine, who was pregnant, had a miscarriage and died in the process. All the houses in that village were burnt down and now there is no place in which members of the family could live. I can't take a stranger to my village now because it has been devastated; the attackers burnt down all the eight houses which we had. My grand father could not flee from the scene, and I had to boil cassava for him which he lived on until he died. I am very incapable of taking care of my children now; I have lost everything. One of my brothers who was a farmer and who was helping to take care of the family was also killed. My mother is getting old and can't do much. I am a woman and I also can't do much.

Prof Kamara: I know that people have suffered in this war, but people like you have suffered more, especially for the fact that you are a woman. The interpreter has been using the word "assaulted", what do you actually mean? You said your brother was assaulted, how was he assaulted?

Theresa Blackie: They would pursue any one they saw and they would either kill or injure you.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How was the woman who was dumped into the water assaulted? Did they dump her in before or after her death?

Theresa Blackie: She had gone to the river to seek after her daughter when they met her. They had sexual intercourse with her several times before they killed her and dumped her into the water.

Prof Kamara: You said that you have a lot of children to take care of, how many children in all?

Theresa Blackie: They are twelve in all; some are my brother's children.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: What is the current state of the village which was destroyed?

Theresa Blackie: We have still not started any constructions; we live in make-shift houses.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We have listened to all what happened to you and we admire your bravery and courage. I will now ask you a few questions. The rebels who attacked you, what were they like; what did they look like?

Theresa Blackie: The attackers that came to my village were people that I can't identify.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were they in uniform?

Theresa Blackie: They were in combat fatigue and when we saw them, we ran away.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell whether they were young boys?

Theresa Blackie: They were a mixture of people; old and young. However, we were in danger and we did not have time to look at them properly.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you remember what language they were speaking?

Theresa Blackie: I can't tell, they were just going round the place.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You spoke of rape; can you say how many people raped your sister?

Theresa Blackie: I can't tell, I only came upon my sister in that condition.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you able to give those people decent burial?

Theresa Blackie: I was not around to witness my sister's burial. The husband came around, after twelve days, to look for his wife, but by then the body had decomposed so he dragged it and buried it in a piece of land nearby.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The events have been too traumatic for you, have you received any form of counselling?

Theresa Blackie: No, except that I spoke to the TRC staff.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you received assistance from any NGO?

Theresa Blackie: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The children you spoke about, are they going to school?

Theresa Blackie: No, they are not going to school; they go around looking for food.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know why your village was attacked?

Theresa Blackie: No, I don't have any idea, but each time they came they took our property and we ran away.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you for coming to give this testimony. We've been hearing stories that rebels would only enter into a village if they were being led by a native of that village?

Theresa Blackie: It is not to my knowledge whether any one of them was a member of our village. There was none as far as I know.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Can you say that your village was some sort of a target?

Theresa Blackie: Because of the festive occasion, those people normally came from the neighbouring villages to attack us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you say, in your statement, that the rebels said that that was your drinking water so, after they had killed the lady, they dumped her into the water?

Theresa Blackie: As the pregnant lady noticed that the perpetrators were approaching, she was afraid and she tried to escape. When the rebels saw her, while she was crossing the river, they attacked and killed her.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Where was your mother when that happened?

Theresa Blackie: She liked being in the farm house. When the attack took place, we jumped through the window and ran away.

Comm. Bishop Humper: So how did you know about the manner in which those people were killed? Did somebody tell you?

Theresa Blackie: When we came back to the village, we saw the corpses scattered all over the place.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Has anything been done for the reburial of your sister's corpse?

Theresa Blackie: It cannot be possible now because when the rains came, since the grave was shallow, most of the bones were washed away. However, we still have a few of the bones there.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is it not a tradition that the remains of the dead should always have a proper burial?

Theresa Blackie: Even the chief that was killed, his brother came later and buried his bones. In the case of the pregnant woman, women attended to her dead body because the men could not be involved in that kind of business.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have heard your story and we have asked questions; have you any questions to ask?

Theresa Blackie: Owing to the hardship which I went through in the course of the war, I would like government to step in and help.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is that all?

Theresa Blackie: I would like government to help me especially in the rebuilding of my house. Should that assistant be rendered to me, I would be happy.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have heard all what you have said. We will compile all in our report and when we get to that stage we shall remember your request along with others. For now, we appreciate all what you have said and we sympathize with you for what you have gone through.

2nd Witness: Sheku Macauley

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

SHEKU MACAULEY'S TESTIMONY

When I was in my village, I got a message that they had burnt down a nearby village and that they were coming to my village. They said that they were coming to Baiima and that they needed food. I bought about two bags of cassava. There were twelve strong men who were taking care of the village; they had some machetes. Times there were when, during the day, two men would be assigned to each soldier. One day, we learnt that those men who were protecting the village had been tied up. We also learnt that it was the soldiers who had tied them up. We went and untied them. Later, we heard gun shots, and we ran away. When we came back, the whole town had been burnt down.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We thank you. That was a fairly short, but traumatic testimony. I am confused about the different groups you have mentioned. "They" said they were coming after burning the next village, who are the "They"?

Sheku Macauley: “They” were soldiers; not rebels. They were the people who had run away from the village that had already been attacked.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Was it the rebels who attacked the neighbouring village?

Sheku Macauley: They said it was they, but I did not see them.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So soldiers were sent to protect your village?

Sheku Macauley: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who was this Carew?

Sheku Macauley: He was in charge of the men in Bo.

Prof Kamara: According to what we have here, he was supposed to be a Brigade commander.

Sheku Macauley: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Do you know where he is now?

Sheku Macauley: No.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Can you tell his rank in the army now?

Sheku Macauley: I don't know, but I was told that he was elevated in the army.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You did mention a security group that was associated with the army; what group was this?

Sheku Macauley: They were all working together.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who were the others?

Sheku Macauley: Those men were taken from each of the villages around to protect the area.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You said your companions were tied?

Sheku Macauley: Yes, I did.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now, about burning the village. If those security people were there, then who burnt the village?

Sheku Macauley: I wouldn't tell because that was what we saw; everything was mixed up.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Were there no rebels at that time?

Sheku Macauley: There were no rebels, there were only soldiers.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: There were no rebels; only soldiers, but why did you run?

Sheku Macauley: Because we heard shooting.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now, in your own opinion, what would you conclude?

Sheku Macauley: All I know is that those who had guns were shooting.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And those who had guns were soldiers; so they were shooting?

Sheku Macauley: Yes.

Prof Kamara: Led by this Carew?

Sheku Macauley: Well, he only took them there and, after a short while, he left.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say it was before 1997 that you had these attacks?

Sheku Macauley: I was at Baiima during the first attack; it was the attack which took place after the first one that I witnessed.

Comm. Bishop Humper: This incident was in 1997, you say?

Sheku Macauley: It is about eight years ago.

Comm. Bishop Humper: So they were CDF?

Sheku Macauley: That was how they called them.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How did you manage to survive it all?

Sheku Macauley: I survived by the grace of Allah.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your statement, you mentioned a Lt. Turay at Baiima; can you tell us more about him?

Sheku Macauley: Lt. Turay was with us at Baiima; he left after two months. I did not see him do any bad thing.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know his whereabouts now?

Sheku Macauley: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You also spoke of a Kamajor in your statement; why was he tied?

Sheku Macauley: I have told you that I don't know why he was tied.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What was the relationship, then, between that Kamajors and the soldiers?

Sheku Macauley: He left peacefully. In fact, when he was leaving, I went to see him off and he gave me some amount of money. He even came to visit us from time to time.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that you were feeding the soldiers; for how long did you feed them?

Sheku Macauley: For just one day.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What was the role of the women in the village in all these?

Sheku Macauley: The women were not there.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You spoke about the disappearance of three people; can you clarify that?

Sheku Macauley: As it were at that time, if you learnt that rebels were coming to attack, everybody would run away.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We are not happy that you cannot keep dates of events which should help us in our write up. Any way, the Leader of Evidence will now talk to you.

Leader of Evidence: I can understand that some of your experiences do traumatize you and make you not to remember certain things, but also bear in mind that this commission is not a court of law and that no one you mention here will have to suffer any consequences with the commission or face the Special Court. Your statement will help us, greatly, to write our report, so relax and let's go through some of what we have in your statement. You said that before 1997 your village was attacked; who attacked your village?

Sheku Macauley: What I know, like I said in my statement, is that the rebels first attacked, but I was not there; I was in my village.

Leader of Evidence: You know that we had different groups being referred to as rebels; which one attacked?

Sheku Macauley: All I know is that those who came were in military fatigues.

Leader of Evidence: So, if I understand you, the SLA soldiers were already in Baiima before the second attack?

Sheku Macauley: The men who were brought by Mr. Carew were there before the second attack.

Leader of Evidence: If they were there before the attack, what were they doing when the attack took place?

Sheku Macauley: I know that they were there, but I was not there, so I don't know what they were doing during the attack.

Leader of Evidence: If the soldiers were there before the second attack, what role did they play?

Sheku Macauley: The soldiers were there, but they had gone before the attack; I was not there so I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: From 1997, how long did you stay in Baiima?

Sheku Macauley: After the attack we went back from the bush to Baiima and we stayed there.

Leader of Evidence: How long? Three Months?

Sheku Macauley: I was there for over two or three years.

Leader of Evidence: The SLA soldiers; how long did they stay there?

Sheku Macauley: They were there for five months.

Leader of Evidence: Whilst they were there, how were they getting their food?

Sheku Macauley: They were supplied by the army battalion.

Leader of Evidence: There was no instance when villagers had to supply them with food?

Sheku Macauley: No.

Leader of Evidence: They themselves never forcefully went to people's houses and took food?

Sheku Macauley: I never had complaints of that.

Leader of Evidence: What did the relationship between the people and soldiers look like during the latter's stay?

Sheku Macauley: As far as I know, it was cordial, except that if one stole, one was flogged.

Leader of Evidence: Was any member of your family injured or harassed at any time?

Sheku Macauley: The rebels did a lot of harassment, they burnt so many houses.

Leader of Evidence: If I understand you Mr. Macaulay, there were soldiers at Baiima, at what point did the rebels come in to burn your house?

Sheku Macauley: When the soldiers had left, the village was attacked four times.

Leader of Evidence: Were you attacked?

Sheku Macauley: Yes, about four years ago. They shot me in my hand.

Leader of Evidence: Was any other person injured when you were shot in your hand?

Sheku Macauley: Yes, they killed about three people and the bullet hit me in my hand.

Leader of Evidence: Can you give the commission the names of the people who were killed?

Sheku Macauley: Well, they killed one Mr. Bundu; Mr. Foday and Madam Boya.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We have asked you a number of questions; do you have any questions for the commission?

Sheku Macauley: I am an illiterate, I have been called to come and testify and I have done that. What is the purpose of doing this?

Comm. Bishop Humper: We are not asking questions, but posing questions for clarification of information. Mr. Sheku gave a statement where four groups were involved, so we need to pose questions for clarification which will help our records for historical purposes. What TRC is doing is national.

Sheku Macauley: I don't have any questions, all I am saying is that those of us who have suffered in this war should be considered, especially those of us in Baiima; all our houses were burnt down.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We have taken down your recommendations and we will do our best.

3rd Witness: Mr. James Umaru

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

JAMES UMARU'S TESTIMONY

What happened to me during the war that was really painful to me is that at one time, we had normally spent our day when, in the evening, we were attacked. My wife was in the house, and she was not able to leave the house. I ran away into the bush. The attackers took control of Tikonko town and nobody was able to go close to the town; we slept in the bush. The following morning, we went watching the town. My wife's intestines had been removed and the house had been burnt down. The only clothes I had were the ones which I had put on prior to the attack. The corpse laid there for the rest of the day. That night, I resolved that I was going to sit by the corpse of my wife, even if it meant that I had to be killed. After two days, my children and I went and buried my wife. Following the burial, we went back to the bush camp; nobody was able to stay in Tikonko by then. There was no food, so we lived on palm kernel. After two weeks, one of my daughters decided that she was coming to Bo in order to look for bulgur so that we would not die of hunger. Since we did the burial, up to this time, nothing has happened to me.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you very much, we have heard your story and we hope you will be patient to answer a few questions. You said they attacked, who are "they"?

James Umaru: The rebels attacked us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How were you able to identify them as rebels?

James Umaru: I was able to identify them as rebels because I knew that they were the people who committed those types of atrocities.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Can you tell how they were dressed?

James Umaru: At that time, we could not stand to look at them. However, most of them were in military fatigues, while some of them were in plain clothes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You went into the bush and when you came back, they had killed your wife. From the appearance of the corpse, can you tell whether they killed her before or after the house was burnt?

James Umaru: They killed her, took her out of the house and covered her face with a piece of cloth.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So the fire did not affect the body?

James Umaru: No.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: I know it was not easy for you, but did you notice any missing parts from the body of your wife?

James Umaru: We came back to the village after a whole day. By then, the body had started decomposing so we could not tell. However, I don't think that any part was removed.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Also, would you have guessed the reason for which her body was opened?

James Umaru: I don't think it was any reason other than mere cruelty.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you for your story. We are sorry for what happened to you and your family. Do you have any idea when this incident occurred?

James Umaru: It was during the time of Johnny Paul.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us of what happened to other people in your village?

James Umaru: What happened to me is what I have explained. Tikonko is the seat of the paramount Chief; it s a big town.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I would like to know if there is a mass grave in Tikonko.

James Umaru: Yes there is.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you have any idea how many people were buried in that mass grave?

James Umaru: Thirteen {13}.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Why was your wife not with you when you ran into the bush?

James Umaru: It was because of the way in which we were attacked; my wife was not with me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How do you survive now that all this has happened to you?

James Umaru: I live by God's grace because I can't farm any longer.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you for coming, it is sympathetic to hear you as we hear others tell their story. You loved your wife and sat by the corpse and said you would die by her. In your statement, you stated "Sobel", I don't know whether it was you or the statement takers who used that word, please clarify it for the Commission.

James Umaru: Yes, I said "Sobels" because when we were in our town, none of these happened until those people came.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Who are "Sobels"?

James Umaru: Those people who came to destroy.

Comm. Bishop Humper: I guess you buried your wife in haste; are you making any provision for the traditional form of burial?

James Umaru: No, I do not have that plan. Even her burial was hastily done because I did not have anything that would have allowed me to do a fitting burial. If I have the opportunity, I will do so.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Before handing you over to the Leader of Evidence, I will ask you two questions outside your statement. Did you have soldiers in Tikonko all the time to safe guard the town?

James Umaru: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Whilst they were there, were there any attacks on the village?

James Umaru: They did not attack us whilst they were there.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Can you recall the name Tafaikor?

James Umaru: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Was he involved in that attack?

James Umaru: I can't tell; he left the town before the attack.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who was this Tafaikor?

James Umaru: He was a person.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: I know, but tell us more about him.

James Umaru: He was a soldier, and he was once deployed at Tikonko, but while he was there I never saw him commit any atrocities.

Leader of Evidence: At the time of this incident that led to the death of your wife, were the soldiers still stationed at Tikonko?

James Umaru: At that time, soldiers were not based at Tikonko.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We share your sorrow over the death of your wife; we hope that you will continue to cope. We have asked you all these questions, and now we would like you to ask us questions if you have any.

James Umaru: You have asked me and I have explained all that I know to you. All I want you to know is that I don't have a dwelling house now and I have still not performed the burial rites for my wife who was killed. People are traumatised, especially me; I go around really traumatised.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We have heard all what you have said, and when the report is written and recommendations of all testimonies taken into consideration, we will see what can be done. We wish you a better life.

4th Witness: Mr. James Legg

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

JAMES LEGG'S TESTIMONY

At one time, I was in Bo; it was in 1999. It was on December 5th of that year that my sister went to town and came back with a message that our child, Angela, had injected the child of a Kamajor. The child, according to the report, got abscess as a result of the injection and, for that reason, Angela was tied up. After tying her, she was abandoned until a passer by came to her rescue; untied her and took her to a lady called Dikpama.

A message was sent to me. As soon as I receive the message, my sister and I went to the scene. We travelled for about twelve hours. When we got there, people were crowded around her; she could not talk properly. I introduced myself to her and she began to cry. Her speech had been affected by the tautness by the tight knot. We stayed there that night and, in the morning, we went round the town to confer with the relatives and elders.

We went straight to the Kamajor battalion commander of the 19th battalion in Bo; Mr. Ngaujah. He gave us a paper to go to the police. We made our report and then took Angela to the hospital. I left her there and came back home as there was another sick person at home. Later, my other sister came to say that she had passed away. The police who had taken the statement was there when she died. We were asked to make another statement which the child of the deceased made. ECOMOG was around at that time and we reported the matter to them; they promised to investigate.

Five trucks of Kamajors were loaded to go and bring the culprits, but they later decided that they could be possibly ambushed. They asked Kosseh Hindowa, who was the battalion commander for Bo district, to apprehend the culprits and bring them forward. On the day of the burial, the culprits were brought. I went there to see them myself. We went back home and, while the funeral ceremony was being arranged, the culprits were asked to make a statement. After the burial, we went to Kosseh Hindowa and enquired after the culprits, but he told us that they had been released and sent back to their home village. He said that the culprits were Kamajors and shouldn't witness such an occasion that was why, according to him, they were released. After the burial, we went to Kosseh Hindowa. He promised that he would send for them. Whenever we went to see Hindowa, we would go to the police as well.

The police cautioned Kosseh Hindowa that the matter should be treated seriously, but it was as though Hindowa had no respect for the police and our own rights were cast aside. So I had to explain to TRC when the statement takers came around. Apart from telling Hindowa and the police, we also had it announced on the radio station in Bo. We also contacted late Prince Brima and told him our story. He confronted Hindowa, but all was to no avail. After some time, we gave up all pursuits of the culprits.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: There is not much difference between some other testimonies and yours; it's just that you went through all the normal processes. However, what did the police say eventually?

James Legg: The CPO advised us to keep our cool since it was during a period of war. He further stated that one day the matter would be picked up.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Since the end of the war, have you ever been to the police to resurrect the matter?

James Legg: No.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Why?

James Legg: Because we were tired of running around, so we have decided to leave everything in the hands of God.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You said that the lady who was killed administered an injection to a child and that the child got abscess; whose child was that?

James Legg: The child of a Kamajor.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who injected this child?

James Legg: My niece.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Is the child still alive?

James Legg: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Was your niece, Angela, a trained nurse?

James Legg: Yes, she was a nurse in training at Serabu.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Who did you report the matter to when you came to Bo?

James Legg: We reported the matter to Ngaujah, the commander in charge of the 19th battalion in Bo.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Was he the one who ordered the arrest of the culprits?

James Legg: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How did Hindowa come in?

James Legg: We had to bring him in since he was our boss; he was in charge of the Kamajors in Bo.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Can you remember the name of the CPO who asked you to wait and deal with the case at some later date?

James Legg: No.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Can you remember the year?

James Legg: Yes, it was on December 5th 1999.

Leader of Evidence: You said there was a post mortem result?

James Legg: They are in the hands of the doctor and the police. They have never shown it to us.

Leader of Evidence: Did they give you any other report from the police?

James Legg: They never explained anything to us.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to the photographs that were taken?

James Legg: They were in the hands of the police, we never saw them.

Leader of Evidence: Can you help the commission with the whereabouts of Mr. Hindowa?

James Legg: I know the address of his residence, but I don't know whether he is in town.

Leader of Evidence: TRC will give you a letter signed by me, and one of the staff will go with you in one of our vehicles to get Mr. Hindowa to come to the commission tomorrow and give his own version. What of Mr. Ngaujah?

James Legg: I also know his contact address.

Leader of Evidence: The commission will try to reach him also. Those people responsible for killing your sister, do you know their names or can you tell the commission about their whereabouts?

James Legg: One of them is here right now and his name is Mr. James.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the name of any other?

James Legg: No, I don't know, and I don't want to tell a lie.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where Mr. James is at the moment?

James Legg: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: The commission will try to reach him.

James Legg: The lady that was killed has a daughter here in the audience and she knows all the people who killed her mother.

Leader of Evidence: So she was there when her mother was tortured and killed?

James Legg: Initially, she was there but, after awhile, she came to Bo.

Leader of Evidence: How old will this child be now?

James Legg: She will be about 18.

Leader of Evidence: I will ask a statement taker to take statement from her and, before the commission closes down on Saturday, she will come here to testify. When you went and saw your niece, what situation was she in and what was her condition like?

James Legg: She was in a critical state; she could not talk; she only made signs showing the marks on her body.

Leader of Evidence: The child that was injected, where is that child now and where are the parents?

James Legg: I can't tell, but I believe that they are still within this town.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mr. Legg is very precise about the date 5th December, 1999. Our mandate falls within the period March 1991 and December 1999. I am not a lawyer so I can't say you have a right to take this matter to court, but if you want us to take it from a reconciliatory point, we will. We are interested in it and we will do all within our power to help. Now I will ask you to ask us questions if you have any.

James Legg: I am not handling this matter single handed so I will have to go and hang heads with other family members. We have the maternal and paternal sides of the family, so I will have to meet with them before taking any decision.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: That is not a question but a statement.

James Legg: The mother of the deceased has left for somewhere else and I am the only one who is taking care of the kids, I am asking the commission to help me with the children.

5th Witness: Kadie Youngah

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor John Kamara.

KADIE YOUNGAH'S TESTIMONY

When my husband and I were in Daru, I received a letter with regards to the death of my father. While we were travelling from Daru, there was a cut off on the road. As a result of the cut off on the road, my husband and I were forced to stay in Kenema. We were in Kenema for sometime. Although we did not know anybody in Kenema, my husband, my kids and I were put up by a kind lady. It did not take before we were driven away on the basis of the point that soldiers and their relatives were being sought for. My husband left us and went to check whether the road had been reopened. Kamajors later came and surrounded the house in which we lived. They took my husband out of the house, hit him on the head and took him away. As they were taking my husband away, I shouted out to them that I would give them all the money I had on me; that was the money which I was taking for my father's burial. They took away all our belongings and the money, and they also took my husband away. When they had taken him away, some people came to us and asked us to hide as the Kamajors had sworn to come back for me and my children after they would have killed my husband. One day, a brother of mine was passing by; he did not see me, but I saw him. I called out to him and told him about the death of my husband, and I also told him that I needed help. We later went to Tikonko. While we were at Tikonko, there was another attack. We went to another village which also came under attack. During the attack on the village, I was recognized as the wife of a soldier.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We know that things have been difficult for you as you have just explained in your story. However, we will ask you some questions in order to clarify a few points that you have mentioned in your testimony.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We have listened to your testimony and we sympathize with you. We will ask you a few questions to clarify certain things. You told us that you hailed from Tikonko, but your husband was stationed in Daru?

Kadie Youngah: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: From Daru, were you going back for the funeral rites of your father?

Kadie Youngah: Yes, but we did not get there.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us more about the lady who lodged you?

Kadie Youngah: I was told by my husband that she was his aunt.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us more about the Kamajors who attacked your husband?

Kadie Youngah: They were dressed in their traditional Kamajor outfit.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know why your husband was attacked?

Kadie Youngah: They attacked him because he was a soldier.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know where he was taken to?

Kadie Youngah: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Since then, have you been able to perform any funeral rites for your husband?

Kadie Youngah: No, I have to take care of the children and I don't have the resources for that now.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What do you do for a living?

Kadie Youngah: I do petty trading.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you identify any of the people who killed your husband?

Kadie Youngah: I was in a state of worry by then; I couldn't identify anyone.

Comm. Bishop Humper: The lady who lodged you drove you from her place, was that where you were when the rebels came?

Kadie Youngah: No, we were in another house.

Comm. Bishop Humper: So, can you say that people disclosed your identity?

Kadie Youngah: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: When you say they split open your husband's stomach and took out his intestines, was he dead or alive?

Kadie Youngah: I said they hit him on the head and carried him away.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You have done well in telling us your story. We have asked you questions, do you have anything questions to ask us or recommendations to make that we might include in our report?

Kadie Youngah: I want to make an appeal to this commission, I have a lot of kids and my husband is dead. Even the house in Daru was burnt down; please do something to help me.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Have you heard of NaCSA? Do you know to what extent they have helped people in your area? Do you know about other NGO'S?

Kadie Youngah: No, I don't.

Prof .Kamara: We have heard you and we will include your recommendations in our report. Thanks for coming.

1st Witness: Lady Asay.

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Satang Jow.

Commissioner Satang Jow: Lady Asay, on behalf of the TRC, I wish to welcome you to this special hearing in Bo. The TRC was established by an Act of parliament in 2000 and was given a broad mandate to create an impartial historical record of violations of human rights and international humanitarian law committed during the armed conflict; to respond to the needs of victims; to address impunity; to promote reconciliation and healing, and to prevent a reoccurrence of what happened during the conflict. However, the Act also gives us a different mandate to focus on women and children because we are aware that women and children suffered immensely during the conflict and the report we are going to present to the government and the international community will not be complete unless we collect your records. That is why we are very happy that people like you are giving statements and are also appearing for hearings. I want to tell you that there is nothing to be afraid of. All we want to do is to set the records straight and to make recommendations which will help women like you. The information you are going to give to us today will remain confidential. We will not reveal your identity, but the information you give to us will be very important for the commission. I want you to feel relaxed, take your time and tell us your story. We want to know what happened to you during this period of armed conflict in Sierra Leone. You may now begin your testimony.

LADY ASAY'S TESTIMONY

I am Lady Asay and I come from Kasama. One morning, the rebels caught me and took me to an oil plantation. The rebels wore military fatigues. They then flogged me for sometime and they told us to cook for them. In the evening, they caught a man called Joe and killed him. That night, two male rebels had sexual intercourse with me. We slept in that oil plantation and, the following morning, we went to town. The rebels then began to set fire to our houses. In addition to burning our houses, the rebels also looted most of our properties. That was what they did to me. The children, to whom I have I have given birth, cannot go the school. I have let them learn Arabic. After that incident with the rebels, I did not get pregnant for six years, and when I got pregnant, I was discharging puss and other offensive smell from my female organ. However, I was able to deliver. Unto this day, I experience the same problem each time I get pregnant. Up to this moment, I have no money to rebuild my house. I am residing in somebody else's house. I still do not have money to see a medical doctor.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I have listened very closely to your testimony. Your experience has been a very painful one and I have no doubts that other women have gone through the same experience. We admire the courage you have and we are happy to note that you are trying to rebuild your life. But I would like to ask you a few questions in order to clarify the testimony you have just given to us, and to fill in some of the details wherever we need them. Asay, can you tell us something about yourself; how old were you then?

Lady Asay: I was 25 years.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you married?

Lady Asay: I was married with two children.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us your husband's name at the time?

Lady Asay: ...

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How old were your children at the time?

Lady Asay: 8 years and 5 years.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, you told us that when the rebels attacked your village and many other villages, they abducted people; can you tell us how many of you were taken away?

Lady Asay: I cannot remember the number now. There were many women including women from other villages.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you all taken to the same place?

Lady Asay: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they abduct only girls or were young boys also abducted?

Lady Asay: They abducted young men and boys. Some of them, since they were taken away, they are coming back only now.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us what they looked like?

Lady Asay: When I saw them, they were dressed like soldiers. Since soldiers usually went to the village, we were, initially, not afraid of the rebels. When they later went to the plantation, they declared that they were rebels; they introduced themselves as the people who killed, looted and burnt down houses.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How far was the plantation?

Lady Asay: A short distance from the village.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, you told us, in your statement, that the only thing which you did was to cook for them. Is that right?

Lady Asay: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us how many of the rebels raped you?

Lady Asay: Two of them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was it continuous or was it one after the other?

Lady Asay: They did it one after the other.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was anybody present while you were raped?

Lady Asay: There was a crowd, but it was dark. However, but my mate witnessed the incident.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know of any other person that was raped?

Lady Asay: There was a woman who was abducted from Kojja; she was raped. But after the incident, the woman went away.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell me what the rebels were saying to you as they raped you?

Lady Asay: They were speaking Mende, and they told me that they needed to have sex with me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you plead for mercy?

Lady Asay: I did not say anything; I was afraid of them because they had guns. I was not the only victim. They were raping women all over.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they kill any victim during that period?

Lady Asay: Yes; one Pa Joe was killed.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Why did they kill him?

Lady Asay: I don't know why he was killed him, but I witnessed it.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was he the only person killed?

Lady Asay: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were there any women amongst the rebels?

Lady Asay: They had women among them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you give us an idea of how many women were with them?

Lady Asay: They were many.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What was the role of the women?

Lady Asay: They were also carried guns and wore uniforms.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us the age group of the two men who raped you; were they old or young men?

Lady Asay: They were young men.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What happened after they had raped you; did they abandon you or help you to get up?

Lady Asay: I was with them until the following morning when I went to town together with them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you clarify how long you stayed with them?

Lady Asay: I was with them for one day and one night; from morning until the following morning.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you recall any name which they used?

Lady Asay: I cannot recall their names.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Would you be able to identify anyone of them, if you saw them?

Lady Asay: I cannot identify them because the act was done at night.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did the rebels have camps or just an open space?

Lady Asay: It was in an oil plantation, but they had a big hut there. That was where the people stayed to work in their plantation.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How did you feel after you were raped? Tell us about your reaction.

Lady Asay: I was angry, but I was powerless and could not do anything.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you still angry?

Lady Asay: Now that I have children whom I have to bring up, my power has subsided.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your written statement, you said that they asked you to go back and bring all their belongings.

Lady Asay: They did not send me to town. When they went with me, I was there until they returned.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did the rebels take your properties with them?

Lady Asay: Yes; they took a lot of my properties.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they burn any houses?

Lady Asay: Yes; they burnt my husband's house and also burnt my father's house.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you talk to your parents about what happened to you in the bush?

Lady Asay: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What did they say to you?

Lady Asay: They told my husband to take me to a hospital in Bo because it was a problem, and it was serious.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you discuss this with your husband?

Lady Asay: Yes; he took me to Bo and I was treated.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was he very sympathetic?

Lady Asay: Yes; he felt sorry for me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us about the hospital in Bo?

Lady Asay: It was not a real hospital. We went to a nurse, Sister Monica, who gave me injections and some medicines.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that you encounter problems, especially when you are pregnant; have you been to the hospital?

Lady Asay: It is only when I get pregnant that I experience this problem.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you receive any traditional treatment?

Lady Asay: I did not take any traditional medicine; I only took the treatment which Sister Monica gave to me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you telling us that you have this discharge only when you are pregnant?

Lady Asay: Yes, It is only when I am pregnant that I experience it.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you saying that you are o. k now?

Lady Asay: Yes, I am quite o. k, except that when I am pregnant, I experience it.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Physically, what is your condition?

Lady Asay: I am quite o. k.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mentally, how do you feel?

Lady Asay: Mentally, I am o.k.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Before the incident happened, were you engaged in any work?

Lady Asay: I was engaged in making garden and petty trading.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you still engaged in these activities?

Lady Asay: Yes. Since the rebels burnt down all our houses, we had had a set back. My husband was involved in diamond mining, and we used to put some money aside for the children. But since that of the rebel attack and destruction, we have been left with nothing.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many children do you now have? You said that prior to the incident, you had two children and, after the incident, you also had two children?

Lady Asay: I have three children. I have given birth to five; I lost two and suffered two abortions.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was it after the incident?

Lady Asay: After the incident, I gave birth to one child and he is still alive; he is five years old. I had another pregnancy and I gave birth to a set of twins which did not survive.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Where did you deliver?

Lady Asay: At the place of the same nurse whom I spoke about; Sister Monica.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, I would like to know whether you did any medical test.

Lady Asay: No, I have not done any test.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Why, is it that nobody advised you?

Lady Asay: I had no advice from anybody.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was that the first time you suffered rape?

Lady Asay: That was the only time the rebels raped me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Has this incident affected your relationship with your husband?

Lady Asay: It has not affected my relationship; there are no disturbances. He was in sympathy with me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, you can ask the commission any questions or make recommendations.

Lady Asay: Since we have narrated all what happened to us, including the humiliations which we have suffered, and considering the fact that we do not have money to educate our children, we need assistance from the Commission and the government.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, this is why we have called you to talk to the commission. We will make recommendations to the government for people like you. The report will be sent to government and the Security Council and the government of this country is bound to implement the recommendations made by TRC. We are hopeful that, as a result of these recommendations, your situation, and those of women generally in Sierra Leone, will be improved and your children, and your children's children and all those who come after, will live in a more peaceful Sierra Leone where things like this will not happen to you again.

Lady Asay: In the name of God.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: If you were to make recommendations to the government on what happened to you, what recommendations would you make?

Lady Asay: Government should help in providing training for us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Asay, do you have anything to tell us?

Lady Asay: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I wish to thank you again for coming to this commission and for sharing your experiences with us. We have noted your concerns and the recommendations you have made to us, and we will consider them along side with those of other women in our final report. We would like you to have faith and courage because the TRC will ensure, through its recommendations, that the condition of women is improved and that what happened to you; the violations you experienced, will never happen to your girl child. You may now stand down.

2nd Witness: Lady Taj.

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Satang Jow.

LADY TAJ'S TESTIMONY

At a time when the war was tense, we were in our village. It was in December and Christmas was approaching when we heard that rebels had attacked. There was an exodus from the surrounding villages into our village. We were gripped by fear and we had to leave the village; we went into the bush. During our first week in the bush, no rebel attacked our village. It was during our second week in the bush that the rebels attacked our village. We were in the bush, and we heard them. The rebels attacked us in our hide out at night. When the rebels attacked our own shed, I was asleep. I was awakened by the noise. When I woke up, people were running helter-skelter. I immediately took to my heels, but as I was running, a rope caught me on my feet and I fell down; the rebels caught me. The rebel who caught me raped me where he caught me. I could not, however, clearly figure him out because it was dark. The rebels took our belongings away from where we had hidden them. The rebels ordered those of us whom they had captured to accompany them. We were half way through the journey when the rebels sent some of us back on the grounds that they had a lot of people already. We returned to the bush where we stayed until we were told that soldiers had recaptured the village. We were then asked to leave the bush and return to town, which we did. The soldiers had advised that a craft was coming to drop bombs in the bush. We therefore left the bush and went to town. Upon our arrival in the village on a Sunday, the village was attacked. We ran away, leaving our remaining belongings in the village; we could not take them along. When the rebels went away, we came back to the village and saw that our houses had been burnt down.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much for that testimony. We have listened to the testimony and we are sorry for what happened to you. Can you tell us how old you were at the time of the incident?

Lady Taj: I cannot guess my age; I don't know. But I have a son who is 19 years old this year.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Prior to the attack, were you living with your parents or husband?

Lady Taj: I was staying with my husband, together with my parents. But I later went to the camp together with my husband; I was married.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How old was your child at that time?

Lady Taj: I cannot remember.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your testimony, you told us that a lot of people started coming to the village and that you went into the bush when you saw them.

Lady Taj: Yes, people were coming to the village and I was afraid and, therefore, went into the bush.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were they rebels?

Lady Taj: They were civilians from other villages.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What did you hear?

Lady Taj: I heard from those who came from the town {Witness did not understand the question asked by Commissioner Jow because of the interpreter's incomprehension of the question}

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that during the second week of your stay in the bush, the rebels started coming to the village. You lived in a shed, in the bush. Can you tell us what the shed looked like?

Lady Taj: It was a farm hut.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many people were in the hut with you?

Lady Taj: There were three of us who were women, and there was one man; my husband.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was your child with you?

Lady Taj: The child was with his father and, by then, the relation between me and my child's father had been severed.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What were the rebels saying in the bush?

Lady Taj: The people who were in the bush were the ones shouting that the rebels had come.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that you fell down and you were caught. Can you tell us how many people caught you?

Lady Taj: Only one person caught me, but two of them had sexual intercourse with me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was he in uniform; the man who caught you?

Lady Taj: I cannot tell which clothes they wore, but they had guns.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did the rebels rape you in the presence of other people?

Lady Taj: I cannot tell, because everybody was running away. After the first rebel had raped me, the other rebel also raped me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us what the person, who raped you, was saying as he was raping you?

Lady Taj: When the rebel who caught me initially wanted to rape me, I attempted to shout, and he warned that if I shouted I would be given a big cut in the flesh. When the other rebel then came to rape me, I pleaded with him to put his gun aside.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us what language they were speaking?

Lady Taj: They spoke Mende and they spoke Liberian Creole.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you plead with them?

Lady Taj: I pleaded with them, but they could not be persuaded.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you hear them call their names?

Lady Taj: They did not disclose their names. When they caught me, they were speaking Mende, but after they had raped me, they started speaking Liberian Creole.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us their ages?

Lady Taj: They were all young boys.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you see anybody else being raped?

Lady Taj: No, but I heard from the people of another village that the rebels went there and raped a lot of girls.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you sustain any injuries?

Lady Taj: I sustained stomach ache.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you received medical attention?

Lady Taj: The only medication I have received is traditional herbs.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are there times when you feel depressed and cannot eat; do you feel sad?

Lady Taj: Yes I feel depressed because the stomach pain, sometimes, becomes so painful that it appears as though I am going to die.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: When you went back to the village, who did you talk to?

Lady Taj: I talked to my aunt, my father's sister, and she prepared native medicines for me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What about your actual parents?

Lady Taj: My mother and father are dead.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What about your husband; did he also return to the village?

Lady Taj: My husband came back to the village, but he left me because of this incident. He picked a quarrel with my aunt because of the medicines she provided for me and, as a result of that, he left me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did the husband know about what happened to you from other sources?

Lady Taj: Yes, he has heard about it from other sources; after our separation. I did not tell him because I was ashamed.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you alone or married?

Lady Taj: I am alone.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you have discharges or any bleeding?

Lady Taj: I have painful menstrual cycles and I experience discharges which wet my pants.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Why did you not go to a medical health centre for help?

Lady Taj: I was ashamed and, in addition to that, I had no money. My aunt therefore advised me to use the native herbs.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you have any children apart from the boy you mentioned?

Lady Taj: I don't have a child of my own, but I adopted a child. It is that child alone that I have.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What is your feeling at the moment; do you have any other relationship?

Lady Taj: I get involved in relationships with men. One man even said that he was interested in marrying me, but the man has been sent to Freetown by his relatives in order to learn and acquire skills; now I am on my own.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you interested in getting married?

Lady Taj: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I will like to know the reaction of your community when you returned.

Lady Taj: They accepted me and I went along with them amicably. Most of them do not know what happened to me because it happened at night.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Is this the first time you are speaking about this incident in detailed or have you spoken to any NGO about it?

Lady Taj: I have never spoken to any NGO. I have, before today, only shared my experience with the TRC statement taker who took the statement from me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How do you feel now that you have spoken to the TRC?

Lady Taj: Today I feel a bit better because it is the TRC and the government to which I have narrated my story. I would not have felt good if I had explained this ordeal to any other person.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that when you went back to the village, everything had been destroyed. Can you tell us what you lost?

Lady Taj: I lost all my clothes, cooking utensils, bags and everything that I had in my house. My father's house and property were also burnt down and my father died as a result of that.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How do you support yourself; are you being assisted in any way?

Lady Taj: I have nothing. The boyfriend who was going out with me gave me Le10, 000 in order to be doing petty trading and to up keep my child. Even this year, I want to embark on my garden work, but I have no money.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you for answering my questions and now it is your own time to ask questions and make recommendations to the commission.

Lady Taj: I want to know whether – now that you have listened to my testimony – the Commission only wants to know what happened to us or whether we have been asked to narrate our experiences so that the Commission will provide help to those of us who need it.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We all know that victims suffered. Women also suffered tremendously. We have been asked to make a report and make recommendations in the report. It is only when we know what happened to you that we can make recommendations for government to implement. This is why we are undertaking this exercise to get first hand information from people like you. That is why we are going to note your concerns so that we can incorporate them in the recommendations we shall make to government.

Lady Taj: I want the government to help us with shelter. Government should also give us grants so that we can embark on petty trading.

3rd Witness: Lady Sama

The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Satang Jow administered the oath.

LADY SAMA'S TESTIMONY

I was living with my parents at Bumpeh. I was a pupil at the time when the rebels attacked Bumpeh; the attack took place was on the 15th August, 1994. When the rebels attacked Bumpeh, there was fighting between them and the soldiers. Owing to persistent firing in the town, nobody was able to run away. My parents and I went into the house and hid ourselves under the bed; we were there until the firing subsided. We did not know the whereabouts of the soldiers who had been in Bumpeh; the rebels took over the town. We were in the house when the rebels entered and started taking people out of their houses. The rebels removed me from under the bed and had sexual intercourse with me; they took away my chastity. At the time that the rebels took away my virginity, none of my relatives was around. When I came out of the house, after the incident, I did not know what had happened to me; all I knew was that I was bleeding and discharging. Outside the house, I met my elder sister, Mahinteh. I told her that the rebels caught in the house and had sex with me, and that I was bleeding and dizzy. She told me to sit down while she brought water for me to drink. The rebels came again to the house and met me and Mahinteh. The rebels said that they were going to take us along with them; they took us to a village called Sihena. I knew the village. The rebels also caught people at Sihena and gave them loads to carry. When we arrived in Mattru, the rebels, who had abducted us, presented us to their elders, saying that we were the people whom they had caught. The elders then ordered that we should be killed. However, as God could have it, we got somebody who pleaded on our behalf. We also pleaded with them that we knew nothing about the conflict in our country. The man who pleaded for us had to also sign for us; they told him that if we escaped, they would kill him. The man promised the rebels that he would take care of us; he took us to the rebels each morning. I was thirteen years old by that time. I later got somebody who volunteered to take care of me. I would work for the person as though I were the person's child; I did household chores. I was still living with that person when we went back into the bush. I was with the rebels until I grew up. When we came out of the bush during the AFRC regime, I used that opportunity to come to my parents who live here, in Bo, here; I introduced to them the people with whom I stayed in the bush. During the ECOMOG intervention, the rebels came looking for me in my parents' house. My parents hid me in the house, but the rebels came and took me away again; they went along with me. I was with the rebels until the disarmament process began. After the disarmament process, parents were going to look for their children at demobilisation centers and other places. However, my parents did not go in search of me; may be, they did not have the chance to do so. I took permission from the person with whom I was staying; I told her that I was coming to look for my parents; I didn't know whether they were dead or alive. At least some of them must be alive, I thought. She allowed me to come to Bo and search for my parents. Since I came back to Bo, the person with whom I was staying in Makeni has not come to look for me. I stopped going to school because of the war. My parents do not have the upper hand to educate me. I just stay at home with my mother. When I came back from the bush, I had given birth to two children. I cannot afford to do anything for even my two children. My children and I depend on my parents. Since I came back, my parents have been doing everything for me; they are taking care of my children. My caretaker hasn't come back to look for me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I admire the clarity with which you have told us your testimony. You explained everything very clearly. Can you tell us about yourself before the attack; what level you were in school and the name of the school you attended?

Lady Sama: I was attending Bumpah High school. I had just been promoted to form two when the rebels attacked Bumpah.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You remember the date very well, 15th August, 1994. Before this date were there any other attacks on Bumpah?

Lady Sama: The rebels had attacked the town twice; that was the third attack.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Who was taking care of the town?

Lady Sama: The Sierra Leone Army; the government soldiers.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You have told us that during the attack of 15th August, there was an encounter between the rebels and the soldiers; what happened to the soldiers?

Lady Sama: I would not know; by then, I was in the house, hiding under the bed. By the time I came out, there were no soldiers around.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You were hiding under the bed and they asked you to come out; how did the rebels tell you to come out?

Lady Sama: Two of them removed me from under the bed and one of them raped me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was he a young man or an old person?

Lady Sama: One of them was a child, but the one who raped me was a young man.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Would you identify him, if you saw him?

Lady Sama: I cannot identify him now because it has been a long time. Since that time when I was taken to Mattru Jong, I have not seen him.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: As you were being raped by one of the rebels, what was the other rebel doing?

Lady Sama: The other rebel was asking me about my parents and the properties in the house. I told him that my parents were farmers and they had no money.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you raped only once or more than once; how long did it last?

Lady Sama: I was raped only once and it lasted for over an hour.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you plead with them?

Lady Sama: I pleaded with him, and I was even crying, but he could not be persuaded; he stayed on top of me until he was satisfied.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What language were they speaking? Did they wear uniform?

Lady Sama: They spoke Mende, and they wore uniform.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that you had not started having sex before the incident; when did you start seeing your menses?

Lady Sama: I had not started seeing my menses by then. I started seeing my menses during the war, while I was with them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did your mother know about it? If she did, what did she say to you?

Lady Sama: I did not know where my mother was at that time.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did your sister suffer any violations?

Lady Sama: They did not do anything to her because she was a suckling mother by then.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you say that after this incident the rebels went away.

Lady Sama: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: But they came back the second time; how long did it take for them to come back?

Lady Sama: When they left us : after they had raped me : they went into town and came back on the same day.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: This time they decided to take you and your sister away.

Lady Sama: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: And you went along with them.

Lady Sama: Yes, we went along with them because they said they would kill us if we did not. We pleaded with them to release us, but they refused.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How did you travel?

Lady Sama: We walked through the bush on foot. By the time we arrived in Mattru, since I was not used to covering long distance on foot, my feet were swollen.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that rebels abducted other people and gave them loads to carry; what sort of loads did they carry?

Lady Sama: They were given bags of rice, tins of palm oil and baggage to carry.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were they looted items?

Lady Sama: They were looted items, and all those items were looted from Bumpeh.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us whether those who were abducted were only women, or were there other groups?

Lady Sama: They also abducted girls and women.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many rebels travelled from Bumpeh to Mattru Jong?

Lady Sama: Their number was large, but since I was not happy on that day, I would not know.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your testimony, you said that when you arrived in Mattru Jong, the rebels presented you to elders; who were those elders? Were they commanders?

Lady Sama: Those were rebel leaders; I do not know their ranks.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The elders had asked that you should be killed, but you were spared. Were there others who should have been killed or was it you and your sister only?

Lady Sama: They spared all of us; they did not kill anybody.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The man who pleaded on your behalf; was he called by any name?

Lady Sama: I don't know his name.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: For most of the time you lived with them; you saw how they were operating; can you tell us a little bit about them?

Lady Sama: I was there with the rebels, but I was also living with a woman who was also abducted.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What is the name of this woman?

Lady Sama: Her name is Hawa.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How long did you stay with Hawa?

Lady Sama: I was with her for quite a long time because I was small.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was she kind to you?

Lady Sama: There were days on which she was kind to me and there times when she was not kind to me. There were times when she would ask me to cook and she would not give me my share of food; I had to find food for myself.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you ever been locked up? Because we have heard testimonies about abductees being locked up in a box.

Lady Sama: I have never been locked up in a box. I was not actually punished, but sometimes the woman was harsh with me and they gave me hard chores to do.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you assigned to any of the rebels as wife?

Lady Sama: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: After the first incident, did any of the rebels have sexual intercourse with you again?

Lady Sama: No, I was attached only to the woman that took care of me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that you were able to go back to your parents during the AFRC period; how were you able to go back?

Lady Sama: I was talking about Bo, here. By then, nobody was in the village. I came to Bo, here.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: When you came to Bo, did you find your parents?

Lady Sama: When I came to Bo, I was able to see my parents through the help of my former teacher who told me that my parents were in Bo, and he actually took me to them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us how you managed to leave the bush and come to Bo?

Lady Sama: When the AFRC came to power, they were going for us and bringing us to town. I was still with the rebels and my care taker when, at one time in Bo, I met my teacher who told me about my parents.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: During the ECOMOG intervention, the rebels came back and took you away. Is that true?

Lady Sama: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Where did they take you to?

Lady Sama: The day on which the intervention started, I left the rebels and came to my family. They went after me and enquired about me to my parents. They threatened that if I was not handed over to them, they would Kill my parents and burn their house.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: For how long were you with them?

Lady Sama: I was with them from 1997 to 2000.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that you came back with two children, who is the father of these children?

Lady Sama: Their father is a boy who was a trader; his name is Sama.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How old are they?

Lady Sama: The first one is three years and the other is eleven months.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you have them after or during the incident?

Lady Sama: My husband too was abducted; he went to my care taker and made arrangements with her. That's how our relationship started.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What is your condition like now?

Lady Sama: Praise be to God! Some times I get headache; but when my children get sick, I am worried.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us how you feel generally, are you angry?

Lady Sama: I feel distressed because my companions together with whom I went to school are now taking their WASCE exams; I cannot continue.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you received any medical attention?

Lady Sama: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you no discharges, no bleeding?

Lady Sama: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: When you were having your children, did you encounter any problems?

Lady Sama: I had no problems.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you spoken about your ordeal in detailed to anybody?

Lady Sama: I have not told anybody. Apart from my mother, the only other people I have told are personnel of the TRC.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What happened to your sister?

Lady Sama: My sister knew the terrain in which we were, so she escaped.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you seen her since then?

Lady Sama: I have seen her. She is still with her former husband and she has given birth to three other children.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you received any assistance from other NGO's?

Lady Sama: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you take part in any reintegration program?

Lady Sama: No. I was trying to enroll in one of the skills training institutes, but because of the lack of money, I could not. As for the children, my mother will take care of them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Is your husband still with you?

Lady Sama: I am not with my husband. I heard that he is in Kenema. He was also abducted.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How do you support yourself?

Lady Sama: I depend solely on my parents.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Finally, you have gone back to Bumpeh. How does the community there accept you?

Lady Sama: When I came, a lot of people came to the house and welcomed me. They thank me for taking care of myself and the children.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: For how long were you abducted; from 1994 to when?

Lady Sama: From 1994 to 2000.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Sama, you can now ask us questions.

Lady Sama: I want the TRC and the government to support me in order to learn a trade and to assist other girls, like me : who have suffered in the same way : to rebuild our lives again.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: From our records you are still young; you are only 22 years, and there is a lot you can do. We know that there are some NGO's which are offering these kinds of assistance. We will try and put you in line with some of these NGO's.

4th Witness: Lady Dikpama

The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Jow.

LADY DIKPAMA'S TESTIMONY

This is a very stressful thing to me. I cannot state, in English, the year in which the war started. However, it was during the fourth month in that year that we were attacked in our village; Gboyama. Yes! The attack on our village was in April; on the 4th day in that month. The village was attacked in the evening. I had prepared the evening meal and we had just finished eating when they attacked the village. The rebels surrounded the village and made sure that they held all the roads leading into and out of the village. After they had blockaded the roads, they then started shooting and setting fire to houses all over the village. My husband and I grabbed our children, my mother and father and we found our way out of the village. We went to a place where we normally went, during the day, to farm. It was about the raining season and we stayed in that place for quite some time. My mother fell ill and I gave her medical treatment. All of our children were around; they were all very young. We were there when we saw the rebels advancing towards us in large numbers; the rebels surrounded us. As soon as the rebels arrived at the place where we had gone into hiding, they arrested my husband. When I asked them to proffer a reason for the arrest of my husband, one of them replied: "You are asking us why we have arrested your husband? Your husband is a Kamajor and we are going to kill him". I told them that my husband was not a Kamajor and I pleaded with them not to kill him. They asked for the profession of my husband and I told them that my husband worked at PWD. They asked me about his work location and I told them that my husband worked on the roads in the chiefdom. I told them that that was what he did and that he had never been a Kamajor. The rebels said that they were going to kill him. My father, Jusu Komba, called one of the rebels and enquired about what my husband had done that he should deserve death. The rebel repeated that they were going to kill my husband. The old man pleaded with them not to kill him. The old man told the rebel that my husband was like a father to him and that they should kill him instead. The old man further told the rebel that since he was an old man, he would prefer to be killed so that the life of my husband is spared. He pleaded with the rebels to allow my husband to live so that he could take care of his children. The rebels could not be persuaded. The rebels asked my husband to lay prostrate and they used his machete to kill him. The rebels continuously hit my husband until his brains dashed out. The rebels tied my husband and said that they would make sure that he did not see his wife again. After that, they used the machete to cut the veins on the back of his leg. After they had killed my husband, a rebel turned to me and asked whether I was pleased with what he had done: "What do you say?" he asked. I told him that he had killed my husband and that my husband was not a Kamajor, and then he was asking me about what I had to say about it. I said to the rebel: "Look at all the little kids that I have". Hawa, who was the eldest child, was just nine years old; the rebels raped her right in my presence. She was devirginated. The rebels said that they were going to take Hawa along with them, and I asked: "You have killed my husband, and now you want to take my child away; if you take her away, who will help me?" They told me that I had to wait until the other children grew up in order that they would help me. When they were taking Hawa away, she was crying. I have another child whom I got after Hawa. He is called Vandí. He was also in school when the rebels attacked us. He was seven years old. Eventually, everybody went his or her own way. When we returned home, I told Vandí that I was going to send him back to school, though his father was dead. "God will provide", I said to myself. In the future, should he be educated, he will be in the position to fend for the home. By the grace of God, I will be empowered to support him. He is very clever. When he went for his training on the Koran, it didn't take long when his master told me that he, Vandí, had finished his training. He sat for his examination last year. He scored the grade that was set for admittance into Ahmaddiya Muslim Secondary school in Bo. I was informed that Vandí passed the examination, but at that time, I hadn't money to send him to school. We went together to look for somebody who could lend me some money, but I could not find anyone who was willing to lend me the money. This is the result of the war. I told Vandí to have faith in God and to wait for the appointed time. If it is the will of God that Vandí will go back to school, God will make it happen. I put my trust in God and I look up to Him. This is the end of my testimony.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that your husband was attacked because they thought he was a Kamajor?

Lady Dikpama: When they were working at PWD, they used to wear black t-shirt; that was the t-shirt the rebels met on him. That was why they said he was a Kamajor. The rebels accused my husband of being a Kamajor because of the t-shirt which he had on.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you know of any Kamajor in your village?

Lady Dikpama: There were no Kamajors.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us about the rebels in your village; were they in uniform?

Lady Dikpama: They were in combat fatigues.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were they with guns?

Lady Dikpama: They had many guns.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us about the rebel who killed your husband?

Lady Dikpama: There were a lot of them and I could not identify the one who killed him?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What language did they speak?

Lady Dikpama: The people who did this act spoke Mende; some were speaking other languages.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We know of instances when rebels asked people to sing and dance when they killed people; did they do that to you?

Lady Dikpama: I did not see that, but I forgot to mention something. After they had killed my husband, the rebels asked me to clap. A rebel told me that if I did not clap, I would also be killed. I told him that if it was the will of God, I would be dead, otherwise, God will judge. Then he raised his machete and wanted to hit me; but a commander presently came from the back and grabbed his arm. I told the commander that that man had killed my husband, and that he wanted to kill me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What did the commander do?

Lady Dikpama: Nothing.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You told us that your husband died; were you able to give him a fitting funeral after his death?

Lady Dikpama: No, I did not.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How long did you stay in that farm?

Lady Dikpama: As soon as my husband was killed, we left that place and went into the bush.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that your daughter was nine years old when she was raped; did you plead with the rebels on her behalf?

Lady Dikpama: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you have an idea why they did that to her?

Lady Dikpama: I cannot say; I have no idea.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they ask you to stand and witness the rape?

Lady Dikpama: They just caught her and laid her right by me, whilst I was crying.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you able to get your daughter back from the rebels?

Lady Dikpama: About three months ago, some announcements were made about abducted children. I was determined and I went into the bush and finally found her. She is staying with me now, but I found her with two children.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was she a bush wife?

Lady Dikpama: I cannot tell whether she was married. But I found her with two children. Today is the fourth day since I brought her back. She is confused and I am giving her time to come to her senses.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you giving her all the support?

Lady Dikpama: Yes, I am giving her the support I can afford. I even go out of the way to lend money in order to support her.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Will she be willing to talk to the TRC?

Lady Dikpama: The only problem now is that she doesn't appear to be too normal.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Dikpama, do you have any questions to ask the TRC?

Lady Dikpama: I don't have any questions. May be one concerning Hawa: The situation is this; I have brought Hawa with two children, now I don't even have a means of maintaining a livelihood. This is the situation; you can finish it for me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We have noted all the concerns you have raised; particularly the one about education for your son, Vandi. There are many other women like you who have told similar stories. In the report we are going to present to government, we will incorporate recommendations to improve the situation of people like you, your son and Hawa, but I want to suggest that Hawa needs immediate attention. She cannot wait for the conclusion of our report. There are a number of NGO's across the country, and they offer emotional and material support to girls like Hawa. Through the Regional Coordinator here, we will try and put you in line with some of these organizations. That is all I can say for now Dikpama. Have faith in the TRC.

1st Witness: Master Rokono

Comm. Bishop Humper – We called you here this afternoon because our Mandate is, among other things, to create an impartial history of the conflict in this country. At the conclusion of these hearings and the work in totality, the commission will submit its report in which it will make recommendations to the government and the international community. I want you to know that you are not in a court. You will share your experiences during the war with us; we represent your parents and elders. Feel free and relax your minds; we are here to support you and to journey with you throughout your life. At the Lome peace agreement, the RUF and other warring factions came together and thought it fit to establish the TRC. Seven commissioners were appointed; four nationals and three internationals. Here, with me, are commissioners Professor John Kamara; a national commissioner, Satang Jow; an international commissioner, and Bishop Humper, who is talking to you. I am the chairman of the commission and I am a national commissioner. There is another team which is in Port Loko, and there are some other commissioners on that team. With your mother, father and grand father here with you, you are at home. Feel free and talk to us. We will be the last people to take you to court; our ultimate goal is to make you become a full grown person with all the potentials of helping this nation. At the end of all this, we will ask you what you want to become that will make you a great gentleman of this nation.

MASTER ROKONO'S TESTIMONY

Before the war broke out in our part of the country, I was in class one in a school in Mattru. We were on holidays in a village around Mattru when the rebels attacked us. The rebels killed some people and they abducted us. They asked us to join them and, wherever they went, they took us along with them. They were stealing from some people and cutting off some people's hands and arms. They trained us and gave us guns; they punished me a lot. We would attack places, kill people and take some of the people away. We also took creatures away during such attacks. At one time while we were in the bush, we went short of food and water and two of us were sent to fetch water. At another time, they sent us again and we ran away from them; we took our guns with us. As we were trying to escape, we went to a town because we were thirsty and we wanted to drink water. The people in the town asked where we were coming from, and we told them that we had been abducted by rebels, but that we had escaped and were trying to run away. They tied us and laid us in the sun, but some people pleaded for us and we were released. As we were going, we met some other set of rebels and they wanted to kill us; we explained our story to them and we joined them. We went to a town where rebels and soldiers were fighting and we took advantage of the situation and ran away; I went to my home town. When I got to my home town, my mother decided that I should go back to school and I started going to school.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We can imagine what you went through. You said that they punished you a lot; what kind of punishment did they give to you?

Master Rokono: They would tie us and, at other times, flog us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How many of your type were with them?

Master Rokono: Just two of us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Amongst the group, were there girls?

Master Rokono: Girls were there.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is it that whenever they went to attack those villages they captured girls?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What were they saying about the country?

Master Rokono: I cannot remember.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do you say you are going to school; what class are you in now?

Master Rokono: Class six.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What would you want to become when you grow up? Or you have not thought about that yet; you are waiting until you finish your NPSE?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: When the rebels attacked your village, how many of you, young boys, were abducted.

Master Rokono: Two of us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: And the two of you stayed together right through?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The other boy, what's his name?

Master Rokono: David Sandy.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You live in the same village?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that when you were with the rebels they did a lot of bad thing; can you tell us some?

Master Rokono: They would burn people's houses, kill people, loot property and take people away.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you say anything to them on such occasions?

Master Rokono – No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said you were trained; can you tell us some of the training you went through?

Master Rokono: We were made to parade for long periods; they tied us and asked us to roll.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you trained to use guns?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: On what occasions did you use the guns?

Master Rokono: On many occasions.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Who was your commander?

Master Rokono: Corporal Gborie.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was it a nick name?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: That was what they called him.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know the names of the other rebels?

Master Rokono: I don't know.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How did you relate with them?

Master Rokono: We called them corporals.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What was your rank?

Master Rokono: I had no rank; I was only a follower.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you, at any time, take part in amputations?

Master Rokono: I did not amputate, but I killed people.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How did you feel at the time you were doing it?

Master Rokono: We were forced to kill.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you, at any time, object?

Master Rokono: Sometimes I did, but, at such time, they would threaten to kill me if I didn't obey their orders

Comm. Kamara: I can imagine how young you were in 1994; so the story you are telling us took place when you were barely six years old. According to your statement, you were at one time forced to open a woman's belly?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: How soon after you were abducted were you made to do that horrible act?

Master Rokono: It was after some time.

Comm. Kamara: When you say some time, can you guess whether it was a year after or two years?

Master Rokono: It was after about a year.

Comm. Kamara: After a year; when you were just seven years?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: Has your mind ever gone back to that time?

Master Rokono: It used to.

Comm. Kamara: How have you felt whenever you thought of that?

Master Rokono: I don't feel good about it.

Comm. Kamara: Can you remember the person who made you do that?

Master Rokono: I don't.

Comm. Kamara: You say you are now in school; you are 15 and you are in class six. How do you find going to school?

Master Rokono: I have now come to realize that where we were was a bad place.

Comm. Kamara: Now, you are happy at school?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: Have some of those friends you've made at school got the same experience like you?

Master Rokono: No.

Comm. Kamara: There are no other young boys, in the school, who have gone through your kind of experience?

Master Rokono: No.

Comm. Kamara: Do the other boys and girls in the school know you have gone through this experience?

Master Rokono: Yes, they do.

Comm. Kamara: And they encourage you?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: Do you find it easy to learn?

Master Rokono: No.

Comm. Kamara: When did you start going to school? Can you remember when your mother said you should start going to school? Was it during Johnny Paul Koroma's time or when was it?

Master Rokono: I cannot remember.

Comm. Kamara: Thank you very much for your information, Master Rokono.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did they give you drugs?

Comm. Bishop Humper: They never gave me anything of the sort.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Can you remember some of the names of the rebels?

Master Rokono: I can remember only one, I have forgotten the rest.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Who is that?

Master Rokono: Lt. Sorie.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you hear any name like Akim?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you hear any name like Issa Sesay?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mosquito?

Master Rokono: Yes, but it was only Mosquito whom I did not see.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have been asking you questions to help us in writing our report, now you are going to ask us questions or make suggestions as to what you think the government should do so that young boys like you will never again be victims of war in the history of this country. Do you have any questions?

Master Rokono: I don't have any questions.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In the written statement, you said that your parents were killed by RUF; were you told or did you witness it?

Master Rokono: I was told by people.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: So your parents are no longer alive?

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you say that your parents were killed?

Master Rokono: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Who is taking care of your education?

Comm. Bishop Humper: My grandmother sent me to school, but she is dead. My uncle now takes care of me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is your uncle working? If yes, where?

Master Rokono: Yes, at the Education office.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What message do you have for your brothers out there? What message do you have for this country?

Master Rokono: The only thing I have to tell them is that they should stop doing bad things; we should all come together.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Are you physically fit?

Master Rokono: No, not much.

Comm. Bishop Humper: When you came back, were you taken to the hospital?

Master Rokono: No, nothing like that happened.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You have had the courage to come to this commission, there are some of your brothers out there, what is your message to them?

Master Rokono: The only message I have for them is that they should stop doing evil acts; we should all come together and be one.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What would you like people to do for you?

Master Rokono: The only help I want from any source is help to go through my education.

2nd Witness: Master Bowanag

Comm. Bishop Humper: We welcome you to this commission. We are a family you can relate to. We have three commissioners here, Commissioner Satang Jow of the Gambia, Commissioner Kamara and myself, the Chairman of this commission, Commissioner Humper. This is a very big day. Initially, you said that you will do something before we do anything; you said that you will sing a song. Are you ready now to sing the song? There is also a song called "Promise" which you said you will sing for us.

Master Bowanag: {Sang two songs}

Comm. Bishop Humper: In your songs, you spoke on behalf of all your brothers. Your songs will go out not only for this country, but for the entire world. Feel relaxed; all the commissioners and staff here are your people. Say whatever you want to say to us this afternoon; this is the only opportunity you have. You have told us so much in your songs. So, now, tell us what you went through during the war; we are now listening to you.

MASTER BOWANAG'S TESTIMONY

At one time, while I was living with my father and step mother in Kenema, my step mother sent me to fetch water. At that time, my father was not around. My step mother was used to maltreating me; she would send me out of the house; to stay in the street, etc. When I went to the stream to fetch water on that fateful day, I heard gun shots. When I heard the gun shots, I went to the direction from which the sound of the gun supposedly came from in order to see what was happening. I went there and the rebels grabbed me and asked me to go with them. They captured a lot of other children and took us along Hangha road; we headed for Hangha and finally got to Bo Njeila. After four days, we got to their base. There was a lady called Monica to whom we were handed for training. After training, they gave us guns. When we went to the bush to be trained - it was at Zogoda - we were there for a year. We were given training in what we referred to as 'firing squad' and we were also trained how to dodge bullets coming from the enemy. Some of the children who were with us died during the training. There was a hole over which a rope was hung. During the training, we were requested to go over that hole; swinging on the rope. If one got tired and could no longer hold onto the rope, one would fall into the hole and die. The hole served as the grave of victims who died during that process. There were five holes, and when about twenty children would have fallen into one hole, the rebels would close that hole and go on to use the other hole. Some of us endured that training, but some could not. A lot of children died during that training. When the newly captured children came, I was in sympathy with them. One day, I was asked to go with one of the newly captured boys to fetch water, and I proposed to the boy that we should run away. They normally sent us around with security so that we would not run away. The boy hit the man, who was sent to keep watch on us, on his head with the bucket. While they were struggling, I used the gun to secure me and my friend. We went into the bush and we stayed there for fifteen days. At one moment, he said that he wanted to drink water and I told him that I did not have water. He then asked me to kill him. I told him that he had not done anything and therefore I had no reason to kill him. However, he insisted that I should kill him or else he would kill me. I then shot him, but he didn't die on the spot. As I was walking away, he called out to me; he shot at himself. Before he died, he said that I should always remember him and that I should bury his body. So I covered his body with leaves and continued my journey. I took six days in the bush. When I went onto the road, I saw the Kamajors and I went into the bush again. As I went back into the bush, I saw another group of Kamajors who grabbed me and asked me to lead them to the rebels or they would kill me. I told them that we should follow the route on the map which led through the hills because if we followed the straight path, the rebels would see us and they would kill us. I told them that the rebels were using the technique of placing empty containers on the way and once one stepped on them, they would know that someone was coming and they would way lay and kill the intruder. I led them through that hilly path and we came upon the rebels and attacked them. After that, we came back to the Kamajor zone and I was handed over to a David Johnny. Owing to the maltreatment the Kamajors gave to me, I escaped and went to Dambala where I stayed with a lady. It was at that point that I heard of the Unaccompanied Street Children's program. When I enquired, the lady told that me I would have to come to Bo in order to know more about the program.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you for sharing this testimony with us. We want to get one thing clear. Which was the first to capture you; the rebels or Kamajors?

Master Bowanag: The rebels were the first to capture me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you say your step-mother had already asked you out?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Was she in town when the rebels came?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you hear anything about her when you were in the bush?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You said you landed in the hands of the Kamajors?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Can you tell us why they were maltreating you?

Master Bowanag: They claimed that I was a spy for the rebels; that's why they were maltreating me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Apart from killing your friend in the bush, did you kill any other person?

Master Bowanag: No Sir.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We have heard your story and we believe your songs will reach out to all Sierra Leoneans. Did you say you were living in Kenema when you were abducted?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you say your father was out of the country or out of Kenema when this incident happened?

Master Bowanag: Yes, he was out of Kenema.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said you were living with your step-mother, where was your mother?

Master Bowanag: My mother was in Bo; she and my father had separated.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us more about Libya?

Master Bowanag: That was a camp for ex-combatants.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many children were in that camp?

Master Bowanag: Many.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were there young girls?

Master Bowanag: Many.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What were they doing?

Master Bowanag: Some cooked, some were women of the commandos, and some were being raped.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you there when they were raped?

Master Bowanag: Yes. There was also a house called “Iron house”, that was where they took pregnant women to burn them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You mentioned Monica, what was her role?

Master Bowanag: She trained the children how to fight; she would take them to the bush?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell what she was like?

Master Bowanag: She spoke Krio but she also spoke Mende, she is now at Daru camp.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you seen her since?

Master Bowanag – The last time I saw her was when we came for training.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Apart from Monica, who else trained you?

Master Bowanag: Super man, Mingo and Mosquito who originally started training me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us what type of training was given to you?

Master Bowanag: They were training us so that we could go to the war front and fight?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that some children died during that training; can you tell us how many children died?

Master Bowanag: Two hundred of us went for the training, but only one hundred and fifty of us came back.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How were those children buried?

Master Bowanag: They were covered in those holes into which they fell, and that was their grave.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You mentioned Zogoda; tell us about Zogoda.

Master Bowanag: That was a place where advanced training was taking place. A lot of people died there also. They trained us how to escape bombs and bullets. They would fire live bullets and bombs and you were expected to try and dodge them otherwise you would be killed.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: At your age, you should not have the kind of experience you have just told us about; unfortunately you were in that situation. In accordance with your songs, I hope it will help other children not to be in this same situation : as you have just explained to us – which you found yourself in. You said you were sent to fetch water then you had gun shots, instead of running back to the house, you went to investigate. Why did you react that way?

Master Bowanag: I did that because my brother was at home and on my way going to look out for him, I met the rebels.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So they took you to Bo Njeila, to Hangha, to Libya; after training, you went to Zogoda. How long was this training?

Master Bowanag: Six months at Libya and six months at Zogoda.

Comm. Kamara: The friend whom you advised to escape; were you all trained together?

Master Bowanag – No, he was one of those who were newly abducted.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: After the Zogoda training, did you participate in any rebel attacks?

Master Bowanag: We used to go on attacks, but I would stay behind. Whenever we were sent to loot, they would send one Burkinabe soldier with us; we had seven Burkinabe soldiers with us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How many such expeditions can you remember; either looting or killing?

Master Bowanag: About ten times.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Did you witness a lot of killing and looting?

Master Bowanag: Yes. They were also burning houses and looting at some point; we had no bosses with us, so at that time, I was shot on my foot.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Your friend asked you to shoot him and you refused. How many guns did you have?

Master Bowanag: He had one and I also had one.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And because he threatened to kill you, you decided to shoot him?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: Did you really want to kill him?

Master Bowanag: No, that was why I shot him on the leg.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You buried him?

Master Bowanag: I did not dig a hole, I only cut leaves and covered his body.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: I want you to make clear your journey to the rebels with the Kamajors.

Master Bowanag: I told them that we should use a bye pass route up the hills since camp Zogoda was in the middle. I did not want the rebels to take notice of us when we would be approaching. If they did, they would kill us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Where was camp Zogoda?

Master Bowanag: Near Zimmi.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How did you discover the program in Bo?

Master Bowanag: A woman whom I met at Dambala told me about the program for war affected children, and I was advised to come to Bo.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Zimmi and camp Zogoda are two extreme points, so how did you get there?

Master Bowanag: We walked.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Can you tell us some of the incidents you encountered on the way?

Master Bowanag: We met rebels on our way when we were going towards the north, but the Kamajors advised that we leave them alone as we hadn't much ammunition.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: At camp Zogoda, did you meet with Foday Sankoh?

Master Bowanag: Yes. Red Cross were also coming there in their helicopter; they brought medicines and ammunition for us and we, in turn, gave them diamonds.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Did you say that Red Cross was supplying ammunition to rebels?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Did they land at any spot?

Master Bowanag: They would come to our camp and use our landing area, but they did not quite land; they lowered their helicopter and used a rope to send down medicines and ammunition to us, and we, in turn, did likewise to send diamonds up to them.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How did the diamonds get there?

Master Bowanag: By a rope.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have asked you a lot of questions; do you have any questions to ask?

Master Bowanag: When you wanted to bring this TRC program to this district, did you sensitize the people?

Comm. Bishop Humper: Yes, we did.

Master Bowanag: People are saying that the TRC and the Special Court are the same, and if you testify at the TRC, you might end up being arrested.

Comm. Bishop Humper: There are thousands of your kinds out there, but people like you will get the others to know that they can come here and tell their stories and they will not be arrested. What do you want us to write in our recommendation; to tell the government?

Master Bowanag: I want to tell government to reach out to those children, like me, who have suffered; some have even suffered more. Government should open a center because some children are rejected when they go to their people; they are called rebels. I want them to help us with our education. In my case, for instance, my head master has been threatening that I will not take the NPSE mock exams because my program did not pay for it. I am asking the government to help me go through my education. As for me, I don't want to be with my parents because they don't want me to become educated and be what I want to be in future in order that I can take care of myself. I don't have even school materials. This is all I have to say.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: what is your state of health?

Master Bowanag: I am not sick, my present plight is that I lose memory of things easily.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Since your return, have you ever been to see a doctor?

Master Bowanag: I don't have anybody to take me to a doctor.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you had any counselling before coming to talk to the TRC?

Master Bowanag: Yes, the Unaccompanied Child Protection Group did counsel me.

Comm. Kamara: The two songs you sang just now, who composed them?

Master Bowanag: Myself.

Comm. Kamara: Are you interested in music?

Master Bowanag: Yes.

Comm. Kamara: Do you have the opportunity to pursue this course?

Master Bowanag: I don't, if I have the opportunity I will be happy.

Comm. Kamara: When did you compose those songs?

Master Bowanag: When I was with Talking Drums Studio.

Comm. Kamara: If you are with them, why won't they help you?

Master Bowanag: They won't do it.

3rd Witness: Master Japo

Comm. Bishop Humper – You are welcome. We want you to know that here, in this room, you have mothers, fathers and grand fathers. I will first of all introduce the commissioners to you. We have Commissioner Jow from the Gambia, Commissioner Kamara and me, the Chairman, Commissioner Humper; we are both Sierra Leoneans. You heard about the Lome Peace Accord that gave rise to TRC so that people like you will go back to your people and join the society; our law in this country does not allow children to be sent to jail. I want you to know that we know much more than you do, but we want you to tell us all that happened to you during the war as it will be useful to us in the writing of our report.

MASTER JAPO'S TESTIMONY

I am retired Capt. Master Japo; they used to call me "War Blood". I was born in Bo in 1984. My mother and father were in Bumpeh when this war started; I was in Bo, here, going to school. One day, my friend and I went in search of food at Kabama; we went to pick mangoes. It was then that I heard that people were packing out of the town; little did we know that there were rebels and SSD'S in the area. When Foday Sankoh initially came, he had SSD men and one SLA. My friend advised that we rush back to town. As we were going to town, we saw some men who had dread locks and others had red caps; the ones who had red caps spoke Krio. They asked us to carry ammunition boxes. We complained that the boxes were heavy, but they said that if we complained, we would be killed. We arrived in a village where many people had been captured, and there was fire on many of the houses. When we dropped the boxes, I saw my mother and father; they were naked. There were also other people there. They ordered all the women to have sex with their fathers; and all the men were ordered to have sex with their mothers. I shouted out that I had never done that. They asked me to identify my mother. When we got to the top of the bush, they put them all in a house, sprinkled petrol on the house and set the house on fire. They asked us, who had carried the boxes, to follow them. I had no relatives left, so I went with them. We walked and came to a place called Mosenesi junction where they said we should join them. They eventually took us to Rutile where the mining was done. There was a restaurant where I saw a Pa, who was not too old, and a woman. They then said that they had captured boys because boys were needed. There was no way for me to escape. They said that if we attempted to escape or do otherwise than obey their instructions, we would be killed. That Pa had a country cloth on, and he asked us to sit down so that he could address us. He told us that he was taking us to a place, and that we would never see the place where we were again. Whilst we were there, the Guineans who were here had heard that rebels were at Sierra Rutile; the Pa then asked us to go to Moriba town; down the market place. We were there for a while and one of my friends escaped. The following morning, when they did not see my friend, they said that I was a brilliant boy and that I was going to join the revolution. I said "No", but they said that I would be a gun carrier, so I agreed. They moved with us and we walked to Taninahun junction. They asked us to use the road that leads to Freetown; I had never been to Freetown. We got to a place where, according to them, was our destination. The lady and the old man asked me to help do the washing up of cooking utensils so that in the morning we would move on. We came to Bo and then to Kailahun; that was a very strange experience. They then selected me and my friend, Abdul, and told us that we would be going to Liberia. They showed me something yellow and said that I was sick, but I said I was not. They then struck me on the leg. With that kind of experience, I became hostile and I hated my friend whom I had loved. After we had finished eating, they told us that some people would take us from Senegal Park to Burkina Faso. We travelled all day and night, and they told us that that would be our final destination. They told us that they were planning a dangerous war in Sierra Leone and that we were going to be trained as spies. I then saw two fresh human heads on a stick and I also witness the death of children. We were told to run. There was food, but since I was used to eating rice, I could not eat anything other than rice. I was then prepared to fight because I had lost both parents. They then gave me, other boys and big men marks on the sides of our stomachs. Each morning, we went jogging; at times we would run and never get tired. There were times when we would be in the bush for long hours, and there were times when we would squat with our guns on our shoulders for about five hours.

One day, they told that they were going to teach us to swim with a rope. During that exercise, some men died. When it was time for me to swing on the rope, I prayed that the souls of my late parents be with me. They pushed me and I held on to the rope till I crossed over. They then said that they would take us to Liberia and that we would be there and then move on to Kailahun. It was in Kailahun that I met Sam Bockarie. General Mosquito requested that I become his boy; I was to be responsible for washing his uniform. However, the Pa said that I was a trained man and that I should be in the jungle; by then we were trying to enter into Koribondo.

We walked a long distance, captured Koribondo and we were based there. It was then agreed that I was a brilliant boy and, as a result of that, I was sent on a mission to capture a village. It was 6 in the morning and I made a 'one lock' ambush. I went to one door and knocked; a Pa opened and when he saw me he was afraid; he locked the door. I then whistled to give a signal to my colleagues and we overran the town. We went to several villages and took them. I was then a small boy, but I considered myself a big man. I had a commander who was called Ibrahim Koroma, a.k.a "Flash". There was another one who did not talk and did not take bath. Whenever it wanted to rain, he was afraid; since that was my terrain, I would manoeuvre with him when the clouds showed signs of rain

In 1996, they told us that our men were coming to join us in order to capture Bo. One of my men, Richie, who was a trained SLA, said that he would be with me, and that I should not be afraid of anything. We hit New London in Bo. We were inside the brigade, yet the kids did not know anything about us; they gave us food. When the Burkinabe was arrested, we changed our tactics. We had an identification card which was the two Leones note. We had a mark which we were given upon completion of training. We hit Bo, but we did not succeed; we pulled out and went to Kenema. We went to a place called Sembehun junction, and It was agreed that I should be a spy. I went to parties and danced all night. I watched them carefully; I stayed with them and sent news to my colleagues. The first time I did that, my men came and they hit, but they did not succeed. They came again a second time. We agreed that we would attack Kpetema, and that if we settled there, we would be able to get troops from Liberia. They asked me to attack Kpetema. They agreed that they would add Bobor Pain and another boy, both of whom hailed from that area, to the attacking force that would be led by me. We hit and we succeeded; we abducted the men in the palm wine booth and asked them to join us.

They asked me to attack another village, and I asked for weapons. There were fifteen of us. We hit again and I succeeded. I was then promoted to the rank of Lieutenant. I was then a big man in the jungle. I had no one to look back to, so I fought without fear. We fought and took many villages. One evening, General Mosquito came and said that he had heard of my successes. I then had my boy who later died when he was with me; I asked him to hold my weapon while I climbed a tree where I could not be seen; and I asked him to go and tell the other men to come at night because I was keeping watch on the town. I told myself that we would succeed in that town. The people had come from prayers, and I had thoroughly studied the town and had found my escape route in case my movements are found out. By then my boy had taken the message that I had entered into the town. There were Nigerian soldiers hiding in trenches and I read their maps; so I sent a message to my men saying that they should come at night. One Ecomog soldier suspected our movements and he was presently killed. That day, many men died; out of forty five men, fifteen died. We sent for more men, but they refused to send us men, so we went back and reported the matter to Sankoh. Sankoh said that we should not destroy his mission, so he sent us back to fight. We fought for three days; we took all the ammunitions of Ecomog and we used the road that leads to Daru, from Freetown. On our way, we saw a truck and we laid an ambush; it drove into the ambush, we shot at the tyres and it somersaulted. We took everything that was in the truck and we moved on. When the people of the village heard gun shots, they knew that we had come. Guineans were there. I had a shot very close to my ears and, as I turned round, I saw a huge man; I told my men that we should pull out. As we were pulling out, we saw a truck and those who were in it told us that they were going to Magbosie. I was told that I should capture that village in order to get promotion in the jungle. There was a Lt. Jongopie and others who wanted to know me. By then I was a small boy and everybody wanted to know me. We were then in control of Magbosie right unto Okra Hill; we made a bye pass route from Magbosie to Okra Hill. Magbosie was called Foday Sankoh's garage; there were a lot of cars there. We were there for a long time; people did not realize what we were doing; but in Mile 91 and the surrounding villages; the Temne area, people knew that rebels were there. We decided to start looking for women; we laid ambushes for vehicles. Lungi and the surrounding villages were my area; when you approach the town from the direction of Bo, the first storey building which faces you was where I had my office. I captured five SLA soldiers. I am not denying that I kill or burnt houses, but I never killed an innocent person. If one asked me not to kill him or her, I would ask that person to join the revolution.

Since we were big men in the revolution, I advised that we take a move to capture Daru. Some of my colleagues said that Daru was an SLA base, but my bosses told me that I should not be afraid, so I went on. I left Koribondo and I never went there again. We went to Kenema and slept at Labamba hotel. We had some big men whom we sold diamonds to and we asked them to help us sleep in the hotel with the understanding that we would leave the following morning. We all went on board a truck and sealed it as though we were taking supply items. We did not enter into the town; we disembarked half way to the town. I knew the zone well, even the routes that lead to Guinea and Liberia. The first time I saw Charles Taylor, I knew that he was a Jew. Alimamy Balay came from Guinea and bribed us to sell diamonds to him; they bribed us to sell diamonds in exchange for food and wearing apparels. There was an air field so helicopters came with food for us. We made contacts with South Africans who gave us fuel and we gave them diamonds. Alimamy Balay, Charles Taylor and Poto all sent representatives.

The revolution took a different turn; some big men came and started using me, so I went to tell Pa Sankoh. He told me that it was peace time so I should try to fend for myself. We captured some men together with whom we did things in common; we would attack together. We opened a mining company and the South Africans joined us; they would go to Freetown and load fuel and land on our air strip. Ecomog refused to join us, so we gathered our full squad and decided to drive Ecomog out by force; we removed Ecomog finally. Bunumbu, Daru and all the other places were free for us, and we decided to enter into Tongo. There was a man called Banya who was born and bred in Tongo; we convinced him and he joined us. We gave him a lot of dollars; the South Africans were behind us; Charles Taylor, Alimamy Balay and Poto were all supporting us. Then we had a good force; we fought for the whole day, but they repelled us. We attacked again and took over Tongo. We asked Banya to take one area and we asked Rambo to join him and we warned them not to allow anybody to take the area from them. When we captured the headquarters, we launched our attacks from there. When we found our diamonds, the big men would search us and take everything away from us. We fought, we killed and we decided to leave Tongo. We captured Bunumbu and there was a fellow called Bobor Pain; that was where he hailed from, so we asked him to lead us. We hit Bunumbu once and we failed. We hit again and we succeeded. There were soldiers in that terrain; we did not spend a month there when we were attacked. We fought and burnt an armoured car. Ecomog came and we burnt their military truck. Another set came and sprayed us; that caused much bodily harm to many of our men. We resolved that we would not leave Bunumbu until the last man was killed. So we decided to convince the soldiers in Daru. Papay Sankoh made an arrangement and asked us to enter in the early hours of the morning; we attacked and took Daru. We were there until we had a programme to enter into Liberia for further training. We shook hands with Charles Taylor and other big men. However, all that we had was taken away from us; what we had was claimed to be government property. We were fighting; therefore we decided to go our several ways in order to fend for ourselves. We went directly towards the Guinean border; into Mallehany. Any rebel who did not trust himself to be strong would not survive. We were there until we heard gun shots in the bush one morning. We then advanced to see what was happening and we saw that two fowls were fighting for rice and there were two men with plastic shoes. We asked them to identify themselves, but there was no response from them. When two of my men rushed towards them, they were gunned down; there were only three of us left then. We left a boy at the scene as a camouflage, hoping that if they saw the boy they would think that we had left. Seven Kamajors led by their commander, Sidique, came from the bush. I told one of my colleagues to go up the hill and I laid on the floor; I instructed that we should pick them one after the other. As they attempted to take the rice, we shot at them; we killed them one after the other as they came out to take the rice. They wanted to dodge, but we were up the hill and we were using motherly invectives. We were there when some other men came, disguised as rebels, and when my personal body guard shouted “Identify”, they shot and killed him. I then retreated, but one of my men had RPG so I called out and, when those men turned towards me, I launched the bomb at them.

We went to another village where we were captured; they stripped us and each man gave us a hundred strokes of the cane. The Kamajors left us with five men to keep watch on us. I told my colleague that I had no gun and that I was wounded, so he should help and save me as I had saved him on many occasions. I told him that as a trained man, I could open the door to the room in which we were placed. I had a swollen foot as a result of bullet wounds, so I held the door and my boy helped me to open it. We killed the first two Kamajors whom we saw. My body guard then took the guns of the Kamajor guards and since they were heavily drugged, they knew nothing; we gunned them down and took their guns. We met some men on our way and we exchanged our usual codes; the ULIMO boys then recognized me and I identified myself. I was dumped into a hole where there was a boar constrictor. I initially thought that it was a human being and I beckoned to it. When I realised that it was a snake, I ran out of the hole and I went to a farm house. People were at the farm house. I opened a bullet, put it in water and rubbed it on my foot; I was hoping that my flesh would split open and the bullet would come out. My boy was still with me and he urged me to move on. What bothered me most was the treatment I was getting from my bosses; all they gave me were capsules. I was getting fed up when they came with a pen knife and removed the bullet. My wound started fettering and the foot was getting rot, but I still held on to my gun; I not afraid of anything in this world. We then went to Bunumbu again; I was captured again and I was beaten thoroughly. I wanted to leave the movement, but I had to go on because I had no relatives. I went back to Tongo; we mined diamonds and did sober business. We were in Tongo when Balay came with Lansana conteh’s son. He came to get men who would launch an attack on Guinea. He said that there was eight hundred thousand Leones for each fighter who would be involved in that deal. We left Tongo and went to the air field from where we took off and went to Bunumbu. There was a road that led to Guinea, so we went by that road and we were based somewhere around Guinea. We did not understand the terrain so we took children’s school uniforms and the teachers’ uniforms too. We decided that we were going to cross over into Guinea, so we tied ourselves to drums and we crossed the river over to Gegedu; there about five hundred of us. We wore those school uniforms and told a lie that we were school children, but they suspected us. We took another strategy; we dressed as though we were going to the night club, but our presence was suspected due to the way in which we spent money. They didn’t know that we had our bomb carriers with us; it was a risky programme. There was a boy whom we asked to show us the terrain; as he pointed to the direction we were asking for, they killed him because if we had allowed that boy to go back that would have been a problem. We sat by the bank of the river, waiting for 6 a.m. The Guineans had three groups; soldiers, police and vigilantes. When we arrived, people were praying, so we decided that somebody should enter into the Mosque and take the imams gown which we would use. Whilst we were on this mission, some of our men were cooking; we went back later and ate. When we entered into the town, the police were sleeping. We tried to enter quietly, but they suspected us so we decided to enter with force; we put on our full combat fatigues. For three days and nights, we were engaged in active combat. We crawled close to them and one of our men hit the barracks. We challenged men no matter how huge they were. The Guinean soldiers had a filthy armoured car. However, our Generals were greedy. We were on a hilly side and when we shot at them, it got to them, but when they shot at us, it did not reach us. When they came close to us, we shot at the armoured car. They therefore brought together all their three forces. We had eight Generals; no child died in that battle, all of those who died, on our side, were big men. I went into one house and took out a box. When I opened it, it was full of money. Major Trust Me asked me to give him the box, but I refused. However, my boss ordered me to give it to him and I did; but he was not satisfied. We went to Karefa Smart’s hospital and we succeeded in opening it, but whoever attempted to jump over that gutter was fired; major Trust Me was fired and his guts came out. We continued to fight. When one of them saw me, we shot at each other several times. His cap fell down, and when he was trying to retrieve it, I took note of him and that was his end. That night, we left Sierra Leone for Guinea.

If you attempted to leave Tongo in order to come and participate in the disarmament programme, you were in trouble. Some Generals started harassing me because of my women. One night, I had a dream; in that dream, somebody told me to go and the person promised to be with me. The following morning, I took my gun and left. On my way, I saw a jeep filled with some of our men, I hid from them and when they had gone past me, I shot and killed them. When the others heard the two gun shots, I was in danger, so I escaped and walked on to Mano junction. It was a problem to enter into the town; I thought that they were going to kill me. I was the first man who came to be disarmed. I asked for medical treatment, but they made no effort; I asked for benefit, nothing happened; they said that I was a child so they sent me to CARITAS.

The day on which I got to CARITAS, they asked me to go into a vehicle, but since I still had drugs in my system and I became outrageous. I was taken to the 34 hospital and I was given some drugs in order that I could sleep. When I woke up, I felt better. They tried to trace one of my aunts.

I entered for the BECE exams and Tucker paid 45 thousand Leones, out of his pocket, for me. When I went to the DDR office, they treated me shabbily; IRC is worse. Should I become somebody, it is through the help of Steven Tucker; he does everything for me.

I thank God and I thank you all.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Master Japo, we thank you for your testimony. We know that you went through a lot of troubles unduly. Although we believe every word that you have spoken, we will, as part of the procedure, ask you questions in order to make clear some of the points you have raised. What one thing it was that moved you to join the RUF?

Master Japo: I had no relative again.

Comm. Kamara: You spoke of the Foday Sankoh garage; did you take part in the massacre which gave that place its name?

Master Japo: I am neither denying nor am I acquiescing, but any time there is war, there must be death tolls.

Comm. Kamara: Did you take part in that massacre which gave that place its name?

Master Japo: Yes, I was there.

Comm. Kamara: You spoke about a fight over rice, you said people were killed on either side, how many?

Master Japo: Three on our side and four on their side.

Comm. Kamara: You also said that Alimamy Balay and Lansana Conteh's son came to recruit you and they gave you some money, how much?

Master Japo: Any man who went and returned, and if the mission was successful, would be given eight thousand Leones.

Comm. Kamara: You spoke of Karefa Smart's hospital; where is that?

Master Japo: Near the bank.

Comm. Kamara: Where is that?

Master Japo: Gegedu.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Whilst in the RUF, you rose to the rank of captain, and you had your own unit, tell us something about the command structure within the RUF.

Master Japo: We were in groups of five headed by mosquito and, later, by Eagle.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you in the top command structure?

Master Japo: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you speak to people like Foday Sankoh?

Master Japo: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you receive salary?

Master Japo: No, what you grabbed was what you ate. A very tough man from Liberia, Poto and another man from Kenema sold our items for us, and they would take needed items back to us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You spoke of drugs given to you, did you take other drugs?

Master Japo: Yes, soberly; there were different types.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How were those drugs acquired?

Master Japo: People with whom we did business outside the country brought them for us; without those drugs, we couldn't work.

Comm. Kamara: Do you know of any instance in which the International Red Cross came to any base to give arms and ammunitions?

Master Japo: We were in a bad zone, you could neither come out nor enter; you would be asked to go back.

Comm. Kamara: Can you tell us a little bit about how you captured Koribondo?

Master Japo: We went in and spied on them; we left all our uniforms and ammunitions outside. After that, we entered into the town. It was at Lungi that we planned to enter into Koribondo.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What happened there; were people killed; were houses burnt?

Master Japo: It was a war; all that should happen.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you ever go to camp Zogoda?

Master Japo: Oh! I forgot all my camps.

Leader of Evidence: The year you were captured, was it the same year you were sent to Burkina Faso?

Master Japo: No, the following year, 1995.

Leader of Evidence: How long did you stay there?

Master Japo: About seven months.

Leader of Evidence: How many small boys were there?

Master Japo: Many; about fifty.

Leader of Evidence: Did Foday Sankoh come to see you?

Master Japo: Yes, he came to spur us on.

Leader of Evidence: The drugs they were giving to you, did they give it to you continually?

Master Japo: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were given dedrugged in Freetown; where?

Master Japo: At a hospital.

Leader of Evidence: Do you still feel like taking drugs?

Master Japo: Yes, but I don't take any other drug other than marijuana.

Leader of Evidence: So you were Sankoh's CSO until he got arrested in Nigeria?

Master Japo: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know anything about Zambians?

Master Japo: No.

Comm. Bishop Humper: This was quite an exercise; you are not only helping small children, but also the nation as a whole. What questions or recommendations do you have for the government?

Master Japo: I don't have any support now except from this man who is helping me. As for the NGO's, they are not helping in any way. I am appealing to the government to help me, I want to learn; I am not happy with the trade I am learning right now, I don't like it, but my aunt with whom I am staying is poor.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say you have no permanent place?

Master Japo: Yes, my aunt lives in a single room and we are about twenty of us who live in that house. I have to go into the bush and get wood which I split to sell. I get help from Tucker; I sometimes knock on his door late at night for food. He has to go looking for me all over these days; he was not happy about how and where he met me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: If you want this commission to send a message to the government, in its report, concerning children in this country, what would that be?

Master Japo: There should be no war in this country any more; children have suffered. I was living with one man, but his wife harassed me; she works at IRC and they are supposed to protect us. My stature does not portray how much I suffer. I depend on Tucker largely, but he too is a family man and he can't do more than the ordinary; he too is a family man.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You are a clever person and I know that if you have the opportunity, you will do great things. This will be the opening message for this country; if there are any of your brothers moving around, please encourage them to come to the commission before Saturday, when we shall leave here, and tell their stories. You have a double barrel; you are a victim; you watched your parents being killed, and you were also a perpetrator.

Master Japo: I did not want to come; I thought I was going to be jailed. But Tucker convinced me and explained to me because I was about to run away to Liberia. I have something to say; I am a sickler and very recently a bullet was removed from my body, and it was this man who gave me money and sent me to a doctor. Please do not forget me.

Comm. Bishop Humper: By God's grace, something will be worked out for you. Thank you for testifying to the Commission.

The usual Muslim and Christian prayers were said before the start of the hearings. The Leader of Evidence called the first witness for the day.

1st Witness: Ann Ellie

The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Satang Jow administered the oath.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Ann, I welcome you, on behalf of my colleagues. We want you to feel relaxed as you relate your experiences. We are now ready to listen to your testimony.

ANN ELLIE'S TESTIMONY

At the beginning of the war, we were at Njala when the strangers came. We were in the hall that day and the rebels told us that they were going to protect us. We started doing things normally. The rebels missed their way and after a month and a half, they started threatening the men in the town. Then there was the monthly general cleaning. One night, a man told my husband that my husband and the other men were not taking instructions from them; the man claimed that he had reliably learnt that each time my husband and the other men heard gun shot, they ran away. One morning, we were awakened to the sound of gun shots all over the place. The town was held in complete panic. When we got to the point of convergence, they gave instructions that if anybody heard any gun shot, they should hide under their beds. We wanted to go out of the town, but the rebels did not allow us to go anywhere; we should continue to be under the beds, they told us. The rebels started killing people. They then went to our own house; I was in my own room and my husband was in his own room. The rebels came and said if we did not open the door of the house, they would kill all of us. When my husband opened the door, they put a gun on his chest and shot at him. My mother was also killed. They took all our properties away and, at the moment, we have nothing. That is what is paining me now. This is the end of my testimony.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We thank you for your testimony. We will, however, ask you a few questions for clarification. Who were these people that attacked your village?

Ann Ellie: They were rebels.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How were you able to escape?

Ann Ellie: While they were shooting, we bowed down and carefully ran away from them; that was how I escaped.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you have a fitting burial for your mother and husband?

Ann Ellie: All of those who were killed were buried in one mass grave.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You spoke of soldiers coming to your village and then you said that those soldiers misbehaved; is that true?

Ann Ellie: Well, there were three rebels during the attack who, when we got back to the town, were forcefully taking properties and abducting people. They were doing that all the time. After looting our properties, they would begin to shoot and everybody was afraid of getting close to them.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: They were not different from the rebels; is that so?

Ann Ellie: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: There were soldiers in the town to protect the town. Where were those soldiers when the rebels attacked?

Ann Ellie: They were in the town and they did not go anywhere.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Whose child was your mother carrying?

Ann Ellie: My child.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Where is the child now?

Ann Ellie: The child is with me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many times did the rebels attack the town?

Ann Ellie: Two times.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Was it in the same year?

Ann Ellie: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you describe the way they were dressed?

Ann Ellie: They had the same uniform as the soldiers.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you recall any name that the rebels were calling?

Ann Ellie: They had some Mende names, but I cannot recall them. There were so many names.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I want to know if they had nick names.

Ann Ellie: There were so many names, but I can only recall "C.O".

Leader of Evidence: What was your mother's name?

Ann Ellie: Her name was Jane Bockarie.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We have had your testimony and you have answered several questions. Now it is your turn to ask us questions or make recommendations.

Ann Ellie: The only thing I have to say is that my husband and mother are dead. I have children and there is no father to take care of them; my children left school because of school fees. I don't have money to pay their fees.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I will like to tell you that this commission will complete its assignment and submit its report to government and, in this report, we will also make recommendations. A number of people had made recommendations and these recommendations will be incorporated in the report. We know you have immediate concerns and the commission's staff will try to refer you to certain agencies around Bo who will assist you as soon as possible.

2nd Witness: Michael R. Conteh

The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. Michael Conteh, we welcome you. Relax, feel free and feel at home as you give your testimony. The TRC is not a court. You can now begin your testimony.

MICHAEL R. CONTEH'S TESTIMONY

When the war started in this country in 1994, we heard that the rebels had been to Koindu. I hail from Njala Komborya; nine miles from Koindu. I went to my village, which is seven miles away. While I was in my village, I heard that the rebels were three miles to Njala. The rebels burnt down the house of the current paramount chief. We were terrified; the rebels said that they had missed their way, and they went back. That same year, in September, the rebels came again to Njala town. While we were at Njala, we thought that they would provide security for us, but we realised that they didn't want to defend us. A woman, whose son was a soldier, came from Tongo. That woman told me that as long as the soldiers were around, we were safe. The following day, I went to my village. In my village, I was told that the rebels had gone to Njala. On September 8, the rebels killed over twenty people at Njala. Four days after that incident, nobody went to Njala in order to see what had happened. It was then that I told my children to go and see what had happened. When the rebels went to Njala and the soldiers saw them, they shouted at them. They did not burn down my house, but they burnt down several houses. Since I was worried, I went to Njala and learnt that the soldiers were occupying my house. I told the soldiers that I was there so that I could take my belongings to Bo. In February 1995, the rebels attacked again. During that attack, the rebels completely burnt my compound and my two children who were in one of the houses that the rebels burnt down, were burnt to death. We did not hear anything about the children until after two days. When the other brothers got there, they found out that the compound was completely destroyed and two of their brothers were dead. The soldiers shouted at the boys, but they took the corpses of their brothers and to the trench where they were buried. Since then, I have been a worried man. My eldest son was the first to be burnt to death. That is the world in which I live now. This is all I have to tell the commission.

Comm. Bishop Humber: we are sorry for what happened to you during the war. At your age, you should now be sitting down and expecting your children to help you. You are considered as one of the victims of the war. The commission would like to know if you are an old soldier.

Michael Conteh: I was an officer in the army up to 1969.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Did I hear you say that while you were there, the rebels attacked those villages around the town?

Michael Conteh: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humber: You asked your eldest son to go and find out what was happening; what did he come back to tell you?

Michael Conteh: When they returned, they told me that they had burnt down houses in Njala.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Did I hear you say that your two children were burnt to death? My question is whether the soldiers help the two boys to bury their brothers?

Michael Conteh: They were shouting at them to hurry up and get out of the town.

Comm. Bishop Humber: How did these children survive the war?

Michael Conteh: They were with me; we lived in a village, seven miles to Njala.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Would you say that the rebels and soldiers were in connivance?

Comm. Bishop Humber: I would think so because a man told me a story. One Sergeant Komeh told me that as long as soldiers were in Njala, the rebels would get there.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Did you have Civil Defence Forces in Njala or any of the villages?

Michael Conteh: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: During the crisis, were you in Njala?

Michael Conteh: No; I was in my village.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You also told us that you were worried about the soldiers. Can you tell us what exactly they were doing?

Michael Conteh: As I stated in my testimony, I am an ex-army officer; I know what soldiers should do to defend the people. They were taking things like goats and other properties away; the soldiers were engaged in looting rather than in the defence of the people.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that you got information most of the time and you sent your sons to find out. Where are these sons, are they still alive?

Michael Conteh: They are alive.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are they old enough to give statement to the commission?

Michael Conteh: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can we have their names?

Michael Conteh: Joseph McCarthy and Thomas McCarthy; the latter is at Bo Teachers' college.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. Conteh, what do you do to support yourself?

Michael Conteh: Well, for a long time, I was not doing anything.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you willing to reconcile for the sake of peace?

Michael Conteh: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Would you know any of these rebels?

Michael Conteh: I don't know them.

Leader of Evidence: At what rank did you retire from the army?

Michael Conteh: In 1969.

Leader of Evidence: At what age did you retire?

Michael Conteh: I was born in 1940.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the commission why you retired so early?

Michael Conteh: At one time the soldiers stood firm against the officers in the army and they arrested me and put me in jail for seven months. One day, they wrote a letter to me, notifying me that I had been retired.

Leader of Evidence: Looking back on your days in the army, what do you think has changed in the army?

Michael Conteh: There is a difference! One of the differences is that when the soldiers got there, they promised that they would defend us, but they did not.

Leader of Evidence: As an officer in the army, what were the causes of coups in the army?

Michael Conteh: The other ranks did not like that government.

Leader of Evidence: Does this imply that during the time you were in the army, some senior Officers were corrupt?

Michael Conteh: That is what is happening and that was why we fought.

Leader of Evidence: Could you like to tell the commission what was responsible for this?

Michael Conteh: I said I can't tell what they were doing. I used to take orders from the senior officers.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of reform would you like to see in the army so that things will change?

Michael Conteh: What I know is that, at any given point in time, the soldiers will respect the government in power.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What changes do you want to see in the military? Since you HAVE said that your own days in the military were not the same as it is now, should the commission ask you to make a submission; will you be prepared to do so?

Michael Conteh: I will go there and say what I know.

Comm. Bishop Humper: How many cows, or pigs, or goats did they take from you?

Michael Conteh: They took nine goats from me. However, there were other goats in that village; over two hundred.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much Mr. Conteh.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Over to you Commissioner Kamara.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Right! Thank you Mr. Conteh. You have interested us in your evidence particularly after the leader of Evidence has questioned you. I hope you will permit me to just ask you a few other questions. You said that you were a Lieutenant in 1996 when you retired; when were you promoted to that rank?

Michael Conteh: If you were commissioned, you would be made a second lieutenant and, after a year, you would be automatically promoted to the rank of lieutenant. I was commissioned in 1966. I was a cadet, trained in Britain.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Alright, thank you. So you were a commissioned officer in 1967; the year of the election?

Michael Conteh: That is correct.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You were, therefore, part of the administration of the NRC.

Michael Conteh: It was not every officer that was made minister in the NRC government; people were appointed to form that government.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mr. Conteh, you know the circumstances or, let me start by saying this. You know that you lost Black Staff House in late 1967 and early 1968...it got burnt; you can remember that now.

Michael Conteh: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Do you know the circumstances? Can you tell us?

Michael Conteh: We were on duty when we heard that Black Staff House was on fire.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Alright let me ask you the other way round. Who was occupying Black Staff House at the time?

Michael Conteh: Major Kai Samba.

Comm. Kamara: What were the stories going around at that time?

Michael Conteh: I went there to put out the fire when we were told that the house was on fire.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Yes, and what did you discover?

Michael Conteh: I saw the fire only.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Alright, thank you.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. Conteh, thank you for giving us an insight into the military during your days. From the questions we have put to you in these areas, we know that you have a lot of information to give us, and we are happy to know that you are ready to cooperate with us in this direction; and the Commission will follow up on the invitation extended to you by the chairman, for you to appear at the thematic hearings in Freetown. Our senior staff will talk to you about this, and we are hopeful that you will continue to cooperate with this Commission. Mr. Conteh, we have asked you a number of questions, and I thank you for your help; your contribution and for the clarity in which you have answered our questions. It is now your turn. If you have any questions; if you have any recommendations, you may now make them before this Commission.

Michael Conteh: I have no question, but I have recommendations to make. May there be peace in this country. As you work towards it, may we have peace and reconciliation in this country. Here am I now, I have no where to live, and I am not the only victim. I know that the government cannot replace the children we have lost. However, if we have a place to stay until death, that will be great. There are also a good number of widows and half orphans and orphans; government should consider them. That is all I have to say.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. Conteh, once again, thank you for those valuable recommendations which you have made to this commission. We, as a Commission, have a duty to this nation. At the end of our assignment, we have to forward our report to government. This report will include a number of recommendations, and this is why we are conducting this kind of exercise so that people can tell us their testimonies and also give us ideas as to how to build a better Sierra Leone. We have noted your concerns along side those of many others. When we come to write our report, we will incorporate some of these useful recommendations. Mr. Conteh, on behalf of all of us here, we thank you very much. You may now stand down.

Michael Conteh: I thank you also.

3rd Witness: Mary S. Lebbie

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Satang Jow.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mary, thank you for coming to the Commission this morning to share your experiences with us; to tell us what happened to you during the armed conflict. It takes courage to accept such an invitation. We thank you for your cooperation. We want you to feel very comfortable in our midst; we are not a court of law. We are here to consolidate the peace process and to bring reconciliation and healing to this country. So, in this context, we want you to narrate your story very carefully and clearly. You may now begin.

MARY S. LEBBIE'S TESTIMONY

At the beginning of the war, I left Njala and went to my relatives. I was with my relatives for sometime when, one morning, I saw people. They told me that the rebels had attacked Gumahun, our village, the previous day and had burnt down our house. That was the first set of rebels that entered into Njala Komborya. I hosted the people who came from our village, and we were there for sometime. A week later, they returned to Njala. After a while, my husband went to Njala and, when he returned, he confirmed that they had burnt down our house. After sometime, people came with news that the rebels had attacked Njala, burnt so many houses and killed a number of people. They people who came with the news from Njala stayed with us. My husband ran into the bush. No too long after that, another set of people came and reported that Njala had been totally destroyed. That set also joined us. We were all at Saan when the rebels got there one day. We all ran in different directions into the bush. We were in the bush when they burnt down the entire village. After the village had been burnt down and the rebels had retreated, people came out of the bush; the went spy on the village. Each household had somebody who went to spy on the village. They returned to tell us that Saan was no more. The following morning, people started pursuing the rebels with the intention to catch them. In the process, one of my brothers, Momoh, was grabbed by a rebel; we were not there because it was not possible for a woman to be there. Our brother and the rebel had a fight and, when Momoh was over powered by the rebel, made bold to cry out for help. People went to his rescue and grabbed the rebel. The rebel was brought to the village and people urged him to see what they had done; they had burnt down the village. They said that they were going to accompany the rebel; they went and came back. The men in the village who had captured the rebel told us that the number of rebels who came to destroy the village was large, but that the other rebels had retreated. They went to escort the rebel. We were in the bush when another set of rebels came. They completely burnt down the village. We went hiding in the bush until we got to Nengbema; my sister lived there with her husband, and we went with them into a bush camp. It rained for the rest of that night, and we wanted to proceed to Bo. My sister's husband went to us and advised us not to go. He told us that they had been to the stream in a bid to walk on foot, and that the rebels were there and they were throwing people into the stream. By then people were coming from Tonge, Mongere, Njala Komborya, Ngelehun Baja, Ngalu Bagbeh and there was a huge crowd of people; they were throwing people into the stream through out that night. We went back and took another route through Manguama and got to this town. We have been in Bo since then, but we go in search of food; we walk to Saan to harvest some cassava. During one of such trips, the rebels came again met us in the bush. The zone to which they went was not part of our terrain. Those who lived in that area came to us and told us that the suckling mothers who were there and were engaged in some traditional Bondo rite activities had had their heads hit on the rock, their heads smashed and they had been thrown into the stream. We ran away again and stayed in Bo permanently until the Kamajors ordered that they were going to.... [didn't complete the sentence]

When we were here in Bo, we went out to look for food at one time, and the rebels met us in the bush. The people in the nearby village told us that the rebels had thrown children into a river. When I got to Njala, I learnt that they had burnt down all the houses. The only house which we had after the rebels had burnt down the others, and which we had hoped to occupy, was looted. I did not go back to Saan because if I went there, the rebels would be my host; my brother was killed.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mary, we have carefully listened to your testimony. The Commissioners and Leader of Evidence would ask you questions, and you would be given the opportunity to ask questions and make recommendations after all.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mary, I want to join my colleague commissioners in thanking you for cooperating with us. You are one of the people who are helping this nation. I just have three questions for clarifications. What did you survive on while you were in the bush?

Mary Lebbie: We had cassava in the bush, and sometimes we would go to our swamps to collect rice.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do you have an idea of how many people the rebels pushed in the river?

Mary Lebbie: As far as I know, in my own town, my sister, the father-in-law of my sister and the children were thrown into the river. There were other people, who were thrown into the river, but I cannot tell the exact number.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You said that they caught the rebels and the people escorted them?

Mary Lebbie: They only said that they were going to escort him; I don't know whether they did; I did not see them.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Have you children?

Mary Lebbie: Yes

Comm. Prof. Kamara: How many?

Mary Lebbie: Six children.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You had to be moving with them because occasionally you were not with your husband; is that right?

Mary Lebbie: They were with their father at the time when I was running here and there. I had had a quarrel with my husband so I went to my people. The children were at Baoma because they were attending school.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Those people that captured your brother, were they CDF, rebels or soldiers?

Mary Lebbie: I don't know; all I know is that they were in military fatigue.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You had men and officers of the army in your village?

Mary Lebbie: No.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: According to what you said in your statement, this incident took place between 1993 and 1995; what happened to you in 1995?

Mary Lebbie: All I can say is that in 1995 they burnt all the places that belonged to us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Where have you been living?

Mary Lebbie: In Bo.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Have you now been reunited with your husband?

Mary Lebbie: Yes; a very long time ago.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Are the children also reunited?

Mary Lebbie: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that some of your relatives were thrown into the river; did you witness the incident or were you told?

Mary Lebbie: I was in the bush when a sister of one of the victims came weeping and she told us that her sister had been thrown into the river.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you able to perform a fitting burial rite for those who died?

Mary Lebbie: No. After a while, when the water level reduced, we went looking for the corpses. Wherever we found one or two corpses, we buried them there.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do the villagers still use this river for domestic use?

Mary Lebbie: Some of the bodies were eaten by the fish in the river.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much Mary. We have asked you a lot of questions. It is now your turn to ask questions or make recommendations if you have any.

Mary Lebbie: I have no questions, but I have recommendations to make. All I can say is that most of us who are victims are very old. I crave your indulgence to ask that the government helps us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: I want to thank you very much. However, I want to inform you that the commission cannot give assistance to individuals. What I will assure you of now is that your recommendations will be included in the report.

4th Witness: Bobor Jabatie

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Kamara.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mr Bobor Jabatie, you are welcome to this session of the hearings. If you were here this morning, you would have observed that everybody who has given a statement here was quite relaxed. And we want to assume the same attitude in giving a very complete and truthful statement about what you experienced during the war.

BOBOR JABATIE'S TESTIMONY

I was with my father, together with other relatives including my brothers, in the house one morning, when the rebels came and surrounded the house. My father was a Kamajor, but when the rebels asked him, he said that he was not. They arrested all of us and took us away to Kpetema. When we arrived at Kpetema, the five gallon container in which we put palm oil was lit up and they asked him to sit down; he sat under the burning container as they dropped the it on him. He was punished for some while. There was the carcass of a vehicle in Kpetema village. They laid him on the ground and were pushing that carcass over him. They did that until he died. When he died, they asked to take his corpse for burial; then I was very sad and discouraged. We did not give him a fitting burial. They took away from that point unto the hills. When they took us there, they gave us husk rice to pound. After that, they took us by the Sewa. When we got there, I escaped and went to my village. This was what the rebels did to me.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you very much Mr. Jabatie.

Bobor Jabatie: I also thank the Commission.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: We are happy that you have given us a very up to the point statement about what you and your family experienced. The incident you narrated took place in 1996. Do you want to tell us that after that, nothing else happened to you or your family which would warrant your narrating it here?

Bobor Jabatie: By the time the statement takers went to take statement, a lot of things had happened to me, but I did not have the opportunity to narrate it all because I was in a hurry.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And you can't think of anything that you might have experienced during the war; that pertain to the war that you tell this Commission.

Bobor Jabatie: By the time they killed my father, my brothers and sisters; I am the eldest son; they were released and they returned to Kpetema where they built a hut in the bush camp. When I returned to Kpetema, I fended for all of them; I was the bread winner.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you, but let us go back to this incident in 1996. You said that you were taken from Benduma to Kpetema; the entire family. When you arrived there, how long did it take before your dad was finally killed; before they pushed this vehicle over him?

Bobor Jabatie: When they took us to Kpetema, they did a lot of bad things to us. It was on that same day that they killed my father.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: During that time, what were they doing to you; the children?

Bobor Jabatie: I was, by then, worried at heart. Actually, they did not know that he was my father so they did not do anything to us at that time. My father died on the day we were captured.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: They didn't do anything to you; what do you mean?

Bobor Jabatie: They did nothing to me, except that they took us up the hill to pound husk rice.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you. I hope you would allow other Commissioners to ask you a few questions.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: After they killed your father, how long did you stay with the rebels?

Bobor Jabatie: The rebels moved around with us. After the death of my father, I was with the rebels for approximately one week.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you describe the rebels to us; what were they like?

Bobor Jabatie: Those people, when they attacked and arrested us, together with our father, they had military fatigues and carried guns. When they captured my father, they told him "the rebels have captured you this day".

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they, on any occasion, tell you why they were doing such things to you and your family?

Bobor Jabatie: When they captured my father that night, they accused him of being of a Kamajor.
My father was not a Kamajor, he was a Reverend.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: In your testimony, Mr. Jabatie, you also said that there were many captured people at the base where you were; who were these captured people?

Bobor Jabatie: The people who were our neighbours in the other villages.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were there young children among them?

Bobor Jabatie: I would not recall because I was under tremendous stress when I was captured.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. Jabatie, you have also told us that you joined the Kamajor in 1997; where were you based as a Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: When the rebels killed my father and we left our village and its surroundings and came to Bo, we stayed here unto 1996 when we returned to our village; Benduma. When we returned, that was when they told us to join the Kamajor so that we could defend our land.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us where the information came from that you should join the Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: The message came from the chiefs in the area.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: O.K my last question to you; who was the leader of your Kamajor group?

Bobor Jabatie: Sheku Abu.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you Mr. Jabatie.

Bobor Jabatie: I also thank the Commission.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mr. Jabatie, we want to thank you for coming today. It is painful to witness the death of your father and be unable to take him out of the hands of people. I want you to clarify a statement for me; it is here, but we want to get it from you. Why did you join the Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: I joined the Kamajors after the death of my father; my brothers, sisters and other relatives were still alive and we did not want a recurrence of what had happened to my father. We could prevent the rebels from wrecking further havocs. I joined the Kamajor in order to protect our territory and people.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mr. Jabatie, will you agree with me that, according to you, you joined the Kamajors because the soldiers failed to protect your people?

Bobor Jabatie: Where we were, soldiers did not go there to protect us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Listen! I said that you joined the Kamajor to do what the Sierra Leone Army could not do; that is to protect your people.

Bobor Jabatie: That is correct.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Will I be right to say also that it had something to do with the death of your father? Did the death of your father influence you, in any way, to join the Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: When a man dies, he is dead and gone; I had other relatives and other people to protect. So I joined the Kamajor in order to protect my territory, my people and the country as a whole.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mr. Jabatie, is your mother dead?

Bobor Jabatie: No.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did she die a natural death?

Bobor Jabatie: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you Mr. Jabatie. I will now ask the Leader of Evidence whether he has any questions for you.

Leader of Evidence: Yes Commissioner. Mr. Jabatie, I just have one or two questions for you. Where were you based as a Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: I was at Benduma.

Leader of Evidence: For how long?

Bobor Jabatie: I was there from 1997 unto the end of war.

Leader of Evidence: Did you go for any operations outside Benduma?

Bobor Jabatie: While we were at Benduma, they would arrange us into groups and sent for operations when we learnt that there were rebels somewhere. As a result, we went to a number of places including Yamandu, Gerehun, etc.

Leader of Evidence: So could you give the Commission a fair idea, apart from these two places, of the places where you had fighting with the rebels?

Bobor Jabatie: Yamandu, Gerehun and even Bo.

Leader of Evidence: In the course of those operations, how many rebels did you people capture?

Bobor Jabatie: I did not capture any rebels. When we went to battle, we were in groups; in our group, we did not capture any rebel. We chased them away. I personally neither killed nor caught any rebel.

Leader of Evidence: So what happened to the rebels you people engaged with? Did they run away or what?

Bobor Jabatie: When we went to battle, for instance at Yamandu, and actually found out that they were rebels – we had people who went on reconnaissance moves – we surrounded the town and launched an attack. They rebels would then run away.

Leader of Evidence: So do I understand you, Mr. Jabatie, as saying that there was very limited fighting between you and the rebels in the areas you operated as a Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: If you were in your village and somebody came with a gun threatening to fight and kill you, if you had the means, you would do all you could to defend yourself.

Leader of Evidence: So do I understand you as saying, Mr. Jabatie, that there was actually some fighting?

Bobor Jabatie: I was trained to fight in order to defend my country.

Leader of Evidence: I am not arguing against that at all; I just wanted to understand what happened in the course of the conflict; that's the work of the Commission.

Bobor Jabatie: Like I said earlier on, if you were a man and somebody threatened to kill you, you would definitely fight back. In the course of that, whatever happened counts not.

Leader of Evidence: So my next question would be, how many rebel prisoners did your group capture?

Bobor Jabatie: I had said earlier that, in our group, we did not capture rebels.

Leader of Evidence: They died?

Bobor Jabatie: Like I said earlier, if an evil person sets your house on fire while you are still within, should you come out and find that person, you either leave the person there or the person leaves you in the fire.

Leader of Evidence: Mr. Jabatie the Commission is not evaluating whether what you did was wrong or right that is not the intention of the Commission. The question is only to understand what happened; and if there was fighting, how deep was the fighting; how ferocious, because these are the things that the Commission must bear in mind in making recommendations that it does not happen again. So what I understand you to be saying is that whether you were a Kamajor or a rebel, nobody took hostages; before the man thinks he can kill you, you kill him first. Is that correct?

Bobor Jabatie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Then tell us what happened.

Bobor Jabatie: When we went to battle and met the rebels in town, after the exchange of firing, their brothers as well as our brothers were killed in the process. After the battle, we saw corpses.

Leader of Evidence: How long were you trained as a Kamajor?

Bobor Jabatie: Kamajor is a society; you have to be initiated.

Leader of Evidence: So, once you were initiated, you were sent to the war front?

Bobor Jabatie: It is society once you get initiated into it, you got the urge to go to battle.

Leader of Evidence: How long does an initiation process take?

Bobor Jabatie: Except one was not resident in the village where the initiation took place, but if one was resident there, it took only one night. After that, the following morning, if there was a battle somewhere around the territory, you were sent to fight.

Leader of Evidence: So do I understand you, Mr. Jabatie, to be saying that if you were, for instance, nominated by a chief, you would go for initiation for one night and the other day you were sent to the battle front?

Bobor Jabatie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: And were you not taught how to use guns; how to defend yourself; how to understand the terrain in which you were; were you not taught any of those things – about how to deal with civilians who were not fighters?

Bobor Jabatie: When we were initiated, we had only single barrel guns, those were what we took to the battle front. When we got to the battle front and got guns from the enemy, upon return to the village we gave guns to our brothers who had witnessed the shooting of a gun by a soldier. One was taught to fire a gun in one day.

Leader of Evidence: Which is to say that the only thing you got taught then was how to fire a gun.

Bobor Jabatie: Yes; we started with single barrel guns.

Leader of Evidence: In all the years you were a member of the Kamajor, were there instances where some of your colleagues died; you lost some of your colleagues?

Bobor Jabatie: At one time we went to fight at Gerehun, a man called Foday died; that's what I can recall. The only way by which we realised that we had lost colleagues was when we returned to our village after battle.

Leader of Evidence: I understand that, and I can agree with that. My question is that the number of years you spent, either in your group or people you knew as Kamajors; were there occasions that some people died in the war as a result of fighting?

Bobor Jabatie: What I saw is what I can report. In our own group, only Foday died. However, I heard of deaths from other groups, but I never saw them.

Leader of Evidence: And they were dying at the war front?

Bobor Jabatie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: And What about injuries : battle front injuries : were there those that sustained battle front injuries like bullets piercing their arms or shrapnel, RPG, bullet wounds – either in your group or those that you heard of?

Bobor Jabatie: In our own town, it never happened. However, within the chiefdom, a lot of people sustained injuries. Even at Benduma, Foday, whom I spoke about just now, there was a man called Daiffi Musa who stood behind Foday when we went to battle. When Foday was shot, the bullet went through Foday and injured Daiffi; he got injured and he is still alive.

Leader of Evidence: As part of your one day initiation, were you taught anything like first aid, in case you had any injuries at the front?

Bobor Jabatie: They taught us; the leaf directed us.

Leader of Evidence: I need to understand that last part – the leaf would direct; could you explain what you mean by that?

Bobor Jabatie: As Kamajors, we had concoctions which we applied to the injuries of our colleagues at the front until we were able to take them to a medical practitioner.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you Mr. Jabatie. The man that was your commander; what was his rank?

Bobor Jabatie: We had two commanders; one who would take you to the battle front – Patrol Commander; and the one who inspected you when you returned from the battle front.

Leader of Evidence: The one that sent you to the battle front; what was his rank?

Bobor Jabatie: I cannot say what his rank was; we only referred to him as Commander – we do not know English; a Kamajor does not know English.

Leader of Evidence: You don't know his rank?

Bobor Jabatie: Like the Police would refer to Corporal or a Sergeant? We did not have those ranks. There was a Commander who was in town – Town Commander; when you were going to war, after the alignment of fighters, there was somebody who led the troop to battle – Patrol Commander; that was somebody who had more charms than any other fighter that was taking part in that particular battle – he led us to the battle front. We, Kamajors, did not have many titles.

Leader of Evidence: The one that would send you to fight; he also fought with you?

Bobor Jabatie: Yes. He was the one that even emboldened us.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know whether he was a trained soldier; was he a member of the Sierra Leone Army?

Bobor Jabatie: He had no formal military training, he was a hunter.

Leader of Evidence: So he had no prior military experience?

Bobor Jabatie: He knew nothing about the military.

Leader of Evidence: So you only passed through the same one day initiation and you became a fighter?

Bobor Jabatie: He was a hunter.

Leader of Evidence: He hunted animals?

Bobor Jabatie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you Mr. Jabatie.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you. Mr. Jabatie, you have given us so much of your time. You have told us your experiences and you have answered the questions that we have asked you. Now, I am sure, you will have something in your mind that you will one to clarify yourself. So we give you the opportunity to ask us any questions you have in mind or, if you haven't, then you can, perhaps make suggestions on the type of recommendations you would like us to make to the government.

Bobor Jabatie: I am asking that although we suffered so much during the war; in fighting for our country, we have not been considered. Since the death for my father, I have still not been able to perform a fitting burial rite. I have younger brothers who are going to school, and I need help. Please consider us; not me alone, but all those who suffered during the course of this war. Assist us so that we can support our younger ones and perform fitting burials for those whom we lost during the war. That is all I have to tell the Commission.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mr. Jabatie, we want to thank you, and we have noted what you have just asked us to do. Indeed, there are too many things left undone, and it is going to take a very long time for those things to be taken care of. So many people have died without any proper burial and something has to be done to carry out the ceremonies that would put their souls at rest and also satisfy the sensibilities of people. We take note of what you have asked us and we shall do everything possible to get the support of people like you; the community, to do everything that should be done to appease the dead. In addition to that, the Commission, at the end of its work, will produce a report which will carry all the recommendations that will embody all that you and other people have given and have proposed. For now, we only want to tell you that you have added a little, but important piece of block, to the structure we are trying to construct. So we thank you very much for that.

Bobor Jabatie – I thank the Commission as well.

Comm. Prof. Kamara – You can step down.

5th Witness: Dauda M'bayoh

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Jow.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Dauda, you have now taken the oath, and we will like to welcome you. We thank you for accepting our invitation to appear for public hearings. We will like you to feel at ease, relax and narrate your experiences during the war. You may now start.

DAUDA MBAYOH'S TESTIMONY

I am the town chief of Dambala. One evening, as I was relaxing at home, ten soldiers came and said that I should be their host. In deed I put them up and, the following morning, breakfast was prepared for them and they partook of it. After they had had breakfast, they asked for some oranges. The oranges were picked and peeled for them. After that, I was on the piazza when one of the rebels used the back door entrance into the house to make his exit. I stepped out in the open to urinate and, while I was urinating, the other soldiers left and went up a hill where their colleagues who provided defence for us in the village were. Not too long after their departure unto the hills, I heard the sound of a truck from the direction of Mandu; it was a truck load of people. I could, however, not identify the people who were in the truck. Not too long after the truck had stopped than we heard gun sound in the air. I had a house on the precinct of the village and when one of the rebels went running after me, I went into that house. My wife and my three children were in the house. When I entered the house, I told them to get up so that we could run into the bush. I went into hiding with two of the children and the other child and my wife were left in the house. The rebels surrounded the house and set fire to it. My wife and child were shouting in the house. The other children and I scurried into hiding in the bush. While we were in the bush, the rebels set fire to the entire village. We were in the bush until the following day. I had two machines which I bought in Freetown and six boxes of my clothes in the house; they took those out and burnt them. I then stealthily returned to the village to see whether the rebels were still around so that I could see them and know exactly who they were. I did not see anybody. I saw the remains of my wife and my child and then I went back into the bush. This was what I witnessed.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you for your testimony. We have listened very carefully to your testimony and we are sorry for the loss of your wife and child. We will like to spend some more time with you for further clarifications and questions. So I now hand you over to the commissioners for questions.

Bishop Humper: Pa Dauda M'bayoh, we are very sorry for what happened to you. I am sure you must have said that out of your generosity you had to suffer in the hands of other people. I want to clarify a few points. You said that ten soldiers entered and you provided accommodation and food for them. The following morning, they left and they went into the hill. After they left that was when you saw a vehicle coming and then you heard firing. My question is did you consider those who came to be different from the soldiers who had slept in your house?

Dauda M'bayoh: They were in the same uniform. Even the ones who came in the truck were in military fatigue; it is difficult to distinguish them.

Comm. Bishop Humper: If you were to call them by name – now that you have said they had the similar outfits, what name would you call them by?

Dauda M'bayoh: I would call them rebels.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Pa Dauda M'bayoh, we are asking these questions; they are not deliberate questions. We want to know those category of people who went there; whether they were soldiers or otherwise. You said that they were in similar fatigue, but from what you are now saying, it seems to you that they were rebels.

Dauda M'bayoh: I can draw a line of distinction between them because they had similar outfits.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Finally, Pa Dauda M'bayoh, did you tell any one that those who went to you were "sobels"?

Dauda M'bayoh: Yes I said so.

Comm. Bishop Humper: All right, thank you Pa Dauda M'bayoh.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Professor Kamara.

Prof. Kamara: Mr. M'bayoh, we are very much in sympathy with you. To lose your wife and child is not a good thing and it is not an easy thing to narrate. We know you are only doing this because of the interest you have in the country; knowing that by making this presentation you will help the commission to get at the true story and to come up with the right recommendations. So we will ask you to continue to allow us ask you questions to probe this unpleasant experience. Did you say that the ten soldiers that slept in your house and whom you had just fed, left you to go up a hill where there were soldiers?

Dauda M'bayoh: They went there right away.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So you had these soldiers; what were they doing; were they to protect the village?

Dauda M'bayoh: At first they came to Dambala every day in order to protect the town.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, then these ten soldiers arrived; why did they not join the others? Why did they come to you to accommodate them?

Dauda M'bayoh: They came at night.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Yes they came at night, but they were soldiers and when they get to any place, they will join the other soldiers.

Dauda M'bayoh: When they returned late from their trips, it was usual for us to put them up.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So, they attacked that morning and you fled.

Dauda M'bayoh: Yes, that is correct.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: When you came there the following morning to investigate, were they still based on the hill?

Dauda M'bayoh: I did not concentrate on the hill.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: A few days after, you must have found out the situation in Dambala town itself; can you tell us whether – after a week, two weeks or whatever – these soldiers continued to stay on that hill or whether they left the town and returned to wherever they came from?

Dauda M'bayoh After they had burnt down the village, they brought another set of soldiers to protect us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Fresh soldiers! What happened to those who were on the hills; they left the town?

Dauda M'bayoh: They were very alike; one could not distinguish between and among them. They were still in the town, together with the fresh set of soldiers.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Nothing happened - Because this was in 1994 - after that; were there further attacks on the town?

Dauda M'bayoh: I had left Dambala and I went very far away from Dambala after that bitter experience.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So you did not even enquire about what was happening in Dambala?

Dauda M'bayoh: I did not; I was afraid.

Prof: Where did you go?

Dauda M'bayoh: I went into the bush and built a hut there.

Comm. Jow: Through out the war; until 2002 when the war was declared over?

Dauda M'bayoh; I was still there.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, thank you.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. M'bayoh, thank you for your answers. Can I just put a few more questions to you? When these soldiers went to your village, you fed them and you accommodated them. How long did they stay before the incident?

Dauda M'bayoh: They spent only a night and the following day the village was burnt down.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you have time sit down and chat with them?

Dauda M'bayoh: Yes, it is customary that if one had guests, one would entertain them and chat with them. We had a nice chat that night and they did nothing bad to me.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you recall any of the things that they said to you?

Dauda M'bayoh: All that they were saying was that they were there to protect us.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you know any of their names?

Dauda M'bayoh: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much. Leader of Evidence!

Leader of Evidence: I have just one question for the witness. Could you tell us the name of your wife and the child who died?

Dauda M'bayoh: My wife was Fatu M'bayoh and my son was Joe M'bayoh.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you Leader of Evidence. Mr. M'bayoh, do you have any questions to ask the commission or do you have any recommendations to make?

Dauda M'bayoh: All I have to say is that I am old man now and cannot even fend for myself. My wife who used to fend for me is no more. I am asking for assistance.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mr. M'bayoh. once again, thank you very much for your corporation and your contribution to the work of the commission. We have noted your recommendations and, alongside other recommendations, we will incorporate them in our final report which we will start writing after the hearings are over. It will be the responsibility of government to implement these recommendations. And once they are implemented, Victims like you will benefit. However, at the end of it all, we hope to see a peaceful and prosperous Sierra Leone where violations we have heard of this morning will never happen again. We thank you very much Mr. M'bayoh. You may now stand down.

6th Witness: Sallay Goba

The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

Jow: Mammy Sallay we thank for coming before the commission this morning to share your experiences with us. We welcome you heartily. We ask you to relax and narrate your experiences as clearly as you can. You may now start.

SALLAY GOBA'S TESTIMONY

My family and I were at Mattru on the rail when the soldiers went there. They told us that they had been there to protect us. We were making merry during the Christmas season when we heard gunshot from the direction of Tikonko. We left the town that night and went into the bush. I did not take anything along with me. I left my colleagues in the bush and returned close to the village; I was spying on the village. We later realised that those who came in the guise of protecting us had set fire to our village. We were frightened and we went back into the bush. We were there, horrified, when we heard continuous gun shots. We were in the bush for two weeks. When we learnt later that they invaders were to "comb the bushes", we left the bush and came to Bo town. When we were in Bo things were extremely hard, so my child and I went to fetch wood and for vegetables that we took to Bo for sale. One day, I asked my child to rest while I went to the bush alone. I had got the vegetables, placed them on the veranda desk and I was bathing in a stream in preparation to return to Bo. I never knew that they had been mutilated people on the other side of the road. When I finished having my bath, I was waiting to dry up when a group of people accosted me and asked whether I had knowledge of the presence of the enemies. One of them held my cloth and asked me to direct show him the road that lead to Wongibor. I told him that I did not know the route that led to that village. The rebel asked whether I would have lived in that town without having knowledge of the route that leads to Wongibor; he threatened to kill me. He held me by the arm and took me towards the village. He then decided against killing me and said that he was going to give me a letter that I would take to Bo. By then, my entire body had grown numb; I was unconscious. He said that he was only waiting for the man who carried the machetes. When we arrived at a point where there was a stump of wood, he asked me to stop. When the man who carried the machetes arrived at that scene, he asked me to place my arm on the stump of wood. I pleaded with him not to amputate my arm, but he rather repeated the command that I should place my arm on the stump more robustly. I first placed my left arm which he continued to hit until the bones were almost completely broken. He then asked me to place the other arm; my right arm, on the stump. I pleaded with him that I was a woman so he should not amputate both arms. I even told him that I preferred death to double amputation. He told me that if he wanted to kill me, he would have done so long ago, and he repeated that he was going to give me a letter that I would take to Bo. He ended up amputating both arms. After the amputations, I was asked to get up and go to Bo with the message that the rebels were around; that they had gone to Towama and would get to Bo later. There was a fellow called Mba ba Ngorma; he was the one that actually perpetuated the act. I arrived in Bo with one arm chopped off and the other dangling; I carried the amputated arm in the dangling arm. When I arrived at New London, the police took off my waist cloth and wrapped my arm in it. They took me to the hospital where they completely amputated my left arm. I was at the hospital for a while undergoing medical treatment. When I was discharged from the hospital, they took us to the camp. In the camp, MSF provided food and medical facilities for us. We were at the camp for some time and they asked us to return to our houses; we did. About that time, the white workers who had been putting plans in place to assist us with, at least, artificial arms and limbs left the country without executing the plan. I current plight is deplorable; no shelter, no food. My daughter has abandoned her husband in order to stay with me in the single room where I live; she does literally everything for me. We have school going kids, yet we cannot afford to pay their fees; that's a big lump of distress that we carry in our hearts. We are neither engaged in trade nor do we have the means of starting it. I am therefore asking the government to ensure that we are provided with shelter and food. We had struck peace with the perpetrators, but they are catered for while we are left to suffer. That is the end of my testimony.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mama Sallay, thank you very much for that testimony. We have heard what has happened to you and we are very sorry. We sympathize with you in your present plight. We have no reason to doubt your testimony because the testimony speaks for itself, but we will like to ask you a few questions just to clarify a few areas and, if need be, to give us more details. So I will invite my colleague commissioners to ask you questions. Chairman, Commissioner Bishop Humper!

Comm. Bishop Humper: Mama Sallay, we want to give thanks to God for your life. I do not have much to ask you. The one important one that I want you to let us know is what were the combatants who went "combing the bush" searching for?

Sallay Goba: It was when the soldiers went "combing the bush" that we left the bush and came to Bo.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Our understanding is that they going into the bush in search of rebels.

Sallay Goba: I think they went looking for the rebels – I am not sure – but they asked us to leave the bush.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you say that the name of the rebel was did this evil act to you was "Mba ba Ngorma": "Do not blame"?

Sallay Goba: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mama Sallay Goba, we thank you very much for coming. We are all praying to God that our children or our Children's children do not go through the trauma that we have all gone through. In that connection, we appreciate what you are doing now and what you will continue to do by answering our questions. This story of what happened to you started by – you said, and I hope I am correct, that one day one of your children or child in the house when out to fetch wood. Is that correct?

Sallay Goba: I was the one that went to look for vegetables.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Yes, but before that you said your child went to fetch wood and you went to fetch vegetable.

Sallay Goba: I told my child to rest while I went to the village in search of vegetables; I wanted to help her.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, my interest is what happened to that child?

Sallay Goba: I left her in town here. After they had amputated my arms, when I returned to town, I told the people that I saw to tell my relatives that the rebels had killed me. My daughter and I lived at Kissy town, at my brother's. When she got the news of my amputation, she abandoned the dish she was preparing for me and went to the hospital where I had been taken.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Yes, but what happened to the family members? Are they still alive; are they with you?

Sallay Goba: My brother on whom I relied is dead.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now, the soldiers asked you to leave the bush; do you know what they did when, perhaps, the news went out that rebels were committing these atrocities?

Sallay Goba: You mean in our village? The whole village was burnt down.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: What did the soldiers do?

Sallay Goba: We did not see any soldiers.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: But even before the rebels attacked – as you said – the soldiers scared you away.

Sallay Goba: When they came and told us that they had come to protect us, it was not too long when we heard that gun shot that threw us into disarray. When we returned to spy on the village, they were setting the houses in the village ablaze.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So, was it then the soldiers that burnt the village?

Sallay Goba: I don't know whether it was the soldiers that set fire to the houses. All I know is that the soldiers said they had come to protect us; they might have fled from the attackers, I am not sure.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And this man, who gave his name as Mba ba Ngorma, how was he dressed; was he in uniform like a soldier?

Sallay Goba: He was in combat.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you Commissioner Kamara for those questions. I have a few more questions for you Mama Sallay. In your testimony, you mentioned your son and your daughter; we will like to know whether you have any other children.

Sallay Goba: I have five grand children.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are they all living with you, currently?

Sallay Goba: They are all going to school. They do not live with me because I don't have the upper hand to take care of them; they are living with my brothers and sisters.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mama Sallay, you told us that when you left the hospital you went to a camp. Can you tell us where the camp is; is it in Bo or outside Bo?

Sallay Goba: We were at the camp that was in the compound of the water supply company on Tikonko road.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How long did you stay in the camp, Mama Sallay?

Sallay Goba: We spent nearly a year there.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What organization was taking care of you in the camp?

Sallay Goba: We were taken care of by MSF.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you Mama Sallay, final question. You have told us that you are destitute; how are you being supported - who supports you right now?

Sallay Goba: I am destitute and I depend on God. I have nothing doing. I have not got the means of even beginning petty trade.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Are you a member of the amputee association in Bo?

Sallay Goba: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do they provide any help?

Sallay Goba: We go around begging, but we have had no help from the association.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much. Leader of Evidence, do you have any questions?

Leader of Evidence: No questions Ma.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mama Sallay thank you very much for your corporation with the commission. Not only have you told us your story, but you also gave us time by answering all our questions. Do you have any recommendations or questions?

Sallay Goba: I will like to make a request. I am appealing for assistance; giving my current state.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Mama Sallay, the commission has a mandate and part of that mandate is to respond to the needs of victims. You are, indeed, a victim and one of the reasons we have asked you to come here is to hear from you and to ask you to make recommendations. Some amputees like you have also appeared before the commission narrated similar stories and made recommendations to the commission. So at the end of our assignment, we will make a report and submit it to government and we hope to make very valuable recommendations which, when implemented, will definitely improve the conditions of people like you as well as ensuring a better life for those who will come after us. So Mama Sallay, once again, I will like to thank you and I will ask you to stand down.

7th Witness: Andrew Cooper

The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by commissioner Jow.

ANDREW COOPER'S TESTIMONY

On April 24th 1995 I was travelling to Freetown to buy drinks. I was representing my grandfather a distributor of drinks. We saw a pick up van going towards Masiaka. After one hour we were told to use the road as it was safe. By the time we got to Masiaka we came under heavy firing. The bullet hit me on my foot and seriously damaged it. The other passenger came down and ran away. I managed to come down from the vehicle and lay at the side of the road. Most of the people I saw were soldiers and I knew. One of the soldiers was asking the other why he fired at me and he said he was trying to fire at the tyre and the bullet hit me. Whilst all this was going on, the others were off loading the vehicle. They told me to tell all those wishing to travel not to use that road. They complained that while they were there suffering their colleagues were in town enjoying and that they too wanted to celebrate the 3rd anniversary of the NPRC. When they were off loading the loads out of my vehicle they saw my bag containing 21 Million Leones. They started arguing as to who should take the money bag and the one who shot at me said he should have the bag. They decided to burn down my vehicle but one of them said "we have shut this boy let us don't burn down his vehicle". Then one said if we don't burn down this vehicle they will say the act was done by soldiers but if we burn down the vehicle people will say it was done by rebels. As we approached the bridge when they heard the sound of a vehicle they commanded everybody to go in to the bush. By the time the van got close they launched an RPG at it. They went into the vehicle and took everything out. There was a container at the side of the vehicle which contained fuel. They sprinkled it on the passengers in the vehicle and lit them up. Two people survived. One was a pregnant woman and the other a suckling mother. There was another vehicle travelling in the same direction. By the time the vehicle was going down the hill we saw it burning. They then opened firing again and went to the vehicle. I was still lying down at the side of the road with the pregnant woman and the suckling mother and her child till the following day. On the following day at about 11:00am we saw vehicles escorted by the military. I cried out for them to come to my aid and they said I was either a rebel or bait used by the rebels. They passed on and left me still lying there. They had wanted to kill me but one driver asked why they should kill me after burning my vehicle. He packed his vehicle in the middle of the road and helped me into the vehicle. They wanted to help the two women but we were not going the same direction. When the soldiers saw me they were surprised as they were expecting me to be dead. At the Bo government hospital, a Dr. Bangura finally amputated my leg. The following day some local journalist of FM 104 and some other reporters for BBC came to see me and I narrated everything to them. The brigade commander also came to see me at the hospital and asked me this question "Did you say you were ambushed by soldiers". I said yes. I know three of them. The Commander then said even the rebels wear military combat why do you then say that your attackers were soldiers. I said I recognised my attackers and if taken to the scene were the incident took place I will be in the position to identify them. He threatened me saying I was a wounded lion. I was in the hospital until I was discharged.

In February 1998, the juntas and rebels came and drove everybody out of Bo. I could not escape because of my condition. They asked me for money. They were still dragging me even when I told them I had nothing. After that they looted everything I had on me.

One Lt. Johnson came and rescued me, he gave me back my eight battery cassette player tape. He said he did not want to see any soldier around my dwellings and they all left.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say that a military truck passed you?

Andrew Cooper: Yes. By the time we got to camp Charlie at 9:00am they said they were going to check if the road was safe.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do you know the soldiers by name?

Andrew Cooper: No.

Comm. Bishop Humper: If you see them can you identify them?

Andrew Cooper: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you say that when they brought you to the Bo government Hospital Col. Tom Carew came to see you?

Andrew Cooper: Yes

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did he see you?

Andrew Cooper: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What did he say to you?

Andrew Cooper: He asked me "Did you say that soldiers ambushed you"? And I said 'Yes'.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Are you implying that Dr. Bangura amputated you in order to save you?

Andrew Cooper: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You have mentioned Col. Tom Carew in 1995. On this incident in 1998, was he still in Bo?

Andrew Cooper: He was not there at that time. There was one Boisy Palmer he was the Commander and one Mr. Sesay who was the Resident Minister.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Do you know where Col. Carew is now?

Andrew Cooper: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Who conducted the BBC interview here in Bo?

Andrew Cooper: The current reporter for BBC in Guinea.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What exactly did you tell him?

Andrew Cooper: I told him everything I have just said here.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: According to your statement Col. Carew asked you to withdraw your statement. Did you withdraw your statement?

Andrew Cooper: No.

Leader of Evidence: After the soldiers approached the second vehicle where did they go to?

Andrew Cooper: They went back into the bush.

Leader of Evidence: When the brigade commander came to the hospital you offered to make identification. Did he allow you?

Andrew Cooper: No.

Leader of Evidence: Were there any witnesses when the Col. came around?

Andrew Cooper: No. I was placed in a cubicle in the hospital.

Leader of Evidence: Did he tell you what measures will be taken against the soldiers?

Andrew Cooper: No. He only removed them from that position.

Jow Andrew, we have asked you a lot of questions, do you have any questions to ask us or any recommendations to make

Andrew Cooper: I have no questions.

I was telling the Regional Coordinator that we the amputees were afraid to come to the hearings for security purpose. What security measures have been put in place for amputees who show up at the hearings?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The government of this country is supporting the TRC. Therefore the commission depends on the government to provide any kind of security for anybody. Apart from security all round the country. Any witness who comes before the commission to give evidence has maximum security. You can be rest assured that within the mandate given to us we are enjoying the cooperation of the army and police. I want you to tell your brothers and sister to come to the commission without any fear.

8th Witness: Samuel Senessie.

The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Pffessor Kamara administered the oath.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Mr. Senessie, you are here, as you know, to tell the commission and everybody present about what you went through in 1996. We are asking you to have no fear about what the consequences of your testimony will be. Please feel relaxed, comfortable and just tell us your story in the way you would like to tell it as long as it is complete and truthful. You may now begin.

SAMUEL SENESSIE'S TESTIMONY

We were at Benduma one morning when people attacked us. I jumped through the window into the coffee plantations. All of us – my mother, sisters and I – went into the coffee plantations. My elder brother, Braima Senessie, was at Fawoma while we were at Gboyama. While we were at Gboyama, Braima came and requested that his wife and child go with him to Fawoma. The wife refused to go with him and rather suggested that he could go with the child if he chose. He gave his child a country cloth and they left. On their way to Fawoma, they fell into a rebel ambush at Benduma. That was where they killed Braima – they slit his stomach. The rebels took the child away. We could not bury Braima. When the threat lessened, we went into the bush camp at Fawoma. We were there, but a swampland separated us from grandfather. Our grandfather was and others were at one end and we were at the other end of the swamp. One night, we heard three gunshots. Little did we know that they had killed our grandfather and his wife – his wife was about three months' pregnant. They disembowelled her belly and took the child out. We were unable to bury them. We left the farm hut where we were and went into the bush. We lived in the bush until we found our way to Bo. WHILE IN Bo, we fetched fire wood that we sold in order to buy food. That was what we were doing until the war subsided and we returned to our village.

In addition to killing my brother and grand parents, they also destroyed the roof of our house that was used for garri processing. This is the end of my testimony.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you very much, Senessie. You have been cooperating and you continue to cooperate with us – we commend you. For the losses that you suffered, we sympathise with you very much. We know that the story you have told us is complete, but we need to ask you a few questions in order to clarify some aspects of it. I would like to start by asking the other members of the commission to ask you any questions that they may have.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Senessie, I have only one question for you. Is it still true that your brother's son that was taken away has not been seen?

Samuel Senessie: We still do not know his whereabouts.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Samuel, how did you know that those that attacked you were rebels?

Samuel Senessie: I know because rebels attacked us and we ran away.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us who gave you the information? You were not there.

Samuel Senessie: If people were shouting that rebels had attacked and they were running helter-skelter, would you have stood there to ask questions?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What was the status of your brother in the village – did he belong to a fighting group?

Samuel Senessie: He was the head of our household. By the time they killed him, the Kamajor initiations had not started. We were all civilians.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Currently, where is your brother's wife?

Samuel Senessie: She is still at home; she has not left the house.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Would she like to come and testify before the commission?

Samuel Senessie: They all asked me to come and testify on their behalf.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you. Senessie, I am a little confused here. These towns – Benduma and Bendema – are they different places or the same place spelt wrongly during the statement taking?

Samuel Senessie: I am resident in Benduma.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now, you are talking about 1996. During that period – they used to send soldiers to locations in order to protect the people in the area. Did they send soldiers to protect your area?

Samuel Senessie: In Benduma, there were no soldiers.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Were soldiers ever sent there at any time during the war?

Samuel Senessie: Excepting that the soldiers passed through the town in a vehicle, they never settled there to protect us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Did Benduma contribute to the CDF in the district?

Samuel Senessie: Yes, they did, but later. After the rebels had entrapped us and killed many of our relatives, one of our brothers that was a Kamajor priest went to the chiefdom. We were asked to return to the village; he defended us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: What year was that – can you remember?

Samuel Senessie: We spent a year in Bo, and we returned to our village the following year.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: That was after the incident you are describing to us had taken place.

Samuel Senessie: Yes, that incident took place before the introduction of the Kamajor society in our town.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Were you in Benduma throughout the war?

Samuel Senessie: When they killed my brother and grand parents, my mother, other relatives and I went into the bush and we were there until we arrived in Bo.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And you stayed in Bo until the end of the war.

Samuel Senessie: Yes

Comm. Prof. Kamara: When did you go back to the village?

Samuel Senessie: I cannot remember the date. However, this is the fifth year since I returned to the village.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Was it when you returned that you found out that your home had been destroyed?

Samuel Senessie: That was when I found out because that was when I went there.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Where are you staying now, or have you rebuilt your home?

Samuel Senessie: I have built a house that is roofed with thatch and that is where I live.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right - thank you.

Leader of Evidence: I just have one question for the witness. Mr. Senessie, I just want to know the names of your grand father and his wife who you said they killed.

Samuel Senessie: My grand father was Kpana and his wife was Yema Kpana.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, Mr. Senessie, you have given us all this narrative and we have asked you all these questions – do you have any question to ask us?

Samuel Senessie: Yes, I have something to say. Our parents gave birth to two sons only, and my elder brother had been killed; my grand parents were also killed. We could not perform a fitting burial ceremony for them. I am asking the government to help us to undertake the funeral ceremonies.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, if that is all that you have, we thank you very much for your cooperation. We have noted your concern and what you would want to be done for you. However, if you were here during the testimony of the previous witness – I will like to repeat what I told him. There are a lot of things that have been left undone because of the confusion, destruction and perpetrations that took place during the conflict. We hope that before we are through, an attempt would be made to at least do those things that are necessary. I would, however, like to say that in the case of funeral ceremonies, it may not be possible to have every individual ceremony attended to. In the chiefdoms, districts or at the national level, something would be done to appease the dead and set the souls of the departed at peace. Therefore, we hope that, in time, something would be done that would set your mind at rest. We then want to thank you very much for what you have done this day and hope that you would, in time, discover the benefit it would bring to you and the nation. Thank you very much. You may now step down.

1ST Witness: James Gibrilla

The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Bishop Humper administered the oath.

Comm. Bishop Humper: James, we welcome you to this session here today. The commission has received well over seven thousand statements from all over the country and I will say that there was a substantial contribution from Bo district. To our greatest surprise, many would have loved to come to the public hearings, but we had to select a representative session and you now happen to be fortunate ones to come and help us and also the nation. You are before your family; you are before your people, so you must feel relaxed to say whatever you want to say before us this morning. Tell us nothing short of what you are supposed to tell us. We now invite you to give your testimony.

JAMES GIBRILLA'S TESTIMONY

At one time we were in the village when we heard that the rebels were coming towards Baoya in Njala Komborya from Borkor. We went to town at once in order to collect our belongings; little did we know that the rebels had come to the village and were in an ambush. When I got into the house and wanted to take out my belongings, I was arrested. They accused me of being a soldier. I was paraded in the village; they flogged me and meted out other types of punishment as we went round the village. I told them that I was not a soldier and they asked me to prove that I was not a soldier. I told them that the chief in that village knew me. I assured them that if the chief came and said that I had been out of that village for even two consecutive years, then their allegation that I was a soldier would be confirmed. They invited the chief whose testimony corroborated my argument; they set me free. In spite of the fact that they had flogged me, I was glad that they released me. I attempted to leave the village at once. We did not realise that the rebels were not sincere to us. On 20th September that year, they came in large numbers from Borkor and attacked Baoya in the evening. They arrested my brother, James Nabieu. The rebels accused him of dodging them in the past, and they vowed that they would not release him; they tied him. By then, I was also in their custody, but they had not done any harm to me. That night, James was beaten to death. The reason that the rebels put forward was that James had escaped twice when he was captured and asked to transport goods. They added that that was to serve as a lesson for those of us who were in their custody; that if any one escaped and he was caught, he would suffer death. They put dried palm fronds on him and burnt him as though he were a goat. After that, we collected a few items and set out to settle in Bo. My mother went towards Mongere. When she arrived at a river near Mongere, she was so terrified that in spite of the swelling, she jumped into the river. She was rescued by some men who later arrived at the scene. After she was rescued, she slept in that village. I went through Blama towards Nengbema. After the incident, my mother fell sick and died in less than one month from the time of the incident. While I was trying to escape, I was captured by the rebels again around Blama. Gabriel Gibrilla, my brother, was also abducted. I was with the rebels for eleven days at Konjo-Ngiyehun; I escaped from them. My brother could not escape and unto this day, none of us know anything about his whereabouts. His wives and children are staying with me. However, I find it difficult to take care of the children's education. My other brother, Karimu, together with whom I lived at Baoya, was killed at Kauwandor; they beheaded him and placed his head on a drum. The rebel who abducted me and with whom I lived at Konjo-Ngiyehun was called Sergeant Yorpoi. That was what happened to me in the course of the war.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have heard this awesome experience of yours – James. I will want to ask my colleague commissioners if they have a few things for you to clarify for them. But before that, I want to ask this question so that I will set the context in which to ask questions for clarifications. In your testimony, you persistently referred to “they”; who are “they”? At some point you mentioned a name, but we want to know who “they” refer to.

James Gibrilla: I was referring to he rebels.

Comm. Bishop Humper: All right, my colleagues will now engage you.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you, Mr. Gibrilla, for coming to give us everything that you went through during the war. As the chairman said, we need to go back to you so that you can clarify some of the information you have given to us. How many times were you abducted? Because each time they caught you, you seemed to have had the ability to escape.

James Gibrilla: I was abducted twice.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Twice! Was the first one when you were at Baoya?

James Gibrilla: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And then when was the second abduction?

James Gibrilla: I was moving towards Blama with the intention of coming to Bo when I was abducted again.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now, you also mentioned the killing of your brother; how many of your brothers were killed?

James Gibrilla: They killed two of my brothers and they abducted one; I don't know whether he is still alive.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, thank you. In what year did you escape for the last time? Was it the same year – 1994?

James Gibrilla: It was between 1995 and 1995.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: And since then, you have lived in Bo?

James Gibrilla: I was here unto 1996 and, when I heard that they were no longer around, I returned to the village; Baoya.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Between 1996 to the end of the war – when you returned – did you receive any protection in Baoya?

James Gibrilla: Yes.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Who were the people; what form of protection did you receive?

James Gibrilla: At that time, the Kamajors protected us.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: When you returned in 1996 and had this protection, was Baoya attacked again?

James Gibrilla: When they heard that the Kamajors were around they were scared and they never attacked the village again.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: All right, thank you.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you for your testimony. I will also ask a few questions for clarification purposes. In your testimony, you did say that your village was attacked by the rebels. Apart from abducting young people like you, what else did the rebels do to the town?

James Gibrilla: When they attacked on 20th September, they burnt sixteen houses; it was a fairly large village – a hamlet.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What about the second attack; was there similar looting and destruction of property?

James Gibrilla: They were setting fire to rice bands; it was during that confusion that I escaped.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: James, in your testimony, you also said that you were accused of being an SLA soldier; did you have any connections with the SLA or any other group in the village?

James Gibrilla: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that when they abducted you, they took you away; for how long did you stay with them?

James Gibrilla: I was with them for eleven days.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: How many people were in the group; people who were abducted?

James Gibrilla: Three of us were abducted from Baoya.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Apart from household chores and carrying loads for the rebels, what else did you do for them?

James Gibrilla: We pounded husk rice and leaves like cassava leaves for them; we did not cook – they cooked their food; the women.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did they train you in warfare?

James Gibrilla: No; they did not even allow us to get close to the guns.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you see them commit any other violations when you were with them?

James Gibrilla: Excepting the use of obscenities, I did not take note of any other violations.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: But for those eleven days you were with the rebels all time; were you not?

James Gibrilla: Yes, but if they saw husk rice or any other items that they wanted, they would send us to bring them to the base. In fact, it was during one of such times that I escaped.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What did you see them do during those eleven days; what were their activities around you?

James Gibrilla: Well, I saw their colleagues come from Bandahor and I also saw them communicate; they had communication sets and I always heard them say that they had messages. However, they always kept a distance and did not allow us to get close to them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Did you hear them call themselves by name or nickname?

James Gibrilla: I heard names like Sergeant, Born Trouble, and Poison.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you tell us something more about the sergeant you – Yorpoi – you mentioned in your testimony?

James Gibrilla: He gave me a hundred and twenty cups of rice to a village by the Sewa River; I did not know the village so I escaped.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Finally, Gibrilla, you mentioned three brothers in your testimony; am I right?

James Gibrilla: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: One was killed; am I right?

James Gibrilla: One of them also escaped and met me in Bo.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You said that one was abducted and he has not appeared since then

James Gibrilla: Yes.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Do you have any idea where he is?

James Gibrilla: No.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you made any effort to trace him?

James Gibrilla: I have investigated from sorcerers; they have told me that he is still alive, but I don not know his whereabouts.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: One of your brothers was tortured and released; where is he currently?

James Gibrilla: I mentioned it in my testimony that the cut off his head; we buried him.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you Gibrilla for your answers.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We will continue to clarify some more points that you mentioned. Your testimony is not long, but it is very important to the commission. Where was your mother when she tried to run away.

James Gibrilla: She was at Baoya and she was trying to escape and come to Bo so that she could move to Mandu; she fell in the river near Golahun.

Comm. Bishop Humper: You said that you spent eleven days with the rebels; is that right?

James Gibrilla: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What was the composition of you who were captured; were there women, boys or girls?

James Gibrilla: We were there with some women. They used to keep us – men – in the mosque; they locked us in.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What did they do to those women?

James Gibrilla: They were also locked up in the church; they let everybody out in the morning.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you see boys among them?

James Gibrilla: Yes there were boys among them who abducted in Makeni; they were Temne boys.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Did you experience anything happening to the girls or the women in the camp?

James Gibrilla: I did not see them do anything to them.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Now we come to the year. You said that this incident happened in 1994.

James Gibrilla: That was when the first attacked us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: And you said that the SLA was frustrating the RUF.

James Gibrilla: I spoke about the Kamajors.

Comm. Bishop Humper: They were Kamajors and not RUF?

James Gibrilla: The Kamajors were providing protection for us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: James, let us get the story straight. This is what I am saying. Did you say that the SLA soldiers accused you of being a rebel?

James Gibrilla: It was the rebels that accused me of being a soldier.

Comm. Bishop Humper: The soldiers or rebels; who were your captors?

James Gibrilla: The rebels captured me and told me that they were actually rebels.

Comm. Bishop Humper: So by this you are saying that the RUF did not want to see the soldiers; they were enemies?

James Gibrilla: That was what they were saying to us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Was there any other time, after 1994, that you discovered that something else had developed among them – in terms of relationship.

James Gibrilla: I did not witness anything like that.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you James. I will now call on the leader of evidence if he has any questions for clarification.

Leader Of Evidence: Thank you chair person. James I have just a few questions for you. Your two brothers who died; could you give me their names?

James Gibrilla: James Nabieu and Karimu Alpha.

Leader Of Evidence: What about your mother's name?

James Gibrilla: Mamidi Gibrilla.

Leader Of Evidence: Finally, this sergeant Yorpoi; do you know where he is now?

James Gibrilla: No; since I escaped from him, I have not seen him.

Leader Of Evidence: Among those rebels who arrested and tortured you, have you seen any one of them in the recent past?

James Gibrilla: No, I have not.

Leader Of Evidence: Thank you very much James. That is all, Commissioner.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you for all the clarifications you have made. Our process is to get the witness to clarify his testimony so that we will get a clear picture of what you are saying. Now it is your turn to ask questions, make recommendations or get us to clarify issues that relate to our work.

James Gibrilla: I have the children of my brother who was abducted and the children of the one who was killed. They children are going to school and I find it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to sponsor their education. I am asking for assistance in this area.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is that all?

James Gibrilla: That is all.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you, James. Part of our work is to look into some of the issues that you have raised. Our mandate does not cover dealing with individual cases. If I got you right, the issues you raised constitute two recommendations; one is educational facility for children and the second is medical services. The commission will take these and other related issues into consideration. Even while the commission is still carrying on with its work, I will like to share with the audience this vital information. It is the objective of the government to establish community health centres in every part of the country. It is my understanding that in most of the villages there is what we call cost recovery systems. I am saying this because I want you to know that such facilities exist. But please do not go to that medical centre and say the chairman of the commission has sent me here. I am saying what we should all do together in order to help this country, and I hope that we will all work together to make a better Sierra Leone. Once more, I thank you very much. You may now step down.

2ND Witness: Paramount Chief Alfred Lamboi Foray

The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Bishop Humper administered the oath.

Comm. Bishop Humper: P. C Lamboi Foray we want to welcome you in a special way to this session. It will go into the records of the commission that you are the first Paramount Chief to testify at the commission's public hearings. You are opening the gate for all other Paramount Chiefs to come before this commission when deemed necessary. This commission will not complete its work without paying special attention to Paramount Chiefs - in a way. We will want to have a reasonable portion of the information that we need to come from Paramount Chiefs. We want you to know that you are a symbolic representation of all the Paramount Chiefs; you are representing them as they listen to you this morning. We ask that you be cool and relaxed as you give your testimony. P.C we will now like to listen to your testimony.

PARAMOUNT CHIEF ALFRED LAMBOI FORAY'S TESTIMONY

Chairman of the commission, I wish to testify the truth. Since the commission has begun its work, I have not heard that a paramount chief has testified at the commission's hearings, but I manifested my desire to testify. Now I will start my testimony. By the end of 1994 and early 1995 {not sure of the exact date}, I was in my house one morning when my local militia men came to my house and told me that the rebels had attacked one of the villages – Nagbema - in my chiefdom. I had deployed my local militia, before the advent of the Kamajor movement, to keep watch in the chiefdom and inform me about any rebel threat or attack. They told me that the rebels had gone to Nagbema, captured eight {8} goats and that the rebels were preparing the goats for food by the time they left the village. In addition to that, the militia reported that the rebels had captured and tied people as they prepared their food. The rebels had further stated that they would head for Gbaima when they would have finished eating. Indeed, it happened exactly as the militia reported; they attacked Gbaima. However, before the rebels arrived at Gbaima, I had left the village and gone to the highway when I heard the news of their potential attack. I was lucky to have seen the project manager of SALCOST, Pically - he was going to Taiama; he arrived at the scene where I was by 6:30 a.m. I stopped him, went close to the vehicle and told him that I had been informed about the potential attack of the rebels on Gbaima and their plan to proceed to the quarry. I then asked him to make a u-turn so that he could take me to Bo in order that I make a report. He did as I told him, and we arrived at the Brigade Headquarters in Bo by 8.a.m. I reported to the Brigade Commander, K.E.S Boya, that the rebels were due to enter into Gbaima by 10 a.m and I requested that he gave me soldiers so that they deploy at a strategic point on the route that the rebels would use; I had been reliably informed on the route that they intended to use. Pically and I made the report. K.E.S Boya told us to wait. While we were waiting, I went to the District Officer, the Commissioner for Police and the Secretary of State, Williams, and made reports. After all, I went back to the Brigade Headquarters. Mr. Commissioner, I must tell you that this war was "a chameleon war". The soldiers were not sincere. The Brigade Commander did not assign soldiers to respond to our report until after 10.30 a.m; by then the rebels had attacked Gbaima and caused a lot of havoc; my belongings were scattered all over the place. By the time the soldiers got to Gbaima, the rebels had left. The soldiers were seated on my veranda. I realised that they had killed my personal bodyguard, Francis Musa, and five other people. When we were going to Gbaima, from Bo, the soldiers that I was travelling with and who were to forestall the rebels' attack on Gbaima, disembarked from the vehicle seven miles to Gbaima. They asked their driver to move ahead; the rebels killed the driver and burnt down the vehicle. When I asked what their disembarking was supposed to mean, especially noting the fact that the rebels might have attacked the village, their response was that I had no business asking them: "Chief, you have no hands in our work. As long as you have made the report, leave us to do things our own way - this is a rebel war and this is what we have decided to do". I could not get to Gbaima that day. Three days later, I resolved, in spite of the security threats, to go to Gbaima and see what had happened. Gbaima is the chiefdom headquarters and, besides that, I had left my wife and children there when I went to make the report in Bo. My wife and children had gone into the bush and they were in Senahun. I went there and collected my wife and children in the vehicle that was given to me by SALCOST. I then went to Gbaima where I found out the deaths that I have mentioned. I then decided to go back to Bo, get some shroud in order to bury the dead. It was on that day that they attacked SALCOST and Molendeh - I had passed through that village in the morning and there was no security upheaval. By the time I was going to Bo that same day, I realised that the village had been attacked. A man came from the bush - unto the street - when he heard the sound of the vehicle, stopped the vehicle and pointed at Molendeh. That man advised me to return to Gbaima lest I am killed. The driver made a quick u-turn and we returned to Gbaima. I told the soldiers who had been sent to protect us that the rebels had attacked Molendeh and they were heading for the quarry and that they should get ready presently so that we could go there and stop the rebels. Talking to them was like pouring water on duck back. They had cooked the rice that they had taken from my store and the goats that they slaughtered and were eating; they did not listen to me. I did not attempt to scold them; I went towards Taiama so that I could warn any vehicle that was moving towards Bo to get back to Taiama junction where we would all converge. We passed the night in Taiama and, by 4 p.m the following day – Saturday – I saw Carew, the current Chief of Defence Staff; I think he was a Major. He brought all the vehicles that were in Taiama to Bo - in a military convoy. They burnt all my houses and properties in my hometown; I do not have a house there now. My daughter had sent sixty five thousand dollars {$65,000} so that I could buy a house for her; they took everything including five hundred thousand Leone {Le 500,000} which was my personal money. They carted a lot of other things away. As though that was not enough, they killed my son who was a soldier; he was a lieutenant. These are the documents of my late son {presented the documents to the Commission}. I have been to the ministry repeatedly; the paper inside that file was the only thing that they gave to me. They have money to the tune of seventy five thousand, but nobody has been willing to talk to me about it. When they came to Bo, everybody fled, but since I could not, I was in my house when they went there; two of them. They enquired who I was, and I told them that I was a watchman. They said “your bloody fool, watchman; you get dollar” and I said that I did not understand what they were saying. When they insulted me, I thanked them because I wanted to prove to them that I did not understand what they were saying. They damaged two of the doors on the house at the back of my compound; I was seated on the veranda desk. They went into the house, brought out two pairs of jeans and they asked me to take into my room, but I told them that I was a watchman. They would ask me to open a door and when I did and they entered, I would say “watchman sir” and they would say “fuck off”. They took a radio from one of the rooms, but when they realised that it was not good, they threw it at me and abused me. As they were going, they fired a shot and I thought that they had shot at the house because the sound was too heavy. I went out and maintained an expression of despondence on my face; I made sure that they saw me. They insulted me and promised that they would not harm; they returned to me and bade me farewell. I made bold to tell them that I had gone for two days without food and that I was hungry; they took out a five hundred Leone note and threw it at me. That was what happened to me during the war. I had a hundred and fifty cows and they killed of them; I had forty-five goats and seventy sheep in Gbaima town; the soldiers ate all. They took away all my personal effects. They turned my chieftom up side down; they killed many people there. Three chiefs ran into the bush and, unto this day, we do not know their whereabouts. There is not a village where they did not burn a house. That is our trouble in Gboo chieftom.

Comm. Bishop Humper: paramount Chief Lamboi Foray, we share your grief, loss and suffering. As chairman of the commission and you being the first Paramount Chief to testify before this commission, I will start by asking a question for clarification and then ask my colleagues to do the same; I may come to you later. Chief, we want you to clarify the expression - that critical and crucial – “this war was a chameleon war”. What does it mean? I am asking you this question because my understanding of a chameleon is that it changes colour with the environment it finds itself. Now, chief, what are you trying to tell us; please educate us.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: When I said that this war was a chameleon war, there were soldiers who were supposed to be protecting this nation, yet they were rebels. They would kill any soldier who prosecuted the war honestly and sincerely in the interest of the nation. My son is an example. I am, myself, an old soldier; I went to Burma. The war we fought was different from the war that we have just experienced. They told us that we should report every security issue to them; I was at the brigade headquarters for over five hours before they could release soldiers to go with. That was why I said “this was a chameleon war”.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you chief; I will now have my colleagues to engage you for the moment.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you very much, chief. You are the first to have come out very frankly and definitely to give us an opinion on the relationship between the military and the people they were meant to protect. When you used the expression “not honest”, I was going to ask you to give an example of dishonesty among soldiers. However, you have now explained by using what I consider a stronger word; that they were chameleonic – they were changeable. In one case, they were soldiers and in another case, they were rebels and no wonder that people in this country were saying “sobels”. So chief you have a very strong conviction that those soldiers that went after your report to protect Gbaima were the people who were destroying the place.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They changed completely. In fact, they were the ones that were looting our property and bringing them to Bo. They even built stores; Williams, the Secretary of State, had a separate store where his own shares of looted items were kept.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: For how long did they stay in Gbaima?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They were there for some time; I left them there. When my daughter heard that they had attacked and, in fact, killed me, she spoke to the police and they went to tell me that my daughter wanted to talk to me. My daughter sent a ticket for me to go abroad; I did not return to this country until June 1st. I met soldiers in the town; a different set of soldiers. They were there for about two years.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So when you went back, you were again forced to leave – is that correct? The time you went through Taiama to go to Freetown.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: When I returned, they had burnt down my house and I did not have a place to sleep in Gbaima, so I only visit the town from Bo.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: So it was not because the military had returned to Gbaima?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I had left Gbaima since I came to report the potential rebel attack on the town; the soldiers that were sent to the town were worse than rebels because they looted our property. I only went there to see how things were going.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Chief, are you saying that when the rebels left Gbaima, the rebels took their place.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: what I want to tell the commission is that on the day the rebels attacked and destroyed Gbaima and took away a lot of women whom they used as sex slaves in the bush, that was the same day that I came to ask for soldiers to defend Gbaima.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Yes, but after that, the soldiers went and occupied Gbaima and also destroyed, looted and caused a lot of damage; then they left. Did the rebels come back after that?

Comm. Prof. Kamara: The rebels went there intermittently; if they were moving towards Bo, from Freetown, they would stop at Gbaima and cause a few havocs and the same thing happened if they were moving towards Freetown or Makeni, from Bo. Gbaima is on the main road.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Tell us what happened at Taiama. You got to Taiama and found Carew, Major Carew at that time. Was he the one who helped you to get a transport to go to Freetown?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Carew was resident in Koribondo. He led a convoy of vehicles that went to Freetown. When he went on that day, he arrived at Taiama junction by 4 p.m and brought the vehicles at Taiama junction in a convoy to Bo.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Now again, I want you to clarify the statement you made about your son. Your son, you said, was killed; who killed him?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The soldiers killed him in Pujehun.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: You are saying that they killed him because he was not treacherous; he was trying to be a sincere soldier?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Exactly.

Comm. Prof. Kamara: Thank you very much.

Jow; Paramount chief, I join the other commissioners in welcoming you here, and I thank you for coming to speak on behalf of your chieftom and, in fact, the whole nation. I will just ask a few questions. In your opinion, chief, who did more damage during the war? Was it the rebels or the soldiers?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They caused equal percentage of harm.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You did mention in your testimony that when you were coming you saw a number of corpses among which was your personal guard, Foday Musa. Who was responsible for killing those people?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The soldiers were not there; the wee killed by the rebels that attacked the town; nine of them – three females and six males. They were buried by the soldiers in a mass grave; three to a grave.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: You have told us also that your son was a plateau commander in Pujehun; did he die in Pujehun?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They killed him in Pujehun.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: We know that you were not present, but do you know how he was killed?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: He was in a vehicle together with his men and they went on inspection; the soldiers they met killed all four of them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Can you clarify this further? Were they killed by other soldiers or by rebels?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Soldiers killed them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Were you able to recover his body for fitting burial?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They brought his corpse to the mortuary in Bo and they sent to call me in Gbaima. I came to Bo and requested that Brigadier Gottor, the Force Commander, give me his corpse so that I could bury him. Brigadier Gottor refuse to give me the corpse; he said that my son was a hero and therefore they buried him at the war grave.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Have you visited the site since his burial?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I was there when they buried him.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: The other thing I will like to know, chief, is the state of recovery in your chieftom. There was a lot of destruction, a lot of looting; what has been the state of recovery in your chieftom? Have people been able to reconstruct their houses and get on with life?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The war has ended and we have been asked to return to our villages. Those whose houses were burnt have constructed huts. Nothing has been done; there is hunger and other problems, no money and no NGO have been there to help us. Before the war every important personality that passed through Gbaima would enter into the town on sight seeing, if I invite you to Gbaima now – I invited the president - you will realise the height of the destruction that they caused to it.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Paramount Chief, do you believe in reconciliation?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: What about the people in your chieftom, are they ready to reconcile – have they started doing it? Are people ready to forgive?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The government is like an umbrella; it covers all of us. We do not know that caused the destruction in our chieftom, but if we see them, we will embrace them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much, chief.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Paramount chief, we want to continue to thank you for your resilience, courage and your acute perception of events and accurate recording of same. As I said earlier, you are the first paramount chief to come to this commission and you are going to be the first paramount chief to open the doorway for others to follow suit. Chief I want to ask this question for information. Have you been attending the sessions since we started on Tuesday?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: well, not all.

Comm. Bishop Humber: Paramount chief, do you know anybody by the name of Sheku Macauley, from Gbaima?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes, I was here when he testified at one of your sessions.

Comm. Bishop Humber: And did you listen to him carefully?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I was very perturbed when I listened to his testimony that day; I did not expect to have said all what he said given the fact that he is a section chief.

Comm. Bishop Humber: I am asking this question for information. Were you here when he was testifying?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humber: And you heard what he said?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humber: That is all we want to know at this moment. The next point is that you came here to the brigade when the rebels attacked you; what year was that?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Between 1994 and 1995.

Comm. Bishop Humber: It means that those who were here as secretary of state and provincial secretary have their names in the records, is that so?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much. That was what I wanted you to clarify for us. Chief, when do you think that SLA and rebels became comrades in arm?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: 1994.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much. Chief, by mentioning Major Carew's name, are you, by that reference, inferring that, in fact, Major Carew would know the soldiers that were stationed this area at that time, or he would have knowledge of some of them and would know them by name.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The names I have mentioned are the ones of those that were in high offices and with whom I used to meet.

Comm. Bishop Humper: All right, let me ask you another question for clarification. The Major Carew you are talking about – is he still around?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: He is the Chief of Defence Staff.

Comm. Bishop Humper: All right, thank you very much, chief. He should know the soldiers that were deployed in in this area. Do you think that he has knowledge of those people?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: K.E.S Boya, Carew – Carew was in Koribondo and he used to come to Bo in order to help K.E.S Boya. Those two names that I have mentioned would know the soldiers that were deployed here.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, chief.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: And Williams, former secretary of state.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Would you like us to bring them together so that you could come together?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do you know some of your colleague Paramount Chiefs that have similar experiences? Have you heard of them or have they told you some of their stories?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: If it is the desire of each and everyone to sincerely have peace in this country, I do not believe that there is a chief – excepting those that died – that did not suffer in one way or the other.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, chief. What we want to know is whether there are one or two of your colleague Paramount Chiefs that had shared their ordeals with you, or with who you have shared your ordeal.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I shared my ordeal with our late Honourable Paramount Chief J.K. Boima.

Comm. Bishop Humper: O.K., ha is dead, but did you tell any other person, even if in passing?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No, I discussed it with no other chief.

Comm. Bishop Humper: All right, thank you very much. Leader of Evidence!

Leader of Evidence: I wish to clarify your testimony if you do not mind. You told the commission that those soldiers that went to Gbaima ate all your animals and the food you had. Did they pay for them?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No, I was not there and they grabbed everything.

Leader of Evidence: Did you have the opportunity of complaining to somebody in higher authority, like when Major Carew gave you a ride?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: When the rebels were at Mongere, I asked SALCOST for a vehicle in which I packed all the things that I cherished. The soldiers stopped the vehicle at the brigade headquarters and asked the driver to return with the items to Gbaima. This happened at a time when I was in town to make a report to the Provincial Secretary. When the soldiers went to Gbaima, they looted all my property.

Leader of Evidence: Let me understand this, chief. You took a vehicle, went to Gbaima, got your most important properties and brought them to the brigade headquarters.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes, that was before the attack on Gbaima.

Leader of Evidence: Yes - before the rebels attacked. Right there at brigade headquarters they sent the vehicle back. Who was driving the vehicle?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: SALCOST gave me a driver.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you. So the soldiers sent the vehicle back to Gbaima.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Back to Gbaima!

Leader of Evidence: When, at that point, it was obvious that there would be nobody to protect that property?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes. They met the window open and they threw the properties into my house. At the end, they were afraid of a lieutenant whose name I cannot recall. The lieutenant had driven with me so that I could show him the direction from which the rebels went into the town. That was what they did for me.

Leader of Evidence: If I heard you right, sir, you are saying that this was before K.E.S Boya and Captain Kamara.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Captain Kamara was the ringleader; he sent the vehicle back.

Leader of Evidence: So, a senior officer of the Sierra Leone Army, when you brought your property, directed that your property be returned to your village, which was unprotected.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: In fact, he accused me of having knowledge about the war. That was even more reason why he ordered the return of my property.

Leader of Evidence: If I understand you well, a senior officer of the army was accusing you, a paramount chief, of being a rebel.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: He said that I had knowledge about the war.

Leader of Evidence: Because you brought your property for safe keeping in Bo?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes, because I brought my property for safe keeping in Bo.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where this Captain Kamara is now?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: He was part of that group – a group had left.

Leader of Evidence: Do you also know where K.E.S Boya is now?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: K.E.S Boya is in Freetown.

Leader of Evidence: Is he still in the army?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes, in fact, he holds a bigger position in the army.

Leader of Evidence: He is currently a big man in the army.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes – if he were here, I would tell him to his face.

Leader of Evidence: Do you also know where Mr. Williams is now?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I do not know, but I learnt that he is alive and that he also holds a big office in the army.

Leader of Evidence: Mr. Williams is still in the army.

P.C; Yes

Leader of Evidence: So, some of the most important people that you identified - Major Carew, K.E.S Boya and Williams – are still in the military.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes

Leader of Evidence: When it became clear to you that the soldiers, according to your testimony, were responsible for the looting and destructions in your community – Gbaima, did you have access to an alternative protection mechanism?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: What they did was to make me a witness so that I could testify against the soldiers that were attacking Molendeh and the quarry. They, however, told neither the Provincial Secretary nor the Honourable Member of Parliament – the Paramount Chief. I went and informed them about it lest they went with me and killed me.

Leader of Evidence: Can I understand this right, sir – who asked you to go and give evidence about what happened?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: K.E.S Boya.

Leader of Evidence: He asked you to go to Freetown, to Army headquarters, and give evidence about what happened.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes, he did. That was after I had reported to the soldiers in Gbaima that the quarry and the village were attacked.

Leader of Evidence: Sorry, chief, if I am being a little bit persistent, I just want to understand. You complained formally to K.E.S Boya.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes

Leader of Evidence: Did he set up a disciplinary enquiry or an investigation?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: They referred all of us to Freetown.

Leader of Evidence: Meanwhile, K.E.S Boya was the brigade commander in BO, but he referred you to Freetown.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes

Leader of Evidence: Did he tell you who to report to when you got to Freetown?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: We went to the Chief Provo - the colonel of army police.

Leader of Evidence: But, according to your testimony, you were already afraid that if you could not deal with it in Bo, may be on the way to Freetown they will kill you.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Any way, they were officially right that I should to Freetown and give evidence. We appeared before the colonel of army police and he told me that I should report the following day, but I went there, he said that the man had already admitted. There was therefore no need for me to give evidence; he said that I should return to Bo.

Leader of Evidence: I need to understand this very well Sir. The matter was taken up formally with Freetown, and they sent you an invitation through the SDO so that you could go and give evidence. You went to Freetown, appeared before a colonel, and he said that you should come back the following day. Then when you came back the following day, whom did you meet again?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The same colonel told me that the man who had been accused, arrested and brought from Bo had admitted everything about the attack on he village and he quarry. He also admitted that he ate some of my livestock. The colonel then said that I should return to Bo.

Leader of Evidence: Can you recall this colonel's name?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No, I cannot, but if I see him, I will recognise him.

Leader of Evidence: This colonel told you that the man who was responsible for stealing in you house and destroying your community had admitted.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Including the fact that they failed to prevent the rebels from attacking Molendeh and the quarry.

Leader of Evidence: So there was no reason for you to give evidence any more; you should return home?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: That was what I was told.

Leader of Evidence: Did this colonel tell you that they had recovered some of the property the man stole from you?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Property?

Leader of Evidence: Yes

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: [LOL] The man was in Freetown; K.E.S Boya who was here did not tell me anything about that, and you are asking about my property. All my country clothes that my father had left as legacy for me together with what I had made in thirty years when I worked at the Ministry of Works as a Senior Superintendent in the east.

Leader of Evidence: Did this colonel tell you that they had meted out punishment to this man who had confessed to be responsible for the destructions and looting?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No Sir. He only told me that the man had admitted.

Leader of Evidence: So to your knowledge, up to this time, the man had not been punished?

P.C; I don't know whether they punished him or not.

Leader of Evidence: Was there an apology from the army to you - either in Freetown or in Bo?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No apology.

Leader of Evidence: All the simply said was that you should go home, that the man had admitted.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Since the soldiers were at Gbaima for two years and they kept on looting and wrecking other havocs, how did the people of Gbaima protect themselves?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: That is what I was telling you about. After the looting and all, I had no place to stay so my daughter sent a ticket for me to travel abroad. When I came from America on June 1st, and the road to the provinces was blocked, I stayed in Freetown until sometime in December when government told us that we should stay in the district headquarter towns if our villages were still unsecured. Since then, I have been in Bo.

Leader of Evidence: I know that you left for abroad and then stayed on in Freetown and, finally, in Bo, but what about the people who were staying at Gbaima? To your knowledge, they were at the mercy of the soldiers and the rebels.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The lieutenant that I met at Gbaima; Lieutenant Turay, treated me hospitably when I went back to Gbaima. This lieutenant was in charge of security at Gbaima; but I don't know what happened in my absence. However, when I returned to Gbaima, I realized that more houses had been burnt down.

Leader of Evidence: Now, let me ask you this chief; it is actually an opinion. In your opinion, why did the army behave the way they did; why did they steal your property, why did they destroy your town?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Well, they wanted to enrich themselves overnight; they did not have the requisite training as soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: So what you are saying is that part of the problems in the military during the war was that there was corruption...

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Definitely!

Leader of Evidence: And secondly, they had very little training.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Exactly!

Leader of Evidence: Were there other problems that you can identify that affected the performance of the military during the war?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Another problem was that there was no head; even a non commissioned officer cannot listen to his senior officer. That was my observation.

Leader of Evidence: So there was no discipline in the army?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: No discipline!

Leader of Evidence: Do you think that these problems are still continuing?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: As an ex-service man, I am keenly observing, but I have not noticed that lately.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of reform would you like to see in the Sierra Leonean Armed Forces? What needs to change?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Firstly, all the senior officers who are currently in the army should go on retirement and let there be soldiers that are trained by the British government. If the old hands in the army continue to stay on, the army will still remain corrupt.

Leader of Evidence: Do you think that this issue of corruption is as a result of poor pay or may there be other reasons for the corruption in the army?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The soldiers are well paid now; during our days in the army, we were paid a shilling per day. Soldiers now receive a handsome salary, but I observe that people want to be enriched overnight.

Leader of Evidence: This issue you see in the army, do you also see it in the rest of society as a government issue – like anybody who occupies an important position in government?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: That is the worse; those who hold high as well as other offices are corrupt. This is found even in the civil service.

Leader of Evidence: So would you like to give the commission some suggestions about what needs to change?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: My suggestion is that people should be recruited and trained so that all those senior officers and officials will be retired.

Leader of Evidence: Can I ask one last question on Koribondo; would have any idea what happened in Koribondo – who was responsible for the destruction? There was an SLA detachment in Koribondo.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Well, that is not my chiefdom, I cannot tell.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much Paramount Chief. That is all, Commissioner.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Paramount Chief, in the Sierra Leonean context and, as far as we are concerned, you are one of the greatest men in the country. We have asked you questions, now it is your turn to ask questions that relate to our work or to make recommendations.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: The Commissioners and staff of the commission have asked me many questions on the issue of the soldiers, Kamajors and all. What I want to understand is this: why is that the government continues to give support to the rebels who had perpetuated so much harm and we that have suffered are left uncared for?

Comm. Bishop Humper: Paramount chief that is a very important question. We try as much as possible to put people in different categories, at least for the sake of convenience. You are not the only one that is very much apprehensive and aggrieved that perpetrators are being pampered while the victims go on suffering. This is the thinking of the commission. At the Lome peace agreement, we said that we wanted peace and that is what we are still pursuing; to ensure that there is peace in the country. The international community that support this country put a mechanism in place to ensure that the most immediate issue – the need for the perpetrators to be disarmed, demobilized and reintegrated – be addressed. In other words, take the guns from these people and get them in an environment that will prevent a recurrence of the war. That is why the international community and government paid and continue to pay attention to those whom did wrong – the perpetrators. This commission was established to pay specific attention to victims like you. Article 29 of the Lome Peace Agreement stipulates that there should be a war victim's fund. That fund is supposed to be established by the government with the help of the international community, and this commission is mandated to pursue the establishment of that fund. That is why we ask people who give testimonies to make recommendations so that those recommendations will be incorporated in the report that we shall have to present to government. I do hope that this explains the reason why government is doing that – to maintain peace and tranquillity so that we will prepare ourselves to concentrate on the victims of the war. The government and the international community will not forget about the horrors that the victims have gone through during the war. We are committed to making such recommendations as to address the needs of the victims in this country.

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: I thank you. We are the leaders of our people and they sometimes ask us these questions, which can be difficult to answer. However, I appreciate that you have taken your time to explain and it is good that they are also listening to the session. My message to the government is that there is no part in this country where the soldiers and the rebels did not wreck havoc; the abducted wives and other women whom they sexually abused with impunity; they looted people's properties and prevented the owners of such properties from protesting. My message to the government is generally on behalf of the country and particularly on behalf of Bo district. There is no village where they did not enter; for instance, they destroyed every section, town and village in Bumpeh excepting Taninahun; there was a time when the soldiers turned this town into a ghost town – they were looting houses and forcing people to carry the looted items.

Comm. Bishop Humper: What is your recommendation to government in this regard?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: In consideration of the truth that the commission stands for and the integrity it has, I am asking you to tell the government to ensure that every victim be compensated somehow so that there will be absolute peace in this country.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is that all?

Paramount Chief Lamboi Foray: Yes

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, chief. We will take all of these into consideration when we put our report together for the government and the international community. However, I will say, here and now, that our mandate does not include compensation to individuals, but I believe that the government and the international community have something in store for victims although we cannot say now what it is. Perhaps, some day, not too long, some one from overseas will come and ask that he/she visits your place in order to see the height of the destruction that was done to it and to help. We want to thank you at this moment and to give you the assignment of reaching out to your colleague Paramount Chiefs and tell them that the commission will like to hear from them as well. We thank you very much. Thank you.

3rd Witness: Bana Smith

The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Bishop Humper administered the oath.

Comm. Bishop Humper: On behalf of the commission and the audience here present, I will want to welcome, Brother Smith. I will say this to you, those who have testified to this commission and those who will testify that your names will go down into the history of our country as being men and women who have played pivotal roles in the achievement and sustainability of peace in our country. Your honest testimonies will be crucial to the commission's work of precisely determining what went wrong in this country, and what all of us – survivors – will do to prevent the recurrence of such sufferings in this country. So to us, today, you are a VIP. We encourage you to remain calm in the process; you are assured of all the protection that you need and the commission will graciously ask you to give your testimony.

BANA SMITH'S TESTIMONY

I wish to give a faithful testimony of what we went through in the course of the war. Firstly, I must say that I am Bana Smith. I was born at Yanihun village, Wonde Chiefdom in Bo district. I will begin my testimony with the activities of the soldiers. Most of what we suffered was in the hands of the soldiers of the 14th Battalion in Koribondo. When the war broke out in this country, Major Mansaray was the first Battalion commander that was sent there. When he went there, he paid a courtesy call to the Paramount Chiefs and told them that he would like to deploy soldiers in areas within the chiefdoms. The Paramount chiefs gave their approval for the deployment of soldiers in the chiefdoms. We gave the soldiers a treatment that befits strangers; we gave them food and many more. When Mr. Freeman went to that part of the country, he and Major Mansaray worked together amicably. They pursued the Burkinabe rebels beyond Pujehun district. After that, Major Samura replaced Major Mansaray as Brigade commander in Koribondo. When Major Samura took over the command of the battalion in Koribondo, we realized that no matter what we did for the soldiers, they would never be happy if there was no war. I witnessed the period during which they trained our brothers, sons and other relatives in Koribondo to enter into the army. Whenever they completed training a set of our relatives in order to prosecute the war, they would disappear after about a month. Little did we know that they were going into the bush and were becoming rebels with the aim of returning to loot our towns and villages. After the rebels looted Ngagwehun Ngiiyela, we decided to pick up the guns that were owned by our grandfathers. The soldiers from Koribondo went to Ngagwehun Ngiiyela and took those guns from us. About two days after that incident, over fifty inhabitants of Ngagwehun Ngiiyela were killed. We all fled from that part of the country. We did not understand the intricacies of the conflict and we returned to our villages almost immediately. When we returned, Major Samura and a Lieutenant taxed us to take care of their needs. We later learnt that they had stored the looted items in a building of DEC school at Bathurst. Whenever the Sierra Leone Army soldiers attempted to transport the looted items to Koribondo, they were ambushed by ULIMO. In the same way, whenever ULIMO attempted to transport the looted items, they were ambushed by the SLA soldiers. There was an attack that left some of the ULIMO and SLA fighters running into the woods; some were not conversant with the terrain. One of them found himself in our village. Since we knew that rebels wore combat fatigue and, most of them, did not carry guns, the local hunters in our village dealt with him; they left him in the bush. After that incident, the local hunters took some representative items to the Brigade in Koribondo.

When we arrived with the items, Lieutenant Kamara commended us. However, the eye carries not a load, but it can determine its weight. When the items were taken to the MP office, they examined them closely. The soldiers at the MP office did not know that we understood Krio; they were saying, in Krio, that the items were similar to those of one of their colleagues. Two days after we returned to our village, the soldiers attacked the village; they looted houses and killed many people. It was during the command of Major Samura that residents in parts of Pujehun and Bo districts were displaced. Afterwards, it dawned on us that we had been actually displaced.

While we were here, we got a lot of information as regards the atrocities that were being committed against our people back in the villages; some were amputated. One did not see any rebel; all one saw were people who wore the same outfits as soldiers of the SLA – the ‘rebel’ in the bush wore military fatigues. During the 1996 general elections, some of us were in Koribondo where we voted. By the grace of God, the SLPP won the elections. Not too long after the elections, we saw groups of men referred to as Kamajors – come to Koribondo. They chased the rebels away from Merlin into Bonthe. I was resident at a junction called Bathurst; that was where the Kamajors stopped chasing the rebels.

Major Allieu was in command at Koribondo then. He dispatched his men to go and determine what was happening at the junction. After their encounter with the Kamajors, rebels never attacked Merlin or its surrounding villages again. The rebels were only present in our chiefdom – Wonde chiefdom – and areas in Small Bo chiefdom. All the Paramount chiefs in Bo district came together under the leadership of late Paramount chief Lagbenor of Njala Komborya in order to embark on initiations into the Kamajor society. The initiation drive was taken in a bid to ensure that people return to their towns and villages. Four chiefdoms from the Kpaa Mende land joined five of our chiefdoms on this other side to undertake the initiation drive. Nine chiefdoms sent representatives and we were initiated by Kamoh Sheriff at Bobor Kombor in Bo. After our initiation into the Kamajor society during the raining season in 1996, we wanted to go to our chiefdom but we had no clearance from our chief. It reached a time when we were fed up. We went to the Paramount chief and told him that in spite of the risk involved, we were ready to return home. If my memory serves me right, Kamajors from our chiefdom were the first to liberate their chiefdom without the aid of an initiator. When we got the permission of the paramount chief, we split into two groups; one went through Koribondo and the other went through Blama. We met Major Kamara in Koribondo and briefed him on our resolve to liberate our chiefdom from the rebels. If my memory serves me right, it took us only three days to throw the rebels out of Wonde chiefdom. We repelled them to as far as Lamblama and Nyawa. Not too long after we had repelled the rebels, rebel soldiers attacked us. Those who attacked us at Wonde kambowa cannot forget about what we did to them in a hurry. Those who came out safe returned to their colleagues with news that a stronger force was needed to throw us – Kamajors – out of Wonde. They got troops from Tongo, Kenema and Daru, among other places, to attack us. At the time of the attack, we had come to see our relatives in the camps in Bo. The soldiers of the 14th Battalion in Koribondo then told their colleagues that there was a Kamajor initiation on course at Telu Bongor so they should launch their attack there instead. All of them went and attacked Telu; Telu was inhabited by only the Kamajors. What happened during the encounter is in records. Afterwards, we realised that the entire Bo district or even the entire Southern province was relatively safe. We were taken to battlefronts in Kenema and Kailahun district. We returned home when we completed our assignments. The soldiers took over the reigns of government on the day we were commemorating the death of Paramount chief Mojjueh of Fouta Kpejeh. We were all confused and did not know what to do. Before the soldiers took over the reigns of government, we were not friends. We were confined to our villages; if one went to Koribondo and one was identified as a Kamajor, one was instantly killed. At that time, Major Keita was in command of the Brigade in Koribondo. We, Kamajors, resolved to reverse the coup. Now and again, Major Keita sent his soldiers to attack villages around Koribondo; the soldiers looted and killed during such attacks. There was a time when the soldiers in Koribondo asked the rebels who were in Bo to join them.

Major Keita took rebels to Koribondo. The rebel commander in Koribondo was Corporal Amara. While Corporal Amara was in Koribondo, we had no respite in Njama Bongor, Tikonko, Merlin Bagbor, Wonde and Sowa chiefdoms. A combined force of rebels and soldiers were always afoot to attack us. During the nine months of junta rule, Major Keita gave us no breathing space in that area; they wrecked a lot of havoc in our area. They completely looted and burnt down Yanihun, Gaula, Bathurst and other villages in that area using their attacks of Kamajors as subterfuge. We thank God that we were not killed on that day. However, they looted all our properties and took them to Koribondo. At that time, we returned to our initiators who initiated us into the Kamajor society and gave a report on the situation. We told them that we had neither arms nor ammunitions. We resolved that we would reverse the coup against the democratically elected SLPP government; a government we, as well as the soldiers, voted for. We left our chiefdoms. In fact, there was news in Koribondo that I, Bana, had gone into hiding. We moved to Bonthe district where we were sure of getting some supply of ammunitions. In the course of our stay in Bonthe district, Major Keita sent three hundred and fifty soldiers to be based at Bandajuma sowa; our people had no respite and they were sleeping in the bush. When we came back, we arrived at Fobu on a Sunday. The following day, Monday, we rested while we prepared for a battle against the soldiers at Bandajuma sowa. On Tuesday, we burnt their Anti Aircraft (AA) gun and drove them out of Bandajuma. Since then, no soldier or rebel went towards Pujehun - for about a week, no soldier went towards that direction for the simple reason that we had burnt three AA gun. Owing to the treatment meted out to us by Major, our resolved was strengthened and, a week later, we attacked Koribondo. By God's grace, we drove the rebels and soldiers out of Koribondo. These are some of what the rebels and soldiers did to us in Wonde and other chiefdoms. Wonde chiefdom has been safe since then. We lost our Paramount Chief, but we thank God that we were able perform the burial rites fittingly. The government then appointed our brother, Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh, regent chief. However, we had some of our brothers, the Daboh's, who were opposed to Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh's appointment. Their opposition to the appointment of Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh supposed a challenge to the authority of the government. Everyone knew what Wonde chiefdom used to be. There was a split over the appointment of Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh as regent chief. The Daboh's were opposed to it while we were in support of it. Those who were appointed were presented to the Resident Minister, South – Foday Sesay – and it was in the local radio news. We resolved that as long as the Daboh's would not accept Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh as regent chief, we would be opposed to anyone who had their support for the position. After that, the Daboh's came to the SDO, Vandii, and invited Kosseh Hindowa who was the coordinator of the Kamajors in Bo district. In that meeting, the Daboh's argued that the position of regent chief in Wonde chiefdom – considering the preponderance of the Kamajors – could best be handled by a Kamajor. That was a ploy to have Kosseh Hindowa as regent chief. The intention of the Daboh's was to have Kosseh Hindowa so that he could silent the Kamajors in the chiefdom on the issue of paramount chieftaincy. When they presented the matter to Kosseh Hindowa, he said that he would first consult with chiefdom supervisor and the Battalion commander, Joe Timinde. I was then the chiefdom supervisor of the Kamajors. Kosseh Hindowa sent for us – Joe Timinde and me. When we got to his office, Kosseh Hindowa told us that the Daboh's had asked him to take the position of regent chief in Wonde chiefdom. When I asked whether that was why he summoned us, Kosseh Hindowa answered affirmatively. I then asked him a simple traditional question, "when a paramount chief dies, who takes decision on the issue of a regent chief – the people of the chiefdom or government?". He agreed that it is the government's responsibility to appoint a regent chief. I then told him that we had a regent chief, Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh. I told Kosseh Hindowa that the Daboh's were our brothers, but if they had rejected our brother, Mualemu Mustapha Sannoh, who had been appointed by government to fill the position of regent chief, their like will forever be our dislike. In addition, I told Kosseh that he was an administrator and therefore he was my boss. In that regard, I would give him the respect due him in Bo, but if he accepted the position of regent chief and went to Wonde, nobody would respond to his call. I advised Kosseh to tell the Daboh's to talk to another person to fill that position. The Daboh's were not the government. If they were not ready to go by the decision government had taken, we were also determined to go against any of their decisions on the chieftaincy issue. Dickson Kosia, the deputy battalion commander at Koribondo, was there as witness. Little did I know that Kosseh Hindowa had told Kosia and Joe Timinde the same thing and that their responses were similar to mine. They reminded Kosseh Hindowa of what they had earlier told him. Pa Kosseh then gave me five thousand Leones as fare. He then said that if he were to go to Wonde, we would be his host, but if we were against him going there, then he would keep off since he did not know what obtained in our chiefdom. He said that he was going to tell the SDO and the PS that he could not go to that chiefdom. I returned to the village. He, Kosseh, latter called the Daboh's and told them what had transpired between us. The response of the Daboh's was that they had advised Pa Kosseh against us and that the solution to the problem was to humiliate or liquidate me. He did exactly what they told him.

While they were going to present Kosseh Hindowa as regent chief, they passed through Blama and Gboyama before they went there, I had taken some Kamajors and we were undergoing training at Matato, Mongere chiefdom. One day, before Kosseh Hindowa was taken to Wonde chiefdom to be presented to the people, our father, Chief Sam Hinga Norman, took a message to us at the training base; he did not know that people from Wonde chiefdom were present. He told us that a Kamajor had been appointed regent chief. My heart jumped into my mouth; it occurred to me that he was talking about Wonde chiefdom. Indeed, he was referring to Wonde chief. In addition, he said that he had learnt that some Kamajors were opposed to Kosseh Hindowa. He stated that he knew what he would do to any Kamajor that opposed Kosseh Hindowa. At first, I took it lightly, but it was serious and I wanted to rise up and ask a few questions. One of my colleagues advised me against asking questions - at that training base, no investigations or action was taken if any trainee was killed. I listened to my colleague's advice. I then allowed Chief Norman to say what he wanted to say. He threatened to deal with anyone who was opposed to Kosseh's appointment. A week later, Kamajors were mobilised to accompany the team that went to install the regent chief; they carried many arms and ammunitions in the vehicle. When they went to Wonde chiefdom, they maltreated most of our people. Mr. Magona who was in Pujehun headed the troop that went there; Mr. Magona was sent there by Kosseh Hindowa. They were there for a week. Some Kamajors who went on the trip from the training base complained that they would never go to Wonde – not even if Pa Norman gave them a million leones each. They reported that Wonde chiefdom was full of evil and that they nearly lost their lives. They complained that their host did not feed them. After the training, I returned to my village. Many complaints were falsely made against Alhaji Momoh and me to Kosseh. There was a trade fare centre at Bathurst where people gathered every Sunday. People told Kosseh Hindowa that he should stop me from undertaking initiation ceremonies if he wanted to control the trade fare. He then passed a law that no initiation should take place in that area – both male and female initiations. My grandfather owned the land where the trade fare took place at Bathurst. After some time, when we did not apologise, somebody advised Kosseh to reopen the trade fare. I told you earlier that what we, the people of Wonde, wanted was rejected by the Daboh's; there likes were therefore our dislikes. We stood our ground that if they wanted to open a trade fare centre, they should do that on their own piece of land, not on ours. Supporters of the Daboh's came to Bo and reported what I said to Pa Kosseh. Pa Kosseh thought of himself as the president of Sierra Leone because he sent troops to arrest us without consulting with either the SDO or PS or the Police Commissioner. He sent the troops to Joe Timinde who was battalion commander in Koribondo with the instruction that I should either be killed or brought to him alive. When the Kamajors arrived in Koribondo, they briefed Joe Timinde, but Joe Timinde knew what was going on in Wonde. He spoke outright about his disapproval of the step Pa Kosseh took. He made clear the fact that asking me to come to Bo was no problem for him, but that rebels had not attacked Wonde and therefore there was no need for such a large troop. The troop Pa Kosseh sent was led by Huggard Bockarie – (a.k.a Daddy Bock). The Islamic leader that was among the troop was Kamoh Lahai Massaquoi. They all went to Joe Timinde who told them that I was like a son to him and a respectful junior colleague. He then decided to send seven Kamajors to represent him and to report on what would happen. The report that was given to Kosseh – false report – was that I was in an ambush. Joe Timinde released his boys to join the troops that came from Bo. They did not even meet me in the village; I was neither at Bathurst nor at Yanihun. I was resident at Yanihun. The troop of Kamajors that were sent by Kosseh attacked Yanihun in the same way that rebels launched their attacks on towns and villages. They looted many things from Yanihun. Supporters of the Daboh's that were resident at Yanihun told the Kamajors that I usually went into hiding at Lagor Njama and advised them to ambush the road that leads to Lagor. Huggard Bockarie deployed the boys round the town. RSM Dauda told them that he did not want them to go where I was; one of Joe Timinde's boys made that suggestion. They gave in to the suggestion. Dauda and his other six colleagues from Koribondo went to me at Ngaola. As they approached, I saw them carrying RPG, AK58, LMG and other weapons. When they arrived, I came out from where I was and they told me that they had come to summon me before Joe Timinde who was at Yanihun. When I asked why they were carrying such weapons, they replied that if a warrior had information there laid a trap ahead of him, he knew what to do –they were acting on the nature of the information they had received. I asked whether they fell in an ambush and they said no. They said that, in fact, that was the first proof that they had lied against me. I agreed to go with them. They told me that Joe Timinde had asked that I take the town chiefs and speakers of Yanihun and Ngaola with me. I informed all of them and we left. In less than two hundred yards walk from where I was, I heard a gun shot in the direction of Yanihun. I did not raise any alarm because I did not want to scare them away. We went on and later found that a man had shot himself. While we were approaching Yanihun, we were in an ambush without knowing. When I entered Yanihun, I saw Kamajors following me into the village. I was presently placed under gunpoint. When we arrived, I was handed over to Kamoh Lahai Massaquoi. When I greeted Kamoh Lahai, his response was cold. However, I introduced myself – mentioning his brother who initiated me – and he walked up to me and shook my hands. From his countenance, I read that he had calmed down. RSM Dauda then told me to walk to the barray and choose five people who would go with me to Koribondo, since Joe Timinde had just returned to Koribondo. As I was walking to the barray, Huggard told RSM Dauda that my boys had been in an ambush and was a gunshot that killed one of his boys. He alleged that I had killed his boy. According to what I learnt, they had gone to one of my elder brother's - Alusine Bawoh – during their looting spree. They wanted to enter into his house, but the wife was there – she was a Kamajor woman. She told them that it was over her dead body that they would enter into that house. They did not know that she was a Kamajor woman and a Kamajor stepped forward and slapped her. I am sorry the woman is not around due to lack of transportation. The woman, in turn, slapped the Kamajor. The boy who died was called Ogena. He cocked the gun to shoot the woman, but his boss advised him against that. He did not replace the safety catch when he hung the gun on his neck. According to testimonies of witnesses that witnessed the incident, the gun slipped from his neck and fired when he bowed down to get firewood in order to light marijuana. That was how he killed himself. According to the testimonies, there were three of them – the other two shouted that Ogena's gun had killed him. Fortunately, an intelligent officer recorded it. When we arrived in Koribondo, they explained everything to Joe Timinde. He reminded them of what he said before they left and told them that he could not settle a matter that involved death. He therefore advised that they take the matter to Kosseh that sent them. All of us, including the corpse, travelled in the same vehicle to Bo. When we arrived at Sembahun 17, the Kamajors started to stab me on the bases of the orders that they had received from Kosseh. Seven of us travelled with them from Yanihun. They beat, wounded and nearly killed all of us. They continued to manhandle us until we arrived at Shelmingo. When we arrived at Shelmingo, we did not know that they were communicating with Kosseh on the radio. By the time we arrived at the Kamajor office – 88 Mahei Boima road – there were many members of the Daboh family who were not Kamajors. Upon arrival at the CDF office, we were treated like none entities. They took us to the back of the office where we saw Kosseh, Sidique Daboh and many other Daboh's. The first utterance that Sidique Daboh made was "why did you bring Bana alive". Kosseh Hindowa ordered that they beat us to death. On that day, we preferred death to life. We arrived at the office by 4.30 pm and we were tortured unto 6 pm. They shot at us, but in vain – we had the blessing of God. One of the boys who was among the Kamajors that went to arrest us called Mr. Fefegula aside – Mr. Fefegula still remains a father to me – and told him that all the allegations made against me were false. Pa Fefegula – he was a strong man – came and pushed aside all those that were beating us. He took us into a cell. We were in the cell when Kosseh Hindowa ordered that I should be tied with an "FM". If rebels had knowledge of the "FM" that we had they would have killed everybody in this country. Kosseh Hindowa ordered that five "FM'S" be brought for me. Had it not being the grace of God, I would have died on that day. The "FM" was fixed on me four times – it cut each time they drew it. The fifth time, Pa Fefegula hit the boy and said that if he could not tie me, he would be tied instead. They tied me for twenty-five minutes. The Daboh's pointed guns at us and threatened that they would kill all of us and take our corpses back to Wonde. Meanwhile, Pa Fefegula had called O.C Kamara of the Criminal Investigations Department and told him that if he did not come to the CDF Office at 88 Mahei Boima road, there would be another war. The O.C immediately came with the vehicle. He asked Pa Fefegula to summon us to him when he arrived. While we were coming out of the cell, I was on the left of Pa Fefegula – on his right were Kamajors who had sticks in their hands to hit me on the head - there were eight of us. Two people later died because of the torture. When we went on board the police vehicle, a Kamajor called Sojegbowangoe hit my right eye – I thought that I had lost my sight. They would have inflicted more physical injuries on us if the driver were not smart. Pa Foday, one of the detainees, was rushed to the hospital, while we were taken to a police cell. For about three days, the police were afraid that CDF would attack them. In addition to their fears, there was an intelligence report from Gboyama that Kamajors had mobilised to come to Bo in a bid to free me. Fortunately, our fathers back home advised our brothers against launching an attack on Bo. I was in the cell for eight days. I gave a statement on the second day. O.C Kamara understood what was happening in Wonde. My brother in this auditorium also made a statement. O.C Kamara asked the police that was taking statements from us to close the files and prepare to go with him to Koribondo. When O.C Kamara returned from Koribondo, he walked up to me, shook my hands and said that I was a straightforward man. He then said that henceforth we would stay out of the cell until dusk – we slept in the cells for security reasons. After they had taken statements from us, O.C Kamara invited Kosseh Hindowa and two section Chiefs and we were taken out of the cells to where they were – Pa Kosseh Hindowa was busy telling lies. Even the two section chiefs made allegations against us. The PS, Kallon and O.C Kamara had carried out investigations and were able to detect that we were innocent. They released us when the Commissioner returned to Bo.

We also made a report against Kosseh Hindowa and his men. I obtained a doctor's report and later went to inform my brothers in Freetown. This matter was brought to the knowledge of the I. G. who instructed that I give a statement at the CID in Freetown.

I came back when I heard of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. We later went to see the president and we were able to prove that they had told a lie concerning the fact that Pa Kosseh's appointment came from the president. Unto this day, I am determined to contest Pa Kosseh in court. This is my testimony.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, Bana Smith. My address is with reference to your statement. Perhaps my colleagues may want to ask you few questions, but let me put things in perspective. I want to begin from the end. Bana Smith, did I hear you say that you sued Kosseh Hindowa to court?

Bana Smith: I reported the matter to the police.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Is the matter still pending?

Bana Smith: At the time of the incidents, there was still war in the country. Even the police in Bo were afraid.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do I therefore assume that you have come to the commission to seek redress?

Bana Smith: Well, yes. Everything good or bad must end.

Comm. Bishop Humper: If that is the case, we as a Commission and the audience, will like to know the sequence in which you have narrated your experience – we want to be as brief as we can. Did I hear you say that the Burkinabes were those that launched the initial invasion into Sierra Leone?

Bana Smith: They did not come to Bo.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Well, I am not talking specifically about Bo, I mean the Sierra Leone.

Bana Smith: The Burkinabes came to Bandajuma Sowa.

Comm. Bishop Humper: O.K.! Did I hear you say that the SLA and ULIMO had an encounter because of looted items?

Bana Smith: The ULIMO and SLA were in Koribondo. The looted items were stored in a school at Bathurst. The civilians in Koribondo could not have seen their properties without commenting, so they went to collect the looted items at night. The SLA ambushed ULIMO when they learnt that the latter were going to collect the looted items, vice versa.

Comm. Bishop Humper: It appears to me that there was a change in the pattern of prosecuting the war.

Bana Smith: What do you mean?

Comm. Bishop Humper: You said that SLA was fighting against RUF - then the Kamajors had not come in. Was that so?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: When they took a different turn – according to your statement – the Kamajors emerged. Am I right?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: That continued unto 1997, o.k.?

Bana Smith: Yes, then they came together.

Comm. Bishop Humper: That is what I want to understand.

Bana Smith: It was after the military had overthrown the government that they came together.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Now, we move on - how many ruling houses do you have in Wonde?

Bana Smith: We have the Kaweh's and the Manyeh's - there are two ruling houses.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Will you agree with me that apart from the rebel war and all its attendant atrocities, one of the key issues you have expressed is chieftaincy?

Bana Smith: Yes, that was why Kosseh Hindowa was hostile to us.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Let us go systematically. You have gone through all of those wars, those horrors – that is your story. I am only trying to see whether we understand your story, and we are confirming that story. As you narrated your story, your heart bled when you recounted all the atrocities committed against you and your people. However, you suffered not because of the war, but because of the battle for chieftaincy – am I right?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much. Now, in this whole process you are saying that the government made a pronouncement about who should be regent chief and later you mentioned Chief Hinga Norman whom you said brought another news to you.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: The culminating point is that the man who was your district administrator then considered himself a regent chief – was that the problem?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Comm. Bishop Humper: We have the entire story. Commissioner, do you have any questions to ask?

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Bana Smith, we thank you for your very detailed testimony, but I will take you back to the beginning when you joined the Kamajor. You told us that you were a CDF section commander. We are interested in the various factions that took part in the civil strife. Can you clarify two things for me? Can you explain to us the structure of the CDF in Bo district? What were the names of the chief commanders?

Bana Smith: I will begin to answer your questions by telling you that I was made section commander when I joined the Kamajor. When B. M. Conteh, my brother, who was the section coordinator, died, I took over as section coordinator. I was later promoted to the position of supervisor for Wonde Chiefdom. I represented Wonde chiefdom at our battalion headquarters.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Sorry, can I cut you short? I am talking about the organisation of the Kamajors, not the chiefdom. How did you organise yourselves in Bo district?

Bana Smith: We had the administrator, Kosseh Hindowa – he was the overall boss for Bo district. Below the administrator were the battalion commanders – our own battalion commander was Joe Timinde. Below the battalion commanders were deputy battalion commanders. We had company commanders below the rank of deputy commander. Below the company commanders were supervisors, followed by section commanders, patrol commanders and chiefdom Kamajors who were in charge of all the Kamajors in the chiefdom. We had squad commanders. That was how we were organised.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you, Bana Smith for that information. While you were defending the motherland and fighting against the various other factions - did you commit atrocities against the civilian population?

Bana Smith: I thank you for that question. In our own case in Wonde chiefdom, we went to fight faithfully so that our relatives would return to their villages. I do not think there is any civilian in Wonde chiefdom who can speak evil about Kamajors. I cannot speak on behalf other chiefdoms, but we were responsible for the return of our relatives to Wonde Chiefdom. We did not harm them.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: If I got your statement right, Bana, you talked about defensive and offensive operations. According to this, you defended your villages, but you also carried out offensives against other villages.

Bana Smith: Yes! When soldiers and or rebels attacked us in our villages, we retaliated if we had arms.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: And during those offensive attacks, atrocities were committed against the rebels – am I right?

Bana Smith: If a rebel attacked and killed my brother, I would kill him if I could.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Finally, Bana, because of all the problems you encountered in the chieftaincy, particularly with your boss – did you leave the Kamajor at any time?

Bana Smith: The position of supervisor was taken away from me by Kosseh when he was made regent chief by the Daboh's.

Comm. Hajaratu Satang Jow: Thank you very much.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, Bana Smith, for your cooperation. I would not want to spend much more time rather than to ask the leader of evidence whether he has questions for you.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you chairperson, Bana Smith, I have a few questions for you so that we can put all the experiences in context for the benefit of the commission. At the beginning of your testimony you said that when there were rebel activities, the soldiers then came in from Koribondo to Wonde chieftom, right.

Bana Smith: Yes!

Leader of Evidence: And you people were providing them food and other supplies.

Bana Smith: Yes!

Leader of Evidence: Was it voluntary provision?

Bana Smith: It was voluntary because we wanted them to defend us so that we would not be displaced.

Leader of Evidence: So, all through the period they were there, was the community willingly giving them food?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: The ULIMO soldiers, what were they doing in your neighbourhood?

Bana Smith: I saw the ULIMO through Mr. Freeman, who came to chase the Burkinabes out of Pujehun district.

Leader of Evidence: So the ULIMO's were fighting on the side of the government.

Bana Smith: Yes, that was during the time of Mr. Freeman.

Leader of Evidence: Something is not clear to me; I will ask you to clarify it. You said that at some point your brothers were accused of being rebels and there were operations to flush them out of the community – is that correct?

Bana Smith: When the soldiers ousted the government, they killed any Kamajor that they saw in Koribondo.

Leader of Evidence: O. k, I see what you mean – I will come to that very shortly. When the elected civilian government was overthrown, we had the people’s army – was it the people’s army that was in charge in Koribondo?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the commander of the people’s army?

Bana Smith: Their commander was Major Keita.

Leader of Evidence: Then the Kamajor movement came to fight against them?

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So, what I hear you say is that you had a number of operations in Koribondo to flush out the people’s army.

Bana Smith: We in Wonde Chieftdom did not attempt to attack Koribondo after the coup, until when we were attacked by the junta.

Leader of Evidence: I need to understand you very clearly. The people’s army were targeting Kamajors – you say they were killing Kamajors in Koribondo.

Bana Smith: Yes!

Leader of Evidence: And so there was heavy fighting over a period before you people finally succeeded.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So, who was then doing the attacking – you said they were killing Kamajors already so you people went to fight them to be able to take over Koribondo from the people’s army.

Bana Smith: Sometimes I heard that rebels had attacked Ngiema, Kpetewoma Lugbu, etc, and the Kamajors fought back – sometimes close of Koribondo. Whenever Koribondo was attacked, we clearly heard gun sounds.

Leader of Evidence: Anytime, the people’s army attacked Kamajors, you would retaliate in Koribondo.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: The people’s army occupied Koribondo for the length of time the AFRC was in power.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So, if I understand you well, they were based in Koribondo and in order for you to liberate Koribondo you had to fight in Koribondo – is that not correct?

Bana Smith: If we did not fight against them in Koribondo it would have been difficult for us because they always went on looting sprees in our houses. We no longer lived in the towns - we were in the bush.

Leader of Evidence: After you had liberated Koribondo, how were you able to identify civilian collaborators in Koribondo?

Bana Smith: When we liberated Koribondo – Joe Timinde who was our battalion commander, was good and cool and we were friendly because we were born in the part of the country. If Joe Timinde was bad, considering the number of Kamajors that were killed in Koribondo, and the number of houses burnt in Njama Bongor chiefdom, they would have wrecked more havoc in the town. Joe Timinde did not allow that to happen. A day after Koribondo was liberated, the civilians began to return to the town. That was what I saw.

Leader of Evidence: What can you say about the witnesses who told the commission that they were targeted for being collaborators of AFRC in Koribondo, and that the Kamajors destroyed Koribondo? More specially, your national commander is said to have ordered the destruction of Koribondo because they collaborated with the AFRC.

Bana Smith: I am in to answer this question; I asked a woman who went to Wonde chiefdom. Apart from Daru where there were government troops, the entire country, especially Bo district, depended on the battalion that was in Koribondo. The battalion in Koribondo was one that created problems in this country. Any soldier that went there committed some sort of atrocity. My dear brother, if you were in Koribondo and you had boys whom you sent to commit atrocities ranging from looting to death – should the oppressed have had the upper hand, would he not throw you out of the town?

Leader of Evidence: So, it was legitimate for the Kamajor movement to destroy towns in order to liberate it from AFRC.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Mr. Smith, my interest is not what was right or wrong. The commission wants to write the true account of what happened. My job is not to say what you did was good or bad – I just want the true account. Did the Kamajors have to destroy the town in order to liberate it.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much, Bana Smith. When you joined the movement, how long did your training last?

Bana Smith: We were in this town for one month and fifteen days – after our initiation.

Leader of Evidence: And you were undergoing training during that period?

Bana Smith: Yes, we were undergoing training at the Milton Comprehensive Secondary School field – here in Bo.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of armaments were you trained to use?

Bana Smith: AK47, AK58, G3, FM – I could use those.

Leader of Evidence: So, in the course of all the fighting - how many rebels did you take as hostages?

Bana Smith: When we launched the attack to liberate Wonde chiefdom, we rescued approximately one hundred civilians and captured about twenty-five rebels. We brought all of them here.

Leader of Evidence: And what about in Koribondo?

Bana Smith: We did not meet any rebel in Koribondo; they had all come to this town because we left the road to Bo open.

Leader of Evidence: You were talking about the intensity of the training before you were arrested on the orders of Chief Hindowa – you were in training and you wanted to respond to your national coordinator's statement, but your colleague warned you. What was the nature of the training? Would you be killed for opposing authority?

Bana Smith: I did not think about that. My brother advised me against talking because that was a strange place.

Leader of Evidence: And because you were afraid that you might be killed.

Bana Smith: Well, I was a stranger there.

Leader of Evidence: Now, you also said that when the Kamajors came to arrest you, they looted property and killed people.

Bana Smith: Many!

Leader of Evidence: What year was that?

Bana Smith: 2001.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have an idea of the month?

Bana Smith: I think it was in January.

Leader of Evidence: Can you give the commission an estimate of the number of people who were killed?

Bana Smith: Only one person – a Kamajor – died.

Leader of Evidence: Just that one, but were properties destroyed?

Bana Smith: Many!

Leader of Evidence: Was it in the nature of the Kamajor movement to attack its own people just because they wanted to arrest somebody?

Bana Smith: That was Pa Kosseh Hindowa's squad.

Leader of Evidence: So, if I understand you correctly, you had different squads that had loyalties to different kinds of commanders.

Bana Smith: Yes, but Pa Kosseh did that simply because he had been appointed regent chief.

Leader of Evidence: I understand you clearly on that. An implication of what you are saying is that sometimes people could use the movement for personal purposes, not for things connected to fighting the war.

Bana Smith: They did that to satisfy themselves.

Leader of Evidence: Was it a practice – were some commanders doing that?

Bana Smith: I did not witness that in our battalion. Joe Timinde did not encourage that – but I heard about it in other parts of the region.

Leader of Evidence: Your commander did not do that but there were other commanders who were doing that.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So, was it a fact that women were also members of the Kamajor movement?

Bana Smith: Oh, that our wife! She was the wife of an Islamic teacher. She saw many things, including the coup, in her dreams. She advised us on certain matters and instructed us on the kinds of sacrifices to offer. We therefore shared our powers with her.

Leader of Evidence: So, was she the only woman – to your knowledge – who was a Kamajor?

Bana Smith: No, there was Mama Munda who was an initiator.

Leader of Evidence: But beyond these and as part of the general initiation in the communities, did they have young girls as part of the Kamajor?

Bana Smith: No, no, no.

Leader of Evidence: Now, you mentioned this “FM” rope – why is it call “FM” and what was the nature of it? You said if it had been tied on you for longer than twenty-five minutes, you possible would have died. What kind of culture rope was that?

Bana Smith: If it were tied on you for about fifteen minute, you would shit. If it were tied on you for one hour, your arms would paralyse.

Leader of Evidence: You should further explain this to the commission because the rope was an ordinary rope. If you tied somebody with a rope, the pressure created the problem. What was it that was different about that rope you called “FM” that would make you die in less than an hour?

Bana Smith: It was made of a piece of nylon rope that was tied to both ends of a piece of stick. If they held your arm between the rope and the stick, the rope tightened as the stick was turned either clockwise or anti-clockwise. If the stick was turned up to ten times, you were finished.

Leader of Evidence: Before O.C Kamara came and took you away, you said you were in a guardroom - whose guardroom was that?

Bana Smith: The CDF guardroom – 88 Mahei Boima Road.

Leader of Evidence: That was Pa Hindowa’s office.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: But Pa Hindowa was a district administrator, he was not a combatant, was he?

Bana Smith: Not at all – he was an administrator.

Leader of Evidence: How comes an individual had a guardroom?

Bana Smith: There was a guardroom at the CDF office – it is there even now. They locked up those they arrest in the guardroom.

Leader of Evidence: To your knowledge, when was the last time somebody was locked up in that room?

Bana Smith: I do not know about others – I know about when I was locked up in there. I am not resident in this town.

Leader of Evidence: Would that mean that most district administrators of the Kamajor movement had guardrooms in their offices?

Bana Smith: I saw one in Bo – I cannot tell what obtained in the other districts.

Leader of Evidence: And that was even when you had the army under the control of the government - before and after the AFRC coup.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: And even when you had the police, for instance there was O. C Kamara - you had the police force that was in control - yet there were those other cells controlled by the movement.

Bana Smith: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You talked about two of your fellow detainees in that guardroom who died. How long after you were taken out of Chief Hindowa's cell that it happened – did it happen immediately?

Bana Smith: They did not die immediately. However, I am convinced that they died because of the torture by the Kamajors. They died in less than two months after our release.

Leader of Evidence: The boys who tortured you – have you seen them recently?

Bana Smith: They were all Kosseh's boys. Huggard Bockarie who led the troop is in this town.

Leader of Evidence: What is it like each time you see them? Do you feel threatened or what happens?

Bana Smith: They became afraid of us after the moves that we made to seek redress.

Leader of Evidence: If you see Chief Hindowa now, what would you tell him?

Bana Smith: What do you mean?

Leader of Evidence: For example, if the commission arranges a meeting between you and him, what would you tell him?

Bana Smith: I will tell him about all the wrong that he did to me.

Leader of Evidence: I know that. After that, what are you going to tell him?

Bana Smith: Except the government decides, but I will not easily forget what Kosseh did to me.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much Bana Smith. That is all, commissioner.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, Leader of Evidence. Bana Smith, we are grateful for your cooperation. If we have a desire to go any further, we will only ask this one question as a follow up on what the Leader of Evidence asked. You have mentioned a few people here, and I am sure that you may not easily forget about what they have done to you. However, our primary purpose here is to continue to enquire from you whether you would like us to find a way of bringing you together. It is our desire to contact all the key personalities that you have mentioned – this is very vital to us.

Bana Smith: I am through with that. Most people here - in this hall – must have seen, heard or known about what happened to me. However, all good or bad things must come to an end. That is why I will not go against anything the government says.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much Bana. I will hold on that one statement and I will ask my staff to follow up on the issue. We have asked you so many questions. We now give you this opportunity to ask us any question that pertains to our work or to recommend anything that we could include in our report. You are now free to do so.

Bana Smith: My question is this, when the military ousted the democratically elected government and wrecked so much havoc – they are in fact responsible for most of the destructions in the country – what does government intend to do?

Comm. Bishop Humper: That is a very important question, Bana. It borders around the government's operation. We do not know what government intends to do about them, but we know that you, as a citizen, have an idea of what to do to help this country move forward – it just that information that we want from you in the form of a recommendation. As an independent body, we have the mandate to carry out our investigations and make our recommendations at the end of the day.

Bana Smith: My other question is, if a democratically elected government was ousted and somebody made every move to reverse such coup, would that person be considered an enemy of the state?

Comm. Bishop Humper: That is another important question. I believe that anyone who does well is not a bad person, but I also believe that our constitution makes provisions for dos and don'ts. That particular question can be addressed from different angles. If you would coin that question into a recommendation, then I will tell you what the commission will do.

Bana Smith: The reason for asking this question is that the national coordinator of the CDF Sierra Leone, Chief Sam Hinga Norman – be he bad or good – tremendously supported the CDF to reverse the coup. My message to the government is that a warrior cannot stop short at violating some rights in his drive to defeat another warrior. However, a friend of the state would not wreck as much havoc as an enemy of the state. Whether Chief Hinga Norman was good or bad, he helped to bring peace to this nation by reversing the coup. That is my message.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Do you have any other recommendation?

Bana Smith: Like the Paramount Chief was saying, government should consider those who were affected during the war.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Please help us. You said, “Dem wan ya”, but we do not work with non-specifics – call them by their names.

Bana Smith: I am referring to us, the civilians, who were victims of the war – all over the country – we should be considered by government. We know that the ex-combatants should be dissuaded from fighting further, but government should consider the civilians afterwards.

Comm. Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, Bana. You have given us vital information and recommendations worth considering. We have an important task of making every individual feel important in this country. We are in pursuit of peace, unity and harmonious co-existence, and you have helped us to know what happened to our people in this country. We will take your recommendations, as well as the others, very seriously. On behalf of the commission, I want to thank you for this moment we have had together. I will now ask you to step down.

Statements were also made by the resident Paramount Chief and representatives of the UNHCR, NaCSA, NCDDR.

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Commissioner Aminata Jow
Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

Chairman Bishop Humper: As I welcome you to this session, I guess the witnesses for the day are already called in. Every witness can speak in his or her own language. The public is asked to respect all witnesses.

1st Witness – Baidu Amara

My name is Baidu Amara. I am a Muslim.

The oath was administered by Chairman Bishop Humper.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We encourage you to be calm. You are not only helping the commission, but you are also helping to establish the truth of what happened. The Commission will give you time to give your testimony.

TESTIMONY

It was on a Saturday, we were sitting in the veranda when we heard a gun shot. At that time, I had just delivered a baby. When I heard the gun shot, the baby moved off my hand and fell on the floor. My husband picked up the baby and ran into the house. We were there till 2:00 p.m. and the children were crying. The firing ceased. We decided to go into the bush where we stayed for three weeks. We were there when somebody told us that our chief was asking us to return or pay a fine of Le10,000 each. We took our personal effects and came back to town. After three days, on a Sunday, I asked my children to go with me to fetch some water; I had two daughters. We hardly got to the well when we heard another gun shot from the direction of Liberia so we took cover in the nearest house. We were there till 2.00 o'clock. My breast became solid. A woman named Mary was in my house; she had a grown up child and he said I should go under the bed. We went under the bed. There were too many of us in the room.

We started hearing other languages that we did not understand. We were told that they were people from Liberia. They hit hard on the door and fired a shot into the house. The boy who had asked me to lie under the bed was shut on the chest. That same bullet hit me on my hand. Everybody started shouting. We were ordered to get out of the room by a Mende boy. The woman whose son was killed opened the door and we went outside and headed for the bush. I was eating grass as if I was a goat. I went to Pendembu and got admitted at the hospital for 14 days where some bullets were removed from my body. At that time the rebels had captured Bomaru. Everybody was trapped. We were seated when we saw our relatives with their luggages. When my husband arrived he was informed of my situation in the hospital; he cried for me. The baby was brought to me for breast feeding. The dispenser told us that we should try to leave as other people were leaving the area. I was given some medicines. We left and slept in the bush. That was the night the rebels captured Pendembu.

We walked on to Kwiva. On arrival at Kwiva, we were advised to leave again; so we continued and spent 2 days in the bush. We got to Dambara and stayed there for 2 weeks before the rebels arrived. We slept there and left in the morning. We intended to go to Kenema, but because of my pains, we were unable to travel and stayed in the bush instead. Also I was in so much pain that I could not carry my baby. I had little boys and they walked slowly. My husband took my head tie and strapped the children to his back. One Mende boy came and asked us where we came from. We told him. He asked if we had money in the bag. We said we were from Bomaru. He asked whether we had somebody to testify that it was true. Then a rebel from our village saw us and rushed at us and asked why we were coming from that end. By this time the houses were on fire.

He advised us not to go to Kenema and said that in fact he spoke to us only because we hailed from the same village. They had padlocks on their lips. He went to one of them. I did not know what they discussed. He asked us to go back to Bomaru. The rebels were too many in Kwiva and I was worried that they would kill us. We went into the bush again and we all went back to Bomaru. On arrival, my eldest girl was captured. They made her their wife and took every thing from us. I asked them to have mercy on me as I had wounds all over my body. One of them asked the rebels what I was saying. They explained to him. He pointed his gun at us. He then released my daughter but all our belongings were taken from us. I was advised not to sleep there and that I should go back to Bomaru. When we went to Bomaru, we were arrested. We were unable to go to Kenema or Liberia. We ate all our food and nothing was there to eat. We ate bush yams. We were there on to the time the wound healed up.

We were unable to move and the Kamajor came to our rescue. We were there and things were alright at the time when the Kamajors were with us. No body insulted us or took our food. They said nobody should insult a woman. We were sleeping at night when we heard gun shot. Then we asked ourselves, what we wished to do next. Those who were outside said we should not go. The firing was all over the town. We were inside the house shouting. My brother was a Kamajor. He came and called my name and I answered. He said we should come out of the house that the rebels had overpowered them. We left the house and went to Natco house. We crept on to the place, and we saw some dead people.

The soldiers ordered us not to leave the place as they were still protecting us. We told the soldiers that the place was not safe as our relatives were dying. At 2:00 p.m., I realized that my daughter had been killed. Then I said I was going there for them to kill me too; my daughter loved me. She always listened to me. We went and saw them lying on the road; seven of them. She was fired on the ribs. I went and grabbed her dead body. They took her from me. They were all collected and taken to the court barray. I was troubled and I am still discouraged. They were buried in a mass grave. There were about ten or eight of them buried in one grave. We were told to leave the town. I said why should I go; I wanted to die with Adama. I refused to go. So many people left. We sat down everyday and rebels met us at Bomaru. I was unable to tell who killed my daughter. Somebody pointed out the person who killed my daughter. At the time we left Bomaru, we were all sitting with the person, but he did not know me. He was telling the crowd how my daughter was killed. We asked for the names of those that were killed, and my daughter's name was called. My mother's name is Yeabu Amara. My father's name is John, a black smith. Then the boy-confessor said please do not kill me but kindly take me along. The boy begged for mercy. He had expressed his wish to marry Adama but I disagreed. Then the war erupted. He explained how Adama was killed. As I was weeping all his colleagues told him that he was wrong. We all got up and moved. From that time I have never set eyes on that boy. We suffered a lot.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We have heard your story. It is difficult to see you going through this suffering and I would want to invite my colleagues to ask questions.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Baidu I want to thank you very much for coming to share your experiences with us. You will excuse me if I ask you a lot of questions on what you have given us. You said this attack took place in March as the first attack in Sierra Leone. Being in Bomaru I thought you were referring to 23rd March 1991.

Baidu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When you left Bomaru you went as far as Pendembu with bullet wounds on your hands

Baidu: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: From Pendembu you went to a place called Dambara

Baidu: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you met by these rebels and did they persuade you to go back?

Baidu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You only took 14 days or a period of 14 days. How long did it take you from the time you left Bomaru to Pendembu? Can you recall?

Baidu: It was 14 days; I was a nursing mother at that time.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: This means you were back in Bomaru early in April.

Baidu: After I had had that injury from the bullet, my husband joined me and we went to Dambara.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you say the two rebels persuaded you not to go.

Baidu: When we left the town we were told to go to our villages and we went back to Bomaru. When we went to the town, we took three weeks there. We wanted to go, but we had no way to go to Kenema.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was it in Bomaru that your daughter and other people were killed. Was it the second time?

Baidu: Yes, It was on our return; It was the last attack.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you know how many people were killed?

Baindu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How many?

Baindu: I only know of two: my brother, Bockarie KK and Alie. Bomaru is a big place.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said so many bodies were buried including your daughter, how many people were killed when your daughter was killed?

Baindu: I cannot tell the exact number, but those that were killed with my daughter were seven in number; we came across so many bodies on our way.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How is your hand now?

Baindu: It did not heal immediately and I do feel pain in the injured hand, the left hand and sometimes water oozes from my ear.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: We are all sorry about what happened to you. According to your story your ordeal lasted for some time. Was it six months, one or two years?

Bandu: That is hard to say; we were traumatized. There are people amongst us who can know

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from the injury you have on your hand did any of your relatives suffer any serious violations?

Baindu: I cannot explain theirs.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they injured?

Baindu: Those I saw were not wounded.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You also talked about the Kamajors; do you know who was the leader

Baindu: They said the leader was called Kenyeh. Women didn't go close to them so I was afraid. I don't know his name

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you have medical records for your treatment at Pendembu?

Baindu: I have lost it because we were in the bush, but the dispenser was called Morie

Bishop Humper: Thank you for your contribution. I heard you said the rebels spoke different languages.

Baindu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you recall the name of the person who killed your daughter?

Bandu: No, I could not recognize him

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you recall the name of the boy who helped you out of Pendembu?

Baindu: He was called Lahai

Leader of Evidence: I have two questions in order to help the Commission to understand, before the war started, were there any relationship between the people of Bomaru and Liberia, any intermarriages?

Baindu: Yes, we had a relationship with people from Liberia and even had children for them. We saw people from Liberia as our brothers and there were intermarriages with people from Bomaru.

Leader of Evidence: Were you also aware that there was a war going on in Liberia?

Baindu: At that time, there was no war in Liberia

Leader of Evidence: Before the attack on Bomaru, did you normally see people with guns; people who could have come from Liberia?

Baindu: No, I did not see anybody with guns from Liberia.

Leader of Evidence: Before the war started, was there a garrison of soldiers in Bomaru?

Baindu: At that time there was none, I did not see them.

Leader of Evidence: Were there soldiers in Bomaru before the war started?

Baindu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the commission when you started seeing soldiers in Bomaru?

Baindu: I can't tell the time. We were sitting one day when we saw the policemen packing their luggages and we saw a truck of soldiers coming down.

Leader of Evidence: When the rebels were in Bomaru, could you tell us the nature of their relationship with the people coming from Liberia?

Baindu: No, I can't tell. Everyday, we left the town and went into the bush.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where the soldiers got their food from?

Baindu: Some mornings, they came around and begged from us.

Leader of Evidence: Was there any time your chief demanded food from you to give the rebels?

Baindu: No, I did not give them any food.

Leader of Evidence: To your knowledge, was there any time when the SLA was involved in violations?.

Baindu: No, I can't explain everybody's suffering

Leader of Evidence: The people whom you said were talking different languages; can you explain what they were wearing?

Baindu: There were certain times when they rubbed blue on their faces.

Leader of Evidence: Where is the child you were carrying?

Baindu: At home

Leader of Evidence: Where is your husband?

Baindu: We are staying together.

Leader of Evidence: Was your house affected or is it still there?

Baindu: All our houses were burnt down. We have built a hut which we now live in.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We have asked you a number of questions; do you have any questions or recommendations to make to the commission?

Baindu: I have a question. Why is it that after going through all these sufferings with all the pains in our heart, you still ask us to narrate it again?

Chairman Bishop Humper: What you are saying is the opening up of wounds. Some of you will not understand what we are doing now, but later you will. Nobody will tell you that you will ever forget about that. Many things have happened in this country. Until we know what has happened to people like you, we will continue to remain in misery in this country. It takes pain and agony and suffering when talking about it afresh. Do you have any other question?

Baindu: I am suffering here, so I am thanking you that you have answered. If I do not ask this question I will never know all what you have explained to me

Chairman Bishop Humper: Thank you very much Baindu, we shall take this into consideration

2nd Witness – Patrick Lamin

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Commissioner Aminata Jow

Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Patrick Lamin. I am a Christian. The witness took the oath using the Bible. The oath was administered by Chairman Bishop Humper.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Patrick I am sure you must have been abreast with our process here. I want you to feel free to give your testimony because we consider it important for our report.

TESTIMONY

I hail from Bomaru. In February 1991, my father called me to go to Bomaru. During that period, there was war in Liberia. I saw a lot of rebels crossing the Liberia border. Some were speaking Liberian languages. They were staying with us. A group of armed forces arrived from Liberia to Bomaru. During that time, they never knew the town was called Bomaru. When they arrived, they saw the flag around the border. During the period there were no arms in Bomaru, there was only a barracks. They called on the section chief and put the case across with regard to the mission of their visit. The soldiers who arrived, the section chief and the policemen went along with the soldiers to Bomaru. We saw, at one time, a lot of armed men at Bomaru and they came with a purpose. The head of the team was Major Foday and he was with us. On a Saturday, we heard a gun shot. Even at that time we did not know what was going on. We heard the sound of heavy machine guns and we did not hear any other sound for five minutes. We thought there was a ceremony in Bomaru. Not too long we heard sporadic gun shots. I thought it was the armed men who were annoyed.

At one time, some groups of armed men came around and said we had to feed them or we would be put in prison. We used to cook for the armed men on the ground. They put all of us in prison one day for cooking their meal late. When we heard the gun shot, I thought it was the same thing. This time it was serious. We were in the house for sometime along the Helewa Road. We heard the noise of the people and were very happy because we thought the soldiers were going to assist us. When the people went towards the town, we heard gun shots again. The whole town was seized for a while.

When I came out of the house, I was frightened because I had never heard such loud and sporadic gun shots. They said Lt. Kargbo had been killed by the people. I saw him and he had been destroyed by the bullet. They told us that the Commander of the army Major Foday had also just fallen in the ensuing battle. On the same day and at the same time, my uncle arrived and told me that one of our children had been killed. So I moved away with my family. In the morning of the following day, people left Pendembu to go and look at what had happened. Then I came to know that fourteen other people had died. We used to bury people in twos or threes in one grave. I told my mother that I had to return. I was advised not to go as my dad was sick. At one time, they told us that we should not go anywhere. They told us that people were coming from Freetown to join us. I was personally feeling that on that day I was to leave the town. I heard another round of firing on Sunday, 31st March, at 7:00 p.m. Everybody went inside again and we stayed inside for a while. After the death of the two army officers, they sent a large reinforcement was sent by the government to protect the area. Johnny Paul was the leader for the group. There was rapid firing on that day. We were inside the house when we heard that another set of people had come to protect us. I told my family to go away. Our building was at the end of the town. We went into the bush. They used to tell us that when the people came the rebels never crossed a river.

We were at Gulama when they attacked us again. I did not know the area. I was with my family. We were there for some time and some people moved away. My mother told me that we should return to our village. When we crossed the river, we met another group of rebels. There were a lot of SLA rebels. They told us that the foreigners from Liberia would kill us. We slept in the village and the following day, we moved to another village called Yengema. We were there for a month. We asked the people we met there about Bomaru. We moved back to Bomaru; we all left Yengema. When we reached Bomaru, they had destroyed all the houses. Even the authorities in the town were not around. When we reached, we started seeing people from Liberia. There was no food for my people to eat. They used to visit us and ask us to take along their luggage. When we went to our village, it was another tedious work for us. After the war, no one went to Gulama. We heard that another group of soldiers came and drove the rebels. After they had gone, our brothers told us that a lot of people died. All the people went into one house. The armoured car destroyed the house and they arrested a lot of people. Up to date, those who were arrested have still not shown up. During that time, they used to rape people. When you found food the rebels would take it from you. My dad was confused and he started asking me where we should go again. Since the people of Liberia had come, he decided that we should go. At one time they told us that they had killed my younger brother at the war front. During that time, I was very thin with nothing to eat. Later, my father went to Bomaru. I did not go there again. We went to Liberia and were staying there.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you for coming to share your experience with us. We will now ask you questions for clarification.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Bomaru is a very important place for this war. Like all border areas, you have families on both sides of the borders. People visited themselves and there was cordial relationship and inter marriages. Were you surprised on that day, 23 March, 1991 when you heard the first gun shot?

Patrick: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Why were you surprised?

Patrick: Because for all my life in this country, I had never seen people so disturbed. I was not used to hearing gun shots.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You heard a gun shot then there was a second shooting. At that time you said some Sierra Leonean soldiers had come to protect you. On that point you did not tell us whether the Sierra Leoneans were those who killed the 14 people. Can you tell us whether the soldiers who attacked were Sierra Leonean soldiers or were they soldiers from Liberia?.

Patrick: At the time when we came out, when the shooting was going on we never knew who was shooting. We were told that they were Liberian rebels but that they had gone back, they came and killed all those people.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So your assumption was wrong that SLA were there to protect you?

Patrick: It was not true.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said on 31st March there was another shooting. Was it by Liberian rebels or SLA rebels?

Patrick: When I came outside, a man told me that it was Liberian soldiers who had come to protect us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said earlier that after the death of Major Koroma another set of soldiers came, headed by Lt. Koroma.

Patrick: It was not on the 31st March, it was after the death of Major Foday

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said on 31st March it was Liberian soldiers that killed Maj. Koroma.

Patrick: In my statement given before this time, I said it was the time they killed Lt. Koroma and Major Foday and that was the time 14 people were killed.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Lt Koroma was not killed, but he led the army.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Another group arrived, we were asked to go to the barracks and assemble

Patrick: At the time when Lt. Kamara was there, it was on a Sunday that the shooting started again after the ceasefire. When we were told to go outside one Pa

Momoh came and told us that the soldiers protecting us had left and that another set of Liberian soldiers had come to drive them away.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You refused to go and decided to go to Bomaru.

Patrick: No, I refused to go to the barray because I suspected that something would happen.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When you crossed the river, you met some soldiers who said they were SLA's?

Patrick: When they crossed the river at Bulabong we were resident there and they said another set of soldiers were coming for us. When we crossed the river, it was at that time we met rebels.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was it the time they told you that they were SLA?

Patrick: Yes, we knew some of them, they were speaking Mende.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Can you remember their names?

Patrick: No, I can't remember their names.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were in charge of where?

Patrick: When we crossed they told us that God had blessed us because we did not meet Liberian rebels.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did they treat you well?

Patrick: They did nothing to us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Who were these people asking and tormenting you for food?

Patrick: It was Liberian rebels mixed with some others.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You spoke about the atrocities caused by rebels. Did you say so?

Patrick: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I will like to know whether you saw it yourself.
You mentioned abduction. Was there any attempt by the rebels to abduct you.?

Patrick: My younger brother Vandy was taken away.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How long did he stay in the bush?

Patrick: Quite sometime

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you fight as a young man?

Patrick: At the time, I was too small and was unable to fight. Those who knew me can attest to that.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: In your statement, you said 14 people were killed.

Patrick: I said in the first attack, 14 people were killed.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Were they killed by gun fire?

Patrick: I explained earlier that some were killed.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You are saying that on that first day, 14 people died in Bomaru, do you know the spot where these people were killed?

Patrick: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: Was the armoured car from Liberia or Sierra Leone?.

Patrick: It was owned by the SLA. At the time they came, I was present. We were all inside and nobody was talking.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Perhaps those armoured cars had so many people killed.

Patrick: I was not present when the killing took place. When we returned people told us that that was the house.

Leader of Evidence: Among those killed on 23rd March were two soldiers.

Patrick: What I said is that at that time no soldier had entered Bomaru. At the time the rebels from Liberia left, they were held by the Sierra Leone Army. They were in Bomaru and were killed on 31st March.

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned Paul Koroma;. which one of the Paul Koroma's?

Patrick: The same Paul Koroma, leader of AFRC.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know how long he stayed in Bomaru?

Patrick: He came in just after the death of Lt. Foday

Leader of Evidence: He was the one that told you that they were going to protect you?

Patrick: Yes

Leader of Evidence: Did you hear at any time that the rebels were fighting with SLA soldiers or fighting with Kamajors?

Patrick: As I understood, they were fighting among themselves

Leader of Evidence: These rebels you were referring to were they the same rebels or were they from another group.

Patrick: They were the same group.

Leader of Evidence: Did you ever go to see the leader?

Patrick: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were any Violations of people's rights caused by this group?

Patrick: They would come and tell us that they had come to protect us, but they turned round and attacked us.

Leader of Evidence: Did you belong to any group?

Patrick: No, since I left in 1992, I only came back in 2000

Patrick: I have some few words to say to the commission

As the war started in Bomaru, all our houses were destroyed. We want the government to help us with medical centre, education, etc. We only have one well in Bomaru. Now that the war is over we want our people to be educated. If we are educated, we will be able to promote ourselves. Should the government provide, skills training centres, our people can learn skills to develop themselves. Now that the war is over, we are not talking about ourselves, but for our younger ones. They want to go to school. Even the road to Bomaru is very bad. The rebels destroyed one bridge. We need the government to help us build that bridge. This is the message I have for the government.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We want to thank you. I have been in Bomaru a couple of times. You have over 200 school children there. Some of your recommendations can be addressed in due course. Government policy is to provide education for girls and children and to provide skills training. This also includes national road network. The commission will take your recommendations very seriously and it will be incorporated in our report. We thank you for coming.

3rd – Witness - Ansumana Konneh

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Commissioner Aminata Jow

My name is Ansumana Konneh. I am a Muslim. The witness took the oath using the Koran. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper. We welcome you to the Commission. Relax; feel free to give your testimony.

TESTIMONY

We were at Bomaru. Ever since I was born I had never seen a thing like the war that entered in Bomaru on Saturday. On that Saturday, we heard a big blast. The rebels entered our house. We were in the house for two hours. Whilst we were in our house they knocked on our door and asked us to open the door. When we came out, we saw a lot of dead bodies. I asked where those boys were coming from and they said they came from Liberia. On a Sunday, they came back and started firing. We went into the house. We were so filthy as we lay under our beds, trembling. We were in there when the rebels came with their guns and took us outside. We were all sitting and they fired in the air. We didn't understand their language. I then slipped away. They told us that Bomaru was empty so we went to one village. They moved us to Daru and we suffered there. We were there when they said that the situation was a little bit better and we came back. That was what I saw in the war.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You last mentioned a first attack on Saturday and then you also mentioned a second attack but during this attack you said your movement was restricted. How did they restrict your movement?

Ansumana: We were surrounded by the rebels for a long time. I am not educated and I cannot tell.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Is it a matter of hours or days?

Ansumana: It was a matter of hours.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was it during that period that you were also harassed?

Ansumana: Yes it was at that time that they burnt our houses and mosque

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are you saying that on the first attack on the 23rd they killed people, but on the second attack they only restricted your movement and burnt houses?

Ansumana: No, during the second attack I did not see them kill people.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You left the place and since then you stayed at Bomaru with all your family.

Ansumana: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you give us a reason why you said you were surprised?

Ansumana: A gun shot came from Liberia and ever since the Sierra Leone Army was there they did not fire at us.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Were they in uniform?

Ansumana: They were not in uniform; they had different colours of clothes with blue all over their faces?

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said you were subjected to harassment, can you tell the way you were harassed?

Ansumana: I had a barn of rice; it was completely burnt down on that day.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were you with your family on that day?

Ansumana: Yes, I was with my family.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us how many of you are in your family?

Ansumana: We are five in number.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We have been asking you questions, do you have any question or recommendations to make?

Ansumana: The first thing is that the war started in Bomaru, but no development had taken place there. As I stand here, I am putting on used clothing. We have made so many sacrifices for the road to be developed. We are really backward; we have no bed, we are lying on sticks.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Ansumana, we have heard what you said, in addition to what others said before or will say later. Everything will be considered when we write our report.

4th – Witness – Mr. Abu Turay

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Commissioner Aminata Jow

Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Abu Turay. I am a Muslim. The witness took the oath using the Koran. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Abu, we welcome you. Feel free and relax as you give your testimony.

TESTIMONY

We heard gun shots. They fired big guns. Then we heard that the rebels had fought the soldiers and had driven them away. We saw one Fullah man and his child on a motorbike running away. They told us that the war had entered Kenema. The Fullah left his child on his Honda and he went. After some time he came for the child again. At night we went to a place where we saw soldiers coming. The rebels had overpowered us and we couldn't fight them. We came back to Sandahun. We were sitting again and they told us that the rebels had captured Sandahun. I did not go anywhere. We were not seeing them. We saw that those people who were going to Guinea came across the rebels and they asked them where they were going. I was with one Themne man named Hassan. We lived opposite each other. All those who had wanted to go to Guinea were captured and brought back to Bomaru. Then my friend and I said we were not going anywhere, we must see the rebels. We waited for them. We heard a sharp gun shot and the firing continued. Then they came close to us and I came out. They called me to follow them. When we went, we met a lot of people. My friend told them that he was a chief. They asked him whether he was a chief. He said that he was. They told him to open his mouth and they placed the gun inside his mouth and fired him. They ordered me to throw away the body. Then I told them that I had a question for them. They had said that nobody should leave this town and our people were scared of them and had left. They told us to bring them back. I was calling them out of the bush. Then we all came back. For three days the body of the chief was still on the ground. It was on that same day that they captured Kailahun. We were afraid to touch the body. It was about seven o'clock when the burial took place. After sometime, Foday Sankoh came and told us that he was here to free us from slavery. Although Sankoh said this when we found food, the rebels would take it from us. Anything we had they would take from us. I had money in my pocket and his boys came and took my money away from me. Then Sankoh moved to Bonama. I told his boys that Sankoh would not succeed. Then they arrested me and detained me for three days. They did not give me water or food to eat. They took a statement from me. When Sankoh returned, they gave my statement to him. They said they were going to kill every body. I said if it was for the truth I was ready to die. Sankoh asked me to go over what I had said earlier. I told him that he was not going to succeed. He asked me whether I said that. I said yes. "Why did you say so?" Sankoh asked. I said because your boys took over all my belongings if I had talked, they would have killed me. He asked his boy whether he took anything from me. The boy said yes. Then Sankoh was annoyed with him. He said that what I had said was true and that if the boys did that they would not succeed. The amount of money the boys took from me, Sankoh took it out and added two thousand Leones to it and encouraged me to take it. I refused to take it. Ever since, when the boys passed my house, they did not come near my house.

At one time, one man came and his name was Hanjie, he was with us at Sambuya Road. He was staying in my brother's house. In my store, I had fifteen bags of coffee and palm-kernel. I was restricted from entering my own house. Hanjie had a wife who gave me orders not to enter my own house. They took all my coffee. We saw people tied up. They said those people wanted to go to Guinea that was why we tied them up. After the capture of those people, they cut off the ear of a man and gave it to him to chew. I counted up to 13 people whom they killed. After the killing of those people, Hanjie was still in the town for three days. We then got together and found a way to bury the people. We buried them at the place they were lying. All of my houses were turned upside down. I had sixty goats and they ate two every day. They finished all what we had and we only lived on snails. That is all what I can say. I was told that my son was killed. That particular son was my breadwinner. None of my sons belonged to any fighting group. I had a hunting dog and they sent him hunting. When the dog did not catch anything, they killed the dog. The commander that captured the town was the one who killed the chief.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Abu, we thank you for your testimony. The commissioners and Leader of Evidence would ask you questions for clarification.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You spoke of Foday Sankoh, in 1991 and 1994

Abu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was it during that period that you suffered all these losses?

Abu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Foday Sankoh was there?

Abu: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did he know anything about it?

Abu: Sankoh was not stationed at Sandahun. If you told Sankoh what they did, they would kill you.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you say Hanjie stripped every body naked?

Abu: He did not do that to everybody, it was only to the Chief. When the Chief said "I am the chief: they took out a knife and tore his trousers.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were people not caught trying to escape to Guinea?

Abu: People were moving from Sandahun to Guinea. Anytime you asked them, they would say that they were coming from Byamau.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you witness or know of massacres?

Abu: The only one I saw was the people they killed. We buried one with his child and the others were buried separately.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Have you seen Foday Sankoh since 1994?

Abu: No

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Have you heard about him at all?

Abu: I heard people say, he has been captured?

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did Sadihum make any attempt to defend the town?

Abu: We did not do that because we had no guns.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said you went to Guinea, how long were you there?

Abu: I spent five years during the war in Sandahun. All the five years was spent in Sandihun. After the five years I went to Guinea.

Commissioner Professor Kamara Kamara: You mentioned your son who was killed.

Abu: My son I mentioned came to look for food together with soldiers and he was killed. He was killed by a swamp at Balahun.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You mentioned one Col. Issa

Abu: Besides Foday Sankoh and Hanjie, I don't know col. Issa; I have never seen him. I only made mention of one Hassana

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Would you say Foday Sankoh was in control of these boys?

Abu: When he was around they behaved nicely. No sooner he left they started misbehaving and nobody dared to report them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Abu, We have been asking you questions, do you have questions to ask or recommendations to make?

Abu: The only thing is to give thanks to God. I did not have any grudge for anybody. I know it is God's wish. It is because you have called me to talk about it that is why I have said something.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Thank you for talking to the commission. We are particularly pleased to know that you are ready to forgive.

5th Witness - Katimu Momoh

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Commissioner Aminata Jow
Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Katimu Momoh. I am a Muslim. The witness took the oath using the Koran. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Katimu, this is your opportunity to talk to the Commission. We are ready to listen to you now.

TESTIMONY

It was on a Saturday and another attack took place on another Saturday. About 2.00 in the night and the whole of Danihum moved. We went into the bush and built a hut. As we built the hut our chief called Amara also built a hut. Very early in the morning, they brought thatch and the Gio people from Liberia came to attack them. Our mother whose hut they were building told us they had captured three people, my husband and two other people. They were taken to Pendembu and we moved from those huts and came to town. We were in town for a long time; we didn't know their whereabouts. We heard they were taken to Pendembu for about two months and two weeks. My children and I wept. After two months, he came back. I thank God. We were happy on that day. After that, we were suffering for food. The day we went to the bush, in the garden, he saw something in hiding. At the time the Gio people were attacking us they took our shoes off our feet. His uncle went to report him in the office that his nephew had stolen from him. The people in the office gave him a good beating and tortured him. We moved to Kailahun. My husband was seriously sick and then the soldiers entered this land. In Kailahun, in a house, the soldiers said my husband was causing noise for them. I was also sick. They said that the enemies were around and there should be decorum. The day our child gave him a nice bed, we found him dead. I did not cry because I was sick. Up to date I have no husband and the child is still with me. Everything is upside down with me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You spoke of Gio and Burkinabies who entered and started the war in Sierra Leone; how did you identify them?

Katimu: When they came, they said they were Liberians and we did not understand their language. It was from their language that we recognized them.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You also mentioned that your father was one of those captured with your husband?

Katimu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What happened to your father?

Katimu: My father was not taken away; It was the son of the father who was taken away. The man who made the report is my husband's uncle.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was this uncle a Kamajor?

Katimu: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was the uncle a rebel?

Katimu: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: But he reported to the rebel

Katimu: Yes

Prof Kamara: Thank you.

Katimu: I am just asking for assistance for everybody. We had all our places destroyed. We have our children, but there are no good schools. We are appealing to the government to help develop our place.

6th – Witness – Momoh K. Siaffa

Presiding Commissioner: Bishop JC Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Commissioner Aminata Jow

Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Momoh K. Siaffa. I am a Christian. The witness took the oath using the bible. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper

Chairman Bishop Humper: On behalf of the Commission and the audience we want to thank you for coming

We will now give you this opportunity to present your statement.

TESTIMONY

It was in January 1991 my in-law was in Freetown. He wrote a letter to me asking me to go to him so that he could help me. On my way going, I went with my family. On arrival, he welcomed us and we were there for some time. He then told us that he would assist me. It was towards the end of February that he would do some shopping for me the following day; he would buy some food items and kerosene for me. The following day, we went and bought them. On a Friday, when we wanted to leave, the baby had fever. His face was rough and he had developed blisters. In the morning, we went to the hospital where the baby was treated. We were there for three weeks. The day I said I was coming to check at Yawa it was within those days that we heard that the rebels had attacked Bomaru. Then my in law advised us not to leave. I told him that I was going to Kenema. At that time, my mother, father and children were all there. I insisted on going to Kenema. After two days I came to Daru. I was in Daru for one week and returned back to Kenema and I proceeded to Freetown. At the end of April, I came back to Kenema. I had no way, so I went back to Freetown.

In 1992, I was moving to and from Freetown. Finally, in 1993 I stopped going to Kenema. We were in Freetown when the AFRC took over. I was with my wife. We were together for three good months suffering when the AFRC took over. Because of this suffering my wife decided to go to her elder brother at Race Course Road. At the time, we had a baby girl. When she was there, the girl got sick. After that I used to go and visit them. Anytime I failed to go there, she would not go to see me, not knowing that she had a lover. Anytime I left, the lover will go to the house. That was going on, then she allowed her lover to moved into her residence permanently. Then house and then my child passed away. The funeral ceremony was arranged. Thereafter, she finally refused to continue with our relationship. The lover was a soldier and he took my wife from me. My father, brother and myself went there on two occasions to talk to her, but she refused. I came back in the year 2001. One of the children is with her and the other two are with me.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Momoh, we know what it means to have your wife taken away from you. However, we will ask you some questions for clarification.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We sympathize with you and we have heard your story. Have you ever talked to the AFRC soldier?

Momoh: Yes I did.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What did he say?

Momoh: He said she couldn't turn again. At that time, he had power. He was a driver. At the time it happened, I was really annoyed, but now thanks be to God.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you.

Leader of Evidence: Did you suffer any harm by any person personally?

Momoh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the Commission how?

Momoh: During the time of the January 6 invasion, the time the rebels and soldiers captured Freetown, a lot of damage was done. Our house was burnt down and everything was burnt. Those wheel chairs the amputee used were put up in the ceiling of the house. They told us that these were government properties. They met only two of us at home. They left us and came back, about twenty-four of them and they were firing. They took me to clay factory. The man said I should give him the wheel chair. Fortunately, the fellow who had the wheel chair came up and asked me for them. I told him that I was arrested for the wheel chair. He told them to release me.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the AFRC person?

Momoh: Yes, I know him by one name, Sheriff.

Leader of Evidence: If you see any soldier come around you, what comes to your mind?

Momoh: I have forgotten about that.

Leader of Evidence: I am asking this question because the Commission has a say in this country. We thank God you did come in contact with Sheriff. Whenever you see that man it becomes fresh in your mind.

Chairman Bishop Humper: I want to thank you for coming.

Momoh: Our children that were supposed to be educated are now grown up. We are appealing to the government to assist us in arranging education for our children. The second thing is the bad road. Traveling from Kenema to Koidu is bad. Not too far from June to August we will get serious problems on the road because of the rain.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Your protection is assured and guaranteed.

PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD ON 13TH MAY 2003 IN KAILAHUN

1ST Witness – Maya Gaba

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara
Commissioner Bishop JC Humper
Commissioner Aminata Jow
Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Maya Gaba. The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: We thank you for coming to participate in this hearing. I want to remind you that this is not a court. It is only a Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Please relax to tell us your experience.

TESTIMONY

We were in Pendembu in 1991. It was on a Saturday morning when we heard that Bomaru was attacked. On that Saturday on March 23, 1991, people were moving from Pendembu. I asked why they were moving and said that the war had reached us. We were told that the attackers were thieves and that they had a deal with the soldiers who refused to pay them. Another attack took place in one week's time. A large number of people were coming from the area. When they arrived, we asked them why and they told us that the war had finally reached Sierra Leone. We started moving from Pendembu. One day, we saw soldiers coming and at that time my father was a town chief. A soldier came and told my father that the war had entered Sierra Leone and that they could not confront these rebels they are from Liberia. They had therefore decided to go to Daru. Everybody was moving helter skelter. Some went to Daru and others went to other places. I had no chance to move because my parents were blind; I was unable to take them along. I took them to the village. After some days, we heard that they had attacked Kailahun. Those who braved the situation were there until the rebels reached Pendembu. We were in the village. They then came and told us that the rebels had finally entered and that their fight will last for three months. The rebels said that they had not come for poor people but for the government. We whom they met in the town were told to get out of the bush and get back to town. The number of rebels from Liberia increased. Some went to Bomaru and others to Pendembu. After a couple of days, they captured so many areas. They also captured Bunumbu. They then fortified all the areas they had captured. No soldiers were amongst them at that time. There were more rebels. They then proceeded to the barracks and there was heavy fighting. We stopped all our farm work. People told us to continue our farm work as the rebels did not come for us. We started farming again. Not too long, they started entering our village. When they entered there, they captured our cattle and took away our belongings. It was too much for us and we went into the bush. When we came back to town, the rebels talked to us to still continue to work. In 1991, we had a Commando called Charles, alias Rambo. His niece came to us and told us that they had killed Rambo. Among those people that brought the news to us were different tribes. There were Kissi, Pele and Gio people. Whilst the fighting was going on the fighters from Liberia were called the vanguards. The number of national fighters out numbered the vanguards. We again witnessed where they forcefully recruited our brothers into the group. When our parents asked them, they said they were going to recruit them. The vanguards said that they had plans to fight the war to some point and then leave it with the Sierra Leoneans. They started training some boys. Whilst we were in hiding, they followed the foot paths to where we were hiding. If they met you with food, they would take it and rape your wife in front of you. I was a victim. I was sleeping with my wife when four of them took me outside, under gun point, and took my wife and had sex with her. At that time we did not know the leader of the war, but we were told that the leader was Sankoh and he was in Koindu. The complaint about the harassment reached him and he came to Kailahun.

Sankoh said that he was the leader of the war and he was not alone. "Even if I succeed, said Sankoh, I will not be the president. There is somebody who will be the President. That is why you need to be patient in spite of all the sufferings you go through. APC is not doing anything for you in this country. You are supposed to be car owners in this country. That is why I have come to overthrow the APC and bring back SLPP. But some of our people knew SLPP before and started telling us details about SLPP. Then some of us started to calm ourselves. Thereafter we stayed together for a long time. When we were staying together, any time Sankoh left for somewhere, they punished us. Some of our brothers who went for training came and told us that they had started eating our brothers in the camp. That was too much for the boys. After some time, we saw a number of boys coming from one village handing themselves in for training. Their number surpassed the number of Liberians. After the training they refused to give them guns and moved them from place to place without guns. It came to a time when they had a movement called tap 20. Any time they moved they would kill a lot of people. They always told the boys to carry their load. If you refused their orders, they would kill you. We were to take them to Foya Kama. If you went safely to Foya, on your way coming if you were not doing any work they would take you back to Foya. People were forced to carry heavy loads like freezers. Upon the return of Sankoh from Pujehun the number of complaints from the boys increased. Sankoh told us "Gentlemen let me ask you, are you not men in your country? If you are really men you will not be afraid of these kinds of things. After the discussion the Gio people started killing our people. After all those sufferings, in 1992 even Foday Sankoh himself felt the hitches of the war. The only person they respected was one man Pa Jim. He was also a rebel commando. They then didn't take orders from Sankoh; they took orders from Pa Jim. He started realizing that the complaints from his boys were true. He then told the boys that they had to join the movement and that he wanted them to fight for their country. Anytime they brought arms from Charles Taylor, he hid them. Any time the Gio people told him that they had run out of arms, he would tell them to go away that he had not received any arms from Charles Taylor. The Gio people finally ran out of arms. He then went to Charles Taylor and told him that the boys he sent had committed series of atrocities and that he didn't want them anymore. He told him that he had his own boys to fight the war. There were some boys who were given to him by Charles Taylor; They are called vanguards. They would just look at you and kill you. Sankoh told the boys to drive away all Liberians from Sierra Leone. The boys succeeded in driving them away. Those trained in Liberia were called the Vanguards. Sankoh was assisted by C.O. Mohamed who was then called C.O. Issa. There were many of them and they had various names. They carried on with the war for a long time; unto the point where the NPRC forces made an advance. We were happy for that kind of attack hoping that the soldiers would come to rescue us. All they did was to stop at Pendembu and they stayed there for a long time. The soldiers were at Pendembu and civilian presence would only be seen at Pendembu and onwards.

The Gio fighters harassed the people who were trying to bring salt to us; it was a false allegation. They captured up to 30 people in our village; 29 were killed and one saved. Our village was called Moyamu leading to Kailahun. They were killed at one bridge. Any resident of Ngiehun who came across to the town was killed. That made us to leave our town and some went to Koindu. The only man who was saved was a half man and he is still alive. Before killing them they put a drum of oil on fire and used it on them. One of my sister's son was asked to have sex with his mother. After that they killed them. The war ceased after sometime and we came back to the village. We were there for some time then the soldiers started their attacks. We were captured. There were three of us; me, Keni Salia and Musa. Then the Gio fighters had been driven away. On our way back, Keni Salia was captured and killed. I had nowhere to go because I had grand parents. It was in 1992 that they were finally laid to rest. After their death a massive advance, ordered by Tom Nyuma took place up to Koidu. Whilst we were moving towards Koindu, my wife and children were separated from me. They went towards the Liberia border and I went to the Guinea border. We did not see one another again. I had a sister called Theresa with whom I decided to cross over into Guinea. There were a lot of people at that point. The rebels told us that that kind of advance the soldiers were making was not for civilians, so we should go ahead as they were listening to their commanders. We were all scattered. When we got to the crossing point, we demanded that the Guineans should go with us and they consented. We were at the riverside when the Guinean soldiers launched RPG on us; they opened fire on us. That was when they fired my sister. After which everybody scattered and I continued to drag her to a village where she survived. By 4:00 p.m., she regained consciousness and we started talking; we were alone. We passed the night there and I left her to go and search for food.

I came in contact with a boy called Lansana and I told him that they had fired my sister. Lansana assisted me and she was put on a stretcher. They told us that we had been saved. They started encouraging us. We began to realize that those who told us that the soldiers would kill us were telling lies. As we arrived, my sister was taken to the hospital. Then the rebels attacked again. One of the army Commanders told me that he wanted to assist me, but I would have to pay him. He said that he wanted to marry one of my sisters. I told him that the girl was mature enough to decide for herself; so if she so desired, they could go ahead. The help he would give to us was to put my sister in a car and take her to Daru; I would join the vehicle to Daru. We were in Daru when they brought my sister and her condition was critical. We were waiting for the red cross vehicle to go to Kenema. In Kenema we called Bishop to collect my sister.

I was in Daru between 1993 and 1997. President Kabba was elected in 1996 but was overthrown by soldiers in 1997. That caused a lot of trouble in Daru. We were interacting peacefully in Daru. What happened was that we shared experience with one another. At that time the soldiers and Kamajors were working together. After the overthrow of Pa Kabba, the Kamajors were driven away. They started killing. After that it came to a time when the intervention took place. The Kamajors started revenging. It happened at one time when people saw a vehicle coming towards Daru they told us that the Kamajors had dropped off in Kenema. Any time they came to Daru they would just pass straight away. We also started leaving Daru. I personally said to myself that I should return to the village. We were there when the Kamajors came and captured Daru. I moved from Daru to Kenema. I was staying in Kenema up to the time Pa Kabba was reinstated. Then I said I would not return until the war came to an end. We heard that everybody should return to his or her village after the President was reinstated. We again heard by hearsay that Mosquito had passed an order. The order was that all those who had moved from their places must go back to Kailahun. They collected all those who were from Kailahun. At that time I was not in Kailahun but we heard the news. On our return, all those captured were alleged to be Kamajors and they were killed. Most of us were not Kamajors but mere palm wine tappers. That is what I know about the war.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you for your testimony.
Did you join the boys who were rebels?

Maya: No I did not join. Nobody in Kailahun can testify against me. My mother and father were sick. At that time rebels who were brought in by Charles Taylor were harassing our people and killing them. They killed the boys. They said if we were afraid of them, they would kill us. So the best thing was to join them for us to leave as free men.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: The whole of 1991, you had a lot of information how did you get these information?

Maya: I was staying with them up to 1993 when I left them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you know the leader of the rebels?

Maya: No, it was only Foday Sankoh. We were made to understand that the leader was Charles Taylor. He was giving them logistical support.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What faction did you fight for?

Maya: I did not fight for any faction, but I was forced to work for RUF; we were forced to work for them and to cook for them.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We want to thank you very much for this presentation
I want to believe that according to your testimony, there were two sets of rebels;
Rebels coming from Liberia and rebels trained in Sierra Leone.

Maya: The Liberian rebels actually brought the war to Sierra Leone.

Chairman Bishop Humper: So Foday Sankoh had to get the Liberian rebels out of this country; Am I right?

Maya: Charles ordered them to go but they refused. So he then told Sankoh not to supply them with any ammunition. "Now that your boys are capable of fighting the war hold on to the ammunitions and don't supply them" he said.

Chairman Bishop Humper: At the end of the day, Foday Sankoh sent them back to Liberia.

Maya: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: Those that were trained in this country?

Maya: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say that when Foday Sankoh went to Pendembu he said "My people I have come to liberate you".

Maya: That was what I said.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you or your people hear anything different from what Foday
Sankoh said?

Maya: No, because we were in great suffering they brought us to zero.

Chairman Bishop Humper: During the rebel war it is our understanding that the Kamajors and the ECOMOG were fighting against the rebels.

Maya: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say that after the coup on May 25, 1997 the soldiers drove the Kamajors?

Maya: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: So the soldiers joined the rebels?

Maya: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: There were two attacks on Bomaru one on the 23rd and the other on 31st March. According to you it is only the second attack that launched the rebel war, the first one was an expedition, am I correct?

Maya: The first one was on Saturday, that was what we were told. They did not come to settle; after the fighting they went back. They finally came the second time and they settled.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So you are saying that the real launching of the rebel war was on the 31st?

Maya: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You and your family were separated from the war, what do you know about them?

Maya: When we were separated, they went towards the Liberia border and the rebels used the same route. We were not in Daru when I heard that she had been bitten by a snake whilst finding fruit. There was nobody to take care of the children. The second son died of hunger. I have married another wife and she has bore children.

Leader of evidence

Leader of Evidence: Can I take you back to the first attack at Bamaru, which in your understanding was a business transaction between Liberia and Sierra Leone soldiers?

Maya: That was what we were told. They said they ran a business between themselves and the Sierra Leone soldiers did not complete their transaction. We believed because they did not settle after the attack.

Ozonnia; Can you tell us the name of these soldiers?

Maya: We were only told that they were doing business with soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: Did they tell you that they came to overthrow the APC?

Maya: Yes that was what they said. They said that APC was not doing anything for the people. That was in-fact the reason why they were not paying the government workers.

Leader of Evidence: My question is did Sankoh tell you who will be the president because he said even if he won the war he would not be the president?

Maya: He told us that he would not be president. It is difficult for a man to open himself to another person. He was still the rebel leader. According to him, the war was an organized war and he was just chosen to be the leader.

Leader of Evidence: How long did this training about SLPP last or did you get details about SLPP?

Maya: All what they told us about SLPP was that Sankoh wanted to bring SLPP back to power and he had come to overthrow APC

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you very much for your presentation and you have answered all the questions. Now it is your turn to ask us any question about the TRC.

Maya: I have a word to say to the commissioner.
This war had entered this country and everything had been brought to a halt. As they are telling us to have mercy on each other, we pray that we will do that. If we all say we are going to revenge, we will never have peace in the country. If we have grudge in the Kailahun district we will not be able to organize men to brush the farm. That is why I am appealing to the commission to continue to reconcile the people and to talk to government to help us especially in making our roads and providing medical centres. Those people who are clever in this community are doing the same work as this commission is doing. We don't even have money again to brush our farms except we cry to government to loan us some money. This is what I have for the commission.

2nd Witness - Bockarie K. Vannah

My name is Bockarie Vannah. The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

I heard about the war on March 23, from Bomaru. That was the time that the soldiers and rebels from Liberia were fighting. We were told that the fighting was for a Land Rover that the Liberian soldiers sold to the Sierra Leonean soldiers. After two days we heard that they had plans to enter the village. We also heard that they entered a village and fought there. I also heard that they entered Koindu in 1991. We were in our own village. Messages were reaching us frequently. We went into the bush. At that time I had my father and my in law with me. (Both have passed away.) We went into the bush one day and I had planned to come and collect some of our properties. On my arrival a boy pointed the gun at me and said if I moved he would kill me. He ordered me to follow him. We got to a place where I saw some other people sitting down: they were ten in number. I was told to join them. Then one man stood up among them; he said his name was Edward Kenyeh. He said that they started the war and he was a Mende. He said once they had brought the war, they must win it also. "Now we would like to warn you. Don't move about. Sit where you are. Go and bring your relatives if they are in the bush," he ordered. Most of us did not comply. We stayed in the bush for two weeks.

The town was blessed; no gun was shot; nobody was killed. Edward then said that if we had daughters we should take them to the bush because they had been nice to them. But they had very wicked ones among them. "Go to your farm and stay there. Don't move about. Don't go to Liberia or Guinea," he advised. We were there for three weeks before they left. They came and asked for a shop where rice was sold. They said they wanted to see all the business men in the village. The people who were in the town hid their business men. One of my teachers told me he was shot close to his leg and was forced to show where they sold rice. All the rice was collected and brought outside and shared among the people. They asked for the headmaster in the town and they were told that he had left for Guinea. Where we were in hiding, somebody told me not to go to town because they had asked for me. At the start, things were a bit ok. The guy who came and distributed the rice left and for about three months, nobody came. Rebels were moving from Pendembu in large numbers saying that they could not fight the war, so they were leaving. People were rejoicing. Whilst they were rejoicing, there were rebels who were taking down names of those who were rejoicing. Their names were Santi and S.I. Kanu

After one week, the fellow who came to talk to us arrived with one man named C.O. Jiaffa who was from Sandaru. He had four guns. They told us that they had come to kill the people who were rejoicing. Nobody was caught on that day. On that day houses were burnt including the section chief's house. His assistant, Bockarie Johnny's house was also burnt. However, nobody was killed. It was on that day we were told that because we did not have any commander in the village that was why we did not have respect for the war. From that day onwards, they decided to leave a ground commander. We were to feed him. He was to be fed three times a day and he agreed. After the leaders had left, Saan was divided into three parts; I was in one group. The two names I mentioned have past away. Every Monday, we went hunting; all three groups. That went on for a long time. There was a group they formed which was called tap 20. Whenever members of this group passed by, they killed the people. It was in February 1992 that we all realised that they were not joking. It was at that time that Banahewa Tucker and two other men were killed. One of the two men was mad.

So many people went to Liberia. I went to a town called Puju. We went there, but we did not meet many people there. My in-law welcomed us. He told us that he was also moving out, but since we had just arrived, he would stay. The location of that particular sight was noticeable. I later heard that Sankoh stayed in Kenema for some time. We were there at one time when the town chief caught a boa constrictor. He was asked to bring the boa constrictor, but the chief said he did not have it. The commander in Puju at that time was called Peter. We had another Peter called Peter Congoli. Then Peter commanded the town chief to bring the boa constrictor. He was going through judgment for five days. One morning the chief was asked to go into the bush to hand over the boa constrictor. If anybody got near them he would lose his life. They went and were there for the whole day. We were afraid of them. It was on that same day that the chief passed away and he was buried in the town. We were asleep when we heard a noise. We did not come out. At daybreak we did not go there, but we could see the grave from our house. A big fire was lit on the grave. When Peter Congoli went to Freetown, he joined the rebels. I had wanted to go and testify against him, but my wife stopped me. I am just saying that if people did not know the Peter that killed the Chief, Peter Congoli killed the chief.

My in-law was unable to walk. We were there one day and they told us that the soldiers were advancing toward Pendembu. We, the few literate ones gathered and celebrated in the bush. I was the leading singer and others were dancing. We heard that they had reached Kailahun. They stayed in Kailahun for three weeks. Later on the fighting intensified. We were told that soldiers were at Sandaru junction. They left us and moved to Sandaru and then to Koindu. They told us not to follow them into the bush.

The elders of the town gathered us and asked me how we were going to live as there were no Kamajors or soldiers. We decided to collect our relatives and move with them to Pendembu. On arrival, only six of us survived. Two ran away and went back to the village. We came across soldiers. We did not run away. One soldier was among them he was called Momoh. He ordered them to take one of us to be killed; Nyuma Fayia was with them along with a civilian. Then we were asked to tell them where we were going. There were a lot of civilians but no presence of soldiers. "Are you not rebels yourselves?" they asked. We said we were not. No sooner we arrived in town than everybody started dancing. We were gathered outside and then I saw with my own eyes quick marriages being made.

They went back. When they went, they did not come back. The following day our elders came again. We went there and reached the town. On arrival everybody was stripped naked, except me. There was one soldier called Corporal Ten. Another boy called Tiger was in control. He told us that amongst us were his schoolmates Sidikie and Morie Jusu. Five people were locked up. "I have come to tell you that our people are in the bush," I said. "You are all rebels. We are going to start with you," one of them replied. We were ordered to go back as we had no command. I was taken to a Lt. A.O. Bangura. He asked me about my mission to the place. I told him that I had been sent to my people so that I could tell them that we were not in the bush. That was why they wanted to kill me. We were six in number. What were we to do? Then all of us were freed and we were each given a pass. No sooner had we arrived than the people came towards us, very early in the morning, it was on 16th November 1993. On arrival we took out the things we had, like machetes for our people to do some work in the bush. We were taken to the MIB. My name was the first to be written down. A.T. Kaneh, a colleague of mine had his name also written. "If you have taken down our names go and look for a house for us" he told them. A bullet came from nowhere and hit him on the chest. The person who shot the gun was not known and they brought him to us. They told us that they wanted to kill him for killing that man. Sensible people told us we should not agree. I and some others collected the dead body of that man to be buried.

On 21st November they came demanding to see the MIB and me. I was entering the office when I was asked to tell them whether I knew MIB. I said "yes". They asked me if I had ever joined the rebel group. They took off my shirt and put me in a cell. I met two others in the cell. Some were respectful people; dispenser Tombah was there. We were there when they came and collected us at night. He asked me if I knew A.M. Sidique.

The following day, one man came with a grenade and said that he was going to kill all of us. One woman grabbed the grenade and urged him not to kill us. She was Mariama. A soldier who was sitting on the veranda brought a gun and told us that he was going to kill all of us because we had stolen a tin of palm oil. Mariama came and pleaded for us. The man asked her to pay for the palm oil. We were called one day to make statements. I was asked to talk about my status during the war. I was the priest in the church at that time. They said Pastor Bangura and I should work in the Church. We should go to bed at 5:00 a.m. and wake up at 10:00 a.m. We were there when they asked us to go to court one day. Lt. Conteh, alias Banta, addressed us and told us that the government had granted a blanket amnesty. That was when NPRC was in power. We were told that we should tell all the rebels in the bush to come out. Anybody whose relatives were in the bush should come back to the village. I started seeing rebels coming to surrender. Some people were going to collect their own children. Things were getting better. One day Pastor Bangura told me that I was to prepare a sermon as we went to collect the people. He promised to assist me with his vehicle. They were going to kill the people they had captured.

He helped me to transport my family in two's. At 4:00 p.m. we heard gun shots. We were held up till 11:00 p.m. When we came out we heard that there were 75 boys who were captured and killed. Nobody went to investigate. We were permitted to move a little and pass around. Some were amputated. Nobody braved it to go and look there. All those boys who were detained were killed. I walked by a house. I saw all the clothes they used to cover the dead bodies. The soldiers were then passing around to see if we were crying. Pastor Bangura assisted me to send my wife to Freetown and my mother to Guinea.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow

We thank you for the submission.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You were a Head Teacher of the school during the war.

Bockarie: I was Headmaster before the war. I was also a Pastor.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: I will like you to tell me of the people in your village.

Bockarie: Some of the young people joined the rebels voluntarily; some of them were joining the rebels. The worse thing that happened was that a group of people went to us demanding that they wanted 100 rebels. We did not give them, but they went round and wrote about 20 names. The chief and I begged them not to take the people away. They said if we did not allow them to go, they would kill us.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Have they all returned?

Bockarie: A good number of them have not returned. We are all in peace: nobody has ever accused anybody of being a rebel.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: In your testimony, you made mention of three captains. You said they supervised the killing of about 75 people. Did you see these people?

Bockarie: I was not present when the order was passed, but they were in control. They were in the town at that time.

Bishop Humper

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you locate the mass grave where those people were buried?

Bockarie: They were not buried together: they buried them in four's. I did not witness the burial.
My voice was recorded on a tape. There are a lot of things I cannot explain here now. My daughter was attending school in Freetown. She was in form five. Upon completion, she decided to visit us. At the time my daughter came to Kenema, she had jerry curls and a pair of trousers on. As they came in contact with her, she was alleged to be the wife of a soldier and she was shot. I found the corpse of the girl ablaze. The following morning I came and saw the remains. People told me to leave because if they saw me, they would kill me. I was told at one point in time to join the Kamajors, but I told them that I am a Christian. The people then had different feelings about us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Commissioner Jow asked you about those 75 people and asked you who the people were after the NPRC gave Amnesty to the rebels.

Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: Capt. Masasqoi, Lt. Yoki and Conteh, do you know where they are now?

Bockarie: I don't know their whereabouts. I was told that Ct. Yoki is in the marine section of the army.

Leader of Evidence: The conclusion is that the NPRC sent soldiers to protect the people.

Bockarie: They were even worse than the rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Did you say your daughter was killed because they accused her of being the wife of a rebel.

Bockarie: The Kamajors had the opinion that any neatly dressed woman had dealings with soldiers.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Bockarie, we have been asking you questions, it is now your turn to ask questions or make recommendations.

Bockarie: I want to send a message. I want this commission to tell the government that before the war, we had a beautiful hospital: we had good schools in this town, but as we have come back, we have no houses, no school structures and the children in the school are up to 627. There is no schooling during the raining season. I want you to tell the government to provide us with those beautiful facilities so that we can live in peace. If these are provided for us, we will be happy. Our daughters are very backward here; not that they are not intelligent. I want the government to assist in establishing vocational institutions for our daughters. The perpetrators are now engaged in vocational skills.

3rd Witness – Messie Samba

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

My name is Messie Samba. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

In 1991 I was staying at Ngiehun. It was a market day and we were told that people were running. We did not ask why they were running. We ran away and went far off. The people told us that the soldiers and rebels were fighting in Bomaru. We asked what they were fighting for and we were told that the rebels and soldiers had a dispute because the soldiers did not give the rebels their money. It was not too long we saw people running. On that day, we went to the farm and I saw people moving with their luggages. We then packed our loads and came to my father. I told my father that we should go to the bush. My father said that one should not go to the bush without knowing what the fighting was about. We were told again that there was another fight in Daru. My child was in Pendembu. The day on which I went for him, they told me that he had gone somewhere. On my way, I met some people at the gate. I was told that nobody should enter Daru. I was told that we could not pass through that way but people were passing there with their luggages. I was told that I had to sit where I was. In the evening, we were sitting down when we saw people passing. We sat for a while then I told my father to go into the bush and he agreed. The rebels were wearing combat fatigues. Some of them had boots and some had bowler hats. They went to the town chief. They told him that they had come but that they had nothing to eat. The chief was blind and could not afford food for them. The chief said he had no wife who would prepare food for them. People were running away. Later they asked the chief to give them some cassava. The chief asked whether the people were soldiers. Then my father replied "I don't know, you can identify them; if they were soldiers they should have been in full kits". That was what we heard and all of us ran away. We did not know whether they were soldiers or rebels. We did not hear any gun shot. After two months in the bush, sometimes, some people came and watched the town and went back. I decided to come and see for myself. I took the route to Guinea.

As I was about to enter the town, I saw somebody with a gun and a padlock on his mouth. As soon as he saw me, he shouted "My wife" and I could not run away. He pointed the gun at me. He asked me where I was coming from. I said that I was coming from the bush. He asked who was with me. I said my family. I wanted to ask for his name, but I was afraid. Then he told me to tell the people that they were there for the war which should last for three months. "We have not come for the poor, but for the government. You people who are going to the bush will stay there indefinitely. It is better for you to come back to town," he said. He pointed the gun at me. I could not move. He took out some biscuits from his pocket and gave them to me. He told me to go but I was afraid. "Do you know my name?" I asked what his name was and he told me that he was C.O. Foday. I then ran away and went back to the bush. I was in the bush for a week. All those who were captured were sent back to the bush. They started setting fire on our houses and we all went back to town. They did not want stealing and raping. If you and your wife were sleeping they would take your wife from you. They did that for a while and told us that we should come to Kailahun. During that time Foday Sankoh was there. There was a lot of firing; It was after three months. They called everybody to the court barray. We met several heads at the court barray; there were over twenty people. We didn't understand the language they spoke. I saw about three people, whom they said were from Charles Taylor. All the elders could not be identified because they were dressed differently. Foday Sankoh was there. He said we were the ones fighting the war; that he was not the leader, he was just the messenger. He said that he had come to remove APC and reinstate SLPP. People were hungry. Most of the people ran away. Everybody went back. His followers stayed and whenever we asked them, they would say that they had come to fight for us. Sometimes they raped. At one time, he went to Ngiehun and called everybody together in order to talk to them. After a while, Sankoh came from Liberia and he was training the others. He started arresting people; all the young men were arrested. He was doing that every morning, killing people and he sometimes lined them up. Then people started complaining. The elders said we could not give our children to fight if they could not handle the war. After a while, he told them that he was going to inform Charles Taylor that his people had caused a lot of atrocities. Charles Taylor told him not to give his people any more arms. We were in the house when we saw the Gio people running away the following day. We did not see any one. It was the same thing they did at Serabu. When they entered some villages they killed everybody. The tap 20 was killing people and they did not see Foday Sankoh again but Sankoh told us that that would not stop the war. After all those atrocities, they went out. They granted Amnesty to those that were recruited. Those that were trained in Liberia were called "Special Forces". Those that were taken from Kailahun to Liberia were called Vanguard. Those that were trained here were Commandos. Anybody that they met on the way, they took away. After they had done that, Sankoh told them that they should have their own base. We were still in Kailahun, my younger sister and I. They said anyone who did not go to the base would be killed. We were instructed to go to the base, every one of us. Then we went to the base. We walked for the whole day and we were told that what we had was what we should eat. The people suggested that we should have a dance for the whole night. We played music until the following morning. It was a big place. We in our section had one latrine and one house. We were there for three days doing that work that was assigned to us. We did not finish the work, but they asked us to go back. After which, we heard that the soldiers were coming. We were sitting down when some people met us and asked my husband whether he was a native of Ngiehun. He was told that that was the reason why they wanted all of us to connive and overthrow Foday Sankoh. When they were taking them away, I followed them. They asked me to go back and told me that I should not follow them. My husband then told me to go back. He removed his purse and gave it to me. They tied him up. After three days they killed him. The other gentleman whom they took together with my husband came and told me that my husband was dead. He did not say the truth. After about two or three days, they came to arrest us. They tied all of us up. They stripped us naked and took all our belongings away. They put the guns on our head and fired. After a while, they told us that they had burnt some palm oil and they would pour it on our bodies. That was what they did to my husband. A man called Mr. Brima was arrested as soon as he got up. They took the oil and poured it on him. He lay on the floor as if he was dead. I gave them the key and show them where our properties were. After that they said they had killed my husband and they should take us to Kenema. I was still in Liberia. I told my family that we should go back to the soldiers. They were in the house when they said the rebels were to launch an attack. We were there for six months. We told them that they should take us to Daru. After one year I came back to Kailahun. That is all I know.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you for your submission, my colleagues will ask you some questions for clarifications.

Chairman Bishop Humber: We want to thank you for your courage to share your experience. When Sankoh called for those women, what else did he say?

Messie: The only thing he said was "this is the woman I want".

Chairman Bishop Humber: What was the attitude of the soldiers in Kailahun and subsequently in Daru?

Messie: The soldiers took good care of us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Am I right to say that your description of the town and that there was a time when the rebels were taking your belongings and using people's wives at Ngiehun?

Messie: Yes, they took everything away.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were these the rebels Sankoh recruited out of the country?

Messie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: No questions

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Messie, we have asked you a number of questions, it is now your turn to ask questions or make recommendations.

Messie: I don't have any questions; I just want to send a message to the government. I want to tell the government that now that we have decided to reconcile with our people we want the government to assist in rebuilding all the places that were damaged during the war. We also want our children to be educated.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: We thank you for your recommendations, we shall take them into consideration when writing our report.

4th Witness - Morie Feika

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

Commissioner Bishop JC Humper

Commissioner Aminata Jow

Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Morie Feika. The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

I was in college, Bo Teachers College, doing my HTC IN 1991. I was there when I heard that there was fighting in Bomaru. We did not know what caused the fighting; it was during Easter holidays. Later, my friend who was a CID officer told me that there was fighting in Koindu. They were taking care of me until I went to college. I left Freetown on April 4th and I slept in Kenema. On my way, I was arrested in Daru. The person in-charge was Marray Conteh who was OC in charge; he accused me of being a rebel. In those days, it was frightening to be accused of being a rebel. My passport pictures were shown to her with some other student identifications. They then asked me what I was going to do back at college. Even though they were killing people, he advised me to go together with the soldiers. There was reinforcement from Teko barracks. The gentleman handed me over to the commander. When I realised that my family were not there, I walked around and was fortunate to see people. They told me that my family were at Ngiehun. I told the man that I was going to the village to collect my family. I asked him to give me two people to follow me. He told me not to worry. I went to the village and collected my family. The war that entered this country was not good. We took a bag of rice with us. We were still in our village when they said that the war would last for three months and that the war was not for us. I returned to Kailahun on the 12th. On 13th April we saw soldiers running away; we did not know what was happening. I went to the man and he told me that I should go back. He said I should not go as something was wrong. I did not use the round-about. Everybody was confused. Before that, I saw people moving all about. All the soldiers ran away. The following day, I had to run away. I told my family that the rebels had entered Kailahun. My family told me that we should go to the bush. We were there for two weeks and we were afraid. Anybody who was neatly dressed would be termed as a Momoh soldier. In the evening we heard that the rebels were on their way to the village. When the rebels entered the village they asked for me. The man who was asking for me went back where I was hiding. They said he was fearful. I used to help him when we were going to school. He asked whether I knew him. He was so fearfully dressed that I could not recognize him. He started laughing. He told me that he was Jimmy. We went to school together. He told me that he knew me; and I knew him. There was a little boy who ran to help me as soon as he saw me. He asked if I was the Momoh soldier. At that time they were speaking Liberian pidgin. The boy asked me if I was a Momoh soldier. I said I was not a soldier. I asked him who brought the war. He said they had somebody supporting them and his name was Foday Sankoh. I asked whether he was a Sierra Leonean or a Liberian. He told me that he was a Sierra Leonean; he was a photographer. "We have just come to remove APC," he said. The other boy said that we should have a palm tree or a green cloth on our hand. Wherever we went we slept and continued the following day. I decided to go to Guinea; and I went through Parahun to enter Ngiehun. He asked whether I was spying on them so that I could report them. When we heard of rebels, we thought you had tails etc.

There was a gentleman named Isaac. He told me that I should not leave; they were going back to Kailahun. I did not argue with them because they had guns. There was a boss among them who was called Moses; he saw me. He asked me whether I was a student or whether I knew anything about APC. "What I am telling you is that APC did a lot of bad things to our people," he said. I was there for a while then they started assigning people as chief all over the place. I did not want to come back to Kailahun. In the morning, he called all of us. I was a secretary then. They told us that Sankoh was coming to Kailahun. On our way, we met him. We even asked him before we entered. We just heard about his name, but we didn't know him. Sankoh said even if he died somebody would replace me. On that day when we told them that we were chiefs they allowed us to go. In 1992, a lot of our brothers joined the organisation. They were either used as manpower or they ran away into the bush. We were here for a long time then we were told that all Liberians should return to Liberia.

After that, we survived and all of them went back. I told my family that I was returning to Kailahun. We started working at the G2 office. We were there when a lady told me that she wanted to work with me. We were there in 1993, when soldiers entered Pendembu. We were in the bush where I got news that my family was in the bush. I was in the bush in Koindu. I was hoping to go to Ngiema and meet my family. We stayed there and were told that all the soldiers had returned to Daru. We were working with them when they arrested us. Even if you didn't know anything, they arrested you. All those who were working with guns, were free then. After the war, we went to the DDR Camp. Issa Sesay sent people here to tell us that RUF and APC were one.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You told us your story as somebody who joined the RUF; you did not commit any atrocities. Did you fight?

Morie: I was there as a liaison officer. When they arrested the civilians and brought them to us, we were the people who talked with them so that they would know that they had civilians with them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We have taken into consideration your written testimony and verbal testimony. You mentioned Col. Sandy; do you know him?

Morie: Yes, I know him.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Who was he?

Morie: I knew Tom Sandy; he was in town here as a trainer. He was at the base and he was removed there and sent to Kailahun and after a while, he left the village and came back to Kailahun.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did Tom Sandy train you?

Morie: He went for the basic training, but did not fight with them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you commit any atrocities?

Morie: I don't think I have done anything bad to anybody.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I am sure you saw something bad being done to people.

Morie: Yes, I had seen a lot of bad things. I never was there when those things happened.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you actually meet Foday Sankoh?

Morie: For 11 good years, I did not see him.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How did you see his movement?

Morie: I never sat down or worked with him. When he came to visit us that was when I saw him. When we reported the soldiers to him, he even demoted them and punished them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you witness the abduction and detention of those people?

Morie: Yes

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell the Commission how it happened?

Morie: I cannot tell you all what happened, but I heard that those people were arrested.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Against this background I will want to ask you a few questions about your organization. From your experience, did you join the RUF primarily for survival?

Morie: I joined the organisation because of my family. I told them a couple of times to leave, but they refused. I was there to protect them.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know anything about Zogoda?

Morie: I heard about it; that was Sankoh's base. When the war intensified around this area, he moved there. I did not go there but I was told that training was going on there.

Chairman Bishop Humper: As you look back at those 11 years, will you call them "wasted years"?

Morie: It was not my intention to join any organisation. I must say thanks to God because of my life.

Chairman Bishop Humper: If given the opportunity, will you like to continue your education?

Morie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Will you say sorry to the people of Sierra Leone for all what had happened?

Morie: I am about to apologise; now I am going to apologise to everybody.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You have apologized to everybody in Sierra Leone. Did you say you disarmed and went to the DDR camp?

Morie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you enjoy all the facilities of disarmament?

Morie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Which means you handed over a weapon?

Morie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So you had a weapon?

Morie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: If you are a non-fighting RUF what were you doing with a weapon?

Morie: There were guns in the store. When the disarmament process started, Issa sent a message that we should not disarm in Kailahun. We refused and said since they had disarmed in Makeni, we should disarm here in Kailahun. Then the store was opened for us to take guns in order to disarm. It was not that a gun was assigned to me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You worked for a lady in the RUF; What was her name and her position?

Morie: Satta Bernard, she was in charge of social welfare in 1993, but when the soldiers came they took her away.

Leader of Evidence: You said you have apologised to the people of Sierra Leone; do you know the meaning of apology?

Morie: Once I have taken an oath on this Koran all what I am saying here is the truth.

Leader of Evidence: Morie, tell me, look at your people and tell me if you want to reconcile with them.

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Are you willing to first acknowledge what happened and apologise to them?

Morie: I am ready to reconcile.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know that Tom Sandy made a statement about you and himself?

Morie: No, I was the G5 in kailahun.

Ozonnia; You worked with Mustapha and Tom Sandy?

Morie; They met me here.

Leader of Evidence: Now your unit was responsible for atrocities; tell your people in their faces.

Morie: I have never handled a gun; I used to work with the civilians.

Leader of Evidence: Some of the captured women are still in Kailahun

Morie: Our own group never captured the civilians. When they were arrested, we defended them.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know Patrick Banda? He was the judge for the Kamajors.

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Your unit was also responsible for the killing of the Kamajors.

Morie: No.

Leader of Evidence: would you like to come to the closed hearings?

Morie: If you say so, I will not refuse.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Feika do you have any questions to ask or recommendations to make to the Commission?

Morie: The question that I want to ask is I Feika; I want to know from the commission if they have received any statement from anybody that I have done wrong. If I know the person I will like him to tell me what wrong I have done. I am not thinking about anything except my education. I want to go back to college.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The exchange you had with the Leader of Evidence is not anything to do with complaint. He has acted on your statement that you were part of the RUF. You have to accept that the RUF caused a lot of atrocities in this country. We have to meet you back on this.

5th Witness – Joe Fatorma

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

Commissioner Bishop JC Humper

Commissioner Aminata Jow

Leader Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Joe Fatorma. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor Kamara

I say thank you to all Commissioners present here. I am of the opinion that I am not saying what I see or what happened. I sat to my O'levels at the National school in October 1990. Our results were out and I had the intension to continue my education. Nobody can do that if there is no support. As the eldest son in my family I decided that I look for a temporary job. As we entered 1991 we heard that fighting was going on at the two borders. We never took those messages seriously as people were saying that fighting was over the sale of a vehicle. We were now in kailahun and then saw a large number of soldiers moving towards Kailahun. We took it seriously by then. All our elderly parents were now resident in the village and we the younger ones slept in the town. It was one evening we heard a gun shut. Among the group of soldiers that emerged was my schoolmate. In the morning they warned us not to go back to town as they were going for reinforcement. In our own village it took about 2 weeks before the rebels enter there. After that we no longer sleep in town but went on hiding. The war broke out in April. This happened and we did not see any rebel until August. We were in our hideouts when we saw four rebels coming. Before we went we heard the news that they were taking people and forcing them to become rebels. I still remember the names of these four rebels.

Bad Blood Junior, Harleston, Dan and Jumu.

Bad Blood was the smallest but most wicked one. As they went I was the first person they captured. I was with them during the raining season. He asked me if I was a soldier. I said no. So Bad Blood accused me of having enjoyed favours from the government. That is why they wanted to take me along. I did not refuse. If I had done that my parents would have suffered. I followed them to town. When we reached the base we were asked several questions. They asked me what I was trained to do before. I explained to them that I was a student and that it was because of the war that I was in hiding. That was why they met me in my farm. Then he wrote my name under the third battalion D Company. That was to say that they had trained two sets of battalion and I was among the 3rd batch. The commander was called Malis Gomkanda with a lot of Gehu people. I understand that they have Sierra Leoneans among them. We were trained for ten days. Then all those people that were manning checkpoint were taken to the war front. That was the time they issued passes to people to go in and out. When we completed our training based on the particulars given, we were made to man check points for two months. Some confusion occurred in Mende Buma and the confusion was among the Gehu people and the Sierra Leoneans. Those who ran away from Mende Buma explained to us about the confusion and we all ran away.

When we went to the bush we did not go to our usual hiding places, we went somewhere else. People told us that they have formed a squad called Tap 20. This group would kill anybody they met on the way. Those that were lucky were made to carry their booties. That was all the more reason why our brothers in the offices were killed, Mr. Swarray and others. After this encounter I finally called my parents and told them that I am looking for a way out of this. My colleague and I escape. Because of the problems between the Liberian rebels and us so many people fled. We were there until the opening of the G Community School. The time we were running the school the principal was A.K. Amara.

I was one of the teachers to educate the others. Then we heard over radio that the APC was overthrown. We heard that NPRC now took over and we were very happy because the same people that were harassing us were doing the same thing to us. We were now happy with the opinion that the war will soon end. That was the same time the ULIMO movement started moving towards the river base. They told us the war in Sierra Leone was over. This time all the Gehu fighters in Sierra Leone were driven back to Liberia. When we came back besides the junior commando we saw other people called the vanguards. They brought the war to Sierra Leone. When we came back I asked to know who were the people called vanguards and they said they were trained especially to fight the war in Sierra Leone. We were in peace. It was one time when Foday Sankoh visited Kailahun then they told us that there were too many rebels here in Kailahun. They told us that they were going to deploy us. We the boys who were trained together know each other. We were placed in the same group. We heard that the first batch was sent to the war front. We were now discouraged because we thought that they were going to harm us. That was the time they questioned us. "Have you attended school?" When they got to me I told them that I was a student. "Then you will be placed aside."

He dispatched me with one bodyguard to be taken to the office to work as clerk. The first commander I served was Gbassy Kundu. This continued on to the time the soldiers captured Pendembu. When they captured Pendembu we were asked to go to Balam, which is about seven miles from here. We went there and open our office again. If any rebel was to move to any place I had to give him a pass and the commander was made to sign. If any negative report was taken to the office I wrote a warrant of arrest and the person was taken to the office. We agreed on that kind of procedure up to the time we left Bayame. I was living in a village called Rickoh. We were there till the time the soldiers moved from these areas to Pendembu. When we came we were placed at Kangama. Finally, the rebels captured Kailahun. I still came and proceeded with my clerical work. This continued on to the time the AFRC took over. Some other people were moving from other towns. We were in Kailahun and heard that the Kamajors were fighting against soldiers and the commander was called Augustine Gbao. He was commanding the entire force. He sent a message calling all of us and we came. When everybody was gathered he told us that he wanted us to make peace with the Kamajors to work as a team, not knowing that he had another intension. Many people came out and told him that they were Kamajors. After they have gathered all of them everybody was ordered to go back to their villages. Patrick Banda was head of the investigation team. He gathered all the fighters and the chief. We told him that they were not our enemies. He then told us that if there was anybody who trusted the detainees he should sign for them, and the detainees were allowed to come out and stay with them the whole day. My wife's brother was there and I went to sign for him and some others. They were all with me during the day and in the evening they were locked up again. I started brushing my farm for about a week. One of them said to me that they would take permission from my boss to assist me in the farm. Then Gbao was curious to know whether they really wanted to assist me. While brushing the farm my wife cooked earlier that particular day. While eating the jailer at that time called Joseph Newjack went in the street and shouted my name and asked me to bring the people. We did not continue eating. We covered the food and met him.

He told us that our master had come and he was so annoyed. I went to the place where we were eating to collect my tools and clothes. My wife collected the remaining food and went to town. As we got to the hill at Baimah we heard a gun shot. I saw Joseph running in the direction of the gun shot. I thought it was an attack on the town. He said our master was so angry that he was going to kill those people we arrested. "Don't go there," she said. So I did not go there. I did not even come to my house again. I entered one of the unfinished houses. I reached there and met people in the compound and ask if people visited my house. After the killing of those people I did not see Augustine Gbao for two days. We all went to the street where the bodies here to see them. I heard that the Kamajors had been making plans against us. That was the same plan they used in Tongo and that was what they wanted to do in Kailahun. The corpses were not buried. The place started smelling. I did not witness the burial of all of them. I witnessed with my own eyes where they buried up to 40 in one hole. The site where they were buried is still familiar to me. That continue until SLPP came to power up to the time they sign the peace accord. After that time Sankoh moved to Freetown. That was the day I visited Freetown after I left there from 1989. I never knew where to go when I reach Freetown. We were there when they were carrying out a survey called Multi Indication Mustar survey. We attended the workshop and many of us succeeded and eight of us were selected to carry out the same survey in the Provinces. We came and reside in Kenema town. We came and passed through Kailahun and its environs. We walked through Kono. We are hearing news that they had captured UN forces in Makeni and we became worried. In war very costly lies can be told sometimes. I became worried because I was here with the movement. We were there when a large number of Kamajors moved from Bo to Kenema. Based on the kind of information we had on the Kamajors I went into hiding. At night I entered my village. It was the same morning about 4:00 a.m. I saw the helicopter gun ship. Not too long we heard the gun shot. For the three days there were gun fires all over Kailahun. After it all they still asked us to open our offices and I returned to my former office. They told us that promotions were out. There was hierarchy of power in every unit. We were shown the overall Commanding Officer, Head Battalion, Deputy Brigade Commander and Battalion Commanders. Each town had a commander. Myself serving as a clerk and others were given senior positions. All the senior guys heard of my promotion. In the force they said I should be the NP Commander. I was the NP commander in Kailahun town. In the force where I was working Tom Sandy was the overall operations commander. He was responsible for this town. He used to patrol all places. He had a clerk initially. I do not now work with him as a clerk. This continued on to the time the disarmament came up. Disarmament came and all others disarmed but we were still with our guns. It came to the time when the elders wrote a letter to Septimus Kaikai. As soon as I heard that they have return I came straight. So I said to myself and realised that the order they have given us not to disarm was not good. The disarmament should take place first here in Kailahun. We came back to kailahun with the UN forces. Issa came to tell us that we should now disarm. He came and said to us "you were not told to disarm but you have started so disarm altogether". We boarded a vehicle to do our own and God helped us. The disarmament was peaceful. We finally got peace and we returned to our villages and stayed with our people.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow

We have heard your testimony and as the Presiding Commissioner said the Commission is trying to gather accurate information on all what happened during the ten years war so we can set the records straight as well as promote reconciliation. For this mandate having heard this testimony we go on to ask further questions. It is not a confrontation we just want to fill in the gaps.

Jow: Am I right to say you were in the movement from 1991 on to the end of the war.

Fatoma: Yes, if you are part of an organisation you left and went again and you joined them again then you are still part of them.

Jow: Are you telling us that you have no other option than to be part of them?

Fatoma: Because at that time when I was arrested if I refused to join them I was going to be killed. At that time I was captured and I decided to run away but they were going to kill my parents. As my father told me once they have captured you feel free to go with them God will help you.

Jow: Can you tell us how many children were abducted?

Fatoma: I can't tell the exact number. One battalion is almost to a thousand

Jow: Can you tell us the kind of training you went through?

Fatoma: The first day we arrived at the place they ordered us to lie flat on the ground. We had no idea and we lay as if we were in bed. They showed us how to lie down and if they see your foot up they will use their own feet to bring it down. Next they took the gun, placed it on your head and fired a shot. In that process if you are hit by the bullet you are killed. It you are not in line with the first person that is the end of your life. They were doing that so that we could get accustomed to the sound of a gun. They also taught us how to fire. They also taught us courtesy and discipline that will show us how to respect them. What they were now doing you will come across one that we should respect and they will order you to roll on the floor. Even though you respect them they will not respect you. It was no formal training where you go to a classroom. With that kind of training if you are sent to the war front only God will help you.

Jow: With this kind of training how many people survived?

Fatoma: It will be difficult to tell the number of trainees because we were just divided into groups.

Jow: Did you go to the war front to fight.

Fatoma: No, I did not do that. My first assignment was to man the check point. I did not fight any war at any time. When we were here our people called us Belleh Soldiers because we did not go to the war front.

Bishop Humper

We want to thank you because you have shared your experiences with us. I want to reiterate what the Commissioner has said a while ago.

Chairman Bishop Humper: I want to know if the mass grave is not far from town

Fatoma: No, it is in the centre town near the police station.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you join the DDR programme?

Fatoma: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you do skills training?

Fatoma: I am presently undergoing computer training.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What do you have to say to your people because whatever the case may be you were part of the rebel war?

Fatoma: I say thanks to you. The only thing I have to say to my people in Kailahun and Sierra Leone is let them accept us to be their children. Let them take us as the prodigal son. He went and destroyed everything and apologised to his father. His father took him back and told him I am not going to take you as a servant you are still my child. If I have ever done anybody wrong I personally know that be it voluntarily or as long as you joined the movement it is a big crime. I am really appealing to them not to push us away. We again the fighters if you are talking to somebody to forgive you, you have to humble yourself. We have to behave ourselves, as there is no bad bush to throw away bad children. This has brought us a lot of backwardness. There are people who took the O'levels and are today degree holders. I am appealing to you to forgive us. We are also feeling the pain and I leave you to have mercy on us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: In your testimony you told us about the massacre in Kailahun.

Fatoma: Some of us were not Kamajors but just carriers for Kamajors.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: During that period you said the commander of the armed force was Augustine Gbao. I want to know whether Augustine was here when that massacre was carried out.

Fatoma: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: One can assume that he did not authorise it but that he did nothing to stop it

Fatoma: He was present when the people were killed. Sam Bockarie passed the command. I was not there to witness whether he gave the command. It was his response he gave us after the three days. If he spoke to us in a sympathetic mood we would understand that he tried to talk for the people but he never did.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was the relationship between the Kamajors and the rebels before the take over in 1997?

Fatoma: At that time they were working as a team and the rebels were on the other side. When they took over that was the time they learnt that they have some indifference among themselves.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: At a particular time the military and Kamajors were working together but later the military and the rebels saw the Kamajors as their enemy.

Fatoma: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Where was the base were you were trained?

Fatoma: The National School

Leader of Evidence: You also spoke about a command structure. Do you have it on paper?

Fatoma: No I don't have it on paper.

Leader of Evidence: Joe do you have any question?

Fatoma: I have a number of questions.

Fatoma: When you arrived earlier the first person that talked to us was simple and plain enough for us understand. I was of the opinion that somebody would have given information about me. A lot of people were saying we are the people lined up to attend the special court. Even the statement taker can testify that I responded to the invitation and made myself available to him the same night. I will like to know if somebody made any statement about me before you invited me to make my statement I have never done anything wrong to anybody. If the Commission says anybody did make a report about my negative activities I am prepared to take the necessary steps toward reconciliation with them.

Leader of Evidence: The commission has the resources and manpower to deal with every Sierra Leonean. Therefore you represent one of the very few lucky ones. If you have been named by somebody who gave us a statement the approach would have been very different. You would have been contacted and given the information for your response. The information will be alleged and you will be asked whether you are willing to meet the person to reconcile. Our response to the question you are asking as to whether somebody mentioned your name to us is "No". The fact that we did not direct that question at you means that nobody called your name.

Morie: I want to say thanks to the Commission and the government because of the kind of training facilities they have provided us. Those of our young brothers who went to other countries and those who have disarmed have not started any skills training. I want the government to appeal to the NGOs to provide skills training for the township. We are of the opinion that they will do more than they have done.

6th – Witness – Momoh Paye
Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara
Commissioner Bishop JC Humper
Commissioner Aminata Jow
Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

Three of us were in the house. One morning they found out that most of the soldiers disappeared. During the time I had a lot of rice in the store. All of us ran into the house. During that time gun shots were heard all over the place. I was so confused I did not know what to do. I was in a house I heard people running. A man told he didn't think it was true. I heard the vehicle moving on the main road to Pendembu. I told the man that there was a problem. My friend told me not to get worried. Around 5:00 a.m. we heard people singing all sorts of song. I said this type of song means something. They went to the door they said we should open the door and we were about to open the door then somebody said these people are rebels. I told my wife to go and I will open the door. The way I saw them their eyes looked so bad. Among five of them there was only one born in Fiya. They asked everybody to go out. Do you have any soldier here? I commanded my family to come out. They were shooting all over the place and I pleaded with them not to shoot at me. I was afraid. Then I said, "I want you to stop shooting". They interviewed me. I asked them questions too. I enquired of them why there was so much shooting all around the place. There was one Gbassay and another person. They said if I moved one step they would shoot me down. After a while they asked me for food. I had a goat at the back of the house. They asked me to give one of my stores, the one in the house by the bridge. I did.

I told them that my son couldn't give a bag of rice. There was a man called Vandi working with them. We went to the bush. All the soldiers that were running away met us there. We were there for a year and four months. I said if my children went to Guinea they would not go to school. We were there all these years and they told us to cease fire. Even Foday Sankoh himself said if anybody wished to go home they were free to do so. During that time I was doing business with my plantation. Everybody knows that I was a farmer. We went into the house. Where I have my plantations there was a man called David Lansana. On our way we went through the farm. Then I was discouraged. My family advised me not to ask the people any questions. I took one of my nephews along. Then I ask David if he was the one who wanted my farm. He said, "don't ask me!" I came back to Freetown. From Freetown I went back to my village. Then I saw the oranges which David had gathered from my farm. Why was David doing that to me. Then I reported that this guy had taken over my farm. I asked him, "David are you the one who used my farm to grow rice? My father was the one who gave me this place. He invested a lot of money in this farm. You are not part of us." That was what happened to me. I have no house to live in. You are saying that we should forgive. If I see that man I will be so angry. I am still thinking that he was the person who destroyed all my houses.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: From what you have told us you have raised a number of questions why Lansana did this to you.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Is David Lansana alive and do you know where he lives?

Momoh: He is alive in Gehun seven miles away.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We are glad that he is around. Did you have a court administration system in Gehun?

Momoh: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you have access to the process of the law?

Momoh: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You will have to talk to the Commission about this after the session.

Leader of Evidence: No questions?

Momoh: I have a question.

Leader of Evidence: You have said that if he wants to see you, you are ready to see him.

Momoh: A decision will be taken. What you have said is understandable.

7th – Witness – Nyandemore Jawara.

They told us that the soldiers have passed us. We were met in Gehun by some soldiers who visited the chief and bluntly told him that the war was beyond their capacity to. They, therefore, advised that everyone find their way to safety. We went up the mountain. We were in the bush now and they told us that the rebels had entered Kenema. In the bush we ate bush yams. They said they were not there for us. I saw one of my brothers named Jim John. He told us not to be afraid. I decided I was not going to join the organisation. It came to a time when I had a little bit of sense in my head. They told us civilians that they were not there for us but that they had an agreement with the fighters. They said they had already captured the Daru barracks and went on to give us all the arms they had seized. Sankoh insisted that all the big boys should be trained to help save all of us. When they went back Sankoh returned and said the same thing. He had no interest in us. When they entered the town they appointed one person from among by the name of Curtis. The town Commander was to escort us to town. I came back to my mother and started shouting that I was staying there because of her. We were in the bush the rebels started looking for a boy or girl. If we told them that there was no man they beat us mercilessly. Then I told my mother that given that situation then I preferred to stay in the bush. I was in the bush. It came to the time my mum told me to leave the bush and come to town. They saw me coming down the hills again. During that time they slapped my mother and she lost her teeth. My younger sister who had just had a baby was kicked on her stomach. My mum was laid outside. I was in the bush for a week. They went and met me in the bush and told me to leave the bush. I was arrested.

CLOSED SESSION 14TH MAY, 2003 – (Kailahun)

1ST WITNESS: Mamie Allieu

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs. Aminata Jow

Commissioner Mrs. Jow : Good morning, I would like, on behalf of the Commission, to welcome you to the closed session of the hearing. However, before we proceed I would like us to invoke the presence of God in our midst. (Interfaith prayers were said.) Once again on behalf of the Commission I wish to welcome you here again this morning. You are one of four witnesses who will tell the Commission what happened to you during the ten years conflict. This is the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. (Commissioner Mrs. Jow read out the mandate). Now you can give your testimony.

TESTIMONY

I was 9 years of age in 1991. On one occasion in Daru, my mother went to look for food and I was left behind with my dad. The rebels entered Daru; I ran into the bush with my father but my father was killed. I was caught and my clothes were torn as four men raped me. I became very sick and unable to walk. Then one old lady came and took my clothes which they had torn and wrapped it around me and carried me on her back to the bush again. So from there we stayed in the bush moving from one place to another until we arrived at Buedu. While in the bush the soldiers took us to Kailahun. I was taken to Daru and was admitted in the hospital. I was treated and I recovered. After that I stayed in the bush with that old lady. I was told that my mother had been taken to Pendembu. They also brought her to Daru. She went to that old lady who had taken care of me in order to show appreciation. She took me where she was staying. We went to Kenema. I told my mother that I wanted to go to school. She told me that there was no money. As my father was dead, there was no one else willing to pay my school fees.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Mamie, we have listened to the testimony you have given us and we appreciate your courage for coming to tell us your experience and to narrate it. Not everyone can do what you have done. This is a true story, but we thank God you are alive to tell the story and we hope that it will never happen to your children or your children's children. We also hope that God will give you the courage to carry on with life as there is a saying that "Since there is life, there is hope". As I have told you, I have listened very attentively but we want to ask you a few questions. We believe your story, but simply because we want to have some clarification on certain areas so that the Commission can better fulfill its mandate, we will ask you some questions. Can you tell the Commission what your family life was before they attacked in 1991; were you living with your father, mother, brothers and sisters?

Mamie: Yes, I was staying with my family.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How many brothers and sisters have you?

Mamie: I have one brother and three sisters.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Are you the eldest in your family?

Mamie: I am the last child.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were you in school at the time of the attack?

Mamie: Yes, I was in school.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us the name of your school and what class you attained?

Mamie: I was attending the DEC School, Daru and I was in Class 4 at the time of the attack.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: And were the other members of the family also in school, I mean your brothers?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: And you were living in Daru at the time?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How old are you now?

Mamie: I am fourteen years old.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: And the incident happened in 1991?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You remember vividly what happened in 1991?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us about the people who attacked in Daru? What did they look like?

Mamie: They looked fearful.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they having guns?

Mamie: They were carrying guns and they tied red pieces of cloth around their heads.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What language were they speaking?

Mamie: They were speaking the Gio language.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they speaking a Sierra Leonean language?

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did they give any instructions?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You said you ran into the bush, was it with the whole family?

Mamie: When they attacked, I ran into the bush, but I was caught and my father was killed; and I was raped.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you know why your father was killed?

Mamie: My father was killed in my presence because they asked him to join them, but he refused.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was there any opportunity to bury him?

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you remember exactly the rebels who raped you?

Mamie: I cannot remember them.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Were they young or elderly?

Mamie: 2 adults and 2 young boys.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said you stayed with them for three years, where did they take you to?

Mamie: They took me to Buedu.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: In this particular base, were there any young girls that were taken there?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How many girls were there?

Mamie: They were many.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they all from the same village?

Mamie: They took them from different villages.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was there any elderly person in charge of the camp?

Mamie: The rebel boys were put in charge of us.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: During these years were you assigned to one rebel or did you sleep with many of them.

Mamie: Yes, except those who raped me in the bush because after that I became ill. Because I was sick, they were not looking at me as a woman.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So they did not use you any more?

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So it was once after the attack.

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you tell us what sort of illness you had?

Mamie: I had pains around my hip and I was unable to walk.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did the rebels take care of you?

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were you forced to do any work?

Mamie: No it was only this lady who was taking care of me, I was not forced to work.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was the lady who took care of you a rebel?

Mamie: She was a rebel.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So for three years you were a rebel, you did not work, you stayed in bed?

Mamie: I did not work.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell me what sort of work the other girls were doing?

Mamie: Yes, they went out into the bush to fetch food, some were conscripted into the fighting force, some were made cooks for the rebels.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We want to know what life was like in the bush for the three years you were there. Did any of the girls die because of ill treatment?

Mamie: Sick persons were not looked after. Those that became very sick sick, were taken to a place of their own choice (the rebels' choice) and did whatever they wished to do with the person.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Like what?

Mamie: They would take you to the bush and kill you there.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We heard about a "dog box" and that some of the children that were abducted were locked up there.

Mamie: I did not see it.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: During these three years you did not hear any nicknames used among themselves.

Mamie: Yes, I did.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you give us some of them?

Mamie: Commandos, Killer, Buried whilst Alive, etc.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Most of them were men?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they Sierra Leoneans or mixed?

Mamie: They were mixed, Sierra Leoneans, Gio from Liberia and Vai from Liberia border.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You said in 1994 your base was attacked by Government soldiers who were able to free you.

Mamie: Yes Government troops freed me.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was there a lot of fighting before you were freed?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How did you escape, did the soldiers put you in their vehicle to Daru?

Mamie: The soldiers had to put us in their vehicle to Daru.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Who did they hand you over to?

Mamie: I came together with the woman who was taking care of me.
We stayed there until we got the information that my mother was in Pendembu.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We were told that you were taken to FAWE for medication and schooling.

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What year, do you remember?

Mamie: In 2002.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Between 1994 and 2000 what were you doing?

Mamie: I stayed with my mother and I used to help her to sell.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you join any integration programme?

Mamie: I only joined the literacy programme with World Vision in Daru.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I would like to end by asking about your present position. Are you back with your mother, brother and sisters?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You are living with your family now?

Mamie: Yes.

Comm. Jow: What about the community in which you live, do they know what happened to you?

Mamie: Well I did not get encouragement from people, it was my mother who embraced me on my returned.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do they know what happened to you?

Mamie: Yes they know.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: But why are they behaving like this to you?

Mamie: I do not know.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: According to your testimony, you were very ill during the three years you stayed in the bush.

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How do you feel now, are you ok?

Mamie: I am ok because FAWE treated me and World Vision also treated me.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Are you going for follow up treatment?

Mamie: No, I am not going for follow up treatment.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you have any vaginal discharge?

Mamie: My menstrual period is irregular.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I take it that at the time you were raped, you had not started your menstrual period.

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: When did you start?

Mamie: When I was released after I had taken treatment I started menstruating.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you have any relationship with men?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So you have got over your initial dislike as it were?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Cordial relationship, no force?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you intend to have family and children?

Mamie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Now and again, do you have flashbacks; how do you cope?

Mamie: Yes, whenever I get those thoughts I find my friends.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you have counselling from the elders in your village?

Mamie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What about FAWE; don't they have counselling services?

Mamie: Aunty Mary of FAWE sometimes talks to us.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: This lady who helped you in the bush, what is her name?

Mamie: Kula Vandy, but she is dead, she was from Jujuma in Daru.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did she die because of the incident?

Mamie: She had a natural death.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How do you support your family as your father is dead?

Mamie: Well, I depend on my mum and I want to learn skills so that I can do something.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I have asked a number of questions concerning what happened to you during the war. We wanted to have an insight into what happened in the bush, we had wanted to know what the young girls did in the bush. You have been helpful, I thank you for that. We would like you to ask questions or make any recommendations you will want the Commission to note. We encourage you to speak up.

Mamie: I would like the Government to help me do skills training, something that will benefit me in the future. Apart from the skills, I want to be exposed. I am not satisfied with my state.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you, we have noted your recommendations. We have received a number of recommendations like the one you have given us. People are concerned about education; about skills training, developing your communities. The recommendations will be considered along with those of many others. Once the recommendations are forwarded to the Government, Government will implement them so that people like you will benefit from the development. I know your concern is immediate and this is a concern for this Commission; that some of its concerns should be attended to as soon as possible. Some of our staff will refer you to those NGO's which might be able to take care of your immediate needs. But finally, I would like to encourage you to move on with your life. Find out where the facilities are and make the best use of them.

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs. Aminata Jow

Commissioner Jow read the mandate to the audience.

TESTIMONY

At the start of the war, I was a very small girl and my mother died. Before the start of the war, I was with my father. He was arrested by the rebels. He was made a commander. He ran away and when he was caught, he was killed. I was also abducted. I was caught by “Seven Spirit” of the battle group. He made me his wife. Then I was not mature for that type of life. So from that time he made me his wife, I was moving in their group. They used to attack people and bring the properties to us. When they removed us from where we were, we stayed in a place near Mayagorie in the Kailahun District. I was sick and had some discharges. When I came back I was staying with my aunt in the camp. My aunt also died a natural death. I was taken over by Save the Children. They sent me back to school and cared for me. This is all I have to say.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Thank you very much for your testimony. We have listened very attentively. This is a sad story and we sympathise with you for what happened. It was through no fault of yours that you were abducted and made a bush wife, but for God you would not have lived and from what you have told us you are trying to rebuild your life. I would like you to allow the Commission to ask you a few questions so that we can have a better insight of what happened to you so that we can fill in some of the details. Please relax and speak up.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Patricia, the Commission would like to know something about your family before you were abducted.

Patricia: I was with my family; it was intact, but I cannot recollect what happened at that time.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you remember your age at that time ?

Patricia: I was 8 years old.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How old are you now?

Patricia: I am 18 years old.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you remind us what the name of the village is where the attack took place?

Patricia: The name of the village is Mayagorie.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What year did this incident happen?

Patricia: It was in 1996.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said the rebels attacked the village, do you remember what they looked like and the language they were speaking?

Patricia: Some of them were speaking the Liberian Language and very little Mende.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What do you remember them say when talking?

Patricia: I cannot remember.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said your father was appointed Town Commander, by who?

Patricia: Seven Spirit who was the leader of the group.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Your father accepted unwillingly?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: And he tried to escape?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: And he was later arrested and killed?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Do you remember how he was killed?

Patricia: I was told that he was put in a bag and they poured kerosene on him and lit him up.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: During the incident, what happened to your sisters and brothers?

Patricia: The others were still with their foster parents. I was the only one staying with my parents.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you tell us who abducted you?

Patricia: Seven Spirit abducted me.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you describe him to us?

Patricia: He was tall, slim and dark. He was recently in Daru but he has gone back to Pujehun.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: So he is a Sierra Leonean but he went with the rebels.

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: At the time he was abducting you, did he rape you there and then?

Patricia: He only made me his wife after my father's death.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said he abducted you when your father died?

Patricia: Yes, he abducted me and raped me there and then.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: In the presence of anybody?

Patricia: Yes, people were there, the rebels.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What did he say after he had raped you?

Patricia: He told me he had wanted to have sex with me and I told him that I was underage; if that would make me die, let me die.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You pleaded with him?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: So you did not start your menstrual period?

Patricia: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How did you feel afterwards?

Patricia: From that time I am not ok; even now I am still experiencing discharges.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Were you angry for what happened to you?

Patricia: Initially I was annoyed and unhappy but when I realised there was no way out, I was moving with them.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you tell us where Seven Spirit took you to when he abducted you?

Patricia: The base was in Mayagorie in the Kailahun District. We stayed there for three years.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: As a bush wife, what did you do?

Patricia: At the time, it was just like a normal routine; they went and looted, items, handed over the properties to me to cook, and sometimes, I gave orders to others to cook. I used to give instructions to people to launder.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How many people did you control?

Patricia: Three girls.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How many girls were there in the camp,?

Patricia: Many.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: They were abducted from neighbouring villages?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What were some of these girls asked to do?

Patricia: Some were combatants and as such they went down to the war front to fight. One of them was caught by, the bush husband with a boy; he put his ring inside her vagina and she died. I only know her for Aminata, we were not from the same town.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said a number of girls were punished, can you tell us how?

Patricia: Yes, one of my cousins was killed because the husband she was staying with was wicked. He had a number of girls as wives, she reported him to a commander who fired him, and it was like sabotage. When we initially joined them there were a good number of them who were raped but did not survive.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: So you said a number of them did not survive, how were they buried?

Patricia: People were only buried provided they were related to the commander or else you would be left where you were killed.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Your bush husband treated you nicely?

Patricia: No, later he left me for another woman.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: This continued until you were released?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Did you have children whilst you were in the bush?

Patricia: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: We have heard stories of young girls being locked up in a box, do you know about this in the camp?

Patricia: Well I did not see that Box, it was like a small hut that you can fit in but if you could not stand, you stayed there for some time. They tied you and laid you facing upwards to look at the sun.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How were you released?

Patricia: At that time, since I had no relationship with Seven spirit, I was in the care of a Commander. They asked us to go. The Commander put me in a vehicle. They were sending vehicles to collect people. I was brought to Daru and my aunt took care of me until Save the Children took over.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: When were you released?

Patricia: I was released in 1999.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What Month?

Patricia: I cannot remember.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Do you have any problem with your health?

Patricia: Yes, the discharge.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Have you sought medical attention?

Patricia: No, there is nobody who can help me with that.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Where do you live?

Patricia: I live in Daru, but there is no hospital there; there used to be one but everything has been transferred to Kailahun.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Have you tried traditional treatment?

Patricia: At one time I did, it worked, but the lady who gave me the herbs had gone back to her home.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Have Save the Children an office in Daru?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Do they know about your problem?

Patricia: I did not tell them.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: If you tell them will they be in a position to help you?

Patricia: I do not believe so because even with my school fees they have not been able to assist due to lack of funds according to them.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Would you like to be referred for medication?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: At the end of the session we can see if any staff can assist you. Do you have feelings of guilt, withdrawal or shame?

Patricia: I only think about that when I get the discharge. I am so much engaged in community sensitisation. I am fully engaged. It is only when I have the discharge that I think about it.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How often?

Patricia: It comes before my menstruation and heavily.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you talk about the incident to people?

Patricia: Except Save the Children and my bosom friends.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from the discharge, you are not sick?

Patricia: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from Save the Children is there any organisation that is assisting you?

Patricia: Before Save the Children took my responsibility, my school fees were paid by Christian Brothers.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Have they stopped?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What institution are you in?

Patricia: Ahmadiyya Secondary School, it is a co-educational school.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do they assist you in any way?

Patricia: No, they do not offer any assistance.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: In answering my question you spoke about Community sensitisation, tell us about it.

Patricia: The HIV group came to our school and sensitised us and formed a group called Muloma Kids Club; meaning "Let's Love Kids Club". They go around sensitising people in the farms through skits.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: It is very good, continue to help in the community. Who are you living with now and how do you support yourself?

Patricia: Right now I am staying with my uncle and he is responsible for my school fees and sometimes food. When it comes to feeding and sometimes, clothing, I am responsible for myself. At times I go to my friends who assist me with food and clothes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Since your release from the rebel camp, have you stayed single or do you have a relationship?

Patricia: I have a relationship.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Healthy relationship, not forcing you?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Eventually, you intend to complete your skills and get married?

Patricia: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You have to be brave and, courageous. You are not alone in this, there are many other people who had gone through similar problems, but with the help of God and through their own strength they have been able to surmount this problem. I want you to be like them. You may now ask questions and make recommendations.

Patricia: I do not have any questions but what I want to say is that I am appealing to you people to support us to be educated. I am appealing for support for everyone, we do not have proper places to stay. We do not depend on anything for our education.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you for your recommendation. I admire the emphasis you placed on education, we know education is the key to development. I am sure you have heard of the saying “when you educate a girl you educate a nation”. We know Government is making effort for every village to receive education for its people. Our recommendation will also be focussed in this direction.
We are a victim-centred Commission and with your help and the help of others like you; we will make the appropriate recommendations to Government so that those who have been affected by the war will have their conditions improved, not only for them, but for posterity. Patricia, we are very happy for your cooperation. By coming here you have come to help the nation and we hope better things will follow for you and people like you. You have mentioned some immediate concerns; and if you can wait by the end of the day, we can refer you to some institutions or NGOs that can assist you in this area. Once more Patricia, thank you very much.

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs. Aminata Jow

Commissioner Mrs Jow read the mandate.

TESTIMONY

I was in Kenema when the war started. We were attacked by the rebels at 2:00 a.m. I was staying with my grand mother and I was asleep when they attacked. Everybody left the area. When I woke up, there was nobody. I tried to pack my luggage so that I could go with my people. I heard sporadic fires and I saw some people dressed in combat fatigue. As I was going, one of them caught me and asked me to show him where the money was. He asked me to undress. I refused and I asked him why I should do that. They told me that they wanted to rape me and I refused and they told me that they would kill me if I refused to have sex with them. They stripped me and I lay on the floor and three of them raped me. They then left me, I was hopeless and I took the things I had parked and went away. The following day, a man took me to the hospital and there was nobody there. Later on, a lady came and gave me some medicines. Since that time, I took ill. I have been suffering from serious abdominal pains. I had no menses but itches and loss of weight. My mother and father are dead. I want to learn skills. Since that time I have not been given medication. I want the Government to help me. I want the Government to help all of us that went through this ordeal. I am staying with someone else, I have no proper place to stay and I sleep on the floor. That is all I have to say.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Watta, we thank you very much for your testimony. We have listened to it and we sympathise with you for what happened. Your statement is very clear and we do not have any reason to doubt any part of your story. All the same, we are going to ask you a few questions for clarification and to fill in some of the details we would want to know. We know you are not very well today, please feel relaxed. You told us in your testimony that you were in Kenema before the war started. Where were you in Kenema?

Watta: I was in Kenema Town with my grand mother.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you lose your mother and father before the start of the war?

Watta: They died during the war.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did they die because of the war or was it a natural death?

Watta: My mother died as a result of the war and my father died a natural death. I was not present when my mother died.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was she killed?

Watta: Yes she was killed.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was it in Kenema?

Watta: It was in Gorhun in the Kailahun District.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: At the time you were living with your grandmother were you going to school?

Watta: Yes, I was going to school.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us the name of the school?

Watta: I was attending the KDC school and I was in class 3.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You told us that the incident happened in 1999?

Watta: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: And you said you were attacked in Kenema by rebels. Where in Kenema were you attacked?

Watta: I was attacked in the Baima Section, 9 Abdulai Street.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Apart from your grandmother was anyone living with you?

Watta: There were many people there, I was staying with my grandmother.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I want to know why when the rebels came everyone ran away but you stayed behind in the house?

Watta: I was sleeping and they woke me up, I went out but I had to go in again as I was sleepy.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were the rebels carrying guns, you said they dressed in combats, were they many?

Watta: They were carrying guns on their backs.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they many?

Watta: A lot of them came to the area, but only three entered our house.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they young or elderly people?

Watta: They were youths.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So you have told us that all three of them raped you? We are sorry to ask, but how were they all standing around when one raped you?

Watta: The two held me whilst the one raped me, after that the other one took over. They took it in turns.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What were they saying whilst they were raping you?

Watta: They were telling me that if I did not lie down, they would kill me. I pleaded with them that I was a virgin but they said they would introduce me to it.

Comm. Joe: Are you ok?

Watta: I am not ok.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What pains do you have?

Watta: I have serious abdominal pains most of the time and, as I said, my menses are very scanty.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Have you sought medical attention?

Watta: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Why?

Watta: At one time, I was asked to do a test at the pharmacy, they said I should pay a lot of money and my aunt could not afford to pay for it.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us your age when you were raped?

Watta: I was thirteen years old.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: At the time had you started your menstruation?

Watta: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: When did you start?

Watta: I started in 2001.

Comm Jow: Apart from the physical pains, do you have discharges or related problems?

Watta: Sometimes I do have discharges, not all the time.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you have any relationship now?

Watta: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Would you like to carry on and have a family later on.

Watta: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Watta we have asked you a number of questions but the final word is from you. Can you ask a question or make recommendations? Do the people in the community you are living in now accept you or do they know your past history?

Watta: Yes they are encouraging me.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: I want to encourage you however, that this is not the end, you are still young and despite what happened to you you can still rebuild your life with the necessary support and strength. You need to have confidence in yourself and try to build for yourself a better future. For some of the immediate concerns you have mentioned we shall see what the Commission can do for you by way of referrals to NGO's and other institutions. You may now ask any questions.

Watta: I want the Government to assist me to learn skills and all other girls who had suffered the same way as I did.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Thank you very much for that recommendation. I admire the way you think of yourself and other people. You have told us you wanted skills training not for yourself, but for the other girls who had this experience. The whole purpose of this exercise is to collect information and to receive recommendation from you so that we can incorporate it in our report. When these recommendations are implemented, there will be some improvement. We hope that the condition of people like you will improve. Watta, once again thank you very much, we appreciate your coming and we thank you for your full cooperation.

4TH WITNESS - NANCY VANDY

Commissioner welcomed the witness to the closed session and read the mandate.

TESTIMONY

When the war started, I crossed the river together with my mother and we went to a village called Njala. While in Njala, the rebels attacked the village and I was abducted and brought to Baima. Whilst we were sitting with them in Baima, my mother was killed. They took me with them to another village. After my mother's death, I stayed with the rebels for sometime and after that I went over to Liberia to stay with my sisters. From Liberia I went back to Kenema; from Kenema, I decided to go back to Daru. While in Daru I decided not to sit idly, I went to FAWE to learn skills. I am doing tailoring and weaving at FAWE. That is all.

Comm. Jow: We have listened to your testimony. It is a short but vital piece of information that you have given. What we would like to do now is to focus on some questions so that we can fill in the details. Can you give us the name of your village that was attacked?

Nancy: The village was Njala –Pejebongay in the Kailahun District.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us about your family before the attack?

Nancy: I was sitting with my mother, brothers and sisters.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How many brothers and sisters have you?

Nancy: I have two brothers and two sisters, I am the third girl.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were you alone with your mother at the time of the incident?

Nancy: I was not alone. I was staying with my brother in the same house.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Before the attack, was there any similar attack in your village or in any other village?

Nancy: No, there was no attack.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us how the rebels used to attack.

Nancy: They killed many people and burnt houses; we were abducted and they crossed the river with us.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Before they abducted you, you ran into the forest?

Nancy: At the time of the attack we were in the bush fetching fire wood. My mother sent someone to tell us that the rebels were crossing the river. I came back to the town together with other girls. On arrival, the rebels attacked the village.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How were they dressed?

Nancy: They were very wicked.

Commissioner Mrs Jow. Were they in uniform?

Nancy: They were fearfully dressed, not in uniform. They were Liberian rebels.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How did you know that they were Liberian rebels?

Nancy: We knew because they were speaking the Liberian language. Initially, we did not know that rebels were human beings. It was when we saw them that we got to know them as human beings. They tied nets around their heads.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: You said your mother was shot by the rebels?

Nancy: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: She died the very day they captured her?

Nancy: It was on the same day that they brought us to Baima. It was a belief that the rebels should not see palm kernel oil. When the rebels knew that she had some, she was killed.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were you present when your mother was being shot?

Nancy: Yes, I was present, they told me that if I cried they would kill me.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: When you say "they", how many rebels do you refer to?

Nancy: They were many in number, but it was only one that fired her.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Did you hear them calling names?

Nancy: Yes, I heard them calling C.O. Timber, he was the one that gave instructions to kill my mother, but he is now dead.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How did you know he is dead?

Nancy: I was informed by my brother, he was living in Daru at the time. C.O. Timber came to attack the village. I was told that he was killed by the bridge.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You said that the rebels took you away when your mother was killed?

Nancy: Yes, I was there for less than a month.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Where did they take you to?

Nancy: I was removed from the village to a house near the village where I met some girls.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us the number of the girls you met there?

Nancy: They were many, I did not count them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: This rebel that abducted you, was he in charge of the girls?

Nancy: I cannot tell.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Who was responsible for you?

Nancy: I was in the care of Zumanta, but I cannot tell whether he is dead or alive.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was Zumanta responsible for all the girls?

Nancy: I cannot tell because at that time I was afraid of the situation.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How did you sleep?

Nancy: We were all sleeping in the same place.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: And you stayed in that house for a month?

Nancy: Not a month, almost a month.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us your duties then?

Nancy: I was not working.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What about the other girls?

Nancy: They used to sweep the compound.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you see the rebels go back to your base everyday?

Nancy: Yes, I did.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were any of the girls assigned to any rebels as a wife?

Nancy: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us truthfully whether you were assigned to any rebel as a wife?

Nancy: No, then I was not old enough, I was twelve years old and I had been tampered with. I was not assigned to them because I did not stay there for a long time. I was raped.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you explain the circumstances when it happened, was it immediately after you were abducted?

Nancy: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: By one rebel?

Nancy: Yes, it was one rebel then I ran and went into hiding.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was it the person who abducted you; C.O. Timber, that did that?

Nancy: No

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you know his name?

Nancy: I have forgotten the name.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: He had wanted you to be his bush wife?

Nancy: No, I ran away.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Who took care of you when you were bleeding?

Nancy: There was a lady who gave me some native herbs, she boiled the herbs and asked me to sit in the water.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So you have not got any treatment after that?

Nancy: I used to get abdominal pain. I visited the hospital, but I still experience the same problem.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: How many years is it now since they raped you?

Nancy: I am still getting the problems.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us how you escaped?

Nancy: One day, I went outside and ran into the bush. I did not tell anyone and nobody saw me.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were the girls in the camp or in the house?

Nancy: It was not a camp. It was a house occupied by people. They used to take the girls there and they later took them to the base at Pendembu.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Have you seen any of the girls who were in the house?

Nancy: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: While you were in the house, did you see any girl being raped in your presence?

Nancy: I did not see that.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did any of the girls complain to you that they were raped?

Nancy: They did not tell me.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You said your mother was shot by a rebel, where do you live now?

Nancy: I am living with a man in Daru.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: What is the relationship?

Nancy: This man is my father's relative. Before this time, I was living with my aunt-in-law, there was a confusion between me and they asked me to find somewhere else to stay, then I had to find my father's relatives.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: So you lived a normal life after this incident?

Nancy: Yes, but presently, there is some confusion between me and my husband.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Do you have children?

Nancy. Yes, I have one child.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Is the child for your present husband?

Nancy: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you tell anybody that you were raped?

Nancy: I did not tell anyone.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What about your former husband?

Nancy: I did not tell him.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What about your uncle?

Nancy: I did not tell him.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Why have you not let it out all along?

Nancy: Is there a need to tell anybody that I was raped? I do not think anybody can do that.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You have to talk to people you trust, you should not bottle it up. I hope you will feel better now that you have told us which we will still keep confidential. There are other people who were not as lucky as you were, some died. Can you tell us what you are doing now at FAWE?

Nancy: I am doing weaving and tailoring.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Have you completed the course?

Nancy: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: When will you complete it?

Nancy: I cannot say; sometimes we are short of materials.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you pay any fees?

Nancy: We do not pay school fees. They give us materials when they have them, if not we improvise.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Nancy, can you give recommendations or ask questions to incorporate in our report.

Nancy: I am wishing that we no longer experience such a war in our country. We have to pray to God. I am asking the Government to assist those who are doing skills training.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I thank you very much for your active cooperation. I would like to assure you again that there is nothing to be afraid of. I have noted the recommendations. We have noted a number of the recommendations you just made. We are hoping that once the recommendations have been implemented, it will make life better for you; particularly for girls and women. As you did say, skills training are important for girls and women. We all believe in the adage; "When you educate a woman, you educate a nation". The issues you have mentioned will be put in our report. Thank you.

CLOSED HEARINGS HELD ON 14TH MAY 2003 IN KAILAHUN

1ST Witness- Mustapha Sam Koroma

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

Bishop Joseph Humper

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Mustapha Sam Koroma. The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor Kamara

TESTIMONY

At one time in Monrovia, my father called me and told me that the names Koroma and Kanneh were the names the Liberians didn't want to hear. If you were in Liberia and you carried any of those names, you would be killed. My father was a twin and Mustapha M. Koroma was his name. When we crossed the river they killed my father and took away all his belongings. We went in different directions. I went very close to the border. We could not go back to Liberia because of our name. We remained within that area until one Thursday morning when there was an attack and we were captured by one Tunkara. He was a Vai man, he spoke Vai. I cannot understand Vai, except Mende. The three of us were captured and we had to follow them anywhere they went. He took me to the south for two weeks and brought me back. I was with him and he gave me a single barrel gun. He left me and went to Yengema and I heard that he was dead. Another soldier took me. I was with him for five months. The bodyguards were given the looted items to take to his wife. The brothers of the boy mobilised themselves and went in search of Tunkara. Patrick Lamin was also arrested and he was heading the whole group. I came to Kailahun in 1994 and Rashid took me to Foday Sankoh and, according to Mike Lamin we were the people from Liberia. We were in Kailahun and I was sent to the police in Pendembu where I was with them for about 5 weeks. We were there until Foday Sankoh himself went to the jungle at Zogoda. He moved with Mosquito and others. Sankoh sent for me and I went as a commander. Zogoda was the central base of the RUF. A central command was passed there for all movements of sandline. From 1994 to 1995 December my assignment was to remain in Zogoda. I was there until Foday Sankoh went to the Peace Accord. By then they said "Peace before Election". We were dislodged from Zogoda, Koribundu, etc. and we all came to Kailahun. By then some people arrived safely but others did not. We managed to reach Kailahun; some of us came very late. We had a short stick with which we beat gun powder on dried leaves to produce gun sound; we had run out of arms. We ate bush yams and any other food in the bush for survival until we arrived in Kailahun. When we came, we spent two weeks. By then we were coming under serious attacks from Hinga Norman. My own assignment was a jungler. There was an infighting that took place between the CDF and SLA. There was an attack and the army overthrew the government. The following day we were called to Freetown. Later Foday Sankoh moved to Daru and then to Freetown. We all went to Freetown and fell in an ambush at Lungi where I was injured I was admitted for two weeks; twelve people died in that ambush. Other people were on the civil line to form the administration of AFRC. We were in Freetown until when I heard that people had been arrested and killed. So we retreated from Freetown and moved to Kailahun. We came and by then everyone was to go to the front line. During my first attempt to go to the front line, I was injured by the Alpha jet and I was hospitalised for nine months; fourteen people died. They said that the land belonged to them and they had to establish a base there. The fighting continued until there was a cease fire. Foday Sankoh was released and he came through Monrovia; Johnny Paul Koroma went to him in Monrovia. Some people told Foday Sankoh that Mosquito was planning to overthrow him. He ordered Mosquito to leave and said he didn't want him any longer in his movement. Mosquito was stubborn and people advised him to leave as they did not want another blood shed.

When Foday Sankoh was in Freetown, I was in Tongo. We learnt that there was a riot in Freetown. The rest of our Ministers who were appointed were dismissed and Foday Sankoh was arrested and in the process he was shot in the leg. Another misunderstanding took place in Makeni where UN personnel were arrested. The whole place was destabilized. I heard that 20 people were arrested and these people were released and they went through Liberia.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

You will expect that there will be need to clarify some areas. I will ask the Chairman to ask his questions.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We want to thank you very much for giving us your experience on the rebel war. I want us to be honest, frank and open to one another. We don't want to leave any stone unturned. Even if it is the most serious crime, you are free to say it here. We want to know the truth. I want you to feel free to respond to our questions just for clarification. Did I hear you say that you belonged to a Special Forces group of the RUF?

Mustapha: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know of the different groups in the RUF?

Mustapha: Yes, Special Forces, Vanguard and Junior Commandos

Chairman Bishop Humper: Which of these did you belong to?

Mustapha: We who were captured and taken along with those people were later brought to work with them. They considered us to be next to them and so they called us Vanguard.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Were you involved in fighting, looting, killing or destroying properties in anyway?

Mustapha: I never went to the war front. I took up an assignment. 28 lives were killed among themselves.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Mustapha, did you ever go the war front?

Mustapha: My first time of going to the front line was when Zogoda was dissolved; I was injured and admitted for nine months

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you tell us some of the atrocities your people committed?

Mustapha: From the time I came here in 1994, even the information they gave you yesterday, I came here after that time.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Let me help you. Was your group involved in killing?

Mustapha: For as long as you fight in the front line, you will always kill.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Now, about destruction of houses. Would you say that your people participated in the destruction of houses?

Mustapha: Any civilian can tell you that Foday Sankoh never allowed anybody to destroy houses in Kailahun.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you hear about the arrest or detention of UNAMSIL personnel?

Mustapha: There was a commander named George. He belonged to the RUF.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Was it the right thing he did?

Mustapha: It was the wrong thing.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Assuming you were forced into it. Can you say your involvement was a good thing for yourself?

Mustapha: I am a little bit sceptical about the question you have asked. I am saying something to give you the right information. If you ask the people about me, they will explain to you that I have never done any evil thing in Kailahun.

Commissioner Professor Kamara John Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were in Liberia and my guess is that you are a Liberian; am I correct?

Mustapha: No sir.

Prof. Kamara: You said people with the names 'Koroma' and 'Konneh' would be killed in Liberia

Mustapha: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were coming when you were arrested, was it after crossing the border?

Mustapha: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: That was in 1994. You were arrested in 1991 and after going through the hands of two people who were all killed, you came to Kailahun in 1994. Were you there in 1994 when the government forces attacked?

Mustapha: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Who was the commando by then?

Mustapha: Mohamed was the second in command to Rashid. He was staying in Galon Nyawa and another man called Moris Kallon was staying very close to Daru.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were there arms or military people in Kailahun?

Mustapha: There was an attack, the South African came to Kailahun.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was the process for promotion in the RUF because you said by 1994/95 you were promoted .

Mustapha: It was not a promotion: it was an appointment for me to move from place to place.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You didn't have to distinguish yourself in any way?

Mustapha: You had to do something to attract the authorities.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: That means you had to commit atrocities?

Mustapha: During that period, especially in 1996, when the "Peace before Election" failed, a lot of atrocities were committed by rebels and soldiers. By then the soldiers and RUF were not together. In 1996 Foday Sankoh went to Ivory Coast for the Peace talks. The RUF in Pujehun district then, crossed to Liberia and surrendered to the ULIMO.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: In your opinion, did you say that if the pressure was continued on the RUF the war would have ended?

Mustapha: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What period was this when you were pressured out of Sierra Leone?

Mustapha: At the end of 1996 as well as in 1997. It was the coup that caused the RUF to survive.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When did the misunderstanding of Mosquito and Foday Sankoh happen?

Mustapha: It was a movement we all belonged to. It started from gossip to the leader. When Sankoh was away, he told Mosquito that he should put his feet in his (Sankoh's) shoes. When Sankoh came back, the people complained to him that Mosquito harassed them a lot. Sankoh called Mosquito and told him that he was not coming to Kailahun again. He told Mosquito that he should go to Liberia to go and train, but Mosquito refused and alleged that Sankoh wanted to kill him. Sankoh said that if he did not take his advice, he would no longer be accepted in the movement. Two boys who were supposed to be giving Sankoh information were beaten by Mosquito. So Sankoh asked Mosquito to leave and attach himself to another group.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Where did that happen?

Mustapha: That happened in the Samingo area. Whenever anything happened, they would call all of us for discussion. He never judged you or decided or give information without consultation. We learnt that one of his body guards beat up somebody and he was judged by the court in front of men and women. The man was condemned and sent to a base for punishment training for 2 months. Whenever you committed a crime you were arrested, but a Captain could not arrest another captain. Every signaller was a secret informant for Foday Sankoh. Sankoh would ask the signaller if the person who committed an offence had moved. If he had, then he would make arrangements for an arrest to be executed.

Leader Of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: Is it true that the Paramount Chief has asked you to leave the town?

Mustapha: No sir. An incident took place among us. Moriba, a body guard to Sankoh, and I had problems during the war. I was sent here to come and disarm. That was the first assignment given me by the RUF from a higher level. By then the Ghanaian contingent was in Daru. There was fear for UN to deploy in Kailahun. I went to Issa Sesay to tell him that that was my first assignment. He said I would have to be in Kailahun and disarm. I met the townsmen who wanted to know if I had any idea about their missing window bars.

Leader of Evidence: I am asking you again, "Have you ever participated in looting and the harassing people?"

Mustapha: I told them that I wanted to express my own view. The present officer knew about this case in Kenema. When the DO wrote to Banyan in Tongo asking if he was aware that they were destroying Kailahun District and the person sent there might be involved, Issa called me and accused me of involvement there. I got information from Bendu junction that Rambo, a commander, said he had collected 60 windows from Kailahun to go and sell. I came to the body guard of Foday Sankoh and asked him if he had ever seen that done during Foday Sankoh's time. I arrested him and locked him up. It was a serious problem. If you were afraid of those boys, they just continued to misbehave. I dealt with him seriously. He sent a message to Issa and told him that I sold a diamond for $68,000. For that reason Moriba was to receive 162 lashes but I begged for him. When Feika was here, he said he had evidence of the selling of the windows. I asked Moriba why he allowed his boys to sell those properties. I accused him of being the cause of those problems. He sent the windows to Kenema and did not bring them back. Moriba joined the SLPP to stand against me. They said I am a Liberian and my father was in Liberia therefore I should go back to Liberia. People started insulting me. I was in PAKBAT for one week. People who were around know the people who destroyed Kailahun. I gave assurance to the police in PAKBAT. I was not asked officially to leave this place.

Leader of Evidence: Do you think the commission can help you solve this problem?

Mustapha: Yes, I am begging the commission to help me solve the problem. I don't even know where my father is. I am attending a computer school. I attended a university in Liberia.

Leader of Evidence: For the kind of experience you have and the fact that people still think you are planning evil, is there any way the Commission can help with your story? You have told us your story but there are lots of gaps. Special Forces were those trained in Libya?

Mustapha: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: This includes.

Mustapha: Mike Lamin.

Leader of Evidence: Vanguards were trained in Liberia?

Mustapha: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were you part of their training and how many people were trained at that training camp?

Mustapha: There was no training camp at Borma hills; I was given an emergency training.

Leader of Evidence: How long did this emergency training last?

Mustapha: One week.

Leader of Evidence: Who else was trained during that period?

Mustapha: None.

Leader of Evidence: Those who were trained in Burkina Faso, what were they called?

Mustapha: They were Special Forces.

Leader of Evidence: Those who were trained in Sierra Leone?

Mustapha: They were called Junior Forces.

Leader of Evidence: While in Liberia, Sierra Leoneans were arrested by Charles Taylor. Sankoh convinced Charles Taylor to release those people. Do you know about that?

Mustapha: Other people gave us the message that those people were dead.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the first commander when you came here?

Mustapha: I met Mohamed Tarawally. He was staying on the road going to Koindu and he was next to Sankoh in Kailahun. There was the formation of the Top 20 when the Gio people were forced out, and the command structure was left in the hands of Sierra Leoneans.

Leader of Evidence: It was Rashid who introduced you to Sankoh?

Mustapha: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Who killed Rashid?

Mustapha: He was killed on the command of Sankoh.

When we talked about betrayal we referred to those persons who leaked what was discussed in confidence to the enemy. I cannot say I ever saw Rashid perform any action. According to information, Kanneh and Rashid had an earlier plan to come and launch their own revolution in this country. We received information from Kanneh that Sankoh could not control the programme. They had plans to set up their own programme. During the time of the arrest of Rashid, Kanneh said he was betrayed because Rashid said Foday Sankoh could not control the war, he was old and he joined the RUF late. So Sankoh went to Rashid and asked him to join him in a meeting and Rashid said somebody had betrayed him and that he would have to execute that person. When they came to Sandehun he arrested Rashid. Kanneh then said that Rashid had betrayed him. Kanneh told Sankoh that if Rashid wanted to overthrow him he would have to use another method. Kanneh then asked Rashid whether he was not the one who said Sankoh was not good enough to lead the movement and we should get rid of him. Rashid had told the commander at Daru that by 8 O'clock he should make use of the light to talk to his men, but he should not use it too much. No sooner had the man left than they launched the attack and the body of Rashid was torn into pieces.

Leader of Evidence: Were you there when the trial of Rashid took place?

Mustapha: Yes sir.
I never saw the people who killed Rashid. Sankoh said they should carry the men to the front line.

Leader of Evidence: Which front line was Rashid sent to?

Mustapha: To Mano, Sierra Leone high way.

Leader of Evidence: Was he sent to a front line headed by Mosquito?

Mustapha: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: As convoy commander you were linking between camp Zogoda and the front line.

Mustapha: Yes
When those men went to the front line, their women had to be taken to Sankoh who fed them. If we had salt and Maggie we took them to Zogoda. We moved things to Zogoda, where Sankoh was.

Leader of Evidence: You took captured civilians and any food items to camp Zogoda?

Mustapha: We were not taking captured civilians to Zogoda. The wives went in a convoy to see their husbands.

Leader of Evidence: If Foday Sankoh had food items to be taken to Zogoda how would you send them?

Mustapha: He only spoke with the two front line commanders. He would drive anybody around him.

Leader of Evidence: Between 1991 and 1994, what were you doing?

Mustapha: I was in Pujehun; I was with Patrick Lamin. He was in-charge of the Pujehun area.

Leader of Evidence: Which area was under your command?

Mustapha: I was a commander for Faroh town.

Leader of Evidence: How many troops did you have there?

Mustapha: No troops. I was like an administrator.

Leader of Evidence: You were ground commander for three and half years?

Mustapha: Yes, they scattered all of us in the bush. All military police would move along with Mike Lamin. We used thatched roofs in the jungle. We spent seven months there. I decided to come to Kailahun when they sent a message to Mike Lamin that he was not doing anything.

Leader of Evidence: You were then made commander for Kailahun. How long did you serve as commander?

Mustapha: In July 2001 I was an executing commander and my duty was to inform the leaders about what happened on the ground.

Leader of Evidence: You took decisions.

Mustapha: I did not take decisions. I waited for command from the head.

Leader of Evidence: What was your relationship with Tom sandy?

Mustapha: I was the security commander. Tom Sandy reported to his boss in Makeni.

Leader of Evidence: Why do people hate you in Kailahun?

Mustapha: I was not here during the UN time; I came here three months before the disarmament.

Leader of Evidence: How do you want the Commission to help you?

Mustapha: I am appealing to the commission, the war was not made by human beings: it was made by God. God knows those who caused the atrocities. I am appealing to the Commission to plead with the people of Kailahun for them to have mercy on me.

Leader of Evidence: On Friday the commission will have to move to the slaughter house and we will like you to apologise before the people at the ceremony. You will have to agree to certain things. You have to come out forthright with what happened. The commission needs to be sure that what you are saying is true. We have to get a formal ceremony.
Who can we contact in Pakbat with regard to your relationship in the community?

Mustapha: Major Agba. The present 2IC and also a Susan Magaba.
I want to assure you that if I had caused any atrocities, I will say so. I am ready to go to the ground and apologise to anybody I have done wrong to.

Leader of Evidence: Are you ready to take any step to beg them on Friday for forgiveness. Begging for forgiveness is the beginning. But don't expect people to forgive you on Friday when you refuse to accept what you have done. What can also help is if you yourself say you are willing to reconcile.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: If you say you were going to apologise. People will want to know what you are apologising for.

Mustapha: I am apologising for what the war did.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What kind of crime do you accept to have committed?

Mustapha: I apologise for what the war has caused and as a member of the RUF, I apologise for what the RUF did during the war. I am appealing to the government to assist us with education. As you can see there is no electricity in Kailahun. There is no good road to Kailahun and there are no health centres. I am appealing to the government to assist us with all of these in Kailahun.

2nd – Witness – Morie Feika

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

Bishop Joseph Humper

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Morie Feika. The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Commissioner Professor Kamara.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

You know why you are here and you know all what happened yesterday. We want you to tell us everything you know about the war.

Leader of Evidence: You are aware that you gave your testimony yesterday and we decided for you to appear at the closed hearings. You disagreed with many points raised in our questions yesterday and people were telling us that you told lies. The Commission is the Truth and Reconciliation Commission, so you have to tell the truth. You are expected to explain all that you know and all that you saw your colleagues do during the war so that people in Kailahun will forgive you.

Morie: I am saying thanks to you. We were here in Kailahun, for 11 years and if I leave anything behind please forgive me. If there is anything left out you can bring it to my notice.

Leader of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: You were trained at the National Secondary School?

Morie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Where did they train you?

Morie: From the office we were taken to the Buyama base and the training was called "ideology"

Leader of Evidence: How long did it last?

Morie: One and a half weeks.

Leader of Evidence: Were you trained to use guns?

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: After the training, where were you sent?

Morie: I was sent back to the office.

Leader of Evidence: In which year?

Morie: In 1996.

Leader of Evidence: You were not in the RUF between 1991 and 1995?

Morie: I was working with them but I went to the base in 1996.

Leader of Evidence: You joined the RUF in 1991?

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were working as a clerk in 1996?

Morie: I was first made the Adjutant in my village until 1993 before we were scattered. Then we went to Ngiehun where I came in contact with Siaffa. He asked me to work in the G5.

Leader of Evidence: How many men were under your control?

Morie: I was working with the village people. I was a kind of liaison officer between the people and the Liberians.

Leader of Evidence: As town commander, you took care of security?

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You also organized food for the soldiers assigned to you?

Morie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: The soldiers who served under your command were looting and forcing people to go to the farm to work? People hate you in Kailahun and they hate you because of what you did during those times. The war is over and it is now time to reconcile. You have to say the truth. On Friday we have to call the whole town and you need to say the truth. With the Commission anything you say to us is confidential. If you tell us the truth we can help you.

Tell us what you actually did when you were a ground commander in Kailahun town that makes people in this place hate you so much.

Morie: All what you said about my people not loving me does not come out of the war, but local politics. We were supporting a candidate called Lamin. I was one of the strong men behind Lamin. All the other groups gathered against the man. After the elections we the supporters of Lamin were pushed aside. They refused to confer with us on all matters. I am telling you frankly, if there is any person who is to testify that I killed somebody and I had been found guilty of any allegation, let me be punished. Some people went on to tell my mother that the TRC had arrested me. We have been here for the past years and all the hatred stems from those elections. I have been supporting a candidate who did not win so people did not like me for that.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The two people who were candidates have now reconciled; the man you supported is speaker to the Paramount Chief. So why are you treated like this?

Morie: We have two Ngobehs who contested the elections. We supported Lamin Gobeh and he is now in Freetown. The two Ngobehs are from the same house. The contest was between houses. The two brothers are not on good terms at the moment.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When were you commander in Kailahun?

Morie: In 1997.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How long were you commander?

Morie: I was a commander for four years and I was in Kailahun right through.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you want to tell the Commission that your boys did not loot, kill or rape?

Morie: I was controlling eight people in the town. I also had agents.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were your boys part of the RUF?

Morie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When they met with the civilians, they were feared like any other rebels; did they commit any atrocities?

Morie: When they came with goods to Kailahun, we assisted in distributing the goods.

Bishop Humper

Chairman Bishop Humper: Were you following your boys when they went around? Did they ever tell you of the wrong things they did?

Morie: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: May we assume that you did not commit these wrongs yourself, but your boys did?

Morie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you realise that in the interest of reconciliation we can look into other areas including the chieftaincy? You have to come and admit what happened. Are you prepared to tell us what you did so that you will leave this place and have a sound sleep?

Morie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Apart from forcing people to carry loads, you and your boys also forced people to work on the farms?

Morie: No, please allow me to explain. We had an overall commander for the G5. The deputy overall commander was also here plus the District G5 commander and the G5 Adjutant. At the time I worked with the G5, Sankoh was not in Kailahun. Sam Bockarie was here with us and he called the overall G5 commander and told him that he wanted 50 farms in the area. Our own responsibility was to do the work. We had to provide palm oil and agricultural products for the people. The 'WE' in the context is not referring to me alone but everybody. We were mining diamonds and the diamonds were sent to the leaders. I am bound to share the blame for all that happened for the very fact that I attended school here and happened to be the commander of the G5 unit. I informed the people of what the rebels said. The people had no option but to do what I said. We were forcing people and taking them where we felt like. The last farm was made at Pendembu. People walked on foot to Pendembu and I took them to the farm the following morning.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Those who complained of being tired were beaten by your boys.

Morie: The beating was a punishment we used. If a piece of work was not completed, we were detained. We did beat people. Sam Koroma detained me for 15 days on one occasion. He said I dictated to him. We too went through molestations. He was the commander by then and he was in charge of the whole of Kailahun. I played a part in the detention of the UN Peace Keepers. One evening Augustine called us and said they had orders from Makeni to arrest the UN people. Augustine, Martin George and Jonathan Kposowa said we should disarm the foreign troops. They sent me to the UN Peace Keepers. If the UN knew that I was sent to disarm them, I would not have returned. I went to call the UN, and they were happy. When they came, Kposowa passed orders that they should not move. Sankoh's securities, the Black Guard unit, were armed and nobody could disarm them other than Sankoh. About 62 armed men were in the queue. All the UN people were arrested. I went with the UN peace keepers to Ngiema. We locked their house and the key was handed over to me. Martin assigned fifteen people to take care of the house. After fifteen minutes, he sent his boys to tell me to open the door for them. The boys went to tell Martin that I refused to open the door. They beat me up and afterwards entered the house and started looting. The movement of the UN peace keepers was restricted. They were Indians. I was the only person who entered their camp to fetch water. I was ordered not to go to them again. The other day a helicopter gunship came, and we all went into the bush. So many people were killed. After that the UN Peace Keepers escaped.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Which part did Mustapha play in the Kamajor issue?

Morie: He was an M.P. commander. He was shut in the foot. Tom sandy and Augustine Bayoh were then Lt. Colonels.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We understand that you still have women in your custody.

Morie: I have two women and I have married them.

Chairman Bishop Humper: In which year did you marry them?

Morie: In 1995 I have another one who was born Kenema.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you marry her during the war?

Morie: We were in love during the war. I have nobody under my control, I did not capture anybody.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When did you release the last person you captured?

Morie: People were coming here to collect their children. The people were seeing me and my wives.

Chairman Bishop Humper: How many children were under your control before they were finally released?

Morie: When they captured the people we took them to the joint security office. A group called IBU carried out the investigation. There was another group that took care of the resettlement of the people. In the end we asked for the list. We used the list to know those who had earlier requested the release of their people. After the people had done their work they went back to their various places.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did fighters sign and take people away?

Morie: I did not allow any soldier to sign for anybody. What happened was that a soldier went into the jungle and another man came and took his people away. The soldiers then returned and started firing on the base saying that his people were missing. He accused G5 of giving his people away. I was held responsible and I was given 50 lashes.

Leader of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: On Friday, the Commission wants to do a reconciliation process at the "slaughter house". It is left to you to tell your people all the atrocities you caused so that they will forgive you. Forgiveness is not in one day. We want you to live in peace and we wish the same for the people in Kailahun. As a Commission, we want you to look at your people in their eyes on Friday and say you are willing to ask for forgiveness and you are prepared for reconciliation.

Bishop Humper

Chairman Bishop Humper: The Leader of Evidence has said it all. I believe in my mind that people don't know what you have said. We hope that you will cooperate with us on Friday. We will send a message to the Paramount Chief and other elders in the chieftdom and we want you to cooperate with us and you will see the difference.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: We have come to the end. All you have to do is to organize what you are going to say to your people on Friday. You can tell the people a summary of what happened to you and your responsibilities, and the result of failing to perform that responsibility. The question of enslavement and the humiliation that you also put people into including yourself. That was why I said you need to organise yourself. So when you say your apologies, they will accept you. Is there anything else you want to say?

Morie: I want the Commission to assist me with my education.

3rd Witness – James Morseray

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara

Bishop Joseph Humper

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is James Morseray. The witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You know what you are here for. This is not a court this is just a truth-finding Commission. Don't be afraid to tell us anything. Please tell us your experience.

TESTIMONY

In 1991 three of us were arrested. One of us was killed. They asked us whether we were willing to go with them. We went with them so that they would not kill us. They took us to Pedembu at the training base. We were at the training base for a month. After the training, those who were born in the District were sent to work elsewhere. They sent us to Zogoda. At Zogoda the Kamajors attacked us and we came to Segbwema. After the Peace Accord was signed, we used to meet the Kamajors at Mambolo. There was another village close to where we met the Kamajors but I can't remember the name of the village. During that time there was a misunderstanding between the RUF and the Kamajors. We stopped visiting each other. We went to fight the Kamajors. At a village called Burkina we arrested a pregnant woman and buried her alive. After the burial we left. We came to the Bunumbu Teacher's College. We were there when the Kamajors sent us a message that we should make peace. All roads were then opened within that area. They told us that they were the people who had visited first, so we were to visit them next. We were afraid. Whenever we paid those visits we usually took our guns along. We were not sure of what would happen that was why we took our guns. During that time, I saw my brother who was a Kamajor. He asked if I would have killed him when I saw him wearing the combat. After smiling to each other, he asked me to go and meet him, but I refused and I asked him to come and meet me. After that they sent us to Tongo. At Tongo our seniors asked us to go out in the mornings and search for food in the vicinity. We seized any food we saw and took it to them. They didn't allow us to eat the food we brought. In October 2001, the Indians came. When the Indians were with us, I told my friend that we should find a way to escape. When they realised that we were trying to escape, they used the bayonet on me. There is a sore on my foot. There was a commando called Manawah who arrested us. The one with whom I was working was called Mr. Ishmael. Ishmael asked me to move back to Segbema. I was in Segbema when my father was appointed a chief. During that time, the chief instructed everybody to clean the town.

While in Segbema, I always told my friend that we should try to escape. When we were leaving, I took my gun and ran away. We travelled through Benguima where we met some Indians at the check point who disarmed us. They searched us and took us to the check point. The Indians told us that they were taking us to the DDR office. They interviewed us. They gave us some water to drink. The day I entered DDR I was so happy. I compared the two lives I had lived and I observed that being a rebel was not a good one. The Indians usually left us to walk around. I saw my uncle and I cried. I was so surprised to see him. I thought he was dead. I asked for my mother and he told me that my father and mother were dead. I asked him about my family members. Since we separated, I don't know where they had been. At the DDR camp they treated us like children who should not be dealt with like the elders. At Save the Children, they usually interviewed us. They asked us what we wanted to do. While with Save the Children I hated any encounter with a Kamajor, I was scared. It was during that time they said they wanted to talk to the townspeople. During the war, a lot of children left their parents. They talked to the camp people to accept us as their own children. The person who adopted me was a Mr. Amara. On our way, I asked him whether he was going to take care of me like his own child. He said yes. After three days, I started thinking that I was not safe. I decided that I should go back to the camp. When I was in the camp, Save the Children went there and asked us to go back. We were in the town and Save the Children sent me to learn tailoring. I have finished my course and now I am asking Save the Children and the government to assist me in getting my own tools to do my job. That was all I saw during the war.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: We thank you for coming and telling your story. I am sure from the statement you had given to our staff before, you have not told us anything that you saw or experienced during the time you were associated with the RUF. To get that information, we need to ask you a few questions.

Bishop Humper: You have the same name as my son. I take you as my son. We are sorry that you found yourself in that situation. We are asking you questions in order to create some conditions or atmosphere for you to feel free. The questions I am asking are for clarification and they have to do with the statement as the commissioner has said.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Before you were captured, were you attending school?

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What standard did you attain?

James: Class 5.

Chairman Bishop Humper: From all you have said and, as a child, I will treat you as a child. Let me establish that you were forced to join the rebels and they trained you and gave you drugs.

James: They used to inject us with cocaine.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What was your experience when they injected you?

James: After I was given the injection I didn't fear anything, any human being you saw looked funny in your eyes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You did a lot of killing which, under normal circumstances, you would not have done at all.

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You have explained that you buried a pregnant woman.

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you name some of the commanders you were moving with?

James: Ishmael, Manawah.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you remember Manawah?

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you remember Akim and Johnny Paul Koroma?

James: Yes. I also know Monkey Brown, these I can remember.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know Sam Bockarie?

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know Bayoh?

James: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know Mike Lamin?

James: I usually heard his name.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Which ones now can you remember?

James: I will try to remember his name: he was a commando in Kailahun

Chairman Bishop Humper: What kind of punishment did the rebels give to you?

James: There was a hole; they hung a stick over a hole and you were asked to hang on the stick. They used to punish us. They had a cassette that they played and they would beat you until the cassette finished.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you see other people abducted; children, women and men?

James: I saw them, they did the same thing to me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you personally kill anybody?

James: When our bosses arrested people, they came with them and asked us to kill them.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How many times did you do that?

James: Three times.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were they all men?

James: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You spoke of Kamajors meeting you the rebels.

James: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The Kamajors joined the rebels to fight the soldiers?

James: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was the friendship?

James: It was during the time they wanted us to cease fire.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were the RUF meeting with the soldiers?

James: Most of the soldiers were with the rebels.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said you had a quarrel with the Kamajors. When you were friends of the Kamajors did you know Johnny Paul?

James: It was during the time when Johnny Paul was in town that we used to meet with the Kamajors.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: I want to ask when were you in good terms with the Kamajors?

James: When we went to attack Daru barracks, we did not succeed and later we made peace with the Kamajors.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The pregnant woman that was buried alive, can you recall why it was done?

James: It was a ceremony my boss asked me to perform.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Can you tell us the name of the commando that gave you this instruction?

James: There were a lot of commandos by then, but Ishmael was there.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Does that result in killing the people you got the food from?

James: We usually abducted them.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did those include children?

James: We abducted men, women and children.

Leader of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned that Johnny Paul was one of your commanders. Was it the Johnny Paul who was the head of the AFRC?

James: Yes, it was that Johnny Paul.

Leader of Evidence: When was Johnny Paul your commander?

James: If I can remember, there were two peace accords. When we came, we were all together. That was the time he served as commander.

Leader of Evidence: Were you with him in the bush?

James: They visited us in different locations.

Leader of Evidence: Did he join you to fight?

James: Actually he did not come to fight. He brought arms for our bosses and when he went to Freetown he joined our bosses to fight.

Leader of Evidence: What did he say to you in the bush?

James: He was telling us that we should fight for our land and we should fight to the end as Sankoh had said we would have a lot of benefit after the war.

Leader of Evidence: When did they usually inject you?

James: They injected us when we wanted to go to war.

Leader of Evidence: If you captured children like yourself, what did you do with them?

James: When we captured children, some were abducted and some we released.

Leader of Evidence: How long did your training last?

James: There were times when we spent less than a month.

Leader of Evidence: Where were you trained?

James: In Pendembu. During the training our heads were shaved. We did not spend much time. They gave us boiled banana for food and our bosses and their wives ate rice.

Leader of Evidence: Were girls trained as well?

James: Some of them were forcefully made wives and some were trained.

Leader of Evidence: How old were you when they captured you?

James: 14 years.

Leader of Evidence: Give us an idea of the age of the children they captured.

James: I cannot exactly say their ages, but there were smaller and bigger boys. When they gave birth to children and those children grew up they sent them to the training base.

Leader of Evidence: Were many of the girls who were captured raped?

James: Yes they were raped and, in-fact, there was a time my boss forced me to have sex with a girl. If I did not do it I would be killed. Some were raped in their houses and some others were locked up in their houses and those houses were set ablaze.

Leader of Evidence: Were you engaged in mining diamonds?

James: Those who were abducted were forced to mine diamonds and our bosses took the pieces from them.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where they took those diamonds?

James: They took the diamonds to the Sierra Leone and Guinea border in exchange for arms.

Leader of Evidence: Did you participate in the attack on Freetown on January 6, 1999?

Commissioner Professor Kamara: James, do you have questions to ask or recommendations to Make?

James: Now that you have interviewed me what is the proof that what we have said here will not be exposed?

Commissioner Professor Kamara: If you want a tangible proof, we can't give you, but I want to tell you that you are not the only person we have interviewed. You have to have faith in us. We've heard your story. We know what you have gone through and even what you did was not something you decided to do. So we will not like to make your life more difficult. Therefore, we will not go and tell anybody what you were forced to do. Our responsibility to you is to protect you and to help you overcome the trauma you have suffered. You lost your entire youth, your education was interrupted, you now have no parents. You must take the Commission as your parents and your friend. We will try and do all we can to help you. We will not add to your difficulties.

James: Where I am currently, I go to work and live on my own. I want to be under the care of somebody. I have completed my training.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So Save the Children is no longer responsible for you?

James: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: With whom are you staying?

James: The person who trained me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Is he kind to you?

James: Yes, he is in Daru, 16 Nayma Road; his name is Amara Koroma

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Is he a tailor himself?

James: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Has he employed you now?

James: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Does he provide a place for you to stay?

James: Since I was taken out of the camp, he has been the person responsible for me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Does he provide you with food?

James: When he is able, he does it but there are other times when he does not.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How many of you are with this man?

James: Four of us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are the others also ex-RUF?

James: They are relatives of Mr. Amara.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How do they receive you; do they make comments?

James: Initially they used to make remarks but Mr. Amara usually gave them pieces of advice. However, I want to leave his place.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Why do you want to leave?

James: I want to go and stay in Kenema

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Is that your home town?

James: No, if I go to my village, they will not accept me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Where are you from?

James: I am from Zandahu. There was a time I was taken there by Save the Children who told the people that I was not my normal self when all this happened. I really do not want to go and settle there because my brother was a Kamajor.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Is your brother there?

James: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Why don't you want to go there?

James: He said we will never come to terms because I allowed myself to be captured and used as a rebel.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Don't make it known to Amara that you don't want to stay there. When you have somewhere to go, then you can leave. Whatever the Commission can do, we will try to do. The Commission has responsibility for all those like you.

4th – Witness – Fudie Swarray

Presiding Commissioner: Professor John Kamara
Bishop Joseph Humper
Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Fudie Swarray. The witness swore on the Koran. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Professor Kamara administered the oath.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Fudie we want you to tell us the truth of all what happened during the war. I want you to remember that this is not a court, but it is just a fact- or truth-finding Commission. When you say the truth here, you will not be prosecuted for anything you have done. Don't be afraid to say anything about what you or other persons did. We are friends.

TESTIMONY

My family went into the woods: We were a large family. There were six boys, four wives, four men and six girls. We were there when the rebels met us. We moved and we met with the rebels at the same point. When we went to the other point, the rebels met us there again and those of us who were boys were abducted. The rebels took us away. Our relatives did not agree and they put up some resistance. When we arrived in a village, they asked us to carry their luggage. As we were going, the rebels killed two of us simply because they said they were unable to carry the luggage. We were in the town for four days and the rebels took us to the bush and shaved our heads. We were there for six days after which we were taken out of the bush and brought to Kailahun. They queued us up and they would send a gun to us and we were expected to catch it without allowing it to fall. As they sent the guns, we caught them. One of our colleagues allowed the gun to fall and immediately he was shot. We were there for three days. Having gone through the training we were assigned to man the check point. One morning, we were asked to go to Koindu. In the morning, we were attacked by Kamajors and our companions started shooting at them. We were engaged in active combat until we were able to repel the Kamajors. On arrival in Kailahun, they abducted some other men and took them to the village. In the morning, there was no food and we went in search of food. We harvested bananas, plantains and rice and put everything in a bag and walked around the terrain. We realised that people were in bush camp and we captured them. Those people carried our food that we had seized. We went on another patrol towards Koindu. We did not know that the route we used was where the Kamajors laid their ambush. We exchanged firing. We were outnumbered by them and they threatened us. We dropped our guns and ran away. The rebels asked why we dropped our guns and each one of us was given 100 strokes with a rod. Having beaten us, they gave us rum. We went into a cassava farm and there was a big stream. When we crossed the stream, they asked us to go into an ambush in that area. We were finding hiding places when the Kamajors came and opened fire on us. We captured four Kamajors and brought them to Kailahun. We took their guns and killed them. I witnessed the chopping off of an enemy's head which was placed on a stick. I was given instructions to threaten people and remove their properties from them. The following day, we were in this town. Towards dusk, they attacked the town. There was intense firing. Three of us were very tight friends and did not betray one another. We went into hiding and decided that we were going to Liberia. We went towards Norman and crossed. We met Liberian soldiers who said we were rebels. We were beaten thoroughly. They took us to their boss. Their boss inspected our bodies for any rebel marks. They released us and we crossed the river.

When we went to the village, we spent some time looking for our relatives. We were in the town for 3 days and we decided to return to Pedembu. There also we were captured. It was the Kamajors that captured us. They took us into a house. They did not know that the door to the room in which they had kept us was not good. We spoiled the door and got out. We went to Baima and spent five days there. We learnt that Save the Children was there. We went to Daru and they showed us where their office was. Our names were written down and they gave us food. They took us to the camp and they fed us and gave us clothing. They asked us the kind of trade we wanted and I told them that I wanted to learn tailoring. The others decided that they wanted to go to school. We were there for some time and now I can do some work all by myself.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you very much.

It is a short story but it contains a lot of information. We are sorry for those bad experiences. We will want to ask you a few questions.

Chairman Bishop Humper: How old were you when you were captured?

Fudie: 9 years.

Chairman Bishop Humper: During your training, how many of your companions died in the process?

Fudie: Two of them.

Chairman Bishop Humper: During your movement from place to place, what did they give you?

Fudie: When we went to work, they gave us packets of cigarette and marijuana and we smoked very seriously before we left.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What happened to you after smoking the marijuana?

Fudie: When I smoked, I could not distinguish between grown ups and children; my eyes became very red.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Because of that you killed?

Fudie: There were times when you were retreating and shooting at the same time, and you would have killed without knowing.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you capture boys, girls and men?

Fudie: We used to capture civilians and bring them to town.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Were you going to school before you were captured?

Fudie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: As you think back, what do you think is missing in your life?

Fudie: When I sit back, I think of having my own materials and work tools and having my own house so that I will be independent.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You were attending school and now you have learnt tailoring; was this your original intention?

Fudie: This is not my intention. I had an intention to study further.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: I want you to feel relaxed. Where are you living now?

Fudie: I live in the Paramount Chief's compound in Daru.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are you with your relatives.

Fudie: My relatives are no more. I am there, undergoing training.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You told us a number of unpleasant experiences. You said your group captured three Kamajors and killed all of them, is that correct?

Fudie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you see the killing yourself?

Fudie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Was that the first time you saw people being killed?

Fudie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were then just about nine years?

Fudie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was your reaction, how did you feel?

Fudie: I was heavy laden and I was afraid that the same will be done to me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: On that day, had you marijuana to smoke or was drug given to you?

Fudie: On that day, I smoked marijuana.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you given any injections?

Fudie: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are you still taking marijuana?

Fudie: Yes, I still smoke it

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You can't do without it?

Fudie: I can do without it.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are you going to try to stop smoking?

Fudie: It is about four months now, I have not smoked marijuana. I will try to stop it.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said you witnessed somebody's head being cut off and put on a pole?

Fudie: It was like coming in an encounter with an enemy. So when the colleagues of the enemy came around, they would see the head on the pole.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you at any time kill somebody?

Fudie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How many times?

Fudie: Once.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Under what circumstances?

Fudie: The person was also an enemy.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you in a battle?

Fudie: We had exchange of firing when we went in search of food and we met the enemy on a tree. I did not say anything and I passed him, but when my senior saw him he ordered me to kill him.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So you killed him?

Fudie: I did.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What did you do to the body?

Fudie: There is a hole in the villages where they used to prepare palm oil. We dropped the body in the hole and left it there.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you assigned to people going out on expeditions?

Fudie: There were a lot of us in the town. We worked on a shift basis.

Leader of Evidence

Leader of Evidence: Did you go through DDR?

Fudie: They did not allow us to go through the process, we went into hiding.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to your eyes by the time?

Fudie: They took the guns from us, we sneaked.

Leader of Evidence: You sneaked away from save the children and where did you go?

Fudie: We were with the rebels when we sneaked. We heard about Save the Children and went to Daru.

Leader of Evidence: Who was your commander in the RUF?

Fudie: Mr. Banya.

Leader of Evidence: What was his nick name?

Fudie: That was the name he was called.

Leader of Evidence: Did the RUF also give you a wife?

Fudie: They did not give me a wife but when we went on raids we captured women and had sex with them.

Ozonnia; How many times?

Fudie: It happened once.

Leader of Evidence: Would the commander tell you to have sex with them or did you all know you must have sex with them?

Fudie: It was the commander that actually forced us to have sex with them; he advised that we should not negotiate.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you to one woman?

Fudie: One RUF to one woman. The one I had sex with was of my age.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to those young girls?

Fudie: Some of them got married to the rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Were they also trained as combatants?

Fudie: Some were trained as combatants.

Leader of Evidence: Were those female combatants respected?

Fudie: They were respected because some of them were hot tempered and if you dared with them, they would kill you.

Leader of Evidence: How long did your training last?

Fudie: It lasted for five days.

Leader of Evidence: I am sure some of you did not survive the training. What kind of training did you do?

Fudie: If you missed any point during the training, you were killed especially if the gun was sent to you and you did not catch it.

Leader of Evidence: Did you participate in the January 6 attack in 1999?

Fudie: I was not there. From here, I went straight to Liberia and then to Daru.

Leader of Evidence: From your statement, you said you saw rebels beating Kamajors at Pademba road. Which Pademba road were you talking about?

Fudie: I can't remember.

Leader of Evidence: Did they inject you with cocaine or they just gave you marijuana?

Fudie: I was given just marijuana.

Leader of Evidence: Did they also show you films to teach you how to fight?

Fudie: Once in a while we watched films.

Leader of Evidence: Did they bring you all together to watch these films?

Fudie: I did not witness a situation where all the combatants were brought together to watch movies. There were only fifteen of us.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of movies did you watch?

Fudie: We viewed war movies by Rambo and learnt manoeuvring techniques.

Leader of Evidence: How many times in a month did they show you these movies?

Fudie: I can not remember, but it was done once in a while.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you know James Moseray?

Fudie: Yes

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you in the same unit?

Fudie: No, there were several units and I was not in his unit.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Have you got any questions to ask or recommendations to make to the Commission?

Fudie: Now that you have asked us all these questions what is the reason for this? Is it that you want to give some benefits to us? Now our relatives can't do anything for us. We are fully dependent on Save the Children and we rely on them for tools to work with when we would have completed our training.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: As you would agree with me, part of your life has been shattered. You wouldn't like a repetition of that. You wouldn't like your children to do the same thing. The Commission was set up to find out about what happened during the war and why it happened. We will be able to advise the government and anybody to stop anything that looks like those things that caused the war. For the victims, if we get to know how much they have suffered, we will be able to make recommendations on how they can be helped to make their lives better. For children like you, you are so important in the country and yet this war has made you lose part of your youth. Something has to be done to help you. Telling us your story helps us make recommendations to the government. That is the purpose of the commission.

Thank you very much. Do you have any recommendations for the attention the government to do for you?

Fudie: I am appealing to the government to ensure that we are helped with our training, especially with the tools to do our work.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did they give you anything to start the training?

Fudie: That was not given to us. It was given to our boss. I am still training and excelling.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Keep it up Fudie. We have heard your concerns and we shall include them in our report. Thank you.

PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN KAILAHUN ON 15TH MAY 2003

1st Witness- Alex Jusu Allieu

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow

Chairman Bishop J Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Alex Allieu. The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Thank you for coming here this morning; we appreciate your presence. We will like to assure you that the Commission is not a court. We hope you will help us to fulfil our mandate. I will like to urge you to feel relaxed and share your experience with us as clearly and accurately as possible. You may now begin.

TESTIMONY

I was in the village with my parents. When we heard that the rebels had entered Bomaru. We were in our village, Dodo. We later heard that they had gone away. We continued to stay in Bomaru. They told us they were thieves. After one week we heard that they had entered Bomaru. We were frightened. We started packing our loads. We took some of our properties into hiding in the bush. In our absence, they entered the town. We were then surrounded. We had no way to go. We decided to wait during the weekend. We tuned to a radio station and we were informed that the war would last only for three months. This caused my father to tell me that we should wait after three months. We then waited. After about four days, we were sleeping in the morning at about 6:30 a.m. when we heard shouting in the town. We were told that the rebels had entered our town. We woke up and had no way to go. They attacked all the roads. We met them everywhere we went. We decided to use the route behind our house. As we approached them, they arrested us and took us to town. They told us that we were safe and that they had come for the soldiers because our country had been spoilt by the APC. In short, therefore, they came for the APC. My father told me that we should sit down. We were there for a week. At one time, many of them came from Koindu, about sixty of them. At night, we were sitting in our veranda when they ransacked the town. Some of them moved towards our house and took all of us outside. Then our house was set on fire. They then moved to another house. Whilst they were looting our properties, we ran away into the bush. Then I was separated from my parents. We went to different directions. The following day, I searched for my parents, but I did not see them. I headed for the town. Our house was situated by the bush. I had wanted to pass through in order to look at the house when a rebel arrested me. He captured me and asked me to tell him where I stayed. I told him that I was looking for my parents. He told me to follow him. I said I won't do that. He fired two shots in front of me and said if I did not join them he would kill me. He took me to the centre of the town. In the evening, we came to Kailahun and we were taken to the training base at the National school. Our trainer was Madison Kanu, a Liberian. After our training which lasted for three weeks, we were taken to Pendembu. In Pendembu we were deployed together with Madison. I was sent to the commander that I was supposed to be working with. The commander who I was working with was called Jaffa massaquoi. He was killed later.

After that, it came to the time when Moriss Kallon told us that they were to make us Commanders. Anybody who was detained in a cell received twenty-five lashes. He then told us that he was taking us to the war front. We were taken to Ronipele. It was our first visit there. On hearing gun shots, some of us started retreating. The commander moved to the back of the group and said if we retreated, that would be the end of us. When we arrived, the group which had the RPG man launched the fire. The sound frightened us. He was our own commander. He started firing at us to go there. Those you were fighting were in front of you. You must go and fight he told us. Whilst fighting, as it was my first time, I was injured. As the soldiers started their advance, they took to their heels. I was alone and I tried to get up. I knew death was near me. I fell down and started to crawl. The soldiers moved to where I was. Not knowing that they (Morris Kallon and his men) were around. After the soldiers retreated, I took my stick and started walking. I went to the bush and I met them there. I was taken to Pendembu. I was given medical attention. I still feel the pain. After that, I was made a commander. When people committed offence and they brought them before me, I was supposed to beat them and that was exactly what I did. When people were not around, I would take some of the abductees and set them free. Some of the guards saw me at one time and reported me. If they noticed that I released abductees they would give me worse punishment. You had no way to run away from them. I attempted on one or two occasions but I was caught. They told me that if I ran away they would kill me. At a time when I was still a commander, in 1993, the soldiers moved us from Pendembu. They took us to Koindu and we settled there in the bush, in small groups. Then Sankoh said the war was then jungle war and that he was going to join us; and the war should reach Freetown. We were abandoned in one village. The Head Quarters was towards Koindu. We heard that Sankoh was in Guinea whilst in Guinea we heard that he had moved ahead together with Mosquito. Later, after a long time, we were taken to Guinea and stayed there. We were at Gama when some of our brothers were taken across the river. We started the fight from Mano to Tongo. They asked us to go and man the check points. We were taken for that purpose to Sandehun.

If you sat down and allowed anybody to escape, all the MPs there would be killed. After that, the Kamajors attacked us. We were there until we ran short of salt and Maggie. We came together with Issa Sesay and planned to do something. We called all the civilians and told them that we didn't have salt, maggie, cigarette and we needed these items. Every commander together with the civilians was told the number of bags they should produce. If they asked your group to bring the quantity they needed and it was not done, you would be arrested; they would ask you to go to the MPs. On arrival at our place the MPs, Issa's body guard and Mosquito's body guard would be around to flog the people who had failed to bring what they needed. They would wait and see; if they were beaten, they took the message to their bosses. If we failed they would flog us too. They would still send them.

In 1997, we were told that there was peace. We went to Freetown in 1997. They moved back and went to us. They said ECOMOG troops drove them out of Freetown. They started organising us. They would call you and assign you to a commander. The Commander should be the head, he should protect his people. In Pendembu, in 1998, the commander was called Big Daddy. At that time, if the civilians were asked to brush the town and they were not able, we the MPs would go and call the chiefs. They would ask them why they refused to join the townspeople. When they explained everything, we would flog them. We did this because they were our seniors. Any time we were instructed, we had to carry out our duties. We were doing this in Pendembu until we organised them to farm between Gaba and Ngiehun.

The farm we made was a very big one. Be you a soldier or civilian you would work on the farm. If you failed to work on the farm, you would be punished. The civilians were made to brush the farm and plough the land and if you failed to go there, you would be arrested. No sooner had the Lower Bambara chief been arrested than people started to work. We were doing this unto the time we heard of the signing of the Lome Peace Accord.

We were then in Pendembu when we heard that the UN forces and the commanders on the ground including Col. Tom Sandy decided that the UN people should travel through the land. We were at Pendembu when the UN officials were arrested. We then said to ourselves why did they capture the UN troops. Two to three days later at 6:30 we heard the sound of a plane in Kailahun. When it came for the last time, it opened fire. The firing lasted for some minutes and all of us went into the bush. We were told that the Indians had been held hostage and they had come to collect them. When the firing started on Sunday in the morning, it went on till 2:00 p.m. of the same day. The houses were ablaze. We reported that the UN had burnt the houses. We came and we were now in town. Even the house in which I was residing was burnt.

After that, what I personally did was to flog people who were to be put into the cell. If I refused, they would do the same to me. If I ever did any wrong to anybody, it was in my opinion the beating that I gave them. That is all I know.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: At the time you were captured. How old were you?

Alex: 12 years.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How old are you now?

Alex: I am now 22 years old.

Chairman Bishop Humper: I want to assure you that this commission is not a court. Whoever you call by name will not have anything to do with me. I am giving you this information so that you can feel free to tell us the truth. I want to tell you what you do not know. You were a victim and a perpetrator. That is very serious.

Prior to your abduction and arrest were you attending school?

Alex: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What class were you in?

Alex: I was in class 7.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You rose up to the rank of a Commander it was as a result of your performance in your movement that gave you that right. Tell us precisely what and what you did.

Alex: I used to beat people. Sometimes I detained them in cells. I was not supposed to do that. I did that because I was ordered to do so.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you feed them?

Alex: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: At all times?

Alex: Yes

Chairman Bishop Humper: You said that you had somebody who was given four dozen lashes. Is that true?

Alex: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: From 1991 to 2000 did you and others capture boys and girls and bring them to you commanders?

Alex: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you at any stage commit a rape?

Alex: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you know of any instance where some of your people had bush wives.

Alex: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you have one?

Alex: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Name some of the leaders (Key leaders)

Alex: Jaffia Massaquoi, Augustine Gbao, Tom Sandy, Big Daddy. Those were the key commanders I knew.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you ever see Mike Lamin?

Alex: Yes. He was introduced to us here.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you see Eldred Collins?

Alex: Yes.

Alex has said that civilians were involved in the war and that Sierra Leoneans were all involved in the war; those who survived the war have all played a part in the war.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were caught?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What kind of drugs were you given?

Alex: Hard liquor.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You took active part in the war. Can you remember killing anybody?

Alex: I went to the war front only once. That was the time I captured somebody.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: As a commander responsible for the prison, you used to cramp people mercilessly.

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did any of them die.

Alex: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said after the training when you came to Pendembu you had a special training before you were promoted to Commander.

Alex: Morris Kallon did not give us any special training.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You described to us a situation in which Morris Kallon asked you to manoeuvre in a shooting exercise.

Alex: That was the time he urged us to be between him and the soldiers and if anybody tried to retreat he would be killed.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When Sankoh told you that that was a jungle war, where did you go to near Koindu?

Alex: I went to Soloko Bendu.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You told us of your training at the National School. Were you trained to use a gun?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You stayed with the people?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you have cause to use a gun?

Alex: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: But you carried the gun wherever you went?

Alex: If I was called to move from place to place, I carried the gun.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Did some of the boys who were abducted die during the training?

Alex: By the time we received training at the National School a commander called Kongolie queued us up in a straight line and placed the gun on our shoulder. If the gun was fired and you were not in a straight line, the bullet would hit you. The bullet hit one boy on the head and he died.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: In your written testimony you said that those who committed rape were beaten, can you explain why it was so?

Alex: Many a time we did not witness them. We were only told that those people were involved in rape cases. If it was so, we were told to give them heavy punishment. We used to detain them for about a month. Everyday, we would take them out and give them twenty-five lashes in the morning and evening.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Did you take part in the DDR programme?

Alex: Yes, I have disarmed and surrendered the only gun I had.

Leader of Evidence: The MP unit you belonged to was responsible for security.

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were also responsible for manning the check point from city to city

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You also said that you took away personal property from civilians while you manned the checkpoints?

Alex: Most of the time. That kind of report was brought before me. When civilians travelled and they crossed the checkpoint towards Pendembu, they used to take their properties from them. We did all we could to find out who did such things, but we could not.

Leader of Evidence: You were the one that was responsible for carrying produce from town to town.

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: In many cases, those who carried these produce fell down and died.

Alex: That used to happen when we had the Gio fighters among us. They used to take people from here in Kailahun to Koindu with loads on their heads.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the MP Commander here in kailahun?

Alex: Tom Sandy.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the town commander in Kailahun?

Alex: Joe Fatoma.

Leader of Evidence: Are you telling the Commission that people were not killed?

Alex: That did not happen during the reign of the Sierra Leonean rebels: it happened during the time when the Gio fighters were here.

Leader of Evidence: Did you smoke marijuana?

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How many brothers and sisters do you have by the same mother?

Alex: I am alone. My mother used to have nine children.

Leader of Evidence: Out of those nine what place were you?

Alex; I am the last one.

Leader of Evidence: How old was the eldest?

Alex: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Did you regret your membership of the RUF?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Alex do you have any questions to ask or recommendations to make?

Alex: As I sit here, I am saying to my people and the entire country that I was under pressure when I committed all those atrocities. Those who stayed here during the war witnessed that it was not of my own making. Those who joined us know it was not our fault. I am now saying to you all that you are my people. If I have ever forgotten to mention anything that I did, I am asking that you kindly forgive me as it was not our fault. Please forgive me for whatever wrong I have done and I have come today asking you to embrace me as there is no evil forest to throw away wicked children. I want our mothers to talk to our fathers. It is paining me right now as I sit here. My mother is too old now. I have no father. I have no brother or sister. Please forgive me and embrace me. Do this for the sake of God who created us. It was not my fault. It was the fault of those who came and joined us in the rebel war. If I was attending school up to this time, God must have answered my prayers. That is all I have to tell the people of Kailahun

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We thank you for your cooperation.

Alex: I am now asking the Commission and the government that they should embrace us and make skills training available to us in order to develop this country and our families. The other people who have been left out should be given a helping hand. I am saying that the commission should please provide us with that kind of help. Having gone through my testimony does the Commission have any thing in mind to do to me?

Chairman Bishop Humper: The Commission has responded to your questions positively. I want you to be rest assured that this Commission is not going to put you in jail. We have a final closing ceremony tomorrow and you, together with others, will have the opportunity to say exactly what you have said here to your people. That will make your people accept you. It is not going to happen overnight. You can bring your young people together. You can be the spokesperson for the Commission. We will expect you to be around till tomorrow.

2nd Witness – Francis B. Tucker

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow
Chairman Bishop J Humper
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Francis B. Tucker. The witness swore on oath. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Before I start I want to pray for myself. I have not come to say much here. I am just saying what my actions were.

I held onto a gun and I deployed here. They told me that nobody could live in the area. Everybody went in the bush were I was collected and brought to town. We were doing that when I came in contact with people in the bush, at the Guinea border. We reached a point where some of them demanded that we should be set free since they wanted to go and meet their people. If they were allowed to go they would have returned to this country. We left them to go. I told a girl called Sarah that I was taking her to my base in order to marry her. We went to the base. At that time we had people who liaised between the fighters and civilians. Any civilian that wanted to marry, we were responsible to fill the forms. I never forced her into marriage. They asked her to sign and I was also asked to sign and the writer and the IDU man also signed. I did not know whether the girl was pregnant. After we had gone through this process, we had sex that night. Just after that, she miscarried. I was worried and I found a nurse to attend to her. Anywhere we deployed we had a medical team. I explained to the nurse and she was taken care of until she recovered. Her mother came from Guinea and took her away. This continued onto the time they were moving from Guinea to Kialahun. At that time, she met me with her problem. She explained herself to me. She never explained to me that she did not miscarry and she showed me the baby and we stayed there for about three weeks together with her sister and brother. She told me she was going to prepare a place for her family and that she would come back to me. I told her that I still had good intentions for her. She said she would not be able to settle with me because her mother was in Guinea. I waited till the end of the month then I said to myself that I was blind, I had to find another person. By the time she came, I had got married. She was annoyed. I tried, but I could not get her again. I talked to her, but it was in vain; she went back to her village. After that, I did not say anything until the TRC went to me. I narrated the story to Mr. Prince. He then asked me whether I could narrate the same thing at a public hearing and I said yes. He asked me series of questions. I told him I would go down on my knees and beg for what I have done wrong. I told him I would not allow anybody to tell the TRC about me. I will ask the people to forgive me. That is still what I have to do Commissioner Mrs. Jow: We thank you very much for coming to testify. From your written statement, you told us you were abducted by the RUF in 1991.

Francis: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming here as the presiding Commissioner has said. You were taking the lead from the time you joined the army in 1991 to what date? From 1991 to 2000.

Francis: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When did you have this accident?

Francis: In 1997.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Where did you come from before you came around here? Where is your home town?

Francis: I am from the Bonthe District.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Where was your area of operation?

Francis: Koindu.

Chairman Bishop Humper: From 1991 to 2000?

Francis: We were deployed in different places.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you name some of the key players from 1991 – 2000?

Francis: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Name them.

Francis: Foday Sankoh
Sam Bockarie
Issa Sesay
Morrison Kallon
Augustine Gbao
Big Daddy
They are many and most of them are not alive today.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You came across all of these? Where did you get your training from?

Francis: At Kissidugu

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you go to Zogoda for advanced training?

Francis: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You have prayed for God to forgive you. Could you tell us what you did from 1991 to the time you had that accident; Whether you killed, raped, looted or abducted?

Francis: I cannot tell you that I have ever killed somebody facially. However, I must accept that I killed; that was when I fought my first war. Even at that, we did not fight in town; we fought in an ambush. We ambushed the Guinean soldiers. At that time, if you were a good fighter the Liberian rebels would not release you. I was made an ambush commander. I used to take food to the arm bush scenes. I did it three times a day.

Chairman Bishop Humper: So the RPG you fired hit you back and that brought you to how you are today?

Francis: It made me to become discouraged.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: At the time of your abduction you were under age; you were not more than 18 years old.

Francis: I was fifteen years old.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were made to commit all those atrocities in the country.

Francis: We had different roles.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You took part in all these atrocities listed here?

Francis: I cannot be forced to say yes or no. There were series of atrocities and we did not commit all of them. In 1996 when I was deployed I did not abduct anybody. I will not answer to what I did not do. I will answer to what I did and I will apologise for it. If you accept it, fine; if you do not accept it it is up to you.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you also take part in looting people's property?

Francis: I can't deny that, yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you force people to carry loads and force them to work against their will?

Francis: I did not do that.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Not you personally, but you were in a group?

Francis: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What was your occupation before the war?

Francis: I was training as a mechanic.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: At what level did you leave school?

Francis: I stopped at class 7.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you join drugs taking groups?

Francis: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us what the RUF leadership said to you in order that you would continue staying with them?

Francis: They first asked if we were students and then interviewed us one after the other. We said we were not going to school then because of poverty, education at that time was a privilege. They told us that they had come to give us free education. They also asked us to tell them where, in any district we had seen a medical centre; they said that was why they had come. These are some of the encouraging words they told us. However, as we moved on, we were discouraged but we were unable to escape from them.

Leader of Evidence: At one point in the movement, you were a sergeant.

Francis: The promotion was called "Belleh Sergeant"

Leader of Evidence: Where were you getting the food from?

Francis: I used to collect it from our Head Quarters.

Leader of Evidence: Was it part of your strategy that you went to the community and started shooting to scare people away and then take their food?

Francis: No.

Ozonnia: In your statement you said that you scared people away and took their food.

Francis: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Civilians left their community because they were afraid.

Francis: Yes, that was the reason.

Leader of Evidence: This will mean that there was no reason for the civilians to leave but that the RUF scared them away.

Francis: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were responsible for mobilising civilians to take the food to the war front?

Francis: No. They didn't go to the war front.

Leader of Evidence: Civilians were told that if they escaped they would be shot and killed.

Francis: Yes

Leader of Evidence: Does it mean that you were shooting in the air to scare civilians away?

Francis: I did not witness it, but it used to happen.

Leader of Evidence: In your statement, you told the Commission about two children who were captured.

Francis: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How old was the girl at that time?

Francis: 3 years.

Leader of Evidence: What's her name?

Francis: Sia

Leader of Evidence: In your statement, you said you were going to train her to become your wife.

Francis: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of work did she do while in your custody?

Francis: She was not doing any work. I used to even wash her. When she stayed with us till she was in class three, she fetched water with us.

Leader of Evidence: Do you also think that Sia would have followed you if you didn't have a gun?

Francis: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see your colleagues take women in other conditions?

Francis: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How long did those women normally stay with them?

Francis: Some are still with them.

Leader of Evidence: Why have you not gone home and you are still in Kailahun?

Francis: Nothing

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Francis, we have asked you questions, do you have any questions or recommendations to make to the Commission?

Francis: My first question is that I want to know if Sia is in this hall.

Leader of Evidence: She is not here.

Francis: So many times people say a lot of things that TRC has in mind for us. What exactly do you have for us?

Commissioner Mrs Jow: The main mandate of the TRC is to look into what happened during the 10 years war. The violations and human rights abuses caused during the war. The TRC will impartially record such happenings in order to prevent the outbreak of another war. Do you have any more questions to ask?

Francis: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Thank you very much Francis, you can step down

3rd – Witness –Susan Kolugbonda

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow
Chairman Bishop J Humper
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Susan Kolugbonda. The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

I was not in kailahun when the war started. I was doing my practicals. I was in Mende Kamagu when the people attacked the town. I went under the bed so I didn't see most of the activities. I was under the bed when they removed others and killed them. There was a student in form 3. I was listening to all what they were saying. They asked others to cook for them. I was worried. I was in the village doing some work. The house I stayed in was by the bush. At night I walked to a village nearby. In the morning I thought of my family and I returned. As soon as I reached the town they started firing. The soldier that abducted me took me to Garuband. When I entered Kenema those who knew me before were happy to see me. I was there when the chief asked me to work with the Red Cross. I consented to work with the Red Cross. The soldiers accused us of being rebels anytime we went for meeting. I was staying with a woman but later on had to move out with the view of returning when sanity returns. Upon my return to this town, I was subjected to harassment and threats. As a result I went to another village where I started processing palm oil, harvesting groundnut, and selling salt and some other foodstuff. I went to a village and went into the bush processing palm oil. I used to harvest groundnut. I sold salt and other foodstuff. Whenever they needed palm oil they came to me. When I heard that the rebels had arrested the UN Peace Keepers I became unhappy. Throughout that day I heard the sound of firing. Later on we were told that some Kamajors were killed. All was just hearsay. The presence of Tom Sandy, Martin George, Joe Fatoma and Morie Feika was conspicuous that day. We heard that Mosquito had guns. I was in the village when I saw people coming down to Kailahun. Being a civilian I decided to stay to see what was going to happen. I am telling you about what happened during the time I was in the village. There was no chief, and this really troubled us. It was the Grace of God that saved me. I was not afraid of any commander because if you are part of an organisation you will not be afraid of those in it.

I had a dispute with one of the commanders because of my farm. On that very day I went to see Mosquito. I told Mosquito that I was now home and if he chose to kill me he should go ahead. I am a farmer here. There is nowhere I can get food. I told Mosquito to talk to his children so that they could stop what they were doing. I was blamed for everything that happened in the village. Now there is peace and I have a house in Kailahun. I was in my house and I told everybody that I wanted peace. All the chiefs during that time were interested in peace. Everyone in Kailahun knew that I went to Daru to negotiate for peace. I was sitting down when I heard that the Kamajors wanted peace. All the young ladies decided that we should have our own organisation. I refused to be the chairman. So we had to vote but I still won. Whenever they summoned a meeting, I hid myself and went to Daru. We held a meeting with KARDIF. We were happy to accept the peace. They decided that I should be the chairman. I told them outright that once I had become the chairman of this town all guns must go silent, and along with that there should not be any destruction. When I returned from the meeting I was invited by Issa Sesay. He said that he made my husband to work in Daru and therefore he was going to order the destruction of our properties. After they had burnt all our houses they began to remove the steel windows. I informed the people concerned that they were removing our properties. I ordered that the things should be brought back to Kailahun. The person in charge of the windows was Moriba Koroma. Tom Sandy instructed that people to go. We started chasing the vehicle. We stopped the vehicle at a junction. Mustapha Koroma was in Makeni. When I came back I reported to the chief that that was what the people were doing. I said I was going to follow the last one till they killed me. Mustapha told Tom Sandy that he was wrong. Tom Sandy and Mustapha were not on speaking terms. I came back here. I was here when my mother got sick and I went to Freetown. As soon as I arrived I greeted everybody. Tom Sandy said, "You have settled down in Freetown". He said that over and over. I went to CPO Komba and the UNAMSIL officers and reported the matter to them. I am now saying this to inform the Commission that I brought the peace that was in this town. I also brought UNAMSIL into this town. I also brought KARDIF to this town. I had to work like a horse. I did a lot of work. I will prepare food. Moriba Koroma, James and Fatoma attacked me at my house. When they collected me they threw stones at the vehicle. When I went there Mustapha Koroma went to me and took all my property. That was what they did to me. A lot of people know about that. I am not going to say anything in camera.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We thank you for your testimony and also your role in the peace process. We need to ask you questions to get important information.

Bishop Humper: Your story is a bit complex. The Commission has categories of witnesses. We have victims, perpetrators and witnesses. As we moved along your story we found out that you are a victim, a perpetrator and a witness.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When did you return home?

Susan: I returned to Kailahun after NPRC took over power.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When did they appoint you women's leader?

Susan: When they told us that the organisation had become a political party. It was that time I was made the chairman. There was a Mammy queen.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you ever witness the rape of women?

Susan: I never saw those things.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know some other key soldiers of the RUF?

Susan: Like Tom Sandy I have a daughter going to school and Tom Sandy tampered with her and she became a dropout.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you have any experience of RUF appointing their own chiefs.

Susan: Yes. Like one Mr. Sellu and Papa Do. Mammy Massaquoi was a Mammy queen. There was another section chief. They were working together.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who was the chief commander at that time?

Susan: Morie Feika was the chief commander. Any number of men they wanted at that time must be provided by the chief commander.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know any leader who was in charge?

Susan: Tom Sandy, Joe Fatoma and Morie Feika were in charge.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Why?

Susan: I told them that they were holding leadership positions before me. I could not just claim to be a chairman.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You took the appointment because you wanted to protect the town?

Susan: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Don't you not think it was a big risk? If you took that position it means that you supported the rebels.

Susan: Initially they thought that if I was the chairman I would be silent over what they did. That was the reason why I stood against whatever they did.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When you saw these people doing this did you go to the administration?

Susan: Yes. At that time I was moving to Daru making reports to the CPO and DO

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Can you tell us the names of the CPO and DO you reported to?

Susan: The DO was Sulaiman Koroma and the CPO was Kombah.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did they take any action?

Susan: They took action. They condemned their behaviour. They warned these men to heed my word as a child of the town.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did the police make any effort to recover these properties?

Susan: At the time the properties were taken away, the people concerned were not staying there. They were supposed to have taken the action by the time I left the town for the meeting. If you don't do so they will kill you. Anytime they see you moving they will accuse you of being on the other side.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What you are telling me is that although officials were here law and order had not been restored.

Susan: We were serving another government.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: In your effort to bring peace you never knew Foday Sankoh?

Susan: No.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Can you explain what you mean to us?

Susan: It was not with Issa Sesay. We were meeting all the time in Daru.

Leader of Evidence: Would it be right to describe you before you became a chairman that you were a member of the RUF?

Susan: I was not a collaborator. I was in Kenema. That was the time NPRC took over.

Leader of Evidence: How many years did you stay there?

Susan: I spent about one year six months in the village.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the commander then?

Susan: I can't remember his name.

Leader of Evidence: Who were these men who worked on your farm?

Susan: They were my children. They suffered a lot and they fled away. I said I was not going anywhere.

Leader of Evidence: In 1999 you became Mammy Queen of the RUF?

Susan: I met the Mammy Queen leader. I was only the chairman?

Leader of Evidence: Why did you decide to become a chairman of the RUF?

Susan: I knew all the atrocities they committed and I rejected the position initially. I accepted the position to protect the people of Kailahun. I saw a lot of things people did and I can explain some of them.

Leader of Evidence: As chairman from 1999 can you take responsibility for the atrocities they committed?

Susan: I can say all those crimes they were committing were bad. People knew that I was not supporting them. I accepted the position that if anything went wrong during the war I will tell my people.

Ozionna: With all the violations they committed you still believed in them as a group?

Susan: I had accepted the position before that time.

Leader of Evidence: What do you think is needed to bring real reconciliation among the people of Kailahun?

Susan: I was called upon to be their chairman. I am thinking that my people can testify that I did not do any atrocities here. If there is anything I need to say to appease my people, I shall be pleased to say them. People like Chief can testify that I did not commit any atrocities. There are people here that still do nurture malice against others.

Leader of Evidence: Some of the commanders you said caused the atrocities were here a couple of days ago and they apologised to the people. Do you think it is well meant?

Susan: Many of those commanders are not on speaking terms with me. Indeed many of them have apologised.

Leader of Evidence: The Commission is organising a reconciliation programme tomorrow.

Susan: I am willing to go there if I am invited. If today God has inspired you to bring peace here I will do whatever you say. All the time you have been asking me why I accepted the chairmanship. I am a sensible person. I am afraid of trouble. Nobody led me here. I came here by myself. That is why I did not go for a closed door hearing. I forgot to mention one incident I want to explain here. I witnessed shootings and killings in this town.

4th Witness – Alex M. Jusu

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow

Chairman Bishop J Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Leader of Evidence: Ozonia Ojielo

My name is Alex M. Jusu. The Witness swore on the Bible. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

In 1991 when the war started I was small and 5 yrs old. The rebels captured us and I lived with them until 1999. Most of them dressed in rags. One of our grandfathers Pa James was captured and killed. Our mother was shielding our father. The rebels asked us to prepare food for them. They told us that they were doing us good. We prepared the food for them. The war turned against them and they formed Tap 20. We were sitting in our hut in the farm on a certain day when we heard their voices and people raised the alarm that the rebels were coming. We had one of our grandmas who was not able to run. She moved for a shot distance and kept quiet. They fired into the air for long. Most of us were around. Our grandma did not wait for long then she was arrested. We looked at them until they went away. In 1992 during the faming season they came to our village one afternoon and met our father and they captured him. They demanded that all young men should go into the bush. My father was made to look at the sun. A guy called Tapor was the leader of the group. They arrested my father and ordered some other people to assemble all the people in the village. They asked people to carry loads for them. They took them towards Koya for two or three days. We all decided to go through Liberia into Guinea. We went and stayed in the refugee camp in Guinea.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Where were you staying?

Alex: I was in a village called Patama.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What do you know about operation spare no soul?

Alex: That kind of operation is the kind of operation where no living thing is spared. They will kill whatever they see.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You were forced to carry heavy loads?

Alex: Yes. Nothing happened to me I only carried the load to Canyonama.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Tell us a little bit more about your parents. How they died as a result of mistreatment.

Alex: They killed Mama Nyema, Pa James, and my father himself Pa Jusu.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did the rebels do you any harm?

Alex: No, they did not do me any harm.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you say you were 5 or 9 years old?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: So I believe you should be 17 now and not 21.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were taken from Foya and you moved your family into the bush?

Alex: It was my elder brother who was taken to Foya and when he returned he said the war had entered our town and he took us away.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You and your elder brother?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How many of your family members did you lose?

Alex: They killed two of my grandmas and my father was severely beaten.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The rebels were abducting young boys and girls, not so?

Alex: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Can you tell us why you and your brother were not abducted?

Alex: Anytime the rebels come around we always hid ourselves. That was how we quickly crossed into Liberia.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: But they took you to Liberia.

Alex: That happened in 1991 to 1992. I was captured and taken up to Kangama and they released me.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Apart from that single incident of your carrying load for the rebels your family did not encounter any rebel attack.

Alex: We were always in the bush and most often they told us that the rebels looted our properties and whenever we came we would see their handy works.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you know how many young boys or young men were abducted in your camp?

Alex: I am not in a position to know anybody who was abducted.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Where are your people now?

Alex: I was with them in Guinea but I have left some of them behind.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What year was that?

Alex: That was in March 2002

Commissioner Mrs Jow: How long?

Alex: The period between 1991 and 1992

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you receive any training?

Alex: They did not capture me and they moved along with me. We used to be in our town and they gathered everybody together. At that time we the smaller boys could just stand and look at them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did they take you anywhere when you moved with them?

Alex: They did not carry me anywhere so as to stay with them. Initially when we were caught they told us that they were taking us to Liberia and one junior Commando promised to make a way escape for us.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What was the name of the junior Commando?

Commissioner Mrs Jow: He was called Amara.

Leader of Evidence: For these rebel atrocities you witnessed have you received any counselling?

Alex: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you dream about them?

Alex: No, that has not happened in any way.

Leader of Evidence: You said you left Sierra Leone in 1992 and came back in 1999?

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you feel like a foreigner in your own country?

Alex: No.

Leader of Evidence: Are you going to school now?

Alex: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What class are you in now?

Alex: Form 2 at the National Secondary School. I am saying that those who brought the war committed all these atrocities but as we are living in this world, we always blame God even when we caused them ourselves. So those who committed these atrocities should be exposed to peace training facilities that will enable them to build what they have destroyed.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of Sierra Leone do you want to see for people like yourself?

Alex: I would love to see each and every young man in the country engaged in some useful activity. As I speak here now, my father still suffers from pains he got from the flogging. Even though he is working we still noticed that he is not ok. Even within these few days they have been asking us for school fees. That is one side effect of separation.

Leader of Evidence: Have you ever sat to discuss this incident with anybody?

Alex: I have done that with my friends, we sit and chat.

Leader of Evidence: What were your friends telling you?

Alex: It was a terrible act for some of them. Some will talk and laugh over it.

Leader of Evidence: Will you like the Commission to refer you to some NGO?

Alex: Yes. I want to ask the Commission to help provide assistance for our education. Most of our brothers are in the village and most of them are sick especially the girls. I want the Commission to assist with medial facilities.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: It is good to note that as a young man you are aware of the need for education for all. We will also ensure that there is education for girls. All the same for the Commission to make any recommendations to government and international bodies in their report, your recommendations among others will have to be incorporated in our report.

5th Witness – Sellu Ensah Gobeh

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow

Chairman Bishop J Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Sellu Ensah Ngobeh. The witness swore on the Koran. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

I was a chief in this country particularly in Luawa chiefdom and was made chief in 1996. Whilst I was in power the rebels used to tell us to look for food for them. They used me as a kind of intermediary on behalf of my people as I was supposed to get my people to gather their produce and give it to them. We gave them rice, coffee, cocoa and palm oil. That was what we used to do. Everybody in the chiefdom used to come together for a general cleaning of the town. The fighters did not participate in that kind of exercise. The time the Gio fighters left the country we took charge of our country again. Things got better for us when they left. They use to warn us that their work was a military matter and not our business. The Indians that stayed there were very kind to us. One morning I was surprised to learn that they had been arrested. But then I said to myself that it was a political matter and not my business. Personally I felt bad that they had been arrested. In my opinion, the Kenyans were the first offenders when they arrested the people.

I visited them and promised to take them back to Kailahun that very day. The commander CSO told me that before that could happen we must make some agreement committing me to bring the people back. I was concerned that if anything happened to them the RUF were to blame. I took them to Kailahun. By that time Issa was back from Monrovia. I was arrested and taken to Foya. I declared before Issa that I signed the document taking responsibility to bring those people back to Kailahun. He said a lot to me and said it was an international affair. I was a civilian and according to him I was not supposed to have any hand in that. We returned to town. There was a big problem in Kailahun at the time of disarmament. They disarmed everybody in Kono and Makeni but they told us that we should not disarm here. I heard it in a radio message. I went to the station and asked why. I told him that I will order the boys to disarm. He came and argued with us a lot but he certainly understood what we were telling him. There is a lot to be said about this war but I want to stop here.

Chairman Bishop Humper: I want to thank you for coming here today. I want to know the role you played and the problems you encountered during the rebel war. When did you become paramount chief for these people?

Sellu: In 1996.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Was there a Paramount Chief before you?

Sellu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who was the Paramount Chief before you?

Sellu: Initially when the war entered here the Paramount Chief I knew was Senesie Makpa.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When was he elected Paramount Chief?

Sellu: In 1991.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who elected him Paramount Chief?

Sellu: It was the Gio fighters.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who was the Paramount Chief before Senesie?

Sellu: It was Chief Sama Banya Bala.

Chairman Bishop Humper: That was the Paramount Chief that was elected by the Chiefdom people?

Sellu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: But Senesie was appointed by the RUF?

Sellu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: And you were also appointed by the RUF in 1996?

Sellu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you contest in an election?

Sellu: Five of us contested in that election.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who were the chiefdom counsellors?

Sellu: There were no counsellors.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you say whether your election was legal or illegal?

Sellu: It was illegal.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you have your own chiefdom counsellors.

Sellu: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Who appointed those counsellors?

Sellu: They organised themselves and selected one person who appointed the counsellors. When we to do field work in Koidu I was asked to take the labourers along. A message was sent asking if I had gathered the men for the work. I was arrested I was unable to do it. It took days before the men were gathered and then I was released.

Chairman Bishop Humper: As PC would your subjects go anywhere with out your consent?

Sellu: No, I had to give my consent.

Chairman Bishop Humper: It was by your consent that people worked for the RUF?

Sellu: Whether I consented or not they had to do it.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know a place in this town called the "slaughter house"?

Sellu: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: How many Kamajors were killed by the rebels in this town?

Sellu: I can't tell the number as I was not in this town.

Chairman Bishop Humper: How can you convince the people of this town and Kailahun that you were not only a collaborator but also a chief architect for the rebels?

Sellu: If ever I committed any crime in this chiefdom it was only because I was urging my people to come for work. They did not even take me seriously when I scolded them. They only feared those who carried guns.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Thank you for the information
You said the Paramount Chief before Senesie was PC Sama Banya. You were fairly an old person. Can you tell your people if you were crowned the same way as the first Paramount Chief?

Sellu: No, mine was an illegal election.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you think you did a good thing for chieftaincy in this chiefdom?

Sellu: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you regret it now?

Sellu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said one of your responsibilities was to go out and let the people give up their produce.

Sellu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were asked to produce a quantity of food or a quantity of produce.

Sellu: Yes. They gave me a quota which I had to bring by force.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Can you tell us what happened to you when you failed to get the quantity.

Sellu: I was detained.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What do you tell your people to bring in order to free you from your detention?

Sellu: I used to tell my people to bring the things that were asked for in order to secure my freedom.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were asked to collect 200 people for work. When you failed to collect them you were punished.

Sellu: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you not resort to punishing people who refused to participate.

Sellu: I did not.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You have never touched anybody?

Sellu: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You seem to have a measure of authority or control over the RUF. Issa refused to disarm.

Sellu: Yes. I ordered the boys to break the stores open and take the guns to go and disarm. Where I had the strength they were just left by themselves. I often threatened to instigate my people to disobey them.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You want to tell everybody that people were happy to give away their produce?

Sellu: They were not happy to do that.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Why did you not stop it?

Sellu: I did.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You stopped it?

Sellu: Yes, I stopped it. The only thing ensured was the involvement of the people in the cleaning of the town. My force was to see that the town was clean.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us what work the people did?

Sellu: Farm work. We used to do farm work, clean the town and make the roads. From construction to agriculture to cleaning, every duty had its own team and team leaders. Alpha Musa was the team leader for Construction work.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Were they all rebels?

Sellu: No, they were civilians.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: As a member of a committee you got them to carry out their duties?

Sellu: I used to do it but some were not working. Sometimes they waited for me to travel elsewhere and they did what they liked.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you know that you are responsible for all these atrocities?

Sellu: I will not agree to all of them. I was a civilian without a gun.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you come in contact with any other rebel leader apart from Issa Sesay?

Sellu: Yes, they were here.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you name them?

Sellu: Augustine Bayoh
Vandy Kosia
Denis Lansana
Mosquito
Lawrence
Mike Lamin
Peter Vandy

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the Commission why you came forward to testify today?

Sellu: Yes. We who stayed behind during the war we did not stay for our property. We were trapped by the war at that time. If we had gone to Liberia they would have killed us and if we had gone to Guinea they were going to kill us too. After staying in the country and everything came to an end one had the opportunity to address his people. Some of us did not commit crimes. Those of us who committed atrocities, must ask for forgiveness.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell this Commission how Sala became your wife.

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Go on and tell us.

Sellu: Sala was in Sembehu, a small village and I proposed love to her and she agreed. It took me six months without seeing her. We went to Pendembu and there she met me. I asked her if she got my messages. That was where we started arranging our marriage.

Ozonnia: Sala was not abducted by you.

Sellu: I was a civilian and she was a fighter, so how could I have abducted her?

Leader of Evidence: She finally became a fighter after you betrayed her.

Sellu: She was in the movement when I met her.

Leader of Evidence: Do you also have a wife named Baindu?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Was she disarmed?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were you also disarmed in Kailahun?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Will you be honest to say to your people the wrongs you did to them so that they can listen to you?

Sellu: I want to tell my people to forgive me for the wrongs I committed against them.

Leader of Evidence: You forcibly let people do farm work.

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You worked very closely with the commanders here against your people.

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: The people were beaten and maltreated, is that correct?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the Commission about the “slaughter house”?

Sellu: The one I know about was the killing of the Kamajors. At the time they were arrested I was not in town. I met them on the ground when I returned. I asked and they told me everything. But all the people here now are citizens of this chiefdom. They pleaded with me, “Please don’t arm them, let us free them”. Then I left to go in search of food again. On my way to Gama I met people by the riverside and they told me that they had killed all those people. I asked who killed them and they said it was Mosquito. I was so discouraged because I had brothers among them. People used to ask if I was able to let them release those people. I said yes. But when I heard of this I was surprised. The next day they told me to remove the dead bodies and I told them I wasn’t going to. But they had guns.

Leader of Evidence: Apart from the Kamajors many people were killed?

Sellu: I don’t know the house you are talking about.

Leader of Evidence: Why do you think people of this town dislike you so much? You were a member of a court where Patrick Banda served as chairman.

Leader of Evidence: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were a member of that court.

Sellu: No.

Leader of Evidence: In your statement you said you presided over several cases.

Sellu: I did not preside over any case. Patrick Banda was the head in Koindu and he was responsible for cases. I was just doing my work as a chief.

Leader of Evidence: The Commission will finish this work tomorrow. The Commission does not harass any person. We insist on promoting peace in this country. The Commission is your opportunity to come to your people and reconcile but people feel insulted when those who violated their rights do not speak the truth. I am now asking you to apologise and ask for forgiveness. The work of the Commission is to help facilitate that process. If you want the Commission to help you, now is your opportunity or otherwise it will take a long time to do so. Do you have anything to tell the people of Kailahun?

Sellu: In Kailahun here at this centre on this big day, I am now telling all my people men and women that it was not our fault Sankoh's. If it was not him it would not have happened this way. I am asking all my people to kindly forgive me for the things that happened in this country so that from now on we will be able to live like children from one mother to promote this country.

Leader of Evidence: You remember the court with Patrick Banda. So you then presided over your own court in Kailahun?

Sellu: Any time our brother committed any crime we will talk it over.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of punishment did you give to those found guilty?

Sellu: We fined some people a bag of rice or flogged them.

Leader of Evidence: It is a law that they should be flogged, is that correct?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Some will be locked in cells for days?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: There are several mass graves in the town?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know about some of those mass graves?

Sellu: Yes, behind the police station.

Leader of Evidence: Where you there when those people were killed?

Sellu: No, at that time I was not in power.

Leader of Evidence: When you were in power were you there when others were killed?

Sellu: No.

Leader of Evidence: Some people were sentenced to death for crimes. Is that correct?

Sellu: We don't have that kind of crime in our court.

Leader of Evidence: Some of those beaten died because of the beating they received?

Sellu: That never happened.

Leader of Evidence: Some were beaten in this town.

Sellu: It used to happen in Guama.

Leader of Evidence: What effort did you make to find out who killed those people?

Sellu: Isaac a Liberian soldier brought these people and the people complained that they were tired. The people died. I reported to the commander what his fighters were doing.

Leader of Evidence: Do you regret what you did in collaboration with the RUF?

Sellu: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Are you prepared to participate in the reconciliation process tomorrow.

Sellu: Yes.

6th – Witness –Fomba Kanneh

Presiding Commissioner: Mrs Aminata Jow

Chairman Bishop J Humper

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Fomba Kanneh. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Jow administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

On the 28 day of fasting, during one season of Ramadan, on a Saturday, we were in our village when we heard gun shots. The rebels brought in by Foday Sankoh launched an attack. The following Monday, I moved from our village and came back to see the extent of the war brought to our country. I went to my house and the fighters went there with their guns. The police barracks had been closed and the police had run away. The rebels went in and looted all the properties. They also went to a woman's place where they stole rice. I started seeing loads on people's head moving all about. A boy told me that I should go and collect my own rice as a store had been opened. I refused. It was clear from the look of things that they had come to steal. The guy that brought the war, Foday Sankoh, held a meeting at the court barray. While addressing the people he said that he had no money to prosecute them and that natives of the land should fight and not expect to be paid. Anyone who fought in the war was to consider anything he got as a profit. That went on and the destruction continued onto Baima. Sankoh said that the war was a means of bringing changes. The change he was talking about was to destroy any sober person in this land. After the rebels had left our children were not part of the movement. Some of us had thought that if the war was in the hands of our children it would speedily come to an end. However, when the country was in our own hands they were breaking houses and killing people. It came to a time when we didn't have anything to eat. There were five of us from the same mother. All of my brothers and sisters were killed. I built a concrete house in this town and people know about it. That house was destroyed. They were here and they did whatever they wanted. Last year, I left this place for Bo. My brother took my wife to Bo. I found he had died. He went to Freetown for medication at the Connaught hospital and there he was admitted though he died later. After his death a lot of things happened. He had two children overseas and we told them about his death. They came to Freetown and buried their father. Like I said, Sankoh had come to change us. I am not saying I was a rich man, but at first I was able to feed myself and my family. I lost everything. UNAMSIL is currently occupying my house and they are not making any improvement on it.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming here to testify. As I listen to your testimony, I feel sad because of your age. One would expect that at your age, you should have settled to enjoy the little you have. We hope you will continue to hold on to what you have at this point in time will you agree with me that if we were to give a title to this revolution of Sankoh we will say that it was a "Pay yourself Revolution"?

Fomba: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Will you say that the pay yourself strategy moved your children to join the rebels?

Fomba: Yes. Everybody paid themselves.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Why did one Alhaji put a grenade in your pocket?

Fomba: He asked me to go with him to Daru. I asked whether he was travelling with people and he said no. Then I told him that I would not be able to walk to Daru. I had my t-shirt. He took out the grenade and put it in my pocket. I still insisted that I was not going. He went into my house and started firing and bore holes in the ceiling. He did all he could but I refused to go.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Can you remember the names of some of the commanders around here?

Fomba: Yes, I remember Massaquoi he was the leader of all the soldiers.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You said Foday Sankoh was making promises to change things around?

Fomba: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was your opinion about those changes?

Fomba: I thought about the changes as the war progressed and I realised that they were meant for those who were hopeful about the outcome of the war. I cannot say I was rich, but I had 15 family members that I took care of. Now I cannot take care of them.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: On the basis of those experiences what advice will you give to the people of this country both young and old about changes in government?

Fomba: I cannot give any piece of advice.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: At the point where Foday Sankoh spoke to you were you convinced?

Fomba: Whilst he was talking I entered the hall to ask him, then one of my children held me back and told me not to ask questions. I did not defy my child.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did any of your children join the RUF?

Fomba: My child joined the RUF out of his own wish but right now he is dead. I was in Guinea and he was flogged to death.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Was it by junior commandos or the RUF?

Fomba: I can't tell the kind of group he belonged to, but they referred to him as a commando.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you give him over to the RUF yourself?

Fomba: I did not.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did they abduct them?

Fomba: They did not abduct them, they opted for themselves. No sooner had Sankoh declared the pay yourself strategy than they opted to join the movement.

Leader of Evidence: Can you describe the size of the house in terms of the number of rooms?

Fomba: Seven bedrooms, one shop and two verandas

Leader of Evidence: Where is this house located?

Fomba: On the way to Koindu.

Leader of Evidence: Are they paying rent to you?

Fomba: I have not received a cent from them.

Leader of Evidence: When did they start occupying this house?

Fomba: Last year.

Leader of Evidence: Have you complained to the Paramount Chief?

Fomba: No.

Leader of Evidence: Why?

Fomba: At the time of my return, we had no resident Paramount Chief.

Leader of Evidence: The commission will try to help you. We will write a letter to the Representative of the UN Secretary General here to see what they can do. The Commission wants to know how to phrase the letter. Do you want the house or do you want them to pay you rent?

Fomba: I want to rent the house.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: We have asked you questions, do you have any questions to ask or recommendations to make?

Fomba: What I have to say to this commission is that if I were a woman I would have cried as I am going through hard times. I was not a rich man, but I was happy. As I am talking now, I can't afford to feed myself. I had so many wives, but they all fled because of the hardship.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We are very sorry for what you went through. We thank you very much for the support.

CLOSING SESSION HELD IN KAILAHUN ON FRIDAY 16TH MAY 2003

1st Witness – Peter Bagorie
Presiding Commissioner: Chairman Bishop J Humper
Mrs Aminata Jow
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Leader of Evidence: Ozonia Ojelo

My name is Peter Bagorie. The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You are one of the important people in Sierra Leone. You will be helping us to know what went wrong in Sierra Leone. You will be contributing toward the building of Sierra Leone. I give you this opportunity to tell us your experience.

TESTIMONY

I am a worker at the Ministry of Health. I am the Monitoring and Evaluation Officer in Kailahun. We went to a series of meetings with the RUF in Kingtom so that they could allow us to enter the territory. Some of the people present at the meeting were Koto, Kaibanja and all their medical personnel. This meeting was organised by UNICEF, WHO and the Sierra Leone Government. We came to a conclusion that we should enter Kailahun. We were to conduct an NID programme in Kailahun. On 6th October, we packed all our logistics to enter Kailahun. We were intercepted at Sebuya and taken to Segbwema. On arrival in Segbwema, we came in contact with the following:

Colonel Momoh Rogers
Colonel. Amara (Ambush Commander)

and one M.P. Daboh.

They said we had no right to enter their territory.

The following day we were brought to their office to wait until they received orders from Sam Bockarie. We stayed there for days. On 10th October, at 6:30 p.m., we received a message that they were taking us to Buedu. I am grateful to Samedu because she cried when we were about to be taken away. She made the comment that we were going to a place we knew not, and if we came back alive, fine; but if we died also, fine. We were four in number and four gun men. They told us that there was one of us in the bush and that we should join them. That was when I thought that we were going to die. We met the man on the way. We arrived at Bunumbu by Midnight. Those rebels were so powerful; they had all kinds of communication sets. No sooner had they moved from one point than they communicated with their colleagues. At Bunumbu, we took a canoe and crossed the river to Gaima. We went to Gaima and slept there. The following day, we slept at Pendembu. The other day we went to Buedu, towards Pendembu. We went to Bulawa and we did not see any street because it was dark. We travelled in the jungle unto Dodo Kortuma. That was where we first saw light. On arrival in the town continued to a place called Oni Lusi where it was raining then. We waited for the rain to cease before continuing our journey. When we went to Buedu the first person we came in contact with was called Alhaji Kuyateh 2121, he was the step father of Maskita. We were not told that they had juju men who would know if people did not speak the truth and that such persons would die. He served us food. Mr. Vandy (commonly called Boss Boss) and I ate the food. He took us to the MP's office and took all our properties from us and signed for them. The following day, we were arraigned before the court at a place called "the Dungeon", a very deep place where they locked people up. From among the four of us they took the youngest man, Paul Baimba. His uncle asked him to say that Boss Boss was a Kamajor and that he was the brain behind the movement. I was a photographer and a journalist. Alhaji Kuyateh 2121 was a very powerful man. Our fate lay in his hands. After beating Baimba to their satisfaction, they called me outside with the hope of getting some kind of information from me. I said, "I want to tell you the composition of the NID. It is not meant for the health workers, but for the population and our children". I told them that our National Coordinator for NID was S.U. M. Jah and the Social Mobilisation Coordinator was A.O.D George. "If you say it was wrong for us to have followed Boss Boss, I would like you to know that we did so because we felt we needed an opinion leader like him for the programme to succeed". I told them that if they wished to have any information from us they should call us one by one to get the facts. Then Mosquito asked what I meant by the adducing of evidence. I said "if you want to investigate." To my greatest surprise, a soldier that was paid by the government, Lt. Batiloh said that everybody should go inside for Peter to talk to us. Then Mosquito said I should say that our coordinator was a Kamajor. I said I had not been trained to lie. If I lied my people would disown me and the government would also disown me. He asked which government. I said the government of the day. Then he said he was going to kill Pa Kabba and wash his hands in his blood. We went and he gave me cigarette to smoke and asked me to say the truth. I said the same thing. He said I was stubborn. He said once I did not say the truth, he gave command to people with rubbers to flog me. I was beaten. Then all of a sudden, he ordered them to stop. He said I was blessed and that I had covered all the others. He said that he received a message from Foday Sankoh to release us. I saw eight masks and soko bana devils; they cut their tongues and removed their eyes. They had their own empire and they had divided the country into two. When Sankoh came, we were not able to come outside. He came with two helicopters and some international people. I tried to force my way so that if anything happened I could find my way out there. When I thought of the dungeon, I thought he would put me there so that the international people would not know about me. That was the first time I met Fayia Musa, Palmer and Deen Jalloh. We were asked whether we were given food to eat. I said we were given rice and okra. We were given food at 7:00 p.m. and they said if we wanted to eat we could. It started to rain and I asked what had happened; Fayia Musa said I had been called by the Pa. They sat on the ground. At night, I was sleeping and heard Fayia Musa, Deen Jalloh and Dr. Barrie. It was not long after they went that one MP soldier came to us and said they had been freed. The Pa said we should forget about the organisation and that he was prepared to sponsor us to any they want to go. They came and shouted, "Boss Boss the Pa wants to see you." I said we should all go but they said that Sankoh wanted to see only one person and that was Boss Boss. Then Boss Boss told me to wait for him and after a while he returned. Before he went there, he was shouting. I told them that Sankoh and I were in Segbwema. He said we had been freed. I said we could not move in the night. I told them that the rebels had tactics and Mosquito would order his boys to kill us. I said these boys have all types of tricks. In the morning, Sankoh came to do his rounds and stopped by the hospital and then visited the office where we were. He said henceforth whoever had committed rape or killing should be freed. He said, "My people, the people of Sierra Leone freed me when I was in prison. There I used to pump. Now I am going to free everybody. I want to show you what you should do". He ordered everybody to pump. After that everybody was asked to come out of the court. If you stayed there, he would be killed. He took out money and Tom Sandy went and grabbed it. We were given a letter of release which, unfortunately, I do not have here. I have forgotten it. The day Foday Sankoh arrived when they were changing shift he said he lost Le1 million. One Captain was arrested and stripped naked. They suspended him over fire while they beat him up. All the persons I am naming now molested me and I suffered greatly at their hands.

Major Gen. Sam Bockarie (Mosquito)

Mr. Coomber

Mr. Momoh Rogers

Mr. Tom Sandy

Lt. Batiloi; he is still in the army and he is now a Captain. I want the Commission to note that if we want to have sustainable peace these people should be brought to justice.

S.S Williams (Liaison Officer);

Alhaji Kuyateh;

Col. Amara.

People were afraid to mention their names. When talking of those who organised something, think of the Chief Security of the RUF, the people who used to tell us about security consciousness; he knows of all what I went through (Sam Koroma)

Chairman Bishop Humper: Thank you for being so clear and to the point, I would ask my colleagues if they have any questions for clarification.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: When you were proceeding to Buedu on your way to Dodo Kortuma you listed a number of persons you met, Dr. Barrie and who else?

Peter: Sam Bockarie, Mr. Coomber, Momoh Rogers, Tom Sandy, Lt. Batiloh (SLA), S. S Williams, Alhaji Kuyateh, Col. Amara.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were working for the NID?

Peter: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were trying to tell us that you were unable to carry out your job?

Peter: It was not successful because of their interruption. It did not work.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Since those times do you know of any follow up to immunise the children?

Peter: We came back in November when we realised that nothing had been done and so we started moving in the District to do the jobs.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: How did you get to know about the dungeon?

Peter: The dungeon was behind the cell and we saw how they manipulated their affairs.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You gave us a story which indicates that your opinion was respected.

Peter: He was trying to brainwash me but I was able to read between the lines.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What happened after he released you?

Peter: We were given a letter of release. Before that the four men who escorted us from Buedo the day Mosquito sent for us from the court sent word to us that within 12 hours we should return to Buedo at night. That was the time Foday Sankoh was to travel. Someone is here who is related to Paul Baimba who gave us 2 Liberian boys to take us on the road. We passed through Kailahun and went to Gaama where we slept. We went through Flawahun unto Pendembu. On arrival, Boss Boss asked us to go by canoe but then I refused. I said "over my dead body". I said if we entered the canoe, Mosquito would tell his boys to dump us. I told them that I had my passport which said anybody who molested us would face the consequences of the RUF. At that point we were free to go back to Segbwema if we so wished. I went through Pendembu to Beudo. We walked and passed through Kwiva. We had wanted to use another road, but we were afraid of the landmines. As we reached Daru, we presented ourselves to Ecomog. We were taken to Maj. Okwonko. He said he was going to Freetown. I said I wont go because our feet were swollen and if we were taken to Freetown they would televise us.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You escaped the RUF?

Peter: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs. Jow: Were you travelling from Freetown to Kailahun for the NID exercise?

Peter: We were told that they had sent a message to the RUF.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did they give you a copy of the letter?

Peter: No. When we reached at Mano junction they asked us to continue.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Where do you stay?

Peter: I am staying in Kailahun.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know where the dungeon is in Buedu?

Peter: Very well.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know Lt. Batiloh?

Peter: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You had a pass when you were intercepted did you show the pass?

Peter: Yes Sir, we started showing it from Tombola.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know if the people whose names you mentioned are still alive?

Peter: I cannot delve into that. If they are alive I can identify them.

Chairman Bishop Humper: The Commission will pursue this. We will take it very seriously as these people are very important to us. For the four days you spent in Daru did they give you food to eat?

Peter: Yes, we were given food in every village. We started suffering when we met Maskita.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You said the war was divided into two, do you want to tell me that Foday Sankoh had his and the RUF had theirs? What do you mean by two divisions?

Peter: You heard me. I said it was the first time I saw 8 masked devils and "soko bana" cutting their tongues and removing their eyes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Let us leave that. What are you trying to tell me and the audience after going through this experience?

Peter: It is difficult, the heart can easily forget, but the memory always remains. If you wronged me and you did not tell me openly that you have wronged me, honestly I will never forgive you. They have caused me some disability, my neck has some problems.

Leader of Evidence: I have one point for clarification. You said that when you saw the dungeon there was somebody near the hall of the dungeon, can you explain what the person was doing?

Peter: He was an RUF soldier and one of the architects. The person is Paul Baimba's uncle.

Leader of Evidence: Was he carrying a gun?

Peter: I did not see a gun with him.

Leader of Evidence: You saw the person interacting with the RUF?

Peter: He was a member of the RUF and he is here.

Leader of Evidence: Will you like to give the Commission the person's name?

Peter: Yes. His name is Senesie.

Leader of Evidence: For the benefit of the Commission, when last did you see these people? I am asking you to tell the people to come and give evidence to the people in Kailahun or Freetown.

Peter: C.O. Coomber.

Leader of Evidence: When last did you see him or hear about him?

Peter: Since I left that place, I have never enquired about him.

Momoh Rogers is in Pademba Road;

Tom Sandy used to live in this town;

S. S. Williams, I understand, is now in Kono;

Alhaji Kuyateh 2121, I was told, went to Freetown but he normally stays in Kono;

Col. Amara is in a village along the road leading to Buedu.

Leader of Evidence: Was it the duty of Ambush Commander to plan all the ambushes?

Peter: As I understand it, an ambush Commander plans ambushes.

Leader of Evidence: I am saying thank you and begging you to tell the people that had been named to give their evidence.

Chairman Bishop Humper: It is your turn to ask questions.

Peter: Before I start, I want to inform you that I had left one name out that is the Chief Security.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We have already got him at the closed hearing.

Peter: In as much as I had earlier defined the objectives and aims of this Commission, if I have the power I will support the Commission to stand strong. This country has turned into a place as one lady said "we are all cows in woreh". In the first place I am appealing for my health. The rebels destabilised me. In any country, when you talk about a government, you have organs that are responsible for the government. We have the legislative, the judiciary and so forth. The (Security) people that are going to guide us should be sober minded. I want the Commission to go all out to see that the stages of anarchy that we had gone through are wiped out of this country. Let the Commission ensure that nobody is above the law. Let the ex-combatants know that we swallowed bitter pills for peace in this country. Let them have this realisation. That is all I have to say.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We appreciate your coming and your contribution. You have helped the Commission to have some vital information. We hope that this recommendation will be taken seriously.

2nd Witness – Eric Koi Senesi (S.O. B)
Presiding Commissioner: Chairman Bishop J Humper
Mrs Aminata Jow
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Leader of Evidence: Ozonia Ojielo

Chairman Bishop Humper: We want to welcome you to this session today. I want you to know that you are one of the important persons we have here this morning.

My name is Emeric Koi Senesi. I am a Christian. The witness swore on the Bible. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

TESTIMONY

I am saying thank you to the Commission. It pleases me so much that I have been called to come and tell you what were my own activities and what I saw. Before the war, I was serving in my capacity as a Treasury Clerk. In 1991, on 23 March, we were in Mobai when we heard that the war had entered Bomaru. On that day, we were in a court proceeding. The court was adjourned. Chief Bunduka told us that he once heard that there was an organisation headed by Foday Sankoh which was coming to the country. We were in Mobai. After 2 days on the 3rd day the war was serious at Mobai. We saw government soldiers moving to Mobai. They said they were unable to withstand the rebels and they retreated. As they were repelled, they went to Mobai. On that particular day, some people were packing to move when the rebels attacked at Daru. Some people were telling us that they had started killing people at Daru. We saw people moving from Kailahun, they said the rebels had entered Kailahun. In the evening, I collected all my children and wife and we went into the bush. My first son called Fred and I came back to collect our mattresses. We came across rebels moving in large numbers. My son was captured and taken to town. We were in the bush for one week. My son went to inform us about a ruling that had been passed by the Chief that if we did not go to town they would kill us. We went to town and they asked for the educated people among us. The man I was assisting stood up and raised his hand and he was appointed as the speaker. They took them away and we later heard gun shots. We were asked to go back to our houses. They went and arrested the Paramount Chief, J.B. Bunduka. We were all gathered again and he was asked to present the chieftom money. He said he did not have money. He was arrested. They continued beating him together with his policeman. We saw them lying. Jiffa Massaquoi, Rambo and C.O. Mohamed Tarawally were the commandos at that time. That evening, they met me in my veranda and had my beard shaved. I was beaten up as they accused me of being a Government soldier. My son who was conscripted came and pleaded for me that I was not a soldier, and told them that I was a good artist. He told them that I could design for them if they wanted me to do it. They asked me if I was a good artist, I said yes. They asked me to go home. We stayed in Mobai for three months. They started looting Government properties and taking them to Foya. Dr. Kobba's properties and many others were looted. One morning, Government troops attacked us. I went to Sakama and I was there with my family for six months. Three soldiers came and asked for me and they said Sankoh was at home. My son and my wife cried but I told them to stop as we were being trapped. I decided to go. They were so worried that if I did not go I would be dead. I was taken before Sankoh. Sankoh brought a logo which represented their symbol. He wanted to get his logo drawn, a lion. Those in the office tried to design the lion, but they were unable. He asked whether I could draw the lion and I said yes. I asked him if he wanted me to draw a lion. He said sometime ago, a white man called Pedro da Cintra came to Sierra Leone in 1462 and he said Sierra Leone was a Lion Mountain and that was why they were using lion as their symbol. I told him that I was hungry and they gave me food. He said, "Young man, go ahead and when you are through, draw the lion". I can show the Commission the lion which I drew. I asked him why the war was brought. He said the war was brought so as to take people out of poverty. I told him that the war was too much for us, they were just killing our people. I had been listening to the radio and they had been talking about Top 20. When the Gio fighters came, they were asking our people to make juju for them so that they would not be hit by a bullet. At the war front, they looted freezers, tapes, etc. When the Gios were here; they were raping and committing all kinds of atrocities. They ate everything and the food got finished. After transporting everything, an announcement was made one day, in the morning hours about all those working for us. Mohamed Sankoh was fired and we were all afraid. No sooner had we ran away than all our properties were looted. They killed all Muslims there. That disturbed our people and they went to Sankoh and told him that they did not want those people. Then Sankoh asked whether they were able to confront them in battle and they said yes. It took about a month for the rebels to fight against those people. The Mende people got together and fought at night with help from the Poro Devil; they used a password to identify themselves. The Gios were unable to say the password. Anybody who said the wrong word was shot. Those who said the right word were embraced. I was living in Sakamo when NPRC took power. They started fighting against our people very seriously. We were then seeing our brothers running away from the war front. I collected my children and we moved to Yandehun. The people who brought the war to the country, Issa and Mosquito, were not educated. The educated ones were Rashid, Mohamed and others. We heard that one man called Janka had made arrangements to overthrow Sankoh. They were all killed. There were two men and they killed all of them at Gahun. They killed people who were from Gahun. That was the time when NPRC announced a cease fire and called the rebels out of the bush. The chief, the soldiers and Mosquito were in the bush. They planned that if the fighting was serious, they would send some people there. The testimonies people gave from Gahun were not a lies. They called about 75 of them and they were killed. The civilians had their children killed and some were held hostages while some were killed. They came and explained to us and advised me not to go. After they had kill them, in 1993, we heard that Sankoh and his boys had moved to Garma along with Mosquito and Mohamed Tarawally. Sankoh ordered them to fight the soldiers so that they could find their way through. Sankoh was taken to Zogoda and people used to carry food for them. I used to see them, but I did not go there. In 1994 and 1995, at the time they killed most of our brothers in Buedu, our brothers attacked the soldiers and repelled them to Buedu. After that, my people and I went to a town called Baama. Fayiah Musa, Basah, Din Jalloh and Philip Palmer were all national delegates. My family moved to Buedu. It was at that time that the movement was called to sign a peace treaty. Whilst in the bush, those of our brothers who represented us connived with the SLPP and Philip had announced that he was then the RUF leader, not Sankoh. There and then they sent a message for Philip to come and organise the movement in order to remove Sankoh. When they came back, they arrested them. My colleague mentioned a place called the dungeon. After those brothers came from Freetown that was the time Mosquito ordered me to dig a hole which was very deep. They put a long ladder in it. There was a cell in it. On top of it, was a house. That house which was built over the hole was referred to as Cell no. 1. If anyone was caught stealing he was sent to jail 1. If anyone committed any crime that demanded killing, they were sent down the hole. If they committed any serious offence, they were put in the jungle. They were charged first with the offence of sabotage. We were among them as we were educated. Those men were in the dungeon for a long time. We who were educated people got together and pleaded on their behalf and mosquito consented. They were not killed. By the time Sankoh was coming somebody mentioned that I was an architect but I was not. The person who was actually the architect was called Mohamed Tarawally. I am a very good artist. If you say look at this and draw this I will do it. I moved to Panguma that was the time AFRC took power, on Sunday, 25 May 1997. I was then in Panguma. At that time Sankoh ordered that the SLA and the RUF should live as one people then he was in Nigeria. We were all moving together with the SLA. I heard people saying that the Kamajors had arrived. They told us that me, the artist, and our judge who were not trained as fighters would be given an ideology training. They trained us and the training comprised pieces of advice. Now that everything had come to an end this document contains what we were trained on. (Submits document.) The tuition included the way we should interact with the soldiers. After that when the Kamajors were in Kailahun and those were arrested, I saw Mosquito together with Issa and their boys. We heard one morning that Mosquito had ordered the killing of the Kamajors. On 15th December, 1999, I heard that Sam Bockarie had left this country, but what actually prompted his trip? I will explain to the Commission. Before he left, that was the time when Sankoh was released and made Minister of Natural Resources in the country. At that time, when the RUF were driven, Sankoh ordered Mosquito to disarm to Ecomog. The attacked they launched to drive the Ecomog was led by Issa Sesay. At the time he went he had got a piece of land in Kono. Then Sankoh ordered Mosquito that we should disarm to Ecomog. Issa trained a lot of his people. When Sankoh ordered Mosquito to disarm, he refused and said the Ecomog are their enemies. Issa then wanting power, told Sankoh that he would go and get Mosquito's head. Since they had signed the peace if Issa said he was going to fight against us, it would not be possible. He said good bye to us and went to Liberia. When he was going he swore that he was going and that the person who had struggled most. If I stay here to fight among ourselves it will be like the war in Liberia. He said that after he would have gone, anybody who continued to fight would never benefit out of the war. We had a radio station called Radio Freedom. Mosquito took along that radio station. All those things we had at that time that we should benefit from, he took them away. At that time, the MSF people brought medicines and he took them away. I had it in mind that if you live in a country with war, your people will ask you what you went through. I was really a humble servant under them. Any time they bought T-shirts, I did the designs on them. I do not think that anybody in this district will ever say I held a gun to go to the war front. Let nobody deny that any adult living here was given a gun for enemies. We were not sent to the war front. Before the Indians came, Sankoh gathered everybody in Pendembu and said we should then have peace. Sankoh said the war was over and, for that reason we were to form political parties in the country. They said we should look amongst our children for an educated person to be the chairman. Two of my sisters and three chiefs said that I had observed this for a long time. "You have never punished anybody and so we want you to be our Chairman". One of them proposed George Mansaray who in turn spoke to me. "You are saying I should be the leader do you have money to pursue it", I asked. By then Mosquito had taken the money away and I did not think Issa would be able to disburse money. They said for the sake of peace, I should accept it. My daughter was in the bush and she was not educated. Those Gio fighters asked my eldest son to carry loads for them and he was drowned in a river. They said I should be the party chairman and I consented. Three of us contested that position and the chiefs got together and talked to the others to step down for me. I am working in the party for the sake of peace. We and the UN officials (Indians) were best of friends. Anytime we played foot ball they gave us plenty of items. Then we heard that Morrison Kallon and Bayo had been attacked. The CSO at that time was called Martin George. Everybody, including the chiefs told us that we should arrest the Indians. We had two command structures; the political wing and the military wing. When they fought at the other end we in Kailahun did not fight. One morning, they just flared up in the town. All factions took up arms. I and others went to them to apologise and told them not to fight but they drove us away. At that time, all those beautiful items the Indians had, they wanted to loot them. I was standing and witnessing them as they took the Indians away. They took them to a house and said we had plans for peace in the country. They asked all their commanders to come forward and they did. As they arrived, Martin George stood up and said they were all under arrest. We went away and were very discouraged because the Indians had a lot of weapons and we thought they would fight back. Martin George arranged for them to be taken to Ngiema. They were drinking water and lying on the floor. Then I went to Martin George and said the organisation, UN, is not a national issue. They said I should move off the site. They were moving with their vehicles up and down, playing music. They also arrested a helicopter. We pleaded and they released the helicopter. They looted all their properties. They brought them to Kailahun again. Their commander thanked me for making efforts to bring them to Kailahun. They were staying at the barracks and were not allowed to move. I wrote a letter and signed it. When it was given to Martin George he refused to sign it. This was the letter I wrote at that time but it was not signed by Martin George. (Submits letter.) After that, a letter was written against me to Issa that I had told the fighters not to fight. Issa ordered us to report to him in Makeni. That night my brother told me that I was going to be killed because I refused to fight. That night I escaped and stayed in Makeni for two weeks. One morning, I heard that they had taken my brother to the war front and he had been killed. I moved with my chairman and went to Freetown. No money was there to campaign for the elections. We sold a cow and the money we had at that time was used to hire one vehicle. When we were coming from Freetown, I asked him for the manifesto and the constitution. He said "young man just go and arrange whatever you want to". I told the chairman that those people had just disturbed our people. We had been here and my people asked me to switch over to the SLPP. All of us are fully aware that we are SLPP. To end it all, if you do anything you must be able to explain it. There is no civilian in this District that can say I looted his goods from him or her. If there is any one let the person come and say it. The time I joined the war, I was a sober person. I do not drink or smoke. If there is anything that I did and did not explain, please ask me and I will explain.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You agree that you are a witness and perpetrator and victim?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You are the Chairman of the RUF. You give us the reason for doing that. Do you agree?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You did say that you were educated. I want to know your level of education.

Mr. Senesie: GCE, A Level and external examinations.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: During your studies, did you do History?

Mr. Senesie: Yes, I did history.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you read the Green book of Ghadafi.

Mr. Senesi: I used to hear about it. I read the book during the war.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: What was your rank in the army?

Mr. Senesie: If you are an elder and you were working for the Revolution, there were ranks they referred to as local Commission and we were given that and I was called captain.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from designing the logo, what else did you do for the RUF?

Mr Senesie: That was my only work. They were only calling me to draw or give advice.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You never stayed in a camp?

Mr. Senesie: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You explained a number of atrocities by the RUF; did you yourself commit any?

Mr. Senesie: No, I did not commit any.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: As an educated person, did you try to stop them.

Mr. Senesie: Yes, we used to say it at meetings, but they were not prepared to listen. They were drug addicts.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You said you were taken to a base for ideology training; how long were you there?

Mr. Senesie: We spent two weeks there and then they gave us a paper and we trained the others.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: This is my final question; you should pay for whatever you take. You did not destroy houses, but you had a gun?

Mr. Senesie: I had a gun, but did not fire the gun.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: I join my colleagues to welcome you for coming and sharing your experiences with us and I really do not have many questions for you; only one or two. Looking back now on the whole period from the time you met Foday Sankoh and now, do you say that you were forced to stay with the RUF.

Mr. Senesie: Yes, I was forced.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: After the approval of your first drawing and the compliment given by Sankoh himself, did you not decide that this was an opportunity for making up your mind about working for Sankoh or RUF?

Mr. Senesie: I took it to be a kind of opportunity for me because we had nowhere to go.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Are you trying to deceive us from your explanation?

Mr. Senesie: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: The people will not forgive you if you do not say the truth. Do you look forward to a permanent relationship?

Mr. Senesie: Initially, it was by force but with conditions offered to me, I accepted it.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You were advised by your Paramount Chief and relatives to take up appointment with the RUF.

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: What was the motive behind that?

Mr. Senesie: I accepted the offer for the sake of peace because I knew that if I was in power I would bring peace to my people.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you not term yourself as over ambitious?

Mr. Senesie: You said I should speak the truth, I was hoping to rob them off.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you mention that you got a certificate from Madam T-shop. Do you know the history?

Mr. Senesie: I have not been there. It was a correspondence course.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Thank you very much, you are along the path; I want us to go straight. Have you heard of the expression in Mende "Tongbo"? Where do you live?

Mr. Senesie: I live in Kailahun.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you want to be at peace in Kailahun?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you know that your people know you more than you know yourself?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You were forced to become a rebel, a perpetrator, now listen to me, do you know ashobi, you are RUF and part of the ashobi?

Mr. Senesie: Yes, thank you very much.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You know and want to tell us that you and your brothers did atrocities in this country?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Are you happy that you lost your educational opportunity.

Mr. Senesie: No.

Leader of Evidence: You were RUF Commander in Pandaru?

Mr. Senesie: Yes

Leader of Evidence: As MP Commander, you were responsible for military section?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You were also involved in the civilian community and you sent people to work in your farm?

Mr. Senessie: No, I did not send people to work in my farm. I have my sisters and children with me.

Leader of Evidence: As a Commander, you had a cell for detention?

Mr. Senessie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Pandaru is a small village, there was an MP there who takes them to Kailahun.

Mr. Senesie: I was not a Commander in charge of Pandaru, there was an MP in charge of the area.

Leader of Evidence: People were punished under your command. Is that correct?

Mr. Senesie: I did not witness that happening to anybody and did not allow that at all.

Leader of Evidence: How old is your daughter whom you introduced to the Commission?

Mr. Senesie: 1982 – 21 years.

Leader of Evidence: So she is 21 years.

Mr. Senessie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Tell the people of Kailahun where you got the roofing materials from.

Mr. Senessie: I got the materials when we were in the political party. I got them from Kenema.

Leader of Evidence: Did you not get the materials from the people?

Mr. Senessie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know Col. Peter Vandy?

Mr. Senessie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: He is your son-in-law?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: When did he marry your daughter?

Mr. Senesie: He married her in 1997.

Leader of Evidence: How old was your daughter when she got married?

Mr. Senesie: She was 15yrs old when she got married.

Leader of Evidence: What was Peter Vandy's position in 1997?

Mr. Senesie: He was a vanguard.

Leader of Evidence: Do you want to say that because of promotion you gave your daughter in marriage at an under age?

Mr. Senesie: That was not it. Those people we are referring to as vanguards were very powerful.

Leader of Evidence: If there were threats, did it not apply to you?

Mr. Senesie: Yes the dungeon was free for everybody to go. The marriage between Peter Vandy and my daughter emanated from love.

Leader of Evidence: Somebody accused you in public that you took materials from them to construct your home and I refer you to Conduct 2 of your Code of Conduct, are you ready to pay for these things? Tell your people.

Mr. Senesie: If anybody could come out to say I took their roofing materials, I am prepared to pay for it, but I did not take any roofing materials. I did not take any material from Panderu to build my house.

Leader of Evidence: Were they under your control?

Mr. Senesie: No.

Leader of Evidence: The chiefs who begged you to become the Chairman, were RUF Chiefs, not so?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You said there were arms given to people in Kailahun to defend themselves?

Mr. Senesie: Like the PC said, they did not give them guns.

Leader of Evidence: Only those who were prominent were given guns?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: These principles of leadership, are they in your hands now?

Mr. Senesie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: In which year did you draft them?

Mr. Senesie: In 1994.

Leader of Evidence: Because you had a prominent position that was why Sankoh trusted you to draft this?

Mr. Senesie: It was not Sankoh, it was Augustine Gbao who had those rules and I copied them from him.

Leader of Evidence: Tell your people of Kailahun the Commission has a meeting with the Paramount Chiefs and these chiefs will accept the people in the community. Those people were to be expelled from the community. The chiefs are saying that people should tell them the truth and they have assured the Commission that he who speaks the truth will be welcomed with open hands. For you and everybody else testifying today, this is a wonderful day to come with an open mind to say the truth. Your people know the truth so I cannot protect you. It is your choice. If you want to tell them anything this is your chance.

Mr. Senesie: They are our parents since the time when we were not rebels. It was nobody's intention to have war in Sierra Leone. If it has happened this way, and they escaped, we want them to have mercy on us. We have now stood firm to see that never again would we have war in this country. They are our people, let them have mercy on us. It was not our fault that we were captured by rebels. I am asking them to accept us as their own children and we will cooperate with them. They knew that some of us had never committed any crime against them. If any crime should come to this country because of war, let them forgive us.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What we are expecting from you is for you to name your atrocities one after the other in order to free your mind.

Mr. Senesie: I am telling my people that all the atrocities done in this town were caused by us; we have burnt down our peoples houses, we killed them and people were beaten.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What recommendations can you give us?

Mr. Senesie: All what had happen in the country is beyond expression. It has happened, let them help us as we have started. Let them think about the children, they are not educated. If they accept us again and we have employment facilities we will help support our people better. Please think of us.

3rd Witness – Saffa Kpulun Ngobeh

Presiding Commissioner: Chairman Bishop J Humper
Mrs Aminata Jow
Commissioner Professor John Kamara
Leader of Evidence: Ozonnia Ojielo

My name is Saffa Ngobeh. I am a Muslim. The witness swore on the Koran. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

TESTIMONY

I used to be a business man. In the first place, we saw soldiers from Freetown coming to the border. We asked them what had happened. I went to Batoma and cleared my store. I had 150 bags of rice in the store. I had 15 drums of palm oil and I gave 12 drums to my wife to take to Freetown. After she had left I came to Mogopa and told him that the price of coffee had dropped. We closed down the store. When I arrived, the soldiers in the Banya compound invited me and said they had sent to call me. We received a letter saying that we brought the rebels. I asked them what rebels were. They arrested me and tied me. They got a vehicle, moved to my store and looted my rice. This was the kind of thing the rebels did. I told them that I was a business man. Whilst I was tied up, they ask me for Mogopa and Iye Gbao. These soldiers boarded the vehicle and they had information that Iye was tied up for the rest of the day and night and was released at four o'clock. They then freed me and had one soldier called Batoma who used to come to my store. They asked them why they had tied me up and the soldiers said we had been feeding the rebels. "Since we are here he has been feeding us" one of them said. I will show the mark to the Commission. When they loosed me, they ordered me to go home. All the soldiers withdrew and the town was in the hands of civilians. After they had looted all my rice and palm oil, at 5:30 we had gun shots in the town. My wife was not here. I had seven small children and they locked them up and fired through out the night. As soon as we opened the door I ran into a rebel and they arrested me and tied me. I was taken to the District Council and I stayed there for some time. They asked if I was employed by the government and I said no. They asked for the soldiers and I said I did not know their whereabouts. I saw my children moving towards the street and I called them and they told me that they had looted everything in the house. I took them to the village. One of my sons, Abu, went and untied me. He is dead now. I led them to Sembeyam. They told us that the person who brought the war had come and he had a message for us. I did not attend the meeting. After some time we saw people come to our village and surround us all. They said they had come to protect and defend us. "Our leader is Sankoh and is a citizen of the country", they said. They allayed our fears. That was what I suffered through out the war.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Your statement is very short and very rich. According to me, it seems as if you are coming from a ruling house.

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell the Commission whether you were active?

Mr. Ngobeh: In what way? Yes we were to work for them or serve them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: You were with them from 1991 to 2000?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us what you did for them?

Mr. Ngobeh: I was made the chief hunter in this town. We were hunting animals for them.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from hunting, did they give you loads to carry for them?

Mr. Ngobeh: We were not able to loot anything for them. They used to ask us for what they wanted. We got coffee and other items for them. We were here without medicines. Two of my children died because of lack of medication.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: We want to know how you acquired the produce.

Mr. Ngobeh: There are so many produce farms. We were going into peoples produce farms and harvesting. If you could not fulfill their request, it was problem. We had suffered once in their hands, we could not sit by and allow them to punish us again.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I want to know Peter Vandy and Augustine Gbao, were you in some committees?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us some of the committees?

Mr. Ngobeh: The Chiefdom Committee – collected palm oil. We got together to tell Mosquito that those things they requested were not easy to come by. I was the chairman of the committee. Any time we met we were tasked to collect palm oil. We usually sat and organised that among ourselves.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you ever meet Sankoh?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did he give you any position?

Mr. Ngobeh: No.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did you advise him on certain issues?

Mr. Ngobeh: I did not sit with him for any conversation.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us the kind of advice you gave the rebels?

Mr. Ngobeh: We were advising our children the junior commandoes and others. We used to tell them that they should try to escape. It reached a time when they observed that our children did not go to the war front and we were detained.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you stay in Kailahun here throughout the period?

Mr. Ngobeh: No.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you aware of the story of the Kamajors?

Mr. Ngobeh: The time Sankoh came here and said the war was over, we were on the other side, and we went to brush our farms. We used to meet one another and talk. They used to go and sleep with me in my village. In two days' time, we heard that all the people who had entered should go back to Kailahun. I met my brother and asked him why and he told me we had been called by the MP. He said they were interviewing people and we could not tell the reason for the interview. They were asking to know whether we were Kamajors. They detained all of them. I went to Mike Sellu and Sankoh told us that the war was over. I was equally a commander and had not been called. Pa Sellu went to his own village. A man called Bayo called us and Sellu asked him why. "Those of your people that are here are Kamajors. They have answered that they are Kamajors," he said. I told him that he was not a rebel. We went into bitter quarrel. After 2 o'clock, we heard news that Bayo had moved to Mosquito and told him that all the people were rebels.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Did you establish courts?

Mr. Ngobeh: They had one with the MPs we used to call it war court.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You admitted that you are coming from a ruling house?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: From your explanation, we sympathize with you that you were a victim and later you became a perpetrator. You used to go hunting?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Chairman Bishop Humper: If you did not catch any animal, what happened?

Mr. Ngobeh: We were punished.

Chairman Bishop Humper: It is obvious that you harassed people to produce their coffee, etc. If not you were beaten.

Mr. Ngobeh: Because they were giving us quotas that was why we came together to form a committee.

Chairman Bishop Humper: In order to defend your life you became a rebel?

Mr. Ngobeh : Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell your people and the Commission why you decided to give testimony here today?

Mr. Ngobeh: I have come to speak the truth.

Leader of Evidence: How old are you?

Mr. Ngobeh: I am 60 years old.

Leader of Evidence: Was the Second World War finished before you were born?

Mr. Ngobeh: I was a little child when my uncle was sent to the Burma war.

Leader of Evidence: When did your uncle return from Burma?

Mr. Ngobeh: By the time my uncle went to fight in the Burma war we had white people as District officers.

Leader of Evidence: I want you to look at the people of Kailahun what do you want them to remember?

Mr. Ngobeh: My goodness.

Leader of Evidence: Do you want them to attend your funeral?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes, that is why I am still doing well.

Leader of Evidence: You were abducted by the RUF, but you later became a member of the movement?

Mr. Ngobeh: No, we were not part of the movement we were on the civilian side because we were captured.

Leader of Evidence: Even though you were on the civilian side you were a member of the RUF.

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You said there was a chieftom committee in the movement?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Which other committee was there?

Mr. Ngobeh: Besides the chieftom community, we had no other committee.

Leader of Evidence: You remember when the Indians were captured. The helicopter was there, did you enter the helicopter?

Mr. Ngobeh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you enter the helicopter?

Mr. Ngobeh: No, I did not enter the helicopter?

Leader of Evidence: This building we are using now what was it used for by the movement?

Mr. Ngobeh: We came here when Sankoh came to address us to tell us that the war was over.

Leader of Evidence: Where did he stay when he came here?

Mr. Ngobeh: I do not know.

Leader of Evidence: Do you in your innermost heart want to reconcile with your people?

Mr. Ngobeh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Now tell them the truth.

Mr. Ngobeh: I had no way of escape. We were asked to contribute coffee, etc. and we were not the owners of the plantation. If you refused to give them, you would be punished. I am appealing to the owners of the plantations if we are now alive today we used your plantation to save our lives. I am appealing to you, I am your brother. I am asking for forgiveness. I am telling the Commission that nobody here would say this or that is the kind of punishment I gave him or her.

Chairman Bishop Humper: I consider you as my father. I told you that you are a victim of the war. You suffered and because you wanted to save your life you had no option but to join the rebels. Nobody will come up here to say this is what Saffa did. You opted to talk in public and the Commission wants you to tell us the truth. I believe that you have something to tell all of us to help the Commission. Under normal circumstances, if such people were brought to you what would you do to them?

Mr. Ngobeh: We would tell the person who committed the crime to confess and we would forgive him.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Do you have any recommendations to make?

Mr. Ngobeh: I want to tell the commission that what has been done, cannot be undone. This has happened in Sierra Leone. I am talking for the hearing of the government, to help talk to the people for the kind of destruction that took place so that they can forgive us. We have children. Even my house was unroofed. I used to be a business man, but now I have nothing. The things that we went through some of our brothers did not live to tell the story. For the little children, we need education. Let government assist us.

TESTIMONY

Before the war in 1991 I was working in the Ministry of Education with the PRO called M.S Kamara who is currently in Freetown. I was working with him up to the time I started work for ACF; they were working under the Ministry of Education. I was the centre supervisor. We were moving round going to places like Daru collecting children. The white man I worked with was called Bruno he was the supervisor. My friend and I decided to move to Freetown. I was still attached to the Ministry. We came in contact with Alfred Sandi, Dr. Tongu and Justine Bangura at NACSA. We became friends. We were then moving and NASMUSS came up. We were sent to Kenema to serve there. We were sent to SAPA and the people got together and asked us to write a project. This was because our area was affected by the war. Alfred Sandy wrote the project and SAPA approved it. I moved and settled in Bamayo where they used to have Chromites. I had 300 children whom I looked after. Rebels came and attacked the village. We moved to Kenema. I had those children with me. After SAPA had supported us and Dr Ganda had left Kenema, the kids were in my care. We were at No.8 Kombema Road. Dr Ganda's brother John, left the keys with me. I was working and SAPA gave us 40 million Leones to buy beds and furnish the house. CRS and IRC started coming to our aid. Everybody knew about us then. My position was Chief Major of the Benhirsh. I was one of the pioneers. I registered it with the Ministry of Local Government under Fomba in Freetown. This chief passed away. We were then working and one day my friend told me that we should get a chairman. I told her that Dr. Demby was there with us and he never assisted the children, when they realised that money was coming in, they wanted to take over the project. We had a lot of quarrels, and then the election came up. I told them that even though my people are supporters of SLPP, I was not. They started accusing me in the street. After they had won, I came to John Benjamin in Freetown. We had a quarrel with Demby on the grounds that the SLPP had won, and as such he should wash his hands off the orphanage. When they went, I was present when those people wrote their project. I became frustrated. I had two children. It was difficult for me to get a job because they said I had insulted the President. I then made up my mind and went back to Kailahun. I heard that one of my sisters was killed in the war. I told her I wanted to go to Kailahun because we had no other option; we were eating bulgur. When we came, I was arrested and they accused me of being a spy. I went to explain to Mosquito in Kenema and Mosquito sent a message that if anybody touched me, he/she would be in trouble. I said I was to meet Boss Boss in Kailahun. I left my family in Kailahun. Then everybody had retreated and came here. I was here and I opened schools. I brought a lot of materials and books in 1999. I was then working and Mosquito became impressed with my work and he decided to elevate me and gave me a paper promoting me to the rank of Coordinator of Schools. I was here with educated people. They had no respect for people. I told Mosquito that as the country was a bit quiet, I really wanted the school business to go on. I told him that I would like those who were interested in education to start and that they should be disarmed. Any time they wrote their applications, even if they had guns, I used to put it to them that they should learn. At the time the war intensified, we opened schools in the bush. Any child below the age of 16 should not be a gun bearer. If I set eyes on them I would bring them to school. I said to him that I would like my teachers to go anywhere and be respected. He went and asked Issa and Hassan to sit together and make laws so that if any teacher or student was abused the perpetrators were liable to punishment. I proceeded to Kono and opened schools there. I also went to Makeni and moved back to Kono. The first commanders Daniel Opande did the roofing for us. Those schools were working under the community in Makeni. I started working with the UN. When the Bangladeshi troops entered there I received them in Kono. When the Pakistani troops entered Kono, I was working with them. I brought them to this town and they can attest to that. The two of us entered here with a UN flight to talk to the people so that what they did to the Indians would not be repeated. I was in Kono when the first disarmament started. On that day, I stood with some Paramount Chiefs and we were disarmed. Issa and I were staying together. One night, whilst we were in a meeting, he said the people should not disarm in Kailahun. I said that people had disarmed in all parts of Kono; he wanted Kailahun to have a war agenda. I went to the Pakistanis and told them, (Pakbat 2.); I ordered them to go and deploy in Kailahun. At that time, messages had been sent all over the place. My bothers sent messages to the meeting we held that night and I told them that we would never fight a war. When we entered there, things were ok. Many things happened that were good. I attended the Peace Accord in Nigeria. That statement made my brother to be confused. Obasanjo said that we should wait because we had refused to sign the Peace Accord. At his house, I told him that he did not know what had caused the war in the country. "As I have said here, we must sign the peace accord and we are going to sign it," I told Sankoh. We came and passed through Liberia. On arrival, we were not told to sign any cease fire. When we went to Gibril Massaquoi (we were seven in number) and we entered Monrovia. When the document was brought, he was cross with it but I had to talk to him because our people were suffering. There is one part in that document which says that Sankoh should stay outside the country until he was tired

Sam Bockarie
Issa Sesay
Morrison Kallon

Augustine Gbao. They killed a lot of people, they had the power.

The first thing I witnessed was the incident in which Kini K. Kallon was asked to go and call the SLA soldiers. When he went, they could only see him in Monrovia. He was brought here and I witnessed when they fired him.

I also witnessed when Kennie Kamal was killed.

A group of SLA soldiers came and they said we should fight together. They also said that people had spoken to the Kamajors; they were killed.

The orders were given by the four people. We had the vanguards and those people, we were told, brought the war. We had our radio station here and if you wanted anything to be done in Kailahun, they gave orders. If you failed to do it you will be punished. I use to tell them that all what they were doing was because they were not sensible and that a day would come when they would declare it. When they were doing those bad things, people were afraid of Mosquito. I used to tell them.

When the Indians came they said they wanted my house. I said I had my brother in Freetown, Mana Ngobeh, who was the owner and I would give them his address so that they could bring him here. I gave them the address the people went and brought my brother in a UN flight. The house was handed over to the Indians. The person in whose care the house was was Mana Ngobeh. Mana Ngobeh told them that he would give them the house. They started rehabilitating the house. The Indians came and were occupying the hospital and District Office. They actually came to disarm, but they had development programmes too. Issa Sesay had given instructions to arrest the Kenyans and Zambians in Makeni. Martin George called us at night and told us that he had received orders for these people to be arrested. I said that was not possible. He threw a challenge as to who had power. I used to stay with UN officials for the entire day, but I kept myself away from them on that day. They invited them to that IMC House. As they came, they arrested them. That annoyed me so much, they had guns. All their properties were looted. I used to quarrel with them, not knowing that they were going to be zealous. At 11:45, I was in my room and I heard them going upstairs, I was lying down looking at them. They arrested them all and tied up their hands. They were taken to Ngiehun. They came and looted all their properties. I told my people to move out as they were coming to fight. I told them that UN was not here to fight. At times I bought cigarettes which I sent to them. They had no beds, no clothes and they were just sitting there. The commander was called DWI. They sent one to go for a vehicle. In the morning, a message came from Makeni that they should gather all the people arrested and take them to Charles Taylor. The Indians started building their own trenches. They were packed like cows in there vehicle and taken to Martin George. As we moved, they were loaded in the vehicle. Alhassan Sesay said the people said we should take those people from Kailahun. I alerted Eric Senesie, late Mayaneh, late Boneh and S.K. Ngobeh. I boarded the vehicle and Eric had a bike; he was afraid and chased them unto the border. I met Issa there. As we met them they asked to go and pack up our luggage. I told him that those commanders that had looted those properties had made a lot of money. I was transferred to Kono because they used to say that I usually gave them hard time there. They rented a house for me from one Mr. Jalloh. I stayed there until the election issue came up. We realised that everybody had changed. I went back to Makeni to pack my luggage to go back to Kailahun. My brother gave me diamonds about 32 pieces. They used to strip us and check us. It was Gbao who did this. I opened my father's grave and put the diamonds there. Sankoh and I went to Freetown. We moved round the schools. Joan Vangerpan brought them there. I later had to give the pieces of diamonds to them. My brother has still not forgiven me for that.

Chairman Bishop Humper: You said Sankoh took you to the Ministry and the Ministry helped you?

Ms. Ngobeh: The ministry tried, they trained the teachers in this town through UNICEF. I only said to the ministry that I wanted to open a project for children and they accepted. If the Commission would like to see the place I will show them there. I want to open a day care primary centre. UN also had given me project proposals. That is the kind of work I am doing now.

Chairman Bishop Humper: When did you get in contact with the RUF rebels?

Ms. Ngobeh: In 1998 in Kenema.

Chairman Bishop Humper: What you have said here is that out of frustration you joined the RUF.

Ms. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I want to know whether you were aware of the sufferings inflicted on the people before 1998.

Ms Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us what you were doing before 1998?

Ms. Ngobeh: At the time I was moving the children to Daru, a lot of them were injured. They explained to us the kind of suffering they went through at the hands of the rebels?

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Did any of your relatives suffer any violations?

Ms. Ngobeh: We are too many in our family and most of them have died.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from your frustration, can you tell us why you joined the RUF?

Ms. Ngobeh: It was because of the atrocities committed, there was nowhere to go to.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Apart from school what other thing were you engaged in?

Ms. Ngobeh: Journalists used to come from abroad, strangers I used to cook food and entertain them. I was on the humanitarian side. Anything they wanted to do, they had regard for me. The civilians I met in this town were the people that had authority, especially Gbao he was a very wicked man. Anything they requested from the people, they made sure they were handed over.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Can you tell us how your school was financed?

Ms. Ngobeh: We were not paid salaries. Every child who went to school carried 1 cup of rice and 1 pint of palm oil and those were given to the teachers. If the teacher had a farm, the community would work for that teacher. We did not build any schools here. We used to build them in the middle of the bush. In Kono, the Pakistanis built the school for us.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Dedication and wealth took your profession?

Ms. Ngobeh: I dedicated myself to the children.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: From the document from the RUF, they were praising you for what you did.

Ms. Ngobeh

I was not dedicated to the RUF I was dedicated to the children.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: Do you know about the operations of the RUF (diamonds in Kono)?

Ms. Ngobeh: They had a mining office in Kono. They had a mining commander. Nobody was allowed to set eyes on diamonds. If you tampered with diamonds they would kill you.

Commissioner Mrs Jow: I am interested in the situation of women and girls during the war. Can you tell us about the atrocities caused by the RUF on women?

Ms. Ngobeh: It used to happen before we were here. When we came, we had political parties and they never did it again.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You accepted the RUF? Do you want to tell us that the former VP Demby was responsible for what you suffered?

Ms. Ngobeh: He has made my children not to be educated. I divorced my husband. We met at the Peace Accord and I was not afraid to tell him. I went to talk to him just for him to see me. I again told the President of Nigeria.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You have known Dr Demby and you objected for him to be Chairman. Before you objected was there not something between you and the former Vice President?

Ms. Ngobeh: I was in the same street with Demby. He saw me with those kids and he never gave help but when he noticed that money was coming in, he wanted to be Chairman.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Were you part of the RUF delegation to Nigeria?

Ms. Ngobeh: Yes.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: If you had not been fully admitted to the organisation, would they put you in the delegation?

Ms. Ngobeh: RUF noticed the way I worked and because of my popularity with the children recommended me. They said if the team did not comprise of any female representative it would not be complete. I knew where I was coming from and where I was going.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: You accepted to be with them for some personal gain?

Ms. Ngobeh: No, this was my home and they said that the war was over. That was why I came here to do my project.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: Do you want to tell me that you will enter into relationship with somebody who is dangerous to you?

Ms. Ngobeh: They used to arrest me and take me to prison. The war was a little bit civilised then and for them to grab somebody to say they would kill him/her would not have been easy.

Commissioner Professor Kamara: If you see thieves and you know that if you join them you will all be punished will you go there?

Ms. Ngobeh: No.

Chairman Bishop Humper: It is important that you have come to us. I will ask you a few questions. In 1996 when Dr Demby was VP, what were the issues raised between both of you?

Ms. Ngobeh: The issues between the VP and myself took place before he became VP.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Did you receive any personal protection from any of these key people in the RUF?

Ms. Ngobeh: When they realised that this area was my area all of them protected me and when they explained the good things I did, he grew to love me so much and developed interest in me. We had no other relationship. The commanders usually said that I was the papay's wife. He proposed love to me, but I refused because he had so many girl friends and I am very jealous.

Chairman Bishop Humper: Are you saying he loved you and the people welcomed you everywhere you went?

Ms. Ngobeh: My people love me so much. If they had not loved me, I would not have been here

Leader of Evidence: You said you opened schools in areas controlled by the RUF. Will it be right to say you believed in the RUF?

Ms. Ngobeh: This is not a matter of belief. I came to my town and I came along with a project.

Leader of Evidence: So all these projects were implemented in RUF controlled areas?

Ms. Ngobeh: I was driven from the place where I first started.

Leader of Evidence: Will it be right to say that you were saying that you are willing to die with the RUF in Mr. Combay's bar? I am talking about last night?

Ms. Ngobeh: RUF has disappointed me already, because the leaders that were left behind could not do anything. If they had not killed and the leaders were mature enough I would have supported them.

Leader of Evidence: What party did you campaign for in the last elections?

Ms. Ngobeh: I did not campaign. My brothers came and told me to leave the RUF party. When election day came my brothers refused to let me vote.

Leader of Evidence: Which of the prominent people in Kailahun joined the RUF and were not members?

Ms. Ngobeh: I have not been attending RUF meetings any more. If I was, I would have known.

Leader of Evidence: We understand that you say you were in RUF because you were a member of the RUF?

Ms. Ngobeh: You cannot say because I was a member of the RUF I am in the party.

Leader of Evidence: You told the Commission that you came to Kailahun because there was a cease fire?

Ms. Ngobeh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Which cease fire were you referring to here?

Ms. Ngobeh: The Lome Peace Accord.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the RUF commander in the North after the Lome Peace Accord?

Ms. Ngobeh: I cannot say much on that because I was in Kailahun.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the commander in the East?

Ms. Ngobeh: Sam Bockarie.

Leader of Evidence: Before the Lome Peace Accord, where were you staying?

Ms. Ngobeh: I was in Kenema.

Leader of Evidence: Can you look at the appointment letter and tell the Commission what date is on it?

Ms. Ngobeh: Yes, 2nd July 1999.

Leader of Evidence: Was the Lome Peace Accord signed by then?

Ms. Ngobeh: 7th July 1999.

Leader of Evidence: Before the Lome Accord, the RUF was rewarding you as Coordinator of Schools for services rendered?

Ms. Ngobeh: When they said everything was over, we went back. When I came to Kenema, I had no way, so I returned.

Leader of Evidence: The war has ended, but you need to say the truth to your people. What led to that? By the time they went to the war front civilian commanders were here and the soldiers molested them. What were civilians doing at the war front if they were not gaining from that?

Ms. Ngobeh: Everybody had his own problem. If you try to hide and you are caught you would be punished.

Leader of Evidence: Do you assume that you were collaborating with the RUF? Because of all what you did you were made a Colonel of the RUF. Is that right?

Ms. Ngobeh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know Patrick Banya?

Ms. Ngobeh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What was the role of Patrick Banya?

Ms. Ngobeh: When I came here I was told that he was the High Court Judge.

Leader of Evidence: Who sewed the robes that Patrick (the red gown and cap) used to wear in court?

Ms. Ngobeh: I did not see Patrick preside over any case here.

Leader of Evidence: Is it true that you took people from Kailahun to Kono to disarm?

Ms. Ngobeh: No, the UN carried me to witness the disarmament.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the Commission what happened to your brother in Kono? Who was responsible for his arrest?

Ms. Ngobeh: I found him in prison. Out here, I took care of him. They wanted to kill him, but they were afraid when they saw me. He was maltreated and he said he wanted to go to his mother. He went to the mother and he died there.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the Commission your relationship with S.N. Ngobeh?

Ms. Ngobeh: He is my brother

Leader of Evidence: Was he not an adviser to Sankoh?

Ms. Ngobeh: He was not an adviser, but he used to talk to them as chiefdom adviser.

Leader of Evidence: Did your brother get close to Sankoh because of your relationship with Sankoh?

Ms. Ngobeh: I met him here in a committee looking after civilians. He was born here. His relationship with the RUF was even more established than mine. They were protecting the civilians.

Leader of Evidence: Was he in the committee working with the Kamajors?

Ms. Ngobeh: I was not here at that time.

Leader of Evidence: Did you have any involvement in the seizure of the NID programme's T-shirts and caps?

Ms. Ngobeh: I was sleeping when they told me that they had brought vaccinators. I went there and asked them their mission and they told me they had been arrested in Segbwema. They gave me his clothes to keep. We went and told mosquito that the fellow was our brother, but he did not listen to us. The following day, we went to Sankoh. They told us that Sankoh had gone to Liberia. When he came, they went and told him that Yawo was in prison. He ordered his release and I was taking care of him until he came back.

Leader of Evidence: Looking at the people, do you think you are ready for reconciliation?

Ms. Ngobeh: I know within my heart that with all this wrong doing in this war, nobody will say I had done anything to him or her.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We do not want to leave this place without you saying what you should say and without doing what you should do. I have a message for you but I want you to give a message to your people for the sake of the children. You did wrongs like all others, but you must acknowledge or accept. We are not forcing you to do so. Your people are just waiting for you to confess and say "I am sorry". As chairman, if I see you miss this opportunity you will never get it again.

Ms. Ngobeh: One thing I want to say is that when the war entered here, you should have come here to see. I fought for my people because my people had no power to do anything. I did not commit any crime. I know that at the end of it all, all will come to light. That was why I kept quiet so that people will praise me and I know that I have not committed any crime.

Chairman Bishop Humper: We thank you for your statement. The Commission will be inviting people who did wrong to make a statement at the slaughter house, but you will not be invited. There will be a group of people who will continue the Commission's work.

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARINGS IN KOINADUGU DISTRICT

DATE: 12th May 2003.

OPENING CEREMONY

Commissioners Present

- 1. Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones (Presiding)
- 2. Commissioner Sylvanus Commissioner Torto

Leaders of Evidence

- 1. Martien Schotsmann
- 2. Abdulai Charm

Rev. Osman Fornah(Regional Coordinator, North): Good morning to you all. We want to start this very important ceremony now that the Commission is here in Koinadugu. We want to have an official opening ceremony so that we can launch the hearings in the District. We also want to start by asking the presence of God. We are calling on Elder Santos to lead us in Christian prayers and that will be followed by Sheik Munnir Sesay who will be leading us in Muslim prayers. (Prayers were offered) We will now go to the statements. We want to begin with the First Gentleman of the District, the District Officer or his Representative. If he is not here, we will now get a statement from Rev. Alie Kargbo, Co-Secretary for the Inter-Religious Council, Koinadugu branch.

Rev. Alie Kargbo: Mr. Chairman, Commissioners and all protocols observed, it is with great joy for me to make a statement on behalf of the Koinadugu Branch of the Inter Religious Council, Sierra Leone(IRCSL). The IRCSL right at the beginning of this eleven years war, have been serving as a safe bridge to restore peace in the country and also in the sub-region. The Council fully participated in all negotiations, in and out of the country. Religious leaders prayed, fasted, offered counselling and conducted trauma healing workshops for the restoration of peace and law and order. Today the IRCSL has enhanced the TRC to promote and sustain lasting peace in Sierra Leone. I therefore crave the indulgence of the International Community, traditional rulers, religious leaders and all other Sierra Leoneans to fully cooperate with the TRC and IRCSL maintain this lasting peace in our beloved country, Sierra Leone. I am also calling on the Koinadugu community to support and cooperate with the TRC and the IRCSL. Thank you and may God Bless you.

Rev. Osman Fornah: Thank you very much Rev. Kargbo and the IRCSL. we may now call on Madam Yeabu Mansaray, to make a statement on behalf of the women of Koinadugu.

Madam Yeabu Mansaray: Commissioners and staff of the Commission, Traditional Rulers, Religious Leaders, Ladies and Gentlemen good morning. All of us know that when God created the universe, he created man and woman. And as women, we are the ones who are responsible for the multiplication of the human race. During the past ten or more years of conflict, we the women who gave birth to the good and bad children, suffered most. We saw during the war that most times when there was an attack, we the women are abandoned by the men to suffer with the children. Today, we the women of Koinadugu are happy and we heartily welcome and appreciate the coming of the TRC to this District. In order for the TRC to achieve its mandate, we are ready to fully cooperate and work with the TRC. We are going to do this by talking to our children, brothers and sisters, to come and testify to the Commission. We welcome you and we thank you for the good work you are doing and we wish you success in your endeavours.

Rev. Osman Fornah: Thank you very much Madam Yeabu. I will now like to call on the Resident Paramount Chief, who is the Paramount Chief of Wara Wara Yagala Chieftom, to make a statement.

Paramount Chief: Commissioners, Ladies and Gentlemen. Koinadugu formally and firmly support the work of the TRC as it is in accordance with wishes and expectations of the majority of this nation. I thank the President, Dr. Ahmad Tejan Kabba, Inter Religious Council, Britain, The United Nations and all those who helped in the restoration of peace in Sierra Leone. Koinadugu is one of the Districts most affected with over seventeen attacks on its Headquarter Town, resulting to a lot of atrocities. Sierra Leoneans therefore, deserve to know why and how the war came and how to deal with its consequences and move forward into a reconciled and peaceful nation. I am convinced and confident that the TRC will go a long way to setting the records straight. I thank you all for coming and welcome you all to Koinadugu District and Kabala in particular. I thank you all.

Rev. Osman Fornah: Thank you very much sir. I want to assure that the TRC will live up to expectation and we will not disappoint you and the people of Sierra Leone. We now call on representatives from the two leading political parties in the country. First, I will like to call on Mr.

Sheku Ibrahim Mansaray to make statement on behalf of the All Peoples Congress (APC).

Mr. Sheku Ibrahim Mansaray: Members of the high table and all other protocols observed; I say good morning to you all. The APC is one of the opposition parties and we are working in partnership with the ruling party the SLPP. As we are today to listen to the TRC, we have experienced a lot of sufferings and atrocities, particularly on our children. They country was destroyed and even Koinadugu District was not left untouched. As a responsible political party, we welcome the TRC and we pledge our support and cooperation with the TRC. We welcome you and we thank you for the good work you are doing to bring everlasting peace to Sierra Leone.

Rev. Osman Fornah: It is good to know that the opposition party is in support of the TRC and is working hand hand in hand with the Government to bring about lasting peace. Thank you very much Mr. Mansaray. I now call on the representative of the SLPP, Mr. Mustapha Sesay to make a statement.

Mr. Mustapha Sesay: Good morning everyone. I am happy to stand in front of you today. I say thanks to the APC, the Paramount Chief and to the TRC. I happy for this Commission and especially for coming to Koinadugu District to hold it hearings because they have come to let us understand more about what trnspire during the conflict. I want to wholeheartedly pledge the support of the SLPP in Koinadugu to ensure that the TRC achieve the goal it was created for. I thank you all.

Rev. Osman Fornah: Thank you for the support ou have pledged. The TRC have been working in close collaboration with the NGOs and they have been helping us in diverse ways. I therefore call on a representative from NaCSA to make a statement on behalf of the NGO community, Mr. Phillip Tondoneh.

Mr. Phillip Tondoneh: Good morning all. I take this singular honour to talk on the activities of the NGO community with respect to the TRC. The activities of the NGOs within this District is commendable towards the attainment of peace and reconciliation. Three months ago when the Commissioners came on the first sensitization visit, they met with NaCSA and other related agencies and we collaborated with them and today as I say this stage, it means they've been working very hard. One thing I want to bring to the notice of the Commission is that Koinadugu District is so unique in terms of everything. There are alot of risky groups and NGOs like the NCDDR, have held several workshops on peace promotion and reconciliation. We are happy that you are to see that justice is really step down in this District. The people are not opportuned with safe drinking water and most of of those who suffered during the, nothing has been done for them. A lot of destruction was done to this District and also there a lot of youths here who participated in the war but they have not gone through the reintegration process. Now that you are here, we believe your presence will have a positive impact on the Distrct. I thank you.

Rev. Osman Fornah: For the those of you who don't know about the workings of the Commission, I will like to tell you that there seven Commissioners; three internationals and four nationals representing the four regions in the country; North, South, East and West. As a result of the contingency of time and taking into consideration the mandated life-span of the Commission, the Commission have been split into two teams so as to be able to cover all the twelve districts in time. As one team is here, the other team is in Kailahun and that is why we are having two Commissioners here at present but the other Commissioner will be joining us tomorrow or there about to make it three. I want to take this opportunity to present to you the two Commissioners that are present in this hall today; the first is the Deputy Chairperson of the Commission, Commissioner Justice Laura Marcu-Jones. Next to her is the Commissioner that is responsible for the Eastern Region and he is Commissioner Sylvanus Torto. Having said this, it pleases me to hand over the microphone to the Deputy Chairperson, who is also the Chairman for this occasion.

Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones: Paramount Chiefs, Religious leaders, Colonel and other UNAMSIL officers, CPO and other police officers, Distinguished Ladies and Gentlemen; I bring you all greetings from the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. As you've been told a while ago, with me here is Commissioner Torto and our Chairman of the Commission is Bishop J. C. Humper and I am his Deputy. We have here with us in this Commission, our staff comprising the secretaries, the Transcriber, the interpreters and we have working with us as well Red Cross and nurses; all together will form the Commission here in Koinadugu where we are going to spend the next five days. I will like to mention also the media, they media have been nice with us and they have been moving around with us. I am asking you to be a little bit patient as I try to explain a little about the TRC because we are quite aware that even though we did sensitization, there are quite a number of people who don't know about the TRC.

This Commission is a child of the Lome Peace Agreement; you will remember that it was after the Lome Peace Agreement that we had peace in Sierra Leone and it was said there that there was to be a Truth and Reconciliation Commission. The Act setting up the TRC was passed by our Parliament on the 22nd February 2000. The main purpose of the TRC is to bring about peace and reconciliation. Our mandate is to create an impartial, historical account of all the violations of human rights and international humanitarian law during the conflict, from 1991 when the war started to 1999. That means that we are to write down and record all the violations that took place during the conflict. Also we are to address impunity and that means we are to bring to the fore, before people all the atrocities done so that people who committed them cannot just go away without being asked anything at all about their wrongs. We are asked also to respond to needs of victims, to find out what can be done about them and I must make it very clear at the very beginning here that we are not going to give money to those victims; but there will be other recommendations made to help the situations of the victims, to help their communities, to help their children in the future. Also we are asked to bring about healing and reconciliation. After the war, our minds are disturbed through all the sufferings and hardship; and what to do is to bring people together. People who committed wrongdoings and people who suffered; we are to bring about this healing and reconciliation not only on our own but also with the help of religious and traditional leaders. Also we are to prevent the human right violations and abuses experienced by the people of Sierra Leone. We are to try to bring about the situation where the war that took place will never happen again, again in Sierra Leone. The TRC will bring witnesses to tell their stories and when they have recounted all what happened to them, people in Sierra Leone will start talking about all the suffering and the hardship and they will have dialogue amongst themselves and then we hope that as reasonable people, Sierra Leoneans will then decide that never again should we have such a war in Sierra Leone. That is what the TRC is set to do.

The Commissioners were sworn in on the 5th of July 2002 and as the Coordinator told you, there are seven Commissioners. The seven are comprised of four nationals and three internationals. The three internationals; you have one from South Africa because in South Africa, there had been before a Truth and Reconciliation Commission and she [Commissioner Yasmine Sooka] is coming to help us with her experience from the South African TRC. Also we have another Commissioner who is a Canadian and he [Commissioner William Schabas] is skilled in human rights and he will be helping us in that area. And then we have a lady from The Gambia and she [Commissioner Satang Jow] has been a Minister of Education before in her country and she is coming too with her own expertise.

I want to make it clear that this TRC is quite different from the Special Court which I am sure some of you have heard of. The Special Court is here to bring about justice and they will indict just the very important people who've responsible for all the trouble and suffering in the country. Those people they will try, will not be many at all. Those people may be because of their leadership roles in the conflict or they themselves committed atrocities and they will be tried and they will be punished; they may be about 20 or 30. But our Commission, has nothing to do with punishment, we are not going to imprison anyone and I want you to get that clear. All we want is to hear the story, your experiences during the war so that the country will be able to find a path out of all its problems and a path which will lead to lasting peace.

If you have not made a statement before to the TRC and you want to make a statement, you can still do so in this building. There will be statement takers here who will take your statements, even though what we are here for now is for the hearing phase.

There are two teams doing hearings. While we are here now, another team is in Kailahun. When we finished this week here in Koinadugu, we're back to Freetown to do one week of Institutional and Thematic Hearings; i.e. institutions like the Army, Police or ministries or the SLPP or APC, they will come and make statement to the TRC. After our week in Freetown, we'll come back to the provinces. That is how we are going to operate; one week in the provinces and one week in Freetown. When we leave Koinadugu, we're going to Kenema and then to Moyamba, Kono and Bonthe, that is how we hope to cover all the provinces. Now I will tell about the procedure of the hearing when we shall have come to it proper. When come for the hearing, the hearings are going to be solemn occasions; that is, we do not want any clapping, laughing, booing, we just want you to listen. The witnesses who'll be coming to give their testimonies will be treated with respect; its a victim or a perpetrator. We're going to have public hearings in this same hall; later on today will start with the witnesses and this will go on for Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. But then there will be time when we'll have closed hearing and it will not be open to people. For the closed hearing, we'll be having women and children; people who suffered sexual abuses during the war. We'll listen to those people in private and we'll only do summaries of what the told us in a press briefing for the media because they may want to transmit what is going on for their various bodies. When the witness comes here to give testimony, the witness will take an oath to tell the truth and nothing but the truth and then will give testimony. After that Commissioners here will ask questions if they have any and the Leaders of Evidence, will ask questions too. After all those questions, if the witness has a question or questions for the TRC, the witness will allowed to ask and if the he/she has recommendations to make then he/she will make them. I must tell you that our closing ceremony will take place on Friday but will tell you the time depending on how close the hearings last. After our hearings on Friday, we'll have our closing ceremony and on Saturday, we'll be back on our way to Freetown. I want to thank all of you very much for coming and for being patient and for listening so quietly and I want to appeal to you to be as the hearings progress and help support the work of the TRC. The TRC belongs to all of you and what we all want is lasting peace in this country. We have now come to the end of this ceremony and we will go for one hour break and after that we'll start the hearings proper. Thank you.

WITNESS NO: 001

WITNESS NAME: Mamusu Mansaray

The witness was sworn on oath on the Bible by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY:

During the attack in 1999, I was in Forienaya Town. My father and brother were in the house whilst I was behind the house. My father asked me to get some rice for cooking. I was that when the rebels placed me under gun point. My father who was in front of the house, escaped. After I have been placed under gun point. I was raped, I was a virgin at that time, after the rape, they took all our belongings. They asked me to carry their luggage; others were captured alongside with me. They took all of us to Koinadugu. We were chained like slaves, we were taken to their base, upon our arrival, we saw lots of people, and some other girls were also raped.

The Commanders, who captured me were Super Man, Captain Bai Bureh, CO Kai, Capay and OK al right. OK al right took me as his bush wife. I was with them for six months. They looted people's properties and they raped the other girls who were captured. I was shot on my foot and they gave me some medication and I felt a little better. They traveled with us on to Freetown through Jui for the January 6 1999 invasion.

Luckily I met one of my aunts in Freetown, I told her that I wanted to see my parents. I asked her whether my parents were alive. I finally escaped with the help of my aunt. I was with my aunt for few days. After the situation had calmed a bit, I came back to my parents. I was pregnant; during the process of delivery I encountered a lot of problem. The child I gave birth to was a devil child. The child died. When I returned to Koinadugu I was suffered a lot, I then came in contact with a man and who impregnated me and he abandoned me; living the child with me. I am at present in serious constraint. I was a student in Loma Secondary School, I was in form 2 but I was unable to continue my education. I don't know what to do now. I am staying with my parents in Kabala.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - I thank you for sharing your experience with us, and for coming to help the TRC, to bring lasting peace in Sierra Leone. You say you are a little bit confused about the future. You have a lovely baby sitting on that table. If you are able to stand on your feet, and be your self, you will be able to take care of your child in the future. I am asking the Commissioners if they have any question for you?

Commissioner Torto - Thank you for coming, I believe your ordeal was painful but don't give up. I just want to make a few clarifications. Do you know your attackers?

Mamusu Mansaray - They were Super Man, Captain Bai Bureh, Komba Gundamah, OK al right, CO Kai and Capay.

Commissioner Torto - Do you know where they are?

Mamusu Mansaray - No.

Commissioner Torto - On your way to Freetown were there any other attack? Were other people abducted?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes

Commissioner Torto - What language do they speak?

Mamusu Mansaray - They were speaking in Liberian Pidgin English.

Commissioner Torto - What group did they belong to?

Mamusu Mansaray - They were RUF rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What happened to your house?

Mamusu Mansaray - On our way to Bambukoroh, I found out that my house at Forienaya was burnt.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where there people in the house?

Mamusu Mansaray - I was not around.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Are you the owner of the house?

Mamusu Mansaray - My father owns the house.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where is he now?

Mamusu Mansaray - He is in Forienaya.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You said that you were a bush wife, what happened to you when you were in the bush?

Mamusu Mansaray - We were there to satisfy their sexual desires.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How did you escape from the bush?

Mamusu Mansaray - I escaped in Freetown with the help of my aunt.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Was your bush husband with you in town?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where is he now?

Mamusu Mansaray - I don't know his whereabouts.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Why were you abandoned by the other man in Kabala?

Mamusu Mansaray - He said that he was not responsible for my pregnancy.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many of you were in the bush?

Mamusu Mansaray - We were about 20 in number.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where is your aunt now?

Mamusu Mansaray - She is in Kono.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Who are you staying with?

Mamusu Mansaray - I am staying with my mother and father here in Kabala.

Marcus Hones - Have you made any effort to enroll in any institution?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes I did attempt once at CES.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What was the result?

Mamusu Mansaray - I was trained in Gara Tie dyeing.

Marcush Jones - Why can't you pursue in that trade?

Mamusu Mansaray - I don't have the capital. We were given a loan after the training.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What did you do with the money?

Mamusu Mansaray - I was pregnant by then, after the process, I later credited the Gara, but people refused to pay the money.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you paid back the loan?

Mamusu Mansaray - I have paid some of the loan, and we were told to form a group to continue the Gara Dyeing.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - That's good. I cannot understand why you said you were worried, having formed this group and you have your parents with you, you can continue with it to sustain your child. You can live without a man.

Leader of Evidence - I am very sorry for the sufferings. How long have you been with the rebels?

Mamusu Mansaray - I spent one year five months.

Leader of Evidence - I can understand that you were in Koinadugu camp, why then did you go to Freetown?

Mamusu Mansaray - I spent six months in Koinadugu and then I was taken to Freetown.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell us how it was like when you were in the bush as a bush wife?

Mamusu Mansaray - I was not comfortable. I was always worried about my life and that of my parents.

Leader of Evidence - Were you beaten when you were in the bush?

Mamusu Mansaray - We were always punished when we refused to have intercourse with them.

Leader of Evidence - How many of them did you marry to?

Mamusu Mansaray - Only by one man.

Leader of Evidence - You sustained injury, was it during the fight?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Which other group was your captors engaged in battle with?

Mamusu Mansaray - I cannot tell.

Leader of Evidence - Was it a group of RUF, SLA, Kamajors, Donsos or ECOMOG.

Mamusu Mansaray - I cannot tell, it was a matter of survival.

Leader of Evidence - What happened to the other girls that were abducted with you?

Mamusu Mansaray - Some were killed. Others had their feet amputated.

Leader of Evidence - Where the other girls taken as bush wives?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - How big was the rebel group?

Mamusu Mansaray - It was a very large group.

Leader of Evidence - Were young boys and girls involved in the fighting?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Did you join the rebels when they go on attacks?

Mamusu Mansaray - We were always in the camp, when the rebels went on the offensive.

Leader of Evidence - Were children among the group?

Mamusu Mansaray - They were all adults.

Leader of Evidence - Were there women amongst the rebels?

Mamusu Mansaray - There were no women.

Leader of Evidence - Were they taking drugs?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes it was obvious as it gives them the zeal to commit atrocities.

Leader of Evidence - After taking drugs what did they do?

Mamusu Mansaray - They did harmful things like - killing, raping and looting.

Leader of Evidence - Did you witness all these?

Mamusu Mansaray - Yes, I witnessed these atrocities when we were in Freetown.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell us your present situation?

Mamusu Mansaray - I have pains all over my body and in my vagina.

Leader of Evidence - Did you seek medical attention?

Mamusu Mansaray - No I was taken care of by my parents at home.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What do you mean that your child was a devil child?

Mamusu Mansaray - The way the child was formed, she had lumps all over her head. I was afraid after giving birth to the child, and asked that they take her away from me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Did a Doctor examine the child?

Mamusu Mansaray - She died after birth.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - There was no one to tell you the reasons for the lumps all over her body.

Mamusu Mansaray - Somebody told me that it was because I was in the bush.

Commissioner Torto - You said that your bush husband, Gundama was a foreigner, what other languages were they speaking.

Mamusu Mansaray - They all spoke Liberian dialect.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Do you have any question for the commission?

Mamusu Mansaray - I am asking for help from the government or from any kind Sierra Leonean. I suffered during the war, I am appealing for help to further my education, and also for my house to be rehabilitated.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Mamusu Mansaray now that you've formed this group, you should try to pay back your loan, and if you wish, you may contact NacSA, and they could refer you to a group that may help you. We are going to include your questions in our record. Have you any recommendation to make to the government?

Mamusu Mansaray - I have said it all.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you very much for coming, you are much brave to come out and tell your story, people are listening, and they have heard your story.

TESTIMONY

In 1994 when the rebels attacked Kabala. I was in bed sleeping, they knocked at the door and asked us to open the door. We were asked to come outside. They threatened to burn my house. My younger sister was there with me, the commando was a Kono. So they spoke in Kono. She was pleading to them that they must not burn our house; she told them that she has lost her husband and that she has so many children. Later one commander, by the name of Squirrel, took my valise; emptied the contents on the mattress and poured petrol and burnt them. At that time we were sitting at the verandah with my aunt and her husband.

Squirrel placed a gun on my sisters' shoulder and shot at her, she fell down half-naked. Now she is deaf. A woman gave her her wrapper to cover herself and the commander ordered us to leave but we should not use the Makeni Highway. He advised that we used the swamp road, as the main road was not safe. At about that time, the Commander saw a small girl standing and he asked "whose child she is?" The woman he was talking to, claimed ownership of the child. He said that the woman was going to be her wife. But the mother of the girl pleaded that she was the one taking care of the domestic work in the house and she is the only daughter to her mother, the rebel said if they refused to let go of the girl he would kill them. He then took Le6,000 and one torch light as a dowry for the girl. He is taking her with him, and promised that nothing will happen to her. He gave the money to the sister of the girl. When they left us, we went as far as Makakura and then to Kamayimbo. That was on the third day. My aunt had the sum of Le1,000,000 which she had wanted to take to her daughter in Freetown, the money was in the house and everything was burnt down.

After my daughter had traveled for some distant, she realized that she had not seen her brother, so she came back to collect her younger brother. After that we all went to the Imam it was at night. By the time we came back home it was already daylight.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you for sharing your experiences with us. We are sorry that you have suffered so much. We are going to ask you a few questions. You said the rebels burnt your house. Who owned the house?

Foday Jawara - I owned houses which were burnt.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Who owned the Le1, 000,000 that was missing?

Foday Jawara - My aunt, she is presently in the house. She is suffering from deafness. It was as a result of gunshots.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where are you living now?

Foday Jawara - I am in Kabala, I managed some burnt zinc to restructure my house.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Do you know Squirrel's real name?

Foday Jawara - I can't tell his real name. He is called Squirrel and he is a born of Kabala.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where is he now?

Foday Jawara - I heard that he is dead.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - So you've never seen him since after the war?

Foday Jawara - I don't know his whereabouts.

Commissioner Torto - Thank you for coming, I want you to clarify some issues both in your verbal and written statements. Do you actually know the names of your attackers although you were attacked at night?

Foday Jawara - I cannot tell their names, it was at night.

Commissioner Torto - Does the name Sgt. Musa means anything to you?

Foday Jawara - Not Sgt. Musa alone, they were many.

Commissioner Torto - Was Sgt. Musa the group leader?

Foday Jawara - I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto - Your sister was raped before you or did she report the matter to you?

Foday Jawara - I was informed.

Commissioner Torto - Did she receive any treatment?

Foday Jawara - There was no hospital at the time.

Commissioner Torto - I mean now.

Foday Jawara - After the war we took her to the hospital, and she is gradually responding to treatment.

Commissioner Torto - Can you identify the fighting group that attacked you, Kamajors, Donsu, ECOMOG, CDF, RUF etc.

Commissioner Torto - We have heard testimonies from people who were able to recognize their attackers.

Foday Jawara - It was in 1994. I don't know them, they spoke Kono.

Commissioner Torto - Thank you.

Leader of Evidence - When the rebels attacked Kabala, was there any Government force?

Foday Foday Jawara - The CDF was around.

Leader of Evidence - Which particular CDF group was around?

Foday Jawara - The Tamaborroh was around.

Leader of Evidence - You mentioned one man Dembaso who was the head of the group, where is he now?

Foday Jawara - He was killed.

Leader of Evidence - We heard that Kabala was attacked 17 times, was it during one of those attacks that he was killed?

Foday Jawara - He was killed in 1994.

Leader of Evidence - You said that Squirrel is from Kabala, have you known him before this incident?

Foday Jawara - I know the family of Squirrel very well but he had changed his name; everybody was calling him Squirrel in this Town.

Leader of Evidence - Has there been any quarrel between your family and Squirrel's family?

Foday Jawara - No, there was no quarrel between us.

Leader of Evidence - Have you met with his family after the war to explain this?

Foday Jawara - When I met them they said that Squirrel was a rebel, they don't have any business with him, they have disowned him.

Leader of Evidence - You said that they paid dowry of Le6,000 for your sister, how long was she with them?

Foday Jawara - She never went with them. She was with them for a short time, after which she was released. She came home crying.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We've been asking you a number of questions, do you have any question to ask the commission?

Foday Jawara - I am now an old man, my house had been burnt down, I have so many children, therefore I need some assistance from the government.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many children have you?

Foday Jawara - I have sixteen children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - I am talking about your own children.

Foday Jawara - I have sixteen children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Born by your wife or wives?

Foday Jawara - I have three wives.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many of them are grown ups?

Foday Jawara - I am an old man now.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many of them are adults, who are now working and are not school going children?

Foday Jawara - Some of them are still going to school, some are married.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many are married and how many are going to school?

Foday Jawara - Five are married, Six of them are going to school.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What about the remaining five?

Foday Jawara - They are very small.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - As we have told you before, TRC does not give money to victims, but your recommendations will be included in our report, and victims will be able to benefit in the future. Do you have any recommendations to make to the Commission?

Foday Jawara - What I am saying is that I need help, I am an old man, my houses were all burnt down. I have no strength to rebuild my life.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We are very sorry for the elderly people and all those that have suffered in the war. By October we would have finished our report, and you will be able to benefit from whatever recommendations are made. I advised that you asked the older children to help with the burden of the younger ones. I thank you.

WITNESS NO: 003

WITNESS NAME: Hawa Marrah

The witness was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

I was attending School here in Kabala, when I was captured. When they attacked, my mother gave me all her money. We ran into the bush, where we all separated, it was raining. The rebels met us and put us under gun point. And they asked that someone amongst us follow them to carry their loads, since there were so many old women, and I was the youngest, I was chosen. I got up and carried their load. They took us to Bilmaia and detained us in a room for two days. Later we were released and taken to Koinadugu and after which we went to their base in Kono through Kurubonla. Whilst we were in the camp they usually leave us behind when they go out on attacks. They normally brought food for us to eat which were mostly not good. They brought yam, raw banana etc.. We were there for sometime and my aunts who were also abducted told me that my people were anxious to see me. The rebel I was with, said that he is not going to release me and he is taking me to where he came from. My aunt pleaded on my behalf. One of them said that instead of arguing they should kill me. My aunt said that they should have patience with me. A boy was killed, after his death I eventually escaped to Kono. I was collected by my parents, and taken to Freetown feeling sick and I was admitted, after the admission, I finally returned to Kabala.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - I thank you very much for coming. The commissioners will ask you some questions.

Commissioner Torto - Who was your actual captor?

Hawa Marah - He was a Liberian, called CO Kai.

Commissioner Torto -Where you the only one captured?

Hawa Marah- We were in a group.

Commissioner Torto - During the time you were captured, did they kill or injure people?

Hawa Marah - I can't tell because I was small.

Commissioner Torto - Do you have a child for your bush husband?

Hawa Marah - Yes, look at him.

Commissioner Torto - Has he attempted to look out for you?

Hawa Marah - He is dead.

Commissioner Torto - How do you know?

Hawa Marah - I was around when they left for an attack but he was killed.

Commissioner Torto - Can you tell the fighting group that killed him?

Hawa Marah - No, I don't know the group. I was very small.

Commissioner Torto - Can you identify your attackers? Were they RUF,SLA, or Kamajors, which of them?

Hawa Marah - It was Superman's group.

Commissioner Torto - Did you really see Super Man.

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - I have few questions for you. How long did you spent with the rebels in the bush?

Hawa Marah - I was captured during the five days attack and I was with them for about four months.

Leader of Evidence - After the three months. What happened?

Hawa Marah - I was twelve years old.

Leader of Evidence - How old are you now?

Hawa Marah - I am twenty years old.

Leader of Evidence - In what year were you captured?

Hawa Marah - I cannot recall.

Leader of Evidence - How many people were abducted with you during the attack?

Hawa Marah - They were very large.

Leader of Evidence - Were there other girls of your age?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - What happened to the other girls who were captured?

Hawa Marah -We were in the same camp with their bush husbands.

Leader of Evidence - Where are they now?

Hawa Marah - They are now in Kono.

Leader of Evidence - Didn't they all come back from Kono?

Hawa Marah - I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence - What was your daily life like as a bush wife to the rebels?

Hawa Marah - I used to prepare their food.

Leader of Evidence - Did you join them when they went on attacks?

Hawa Marah - No.

Leader of Evidence - Were other abducted children trained to fight?

Hawa Marah - No, there were no training going on in the camp.

Leader of Evidence - Were there adults in the group?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence -Were there young boys and girls among the rebels?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Were they all involved in combat?

Hawa Marah - I cannot tell because we were left behind in the camp.

Leader of Evidence - Were there men and women in the group?

Hawa Marah - There was a mixture of men and women.

Leader of Evidence - How were you treated?

Hawa Marah - I was not treated badly.

Leader of Evidence - Were you beaten by other rebels apart from your bush husband?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Why did they beat you?

Hawa Marah - At times when we were sent for food and didn't come back early we were beaten.

Leader of Evidence - Did they use drugs?

Hawa Marah - I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence - You said you were a bush wife to one of the rebels, what was his name?

Hawa Marah - Kailondo.

Leader of Evidence - He got killed after the fight?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Who is Col Issa?

Hawa Marah - I don't know much about him.

Leader of Evidence - But you mentioned his name in your written statement.

Hawa Marah - I overheard his name, but I did not see him.

Leader of Evidence - Did you sustain injuries whilst you were in the bush. How is your health now?

Hawa Marah - Yes. I felt pain all over my side, I am suffering from cold.

Leader of Evidence - Have you seek medical attention when you came back?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Where are you staying, is it with your family?

Hawa Marah - Yes, I am staying with my family.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We have been asking you questions, do you have any questions for the commission.

Hawa Marah - I want the Commission to help me with capital because I wanted to start business so that I would be able to take care of my child.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - The Commission is referring you to NaCSA for assistance. Have you any recommendation for the Commission, that can be included in its report?

Hawa Marah - I would like the Commission to create job facilities, and to build schools for my community.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - When you said job facilities are you thinking particularly of women?

Hawa Marah - Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Do you have any other question?

Hawa Marah - No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - I thank you very much for coming and I hope you will be able to take care of your child.

WITNESS NO: OO4

WITNESS NAME: Jeremaiah Kamara

The witness was sworn on oath by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

At about 5 in the evening, we heard firing all over the town, at that time I have never heard about rebels. We got up; my mother, brother and I went into the house and shut the door. The firing was heavy and it continued until night. At about 12 to 1a.m we heard somebody knocking at our door. My mother started crying that we are going to be killed. I attempted to open but before I could open the door somebody kicked the door and we were ordered to come outside. My mother, nephew, my child and I came out and all our belongings were looted. One of them said that they are going to burn our house. They did set the house on fire. One of them tied and started flogging me with sticks, my mother was crying. He later untied me and I helped them to carry their luggage. On our way going I met a woman by the name of Adama, who was killed but I couldn't say anything because the rebel was pushing me. We went to Koinadugu and spent two days, after which they started to complain that they are hungry. I was sent to fetch water, and I took the opportunity to escape. On my way I met another set of rebels who ordered me to dig a grave. However, their attention was diverted when they heard that Government troops were around. So I escaped. I was worried of my mother and children. I went in search of them and I finally met them at Yataya.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How did you manage to escape?

Jeremaiah Kamara - After I have been given the shovel to dig, when they were informed of the presence of government troops, I escaped.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you seen Captain Marah?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Since I escaped I haven't set eyes on him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones -What about Sergeant Musa, have you heard about him?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I understood he's dead.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What language did they spoke?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They spoke Mende, Temne and Limba.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What were the looted items you carried?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I carried tapes, rice and other items.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Do you know were they got those looted items from?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They collected some from my house before setting the house on fire and some from other houses.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where were these people killed and who were they?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I saw dead bodies, but I don't know who killed them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many of them, were there men or women?

Jeremaiah Kamara - One woman was among them but majority were men.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Did you dug the grave yourself?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes, but when they escaped, I fled.

Commissioner Torto - My questions are coming from both your statement and your verbal testimony. Marah was a very popular man. Did you happen to know him before?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I heard about him but I have not met him.

Commissioner Torto - Have you been in touch with him?

Jeremaiah Kamara - No.

Commissioner Torto - What part of Kono did you carry the items to?

Jeremaiah Kamara - We were heading for Kono. I have never been to Kono, so I cannot describe the names of the villages, but we met another group.

Commissioner Torto - Sgt. Musa and Captain Marah were the leaders of your attackers?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - Why didn't you escape when you were sent to fetch water?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I was always given an escort to guard me.

Commissioner Torto - If you see Marah and Musa would you be able to identify them?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I can identify Musa but I cannot identify Marah.

Commissioner Torto - Did you escape before they went to Kono?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I escaped after two days.

Commissioner Torto - Which means you did not go to Kono?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - According to your written statement you mentioned RUF, then you are now talking about Sgt Musa and Marah. Can you clarify that?

Jeremaiah Kamara - The reasons being that they had red cloth round their heads.

Commissioner Torto - So it was only Sgt. Musa's group that tied red cloth?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - You came across a group with white?

Jeremaiah Kamara - No.

Commissioner Torto - After the attack, what are you doing now?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I am a farmer.

Leader of Evidence - You mentioned one Mr Momoh Sesay, who is he? Did anything happened to him?

Jeremaiah Kamara - We came from the same village, we were captured together but he escaped.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell whether other people were killed in that attack?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I only saw the corpse of Adama, it was late in the night, and I was carrying heavy load.

Leader of Evidence - In reaction to the Deputy Chairman's question, you said you were digging graves, where was that?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I cannot tell the name of the village.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell the number of people captured.

Jeremaiah Kamara - We were over 15.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell whether the group was a composition of boys and girls?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes, it was a mixture of men and women but majority were men.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell what happened to girls that were captured?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They took them as bush wives.

Leader of Evidence - Did you witness such?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They deflowered a child in front of me.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell me the age of that child?

Jeremaiah Kamara - She was about 10 years old.

Leader of Evidence - What about the boys? Can you tell their ages?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They were about 10 to 15 years.

Leader of Evidence - Where other towns attacked?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They burnt down villages and towns as they moved along.

Leader of Evidence - Do you know whether they were under the influence of anything?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They were smoking marijuana and drinking alcohol.

Leader of Evidence - Were these drugs given to the captors?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Some of the girls did prepare these drugs for them.

Leader of Evidence - Were they willing to take the drugs?

Jeremaiah Kamara - They were forced to take the drugs.

Leader of Evidence - The boys who were abducted, did they give them drugs when they wanted to go on an attack?

Jeremaiah Kamara - Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We have asked you a number of questions, have you any questions for the Commission?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I want them to rebuild my house and to educate my children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Actually when we asked for questions we are not asking for what you want, we want to know about your view about the Commission's mandate may be when it comes to recommendations, you would tell what you would like for your community.

Jeremaiah Kamara - My only question is whether they would create job opportunity for our community.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - That is a good question. A number of people are just lying around practically doing nothing. We'll recommend that something should be done about your community to make it more vibrant, and the people more active with jobs. We will include that in our report. As a Commission I would not be able to say we can provide such. If people want jobs, we will look around for NGOs. Have you any recommendations?

Jeremaiah Kamara - I take what you said to start as one, e.g you have mentioned that you would like Government to create job facilities, and build schools for our community.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - I thank you very much for coming, we hope that your testimony would create a lot of dialogue for people here present. I thank you.

MUSLIM PRAYER: The Al fatia was generally offered.

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Slyvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

I was with my grandmother, assisting her with her farm work when I was captured by the rebels. I tried to escape but I was recaptured and they shot my right hand and inscribed RUF on my chest. They traveled with us at night so that we could not identify the routes we passed through. Things were difficult and food was hard to get. We were taken to Makeni but I tried to escape to come to my mother who was almost mad because of me. They killed my uncle and my father's house and grandfather's houses and properties were destroyed.

My captor said that I could not sit without being married so he became my bush husband. He latter went to Kono and left me in Makeni. I entered into a relationship with a young man who left because I refused to have a child for him. Later, I met another man, whom I had this child for. I had wanted to come to my parent but I was afraid that people would accuse me of being a spy because of the RUF inscription. I was with them until when the disarmament started but they didn't give me a gun because I was not married to one of them. One day I met a man who took me to Magburaka to disarm but the Commander who trained me was dead. That is my story.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much are you Kadie Kadiatu Sawaneh.

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: This is a pathetic story you have explained, I don't know how far down the RUF marked you on your chest because we don't want to strip you.

Kadiatu Sawaneh : (Then shows mark on chest)

Commissioner Torto: Is it visible enough?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes it is.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify the man who marked you on your chest?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: I don't know the man because they were plenty in number.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you come forward for the Commissioners to see the inscription on your chest? (Shows inscription to Commissioners)

Commissioner Torto: Who shot you?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : The rebels.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the person who shot you?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : No

Commissioner Torto: What group did your captors belong to?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : RUF

Commissioner Torto: During your captivity were you engaged in any fighting?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : No

Commissioner Torto: Have you been disarmed? Did you benefit out of the Disarmament process?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : Yes, I was given Le150, 000.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What of your husband, where is he at present?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: He is here in Kabala with me.

Commissioner Torto: Are you staying together?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Is he RUF?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No, he is a civilian.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We are sorry for what happened to you. You sound as someone with hope and ready to continue with life. How many men were you a bush wife to?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : Only one man. I was raped but I was not married to any of them in the bush.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where were you married?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : In Makeni

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: By one of the men who captured you?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : Yes

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you raped a number of times?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many times were you raped?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Four times.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you raped by different men?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Only one man.

Commissioner Torto: Kumba Gbudema, Mohamed. What do they remind you of?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: We were living together.

Commissioner Torto: What languages were they speaking?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Mende.

Leader of Evidence: I am sorry for what happened to you. Can you tell how long you stayed with your captors?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: I stayed with them for 4 years.

Leader of Evidence: Did you try to escape and what happened?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes, I tried to escape but I was recaptured.

Leader of Evidence: How old were you at the time the rebels captured you?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: I was small and my breast was not fully developed.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell the name of the rebel who took you as a bush wife?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: His name was Mohamed.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell where he is at present?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Where other girls captured and treated in the same way you were treated?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes, I met them there.

Leader of Evidence: Were they also bush wives?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Have you seen any of the girls since you left the bush?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned that your uncle was also killed, what was the name of your uncle?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Amadu Kamara.

Leader of Evidence: Where other people killed?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: My grandfather.

Leader of Evidence: What was his name?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Mohamed Kamara.

Leader of Evidence: Were there other people killed in your family?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes, my younger Sister Temeh Sesay.

Leader of Evidence: Who is Ibrahim Sesay?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: My uncle.

Leader of Evidence: So two of your uncles were killed?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did they kill other people apart from members of your family.

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No

Leader of Evidence: Did they abduct other people from your village?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes

Leader of Evidence: Those who were abducted, did they come back?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Some of them came back.

Leader of Evidence: In the bush, where there also captured young boys and girls?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did the boys receive military training?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did the boys go out to attack villages.

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did the boys do it voluntarily or were they conscripted?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: They did not doing it voluntarily they were forced to join.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels use drugs?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Plenty.

Leader of Evidence: What type of drugs did they use?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Cigarette, marijuana palm wine, man pekin.

Leader of Evidence: Did they give it to the young boys and girls?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did they give it to all the boys and girls who were captured or only to those who go fighting with them.

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Only those who went to fight with them.

Leader of Evidence: Those who went to fight with them, did they use guns?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No.

Leader of Evidence: The rebel Commanders where they adults or young people?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: They were adults.

Leader of Evidence: Where they men and women?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: There were also women with them.

Commissioner Torto: During your four years of captivity did they ever tell you what they were fighting for?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Did they mention who sent them to fight?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: No

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any question for the Commission?

Kadiatu Sawaneh: Yes, did you bring me here for good or bad.

Commissioner Torto: The Commission cares about you and wants to know what happened to you and those who did it and why they did it. After the hearings, the Commission will make recommendations to government based on what you have suggested. So that is why you are here.

Kadiatu Sawaneh : My house was burnt, the house of my father was burnt they can not rehabilitate my house and give me back all that I have lost. I want them to assist me.

Commissioner Torto: What you went through is not strange. It happened all over the country. In any case, our leaders of evidence could talk to you and give you advice as to how you may be able to access the micro-credit loan. We are here to ensure that what happened to you is forestalled. Your appearance before this Commission is not a waste of time.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation to make to the government?

Kadiatu Sawaneh : I have learnt a job, soap making but there is no material to continue so I will want government to assist me with capital and materials.

Commissioner Torto: Our staff will help you with technical advice. Thank you very much for coming.

TESTIMONY:

I was in the farm one day when one woman ran to tell me that the rebels had attacked. I decided to go to town. As I got closer to the town, they followed us. We ran deeper into the bush to hide. One day I was going to our hiding place in the bush from town, when I heard gun shot and I fell on the ground. A small boy called "Small Pepper", came to me and said that I should go to Tejan Kabah for treatment. At about that time, my wife was carrying our four weeks old child. As I lie on the ground, I heard the crying of a child but it was raining. After a while the crying stopped and my wife who had earlier been captured came to me and informed me that she met our child lying dead. She then left me to go to town, so that she would inform my relatives. In the evening she came with my brother and they took me to another place. I was there for two weeks and my body has started to rot. The highway to Kabala and Freetown was not safe. So we used a bye pass and walked on foot to Kabala where I was treated. Later I was taken to my village and I built a hut for me and my family. However things are difficult with me.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for coming. Your appearance here is not a waste of time. Do you know the group who attacked you?

Mohamed Mansaray : Actually when they attacked the village, we ran away and the rebels chased us. When they hit me with a gun, I fell down. I can 't tell.

Commissioner Torto: What was the name of the small boy?

Mohamed Mansaray : "Small Pepper."

Commissioner Torto: Do you know what fighting group they belonged to?

Mohamed Mansaray : They belonged to Superman's group.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know under what circumstances your baby was killed?

Mohamed Mansaray : No.

Commissioner Torto: So your wife just met the child dead.

Mohamed Mansaray : They threw the child away and then took the mother away.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: There are certain points I would like to rectify. Who was the person who saved you and took you away when you were lying on the ground wounded?

Mohamed Mansaray : At that time there was no body.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you get back to your house when you find out you child was dead.

Mohamed Mansaray : I was lying down on the ground when my wife told me that they have killed my son

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where is your wife at present?

Mohamed Mansaray : She is at home

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did your wife tell you about her experience when she was captured.

Mohamed Mansaray : She was raped, that was what she told me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did she tell you how she managed to escape?

Mohamed Mansaray : According to her, she was able to escape at night.

Leader of Evidence : Before the attack, you mentioned that you were living in your farm house why were you living in your farm instead of the village?

Mohamed Mansaray : It was almost harvest time so I had to stay in the farm house to tend to the farm. By the time I got the news, it was difficult for me to go to the village.

Leader of Evidence : Was it the same time they attacked you in the farm that they attacked the village?

Mohamed Mansaray : Somebody ran to tell me in the farm that the village had been attacked.

Leader of Evidence : Did anything happen to your house in the village?

Mohamed Mansaray : The town was completely destroyed.

Commissioner Torto. Do you have any question for the Commission?

Mohamed Mansaray : I have nothing to say. I want to believe, I am in this condition because of the government if I had my way you would not believe in Kabala when you go to Freetown. I want to go to Freetown to talk to the government.

Commissioner Torto: We understand how you feel but the Commission do not have the mandate/resources to do as you wish. If we had, we would have perform wonders in order to assist you. I will recommend that you speak to the Government representatives in the persons of the District Officer, Police Personnel (CPO) through you can convey messages through that means. Yesterday the District Chairman of SLPP was here, I suggest you try to contact him. Technical advice would only be given by our personnel. Do you have any other question?

Mohamed Mansaray : Now that I am in Kabala, I did not know that the TRC was here, I have no house and I'm staying with friends. I want to go back to the village. What can the Commission do for me?

Commissioner Torto: Do not think that it is your fault that you are in this condition. It happened all over the country. If you need help there are NGOs that can help you. Don't think that you are finished on earth. Thank you very much for coming.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation to make that we can pass on to the Government?

Mohamed Mansaray : I would like our houses to be rehabilitated; I am at present a beggar.

Commissioner Torto: However your recommendation will be included in our report.

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Slyvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

The rebels met me in the bush and I was captured and raped. I was then taken to another village where I was tied up and striped naked and they raped me again. They took us to Kamadu Sokuralla. They had wanted to give us guns but we refused, since we've not used to it. They raped us frequently and we were threatened that if we attempted to escape, we'll be killed.

One day rebels from Koinadugu came and asked us about our captors. We were told that they've gone out to find food. One of the rebels called George Bucher, came to me and took me inside a room where he raped me. They went out and captured more people and looted properties from our village and other villages. My father also was given serious beatings. We were able to escape under a heavy down pour of rain. When we came to our village, I was naked. As my father was coming for me, he was captured and beaten. However, we eventually came to Kabala.

Commissioner Torto: Who actually was your bush husband?

Feremusu Janneh: George Bucher.

Commissioner Torto: How old were you when you were captured by the rebels?

Feremusu Janneh: I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: You said in your first statement that Tee boy raped you and another called Bucher?

Feremusu Janneh: No, it was only Bucher.

Commissioner Torto: When you were in the bush did the rebels made mention of who sent them?

Feremusu Janneh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the group that captured you?

Feremusu Janneh: They were RUF but they had no central command. They were on their own.

Commissioner Torto: In your statement, you said you were raped three times a day. Is that true?

Feremusu Janneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: If you see them now can you remember them?

Feremusu Janneh: The man who captured me, if I see him I can remember him.

Commissioner Torto: After having done this to you and you heard that the man is dead what will you do?

Feremusu Janneh: I will dance.

Commissioner Torto: Did you dance when you heard that Bucher was killed.

Feremusu Janneh: I have not heard about his death.

Commissioner Torto: What happened to the other abductees?

Feremusu Janneh: I don't know.

Commissioner Torto: And you have not seen them since?

Feremusu Janneh: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for sharing your experience with us. Have you any child as the result of what happened to you?

Feremusu Janneh: No.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: What is the state of your health now?

Feremusu Janneh: I have pains in stomach.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you been able to see a doctor?

Feremusu Janneh: Yes but there is no money for proper treatment.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you reported to any NGO?

Feremusu Janneh: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Well after your testimony you will talk to some of our staff and they will be able to direct you to people that will help you.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How are you living? Do you do any trade?

Feremusu Janneh: I go in search of firewood and sell.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: It is good you are doing something.

Commissioner Torto: Are you desirous to learn any trade?

Feremusu Janneh: I want to learn gara tie dyeing.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you for your experience I am very sorry for what happened to you. You mentioned that you were captured with your friend, what happened to her?

Feremusu Janneh: She was also raped.

Leader of Evidence: During the attack where there other people killed?

Feremusu Janneh: No.

Leader of Evidence: In your statement you said you were 12years at the time of the attack, do you know your age now?

Feremusu Janneh: I don't know.

Leader of Evidence: Are you married now?

Feremusu Janneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question to ask?

Feremusu Janneh: What you will do for me so that I will have peace of mind?

Commissioner Torto: The purpose of the Commission is for people like you. We want to know what they did to you and if you know the names of the people that did all that to you.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation for the government?

Feremusu Janneh: I want my house to be rehabilitated, and my husband is an old man he has nothing.

Commissioner Torto: what is the health of you father now.

Feremusu Janneh: He is sick.

Commissioner Torto: Any other recommendation.

Feremusu Janneh: No, that is all I have.

Commissioner Torto: I want to assure you that what you have said will form part of our recommendation to the government. Thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Fatmata Kamara

WITNESS NO: 008

The witness was sworn on oath the Bible by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Slyvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY:

One day at about 3-4p.m., we heard that the rebels were five miles away from the place we were. Little did I know that they were in town. We were parking our utensils and my sister left to ease her self, unfortunately she saw them and a shot was fired which was a signal calling the others. They were all over and I was captured. They asked who owned the house. They ask for the house owner I told them that they have gone to the farm. They captured us but I was carrying my child on my back. I pleaded with them since I was a suckling mother. My child was taken and sent in front. The commander took my clothes off and dragged me with only my pants on.

They took us to a junction and returned to the village where they looted and burnt houses. I didn't see my suckling child until after 3days. The rebels later took me to a farm where my child was, but the child was week and it collapsed.

I later became pregnant and I fell sick. They usually sent us out to search for food and if you refused, you will be beaten. One day whilst we were out searching for food, I told my sister who was with me to hold my child since my head was reeling. We decided to escape; when we noticed that our companions were not looking. We hid for three days in the bush. When they went to attack a nearby village, they didn't see us. My sister wanted to fetch water, so she gave me my child. However, a stray bullet caught her and she died. I left the area and traveled through the foot path to a village, where I met a man who applied some medicine on me and assured me that I was safe to go any where. When I eventually reached my house, I met everything destroyed and burnt. I later found my husband and my parents in the farm. My husband had erected a hut where we stayed, and we engaged in gardening.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you Fatmata, thank God you survive to tell the story I am very sorry for the loss of your sister. The man who actually slept with you did you know him?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes.

Commissioner Torto: His name.

Fatmata Kamara : His name was blood.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know him before the incident?

Fatmata Kamara : No.

Commissioner Torto: What happened to the child after all the problem. Is she still alive?

Fatmata Kamara : She is still alive because she was taken to the hospital and she was given native medicine.

Commissioner Torto: Blood and savage are they the same people or they are two different people?

Fatmata Kamara : Blood was in savage's group.

Commissioner Torto: The group that arrested you, what fighting group did they belong to?

Fatmata Kamara : They were RUF.

Commissioner Torto: Where is your father now?

Fatmata Kamara : My father was killed by the rebel and my mother is also dead

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Fatmata Kamara : I am a gardener.

Commissioner Torto: Would you like to do any thing?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes if there is the opportunity.

Commissioner Torto: Where is your husband?

Fatmata Kamara : He is here with me.

Commissioner Torto: Are you staying together?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes.

Commissioner Torto: If you are to see Blood, can you recognize him?

Fatmata Kamara : He was killed.

Commissioner Torto: Who killed him?

Fatmata Kamara : He was killed by his colleagues.

Commissioner Torto: Why?

Fatmata Kamara : I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for the courage you have to come and share you experience with us. Did you tell your husband you were raped?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What was his attitude?

Fatmata Kamara : He felt bad but took courage in the fact that I came back alive.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So he has been very cooperative with you?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell me the name of your sister?

Fatmata Kamara : Tenneh Kamara.

Leader of Evidence: You said your father was killed by the rebels?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Was he killed by the RUF or another group?

Fatmata Kamara : He was killed by the RUF.

Leader of Evidence: What is the name of your father?

Fatmata Kamara : Brima Kamara.

Leader of Evidence: What about your mother, was she killed by the rebels?

Fatmata Kamara : She died naturally.

Leader of Evidence: Were other members of your family killed?

Fatmata Kamara : No. Only my father and sister.

Commissioner Torto: We have asked you questions, do you have questions to ask the Commission?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes. I want to know what you have to give to me.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. Do you have any other question?

Fatmata Kamara : Yes, I don't know the meaning of TRC.

Commissioner Torto: I will tell you the meaning of TRC. I was among the group that went to Kondebaia to tell you all about The Truth and Reconciliation Commission where you aware about that?

Fatmata Kamara : I was hearing about the TRC but I didn't pay attention to it.

Commissioner Torto: At Kondebaia did you remember this face talking to you?

Fatmata Kamara : No.

Commissioner Torto: In any case I was in your town, talking to you about the TRC. The Truth and Reconciliation Commission have aims and objectives and in short we don't have time to go all over all this again. As the name implies it is to find out the truth of what happened and to identify victims like you. We will listen to your recommendation and pass on the message to the Government to ensure that what happened will not happen again.

Commissioner Torto: Any recommendation?

Fatmata Kamara : My husband is not working and I have three children so I want they government to help me educate my children.

Commissioner Torto: I am not the government but there is a programme that will help your children to be educated and the Ministry of education is talking about free education except for registration fee. It will be okay if you can start from there.

Thank you very much for coming and we encourage you to take care of your self and your children. There are thousands of people who went through this kind of situation.

TESTIMONY

May God bless us all. I was in Kondebaia. We were running helter skelter as a result of the numerous attacks. We survived on yams. One day people were to go to the farm to work for me. I decided to come to town to buy some food stuffs because I felt the town was safe as ECOMOG was around. I met an ECOMOG check point in front of my house. I went into the house and took money to go out to buy these things. Not too long after, I heard firing and I felt it was ECOMOG that was shooting but it became persistence. I passed through the school and I came across the rebels who halted me. They said they are Foday Sankoh rebels and I was given a load to carry. The rebels put on uniforms which they had taken from the ECOMOG with some ammunition. They took out a mattress that was filled with air and they told me to deflate it. Another group came and asked that I should come down and one of them ordered me to come forward and he told his colleagues to give way so that a stray bullet would not meet them. He fired at me twice with a bullet but I was not hit. He ordered that they should tie me and cut my throat. They took me to the cotton tree where I met Nfagie. The person who seems to be the Commando was not talking. He had a T. Shirt and a cap on. One man called Abass whom they had chained was resisting, he was shot twice with a pistol. They told us to bow our heads so that we would not be able to identify them.

The commando took out a paper and called a man by the name of "Junta" and handed a paper to him. Reading form the paper, the man said the rights hand of men should be cut and the women, the left hand. A six years old girl was killed and then one man's hand was cut and put on top of the corpse. They cut Nfagie's hand and pushed him apart. They called me and persistently hit my hand with machetes until it fell out.

Four men and five women were amputated. They told us to go and tell Tejan Kabbah the war will not end until ECOMOG leave. They said we voted for Tejan Kabbah, so he should provide hands for us and that we are to inform the people of Kabala that they are coming. We went to the town but my house was on fire. We traveled for some distance and met Aminata but we were so thirsty and tied that I told Nfagie that I cannot go further but he said he is going to Kabala. I told him I wanted to go back so that our people would know that I am alive. Nfagie left and I came across a stream that was running I used my mouth to drink. I eventually met my relatives and they started weeping but I told them not to cry and that we must go along. My vein which was hanging out was hurting whenever it touches the grass. I told my wife and two sons to assist me find a place where I could be treated. We then left for Kabala. At Makakura, I met a Fullah who had a vehicle that traveled between Fadugu and Kabala. He brought me to my sister Tenneh who is a trader in the market.

When people saw me they were panicked. At the hospital there was no medicine only a cup of iodine. It was poured on my hand. At about 4-5, a man called "Peace maker" of CES came to me and consoled me and said that the road is not accessible but he told me that he has spoken to MSF and they are sending a helicopter for us to be taken to Freetown. On sat at 1p.m the helicopter arrived and they asked my relatives to sign an authorization for them to take me to Freetown. I was taken to Freetown and my hand was beginning to decay. It was operated on and after 2 months, I was taken to Waterloo. Two months later, my hand started swelling and a lady, Elias from ICRC took me to the Conaught hospital. She said there were bone particles in my hand and that the big vein was not properly fixed, thus I needed one more operation. I was sent to Netland Hospital where my hand was operated on again. There was problem in fixing the bone because it was cracked. I still feel pain in the hand and I can not use artificial limbs because it is more painful. From Netland I was sent back to Waterloo and after 11 days we heard of an attack at Sumbuya. I met a brother and he assisted me with transport to Freetown with my family. On the 4th of January we were registered at the Aberdeen camp for artificial limbs. On the 5th we were sent to Old wharf for bulgur wheat supply.

On the 6th January, the rebels attacked and the first house that was burnt in the city of Freetown was the CID building. I was broken hearted for 11 days, especially when we heard that they are looking for amputees. I hid my hand so that they could not see it. I covered my hand with a towel and I passed through Circular Road, Pademba Road through backyards unto my Uncle Sayoh Conteh's place in Congo town. Later we went to the National Stadium and we were later sent to the Murray Town Amputee Camp where they took care of us and gave us Physiotherapy. After sometime, Melissa from the Norwegian Refugee Council interviewed us to build houses for us. I am happy now, because a land was provided for me here and a house was built here. I am also happy because I am seeing my family.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much, on hearing your testimony we know that you went through difficulties. You have gone through an ordeal but as a man of courage you are able to survive to tell the story. Your testimony is straight forward, you are not a stranger to the TRC. We met you at the Aberdeen Camp and I believe you are very much aware of the activities of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Do you know who the boss of the attackers were?

Sieh Mansaray: No I don't know the people, eyewitness and hearsay are two different things. I was not able to identify who was the leader but I can identify the person who gave the papers to the rebel to carry out the operations.

Commissioner Torto: What fighting group did your captors belong to?

Sieh Mansaray: They identify themselves as being Foday Sankoh's rebels.

Commissioner Torto: Did they also tell you why they were fighting?

Sieh Mansaray: I do not know why they were fighting. They did not tell me and I have no way of explaining that.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the number of people killed; even names if possible?

Sieh Mansaray: I do not know all of them but I know some.

Commissioner Torto: Name them.

Sieh Mansaray: Abass, Salifu, Mohamed, John Bai a police officer, Makkah - a very fat man, Aminata who was married to Kemoh and the father called Sandi. The other person that was killed was an ECOMOG Officer i am not sure about his name and there was a police officer called Kai he was abducted I don't know whether they released him later.

Commissioner Torto: Who gave the order that the right hand of the men should be cut off ?

Sieh Mansaray: I do not know the person who gave the command except for the person who wrote on the paper he was a “Junta two”. He was the man who carried out the amputations. Indeed we later discovered that all those whose right hands were cut off were male and left hands were female.

Commissioner Torto: How many people have there limbs cut off?

Sieh Mansaray: There were four males and five females. One of them was Musu Sesay, she was eight month pregnant but she died in Freetown after giving birth.

Commissioner Torto: You said when they captured you, they gave you a bag to carry what was in that bag?

Sieh Mansaray: I can not tell the content of the bag.

Commissioner Torto: The pistol that was fired was it a threat or it did not hit you because there was no bullet inside the gun?

Sieh Mansaray: There is no way I can interpret the mind of somebody. I know those people were killers and if they had a gun in their hand, it is possible they had wanted to kill me. It is also possible that they ran out of ammunition. I am not sure whether it was a threat or they really meant to kill me.

Commissioner Torto: Have you been able to see any of the people who captured you although you said you were placed in a way that you could not see their faces. Were you able to identify any and even now, have you been able to see any one of them?

Sieh Mansaray: one day I was sitting somewhere here in Kabala and one of them was sitting opposite me. He was continuously looking at me. He eventually got up and approached me. After a hand shake, he asked if I knew the people who amputate my hand. I had wanted to tell him but when I looked around, I saw my relatives and knowing the strong feelings they had over my amputation, I answered him in parables. I told him that my hand was cut in broad day light and that I am not a kid. I told him that in any case, the person who did this to me has a conscience and if he is to see me, he would know me. I told him that I have left every thing in God’s hand and that what happened is now history. I also told him that I have faith in God and he will provide me with my daily needs. Upon saying that, he left me for his seat and shortly he disappeared. I’ve not seen him since then.

Commissioner Torto: Do you think that person was a born of Kabala?

Sieh Mansaray: No he was a stranger.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We are grateful for the work you have done. Did the doctor tell you whether your hand is going to be less sensitive?

Sieh Mansaray: I did not have an opportunity to talk with the doctor because he intended to split my hand. I told him that if he did that, my family are going to be hard on him so he didn’t and he did not give me any additional information.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I want to encourage you to seek medical aid so that you will have chance to use the artificial hands your colleagues are using.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know when this happened?

Sieh Mansaray: This happened on a Thursday in May 1998 at about 3pm. But I am not sure about the exact date.

Leader of Evidence: These five women who were amputated do you know where they are now?

Sieh Mansaray: Yes. The one is dead. Damba has gone abroad. Finda Daboh has a house here in Kabala and she is here with us, Serah is here with us but Musu is dead. For the men; I am here, Nfagie is right there sitting. Lamin Jeremaiah Kamara is living at Masiaka. The old man is dead; he did not survive the pain. He died in the bush because he was stabbed with a bayonet before he was amputated.

Leader of Evidence: So can we get the name?

Sieh Mansaray: He was with the army before. He was commonly known as Sgt. Major Kalawa.

Leader of Evidence: You said there were ECOMOG in the village when the rebels attacked was there any exchange of firing?

Sieh Mansaray: There were only 15 Ecomog soldiers in the village. The others had left for Kabala to receive ammunition. The 15 soldiers who were in Kondebaia could not stand the rebels; they took off their uniforms and ran away.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Sieh Mansaray: Yes. The question I have for the Commission, as you all know me, I don't know the work of the Commission; many organizations were making money out of us that was why when I first heard that there was another organization that is coming to take statement from us and that they are working in our interest, I did not believe. I was very happy when they send one of our sister's (Martien Schotsman) sitting there. She came to our camp and had series of meetings with us. We were convinced to come here to testify together with the help of Commissioner Torto who was with the team that went to talk to us. The question that I have for the Commission is, firstly I have lost my house and my property how can I be able to recover those things that I have lost?

Commissioner Torto: I must make an attempt to answer your question I have a lot of respect for your honesty when you started giving your testimony. You said that you have been given a house that you are living in now and you are very thankful for that. I don't know whether you want another house to add to that.

Sieh Mansaray: Yes. That is just the starting point and I will need more. Question number two, the work that I was doing, I am not able to do it again. Now I have been trained I am happy. I have my certificate, but I don't think the certificate is useful because there is no way I can implement what I've been taught. I trained under Cause Canada to bake bread and I was able to train other sixteen people on how to bake bread.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much Mr. Mansaray, you are so far one of the most successful victims because you already have a place to rest and you have learnt a skill that will be with you till God take your life back. I will suggest to you if you don't have people to train, you can take a bag of flour and start baking bread on your own. If anybody can employ you now he will never pay you what you want. I think that is your best bet. Before you give a man a fish, teach him to fish. I will suggest you start a trade on your own even if it is through credit or by any means. Since you have already learnt the act of teaching, you can open a school to teach people how to bake bread. If you have somebody to write a project for you that will help you go on with life. We have NGOs that will be ready to help you with that.

Sieh Mansaray: I have a doubt in what you have said. Since I came to Kabala, I have been hearing about so many organizations in Kabala for the past eight months. I find it difficult to understand what's happening. In fact, since I came it was only on the fifth month when NaCSA supplied us a bag of bulgur wheat. When I traveled to Makeni and Freetown I am seeing a lot of organizations working in close collaboration with the amputees. I am asking any NGOs representative sitting here to raise up his hand and challenge what I am saying.

Commissioner Torto: Let me begin with the supply system you are talking about. Most NGOs have working schedule and they have their time frame on how they make supply to various categories of victim. When the time is finished, it is difficult for them to restart. Now that the war has ended, some of them have scale down their activities. That is how they work, not that I am talking for them but that is how they work. About the availability of helping people, may be they are not here in Kabala but the only way you could find ways and means to locate them, is by going to Makeni and you even have NGOs like NaCSA. You can meet these people and talk to them, but they only thing you have to do is to make use of what you have learnt; it will pay you more than any other supply.

There are people around the community who have suffered like you but don't have skills you have. They want it but they don't have it so please make use of it. At the end of Commission we will be happy to know that you will be one of the richest man because we have heard that you are a very prosperous man.

Sieh Mansaray: I don't thing I would be a prosperous business man the reason is that I have a title. I am the Chairman of the Amputee Association; so when I see my colleagues suffering, I take care of them using my own money. There have been two cases that I have taken to Freetown for cure so I wonder whether I would be a prosperous business man. Also they have brought a small girl whose arms were amputated and the child is with me. What kind of organization that will assist me with this child and the father of this child is a blind man and there is no way I can educate this child.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation to tell the Government to do for you or your community.

Sieh Mansaray: You have come here and meet with my colleagues. They don't have the opportunity to go to Freetown, so I am appealing to government to help them learn skills and provide job opportunities for them. I want government to open a skill training school here in Kabala and its environs.

Secondly, I want the government to help with the education system in our community so that our children can be educated as we all know children are the future leaders and education is the back bone to every society.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for coming and continue to do what you have been doing as a Chairman of this community.

Sieh Mansaray: The Commissioner, "tortoise I will want to shake his body but it can not because of it hard skin." How can I start to be a prosperous man, when I don't have the means to start. I love the job but I can not start it now. There is an other proverb saying, "even if a knife is sharpen you just have to sharp it again before using it" so I want Government to assist us.

Commissioner Torto: I can not have the right answer to give you but I want to share with you one experience. I have an uncle who has a bakery and he too didn't have any thing and in fact don't know where to start. You know what he did, he went to a friend who was a baker, they work together in the friend's bakery until he was able to get money to build his own bakery. He is now supplying the whole village with bread. This is just to tell you that with effort you can succeed. Thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Moseray Koroma

WITNESS NO: 10

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Slyvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

I was in my village called Koroma town and I was a trader. We saw people coming from a direction to our town but at that time they have not started chopping out limbs. When the rebel entered any village, their target was business people because of the money. When we heard the news that they were coming, I was confused. I had a lot of items in my shop and I don't have the opportunity to escape with any of my property. I had plenty of rice, palm oil and groundnut in my store; I was very confused when we heard the news about the coming of the rebels in the town. I had 10 goats. They shot them one after the other. When that happened, I ordered my relative to go to the bush to hide. My uncle and I used to exchange in turns of three nights in sleeping with the family in the bush.

At a point in time, we ran short of salt and Maggie. So I told my uncle to stay with the family in the bush, whilst I go into town to look for the items. I told him to come to check on me in the morning as I was to travel to Sinkunia the following morning. I was to go there to a woman who owed me some money. Little did I know that the rebels had attacked there. The following morning, whilst I was waiting, a lady came from another village to buy caustic soda. I told her I have some but it will be difficult for me to sell to her because of the prevailing condition. After some pleas, I agreed to sell and I sold a packet of caustic soda to her. I was trying to close my store when I heard heavy footsteps from the backyard. Within a short time, the woman who bought the soda came running and behind her was a man dressed in military uniform. He asked for money. I told him I have no money but at about that time, I saw one of them hit this woman with a machete and she died.

I then resolved that whatever they do, I am prepared to die. In my presence, my pregnant sister's head was split into two with an axe. Upon seeing this, I became confused and I gave them the money. They eventually went in and looted my store and they took away the sum of Le 1,000,000 million in my store. They then gave me some of the loads to carry. One said that I would escape if they give me any breathing space but I told him, that I would never be afraid of my fellow man. They also looted properties in other houses, they asked me to join the other abductees but I refused so one took a machete to hit me but he was restrained by the other who hit me on the left and right shoulders. I was also stabbed on the back. I started to roll on the ground; I was also bayoneted on my face, between my eyes and nose and on my right hand. I fell on the ground unconscious and they covered me with grass to get fire but he was restrained by another who told him that I would die eventually. He said if I did not die, then I should go to Tejan Kabbah for treatment. When they started burning houses and knowing that petrol had been poured on me I decided to go toward the bush where my relatives were hiding. I met an old man whom I sent and later he came with them to where I was.

They took me to a hut in the bush but I had no treatment for five days; I told my uncle to look at my family since I was going to Kabala to sought treatment and it is possible I might die on the road. I showed him my debtors and I told him where all my properties and good where kept. In the event I die, it will enable him take care of my family. After some argument since my uncle was reluctant to allow me go alone, we eventually left for Kabala and we came across one Pastor Sayoh who was looking for his relatives. He brought me on his bike to Makakura and then we boarded the vehicle from there to Kabala. Later Pastor Sayoh explain to one man who was working for CES called Peace Maker and he arranged for me to be conveyed to Freetown. I was admitted at the Connaught Hospital for three months and I was later taken to Waterloo. When the rebels attacked Four Mile, my brother was captured and his arms amputated. We were later taken to Old Warf on January 6th 1999 they rebel brought us out in the streets to dance for peace. However, I must state that nothing was done to me in Freetown. This is what I went through.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming to share your experiences with us; we are sorry for the agony you went through. Do you know your attackers?

Moseray Koroma: Those who captured me were dressed in military fatigues.

Commissioner Torto: So your attackers were SLA?

Moseray Koroma: Yes they were SLA.

Commissioner Torto: What happened to the other members of your family? Were you the only one attacked and who suffered in that house?

Moseray Koroma: They beat my father until he died.

Commissioner Torto: What was the name of your father?

Moseray Koroma: His name was Bockarie Koroma.

Commissioner Torto: Was he killed at the same time they did this to you?

Moseray Koroma: Yes it was in the same village and at the same time.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know of any other person who might have been killed?

Moseray Koroma: I have told you before that when they entered the town, they killed my sister who was pregnant. They used an axe to split her head.

Commissioner Torto: You said when they attacked your village they shot the goats. Did they do it the same day or they were doing it one after the other?

Moseray Koroma: They killed them at the same time.

Commissioner Torto: They asked you to show the whereabouts of the young boys did you show them?

Moseray Koroma: No I did not.

Commissioner Torto: Are you married?

Moseray Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Where was your wife and children at the time of the incident?

Moseray Koroma: I have told you before that my relatives were in the bush.

Commissioner Torto: During the time of the attack, you did not hear any name and you can not remember any or face?

Moseray Koroma: The people that captured me disguised their faces. They didn't call their names.

Commissioner Torto: What languages were they speaking?

Moseray Koroma: They were speaking Krio.

Commissioner Torto: You were 23 years old while making your statement, how old were you at the time of the attack?

Moseray Koroma: I can not tell you exactly because in our village, it is the elders who determine when people were born based upon their farming calendar.

Commissioner Torto: What happened to the woman who was buying the caustic soda from you?

Moseray Koroma: She was abandoned after being stabbed. She is in the village.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How is life like in the bush? Do people live the normal lives? Do they eat the usual food in the bush?

Moseray Koroma: No. Life in the bush is very miserable.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where do you get the food from?

Moseray Koroma: When we live in the villages, we do farming and when we harvest the farm we don't take the rice immediately to the town, my family were eating the rice stored in the farm. Also as a businessman, I was able to go with foodstuffs when my family went to the bush.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who is Issa Bangura?

Moseray Koroma: We were all captured; they put his hand on an orange tree and chopped it off.

Commissioner Torto: Where is he now?

Moseray Koroma: He is in Makeni fully recovered.

Leader of Evidence: When did this incident happen?

Moseray Koroma: I could not remember.

Leader of Evidence: Will you tell us how many times your village was attacked?

Moseray Koroma: Once.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question to ask the commission?

Moseray Koroma: Yes. My question is in the form of an appeal. Now as I am talking to you, I am sick and frustrated and I am therefore appealing to you, not to forget us so that our children will go to school.

Commissioner Torto: We will take your appeal in good part and that is why we are here. I don't want you to be afraid. It is the work of the Commission to ensure that the ordeal you went through does not happen again.

Commissioner Torto: TRC does not have the needs to give micro credit. All we have to do is to listen to your recommendation and write it in our report. Thank you very much for coming.

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION

CLOSED HEARINGS FOR IN KOINADUGU DISTRICT (DAY 3)

DATE: 4th May 2003

Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones

Martien Schotsmann - Leader of Evidence

WITNESS NAME: Mariama Mansaray

WITNESS NO: 11

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by the Presiding Commissioner, Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY:

One Saturday night, I was sleeping, when the rebels attacked Bafodia about 6.30 am, they surrounded the village. They knocked on our door. Our uncle came out and asked them what they wanted. The rebels asked for the children and my uncle told them we were sleeping. They forced the door open and captured eight of us. We were taken to another house where we were raped. In the morning they took us to another house where they inscribed RUF on our bodies. They gave us their luggage to carry to Fadugu. On the way, they flogged us. Upon our arrival, we were distributed to different rebels as wives. When we refused, they flogged us. We were raped by two or three men daily. When we fought back, they threatened to kill us. We eventually got married to them. They gave us drugs like marijuana to smoke. When the roads were free, we pleaded for them to release us to go back to our relatives but they refused. Commander Sofila pleaded with them to release us but they threatened to kill us if we tried to escape. Commander CO Ray inscribed RUF on our bodies. They looted properties whilst we carried their ammunitions. My aunt came to the rebel base and pleaded with them to release us, but they refused. I escaped and went to Bafodia. During the disarmament we went to Kabala. We were given documents to sign, and we were asked to surrender our ammunitions. We told them that we do not have any ammunition but showed them the marks and a snap shot was taken. We were taken to Lungi to wipe out the scar. We spent five months in Lungi. On the six month, we were taken to Port Loko there we spent two months; then we eventually returned to Bafodia. We were supplied with non-food items (blanket). Some secretaries of TRC met us at Bafodia, where our statements were taken. That is all.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Mariama, we are sorry for your terrible experience which you have shared with us. You mentioned 8 of you were captured that morning.

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you all sisters/cousins?

Mariama Mansaray: We were all sisters.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were you all? Who was the oldest and how old was she?

Mariama Mansaray: I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was the eldest sister married before she was captured?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What about the youngest sister, was she going to school?

Mariama Mansaray: She was going to school.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What class was she in?

Mariama Mansaray: she was in class 5.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was your youngest sister also raped?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where was the base you were taken to?

Mariama Mansaray: In Fadugu.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Your youngest sister, was she also given to man ?

Mariama Mansaray: yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you all survive at that base and return back to your village?

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many of you returned?

Mariama Mansaray: Five of us returned, still could not see the other three.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they ask all 8 of you to disarm?

Mariama Mansaray: No, we were not having ammunitions.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did the rebels allow you to go? Was it in twos, fours, or one by one?

Mariama Mansaray: We left one by one.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did it take the others to return?

Mariama Mansaray: It took a long time, I was the first to be released. It took about 2 weeks for the others to return.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You mentioned your aunt came to collect you from your base.

Mariama Mansaray: While she was at Bafodia, she learnt that her children were at Fadugu, that was why she came to collect us.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When your aunt came to the base, did the rebels receive her well. Why didn't they capture her?

Mariama Mansaray: They told her that if she goes to the base again, they would kill her and that they wanted the children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you fair at the camp? Where you all well, especially your younger sister?

Mariama Mansaray: We were all sick.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: - What type of illness did you suffer?

Mariama Mansaray: Side pains, severe stomach ache and pains all over our body.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: How old are you now?

Mariama Mansaray: I am sixteen years.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you ever pregnant while you were with the rebels?

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: Did anyone of you get pregnant?

Mariama Mansaray: One was pregnant and gave birth.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: Did she return with the child?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, the child is at Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: When you carried the rebels' ammunitions and they went to loot, what did you see?

Mariama Mansaray: I can't tell we were always behind.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: Did you see them kill anybody.

Mariama Mansaray: No, we were not on the scene, but we met corpses on the way.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: Since you left the Commanders, have you ever seen or heard about them?

Mariama Mansaray: I have not seen them.

Commissioner Marcus- Jones: - What was your bush husband like? Was he old or young?

Mariama Mansaray: He was a young man.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was he a combatant?

Mariama Mansaray: He was RUF.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you approve of what they were doing to you whilst you were at their base?

Mariama Mansaray: No

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What was the name of your bush husband?

Mariama Mansaray: "Lean you loss".

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where is he now?

Mariama Mansaray: I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he beat you?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Whilst you were at their base, did you get proper food?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where did you get the material for cooking?

Mariama Mansaray: I don't know they always brought food to cook.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who are you presently staying with?

Mariama Mansaray: I am staying with my aunt.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you going to school, institution or doing any skill training?

Mariama Mansaray: . I am a student.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What form are you in?

Mariama Mansaray: I am in class five.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: That means you will be taking the NPSE exams next year.

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have any health problem?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, severe stomach ache.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you get any medical attention?

Mariama Mansaray: I was treated once at Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you treated in the hospital or given native treatment?

Mariama Mansaray: I was treated in the hospital.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you receive regular treatment.

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Your colleagues in school, do they know about your ordeal?

Mariama Mansaray: Some of them know, we were together.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many of you abducted were in school?

Mariama Mansaray: We are three.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How do they treat you in school?

Mariama Mansaray: I have no problem.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How do they treat you at home?

Mariama Mansaray: I have no problem.

Leader of Evidence: I would like you to make some clarifications, were you the youngest or have you younger sisters with you?

Mariama Mansaray: I was the youngest one.

Leader of Evidence: When abducted, had you started your menstrual cycle?

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Leader of Evidence: When did you start your menstrual cycle? Was it during your stay with the rebels or after your captivity?

Mariama Mansaray: It was after my captivity and after some medical treatment.

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned all 8 sisters abducted, were you all from the same mother and father or where related?

Mariama Mansaray: We were related.

Leader of Evidence: Was any of your brothers abducted?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, one of them was killed?

Leader of Evidence: What is his name?

Mariama Mansaray: His name is Bala.

Leader of Evidence: Where you present when your brother was killed?

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Leader of Evidence: How long did you stay with the rebels?

Mariama Mansaray: 2 years.

Leader of Evidence: Did they teach you to use guns?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, but I was unable to learn.

Leader of Evidence: Did they teach you to fight?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, but I did not pay attention.

Leader of Evidence: Did any of the abducted children join the rebels to attack villages?

Mariama Mansaray: No, but I don't know about others.

Leader of Evidence: Is your mother still alive?

Mariama Mansaray: No, she was killed.

Leader of Evidence: By whom?

Mariama Mansaray: The rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see her killed? Or were you told on your return to the village?

Mariama Mansaray: I was not around.

Leader of Evidence: You knew when you returned.

Mariama Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: I am sorry for what happened to you and thank you for coming.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We have been asking you lots of questions, have you any questions for the Commission about our work, or how we do our work.

Mariama Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: As you are quite young, do you have any opinion and views, any recommendations you would want the Government to do for your village, school or yourself?

Mariama Mansaray: Yes, I would want the government to assist in education.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have any other recommendation?

Mariama Mansaray: I want the Government to assist me seek medical attention.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You don't have to wait for the government before you seek medical attention. Our staff will refer you to a doctor, who will be able to advise you. Your other recommendations would be included in our report.

Thank you very much for coming. We hope you will do well in your school work and wish you success when you take your NPSE next year.

Leader of Evidence: Commissioner, the witness have scar of RUF on chest, can you show to Commissioner. (Shows scar and Leader of Evidence takes photo of scar).

TESTIMONY

In 1998, my husband left me at Bafodia and went to Pendembu. Upon his arrival in Pendembu he was killed. I received message of his death and that his corpse could not be located. The day I received the message, rebels (Col. Blood's Group) attacked Bafodia and I was captured. I was raped publicly on a veranda by one of his boys. That same night, another boy raped me. There was no food to eat, so I had to breast feed my child. I was a suckling mother then. The child became sick and died. The same day I lost my child; I was captured again by another group and was violently raped and wounded on my head and arm (shows scars). Until now I experience frequent discharges. Col. Steven from Waldama captured me and took me to a place called Kakolobi where I spent about a week. My mother who was blind was left behind. I was raped by six men. If I refused they will flog me. Since I lost my child, I am unable to bear children. I spent another week with them. After my release, I was captured by Col. Savage's group, he raped me and Col. Snake also raped me. My stepmother was around, she had swollen feet. She was killed by the rebels. The rebels took us to a village called Kalawa and I spent two terrible weeks with them. About 100 women were captured, the captured boys escaped. They dug a big pit for us and threatened to bury us alive accusing us that we sent for the RUF. They raped us violently, when we refused they flogged us. The UN enabled us to be released and we were taken to Kabala. Since then I had not been able to seek medical attention and no one to has taken care of me. When we came to Kabala, I was recaptured by the RUF. A rebel by the name of Upside Down captured me and raped me in the bush. At that time, a law had been passed "No Raping". Upside Down ordered me to fetch wood in the bush. He followed me in the bush and raped me violently. During the fight, he squeezes my mouth in order to prevent me from shouting. Until now I am still still experiencing the pain in my mouth. I am now suffering from serious mouth ache.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I sympathize with you for such terrible experiences; one after another. When your husband left for Pendembu, who else was with you in the house.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I was with my mother, who is blind.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Had you known Col. Blood before?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No. I came across him during the war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you know where he came from?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Makeni.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: After one of his boys had raped you, did they go away?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, they stayed in my house for a week.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When did they capture you?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: It was on a Friday at 2 pm.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was it after they had raped you that they wounded you?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, it was when they wanted to rape me and I was fighting them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: With what did they wound you with?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: A knife.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they go away.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did they stay?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: They stayed for one month.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where did the rebels come from?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: They came from Waldala.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You mentioned they took you to Kakolobi is that correct?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes, Kakolobi is five miles from Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you say you left your mother for a week?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old is your mother?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: 50 years and she was blind during the war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Her blindness is it a natural course or was it as a result of some attack.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: It was a natural course.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where is she now?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: At Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In your testimony, you mentioned you were raped very often is that so?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes. I was roughly raped.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was it when you returned to Bafodia that you were captured by , Col. Snake and Savage?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You did not know all these Cols. Before?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: After a week had passed when you had returned, why did you not leave this village as it seems you were vulnerable?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: The rebels were everywhere and I was the only one to take care of my mother.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: According to you, your stepmother was with you?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did they kill her?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: She was seriously sick and unable to run.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why didn't they kill your mother as she was blind?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I don't know but they did not kill her.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You mentioned you were taken to Kalawa, what were your observations and the activities of the rebels?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: They dug a big hole and told us that was where they were going to bury us because we were the once who called the rebels to attack. They killed two men in the hole.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Cols. that you mentioned, what group do they belong to?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: They were SLA Junta.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When the UN came, they were able to take you to Kabala, were you then at the junta base?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did the UN repel the junta?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, they pleaded with them to lay down their arms and Col. Savage was captured by the UN.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you came to Kabala, did the rebels attack again?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes. the RUF captured us and took us to Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Upside Down was he the Commanding Officer?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, it was Col. Ronso.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why was he called Upside Down?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you raped in the bush?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he return with you to the village?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did he stay?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: He stayed for a month in another house.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he come to rape you in your house.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Only once.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What is your present health condition?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Severe stomach ache and frequent discharges even now that I'm here testifying.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why didn't you seek medical attention?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I had no money.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In the general hospital, did they ask for a lot of money?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes, no money no medical attention.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How do you earn your living?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: At first I fetch firewood and sell, now I am selling fried cake.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Our staff will be able to direct you to seek medical attention. How old are you now.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I am 29 years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I don't want you to be too depressed about not having children, even if it comes to the worst and you are unable to bear children, that is not the end of the world. You can adopt children and they can even do better than if you are having your own children. Do you sleep well?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is it because you are worried?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes, when I think of what happened to me in the past, I become very worried.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I hope that your coming here to testify and your talking to us will give you some relief. I advise you to share your problems with others and that will even make you feel better. Did your mother talk to you?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, because after bathing and feeding her in the morning, I had to go out to fetch wood to sell to enable us eat food. I do not return till the evening hours.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have a husband?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No, I have a boyfriend.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Leader of Evidence, do you have any question to ask the witness?

Leader of Evidence: Commissioner, I have no question to ask the witness.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Fatu Seh Mansaray, we've been asking you a lot of questions, do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes, now that I have come to testify, what can the Commission do to appease me?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission has to make a report on all that happened during the war and we are worried about women and children. So stories like yours will be put in our report and from our recommendations, government will know what to do to help women, particularly those who suffered during the war. We hope that after having spoken to the Commission and our staff, we hope you would be able to feel better. Your case is not peculiar, it happened all over the world where there is war. What you do now is to take care of your self, seek medical attention and continue with your life. Do you have any other question?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you got any recommendations to make to the Government?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: Yes, I want the Government to assist us with education or skill training (gara tye dying).

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have any other recommendations?

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I would like the Government to also assist other girls captured together to further their education.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Our staff will be able to refer you to NaCSA or other agencies that will engage you in skill training. At the same time, the Commission will include your recommendations in our report for government to implement. Fatu Seh Mansaray, I thank you for coming.

Fatu Seh Mansaray: I thank you too.

TESTIMONY

When the rebels attacked our village, I was asleep with my sister. The rebels knocked on our door. We refused to open but they forced the door open and captured us. On the way, a rebel by the name of "Born Trouble" raped me violently. My elder sister was heavily pregnant about 9 months and she was left behind as she was in labour. The rebels ordered her to walk in front of them saying that they did not impregnate her. I was locked in a room and I was watching secretly through the window to see what the rebels were doing to her. She was struggling to give birth, eventually she gave birth.

They ordered us to continue the journey. We were raped violently. My father was captured and tied, they hit him with a gun and broke his collar bone. We spent three months with the rebels in the bush. The child my sister gave birth to is partially blind as he could not see anything after 5pm. I was deflowered by them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for sharing your experiences with us. I'll ask you a few questions. Where you the only two people in the house when the rebels attacked?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where was your elder sister's husband?

Fatu Conteh: He was in the village.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is your elder sister back with you?

Fatu Conteh: She returned, but she died thereafter and we are now taking care of the child.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did your sister died? Is it a natural course or as a result of what she suffered in the hands of the rebels or did the rebels kill her?

Fatu Conteh: She died as a result of what she suffered in the hands of the rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were you when you were captured?

Fatu Conteh: I was 10 years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What are you doing now?

Fatu Conteh: I am a student.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What class are you in?

Fatu Conteh: JSS1.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you passed your NPSE?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Sorry for your experience, I would like to ask you a few questions. You mentioned that your sister was almost 9 months pregnant, did the rebels raped her?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: When abducted, where there other boys and girls with you?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How many?

Fatu Conteh: 3, Mary, my elder sister and myself

Leader of Evidence: Your elder sister who was captured, was she left behind?

Fatu Conteh: She was left behind as she was in labour.

Leader of Evidence: What was the name of your elder sister?

Fatu Conteh: She is called Sasa.

Leader of Evidence: What was the name of the other girls abducted?

Fatu Conteh: Mary, we were captured together.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell what happened to the other girls that were captured with you?

Fatu Conteh: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know whether they were raped?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, they raped all of us.

Leader of Evidence: Had you started your menstrual cycle when you were a captive?

Fatu Conteh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Where other boys captured?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, they were captured on the way after we had been captured.

Leader of Evidence: Some of the boys and girls captured did they receive military training?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, some were trained.

Leader of Evidence : Did you receive any training?

Fatu Conteh - No, because I was confused and did not pay attention.

Leader of Evidence: Those who received training did they go with the rebels to attack villages?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did the girls go with the rebels to attack?

Fatu Conteh: No, we stayed behind to cook.

Leader of Evidence: - When the rebels attack the villages, did you go to the village after the attack?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, after they had attacked, we collect food and return to their base.

Leader of Evidence: What did you see in the village after the attack?

Fatu Conteh: Corpses.

Leader of Evidence: Where they men, women and children?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, my aunt and step mother was also killed.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see their bodies?

Fatu Conteh: No.

Leader of Evidence - You mentioned that your father was beaten, is he still alive ?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, he is unable to do farm work or any other work.

Leader of Evidence: How long did you stay with the rebels.

Fatu Conteh: Three months.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels take drugs?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, the smoked marijuana.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels give drugs to the children?

Fatu Conteh: Yes, but I did not smoke.

Leader of Evidence - How did you manage to escape?

Fatu Conteh: When we went to Fadugu, the rebels left us behind to cook, when we did not see them return, we used that opportunity to escape.

Leader of Evidence: Did you escape alone.

Fatu Conteh: No, I escaped with others.

Leader of Evidence: Did Mary escape with you.

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Where there any other children from your family who were abducted?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Who?

Fatu Conteh: My younger brother.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to him?

Fatu Conteh: We could not see him until now.

Leader of Evidence: Where there any other captives from your family?

Fatu Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to them?

Fatu Conteh: I cannot explain now, if I do I have a lot to say.

Leader of Evidence: All those who were abducted, did they all return?

Fatu Conteh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did some died or you don't know where they are?

Fatu Conteh: Some died.

Leader of Evidence: Those who died, did they die of natural causes.

Fatu Conteh: They were killed in attacks.

Leader of Evidence: In your village, a lot of children were captured is that so?

Fatu Conteh: Many killed and most were captured.

Leader of Evidence: Where you captured together with the other girls present here?

Fatu Conteh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Rebels, what group do they belong to?

Fatu Conteh: Water Bottle's Group (Junta).

Leader of Evidence: How did you escape?

Fatu Conteh: I stayed behind cooking and we escaped.

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned you were captured with Mary and Sasa, what happened with Mary?

Fatu Conteh: We escaped together.

Leader of Evidence: How was your escape like?

Fatu Conteh: We were in Fadugu, cooking when we escaped?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much, you have seen the TRC at work. Do you have any question about our work or how we do things?

Fatu Conteh: I would like the Commission to assist my mother, assist me with education as my father cannot work as he is partially disable. My mother has no capital to start business. My sister is dead and we are now taking care of her child. I am the only child. After school I go to buy palm wine and fetch wood to sell in order to sustain my family. I would appreciate it if you could offer micro credit to my mother. After my release I have been suffering from heart burns, severe stomach ache and pains all over my body.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We realize that you have all these immediate needs, but the TRC do not give money to people. All what we are ask to do is to make a report so that in the end the Government would be able to know what to do. But our staff will refer you to some agencies who might be able to help until the Government can do something for communities suffered during the war. At the same time, you ought to seek medical attention in the hospital around or talk to your school authorities. They might be able to give you medical help in your school.

Have you any recommendation to make for onward transmission to the Government for improvement in the future?

Fatu Conteh: I would like to have the Government assist in education, rehabilitate houses in our village and to assist my sister's child with eye treatment.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for sharing your experience and recommendation to put forward. I hope you feel better about things and you would be able to concentrate in your school work. You have the opportunity, others do not. I wish you well in your school work.

TESTIMONY

I was born in Kailahun, when I first heard of the rebels, I fled to Gandorhun and then to Koidu. Later I met a woman from Bafodia and she took me there. In 1998, "Water Bottle" came with his group and he told us that they are juntas. We fled but my in-law was shot and killed with a single-barrel. They looted all our properties. We fled in to the bush to hide. They went to look out for us but they were unable to see us because they were not familiar with the terrain. Whilst in the bush, we ran out of food so I decided to go out to look for food. I was able to get a bag of rice. I was carrying the bag when somebody halted me, although I did not understand the meaning of 'halt'. In front of me, a man was killed and later "Blood" took me to a house where they held some girls. He accused me of being the person who wrote a letter to Freetown asking for help so that they will be driven from Bafodia. I denied; he gave me some slaps and then ordered me to lie down. He brought out a machete and gave me fifty lashes with it. Bobby then gave me a bag of rice to take to Katawia where Savage was. I told him it was heavy but he told me that he will put me to a long sleep. I eventually took it to Savage and later he told me and other abductees to dig a big hole where we will be buried after killing us. In the evening the rebels attacked and drove Savage from Katawia. I came to Kabala and then to Bafodia. I urinated blood for a month although I took some herbs which had helped, I still experience it sometimes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thanks you for coming and for sharing your experiences with us. Were you a member of any group?

Coker Aiah Swarray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you know why you were suspected of having written to Freetown?

Coker Aiah Swarray: The woman with whom I stayed, was the Paramount Chief's daughter.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: - Is the Paramount Chief the same person in Freetown?

Coker Aiah Swarray: He was in Freetown at that time.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What is the name of the Paramount Chief?

Coker Aiah Swarray: PC Alimamy Amidu the First.

Commissioner Torto: What group does your attackers belonged to?

Coker Aiah Swarray: They belonged to Savage's group.

Commissioner Torto: How do you categorize the group? Do they belong to RUF, Junta, SLA, Kamajor?

Coker Aiah Swarray: They were AFRC.

Leader of Evidence: You said, you started experiencing attacks while you were in Kono. Did anything happen to you when you were in Kono?

Coker Aiah Swarray: The man in charge of Kono was Islika. We ran to Bumpe. There were a lot of soldiers in Bumpo. All the women were allowed to go but all the men were captured and tied. I still have the marks. My arms were tied behind my back and my legs were tied. I was stripped naked. Cigarettes stubs were put out on my penis. A woman by the name of Mariama Jabba helped me escape. I ran till I reached Bafodia.

Leader of Evidence: In 1998 you said the SLA were based in Bafodia, did the rebels attack the SLA? Was there actually a fight between the SLA and the rebels?

Coker Aiah Swarray: In Bafodia, there were Juntas not SLA. Rebels came from Makeni to attack the Juntas in Bafodia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I have one question for you. What happened to Islika? Did you hear that he was dead?

Coker Aiah Swarray: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where Savage, S.S.Jah and Blood are now?

Coker Aiah Swarray: - I met Col. Jah in Freetown at Youyi Building, others I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know if Col. Jah is still in the army?

Coker Aiah Swarray: I can't tell because I saw him in civilian clothes.

Commissioner Schabas: Do you have any questions for the Commission?

Coker Aiah Swarray: No.

Commissioner Schabas: The Commission will be making recommendations to the Government, do you have any recommendation?

Coker Aiah Swarray: At present, I am not very healthy, I want the Commission to tell the Government to assist me get medical attention. Secondly, I want the government to help me educate my children and to resettle me so that I will be able to take care of my family.

Commissioner Schabas: Your recommendations sound reasonable and will be included in our report. I thank you for coming to share your testimony with the Commission.

WITNESS NAME : Sullay Conteh

TESTIMONY

I am a born at Wara Wara Bafodia. When I heard that SAJ Musa was coming, I took my family and when they came they looted all my properties, including my radio. My first son was captured but he escaped and returned to Bafodia. Later, Water Bottle and his group came to Bafodia. A woman advised that we went into hiding as one Lansana had been killed. After two weeks in the bush, Savage came and told us that he was there to help us and that we should provide lodging for him since he is a good stranger. We gave him a room in the house and we were staying together.

Morning I was giving four gallons of palm oil to take to Katawia. I was unable to carry it but they forced me to. They beat me with gun and threatened to kill me. I fell on the ground helpless. One said he would kill me but the others advised him not to and so they left me in the bush. I was in the bush for two days and my relatives where searching for me. I reached a village where I met Pa Sullay Conteh searching for me. I went to Bafodia and later my brother in Kabala went to collect me. We used a bye pass road onto Kabala and I was taken to a pharmacy for treatment. I am experiencing back ache. I was a farmer but due to the back ache I am unable to farm. My children are going to school but I can not support my family. This is my experience in Bafodia.

Commissioner Schabas: Thank you for coming to share your experience with us.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming. You were lucky to escape with your life and you should be thankful for that. How old was your son when he was captured?

Sullay Conteh: He was 15 years old.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming. During your captivity, were people killed?

Sullay Conteh: I did not see anybody killed, but Lansana was killed in Bafodia, he was killed by Water Bottle. We saw one corpse, Lansana.

Commissioner Torto: Lansana what?

Sullay Conteh: Lansana Kamara

Commissioner Torto: Did you see them commit atrocities like raping, amputation etc?

Sullay Conteh: No. As soon as we heard gun shots, we ran into the bush.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know which group attacked your village?

Sullay Conteh: It was Savage's group. I saw them in military uniforms but I could not identity the group.

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned that your son was abducted. On his return, did he narrate his ordeal?

Sullay Conteh: Yes the rebels wanted him to join them but he refused. He was in form two (2) at the time and he managed to escape.

Leader of Evidence: Apart from your son, were other children abducted?

Sullay Conteh: I don't know about other children.

Commissioner Schabas: - At present what does your son do?

Sullay Conteh: He is going to school.

Commissioner Schabas: Have you any question for the Commission?

Sullay Conteh: I would like the Government to assist my children with education. As I have severe backache and cannot do any farm work to support my family, I would like the government to help educate my children so that in the future, they would be able to care for their parents.

Commissioner Schabas: Do you have any recommendation for the Commission for onward transmission to the Government?

Sullay Conteh: What the rebels did was very terrible. I would like the Government to take action against those perpetrators in order to prevent such things happening in the future.

Commissioner Schabas: - I thank you for coming and we sympathize with you for all that you suffered.

TESTIMONY

Please forgive me. Fabala town was attacked, when you are under attack you will not look back. My properties and families were in Fabala. They told me that the rebels were coming. I said no, I want to stay to take care of my cattle. Whatever happens I will not know. They captured me and I stay with them for a long time. Everybody had his job. If I explained leaving behind something from my written statement, I had one of my relative who gave her daughter to my son to marry, that girl's limb was amputated. She came crying, that Falaba was destroyed. It was very difficult indeed because there were no grass, the cattle all went back to Falaba. I went back to Falaba, when the rebel group lead by Saj Musa came. I saw them with torch light it was late in the night. I woke all of my children that something was wrong. They took all our belongings, our cattles, and defecate in my house. They took my cow and returned it; they said the cow was a suckling mother. They said that I should give them Le 20,000; I credited from my neighbour. That same moment the colonel told me that they said I have a lot of valuable things. I told them that I am a farmer and I acquired all these things from the proceeds I got from farming. I asked them who told them all these things. I told them I had relative. They started to search my house. I was ordered out of my house. My son was not around, he is Lahai Samura, and they asked him for me, his hands were tied behind his back. He was very huge. I said that it is not worth living. He was stripped naked right in front of his wife. I was also stripped and my daughters. I told them that they should kill me. They said that they are going to marry my daughter. I told them she is a small girl. they said that they are going with me as well. I have contact with big people. I told them that if they like they must do anything there is no sin for that. They said that it is between me and Tejan Kabba. I told them that I have never known Tejan Kabba. I told them one of the children is not my biological child. The child was taken away from us. They took all our belongings untie the cattle, my hands were tied.

My father left a document with me, the time that he was getting old. The village plan; the document was brought by some white people. I took the document and placed it in my bag. I told them that the paper was handed to us by our ancestors. I was in the hands of the CDF, I spent one month with them. They sent three to find me, but I was not there. The commander sent 10 more people to capture me; at that time I had just finished cooking. They said that they had been sent by Pa Demba who was the commander of the CDF. I told them that I did not know him. I informed my husband that they had sent some people to call me. I don't want to leave my children behind.

Upon my arrival, I was told by Pa Demba that he had sent for me, I heard that you have a war. That I am a Yalunka. I told them that I heard all that. I told them if there is somebody to help, it is with God. If you are the cause, there are people who want us to kill all your cattle. I told them that I am not a stranger. I was related to the chief in that he is my sisters' husband. "What I wanted you to do we have arrange for CDF, but there are other people are among us. If your cattle were killed they will blame me." He sent his men, to count the cattles, he told them not to take my properties because I am woman.

My husband said that it was fine. We had planted rice. We will take care of our selves. They told us they are there to help us. For the same of Pa Demba. There was no common understanding between them. My husband wanted to go back to his house, I told him that I want to escort him but he said no. I would not be able to pay the chief.

During the month of Ramadan, he bought a lot of things and said that I should carry it to my husband for the fasting to receive some blessings. He did not destroy anything. Col Bobby and his men went for me. He claimed that I am Pa Demba's wife. I told him that they had collected rice from everybody in Falaba. My husband took the rice, at that time we were attacked, the document I had at that time, I knew the quarrel between my father and Pa Demba was because of that document. I produced the photo of Pa Demba. They said I am a brave woman. I took the document and hid it under my bed. Unfortunately for me my house was burnt.

When we went to a village nearby, they raped my child Salamatu; the man who raped her told his colleagues that she was a virgin. I told her that we were helpless and whatever they wanted to do they must do it. They us to a place wherewe were tied and hung, at that time they had done so many bad thins top us.

At that time a man called G5 came and ask for the cattle, I greeted him for him to know that I have heard him. They took two of my cattle away, they were unable to get somebody to buy it so they took the cattle to Kailahun. They attacked our town, it was rapid firing. They left my eldest child behind, they said that she should not enter the town. There were a lot of them. They threatened to kill me. I told them that one of my children was left behind. They took me to their chief and I was detained there. My daughter was made wife, and said that I was lucky to have a beautiful child as my daughter. They ordered for two people to kill and bury me. I told them I had a tie and I wanted to tie my head. A lot of them came the two people who were appointed to bury me.

There was another man who was a rebel, he interrogated them and they said that they were going to kill me. He appealed to them to have mercy on me that he was going to sign for me. There was a man called CO and I saw him talking on the phone. He said that my children were very young. It will not be possible for them to walk on feet. He said that one day the war will definitely come to an end. I told them I was an ulcer patient , I was unable to walk for a long distance. He said he had become a rebel because of the war, he promised to save my life. Based on the prevailling circumstances, I will be totally free. Wherever we go one of my cattle was killed. They said if I deny the fact that Pa Demba was my husband, they will kill me. I denied. A lot of them came and they were asking me lots of questions. So I was silent, they asked the reasons why? I told them that I had to because if I said anything that will go against them they will deal because it was a soldier's world.

The man told them to release me, they must let go of me because they had killed all my cattles and my daughter had been raped. I had not made any false statement. It was at that time that they made up their mind to release me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: - Yeliba Mansaray, you've told us your story in such detail but we would want to ask you some questions, so that we can understand clearly what you have said. Was Demba Mansary one of the CDF?

Yeliba: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he try to keep your cattle safe?

Yeliba: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did you stay with him?

Yeliba: One month.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you become a bush wife to him?

Yeliba: He was a fighter.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: That is not quiet clear. My question is did you become a bush wife to him?

Yeliba: Initially, there was no relationship but I later become a bush wife to him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: As a true warrior he sent you back to you husband?

Yeliba: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What happened to your son when the rebels captured him?

Yeliba: They tied him, beat him in the shoulders as he was very huge.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: But they did not kill him?

Yeliba: No, but he is unable to do carpentry work.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many daughters have you?

Yeliba: Six.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did the rebels share all six children amongst themselves.

Yeliba: Yes, but the seventh daughter is in Kabala.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they rape you?

Yeliba: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did you stay with the rebels?

Yeliba: I would say five months.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you see what they were doing, how they were fighting?

Yeliba: Yes, I saw some.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us a bit about what you saw?

Yeliba: My house was burnt , one of my nephews was killed, 3 others killed.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell the names of the people who were killed?

Yeliba: I am not able to tell but it was the rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I want to know the names of the people killed not attackers.

Yeliba: Sheriff, Sheriff, Idrissa, Maneka.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you were finally released were you able to find any of your cattle?

Yeliba: - They took all my cattle only one was left.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many cows had you initially.

Yeliba: 15.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: As a result of your suffering with the rebels and your sad experiences, what is your present health condition?

Yeliba: Heart trouble. My status then was different from my present status. If I continue to think about the past, I will die and leave my children to suffer.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What about your daughters, are they all in good health.

Yeliba: Yes, but they sometimes complain of pains.

Commissioner Torto - We thank you very much for coming before the Commission. I just have very few questions to ask. Have you heard of the existence of any of your attackers?

Yeliba - I have not heard about them, I went back to the village after my release.

Commissioner Torto - If you see them can you identify them?

Yeliba - Yes.

Commissioner Schabas - Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Yeliba - No.

Commissioner Schabas - We will be making recommendations to the Government of Sierra Leone. Do you have any recommendations to make to the Government

Yeliba - What I want the Government to do for me, I am not the only person in Falaba everybody fell victim of what happened in our Town. All that we had and what we inherited from our fathers had been destroyed. I would not ask the Government to help me personally, we would be very happy if the Government will assist us in rebuilding our community. We you feed a hungry man today and tomorrow you have nothing for him it will be a problem.

Commissioner Schabas - We thank you, your recommendations would be included in our report. I thank you.

TESTIMONY

I was asleep on a Thursday night, when we heard gunshot; before I could get up my house was ablaze. My elder brother was killed, the other one was killed in his house, his house was set on fire, in the morning we took him to bush. He was receiving some medication when he died. We ran away to Guinea. My condition in Guinea was not favourable. I had many children. There was no food, I had to go around begging. We heard that the Guineans were in our village so we had to return. The rebels came and collected papers from us, they promised not to disturb us. Everyday, there were threats from rebels we were running up and down. The group of Col. Bobby came to us. Everyday we were asked to contribute two pounds of rice. We carry their luggage for them. We were there until the end of the war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you for coming, and we are sorry about the loss of your brother, where you able to give him a fitting funeral?

Sanie Kamara - Two of them were buried in a single grave, mass burial.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where?

Sanie Kamara - In Falaba.

Commissioner Torto - Thank you for coming, your story is short and interesting. Who were your attackers?

Sanie Kamara - It was during the night, I was not at home.

Commissioner Torto - Can you say anything about Saj Musa and Sgt. Yayah?

Sanie Kamara - I don't know anything about them.

Commissioner Torto - Apart from your brother , can you tell if any body else was killed?

Sanie Kamara - Yes, Fatmata, Lansana he was a stranger, was burnt in his house. There was also Momodu Turay.

Commissioner Torto - When you ran away to Guinea, you heard that Guinean troops were in Falaba. You said that the rebels gave you papers; what did you do with those papers?

Sanie Kamara - That we should not be afraid to stay with them.

Commissioner Torto - If you see any of the rebels, can you identify them?

Sanie Kamara - I can recognize Col. Bobby.

Commissioner Torto - Do you know whether he is alive?

Sanie Kamara - I don't know.

Commissioner Torto - In your written statement you said they looted your cattle.

Sanie Kamara - When we ran away to the bush, that was the time they looted our cattle.

Commissioner Torto - Who was Sgt. Burn House?

Sanie Kamara - I heard about him, but I don't know him.

Commissioner Schabas - What are you doing for your living?

Sanie Kamara - I am a farmer.

Commissioner Schabas - Are you still a Farmer?

Sanie Kamara - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Do you know how long the rebels stayed in Falaba?

Sanie Kamara - For a long time.

Leader of Evidence - During their stay where you were treated badly?

Sanie Kamara - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - Can you tell us some of the things that they did to you?

Sanie Kamara - We did everything for them, we pounded their rice.

Leader of Evidence - Did they beat you?

Sanie Kamara - No.

Leader of Evidence - If you refused to give them rice, what will they do to you?

Sanie Kamara - If they ask you to do something for them and you did not they will punish. You will contribute so that you will not be punished.

Leader of Evidence - Your two brothers were killed in the attack?

Sanie Kamara - Yes.

Commissioner Schabas - Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Sanie Kamara - No.

Commissioner Schabas - We will be making our recommendation to the Government. Have you any recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to the Government?

Sanie Kamara: I would like the Government to assist in my children's education. My houses were all burnt down. This is the only help I want from the Government.

Commissioner Schabas - Thank you very much. This is a reasonable recommendation you have made. We extend our heart felt sympathy to you for the loss of your two brothers. We appreciate your courage to come and testify before this Commission.

TESTIMONY

I am happy to be with you all. I pray that it will never happen again. We are very happy for this Commission. On the 27th of March 1998 at about 11.30p.m. in Falaba, we heard sporadic firing; we have been told by ECOMOG that whenever we heard gun shots we must stay indoors. When I heard the firing, I was about to open the door, when somebody told me not to open. I said "why haven't you told me this before?" I told him that he would have the final sleep that day. I tried to open the back door and I called my entire family. We were 17 in number and I was behind. I was in the toilet, when an RPG was launched on my house and it went ablaze; I ran across the street. It was firing all over the town. They were calling Col. Foday, saying that they should advance in two directions and they should do so in hundred's, they were carrying torch. The firing lasted until 5 in the morning. After they had left, we came back to our town. We found out that our houses were all burnt down. My child was captured. I searched for my son for about 12 hours before I saw him coming, he is presently with me. We went to Guinea where we spent 1 month and fifteen days and we returned back to Falaba. What we were used to eating in our town, was not in Guinea. Seventeen of us returned from Guinea to our village. When we arrived, a document was given to us that we must all be one. We should be providing them food. They promised that they would not loot our properties again. We saw 48 of them who said that they have come to loot. We told them that we had nothing left. Our houses were burnt down, after that, in the year 2000 we were hungry and I sent my wife to Kabala. Upon her arrival - it was on a Saturday and she should have returned on the next Friday, she passed to her sister in nearby village. She met a man called Sheku Bah. He asked them were they were going. He asked what were they going to do at Falaba. My wife asked "don't you know me?" He said no and that he wanted to see blood. My wife was with his son. Sheku Bah returned back and took his gun, whilst he was very closed to my wife he cocked his gun. My son said that he was not joking. My son asked what have we done to you? He said that he is going to kill my son. My wife pleaded. He cocked his gun for the second time. My son was about to remove the magazine from his gun, when he fired my wife, she fell down and died. The soldiers who were at Kabala brought her corpse to Kabala, and she was buried.

I sent my other wife to Kabala, and at that time Kabala was attacked, they were climbing a hill when a bullet hit her and she died after. If I wanted to explain everything, it will be a long story. I had eight children with my wife. All the things that I had lost, beginning from the cattles, all my properties lost, I will not bring them back again. I had four houses, 2 in Falaba and two in another village; they were all burnt. That is my story.

Commissioner Schabas - Thank you very much. I sympathise with you for your personal loss.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you for coming, I am sorry for the death of your wife and all your properties and houses, but I see you are a religious man because you started off with a prayer, you can still go on in faith. I have a few questions. What is your occupation now?

Yereh Samura - At present, I am embarking on gardening.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What were you doing before?

Yereh Samura - I was working at PWD, I started work in 1961.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Where you involved in mining?

Yereh Samura - No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - In your written statement, you mentioned about the loss of some gold.

Yereh Samura - Yes, it was my wife's property.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many houses were burnt?

Yereh Samura - Four.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You were not able to gather some of those burnt zinc to put up a structure?

Yereh Samura - I was unable to gather them, because I ran to Guinea.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Can you give us the names of the seven people who were killed?

Yereh Samura - Sheriff Samura, Momodu Kamara II, Small Mummy, Big Mummy, Pa Sana who was burnt down, and Sarif, his head was chopped off and placed at a check point.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You said that they were buried in a mass grave?

Yereh Samura - No, some were buried in a mass grave whilst others were buried individually.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - If we decide to go to the village, will we be able to see the mass grave?

Yereh Samura - Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - In Falaba?

Yereh Samura - Sorie and another were buried in the same cemetery, one was buried in his garden and the other behind the Chief's compound.

Commissioner Torto - Thank you for coming, where is Sheku Ba?

Yereh Samura - He was captured and taken to Mongo.

Commissioner Torto - So you have not heard about him?

Yereh Samura - The former speaker son, saw him at Kaliere.

Commissioner Torto - Who was he, was he a soldier or RUF?

Yereh Samura - We heard that he was a CDF.

Commissioner Torto - When you traveled to Guinea, on your return you said you were given a paper, who were they?

Yereh Samura - The rebels.

Commissioner Torto - But you left soldiers in Falaba?

Yereh Samura - They were rebels. We were afraid to come back, they rebels asked us to join them, they gave a week to join them. They looted all our properties. They gave us documents again. Till when it was peace. We were like slaves, our children did not belong to us. Our children did not belong to us. If I had wanted to explain everything we will be here till tomorrow morning.

Commissioner Torto - I understand your plight. Where is you son now?

Yereh Samura - Which one?

Commissioner Torto - The boy that wrestled with the rebels.

Yereh Samura - He is in Makeni.

Commissioner Torto - What is he doing in Makeni?

Yereh Samura - He is a soldier.

Commissioner Torto - When did he join the Army.

Yereh Samura - 2 years ago.

Commissioner Torto - What does the name Lt. Yayah means to you.

Yereh Samura - While the operations were on, the rebels were shouting Lt. Yayah's name.

Commissioner Torto - Thank you.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What did you mean by Pademba, is it the Prison?

Yereh Samura - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - I want to make some clarifications, can you tell us the name of your wife that had been killed?

Yereh Samura - Her name is Finda Turay.

Leader of Evidence - You also lost your child.

Yereh Samura - Yes, Salifu Samura.

Leader of Evidence - He was one year six month?

Yereh Samura - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - The time the rebels attacked Falaba, was there ECOMOG around.

Yereh Samura - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - I thank you.

Commissioner Schabas - Have you any questions for the Commission?

Yereh Samura - We are in line with all that you have said. If I think of the past, I will not be happy. I am listening to you after everything I have explained. The time of the war, what I have lost, will never be able regain. I recommend to the Government that there are no schools and houses in Falaba. I have six of my children that are going to school; three of them are in Arabic schools, there are no teachers to teach them. If you can help us to rehabilitate our houses, free education for our children; if you have rest of mind, you will have reward from God. Please help us. Thanks be to God.

Commissioner Schabas - We will prepare our report, what you have said will be included in our report. I thank you for coming here and sympathise with you for the loss of your wife and child.

TESTIMONY

One day we were in Falaba and we were asleep; I have children and my parents who are very old with my two wives. We were leaving in continuous fear. One night we were asleep when information reached us that one of our uncle's sons was killed, his head was chopped off. It was on the 8th March. There was flames all over the town. We were confused; I took my children, wife and carried my mother on my back, I took them to a big cotton tree, one of my wife was selling palm wine, the other one was selling groundnut; all these goods were in the house. All we heard that night was "advance, advance." I went into the toilet to hide; one of my brothers Mohamed Turay was shot, he fell down and one of them stabbed him with a bayonet. One of my neighbours house was burnt down with her children in it. One also had a daughter who was matured was also sent into the fire. We were all confused, it was God who saved me. My house was set ablaze, they came from one direction and we were in the centre. I witnessed all these killings and all the houses were set ablaze, I hid myself and after they had passed, I met my people in the bush. I carried my mother; my children and wife continued the journey and we went into the bush. While we were in the bush, one man by the name of the Col. Bobby asked us to come to town to collect papers so that we would not be disturbed by anyone. Because we were hunted in the bush, all our properties were taken from us. They asked us to carry their loads. After we received those passes, we were asked to take care of them. The little we had for our feeding was given to them. As for me I am totally finished. Some of the loads were so big that a motor cycle would not carry. Four people were asked to carry a whole engine for them. If you refused they will beat you. I sometimes find banana for my children. We were leaving in this situation until finally peace came.

Commissioner Torto - During the attack, Mr Turay, did anybody die?

Saidu Turay - yes.

Commissioner Torto - Where?

Saidu Turay - In Falaba.

Commissioner Torto - Can you tell me the name of the person who was killed?

Saidu Turay - Karomoko Sheku, Salifu, Mohamed, Amara, Mama Fudia, almost eighteen people were killed.

Commissioner Torto - So you cannot remember all their names?

Saidu Turay - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - Did they all die on the 27th of March?

Saidu Turay - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - Did you see them rape any woman apart from the forced labour they subjected you to?

Saidu Turay - All the women were raped?

Commissioner Torto - What do you mean that your wives were not your wives?

Saidu Turay - They would come and take your wife without your consent.

Commissioner Torto - Do you remember any of your attackers?

Saidu Turay - Col. Bobby was with us.

Commissioner Torto - Col. Bobby, which group did he belong to?

Saidu Turay - I cannot tell.

Commissioner Schabas - Do you have any questions for the Commission?

Saidu Turay - No.

Commissioner Schabas - Have you any recommendations for the Commission for onward transmission to the Government?

Saidu Turay - My wives were helping me to take care of my children. We had no houses, we are still in the bush. If there is any help that Government can give to help us educate our children in the community. Because we all suffered the same loss.

Commissioner Schabas: Thanks very much for coming. We have now come to the end of today's hearing.

TESTIMONY

I was in my house after coming from work on a Monday at about 5p.m. Initially the Rev. Sisters I was working with to go and check for my children as she had been informed by the Americans of the movement of a large group of people. On my way coming for my children, there was sporadic firing. I finally joined my children and my husband in the house. We all hid ourselves in the house. We have been told that no body should go out. A man knocked on our door, but we refused to open. He break the door and we were placed under gun point. All that we had in the house were looted. They gave us loads to carry. Various items were looted from different houses. My husband was given a bag of rice to carry to their base. The rice had been looted from a neighbor's house. He carried it for some distance but became tired and he was unable to continue. When I started to cry, they threatened to kill me and my eldest son was killed because he refused to continue after his Father was shot. We continued on to a Farming site around Farawah, where we spent two weeks. I later collected my children and left for Kabala, after the rebels had abandoned us. We later went to Freetown. As I am talking, I've still not seen my other son who was abducted.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We are sorry for the loss of your son and husband, we want to ask you some questions for clarifications.

Commissioner Schabas - Thank you for coming to the TRC to give your testimony. When did this happen?

Fatmata Sillah - It took place on November 27th, 1994.

Commissioner Schabas - What did your husband do?

Fatmata Sillah - He did nothing.

Commissioner Schabas - How old was your son who was killed by the rebels?

Fatmata Sillah - 15 years.

Commissioner Schabas - Do you know the people who attacked you?

Fatmata Sillah - No, I cannot identify them.

Commissioner Schabas - What language they spoke?

Fatmata Sillah - A language similar to Mende, and Liberian pidgin.

Commissioner Schabas - They were not from Kabala?

Fatmata Sillah - No.

Commissioner Schabas - How many people attacked your village?

Fatmata Sillah - Initially, it was a man and after that a lot of them came.

Commissioner Schabas - How was your son killed?

Fatmata Sillah - He was shot with a gun.

Commissioner Schabas - Thank you very much, I sympathise with you for your loss.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - When you hid in the farm house, was your son with you?

Fatmata Sillah - No, I was there with my daughters.

Leader of Evidence - Fatmata, was your family the only family abducted?

Fatmata Sillah - They abducted some of my neighbours.

Leader of Evidence - Did anything happen to them?

Fatmata Sillah - When we were going nothing happened, but when the jet came we were all scattered.

Leader of Evidence - Whilst they were going to Farawah, did they attack other towns and villages?

Fatmata Sillah - The villages were deserted.

Leader of Evidence - Did the rebels burnt down your house?

Fatmata Sillah - Yes, it was burnt down.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Who buried your husband and son?

Fatmata Sillah - I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - So there was no sign of burial when you returned?

Fatmata Sillah - I don't know, it was a very long distance; we abandoned the corpse .

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you any question for the Commission?

Fatmata Sillah - I want to thank the Commission because they are teaching us to forgive and forget. I believe God is with us, we are gradually putting the past behind us. I want to know how best the Commission can help us rehabilitate our community and help with the education of our children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We've heard these questions repeatedly by witnesses. The Commission cannot give money for education but the Commission will include in its report recommendation to help different people in their communities. Emphasis would be put on numerous children who were unable to go to school and don't have enough resources. The Commission will finish its work by the end of this year. Within a short time people will be able to benefit. Have you any other question?

Fatmata Sillah - We as elders can manage, but my concern is for our children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you any recommendations for the Commission for inclusion in our report?

Fatmata Sillah - I want them to help us resuscitate our vocational training institute.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Your recommendations would be included in our report. Our staff will help with technical advice as to which NGOs that will help resuscitate your institute. You seem strong and very active, and you certainly would be able to carry on with your life. I hope you feel a little bit relieved now. Thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Musa Mansaray

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY

I do not understand much krio. The rebel chased us out of our village; we acted on advice to stay away from town. We hid in caves, and constructed some farm houses. The rebels were coming in and out of the village, so we had to be going back and forth. We went to our village and found out that they had looted all our belongings. My sister's husband was old and couldn't run; we left him in the house at about 5p.m. We went to the bush; we were there when we had sporadic firing. I was confused because I did not see my in-law until 6p.m. After 6p.m I decided to check for him, I was advised not to go, I was still worried. I insisted and passed through the bush path to the main road, I used the back door, I saw blood and my sister's husband was lying down, he was groaning, I wept. He said that he is dying, and that I should take care of his children, and they were four in number. I went back to the bush and informed my sister that her husband was severely damaged, he couldn't survive the pain. In the morning five of us went to check for him, we found him dead. We cut off some sticks placed him on top and took him to the bush for burial. The next day I came back to the house and realized that all my properties and creatures were carted away.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Musa, We are sorry you've lost your brother-in-law in such a brutal way. We are going to ask you some questions.

Commissioner Schabas : When did this incident took place?

Musa Mansaray - I don't know but it was around August.

Commissioner Schabas - How many years now?

Musa Mansaray - About 7 years.

Commissioner Torto - Do you know the people who killed you brother in law?

Musa Mansaray - I don't know, I met him almost dead.

Commissioner Torto - Do you know the group they belonged to; CDF, Junta, Kamajor, Donsu etc?

Musa Mansaray - I heard they were rebels.

Commissioner Torto - So you cannot identify them?

Musa Mansaray - No.

Commissioner Torto - Was your brother-in-law the only victim?

Musa Mansaray - A woman Tida Mansaray was killed, also her son Shekubah Mansaray.

Commissioner Torto - So they were the only victims in that attack?

Musa Mansaray - Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you any question for the Commission?

Musa Mansaray - Yes, I am in doubt as to how our children will continue their education.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - If you have not been able to earn a living to take care of your children, I suppose that primary education is free. Nevertheless, your recommendations will be included in our report. Government will assist in the rehabilitation in your community. Have you any other question for the commission?

Musa Mansaray - Yes, we would like government to rehabilitate our houses. My brother-in-law who was killed left behind his four children and I want the government to help me rebuild my house

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - The Government in due course will help develop various communities. I don't think Government neither the Commission will be able to build individual houses for people. Any more.

Musa Mansaray - Let us all pray that it does not happen again.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - That is what we are praying for. That is the mandate of the Commission. So that it will never happen. Any more

Musa Mansaray - We want the government to ensure that we get lasting peace in Sierra Leone and bring about rapid development that will benefit all.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming.

TESTIMONY

I was in my village when we saw lots of people coming towards Kabala. My husband advised that we go to Kabala. Later he said that we should go back. Although I was reluctant, we eventually went. The following day, My husband took his other wife and they went to the farm to collect food. When the rebels attacked, we went into our house to hid but they broke the door and abducted us. We were taken to the town centre and made to sit under a large cotton tree. Whilst there, my husband's nephew was shot and killed with a pistol. His name was Abass. Also a Police Officer was shot. They threatened to kill all of us and they refused to listen to my plea that I have small children. There was a girl called Aminata who had been tied, her child Damba was shot and killed. One of them said that they should amputate us because they had killed so many people in the other villages.

We were lined up and the first one was called, Nfagie, then Lamin, Serah Sesay, Musu a pregnant woman, Finnah Kamara, Adamsay's mother then it was my turn, they chopped off our hands. When they left us, I carried my younger child and the one I held by the hand. We left the village. On our way going I met a man called, Makkah who was shot dead and was hanging on his window. I met one of them on the way who asked whether they have finished with me and he said that I should go to Tejan Kabba for hands. I decided to travel by the main road, having it in mind that if I was to fall dead somebody would see me and take care of my children. I met Mammy Sarah whose hands were amputated, and a man, he said we should follow him. As we were climbing the hill, I was bleeding profusely, the man decided to help me with my children. I spent four days with the man hoping to see my husband, but they have told him if he dares to come the rebels will kill him. There was no medication so I decided to come back to Kabala. I gave the man Le1, 000 to accompany me; he refused and said he cannot venture that risk even for his mother. I decided to go alone carrying my baby on my back. I came up to Makakura and I saw a helicopter going to Freetown. I later saw a vehicle, initially I was afraid, but it was the vehicle that was sent to collect the Police Officer, who was killed. They told me to wait, and on their return they brought me to Kabala where I spent four days. I was collected and taken to Freetown. I met all the other amputees at the Connaught Hospital. My child was taken away from me because of the severe pain I was going through. I was later taken to Waterloo, where I saw other wounded people coming from a village. I left and decided to join my relatives in Wellington.

When the rebels attacked Freetown, I had wanted to take the children to Sackville Street to my other relatives because they were in Wellington. While we were finding our way, I was recaptured by the rebels and my husband got missing with the other children. The child I was carrying on my back, fell down as I was trying to enter a house. One of the rebels pleaded for my release because I had already sustained injuries. As soon as I was released, I went back to check for my child, I found his cloth and the wrapper I was carrying him with, but I could not find my child. We were taken to Stadium, where statement was obtained from me. Eventually, we were taken to Aberdeen, where we spent two years. Later, I got the information from a woman in Wilberforce that she saw my child at Bamakonta. My husband by then had returned to our village to build a house. A Reverend father gave me the sum of Le50, 000 to search for my child, but the woman said that the money would not be enough. I sold all that I had, making it a total of Le100, 000. We went on the journey to Bamakonta and the woman she was with accepted that the child was with her, but she will not release the child until my husband is back.

I met a man who is currently helping me to get my child, each time they prepare a document I had to pay. The woman advised me to come back to Kabala; when I came back to Kabala I found out that my husband had nothing on him. When I came to Kabala, my husband visited once, he said he had no money, claiming that I dropped the child with me. I had no way of getting my child back because I have no money.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Your story is a sad one. I really feel sorry that you went through such trauma. When you went to this woman who has your child, did you see the child?

Finnah Daboh - Yes, I spent three days with them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You saw the child and identify him?

Finnah Daboh - Yes, his name has been changed to Mohamed.

Commissioner Torto - Finnah Daboh your explanation is quite pathetic, since you have now recovered the child. Did the people refused to give you the child or is it because of transportation?

Finnah Daboh - My husband said he had nothing. I don't have any means to go for my child.

Commissioner Torto - If you have the means, will you be able to get the child.

Finnah Daboh - Yes, when I went in search of him, they said that the woman had gone to Kono.

Commissioner Torto - Where is the child now?

Finnah Daboh - We met the child in Bamakonta and the woman in charge of him is in Kono.

Commissioner Torto - Which area in Kono?

Finnah Daboh - I don't know.

Commissioner Torto - Is she threatening to take the child away from you?

Finnah Daboh - Maybe.

Commissioner Torto - Was it during peace time?

Finnah Daboh - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - Were there Police Officer's in that village?

Finnah Daboh - I don't know, it is a small village, however, her in-law told her to released the child but she refused.

Commissioner Torto - Why didn't you alerted the chief?

Finnah Daboh - I was a stranger, she told me that we should not go to the Police or the Chiefs as they had different customs. I should go to my husband.

Commissioner Torto - Your husband is refusing because the child was with you?

Finnah Daboh - Yes.

Commissioner Torto - Where is your husband now?

Finnah Daboh - He is in Kondebaia.

Commissioner Torto - What is he doing in Kondebaia.

Finah - He is undertaking some building projects.

Commissioner Torto - Who stopped you from breastfeeding your child?

Finnah Daboh - I was stopped by the doctors and nurses for medical reasons.

Leader of Evidence - I want you to go back to the first event. You said that at one time the rebels had not wanted to kill you because they had killed many people in one of the villages, is that correct?

Finnah Daboh - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - How many of you were amputated?

Finnah Daboh - 10 of us were amputated.

Leader of Evidence - Were you the only woman?

Finnah Daboh - No, four of us.

Leader of Evidence - Your left hand was chopped, was it a policy that they should cut off your left hand.

Finnah Daboh - They said they are cutting the right limbs of men because they are farmers.

Leader of Evidence - Did they give you reasons for that?

Finnah Daboh - After they had chopped off my hand, one of them said that I should go to Tejan Kabba.

Leader of Evidence - Those of you whose hands were chopped off, did all of you survive?

Finnah Daboh - No, My husband's Uncle died and one Samuel Farawah.

Leader of Evidence- Some people were also killed?

Finnah Daboh - Yes, Abass Sesay and Makkah Sesay

Leader of Evidence - Makkah, was he the Police Officer?

Finnah Daboh - No, he was a cook for the Police and ECOMOG, I don't know the name of the police officer who was killed.

Leader of Evidence - You said a child was killed?

Finnah Daboh - No, a suckling mother Aminata was killed.

Leader of Evidence - What happened to the child?

Finnah Daboh - The child is alive.

Leader of Evidence - Your first child is with your husband.

Finnah Daboh - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - You showed us a letter from a tracing agency were you able to see them?

Finnah Daboh - No.

Leader of Evidence - Were you able to meet with them yourself?

Finnah Daboh - No, Sieh Mansaray was helping me.

Leader of Evidence - What did they do?

Finnah Daboh - He wrote a letter and gave me a copy.

Leader of Evidence - You had never received any result?

Finnah Daboh - No, I distributed the letters to different agencies, but to no avail.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you Finnah Daboh for coming to share your experiences, we are sorry that you are distressed. We noticed that the Chairman of the Amputee Association is doing his best to help you. We hope that not long, you will be able to get your child. We have heard many stories, of how people have been reunited with their children. Continue to have hope and determination. After here our staff will talk to you. Have you questions for the Commission?

Finnah Daboh - No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you any recommendations for the Commission?

Finnah Daboh - No, I would like to get assistance from the Commission because I am on my own and my husband has left me.

Commissioner Marcus - Jones - How old is your eldest child?

Finnah Daboh - The eldest is 6, the one missing was 2 years six months by then and the one with me now is 3 years.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - We have been looking at your letter, and the Commissioner has a question for you.

Commissioner Torto - The letter is address to the Director of ICRC, when you took it to him, what did he say?

Finnah Daboh -I was prevented by his security to see him, all the attempts I made were unsuccessful.

Commissioner Torto -From that time, have you been able to see him?

Finnah Daboh - No.

Commissioner Torto - Did you report back to the Chairman of your Association? What did he say?

Finnah Daboh - Yes, he too has his problems, but he has been making moves.

Commissioner Torto - The letter was also copied to NaCSA, they have a representative here, have you made effort to contact NaCSA?

Finnah Daboh - No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you for coming.

The witness was sworn on oath on the Koran by Commissioner Justice Commissioner Marcus-Jones, the Presiding Commissioner.

TESTIMONY

Praise be to God. I was in my village, Luro. I went for food as there was no food. When I came back, I realized that rebels had occupied the village. All my relatives were captured by the rebels. I could not find them, there were four soldiers around, as I moved forward I was halted and the civilians arrested me and handed me over to the soldiers, they told me that nothing is wrong with my family, a man by the name of Pa Saio was ordered to tie me, one of the civilian said that they should not tie me but to kill me.

I told him to allow me take off my boot so that my relatives will see it and know that I have been killed. He fired me on my chest. I cried, his colleague who was much closer to him fired, I ran and another shot hit me on my hand.

Whilst I was running, I tried to remove the bullet from my chest; there was one on top of my eye. There were bullets all over my body. I went into the bush and there was sporadic firing. Pa Seseykay and two others were killed. My two houses and all the other houses were burnt. A man was captured and asked to carry five gallons of palm oil. I spent the night in the bush.

My wife followed me to the ECOMOG base, but there were no drugs, we were advised to go to Alkalia and from there I returned to Kabala, we spent three nights and eventually we went to Freetown and I was admitted at the Government Hospital. At present, we have nothing, unless you help us to educate our children. What we were able to do before the war we can't do now.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you. We sympathize with you for your injuries. What village did all this take place?

Balla Koroma - Luro.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How far is it from Kabala?

Balla Koroma - It is a very long distance.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - How many fingers have you on your right hand, did you lose one of your fingers completely?

Balla Koroma - There are four but two are not working properly.

Commissioner Torto - I sympathize with you for what happened, after all the strains you went through you are still alive. It is a lot of courage. What was the position of your hand before you were shot?

Balla Koroma - .When I was shot the first time, I was carrying my other hand on top of my head. There are fragments all over my body.

Commissioner Torto - Where you the only one attacked?

Balla Koroma - There were three old men and one woman.

Commissioner Torto - What happened to them?

Balla Koroma - The men were killed and the woman was released.

Commissioner Torto - What were their names?

Balla Koroma - Pa Kabba, Pa Sesaykie and Pa Brima.

Commissioner Torto - You traveled from your village to Kabala. How were you able to accomplish that, what kind of assistance did you receive?

Balla Koroma - My wife accompanied me from the village to Kabala, the first person to assist me was one CES worker, Manso.

Commissioner Torto - Were you taken care of in Kabala Hospital?

Balla Koroma - No, I was treated at Connaught Hospital.

Commissioner Torto - What is your present situation?

Balla Koroma - I have pains all over my body.

Commissioner Torto - Did they advise you to go to the hospital?

Balla Koroma - Yes, an MSF Staff in Freetown was helping me to get medical treatment.

Commissioner Torto - I advise you to continue to seek medical treatment in the Government Hospital here in Kabala, or MSF Hospital in Kabala.

Balla Koroma - I have visited the hospital here in Kabala, but they are asking for money.

Commissioner Torto - Have you been able to continue your farming?

Balla Koroma - No.

Commissioner Torto -What are you doing now?

Balla Koroma - I am not doing anything, I have no money.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You have hearing problem as a result of the firing?

Balla Koroma - Yes, I also have problem with my speech.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - What about your sight?

Balla Koroma - Yes, I have eye sight problem also.

Leader of Evidence - I would like to know how many times you were shot?

Balla Koroma - One on my chest the other two on my hands.

Leader of Evidence - Was it on the same day?

Balla Koroma - Yes.

Leader of Evidence - How many people?

Balla Koroma - Three different people.

Leader of Evidence - Do you know the group the civilians belonged to?

Balla Koroma - I cannot tell.

Leader of Evidence - Do you think they belonged to the same group?

Balla Koroma - I don't know.

Leader of Evidence - They were not fighting each other, but attacking the civilians in the village?

Balla Koroma - They did not abduct people in the village.

Leader of Evidence - Can you remember the time this happened?

Balla Koroma - May 15, I cannot tell the year, I spent five years in hospital in Freetown.

Leader of Evidence -Were other people abducted or amputated, or houses burnt or properties looted?

Balla Koroma - No, there purpose was just to kill.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Have you any question for the Commission?

Balla Koroma - We are appealing for your assistance, to educate our children, we sell fire wood to sustain ourselves.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - have you ever been in touch with any NGO?

Balla Koroma - Yes, series of letters written by the Chairman and was sent to them, only the NGOs in Freetown supplied us. I have a family of six, it is only a bag of corn mill that was supplied.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - You talk to our staff. They would be able to refer you so that you can get some medical attention. Unfortunately, TRC had no money. It is not the mandate of TRC to give assistance. At the same time your recommendation will be included in our report. Do you have any recommendation for the Government?

Balla Koroma - No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones - Thank you, keep your courage, you are meant to live, if not with all those bullets you would have been dead by now. Thank you. We have now come to the end hearings here in Kabala and the Koinadugu District. I want to thank all of you who had been assisting us in various ways during our stay here. I thank you all.

OPENING CEREMONY OF PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN MAKENI BOMBALI DISTRICT ON 26TH MAY 2003

General Muslim and Christian prayers were offered.

The Resident Paramount Chief presented a welcome address. He welcomed all present and reminded us of what the TRC is all about and said that the TRC is for the people. He stressed the need for reconciliation for sustainable peace in the country.

Mr. Raymond Tholley, a representative of the Civil Society Movement, also made a statement. He welcomed all to the Hearing stage of the Commission. He said that the Civil Society movement is in support of the Commission's quest for lasting peace in this country. He said that the Public, the Northern Region and the Bombali District are very much appreciative of efforts of the TRC.

Bishop G. Bigguzi made a statement on behalf of the Inter-Religious Council. Bishop Bigguzi said that the Inter-Religious Council is one of the groups that have contributed greatly and has remained committed to the peace process in this country since 1996 when it was formed. He said that healing is a spiritual process and, therefore, the religious people are needed. According to him: "The TRC will help us to deal with the past in a different way. The war must be prevented from happening again and it is necessary to find out the causes of the war so that it will not be repeated." He said that no one should be afraid to speak the truth and look for the truth.

Mr F.B. Kamara made a statement on behalf of the SLPP-Sierra Leone Peoples' Party. He said the lamentation during the APC(All Peoples' Congress) rule made youths to join the rebels to bring the war.

Mr. Koya Kamara made a statement on behalf of the APC party.

Sister Rugiatu Kanu made a statement on behalf of the Women. She said that women were terrorized because they have no strength to fight back. Women, she said, suffered a lot during the rebel war. They were used as sex slaves and so forth. She encouraged all women to come forward and give their testimonies; for so doing, will start to heal the wounds. She made an appeal for the TRC to pay special attention to the sexually abused.

Peter Abass Bundu made a statement on behalf of the NGO Committee. He commends the TRC as a commission that complements the work of the humanitarian agencies. He thanked the Commission for its work in the Bombali District and the Northern Region.

The Provincial Secretary of the Northern Region also made a statement.

The Chairman, Bishop J.C. Humper, made a statement on behalf of the commission. He stated the mandate of the TRC. He said: "Today the Bombali District will experience a change. The commission during the hearing will open the wounds and also heal the wounds." He encouraged people to come forward to give their testimonies. He said TRC is not a court but a family gathering where people come to say what they have done wrong or where they have been wronged. He thanked the people of Bombali and the NGO community.

The vote of thanks was given by Miss Charlris Browne.

1st Witness – Isatu Jalloh

My name is Isatu Jalloh. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

Bishop J. C. Humper - The Commission is ready to give you any support when giving your testimony. The Commission only wants the truth. You are now given the chance to make your testimony.

TESTIMONY

I hail from Sanda. The rebels met me at Sanda. In the first place, I saw a woman coming without clothes on. I asked her what happened. The woman told me: "Don't sit down, the rebels are in our village and are chopping the hands of people." We ran away to hide. That night the rebels came upon us as they attacked Bendembu that night. It happened at 2:00a.m. We were not able to run. The gun shot woke us up. We locked ourselves in the house. They fired gun shots until we heard someone blowing a whistle. We thought they had gone. They started burning houses. We decided to come out instead of being burnt in the house. A woman called Mariatu ;a suckling mother, was the first person to come out. She did not go too far and she was shot down. We heard her child crying and her husband went to pick up the child. As soon as the husband wanted to pick up the child he was shot and killed. We stood there for 10 minutes and I opened the door. When I moved out, I saw a rebel coming with a gun. I retreated in to the room and the rebel came and pushed the door. As I continued to push the door, he fired at the door and the bullet entered into my vagina and passed out through my anus. He called me a bastard because I shouted that I have been killed. I have three children; the youngest of them is eleven years ,the other is twelve and, the eldest is thirteen years . My husband then escaped and I told the children to do the same. The one that is 13 years old took refuge in the mosque and later came back and asked me to go into the mosque. I told the child that I was not going anywhere. The child persuaded me to come out and took me to the mosque. We slept in the mosque. In the morning ECOMOG came and they wanted to take me to their base. I told them to give me water to drink but they refused. The child who had taken me to the mosque, went to fetch some water for me. While waiting, I fainted. ECOMOG took me to their base and told me that I will die. I was not given any medical treatment. I was waiting for a vehicle to take me to Makeni. I was there till 6:00pm before I was eventually taken to Makeni. In Makeni I was taken to the government hospital but I was not treated for three days because they thought I would die. My younger brother came and told the people that since I was talking I would not die and he took me to Magbeseneh hospital at Lunsar. Dr Fernando did two operations on me. I was there and the rebels attacked again after my 9th day. I was brought back to the Makeni hospital. When they saw that it had taken nine days and I was still alive; they accepted to give me treatment. The rebels then attacked Makeni again. I spent eleven days there. There was no way I could be treated; I was taken back to the village because all the roads were blocked. There was no treatment in the village. My condition was deteriorating and maggots were coming out of my vagina. What I did was to boil water with salt in a bowl and sat on it; the maggots stopped coming out. I was there for two years and I came across a man called Ibrahim Kamara. He took me out of the village and brought me to Connaught hospital. I was taken to MSF and they refused to do the operation until they get a report from Dr. Fernando. When we went to Dr. Fernando, he told us that he has no report because all his reports were burnt down. We came back to Freetown. We went again to Dr. Fernando for him to write a report to take to Freetown to the MSF Doctor. Dr. Fernando advised that we should notify the doctor of the kind of operation that was done on me. If the doctor does not know how to do the operation, then, he should not do it. When the doctor saw the paper he said he could do the operation. He then performed the operation. After the operation, I was taken to Grafton Camp and was there when the problem started again. I went again to the hospital but they refused to do another operation but they referred me Mercy Ship. The Mercy Ship people could not do the operation. I went again to Connaught hospital and they charged me Le 500,000 for the operation. Up till now I have done the operation because I have no money. They built a camp for us in Makeni; but I have no furniture, water or cooking utensil for the house. These are the problems that are affecting me now.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: I want to thank you for sharing with us your bitter experience. The Commission will ask some questions for clarification.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: I am sorry for your sad experience. From your story you are not only a victim of the war. The Commission should send a message to the medical profession in this country who on their graduation takes the oath of working to save lives. I am sure their colleagues in other countries will regret and condemn them severely when they hear such a story. They treated you like a piece of wood without any life. I don't think I have any questions for you because your testimony was clear. I can only say that the Commission itself will see what it can do to help you solve your problem. I am sorry.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You mentioned that you still suffer from the medical problem. I want you to tell us the state of your health now. Are you getting any medical attention?

Isatu Jalloh: The problem I have now is I have no medicine and I need treatment. The problem is difficult to solve except an operation is done. The problem is urine passes through my Vagina uncontrollably.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened to your family?

Isatu Jalloh: My family is around and safe nothing happened to them. I am the only person affected

Commissioner Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: I join the Commissioners to sympathize with you. What happened to you gives an insight into what happened to women and children. It is a very moving testimony. I am happy to note that your family is still intact. You are trying to build your life again.
Can you tell me when did this incident happen to you?

Isatu Jalloh: In 1998

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any idea of the faction that did this?

Isatu Jalloh: I do not know.

Commissioner Jow: Where they in combat uniform ?

Isatu Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that ECOMOG was in the village at the time that this incident happened.

Isatu Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us if there was any fight between the group and ECOMOG?

Isatu Jalloh: No. There was no fighting between them.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that you have had no treatment. How then do you cope?

Isatu Jalloh: Whenever I feel the pain I go for some drugs for pain relief.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that your husband escaped during the attack

Isatu Jalloh: He came back but we have separated and I am alone now. I heard he is in Tongo.

Commissioner Jow: Why did he leave you?

Isatu Jalloh: Following this problem there developed these incessant quarrels between us.

Commissioner Jow: Your child was 13years then. What is he doing right now?

Isatu Jalloh: He is going to school.

Commissioner Jow: What sort of support do you have for your son's education?

Isatu Jalloh: I have no support, I try for myself.

Commissioner Jow: What do you do to support yourself?

Isatu Jalloh: I do petty trading like selling cigarettes at home?

Bishop Humper:

We just want to get the story straight that is why we are asking these questions.

Bishop Humper: When the rebels attacked what did ECOMOG do?

Isatu Jalloh: The rebels attacked them unexpectedly. The ECOMOG force retreated for about 30 minutes and then came back and drove the rebels out.

Bishop Humper: Whenever you hear about ECOMOG what comes to your mind?

Isatu Jalloh: I am scared and the fear is still in me?

Bishop Humper: Do you remember the doctor's name who said you should pay Le 500,000 before he did the operation

Isatu Jalloh: I cannot remember the name of the doctor but he was an MSF Doctor.

Bishop Humper: Do you know of any women organization in this country?

Isatu Jalloh: No.

Bishop Jalloh: Have you ever attempted to take this your problem to any government hospital and tell them your condition?

Isatu Jalloh: When I was in Makeni I did not do that. I tried in Freetown but there was no way

Leader of Evidence : Mr.Abdulai Charm

Mr. Charm : I am sorry about what happened to you. You mentioned that one Mariatu was killed together with her husband. Can you tell us their names?

Isatu Jalloh: Yes, Osman Sesay and Mariatu. I cannot tell the surname of the woman.

Mr. Charm: Apart from the two people that were killed, did they kill other people.

Isatu Jalloh: I know some and I do not know some. A lot of people were killed.

Mr. Charm: You said you had to run from your house was your house finally burnt down.

Isatu Jalloh: Yes.

Bishop Humper: We have been asking questions on clarifications.

It is now your turn to ask us questions

Isatu Jalloh: We the victims are suffering but the perpetrators are taken care of. Why is this happening?

Bishop Jalloh: You are not the only person asking that question. We have to look at the whole problem from different angles. There are two groups the victims and the perpetrators. I do not know the rationale but what I know is this: The international community and the government are working together to achieve peace. The implication here is that the government takes guns from the perpetrators by giving them incentives. I must say that if the government have not done this we will not be sitting here. The Commission knows that the Lome Peace Agreement in Article 29 says the government should set up the War Victims' Fund. The Commission is victim focused. What ever the Commission will come out with, the ultimate goal is that the victims' needs must be addressed.

Isatu Jalloh: We see different things happening in our camp. We see that they bring something for the amputees. We the war wounded suffered the same but we are not taken care of. Is this the peace?

Bishop Jalloh: The peace should not work that way. What is happening is that we see that the amputee and the war wounded are all victims. The Commission is working to bridge the gap between the amputees and war wounded. The Commission is trying to say whether you are an amputee or war wounded the Commission is looking at all those who suffered during the war. They should be addressed.

Isatu Jalloh: This problem that I have now is very difficult for me to solve. I want you to tell me how I can solve the problem.

Bishop Humper: That is a very good question. The Counsellor will talk to you at the end of this session.

Isatu Jalloh: Let me stop so far, so that I can give chance to other people.

2nd Witness – Ya Alimamy Kogba

My name is Ya Alimamy Kogba. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Bishop Humper.

Bishop: We hope your contribution will give us an insight of what caused the war. I repeat that the Commission is not a court. Please relax and give your testimony

TESTIMONY

I am Ya Alimamy Kogba and I am a chief. I was married to Chief Kanada Borie II. We were resident Freetown. At the initial time that Freetown began to feel the wind of the crisis, I was pregnant . In view of the panic in town and in respect of my pregnancy we ran for safety to our village Madina, in Tonko Limba chiefdom. While there I began to feel the labour pains . I am a native of Kambia. I went to my relations for delivery. After delivery, my husband came and collected me and we went to Freetown. Because of the high level of the general feeling of insecurity ,we went back to Madina.Now, seven days after my delivery my husband was telling me that he was not feeling well. He was observing his fast. He had asked me to light the lamp. My child needed some attention so I did not have the chance to light the lamp at once. Although by then we were using a generator but since the moon was shining we did not put it on. Now,two boys came to ask for my husband and I told them my husband had gone for prayers. My husband asked me, "I told you to go and call one Pa Alimamy, have you done that ?" I told him Pa Alimamy came but he was not around. Whenever he wanted to break a fast he used grape fruit first. So I gave it to him. My child was still crying. My mate was fasting too. My husband sat on the chair after returning from prayers. I was trying to dress my child when I heard gunshots. I ran and went behind the kitchen. The gunshots continued.I went and sought refuge in the shade of one banana tree. Then people started running in different directions. I asked the people were was my husband and they told me that my husband had fled. I left my child and went to the bush. In the bush I told my husband's friend to collect my child for me. By then I had sustained a foot injury.I said to myself "where should I go." One of my husband's brothers took me to my mother-in-law's village at Mabane. When the old woman saw me, she asked for her son. I said, "I don't know your child's whereabouts". One man told me that he was fired. I wanted to go and see for myself. I was locked into a room and they refused to let me go. They told me that the rebels are looking for me. I pretended that I wanted to ease myself. I then went into the bush. I met some people with bundles on their heads. I met my husband in a pool of blood. I said to him.... It was that from that moment they took me to my village in Kambia. By then my foot was swollen. My mate was screaming because she too was shot. They brought me to Kambia and I stayed there for a while. I told them that my man was not dead but had a broken leg. I was fooled until I was taken to Freetown. I was in Freetown when the ECOMOG intervention force came in.Later on I was at Calaba Town and the rebels entered again. One day the rebels told us that today we are "going to put our last decision". We saw people whose hands were chopped off. They started burning houses. Wherever we turned, we saw houses set ablaze.I took my children,put my luggage on my head and we continued. On our way, we saw them. We went to the National stadium. I was there until my husband's friend said I should go to Guinea. I said I should go back to Tonko to clarify something. My relations told me that I should not go to Tonko. After that, my brother-in-law took me to Tonko. There,my late husband's burial rite was done. My relations insisted that I shall not stay there. I went to Kambia because I lost my father a long ago. The man taking care of me was my uncle. The rebels came back and attacked at night. We ran and passed through a stream because there was nothing we could do for they had surrounded the town. I was with my younger sister. When we were going my child fell into the water and almost drowned. I was just screaming. One man took my child out of the stream. The old man helped me until we reached the safe shores. I had sustained much injury to my body and, whatever was as at then left of my property ,because it the first time that I had to run for dear life through a stream.The child was having difficulty breathing and he was taken to MSF. The child later died. They took us to Pamlap. We were there for six months. I was mourning for my late husband and the rebels attacked us again. The rebels held my younger sister's husband and told him to carry load for them. When he said resisted, he was tied and shot dead. After that time,I had an injury on my head which I sustained through a stray bullet. One Doctor Balla helped me and I did not pay him. MSF did a lot without any payment. We were there and the rebels promised to attack again. We went to Conakry and later they said all Sierra Leoneans should leave Conakry. We joined the boat and went back to Freetown. That is all I have.

Bishop Humper: We will want to ask you questions for clarifications.

Commissioner Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: We want to join the Chairman to thank you for coming here. We are sorry for what happened to you. Not that we have any doubt about your testimony but we need to make some clarifications. Can you tell us where you lived at the time of the incident?

Ya A. Kogba: Yes. I was in my husband's village, in Madina in Tonko Limba Chiefdom.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember the full name of your husband?

Ya A. Kogba: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: In your testimony you said he was killed by two rebel boys.

Ya A. Kogba: No I did not see anybody because I was in the room with my child. I heard only the gun shots.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any reason why they came straight to your house?

Ya A. Kogba: I do not know of any reason. And by then everybody was trying to escape.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: I say thanks to you for your testimony. Like other women you suffered a lot during the war. You also mentioned an old man who helped you with your child. Do you know the fate of that old man?

Ya A. Kogba: I used to see him. He is still alive.

Prof. Kamara: Where is he?

Ya A. Kogba: He is in Kambia

Prof. Kamara: You mentioned of your other children. What happened to them?

Ya A. Kogba: I lost the one that fell into the river because of the difficulties the child went through downing a lot of water when he fell into the stream. We went late to the village. The child could not make it and he died.

Prof. Kamara: You said your sister's husband was shot. Was he killed?

Ya A. Kogba: Her husband was killed?

Prof. Kamara: Where is your sister now?

Ya A. Kogba: She is with me; but she has gone to the village.

Prof. Kamara: Where do you stay now?

Ya A. Kogba: I am staying with my friend.

Prof. Kamara: Who supports your living?

Ya A. Kogba: There is no means of survival. I do it myself because that is the only way I support my children?

Prof.Kamara: You said you were shot on the leg what is the state of the leg?

Ya A. Kogba: I was not shot, but I sustained serious leg injuries.

Prof.Kamara: Do you still feel the pain ?

Ya A. Kogba: No. I used strong ointment to ease the pain.

Prof.Kamara: Have you seen anyone to treat you?

Ya A. Kogba: For now the only thing I do is that I take tetanus treatment every three months?

Prof.Kamara: I am really sorry for what happened to you.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: It is a pity and you have my sincere sympathy for what happened to you.You said your husband was a chief. It is our understanding that the chiefs were targeted for some reason or another. Can you tell us the relationship that existed between your late husband and the people prior to the war?

Ya A. Kogba: I was staying in Freetown. I was not staying there. I do not actually know about it.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Can you please tell us the name of your sister's husband that was shot dead ?

Ya A. Kogba: Yes. He is O'Foday.

Bishop Humper: This is your opportunity to ask questions or make recommendations to the Commission.

Ya A. Kogba: I will want to know why they set up the TRC.

Bishop Humper: It will take me one hour to answer the question. The TRC was established on the negotiating table at the Lome Peace Talks. In Article 9 of that document it has a blanket amnesty for the war. The UN realized the implications of a blanket amnesty and suggested that a body be set up to look into the testimony of perpetrators and victims. It was decided that a body be formed to look into the causes and effects of the war as the war would not have occurred without causes. In Article 26 in the Lome Accord, it has the formation of the TRC. On February 2000 the Act was passed in Parliament.Its primary purpose is to ensure healing and reconciliation without which there could be a repeat of what happened. Because of what happened in South Africa, Yasmin Sooka was sent to work with us. The TRC stands for the truth, bringing together victims and perpetrators to move the process ahead.

Ya A. Kogba: I want to appeal to government for the education of my children. Our people are home less and some live in the camps. I appeal to the government to build houses for them.

3rd Witness – Adama Koroma

My name is Adama Koroma. I am a Muslim. Bishop Humper administered the oath.

Bishop Humper: Adama we are glad you are here to talk to us. I believe that you have been wondering why this should happen to you. You have now the opportunity to come before the Commission. Please be calm and relax to tell us your experience.

TESTIMONY

We were sitting in the veranda. It was dawn at that time and we heard gunshots. We ran and went into the bush. We walked till morning and we reached a village called Babafora. We were there for two months and we ran again. We entered inside the bush. We took a week in the bush and my husband said we have to go back to town. We went to town. This time we went to Babafora ;as were unable to go to where we came from. We stayed there till 11:00pm. As we shut the door we heard the rebels. They were hitting the door. They used such as “bastards open.” My husband was afraid. I opened the door and they held me. They asked me for my husband. I told them that my husband was not around. By then my husband was under the bed. They went in and brought him out. They got a lot of us. They had twenty-six of us and I was the only the woman. They told me to put my hand forward and I did that. They chopped off the hand. They said I should put the other hand. I said, “can’t you leave the other hand with me as I am a woman.” They said “no.” They chopped the other hand. They hit me with the machete and they said “go you bastard.” They lined up the men and they chopped off there two hands. My husband’s two hands and ears were chopped off. I went into the bush. I was there until ECOMOG came. They took me and brought me to Freetown. I took one week in Freetown. I did not know that my husband’s two hands were chopped off. They chopped off the two hands and the two ears. We were there till we got better. He told me that he was not going to live longer. On January 6th I was at the Aberdeen Road Camp; after two months my husband died. Before his death he told me that he will not be able to bear the pain because nobody will assist each other. I stayed in that camp with my children. I was there and then they built a camp for us. They brought us to Matamatma Camp where houses were built for us. We are there but we are still struggling. When I was with my two hands I worked for myself;s but now that I have one hand I have nothing to do. If you ask me today this is what happened to me because as I explained I am feeling it. My husband who used to help me had been killed. I wouldn’t have explained if it were not for the Commission. As I am explaining it is all coming back to me. I still feel the pain. This is my story.

Bishop Humper: We want to thank you for your cooperation. This morning I said it is painful to recall these experiences. I want you to know that the whole world is listening to what we are doing here.

Commissioner Jow: I say thanks to you for coming here. We admire you for your courage and bravery. As the Chairman had said you speak for all the women. We sympathize with you and we hope that you continue to live in your written testimony you spoke about the group called AFRC.

Adama Koroma: I do not know the people because they attacked us at night. They were putting on combat uniform.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember the period

Adama Koroma: In 1998

Commissioner Jow: You said 25 men were captured. Were all the men captured at the same place?

Adama Koroma: There were some strangers amongst those that were captured.

Commissioner Jow: Did they also suffer amputations?

Adama Koroma: Some of them, their two hands were chopped off and some one hand.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember what they said to you when they did this horrible act?

Adama Koroma: They did not say anything.

Commissioner Jow: You made mention of somebody helping you when your husband died.

Adama Koroma: He is Alpha Kanu. He is also an amputee.

Commissioner Jow: What help did he render to you?

Adama Koroma: He was assisting me till he decided to marry me.

Commissioner Jow: Are you still together ?

Adama Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: You told me you have three children; where are they?

Adama Koroma: They are all alive. Mohamed Kanu, Fatmata and Adama

Commissioner Jow: Are they going to school?

Adama Koroma: Yes. The girl is five years. The Seven- Year old, I lost his father following the unfortunate incident and, the other is two and a half years.

Commissioner Jow: How do you support these children?

Adama Koroma: When I was at Aberdeen Camp, I begged for alms but now in Makeni they do not go to school because I have nothing.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any instructional materials in the camp?

Adama Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Thank you for sharing with us your experience. I know it is painful to take you back to this horrible incident.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us what language the rebels spoke?

Adama Koroma: They were speaking krio.

Commissioner Sooka: They caught you and the 25 men; did they come with a specific intention to amputate you ?

Adama Koroma: They did not say it but they had machetes in their hands.

Commissioner Sooka: After your hand was amputated, you went into the bush , did you find out about the others through your husband or you saw the others amputated ?

Adama Koroma: When they brought us out we were counted first. Some of them died because they could not bear the pains. I can call their names: Musa Marah - my husband ;Alpha kargbo, Mohamed Turay ,and Seray Dankay. These are all I know. We used know each other.

Commissioner Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: In your statement you said you were given a message when your hand was chopped off?

Adama Koroma: Yes, it was a message. Even without saying anything when they see you they will know that the rebels chopped off your hand.

Commissioner Jow: Can you still remember those who did that to you?

Adama Koroma: I did not see them; because, we were attacked at night.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara:

Adama we sympathize with you but we are happy that you are here to tell us your experience. You have answered many questions.

Prof.Kamara: You said that they cut off your left hand first and later told you to stretch out your right hand ?

Adama Koroma: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: From what I see it was not completely chopped off. How did you manage to get medical help and how do you use the hand?

Adama Koroma: I am feeling the pain. With the two hands you still have constraints. Let alone one hand. This is not a hand. It is half hand. I cannot do my own work. When I ask for help, even my colleagues may not assist. That is why I go to the room and talk to myself and I say: “what have I done in this world that they should chop my hand off. I have been in my village working for myself. I did nothing wrong to any one. I don’t know what I have done to deserve this. The work that you were doing for yourself you cannot do again”.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper:

I want you to use this opportunity again to share with this audience your experience. Our work is to get the fact, the truth and to record nothing but the truth.

Bishop Humper: The rebels that chopped off your left hand and told you to go and see Tejan Kabba and get another hand from him ?

Adama Koroma: Yes.

Bishop Humper: You said that a house has been built for you, but there are still complaints.

Adama Koroma: Yes. The house is not enough. We can’t go into the house with empty stomach. They give us bulgur¹.The perpetrators that did this to us are given bags of rice but, we are given only bulgur as if we are animals.

Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say you are the chair person of the camp. If it is true what kind of work are you doing?

Adama Koroma: The work I am doing there is this kind of work. I lead the women’s wing and anything that concerns the women in camp, I represent them.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: I have no question

Bishop Humper: Adama it is your own turn to ask questions

Adama Koroma: We the amputees, how are we in this world now ? I am not speaking for myself here. The government should not leave our case behind. It is not for us, it is for our children. If my child grows up and asks me who chopped off my hand, I will say : These people did it to me. That will bring the war again. If you say peace should come, we the amputees should bring the peace. I can not be struggling and say that I am living in peace. That is why our case should be pushed forward. If our problem is left behind, the war will not end. We the amputees we all have children.

Bishop Humper: What kind of recommendation would you want to have so that we can incorporate it in our report.

¹ Bulgur is a very cheap sort of meal that is not really respected among the people of Sierra Leone.

Adama Koroma: This is all I have to say. We have no hands. We should be assisted. If we are assisted we will have peace of mind. All our children can think for themselves now. They ask us who chopped our hands and feet. We have to make our children reconcile their mind.

Bishop Humper: The Commission is not silent with the problems of amputees in this country. This Commission will make sure that things work straight for you in this country. The Commission will put modalities in place in addressing amputees. I say thanks to you for all you have said.

4th Witness – Kadiatu Koroma

My name is Kadiatu Koroma. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Bishop J. C. Humper.

TESTIMONY

On January 6, I left my garden. I used to be a gardener. I left my husband who was partially blind; he was with the children. Initially, he used to be the one involved in this business; but times have changed. Old age and sickness have taken their toll on him. So, on Monday of the week leading to the week of the rebel attack, while about my business, I heard this rumour of impending rebel attack. But we did not take it seriously. We all went about our business. I bought garri for my family. At night the rebels attacked Kissy, Kassel Farm, Old Road. The rebels attacked at night. Then they spent the whole of the day there. There were rebels in military uniform all over. We were confused because people moved from one place to another. People were carrying machetes, guns, clubs etc. There were gunshots all over. People ran helter-skelter.

We went to the house of a woman named Bamba. We went there to seek refuge. We heard them shouting that they were going to set the house on fire. I said to my child, "if you have anywhere to go, please go." All my children were scattered. I could not see anybody because we were surrounded and confused. Where I went to hide, there was something like a stone that hit me under the tree. I felt something piercing me on my shoulder. I thought it was a mango fruit or may be a branch that got shattered and I started removing the mango or so I thought, not knowing it was my bone. Then I cried, "Lord what have I done? My husband what have I done?" I know nobody what have I done? I tried to walk but they started firing gunshots continuously. I managed to get into a toilet and there I lost consciousness. An old man met me in the toilet. I was with one pair of pants and one cloth. They said: go to Pa Kabba and he will give you a hand. In the morning they started chopping people's hands. When they reached to me they told me to close my eyes. After three days, ECOMOG told us that Calaba Town and Wellington people should leave the area.

They told us that they want to clear the areas. I fell down where I was sitting. A man coming from Wellington held my hand but I fell down again. I fell down again at Kissy Road. As we reached Fourah Bay Road, we were told that there were doctors at cottage. I wanted to drink water but they refused to give me because I will die. When I reached cottage, a woman called me and called Mohamed and told him to take me to her child at Will Street. He was a doctor. The doctor said he will not be able to do anything. He advised that I should be taken to Connaught. They brought me back. The woman who wanted to assist me put me on a push cart and I was taken to 34 Hospital. I was unconscious at 34 Hospital. I did not know what was going on. Later I was loaded in a Jeep and taken to Connaught hospital. I wanted to drink water but I was told that I will die if I drank water. I was given drip on the other hand. I removed the drip from my hand because I was thirsty. Then blood started oozing and maggots started coming out of my hand. The other morning, my son came to Connaught hospital and told me that the house was completely burnt. He told me that his father was not at home and the place was surrounded by ECOMOG soldiers. I was at Connaught hospital and treated but they had to do skin grafting. I cannot use the other hand as it does not function well. You may ask :Is this all I have ? This is all I have. I do not have much.

Bishop Humber :

We have heard what you have said. I can only imagine the atrocities that you have gone through

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: We need to ask questions to get a clear idea of what transpired and who took part in the war. Did you say; you were told or that you were informed one week before the rebel attack?

Mrs. K. Koroma: It took one week after I had gone to the garden, when I was told that the rebels were going to attack the town.

Prof.Kamara: When you heard that the rebels are coming did anybody go and tell ECOMOG that rebels were coming?

Mrs. K.Koroma: ECOMOG had not yet come to our own area at that time. They came after the rebels had entered.

Prof.Kamara: Did anybody go and tell the police that rebels were coming?

Mrs. K. Koroma: No

Prof.Kamara: When you said that your hand was chopped off and it took three days before ECOMOG came, is that correct?

Mrs. K. Koroma: Yes, it is true.

Prof.kamara: When ECOMOG realized that you were wounded, did they assist you ?

Mrs. K. Koroma: When I reached cottage ECOMOG managed to take me to 34 Hospital.

Prof.Kamara: How did you get to cottage?

Mrs. K. Koroma: I walked, though with the support of certain individuals. There was no vehicle. I fell severally on my way. There were lots of people.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You mentioned in your testimony that the rebels attacked at night but you also said you did not know the difference because they were all in combat uniforms. My question is, do you not know the difference between them?

Mrs. K. Koroma: I do not know anything. I know only rebels. I do not even know Freetown. I was only taken there by my husband.

Commissioner Sooka: What language did they speak?

Mrs. K. Koroma: I could not even look at them. I do not know the language they were speaking. In Limba country we do not know about this.

Commissioner Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: We have listened to what you have said. It is a moving testimony. When this thing happened to you, were other people there or were you alone?

Mrs. K. Koroma: We were many. There were many other people. It was at night and I can remember when my hand was chopped off and how I got to the Cottage Hospital

Commissioner Jow: What happened to your children?

Mrs. K. Koroma: Nothing happened to them but their father was killed.

Commissioner Jow: Did your children know of what happened to you.

Mrs. K. Koroma: They came to know about this when they got to Connaught. One of them said: "This is not my mother. My mother is not like that."

Commissioner Jow: Are you still staying at Grafton ?

Mrs. K. Koroma: I now stay at Teko Road where a camp has been built for us.

Commissioner Jow: How are you feeling now?

Mrs. K. Koroma: I feel the pain. Even for the whole of today I have continued to feel the pain.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: Is it true according to your records that your husband was burnt alive in the house.

Mrs. K. Koroma: He was burnt alive in the house with all our properties.

Bishop Humper: Where are you children now

Mrs. K. Koroma: They are in Freetown now since I do not have anything.

Bishop Humper: Who are they leaving with now?

Mrs. K. Koroma: They are with their uncle.

Bishop Humper: How many of them?
Mrs.K.Koroma: Three.
Bishop Humper: How old are they
Mrs. K.Koroma: I am not sure of their ages. All the documents were burnt.
Bishop Humper: Who is helping you to pay their fees?
Mrs. K. Koroma: Their uncle is paying their fees.

Leader of Evidence : Abdulai Charm

Mr.Charm: Can you tell us the name of your late husband?
Mrs. K. Koroma: Bockarie Sesay.
Bishop Humper: Kadiatu, do you have any questions ?
Mrs. K. Koroma: What I want you to do for me is that I want you to assist me and my children. The camp where I stay there is no water, no sufficient food. When I was in Freetown I usually begged for alms; but now I know nobody here.
Bishop Humper: Thank you for spending this afternoon with us. All your recommendations will be included in the document.

5th Witness – Alex Santigie Kamara

My name is Alex S. Kamara. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Bishop J. C. Humper.

Bishop Humper: I wish to welcome you on behalf the commission.You will be the last witness for today. We believe you and other people who have given testimonies are helping this Commission in pushing its work forward. We know it is painful giving these statements but it is good in order to bring us together. In this vein we encourage you all to give your testimony.

TESTIMONY

On the 3rd march 1999, I was in Freetown when I received a serious message that my child has been killed at Port Loko. On the following day the 4th I passed through Lungi and went to Port Loko. By the time I got there, he had already been buried. I asked my brother who is working at the Port Loko Teachers' College how my child died. He said my child was trying to travel to Makeni .When he reached the lorry park some CDF called him. They built a hut outside Bai Bureh hall. They called the child and asked him where he was going. They said "we are not going to release you. You are one of the rebels from Makeni and you are trying to go back."

They undressed him, tied him and took him to the back of the hall at Port Loko. He was beaten with sticks until he died. At the back of the hall along barracks road, they dug the gutter and buried him there. When I asked my brother who sent the message to him that my child was killed? He told me: "people themselves came and told me that one rebel was killed." My brother went to look at the body. He then said that it was his brother's child that was killed.

When I reached Port Loko I was not able to identify anybody, all of them had left. In Makeni I investigated matters concerning my son's death. I understood that in Makeni my son and one of his school mates Kayimbo had a conflict. Kayimbo was at Port Loko heading the CDF squad. He and my son had a conflict because of a woman and it was this Kayimbo who ordered his men to call my child. When he came, he ordered his men to tie the boy and he was the first to hit my son. It is painful. My son was attending a secondary school and he was in form 2. Now, I have lost him.

Bishop Humper: This is a short but moving experience. As parents we know what that means.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara:

Prof.Kamara: Thank you very much for sharing that experience. This story is one that is different. It is not one that happened in the conflict itself. So it is one that needs to be examined.
Did you say the name of the man you suspected for the crime is Mohamed Kayimbo?

Alex.S. Kamara: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: You said you investigated for your self; why did you think it was Kayimbo?

Alex. S. Kamara: Kayimbo was the one who went and told my brother that my son was dead. He was the leader of the CDF group that killed my son.

Prof.Kamara: Was that the reason why you suspected him?

Alex. S. Kamara: Yes. The other thing is; he fought with my son over a woman.

Prof.Kamara: What was Kayimbo's position in the CDF?

Alex.S. Kamara: He was a commando of the CDF in Port Loko.

Prof.Kamara: Was your son going to school in Makeni here?

Alex. S. Kamara : Yes.

Prof.Kamara: What happened when they fought?

Alex. S. Kamara: My son was very healthy. During the fight he beat kayimbo.

Prof.Kamara: Because your son and Kayimbo fought he went to Port Loko and heads the CDF and when your son went to Port Loko, he pointed your son out as a rebel?

Alex.S.Kamara: Yes

Prof.Kamara: We are going to contact Kayimbo and tell him that you have called his name. Let him come and clarify issues.

Alex.S. Kamara: I do not know the actual address. But I know his area.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: How old was your son at the time.

Alex. S.Kamara: 27 years

Commissioner Sooka: To your knowledge was he before his death a member of any armed group ?

Alex. S. Kamara: He was also a CDF member at Makeni. When the rebels entered he came to Freetown to meet me.

Commissioner Sooka: When you found out that Kayimbo killed your son, did you approach your son's commander of the CDF unit here in Makeni?

Alex. S. Kamara: By that time my son was no longer a member of the CDF. He was in Freetown. I gave him some money to take to his mother who lived in Makeni. He passed through Port Loko and there he was killed by Kayimbo.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you ever meet Kayimbo and ask him questions about your son's death?

Alex. S. Kamara: When I reached Port Loko, Kayimbo heard about my arrival and he ran away with his group.

Commissioner Satang Ajaratou Jow:

Commissioner Jow: Did you say your son was a student?

Alex. S. Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: In your same testimony you said he was going to school and he was 27 years old.

Alex. S. Kamara: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us if he was in high school

Alex. S. Kamara: He was in form 2

Commissioner Jow: Was he going to school in Makeni

Alex. S. Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: What was he doing in Port Loko at that time?

Alex. S. Kamara: We were in Freetown I sent and him to bring money to his mother in Makeni . He passed through Port Loko

Commissioner Jow: Are you ready to reconcile with Kayimbo ?

Alex. S. Kamara: That is why I gave my testimony. Other than that I would have kept quiet.

Commissioner Jow: Were you able to give your son a befitting burial?

Alex. S. Kamara: I performed all the ceremony. I prayed for him to prepare a way for me.

Bishop Humper: We will ask our Regional Coordinator to try by all possible means to find Kayimbo. You have said your own version but we will try by all possible means for you to reconcile with Kayimbo. Do you want us to make the peace in public or behind closed door?

Alex S. Kamara: Which ever way you want it.

Bishop Humper : We know how you feel. We feel sorry for you. We hope that by the time you leave here you will have peace of mind. We want to thank you for cooperating with us. You will be contacted by us before we leave here. We want to thank you.

Alex. S. Kamara: I am asking this Commission to look into my condition. I am a poor teacher. I want the Commission to look into everything; so that those who have been left behind will be educated.

Bishop Humper: We thank you. It is one of the recommendations we have been getting from people. We assure you we will take it into consideration.

PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN MAKENI ON 27TH MAY 2003

1st – Witness – Pa Kapri N’jai

My name is Pa Kapri N’jai. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Prof. J. Kamara administered the oath.

Prof.Kamara: Pa Kapri you have come here voluntarily. We know that it was not an easy decision to make but having come we want to assure you that this is not a court. It is a peace commission that is likely to bring about reconciliation. Therefore, we will like you to relax and tell us your experience. Go ahead and tell us your experience.

TESTIMONY

In the name of Allah. At the time when the rebels were in the bush they came and burnt our town. They came and burnt Bendembu and we were in Bendembu for three days. They left there and burnt Matebo. We were in the bush. We were there and they came out and stayed at Kabala. We were in the bush for four months. They sent for us that we should return. We were with the rebels and we did things in common. They punished us and took our property. I was crowned in 1964 along with other paramount chiefs. All we worked for from the time we were crowned was burnt and looted. We were tasked to feed them. If you did not do it, they would beat you or you would be killed. We were forced to feed them. One man, whose name was Tyson a native of Makeni, sent for me at round 9:00am one morning. He said I was close to the Paramount Chief. He said I should give him three hundred and forty thousand Leones. I said I do not have it and he said we were the ones killing the rebels. He ordered me to take off my shirt and to sit on the floor; he poured water on the floor. I sat there and he took a G3 gun and placed it into my mouth and passed it on to my throat. When I was shouting my elder daughter named Eba Sesay and my wife Iye Conteh, she is dead now, came and gave Tyson Le50,000. Tyson then released me. He asked me to show him my old name before I was crowned. Since it has been a long time and with so much happening in a man's life, I could not recollect. He took out a knife and pressed it on my chest. He said to me, "get up" and, he asked me to "lie down". In the morning he invited me. Tyson, War bus and his wife told me to forgive them as they have come to fight the rebel war.

As things are now, if I eat an orange, blood will stain the orange. If the beef is not well cooked, I will not be able to chew it. The poison of that gun has spread all over my body. If I am asked here today; this is what I have to say!

Prof. John Kamara:

You are courageous enough to reveal that area in telling us your story. You have given us your experience and we need to ask you some questions so that we can fully understand. We will ask you questions so that we can fully understand what happened.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: We want to thank you for coming here. We want to start off by putting your experience in a context. According to our record you said this happened in 1999.

Pa K. N'jai: I am not an educated man. I cannot recall exactly when it happened.

Bishop Humper: When did it happen to you?

Pa K. N'jai: It was before the "cease fire". That was why I said if after the "cease fire" am asked, I will explain what happened.

Bishop Humper: What group did this to you?

Pa K. N'jai: The rebels. The commander was called War Bus. Tyson was the second in command.

Bishop Humper: You said somebody told you that Sgt. Musa's group burnt your house. Who was that somebody?

Pa K. N'jai: My brother that was captured, Abdul N'jai, told me. His hand was chopped off.

Bishop Humper: You said you were crowned a ceremonial chief and you were asked to do so many things and if you did not perform they will come back to you. Is that correct?

Pa K. N'jai: Yes.

Bishop Humper: What were some of those things that you did?

Pa K. N'jai: They were asking us for food and I was tasking people.

Bishop Humper: Do you know that because they did bad things to you that is why you are here?

Pa K.N'jai: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Do you know that you are a perpetrator?

Pa K. Njai: I am not sure about that.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow

CommissionerJow: We thank you for coming here today. You came of your own free will. This shows that you are ready to join hands with the Commission. The questions we ask are to make some clarification on your testimonyYou spoke about burning of houses and you were not around when your house was burnt. You also said Sgt. Musa's group burnt your house. Can you tell us about Sgt. Musa?

Pa K. N'jai: Now, I am of the Loko ethnic origin,and speaking in the Loko language would allow me more detail and expression. I do not know who Sgt. Musa was.

CommissionerJow: According to what you said you said the rebels stayed in your village and they tasked you to feed them. You also said you did not refuse because you will be punished. How long did the rebels stay in the village and what were the things they made you do as a Paramount Chief?

Pa K. N'jai: The first rebel that came was called Spider and he took three months and they removed him and War Bus came and he took two months. Then they were driven away. They said it was the cease fire.

Commissioner Jow: I want you to tell me the things they made you do as Paramount Chief?

Pa K. N'jai: The contribution they asked for was that I should be with them and if I refused they will beat me. They said I was not cooperating for their feeding. If I go underground the people will desert the village.I was the man that gave the people the courage to stay.

Commissioner Jow: Did you force the people to give you food and money?

Pa k. N'jai: I was asking them and there were other people working with me to go and collect food from the people. Those who refuse we send rebels there and asked them to pay.

CommissionerJow: Did they ask you to give your strong boys to join them?

Pa K. N'jai: No.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: We could gather from your testimony that you were asked to do many things that you would not like to do. My colleague has asked you whether you forced people to give you food. Were you compelled to join them in any of the operations?

Pa K. N'jai: They nearly killed me at one time. It means that if I refused I would be killed. That was why they gave me rebels to accompany me to force the people to comply. At times I did not go with them. They went themselves and forced the people. The rebels went into the houses of people and took their properties. If you refused you would be tied and beaten .It was their moment ;there was nowhere to seek redress.

Commissioner Sooka: "Did you see when they burnt down houses?"

Pa K. N'jai: I did not see them.The time they were coming, people told us that the rebels were coming and on our return;we met the houses all burnt down.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they kill or punish anybody in your presence?

Pa K. N'jai: We saw an old woman lying dead on the ground. Her name was Ya Fatu. As we were going we also saw an old man dead. His name was Pa Santigie. It is against custom for me to see corpses.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you know that the people in your village think that you were with the rebels?

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: We want to know about some of the people you have named. Do you know what happened to Tyson? Is he still alive?

Pa K. N'jai: I heard that he is in Freetown

Prof. Kamara: Will you be able to identify him?

Pa K. N'jai: If he is here now, I will identify him.

Prof. Kamara: What about Sgt. Musa?

Pa K. N'jai: I did not see him with my eyes. The ones I saw were Tyson and War Bus.

Prof. Kamara : What was the other name of War Bus?

Pa K. N'jai: He was Major War bus.

Prof. Kamara: Are your family members all with you?

Pa K. N'jai: Yes; but my wife is dead.

Prof. Kamara: Not in the hands of rebels.

Pa K. N'jai: No.

Prof. Kamara: In 1999 when CDF was established all over the country, did you have them to protect you?

Pa K. N'jai: Except when Kamajors were sent to Kalamba. I left Makeni for kalamba. The first people sent there were Pa Foday and Pa Johnson.

Prof. Kamara: Did they help to drive the rebels?

Pa K. N'jai : When they heard that the SLA had taken Makeni, they pulled out.

Prof. Kamara: The CDF did not engage the rebels at all in Kalamba?

Pa K. N'jai: No

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You told us that Tyson is in Makeni now .Have you seen him?

Pa K. N'jai: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: Where and when?

Pa K. N'jai: I saw Tyson about 4 months ago. He told me to buy him rum. I abused him. He said "a pa" and then he left. Since that time I have not seen him. At that time the cease fire was clearly in place ;so I had the chance to say anything I cared to him.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us why Tyson did not succeed when he tried to kill you?

Pa K. N'jai: Divine intervention!

Commissioner Jow: Is that why he left you?

Pa K. N'jai: He told me to go and lie down.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: Now that you have told us that Tyson is around will you be willing to reconcile with him?

Pa K. N'jai: Since you have come with peace I will do it. We too want peace.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You have mentioned to us that your town was burnt down. Can you tell us the extent of damage done to your town?

Pa K. N'jai: 86 houses were burnt to the ground at Kalamba. All I know when Kalamba was burnt more houses were burnt at Bendembu. Bendembu was better than what they did at Mateboya. I cannot give you the precise number of houses burnt in the other villages.

Commissioner Jow:: What would you recommend to the Commission in order to foster peace in your village ?

Pa K. N'jai: What I want to say is that the gun that was put into my mouth the poison scattered within my body. They burnt down our town: school, barrie² and office were all burnt down. My appeal to the government is to assist in building these again for us. As I am presently sick I want to ask if you can help me. I want you to assist our chiefdom. I am pleading your help .

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: We can not say anything to say to you now unless you make your requests specific. Once we have that then we will know what to say.

Pa K. N'jai: I have said it all. As I sit here I am sick. But we are all here for peace. Otherwise, why should I be reconciled with a man like Tyson when every single orange that I eat and the blood stains on it rudely reminds me of him? So I want you to help rebuild my chiefdom; so that it can be what it was before. The Paramount Chief is sick and cannot walk. The speaker is also sick and I am the youngest.

Prof.Kamara: As you have said you are the Pa Kapri in the chiefdom. The recommendations that you have made are not different from what other people have said. We will do our best as a result of your present condition to have a counsellor to talk to you. Our staff will talk to you later on in the course of our duty. I want to say thanks and wish you the very best in your endeavour.

2nd – Witness – Zainab Kanu

My name is Zainab Kanu. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Prof. Kamara administered the oath.

What you have come to say here is done voluntarily, having considered all the circumstances. I want you to know that this is not a court and any thing you say here will not be taken to court. TESTIMONY

My people, good afternoon. I am about to say what RUF did to me. I hail from Bendembu Nuwahun Chiefdom. When the RUF went to Bendembu, they were training men at that time. We went in search of food. We were not aware that rebels were in town. When returning in the afternoon, we fell into an ambush. We were held. They asked us to cook for them. We did as we were told. As we were serving the food, a helicopter gunship came and passed by and we all scattered. I tried, unfortunately, I was unable to run away and was captured again. One boy came and said he loves me. The other one said no. He said forcefully she is mine. He held me and I was with him. At night he took me to a room and asked me to go to bed with him. I refused. He forced me and put me on the ground. At that time my family were in the bush. There was no way my family could come to town. I was with them for a while until after the training. At that time I was pregnant. We moved to Kono and slept at YSS* compound. We were there till my pregnancy was 9 months and I was delivered. As I delivered, my father went to Kono to look for me. He went to another man called Fambulleh. He was the commander of the man who held me. He met Fambulleh about my affairs and said he wanted to see me. Fambulleh told him that he was not the owner of me. The owner is here. My father and his brother went to him. They went to Alhaji. As my father was talking to Alhaji they told him to lower his voice. He was asked if I was a captured. My father said yes. He said: "Praise God your daughter was not killed. The one she is staying with if he is willing to release your daughter she is yours". My father went to Fambulleh. As Fambulleh saw my dad he went away. My father was given food to eat. After eating he asked for me. He was asked to go and speak with them. My father told them that "this man captured my daughter at Bendembu and brought my daughter to Kono and he did not pay any bride price. What I want is my daughter and let this man stay with his own child." I told my father that we should sit together and talk. I asked the man what "you are going to give me if my father decides to leave me here for a month?" My father said that the man should not worry about the transportation costs as he would take care of it. My father said I was too young. My father said, "I don't want to know anything about your own child, I only want my daughter. They said my father should ask me what my opinion was.

Then my father asked me "Zainab I have come for you." I said: "This is my father, I am in support of whatever he says. My father should say thanks to you for all what you have done to me because we can not talk bad about you. Because the child is young we do not know what the future will bring." I stayed for a month and when I asked him, he did not give me anything. After they disarmed, I asked him for money but he did not give me anything. Besides that they paid them Le300,000. I asked him to give me Le50,000. He said he has no money. I got up and went to my uncle at 55 by the name of Alikali Kanu. He met me there and he gave me the Le50,000. At that time it was Le25,000 for transportation from Makeni to Kono. I paid Le15,000 to my village. I had a child with me 3 months old Fambulleh. I did not meet my mother she was taken to Freetown by my sisters. I did not meet my dad also. I lived on the Le15,000 and when the 15,000 finished I broke palm kernel; made nut oil out of it and sold it for my leaving. I continued the breaking of the palm kernel for a long time till my mother came. My mother helped to feed me and my child. We continued like that till the child was weaned. I said that Fambulleh has done a bad thing to me and I will go and look for him and take him to the police station. By this time normalcy had returned and with it the rule of law. The law can again take its course. Therefore, I boarded a bus and came to Makeni to look for him but I did not see him. I went to Kono; where I met my uncle. In the morning, I went to Yengema and I met his brother Momoh. I asked him the whereabouts of Umaru? He said he went to their home. I asked Momoh to show me where he lives and we took a vehicle to Gano. We went to Masayneh where we asked about him. They told us that he has left the village. I had Le50 with me. I walked till I reached Ganu. I got a free lift and reached koidu town. I cried to my uncle that I had nothing. My uncle found a vehicle for me to return home. Before I do anything harmful, I decided to report to TRC. Note: I was attending school. I was 15 years old and was in class 5. That is what is disturbs and makes me so sad about it all. And if he cannot think of me, let him think about his own child.

Prof.Kamara: Zainab you have done a wonderful thing. I believe your problem is one thecountry should solve. Some of the things that happened during the conflict still have consequences for the people. The nation has decided to do something concerning all what had happened. We have listened to your sad story. We need to ask you some questions.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: Thank you for sharing your testimony with us We need to ask you questions to know what happened to you because the Commission has a mandate to make recommendations for women and girls. They have destroyed your education and your life is in turmoil .How old were you at the time you were abducted?

Zainab Kanu: I was 16years plus when I was abducted.

Commissioner Sooka: How many other girls were abducted with you?

Zainab Kanu: Three of us.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened with you if you refused to have sex with them?

Zainab Kanu: Even if you refused they would go ahead and do it by force.

Commissioner Sooka: Were you raped by more than one person or just this one man?

Zainab Kanu: It was only the one man who abducted me.

Commissioner Sooka: How long did you stay with him?

Zainab Kanu: Two years plus.

Commissioner Sooka: Was he kind or cruel to you?

Zainab Kanu: At first he was nice to me and later he treated me badly.

Commissioner Sooka: What did he do to you?

Zainab Kanu: We fought virtually every time.

Commissioner Sooka: Did he force you to work for him?

Zainab Kanu: He did not force me to work for him. Sometimes he misbehaved and beat me.

Commissioner Sooka: During the time you stayed with him did he take any drug?

Zainab Kanu: No. I do not know.But he never took any in my presence.

Commissioner Sooka: He never tried to force you to take any drug?

Zainab Kanu: No

Commissioner: During the time you were with him did he force you to take part in any operations?

Zainab Kanu: No

Commissioner Sooka: You mentioned that you stayed in one place until the training was over. Can you tell us about the training?

Zainab Kanu: I was an ordinary civilian amongst them. The training was not done in town. I did not see where the training was going on. In the evening they returned to town.

Commissioner Sooka: You said your father visited you. How old was the baby at that time?

Zainab Kanu: The child was then a month old .

Commissioner Sooka: Did you want to stay with the man or wanted to return home with your father?

Zainab Kanu: I was ready to return home because all was not well.

Commissioner Sooka: During your delivery did you have a nurse to help you or were you alone?

Zainab Kanu: I had a nurse.

Commissioner Sooka: Where did the nurse come from?

Zainab Kanu: The nurse was a civilian. She was in town that particular time and she likes me.

Commissioner Sooka: Did he rape again you during the time that you stayed with him?

Zainab Kanu: I was with him and anytime he wanted, he did it.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you have any health problems?

Zainab Kanu: I have problem.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us a little bit about that Zainab Kanu: I have problem with my foot. If I sit for a long time, it will go numb.I also have a problem with my right hand. At one time we fought and he beat me on my right hand.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow

CommissionerJow: You have given us an insight of how girls suffered. We are happy to note that you have returned and you want to move on , to continue your life. You have your mother and father to assist you. You said you were abducted. How many of you were abducted?

Zainab Kanu: Three of us.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us if the other girls were equally abducted into wives?

Zainab Kanu: They ran away the next day.

Commissioner Jow: Were you from the same village?

Zainab Kanu: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell me where you stayed during the 2 years?

Zainab Kanu: YSS compound

Commissioner Jow: Where there other girls there?

Zainab Kanu: Yes. Some of them were wives and others work for them.

CommissionerJow: Can you tell us how the YSS was organized as a rebel base?

Zainab Kanu: I do not know . I was a civilian amongst them. They do not allow us to know their business.

Commissioner Jow: Did they train people at YSS?

Zainab Kanu: They did not train people there; but that was where we usully retired to at night

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us how many people were in YSS.

Zainab Kanu: I do not know.

Commissioner Jow: Were there young boys amongst them?

Zainab Kanu: Yes all of them were young boys.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the age of your bush husband?

Zainab Kanu: He was 21. His name is Umaru Lahai.

Commissioner Jow: Did you see other girls being punished?

Zainab Kanu: Everybody faced his or her own business.

Commissioner Jow: We want to know what YSS looked like.

Zainab Kanu: Every master had his own wife and bodyguard.

Commissioner Jow: We have heard about Mammy Queen. Did you get one in your own base?

Zainab Kanu: There was no mammy Queen.

Commissioner Jow: How do you feel now?

Zainab Kanu: I feel my leg and my hand at the end of every month.

Commissioner Jow: Do you feel annoyed or sad?

Zainab Kanu: Just moody .I sit quiet whenever I feel some of these pains.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have nightmares?

Zainab Kanu: No.

Commissioner Jow: How old is your son now?

Zainab Kanu: He is 1year and 8 months

Commissioner Jow: If I got you right, he was given his father's name ?

Zainab Kanu: No.He was given his boss man's name.

Commissioner Jow: When you see him does he remind you of his father?

Zainab Kanu: Yes . That is why I am annoyed with him because he has refused to take his responsibility.Which is the reason why I am making this report .

Commissioner Jow: How do you support your boy?

Zainab Kanu: I make nut oil out of palm kernel and sell for our survival.

Commissioner Jow: Did your community accept you?

Bishop Humper: We are interested in your story and we are concerned about you just like all the others. I want you to know that this Commission unlike other commissions is particular about women and girls. This Commission is given a special mandate to look into the violation of women and girls. What is the name of your child?

Zainab Kanu: He is Ibrahim Fambulleh.

Bishop Humper: We are now talking about the condition and circumstances in which you were held captive and you have your child named after the commander. It is possible that you will never see the Commander or Umaru. Are you and your parents thinking of giving the child another name?

Zainab Kanu: Yes

Bishop Humper: What do you do presently?

Zainab Kanu: I do not do anything now

Bishop Humper: Are you thinking of getting involved in doing skills training?

Zainab Humper: Yes

Bishop Humper: Talking about your child you said he reminds you of Umaru Lahai? Are you still in love with him?

Zainab Kanu: No

Bishop Humper: You said that the only thing you have against him is because he did not support the child. Am I correct?

Zainab Kanu: Because he does not support my child that is why I do not love him. If I stay with him he will do the same thing. I am poor and I want you to assist me and my family.

Bishop Humper: What if Lahai supports your child, will you like to see him again?

Zainab Kanu: Let Lahai support his child. I do not want to stay with him any longer. Yesterday we ate porridge at home.

Bishop Humper: Do you know where Fambulleh is?

Zainab Kanu: I do not know where Fambulleh is at present.

Bishop Humper: Did Fambulleh know that your child was given that name?

Zainab Kanu: Yes. His wife gave the child that name.

Bishop Humper: Now you are thinking of changing the name of the child. Which name do you want to give him?

Zainab Kanu: I will name him Tejan.

Bishop Humper: Why?

Zainab Kanu: Because I was abducted and mishandled during Tejan Kabba's government.

Bishop Humper: What about the child's surname?

Zainab Kanu: I will name him Tejan Sesay.

Bishop Humper: Why do you want to name him Sesay?

Zainab Kanu: I am Kanu and my mother is Sesay. My mother is suffering with the child. That is why I want to give him her name.

Leader of Evidence :Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Thank you for sharing your experiences with us. You mentioned to us that you were in school before you were abducted. Do you still want to go to school?

Zainab Kanu: I still want to go to school. By next year I would like to learn a trade.

Ms. Apori -Nkansah: What kind of trade?

Zainab Kanu: Hair dressing.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: You have done well by answering all our questions. Now, we want you to ask us questions.

Zainab Kanu: If I see Umaru Lahai should I deal with him or should I bring him to you so that you can deal with him?

Prof. Kamara: This question is difficult to answer. We want to find a way to bring you together.

Zainab Kanu: I say so because Umaru has maltreated me all the way .He said that he was an RUF and a child of God,therefore,he believes nothing will happen to him or harm him. I am a Loko I want Umaru to remove his trousers and walk in the streets, naked; but because you have talked to me, when I get hold of him, I will bring him to you for you to deal with him.

Prof.Kamara: It seems you know where Umaru is. Can you tell us?

Zainab Kanu: Yes. I heard he is in Tongo mining diamond.

Prof.Kamara: Do you have any recommendations to make?

Zainab Kanu: I want the government to help me to go to school this year. If it is not possible I would like to be helped in skills training. For my child I left him suffering from diarrhoea and I want the Commission to help me with drugs for my child.

Prof.Kamara: You said you want to go to school.

Zainab Kanu: Yes

Prof.Kamara: You said you want to learn hairdressing.

Zainab Kanu: Yes

Prof.Kamara: For you child's health we will let our staff talk to you to see what can be done.

3rd – Witness – Mohamed Augustine Brima

My name is Mohamed A. Briama. I am a Christian. Commissioner Prof. kamara administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

I thank you very much. I am here to tell you of what I did and what I saw during the 10 years conflict. I come from a place among the Eastern provinces of Sierra Leone, which is Kailahun. The time we were still children, in the 1960's and the 1970's our relatives used to tell us about an old man that made a prediction about this war. His name was Salia Koroma. He was born in one village near Kenema called Botimu. I am not into tribalism; but I am a Mende. I am quite sure that whoever is a Mende can say that I am saying the truth. The Pa predicted that war will come to Sierra Leone and that the war will be gruesome.

Before I go further, I want the Commission to know that I was with the RUF and I was an Administrator within the security department from 1992 to 2001. I was working as Chief Clerk responsible for the maintenance of law and order among our men. To start with, the war came to Sierra Leone through the border in Bomaru in March 23 1991. After that, the war went to where I was born in Pendembu, Kailahun District. The war met us in April the same year. From my village and where the war started it was just 25 miles.

When they captured my home Pendembu, we were all gathered in broad day light both young and old. They tried to educate us about the war. They tried to persuade us to join them. The most important thing why they were able to convince us was that after we have joined them we will get free education, electricity supply, good roads and water supply. During that time it happened that I have just completed my fifth form and my parents were poor and they were unable to support me further. After that they told us that we should cooperate with them, my first responsibility within the RUF was with the rebels from Liberia. They elected me as a town clerk. The village is Bana. I was working with the Lt. Commander and his deputy. My responsibility was to ensure that whenever they come into town, that they got the food, women, meat and whatever they wanted which we have. This was the responsibility of which I was made the coordinator. The town commander and the deputy were uneducated and were not able to control the rebels. I was working with them. After these rebels had eaten all the goats, sheep, fowls, and the livestock was exhausted for all practical purposes, they still continued to demand for more. I tried to talk to my people to raise some of these fowls and goats but the rebels had no time for that sort of talk. At that time, if you refused them something you would be dead. In one occasion, what we gathered and gave to them they rejected it. They took me to the road and nearly killed me, saying that I had disgraced them. At that time we heard that they have just killed a town commander because he did not find food for them. I was lucky that they did not kill me. After that, in August that same year, we saw another group of rebels and they gathered all of us in the village. They persuaded us to go to the base and train to fight for our country. They too highlighted free education etc.

Because of my poor background which made it impossible for my parents to support my education and the rebels made promises of good opportunities if I joined them, I had to do so. They took us to a base in Pendembu where we were trained for 3 months; both in intensive military and guerrilla warfare. We went to the base in August and graduated in November. My first responsibility from the base was as an adjutant to one ground commander. I was there for a while and I was withdrawn. I was then assigned to the office as deputy military police in January 1992. I worked within that capacity for sometime. After that there was a mass enemy advancement that caused us to retreat. In Kailahun I was given the responsibility to take care of a section at Wuwawh Chiefdom in 1992. I was later withdrawn there and assigned to the head office in Kailahun and given the responsibility of chief council. We retreated again because of enemy advancement. We went and found a new base at Balahun, which is ten miles from Kailahun in September 1992. Finally in November 1992, the enemies were able to overcome us and we fled into the jungle. We stayed in the jungle for a while and tried to make a living. We were trying to regroup. Within that time the Chief Clerk I was working with died. After his death, I succeeded him as Chief Clerk in December 1992. His name was Jonathan Mark Saidu. We transferred the headquarters to Jama town in 1993. Later we went to Gwadu. At Gama I went through something that was traumatic. It happened this way, during the advancement of the Kamajors at that time, one of my elder brothers who stayed back at home had joined the Kamajors. When the Kamajors advanced, in the heat of the battle, my brother was captured. He had single-barrel gun with him. He was taken to the Headquarters in Gaima. I told the boss man that he was my brother. At that time the situation was so tense. I tried to plead with my boss to release him; that I will take care of him. But the enemy advancement did not relent. Then my boss got my brother, tied him up and executed him right in my presence. Immediately after that the boss man gave me an assignment that I had to go to the border. I obeyed his command I had no choice as I was afraid to die. Later my boss man and I in January 1999 were sent to Segbwema to maintain law and order in Segbwema. After that we were called back to report at Gwadu. Finally in December 28, 2000, my boss and I were reassigned to Makeni to "maintain situation" following the conflict between the UN peace keepers and our brothers. By then things were out of control. But then the commander General Issa pressed for us to put things under control. In Makeni we went through hard times but by God's grace we succeeded.

Prof.Kamara: Thank you very much for your very important testimony. I am sure you will be able to answer questions from the Commissioners and Leaders of Evidence. I believe that the Commissioners have a lot of questions especially when we have just come from Kailahun.

Bishop Humper: I want for you to know that we are looking out for people like you to come before the Commission and tell us what you did, why you did it.From your presentation the Commission believes that you are one of the perpetrators and a witness. Are we right to think so?

M.A Briama: Yes.

Bishop Humper: How did you feel and what were you thinking when you watched your brother die before you even though you had pleaded?

M.A.Briama: I felt bad. But I reckoned that war is dangerous and that war is trouble.

Bishop Humper: You said you started from 1991 and up to this time God has helped you to go through it all. What went wrong during the revolution in such a way that the atrocities caused were as wicked as if you came from another world?

M. A. Briama: As the Pa said, the war came in Sierra Leone in March 23, 1991 and the war came with some promises and those promises made us to join them and, we were there to make it succeed. I am here in front of the Commission; from 1991 when the war started before our alliance with the AFRC, the revolution was a disciplined one. Offenders were strictly disciplined; but the moment we merged with the AFRC things went out of hand. There was no control. It was at that time that the cutting of limbs started. I am telling the Commission that that was not the ideology of the RUF. That was why the RUF fought with only guns. But the merger with the AFRC and the insurgence of the Kamajors brought the destruction.That was why those of us given the responsibility to take care of discipline had the real hell of a time. At that time Sankoh was in Nigeria.

Bishop Humper: Mohamed I thank you. The Commission has a great responsibility. We need people like you to come forward. People like you will help us to know what caused the war. We are not here to take you to court or jail. We only want to make reconciliation

Commissioner Jow: I want to thank you for coming before the Commission. It takes a lot of courage for somebody to appear as a perpetrator and we appreciate your story. You spent most of your time with the RUF in Kailahun and according to what you told us,at present, you are only temporarily in Makeni. Can you tell us why you testify here and not in Kailahun?

M. A. Briama: I decided to testify here because I am not in my home.

Commissioner Jow: Do you want to tell us you stay here in Makeni?

M. A. Briama: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Is there any reason ?

M. A. Briama: Yes I am here to acquire more knowledge. During the DDR I choose to learn computer to sustain myself. I thank God we have gone through the programme. It is not enough for me. These facilities are not extended to my village that is why I am here.

Commissioner Jow: Is it true that you were town clerk in your village ?

M. A. Briama: The town commander was Swary Ensah , Deputy was Lamin Brima.Both are dead.

Commissioner Jow: Did they die during the war?

M. A. Briama: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Was it during battle?

M.A. Briama: One died because of hunger. The deputy was a member of the fighting force and was killed in a battle.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that you were responsible for finding food for the rebels.

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Were people willing to give food at the beginning?

M.A. Briama: As I said, people just had to do that. Initially ,we were doing this for our people ;but it came to a time when everything was, given the situation, out of control.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us some of the things you did to your people to give food to the rebels. Did you punish them?

M. A. Briama: They were doing it willingly.

Commissioner Jow: They never refused to give?

M. A. Briama: No.

Commissioner Jow: Can you give us an idea of what life was like in the base?

M.A. Briama: Life was very tense and tedious. They took us to the base and it was raining. We were wet and they took us out of there to learn how to survive in an ambush.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that the three months training was difficult.

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: You lived in Kailahun for quite a while. Do you know the slaughter house?

M. A..Briama: No.

Commissioner Jow: Have you ever heard of the slaughter house where the Kamajors were slaughtered?

M. A. Briama: No.

Commissioner Jow: Since you were part of the RUF. Did you ever kill or commit atrocities?

M. A. Briama: I never killed. According to my statement I have been an administrator. I will not deny that I did commit human rights violation. There were times we tried to enforce law and order and because we had a lot of them who were not disciplined we had to use difficult punishment. We dealt severe punishment to those burning houses.

Commissioner Jow: My question was referring to civilian rights.

M. A. Briama: Civilians were included because some of them too were doing wrong. For instance, there were a lot of civilians breaking into houses and we had to use these punishments.

Commissioner Jow: Did you kill as a sort of punishment?

M. A. Briama: No.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka:

Commissioner Sooka: I want to know how old you were when they first came into your village?

M. A. Briama: 27 years.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell me the people who came to your village where they came from ,were they Sierra Leoneans or Liberians?

M. A. Briama: Liberians.

Commissioner Sooka: It is probably true that the people accommodated them when the rebels first came.

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Commissioner: The situation probably changed as more and more demands were made on the people .

M. A. Briama: Yes. The community began to change after they had eaten all the food. The other time they came they forced people to meet their demands. They slept with people's wives in public.

Commissioner Sooka: It is clear from what you said that even at that early stage they were beginning to cause atrocities.

M. A. Briama: Those Liberians were not good. It was because of some of these behaviour that we drove them out of the country. They were killing our people and going after them in the bushes and our leader gave us an order to fight them and we drove them out of the country.

Commissioner Sooka: You had to obtain food for them? In a sense you were an agent.

M. A. Briama: Yes. I was collaborating with them.

Commissioner Sooka: When you were asked to find women for them what did you actually do?

M. A. Briama: If they wanted any woman, I would talk to her and try to link them.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened if the woman refused?

M. A. Briama: The woman would be forced to leave the village or forced to be their wife.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us the number of people that were abducted?

M. A. Briama: 12 of us were abducted.

Commissioner Sooka: First, you said you gave up yourself voluntarily; but now you said you were abducted.

M. A. Briama: I say abducted in this sense: After they had sensitized us about their focus I made up my mind to go with them. However, my mother told me that if I ventured to the base something would happen. So I stayed back. After that they came and captured 12 of us. My mother had no alternative but to let me go and she prayed for me.

Commissioner Sooka: How many of you were at the base?

M. A. Briama: About 500

Commissioner Sooka: You said that the military training was difficult. Can you tell us what was done in the training?

M. A. Briama: Our training commander is dead. He was third commander in the Revolution, a special force trained in Libya. He trained us in guerrilla warfare. We went through ambushing; they taught us about FFAB in all positions ;when you are attacked how to escape. We were also trained in terms of communication in the field.

Commissioner Sooka: You know these things very well.

M. A. Briama: I was fortunate because the book that Sankoh came with which had all the belief that we should go by was always in my file. It was my companion.

Commissioner Sooka: You told us that the bad things were done when AFRC and RUF got merged. But even before the merger, the RUF abducted men and women?

M. A. Briama: Yes; by then our own understanding was to get more personnel because the revolution was for every body.

Commissioner Sooka: The question I ask is was it a policy?

M. A. Briama: It was not a policy to take somebody by force.

Commissioner Sooka: Did the order come from the boss to abduct people to join the RUF?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: The order to rape women was it from the boss or was it done by the RUF themselves?

M. A. Briama: These were the sort of things that we tried to prevent .Even at that, it continued.

Commissioner Sooka: When they were chopping people's hands what did the elders say?

M. A. Briama: They gave us strict orders to identify those people involved, investigate them and where guilty, punish them.

Commissioner Sooka: Which kind of punishment was given to them?

M. A. Briama: Where found guilty you were put in prison for 3 months or you received 250 lashes.

Commissioner Sooka: Many people say to the Commission that some RUF-men burnt houses and some chopped hands and feet. Was there any order from the elders?

M. A. Briama: No

Commissioner Sooka: Do you remember that when people's hands were chopped off, they were given message to Tejan Kabba?

M. A. Briama : Such a thing was never reported to my office.

Commissioner Sooka: Were you ever involved in the forceful recruitment of anybody, or sexually- abused any woman, or have you ever killed anybody ?

M.A. Briama: I never forced anybody to join the RUF. The only small boy I had with me Abu; he was abducted. One morning our brothers were in patrol and he was abducted while in his farm. I identified him as my brother. I sent him to the base to train. He is still with me in my village . On the other hand ,I have never sexually harassed any woman. I have two wives and I met both of them during the war.I met the first woman in the course of duty.It happened that this woman lost her husband's twenty thousand Leones and we tried to solve the problem but the man refused. After that incident I fell in love with the woman and she is presently with me. The woman found another woman for me and; we have thus stayed together.For killing, I have been in the office all the time and I have never killed anybody.

Commissioner Prof.John Kamara:

Prof. Kamara: You were in the MP from about 1992 January. Am I correct?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Will you also agree that that branch is the most dreaded by the people ?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Will you also accept that you collected everything the RUF needed from the people?

M. A. Briama: Within the RUF we had a group called G5.

Prof.Kamara: When you were in Kailahun do you know the PC³ elected at Luawa Chiefdom? Were you the one who flogged the chief because he failed to collect items from the people?

M. A. Briama: No.

Prof.Kamara: But you are aware that the MP was responsible to see that the people do what the RUF says?

M. A. Briama: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Do you want reconciliation with the people of the North and Kailahun. If you are to succeed with us we want to encourage you to come out with the truth. Not only to come out with the truth in Bombali but also in Kailahun. How many times did you have to enforce the demands of the RUF when you were in the MP?

M.A. Briama: It happened several times.

Prof.Kamara: Can you give us some examples.

M. A. Briama: Yes. During the time the leadership was in Zogoda; they sent to us in Kailahun for food and other items. We sometimes bought 50 to 100 bags of rice and we call the civilians and tell them to carry the items to Zogoda.The civilians were tasked to provide food and oil. They were tasked to clean the roads .

Prof.Kamara: Did you also have to flog or kill people if they failed to comply?

M.A.Briama: We were not shooting but we were flogging people who failed to comply.

Prof.Kamara: You spent some times in Buedu. Are you aware of the dungeon where they were putting people for punishment?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Did you ever put people in this dungeon?

M.A. Briama: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Can you tell us how many people you put there?

M. A. Briama: Many people. One of the people that I put there was one Mohamed Sankoh. He crossed over to Liberia and this was against the policy. At that time Mosquito was the commando. We had orders from Mosquito that when Mohamed returned he should be flogged and put in the dungeon. Later we found out that he was dead.

³ PC: An abbreviation for Paramount Chief

Prof.Kamara: Was he the only one that died in the dungeon?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: You were asked one time about the slaughter house.

M. A. Briama: They asked me earlier on about the slaughter house and what I know about some Kamajors that were arrested in Pendembu and taken to Kailahun. I understand that Mosquito came to Kailahun and executed those Kamajors and gave command that some should be put in jail. Later on, he gave command that they too should be killed.

Prof.Kamara: What other atrocities did you carry out or commit when you were in the MP. You told us some not all.

M. A. Briama: As far as I know, I do not think I have been involved in any other thing, except enforcing the law. In the office I rendered a lot of assistance to people. Even in Makeni I gave a lot of assistance to people.

Prof.Kamara: You were responsible for helping the RUF whenever they were short of anything; by making necessary contact with the chief in Kailahun?

M. A. Briama: Yes. And he knows me very well

Prof.Kamara: At one time you gave him a good beating.

M. A. Briama: No, Sir.

Prof.Kamara: Are you prepared to apologize in Makeni and Kailahun. Are you prepared to apologize publicly if we organized a programme?

M.A. Briama: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: You said you have documents that belonged to the RUF. Can you give that to us for copying?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: We would like to know what kinds of actions were considered as offences within the RUF and, therefore, punishable.

M. A. Briama: Rape, killing the innocent, excessive looting of property, etc.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: That means that some amount of looting was allowed.

M. A. Briama: At that time people had guns and were, therefore, allowed to use these guns to force people to meet with their basic needs.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you know a man called Mustapha Koroma in Kailahun Samcola?

M. A. Briama: Yes

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you know he is now in Kailahun?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you know he is learning computing?

M. A. Briama: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: I am asking this question because you have not gone to Kailahun. Because you said you want to learn and that these are not available in Kailahun. We want to inform you that this Commission wants you to reconcile. We want to know.

M. A. Briama: I have just visited my home. I went there February 10th and returned March 18th. The man you asked me about told me he did this course. There were also some constraints that this facility was not extended there. I am pleased to tell the Commission that my colleagues are willing to learn computing but it was not extended there. I did my own computing in Makeni. I came here and pleaded with the Executive Officer here where I did my computing. I told the Executive Officer that some of my brothers would like to learn computing and I want them to open a branch there. The director accepted my plea. The director has made a project proposal to train 200 ex-combatants in computing. My second reason why I am here is I work with a local NGO called Local People Sierra Leone. They employed me immediately after the DDR programme. Even though I am not paid I am willing to work with them voluntarily. To be honest I did not do anything wrong to my people that is preventing me from going there.

Prof.Kamara: Do you have any regret why you joined the RUF?

M. A. Briama: No.

Bishop Humper : Mohamed we hope that on Friday you will be able to come publicly to meet your people in the community. Once you come publicly to your people and do the traditional way then; we believe that your people will accept you. You are coming from Kailahun and you know some of the names we called.

Prof.Kamara: We want you to ask us questions

M. A. Briama: I have recommendations. The recommendation I have for the government through the Commission is; I beg the Commission to pay attention to the youths of this country in terms of employment, education opportunities. It was because of the opportunity that the youths lack that they joined the RUF.I also want the government to look into the cause of the war which include corruption, lack of respect for the people etc. so that the war will not happen again? I also appeal to government for them to facilitate the reconciliation process so that people will forgive and forget. Let them turn to a new leaf and forget about the past ;so that Sierra Leone will prosper.I want to let the Commission pay attention to the amputees, war wounded and to address their problems.I cry to the Commission to support my desire for higher education.

Prof. Kamara: Those recommendations will be made to the government.

4th Witness – Abu Kamara

My name is Abu Kamara. I am a muslim. Commissioner Prof. John Kamara administered the oath

I am from Mafora Njala. We were at Mafora Njala one night, when we heard that rebels were coming. We all got up. I told my wife to take all the children and go ahead. I advised that she must follow the other people. We were there and all the women went ahead. After a while one of my friends told me, "Mr. Abu let us go down". But then we were not sure of the direction the rebels were coming from. It was about 2am and it was dark. For whatever it was worth, I took my cutlass along with me and we took off. Throughout that night and the morning, afternoon, and evening of the next day, no incidents, no encounter with the rebels. We got to a place and waited until about 2am, when we decided to find our way back home. We never knew that where we were the rebels were there, hidden in the gutters. We were about to begin our search for the way back home, when the rebels got us surrounded. I had my cutlass, so I got the first one that came with it. He cried, "if you don't come, this man will overpower me and he will go". The other one came and attacked me at my back. The first one was already lying on the ground unconscious. They took a container of palm oil and threw it all over me. We were then captured.

Six of us were placed in one room. Three young boys were also captured. After sometime I noticed an open window and I jumped through the window. But I was not familiar with the town and did not know where to go. I was grabbed again. I was securely bound and blindfolded in addition. They told me, "if we don't tie your face you will escape". My hands were tied. I was left in this state till the morning. In the afternoon or thereabout one of the captives suggested that we take a chance and make a bid for freedom. As we were still contemplating about this, things began to happen fast. The rebels began to inquire about the way to Lunsar. We claimed ignorance of such knowledge until they extracted the information by force. Then they started chopping off hands and ears. They chopped one hand and the ears of their captives, men and boys alike. I was the last to face the ordeal. Still blindfolded, they placed me on a bench and chopped my hand and my ears. Then they left us to our fate and went their way. Driven by the survival instinct, we continued in search of help and pathway. One of us had a drum which I had thought contained water, not knowing it was palm oil. I was thirsty and wanted water badly. Anyway, I told the man, "if we do not hurry we will die here. On the way, the man fell as he had lost much blood. I tried to help him but I could not. I met some relatives of the man on the way and told them to go and help the man or he would die. I came across a vehicle on the way. May God bless the driver. He discharged all his passengers and brought me to the government hospital. There I received first aid treatment and waited. Three days later a white lady met me at night. She asked me, "are you staying here and did they wash your hand?" I said, "no this is the third day and it has not been washed." I told her that I needed every help. She asked me to wait until morning. In the morning she came and called my name and took me where they stayed. They untied the hand and treated the hand and I felt better. We were there and were attended to for quite sometime before the rebels attacked again. They scattered us again. We were in the bush for a long time. And I continue to feel the pain. Sometimes I lose sleep for three days. I cannot do any work with this particular hand. I do not want to say much because there are a lot of people in Makeni who know the sufferings that I am undergoing.

Prof. Kamara: We say thanks to you for this testimony. We know that you feel the pain but we have to ask you some questions.

Bishop Joseph C Humper

Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming here. Can you recall some of the names of these rebels that attacked you?

Mr. Kamara: No. At that time I was blindfolded. I only heard the name of one person. I heard the name Victor and he chopped off our hands.

Bishop Humper: Where is your family now?

Mr. Kamara: They are at Mafora

Bishop Humper: What happened to the man that you asked his relatives to go and help?

Mr. Kamara: His hand was also eventually chopped off completely

Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: How did you get news that the rebels were coming.

Mr. Kamara: One man came to town at night and he was shouting that the rebels were coming. But we did not know the right direction they entered from.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that when the rebels came, you went into the bush and when you were caught you fought with them. Were they with guns?

Mr. Kamara: He had a gun

Commissioner Jow: How did you fight him?

Mr. Kamara: The gun was slung over his shoulder when he grabbed me.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the name of your friend that was killed?

Mr. Kamara: Mahmoud Kadie

Commissioner Jow: Was he of the same village?

Mr. Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Did they burn the houses in the village?

Mr. Kamara: No house was burnt.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know which group the rebels belonged to?

Mr. Kamara: The problem is once you have been captured and your attention focused on them you will not be able to know the group.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us what time the incident happened?

Mr. Kamara: I am a farmer. I am not used to checking the clock for time.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the young boys that were captured?

Mr. Kamara: Those young boys I have not been able to see them.

Commissioner Jow: I want to know about your medical problem.

Mr. Kamara: I have not been able to see a doctor because I have no money.

Commissioner Jow: Before this problem what were you doing?

Mr. Kamara: I was a farmer.

Commissioner Jow: Currently what are you doing?

Mr. Kamara: I am not doing anything

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: You spoke of a lady that helped you with medical treatment.

Mr. Kamara: She is a missionary sister.

Prof.Kamara: During 1997 did you have any civil defence force there?

Mr. Kamara: No, there was no CDF at that time because the village is small.

Prof.Kamara: Can you remember if it was the time of the AFRC, NPRC?

Mr. Kamara: All I can remember is that it was Tejan Kabba's government because when the hand was chopped ,they said, go to Tejan Kabba.

Prof.Kamara: At that time there were no government soldiers?

Mr. Kamara: We only had a police check point.

Prof. Kamara: What did the police do when they heard that rebels had entered?

Mr. Kamara: They all ran away.

Prof. Kamara: You said you sent your wife to a different direction; when did you re-establish contact?

Mr. Kamara: When I came to Makeni my wife met me at Makeni hospital.

Prof.Kamara: Did you know where your wife went when she reached Makeni.

Mr. Kamara: I knew she was going to Makeni

Prof.Kamara: Why did you tell your wife to follow the others?

Mr. Kamara: Because she was carrying a child on her back. I decided she should follow the others while I used the short cut.

Prof.Kamara: Now it is your turn to ask us questions.

Mr. Kamara: I do not have any questions. I want you to assist me so that I will stop suffering. My family is suffering. I have three children; they all are young, and three of them are attending schools. I want you to assist me with their education. To continue with such a talk is to begin to shed tears. So, this is all I have to say.

Prof. Kamara:

Mr. Kamara we have noted your request.

5th Witness – Ibrahim Dauda Sankoh

My name is Ibrahim D. Sankoh. I am a Muslim. Commissioner Prof. John Kamara administered the oath.

I came to Bendembu in 1980. I went there as an Arabic teacher. From my meagre salary, I made some savings and, therefore, to augment my income, I engaged myself in petty trading. Little by little, the petty trade grew. I opened two shops and bought a motor vehicle and a motorcycle. One day, I took a ride on my motorcycle to Sanda Terari Chiefdom. On my way back, I stopped in one village in the course of my business transactions. I was inside a room collecting money when I heard that the rebels were coming. Meanwhile, my motorcycle parked outside had some money which I had earlier on collected on it. Therefore, I tried to take off swiftly on my motorcycle, but it was no use. I came under gun fire, so I left the motorcycle and ran for cover. I hid in a nearby bush watching them. From where I was, I saw them they unload the motorcycle; they took petrol from the motorcycle and set it ablaze. This happened around 1995. After all that, I returned to my village and continued with my business; although with lots of difficulties. We continued to believe that the worst was over, and that in any case, Bendembu would not be overrun. However, in 1997 they entered Bendembu. We ran. We left everything behind and went into the bush. At first, they only grabbed what they needed and continued on their way. However, after two to three months, they came back. Now, after the first rebel strike, life still got back to some sort of normal. So, we were still in Bendembu doing our business. Then one day, we heard that the rebels were burning houses in Kalamba and that Bendembu would be the next. It all happened so quickly. Gun shots began to ring out in Bendembu. We ran to the bush for cover. Then, they started burning houses. For two days they burnt houses. They burnt my house and my two shops. The houses that were burnt in Bendembu were many. We were in the bush for a long time and then we decided to go to Makeni. Bendembu had become very inhospitable. In 1997 we heard that rebels were coming to Makeni. We saw people running from Makeni. I was so afraid. My experience in Bendembu and how I came to take settle in Makeni all flashed through my head. Accordingly, at midnight, I took my family and headed for Bendembu. After we had stayed one week in Bendembu, we heard that the rebels had entered Makeni. Then, without any warning whatsoever, the rebels suddenly entered Bendembu again. Now, it happened that there were talks about meetings; that normalcy was beginning to return to Makeni; that, generally, people have started coming out of the bush. So, they started asking us to come out of our hiding places in the bush. Now, I have three children and I did not know their whereabouts. So I set out to look for them. Then, I came across some civilians who were already with the rebels. I was asked to join them. After about two to three minutes, one girl came along the path and they grabbed her. She was asked, "where are the money and the properties." The girl said she did not have any money. They told the girl that if she did not produce the money she would be killed. The girl was got to sit on the floor and they started firing bullets close to the girl's feet. They said "if you don't produce the property you will be killed". The girl insisted that she had no money. Trouble! We were all afraid. In the process, they also asked about who had any motor vehicle or motorcycle. The girl did not have anyone to point her finger at but me saying that I had a motorcycle. In any case, they were vehemently threatening to kill her. So, the rebels called me and asked about the motor vehicle and the motorcycle. I told them that I no longer had anything. One of them told me that if I failed to provide them with the vehicle or the motorcycle he would kill me. I pleaded with him, and tried to explain that I no longer had any motor vehicle or Honda motorcycle. All my plea fell on deaf ears. He asked to sit on the ground so that he would finish me! He had aimed at my chest and fired seven shots but, through divine intervention the bullets fell on my feet. He rolled me over and fired another shot at the back of my head. He told me to get up, that he will end me up. But it so happened that I was losing much blood and I fell down and lay unconscious. So, one of the rebels told him to forget about me, since I was obviously gone. Therefore, they left and went about the arrangements for their planned meeting. The meeting could not hold. Things were already scattered. By divine intervention, I was able to make it to the bush. There I found my relatives. I needed urgent medical attention. So, they took me to a doctor. There was not a single equipment, but we had to do something fast. I told the doctor that we can even use the needle that they use for sewing clothes to gather up the flesh. The sewing needle was thus used. For sterilization and effect, it was dipped in naked fire and used to stitch up my flesh. Things were that bad, but that was what I went through and how I survived. The problems I went through in the war I have just explained.

Prof Kamara: That was a bitter experience, you have to be patient with us to answer questions from the Commission.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming today. According to you it seems that this happened in 1995. Am I right?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: That was the first incident when my motorcycle was burnt.

Bishop Humper: The other one was in 1997

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: Yes.

Bishop Humper: As a business man what was your relationship with the people in the community?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: I was a stranger.

Bishop Humper: Was there any special rebel activities. Did the rebels get a training ground?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: Yes.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: Do you know a site in Bendemba where the rebels killed a lot of people and dumped them in a well?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: You should not count on what they told you, I was told that the rebels came and attacked the ECOMOG troops and killed many of them.

Prof. Kamara: You know they have a well there in Bendemba.

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: Yes

Prof.Kamara: You came down in Makeni and stayed there till 1995?

Mr.I.D. Sankoh: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Then you went back to Bendembu.

Mr.I.D. Sankoh: Yes

Prof.Kamara: You could not have missed the activities of the rebels from 1998 to 1999. Did you see anything happen in Makeni?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: During my stay there we were more often than not seeking for cover in the bush .

Prof. Kamara: In 1997 we had a group called AFRC. In 1998 they were driven out of Freetown and they came to Makeni.

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: I have problems with the dates. I do not know.

Prof.Kamara: You spoke about a surgery. Where they used a needle that they used to sew clothes. Who helped you?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: One of my brothers helped me.

Prof.Kamara: Is he still alive?

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: Yes

Prof.Kamara: With no medical paper.

Mr.I.D. Sankoh : It was in a desparate effort to save my life .

Prof. Kamara: He saved you ?

Mr.I.D. Sankoh: I was stitched up and we were using this ordinary salt as anti-septic. But now I feel the same pain.

Prof.Kamara: Can you identify the rebels who nearly killed you?

Mr. I.D.Sankoh: I can not .

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow:

Commissioner Jow: What was your relationship with people in your community because you said you were a stranger? Can you explain?

Mr.I.D. Sankoh: I went there as a teacher and they also took me as an Imam to pray with them.

Commissioner Jow: Was the relationship cordial?

Mr.I.D.Sankoh: Yes and up to this moment.

Commissioner Jow: As you said you were rich, did anybody meet you to support the rebels?

Mr.I.D.Sankoh: No.

Leader of Evidence:Ms.Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms.Apori-Nkansah : No question

Prof.Kamara: Ibrahim it is your turn to ask us questions.

Mr. I.D. Sankoh: I am happy for this opportunity because as a result of the gunshot wounds,I have been encountering a lot of problems. For now I am not a healthy man. As I sit here I have pains that people say have to do with tetanus. I do not have a house. At one time we saw people who said that we should prepare blocks to build houses and the government would build the houses. Those that had the chance did it. Now, we understand that the projects for the house will not materialize. I want the Commission to help us with accommodation. All the blocks that we prepared are getting wet under the rains. The whole of Bendembu are preparing blocks. I ask that this problem be addressed. We do not know what is going to happen to those blocks. We have asked for tarpaulin but we did not get any. On behalf of my people I ask the Commission what do we do with those blocks?

Prof.Kamara: I am surprised that you do not seem to know what is going on in your Chieftdom or even Bombali District. Within the chieftdoms you have sections. You know what sections you belong to in Bendembu. My advice is to talk with your section chief and he will inform the PC and the PC will inform the district. If you are ready to push forward your problem you will be assisted. Whatever the Commission will able to do at the district level the Commission will do it. When we write the report what you have said here will be included in the report.

6th – Witness – Alpha N. Kargbo

My name is Alpha N. Kargbo. I am a muslim. The oath was administered by Prof. Kamara

In 1998, the ECOMOG forces drove the AFRC into the provinces .These rebel forces moved also to Makeni. When they reached Makeni, they took machetes from one office and went to Kono. When they entered Kono, we deserted our homes and ran into the bush where we spent about 3(three)months . Then ECOMOG chased them to Kono. When ECOMOG reached Kono they liberated Sewafe.

On a Friday, the ECOMOG reached where we were staying and moved to Sabuya. They came across a big tree that fell across the path near Bafodia. They left their vehicle there and walked on foot. They met the chief and told him that they wanted to go to Samuya. They told the chief that he should get people to remove the tree across the path. When we came the chief said :”ECOMOG is ready to fight for us. Please remove the tree”. We removed the tree and they moved on to Samuya. ECOMOG went ahead and we were behind them. On Saturday, ECOMOG came back and they told the chief that all the people that went into the bush should come out of the bush. They told the chief that the town was safe and they have liberated Samuya and Sewafe. So the chief sent the message around. At night on a Saturday we came to town. We sat outside for a long time. Unknown to us, the rebels had crossed the area called Konokambua. We were unaware of the reality that all the time ECOMOG was talking, they were in the village as spies. When they came they spoke as if they were Nigerians. They told us not to run. They said they were the ECOMOG who have come to Samuya. They told us to stop hiding;that they only came to ensure that there was no problem. They started gathering people. I said to them, "ECOMOG came they did not gather us together; but now you claim to be ECOMOG and you gather the people together?" They said, "let us go". I entered into my house and I told my wife that there is problem. Before we could get out, they surrounded the house. They knocked on the door and then broke the lock. Seven of them entered and I was held at gun point. They asked me to give them money. I said, "why should I? I don't have money." I said, "we were in the bush for the past three months, where can I get money from." They said "do you think we don't know you." I said, "I don't know you." He said "we have worked together. The area we were working, we saw you supporting your boys. Sometimes you helped us." I said "I have nothing." I knew him actually but such an acceptance would mean something horrible. He took my tape and travelling bag. They broke the drawer of the bed but could not find money. The man insisted that I had money. He asked them to undress me. When I was undressed there was money with me. When they saw the money the man who had insisted told them that he was sure that I had money. I begged to now release my wife and I. The man refused to release me. He said he must take me to their commander. His companion told him that they should leave me because they have already taken my money. The man said if his companions stood by that, then he would shot them as well as have me shot too. He pulled off the cloth that my wife had on, tore it and used it to tie me up. He took me to the boss man. About 25 of us were taken captive. The other man accused me of being a Kamajor and I said I was not a kamajor. The man said if I argued with him, he would take the bayonet and stab me to death. The man said they felt like killing one person at the moment. I was taken as a sacrifice and they said they would kill me. However, a Limba woman was brought out at the same time. She was begging in Limba language. As he came nearer the commander said, "we are going to kill this mammy because she is making noise for ECOMOG to notice us". Immediately the commander said this, she was slaughtered. They asked about me and the commander said, "we are not going to make two sacrifices". They laid me down on the ground and started stepping on my stomach; because I was hefty. The other man came and cut off my ear with a bayonet. They called a small boy to bring a mortar. The other one asked, "what are we going to do with these people"? The other one said, "our own group is going to chop off their hands. We sacrifice only one person". They took the mortar. They brought out one woman, her hand was chopped off and the other was chopped half the way and left dangling. They gave her a message to take to Pa Tejan Kabba. They said, "because you have hands that is why you are involved in politics". Then, they pulled me up and asked me to stretch my hand I refused. The other took my hand and stretched my hand; as he aimed to chop my wrist, the machete chopped the elbow. They said I should put the other hand but I refused. I said, "I am ready to die". He rushed at me, as blood was still rushing out from the hand, I pointed the hand to his face and the blood went to his eyes. He started shouting. Then the boss man asked him what was wrong. The boss man said, "I have warned you, leave this man to go!". They called another old man to chop his hand. I told him not to do it. I helped the man and we went along. As we went along, he said he was thirsty. I said, "don't drink water, if you do drink you will die". I tried to help the old man, but he only grew weaker and weaker. He told me that he was tired and threw himself on the ground. I told him that if he continued to lie on the ground and the rebels met him there they would kill him. So, we took a path in the bush that the farmers use and I got to a particular point and asked him to lie low there; and wait and hope for help, since it is a path that people do use to the farm. He asked me where I was going. I said I was going to ECOMOG. I had no shoes on. On my way I saw a lot of rebels. Two of them noticed me. They pointed their guns at me. They asked me to raise my hand. I said, "they have already chopped off my hand". They said, "who did that?". And I said, "your companions". They asked me, "where are you going?". I said, "they sent me to tell you that they are at Bayouman". My explanation accepted, they in turn, gave me messages for the others. When they I got out of their view, I took another route. The area I found myself I could see a lot of rebel checkpoints. I walk on along the bush path till I got to Bobboya. Exhausted I fell down and remained there for a long time. Then the Lord restored my strength and I was able to get up again. I went inside Bobboya. I met ECOMOG there. When they saw me one of them cocked his gun to shot me. I raised my hand. They said, raise up your two hands. I said, "I cannot. They have chopped off my hand". One of them said I was telling a lie and, the other said no. The other said to his companion, "what I want you to do is; I am ready to make a sacrifice, if he is holding a pistol. If he shoots me, kill him."

The ECOMOG soldier came and pointed the touch at me and found out that my hand was chopped off. He called his commander and told him that my hands were chopped at Bababfoya. They asked me to show them the place. They asked me if the rebels wanted to go further. I said that the rebels gave me the message that when they left Babafoyou they would attack Bobyboa. He asked me if it was far away. I told him it was five miles away. The commander came closer and asked some more questions. At that time I was exhausted and no longer able to see clearly. I sat there for a while and he came back. He asked me where do you want to go. I said I want to go to sewafe. I sat there but there was no car. He told his men to escort me. I met another ECOMOG chief at Efoma junction. After explaining the commander instructed his men to launch their gun and when they fired the gun I nearly fell down and almost passed away. They said," if we allow this man to lie there, he would die". They started pushing me until I regained consciousness. When I reached the bridge, I met another group of ECOMOG troops. One SLA soldier saw me and accused me of being a rebel. He said the kamajors has chopped off my hand. He told them that he was going to kill me. He took me to the rail of the bridge to shoot me. I stood there. The commander came near me. The SLA soldier was about to remove his gun to shoot me. The commander asked him why do you want to shoot him. He said I was a rebel. The commander asked me if I was a rebel. I said no. I told the commander," you passed us yesterday and we helped you remove the tree. If this man says I am a rebel, I have no power that is why I am standing here for him to kill me". The commander asked him," what proof do you have that this man is a rebel? This man has passed all other checkpoints, he was not killed why do you say he is a rebel? Now, you are going to be the escort of this man, if I hear any gun shot I will kill you and your family." As we went along, he continued to talk to me nicely. I did not listen to him. When I reached one village, I met some women and men that recognised me. They asked me what happened and I explained everything to them. They gave me a pair of trousers. When I reached a junction I met ECOMOG troops mobilizing to go to kono. The commander was backing me and the other officer that recognised me immediately, asked him to take a look. When he saw me and he cried. He asked me if I was the only one affected. I told there that were 25 of us. He asked why I came alone. I explained that things were so bad, but that I was determined to get to them. He told one of the soldiers to take me to the hospital. There was no medicine in the hospital. The doctor used spirit to stop the bleeding. About the half hand that remained, the doctor said that since the bones have all been broken and the veins all cut off, the only alternative was to amputate the hand. I tried to pinch the hand, I felt to pain; I told him to amputate it. When he amputated it, I fainted. I was given three bottles of drips. I spent the whole day there. On Sunday, my neighbours started coming. Some of the people started crying for me. They had thought I had been killed. When they saw me at sewafa they were surprised. A journalist met me at sewafa and I explained everything to him. An ECOMOG soldier told the journalist that they did not have enough communication equipment to communicate to Freetown. He pleaded with the journalist for assistance in communicating to Freetown for us to be taken to Freetown. The journalist said unless he got to the last place that ECOMOG had cleared, he would not do that. So, the journalist refused. Pressed further, he loaded his equipment in his car and asked for escort; they gave him two ECOMOG soldiers as escort. Unfortunately, when they reached the main highway, they came across the rebels. The journalist asked the driver to stop. As the vehicle stopped, the rebels surrounded the vehicle.

The rebels burnt down the car together with everybody inside it. When the ECOMOG soldiers saw the smoke, they approached the smoke. When they got there, they saw what had happened. They sent message to mantu check point

The ECOMOG soldier said," we told you earlier on to assist to communicate to Freetown to help your brother, but now see!" The ECOMOG soldiers took us to the Government Hospital at Makeni at 3:00am at night. When we arrived, there was no light. We slept there. We were taken to 34 hospital. Later on, we were taken to Connaught hospital; because ECOMOG had many wounded soldiers and they were at 34 hospital. We went to Connaught on a Saturday. On Sunday morning, they told us that hospital was not operating. The Norwegian refugee council decided to assist us. Later on, one woman sent forms to us. She told us that they want to build houses for us. We told her to build an amputee village for us. We told the woman to come to Makeni and build for us. As of now I am in Kailahun camp.

Bishop Humper: Can you tell me what happened to your wife?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: Yes. My wife and I were captured together. After amputating the hand of one woman in their midst, my wife and the others were taken to one house and were locked up and, the rebels said they were going to burn down the house. The commander now left and gave order to one rebel to set the house ablaze with everybody inside. One woman was in the house who knew the man. She called him by name, Abdul Sankoh, and she said: "Are you going to kill your brother's children and kill me too?" Abdul asked, "who are you to call my name?". The woman said, "I am Kadiatu. I am married to your brother in Bo". Abdul opened the door and saw Kadiatu. He told Kadiatu to come out. Kadiatu took one of her children and gave the child to my wife. She said, "this is my sister please help save my sister's life". He opened the door and allowed all of them to escape. He burnt the house and told his commander that he had burnt all of them in the house.

Bishop Humper: Can you tell us about the people in the room; how many of them survived and how many were amputated?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: I cannot tell you all those who survived. The ones I saw were : Hawa Korma ;Kadiatu Bangura ;Pa Mansary ;Mummy (died later) .The other three people are still alive.

Bishop Humper: You also mentioned that you did not want to identify yourself when you were asked for money. Do you know the names of the rebels that attacked you?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: I know the names of two. I know their family and we have lived together. Like, Abdul Sankoh, he comes from Bombali chiefdom. The time he passed out from the military we were in the same village and we know one another. He was the man that chopped off my ears. I told him that we were from the same village. But because he was under the influence of drugs, he said, he does not know me.

Sheku Marah is a Koronko and we used to live in the same neighbourhood. His brother was also captured. They did not do anything to him. They told his brother to show them the road to Bo. I spoke to him in the koronko language but he ignored all that and refused to help me. The other one's name is Papa, if I see him I can identify him. The others I cannot identify . The one who was a spy in the village was hired to chop off hands.

Bishop Humper: Would you say that you were targeted?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: Sheku targeted me. My money had already been taken from me. His companion told him to leave me but he refused Bishop Humper: Has there ever been any quarrel between both of you prior to the war?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: No

Bishop Humper: Have you every seen any of them since then?

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: Sheku passed us at Pamlamp and came to cabala. Abdul Sankoh is said to be staying at sewafa bridge. But I do not know if that is true.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow

CommissionerJow: In your testimony you told us that when the rebels searched you, they got Le3.5m. Can you tell us what your occupation was?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: I was a business man

CommissionerJow: What type of business

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: I sold rice in bags

CommissionerJow: In your testimony you said when ECOMOG came and cleared the town of rebels, they left the town?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: ECOMOG forces thought that they had cleared the area and that we were safe. They thought that they had the whole place covered. But along the highway, the distance between Kono and Sandaya is considerably long.

CommissionerJow: Were Kamajors there at that time?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: No

CommissionerJow: Were there any CDF?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: None of these forces was there

CommissionerJow: You said the rebels were speaking the Nigerian and Liberian languages?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: They were Sierra Leonean.

CommissionerJow: What makes you so sure?

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: When they entered the village; they spoke in Liberian and Nigerian languages. When they captured us they spoke in krio.

CommissionerJow: You said the rebels took the woman to make sacrifice. Can you tell us why they used her as sacrifice?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: They said the woman was making a lot of noise; so they offered her as sacrifice.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: You have provided us with a vital information. Did I hear you say that Abdul Sankoh was a soldier?

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: Yes

Bishop Humper: What about Sheku Marah

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: He is a soldier

Bishop Humber: Based on all you have gone through, what can you tell this commission about the role of some of our soldiers in the rebel war?.

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: They only helped in destroying the country

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: Your story was long but very clear. Are you together with your wife?

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Also can you recollect or remember the name of the ECOMOG soldier who saved you from the SLA who wanted to kill you?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: No

Commissioner Yasmin sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You mentioned that they also stripped the women naked. Beside that did they do any other thing to them?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: After I had left I could not have known what happened to them. While I was there they did nothing else to them?

Commissioner Sooka: You said one of the men was hired to chop people's hands. Did the man say that to you?

Mr.A.N. Kargbo: He was commanded to chop off people's hands. He was Sao.

Leader of Evidence: Mr. Abdulai Charm

Mr.A.Charm: Is it possible for you to tell us the name of the women who was sacrificed

Mr.A.N.Kargbo: I do not know her name .

Prof.Kamara: It is your turn to ask us questions.

Mr. A.N. Kargbo: My first question is about the education of our children. Now that the rebels have chopped off our hands; what are we to do ?. Some of us have their two hands chopped off. Some of us have to be in wheel chairs?. We have to take care of our families. What is the commission doing in terms of education?.

Prof.Kamara: It is a repetition of a request that we have been receiving. We are very much aware and concerned especially about the young people. When we write our report your recommendations will be incorporated into our report. I hope the question has been satisfactorily answered?

- Mr.A.N. Kargbo: The next question is about medical facility. We are faced with regular infection such as the issues of tetanus and so on. We have cried to the government to assist us with medicine. People are under a lot of pain and need pain relief , but where is money for the medicine ?
- Prof.Kamara: It will be noted. For now we hope that some kind of help will be provided for the camp that will include medical facility. We will try to see that it is done.If you have any urgent attention our staff can assist you to recommend you for medical attention.
- Mr.A.N.Kargbo: During the peace accord the government promised us that if the rebels received their package, we the victims would have our own package. But I have not seen that package ; apart from an assistance by an NGO, is this the way we are going to continue to suffer ?
- Prof.Kamara: No.As you spoke of the Lome peace accord, the TRC talks about war victim funds. Your presence here is an illustration of what happened during the war. As you know the perpetrators are only a small fraction of the victims in the country. We have to understand your problem and how we make recommendations to government . We cannot rush into it haphazardly, otherwise, we will make mistakes. As we try to get all the information necessary, the government and international community are already making the effort to meet the needs of the victims. You already told us that the Norwegian council has provided houses for you and other people. Something more is likely to come.

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION

CLOSED HEARINGS HELD IN MAKENI ON 28TH MAY 2003

- Commissioner Yasmin Sooka: We welcome you to this hearing. We need to know what recommendations we need to make in order to make positive changes in people's lives. It is important that everything you remember; you should tell us. You should not be afraid. If you feel that you are not comfortable with any question ;please tell us. Feel free to tell us what your experiences are.

My name is Fatmata Jalloh. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Sooka.

I have been through a lot of suffering. I was born in Kono. At the age of 13, I had to leave Kono and was taken to Kabala. We were attacked in 1998. We ran into the bush together with my father and our family members as well as neighbours. In the bush we had no food to eat. This was in August and there was no food to eat at all. We were in this situation: no food, no shelter, no rest, no sleep. After 15 days my father went in search of food. On his way to town he met the rebels. He was held by the rebels. When they seized my dad, he was asked to show where the people were hiding. He said he did not know. He told them, "I am just coming to town to look for food because everybody is hungry." The rebels told him they were not going to release him. They gave him their luggage to carry. It was raining. When they arrived at one farm hut, the rebels decided to stay there for some time and from there they started maltreating my dad. After giving him some slaps they told my dad to continue to carry their loads. They were all placed in one room. They were taken out one after the other and killed. They killed three of them. The first person they killed was the chief of the village. He was shot dead. The next person was killed in the same way. My dad was also shot but was not killed at once. When he was shot, he fell down and the rebels thought my dad was dead. But as they turned to leave, one of them turned around again and noticed that my father was not dead. He then shot him again. He was shot and killed; he was killed mercilessly. I was still in the bush. The next night I had series of dreams, the sort of which I have never had. The next day I told my cousin about my dreams and I told her I was not sure whether my father was still alive. Later on, just when we decided to prepare something to eat, we saw somebody coming. We thought that it was the rebels and we ran into the bush. It later turned to be my brother. It was at that time that we came to know that my father was dead. My mother died when I was a child and I was staying with my stepmother. I did not even know my mother. When my brother came I asked him what happened but he could not look me in the face. He was uncomfortable. Then I said, 'my father is not alive again, my father is dead.' The boy refused to talk to me. They informed my stepmother of my father's death. My cousin had wanted to hide the news of his death from me, but a boy who was staying with us came running and shouting that my father was dead. On receiving the news of my dad's death, I was crying bitterly and this did not go down well with my stepmother and her children; they drove me away. Now, when I was crying, I was not even crying out loud; I was crying within my heart. But they drove me from their group. I had no other place to go but to look for my aunt, my father's sister. I went alone in the bush until finally I found my aunt. My aunt was very sad when she saw me and she started crying. I told my aunt that my father has been killed and my stepmother has driven me away. My aunt persuaded me to stay with her. After five days we received a letter that the rebels were coming to the farm house where we were hiding. We had to leave and, we went into the thick forest. Again there was no food and the place was very cold, because it was the during month of August. We became tired of living in the forest and we decided to go back to the farmhouse. It was there we realized that the rebels had come and we were surrounded. We were just about to eat when some people came running from the other parts of the hamlet to inform us that the rebels have finally come. We tried to run away but it was already too late. They told us to stop and if we run they will shoot us. All of us had to come back to the farm house. I was the last to get back. As soon as I arrived at the farm house, I was held by one of them. He asked me, "What are you doing here?" He said, "I will save your life." I told him to leave me since they have killed my father. He said, "No you are wrong it is not all of us that are wicked." He showed me his ID card and said he was an SLA. I asked him, "Do you know if it was an SLA who killed my father?" He said he did not know but he will save my life. My people pleaded, but he refused. He insisted that he will take me along. He asked me to go to the town with him. I pleaded with him not to take me along. The man told me that, "right now they are killing people in the bushes; if you stay here they will kill you. I have told you that I am going to save your life. By the power of God nothing will happen to you." We went to town. When we were going to town, the rebels told the people in the farmhouse that every body should go to town because rebels were killing people in the bush. They took two of us on that day, a suckling mother and I. On arrival in the town they began to loot animals like goats, cows, sheep and chicken.

Now, the air around was so foul, so I asked the man the reason for the foulness of the air. The man told me, 'these are the people that have been killed.' I went out to check whether I could see my father's body among them but it was not there. Those bodies were already in various stages of decomposition. By that time my father's brother had come and taken the body and thrown it in some area where it was not even properly buried. We finally arrived where the rebels were staying. I had to stay with this man. I was still a virgin, but he took it away. As soon as he did that, I became pregnant. My friends were telling me to abort the pregnancy. I was afraid to do that because my father had been killed and I do not know my mother. We were just two of us my brother and I. Finally, I accepted to get rid of the pregnancy and, even then I had to pray to God to forgive me. I was directed by the lady to go and get the herbs for myself in the bush. After gathering the herbs, I still prayed to God to guide me. Fortunately, for some inexplicable reason, I forgot about the herbs and the lady forgot about it as well. So, the pregnancy continued to develop. As things turned out, there was conflict between SLA and the SAJ Musa and one commander whose name I have just forgotten.

This forced us to go to Freetown. At that time they had this practice of branding people, so that you would not run away even if you had the desire. This man I was staying with said they were not going to brand me. That time some people were branded on their foreheads and on their chests. They, therefore, decided to train me. I refused and also the man I was staying with rejected the idea of my undergoing training. Anyway, we had to start the trek to Freetown. We walked for days and nights without sleeping. That was the time they went to attack Freetown. We came across rivers. We crossed by the grace of God. By then my pregnancy was just five months. Normally, they used to instruct us to stand in and maintain a straight line. But because of the pregnancy, it happened that one day, I suddenly moved out of the line and '55'⁴ came and hit me on the back. I cried. I was forced to go back in the line. Whilst in that line they used to flog us and use abusive language(s) on us. Especially '55' he had a lot of abusive vocabulary. Sometimes we fell into ambush and one had to lie flat on my stomach with my pregnancy as long as the shooting lasted. Sometimes you come across dead bodies on your track and unless you remained very vigilant you would trip over them and court instant disaster. We arrived in one village where they said they will leave all the women. This time we were really in trouble; because the CDF was around, should they see or meet us, they would kill us. Unfortunately, we were not a fight force we were just held by these people. Sometimes there was no food, we used to cook in tomato tins as if we were just playing. At night they used to tell us to remove all our dresses. You should remain naked. They used to call these, "Operation Born Naked". Sometimes they will ask us to run naked even if you in a town like Makeni. They will tell you to run and go across this town, if you don't do it you will be beaten. If you fall down you will be beaten. I had to go through all this strain whilst pregnant. One time I fell on my stomach and I incurred injuries. Anyway, we were asked to move again from that village to enter Freetown. Finally we entered Freetown. We stayed in Freetown until the attack on January 6. Initially when we arrived, I had wanted to run away. But I was afraid because some civilians had seen me with these people. Because of that I could not run away. We came to Waterloo. We were forced to use the bush road with so many mountains and at that time the pregnancy was seven months. When we arrived at Waterloo I told my husband that I wanted to go to my people in Kabala to deliver. This man told me "how can you go at this time there is no Road. If you try to go they will kill you." I told him that I was not part of them as long as I have not done any wrong God will guide me on my way. I tried to find a way. But as things turned out my husband was hit and badly wounded in the leg. I was still here in Makeni because there was no road to Kabala. I got information about my husband's situation. I went to the hospital and I met him there. I was with him until he died. Two weeks after his death I had delivery, but I lost the baby. Later on, I came across my husband's brother who is a pastor and I told him: "Pastor your brother captured me, I want you to find a mother for me so that I can stay with her." Pastor took me to one Agnes Kamara. And really she took me as her own child. One time the lady had to go to Freetown and she left me in-charge of the home. I took care of everybody. Later, however, there was still a fight here and the chopper helicopter was around. I was afraid and I went to Mile 91. I was there for 11 months. When I heard that UNAMSIL had come to Makeni, I came back. Later on, I got the information from my friends that certain groups have come for the children who were abducted during the war and that people were coming around to train them in several skills. I decided to go and register at Caritas. They took us to Port Loko. In Port Loko we were sent to Lunsar, because they said,they could not trust us,that they were afraid of us. They asked us whether we ever carried arms. I said no. I told them that I do not even know the arms and cannot use them. We were taken back to Port Loko,where we spent ten days and they brought us again to Makeni. They told us that after the disarmament, they will take us through skills training. We were then registered for the different skills training. At present ,I have learnt cloth weaving, gara dying and batic making.

Commissioner Sooka

We want to ask you questions so that we will understand you more.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: We say thanks to you for coming to this hearing. As the Commissioner had said, we have a special mandate and this mandate is to focus on women and children during the war so that we can record it accurately, and make the appropriate recommendations to improve the lot of women and girls in this country ;particularly those who suffered during the war . We hope that the recommendations will ensure that what happened to girls will never happen again. You have given us a good insight of the war, but we need to ask you questions so that we can make some clarifications. Fatmata at the time of the incident you said you were 13years old ?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the name of the village you were living?

Fatmata Jalloh: Makakura

Commissioner Jow: What were you doing at that time? Were you a student?

Fatmata Jalloh: No. I was helping my aunt to sell.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about your family circumstances?

Fatmata Jalloh: At that time I was living with my father, my step mother, brother and my cousins.

Commissioner Jow: You made mention of your brother. Was he your step mother's son?

Fatmata Jalloh: He was my step mother's son. I have my own brother who is staying with my uncle.

Commissioner Jow: What was the relationship with your step mother?

Fatmata Jalloh: She used to be nice to me but at a point in time her attitude changed and my father became concerned. Anyway, more often than not, when someone loses the mother, the step mothers more often than not begin to act in strange ways.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us why your step mother sent you out?

Fatmata Jalloh: She said that I should not give them away. Because I was crying, she said the rebels were very close and that I was endangering their lives . But I was not even crying loudly.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the rebels that approached you. Were they in uniform?

Fatmata Jalloh: Some were in full military combat uniform and some were not.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the other women who were caught. What happened to the suckling mother?

Fatmata Jalloh: Nothing happened to her she is still alive.

Commissioner Jow: Did she go along with the rebels?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: And she remained with them until they signed they peace?

Fatmata Jalloh: No. All of them left at the same time.

Commissioner Jow: Did her baby survive ?

Fatmata Jalloh: I do not know whether the child is still alive; but she also suffered the same ordeal.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that the rebels looted animals. Did you join them to loot?

Fatmata Jalloh: No

Commissioner Jow: Can you also tell us how they get these animals?

Fatmata Jalloh: They just run after them and seize them.

Commissioner Jow: You told us that you saw dead bodies on the way. Can you tell us how they were killed?

Fatmata Jalloh: I just saw dead bodies. I do not know.

Commissioner Jow: How long did it take you to move from the bush and get to the base where you settled?

Fatmata Jalloh: The distance is about five miles, so we took about five days. From the village where they settled to our own village is two miles and from the other village is three miles.

Commissioner Jow: I am now coming to the base were you settled. You did not tell us the name of this man.

Fatmata Jalloh: His name was Abdul Sinnah.

Commissioner Jow: Was it his actual name?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: At what stage did he rape you?

Fatmata Jalloh: He did it at the base.

Commissioner Jow: Were there people present?

Fatmata Jalloh: No

Commissioner Jow: Did he force you or did you consent?

Fatmata Jalloh: I was forced . That was my first time.

Commissioner Jow: Did you ever have ever any experience of menstruation before then?

Fatmata Jalloh: No.

Commissioner Jow: What did he say to you as he raped you?

Fatmata Jalloh: He told me that at the end of the war , he would marry me ;that he would not disappoint me.

Commissioner Jow: Were there other women in the base?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Can you give us an idea of how many?

Fatmata Jalloh: We were many.

Commissioner Jow: Were there other women who were not young girls?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: What was their role in the base?

Fatmata Jalloh: They used to send on us errands and, if we do not do them they would beat us.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember any of their names?

Fatmata Jalloh: No. It is a long time now since I left them in 1999. At that time we just called them 'Sissy'. We never knew their real names?

Commissioner Jow: What else were you asked to do at the camp? What else were you forced to do apart from being a wife?

Fatmata Jalloh: I was not doing anything. He did not allow me to do anything especially when I became pregnant.

Commissioner Jow: Was he kind to you?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes. He never maltreated me.

Commissioner Jow: Did you see other girls being maltreated by their husbands?

Fatmata Jalloh: We were not staying in the same house everyone was staying in his/her own place.

Commissioner Jow: Were some of the girls punished by their husbands?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes some of them were punished.

Commissioner Jow: Like how?

Fatmata Jalloh: Most of these men have their wives in Kono but when they came here they abducted girls here and when their wives came they treated them as slaves for their wives.

Commissioner Jow: How did you feel when you were raped for the first time?

Fatmata Jalloh: I did not feel good about it because it was painful .

Commissioner Jow: Did you get any attention from the elderly women?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes. I told them but then they could not do much; because as soon as I had that contact I became pregnant.

Commissioner Jow: Why do you call Andrew Sinnah your husband?

Fatmata Jalloh: He did not marry me. He abducted me.

Commissioner Jow: You seem to have some affection for him?

Fatmata Jalloh: No.

Commissioner Jow: When you heard he was in the hospital you went to visit him.

Fatmata Jalloh: I went there because of my child.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka:

Commissioner Sooka: How old was Andrew Sinnah?

Fatmata Jalloh: 33years of age.

Commissioner Sooka: And you were 13years.

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: After the first time he raped you, did he have sex with you every day or were you supposed to be the lady on demand for him?

Fatmata Jalloh: He used to ask but I always told him no because it was not pleasant.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened to you if you say no?

Fatmata Jalloh: He used to leave me alone because he knew he had done something bad to me.

Commissioner Sooka: What was your typical day with him?

Fatmata Jalloh: Most of the time we were not always together because they were always on patrol. And while on patrol they got us into the thick forest and gave us guards to ensure that we did not escape.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you remember how many women were there?

Fatmata Jalloh: We were more than fifty but really I cannot say.

Commissioner Sooka: When you became pregnant were you really upset?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: What really went through your mind?

Fatmata Jalloh: I was thinking: How can I be a child, so tender and still be pregnant?

Commissioner Sooka: You were talking about taking herbs to abort the child, was it a difficult decision for you to make?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes, it was difficult because my mother died during delivery.

Commissioner Sooka: You also mentioned that you refused to go for training and the man who abducted you also supported your refusal.

Fatmata Jalloh: I realized that it was going to be a waste if I was to train because I never imagined myself killing other people.

Commissioner Sooka: What surprises me is that you were not forced to go to train and nobody forced you. Was Andrew protecting you?

Fatmata Jalloh: Andrew was never willing for me to go and train.

Commissioner Sooka: Did other men rape you or did Andrew protect you from that?

Fatmata Jalloh: I never experienced that.

Commissioner Sooka: When "Operation Born Naked" took place did you also take part in it?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes that was a matter of must for everybody on the ground. Even the soldiers did. We had on our pants but we were asked not to wear white so that the enemies will not notice us.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you witness other girls being raped?

Fatmata Jalloh: No.

Commissioner Sooka: You said you witnessed the fight between the RUF and SLA.

Fatmata Jalloh: We were not staying in the same village. There was a quarrel between the SLA and RUF. The RUF ordered the SLA to go away from the village. The quarrel was between SAJ Musa and Superman. They wanted to kill SAJ Musa at that point. I was only told the cause of the problem. Whilst they were staying together the SLA and the RUF, one of the boys of Superman killed a civilian and SAJ Musa was annoyed and SAJ Musa in turn killed the boy that killed the civilian. So Superman said SAJ. Musa should not have killed the RUF because of a civilian.

Commissioner Sooka: You remained with the SLA?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes

Commissioner Sooka: Your statement also mentioned the abduction of UN peace keepers.

Fatmata Jalloh: No. I was here when the Kenyans arrived in Makeni. Earlier in my statement I said that I had to run away to Mile 91. It was during that time the Kenyans were captured.

Commissioner Sooka: How did you know about it?

Fatmata Jalloh: I heard that over the radio and also people around used to talk about it.

Commissioner Sooka: What did people say?

Fatmata Jalloh: I was only told that they had attacked the Kenyans in order to drive them out of this place.

Commissioner Sooka: How long did you spend with Sinnah?

Fatmata Jalloh: I was with him for nine months.

Commissioner Sooka: After the first time were you bleeding very badly?

Fatmata Jalloh: I bled but not too much.

Commissioner Sooka: Now do you have any long term problems?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: The doctors said you are fine?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes I had gone to the Magburaka Government Hospital and they said I have no problem. That time I was suffering from stomach ache but it was worms.

Commissioner Sooka: The reason why you lost the baby was it because of the hard life in the bush?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: Was it difficult when you had the baby.

Fatmata Jalloh: The pain started in the morning but I was able to deliver at 5:00pm.

Commissioner Jow: Did you deliver at the hospital?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes, at the Pentagon Hospital.

Commissioner Jow: Did they allow you to see the baby?

Fatmata Jalloh: No. The baby was a girl.

Commissioner Jow: Are you currently in a relationship?

Fatmata Jalloh: No. Because now I am on my skills training and I want to pay more attention on that and wait until God's time for me to have my own partner

Commissioner Jow: Do you have plans of getting married?

Fatmata Jalloh: yes

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: Are you happy with the training you have?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: Are you afraid of men?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes, I am afraid because I still consider myself a child.

Leader of Evidence :Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Did you get medical attention when you were pregnant?

Fatmata Jalloh: In the early stages of the pregnancy I did not get any medical attention.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Can you also describe the accommodation of the base and where it was located?

Fatmata Jalloh: We were in Yemadogu in the Koinadugu District.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You said some of the soldiers after abducting girls later went and brought their wives. Were their wives living with you in the same place?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes, we were living in the same house but what happened was that some of these girls because of the maltreatment from the wives, some the girls had to find other boyfriends.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Did you have casualties when crossing the rivers to go to Freetown?

Fatmata Jalloh: I cannot tell because we usually crossed at night.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you have any ceremony in your culture that you perform concerning returnee(s) from abduction?

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes. That is part of our culture. For instance when your child is taken away, you pray that the child comes back. If the child returns, they wash their feet and mouth. Those who have parents, they do it for them; but for me I have no parents.

Ms.Apori-Nkansah: That means you have not yet been welcomed back.

Fatmata Jalloh: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you have any relative to perform this ceremony for you?

Fatmata Jalloh: No.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka :

Commissioner Sooka: We thank you for sharing your testimony with us. We have asked you so many questions. We want you to ask us questions now.

Fatmata Jalloh: I am begging the government to have mercy on us. We the children have suffered in the war. We have learnt the skills but have not got the capital to start to be self-reliant. We are appealing to the government to appreciate our predicament and come to our aid ; so that we do not continue to suffer. We have learnt the skills but if we are not going to practice we will not benefit from it at all.

Commissioner Sooka: How do you support yourself currently?

Fatmata Jalloh: I have learnt the skills and sometimes I get some jobs to do.

2nd Witness – Koya Fatmata Sanu

My name is Fatmata Sanu. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

TESTIMONY

I was in my village in Batkanu. Then, we heard that the rebels had attacked the neighbouring village. We ran into the bush. From the part of the bush where we had taken refuge, we could hear the firing of gun shots; so we went further and further into the bush. My brother came and informed us that the rebels have attacked our village. We headed for another village. My father decided to come to the village to see things for himself. He saw the rebels and retreated into the bush. We were all confused and afraid and we put our hope and trust in God. We went further into the bush , but even at that we still came across rebels .Therefore, we had to go further and further and further into the forest. We stayed there for two months. Feeling tired of the forest ,we decided to take a chance. We came back to the village.

Not long after we had arrived in our village there was a rebel attack. We were attacked at about 2:00am.Every one was asleep when the alarm came that the rebels had entered the village. Everybody ran in search of safety.In their hurry, the left me in the house as I was in a deep sleep. I was awoken by the sound of abusive languages of all sorts all over the place. As I woke up I tried to run away but unfortunately, I met a rebel at the door. I tried to make it but he held my hand firmly. They had a girl next to me. She was wearing a piece of cloth and they removed the cloth from her and tore it and used it to bind us. They continued to capture other girls. They put us all in the same place. Then, they began to ask us questions. They asked us to show them where the kamajors and others were. We told them that we had no such knowledge. They threatened to kill all of us if we fail to show them. We pleaded with them and explained that we do not know about those people, but all to no effect. We began to hope only on divine intervention. They sent one boy who was just a little taller than me. They asked him to go and bring a mortar. So this boy did and put the mortar in the middle of the group. They called my uncle and asked him to lay his hand. He started pleading. He was beheaded. They said they did not want to hear any word. They called one of my friends who was pregnant. They asked her to lay her hand on the mortar and they amputated her two hands. I was the third person they called. I did not say a word. They said I should lay down my hand. I placed my right hand and they chopped my hand. They asked me to lay my left hand and they chopped it three times; the fourth time I had to remove it by force. The machete was dull otherwise the hand would have come off. They called my friend who was captured with me. She started crying because her mother was around. They told her to stop crying. They said they will kill her despite her mother's presence. She ran to her mother. She was killed immediately. They dragged her remains to the back of the house. When they finished working on my hand, they told me to sit in a corner. They called my aunt and asked her to lay her hand and they chopped off her two hands. The remaining people were killed, including some children. After they had killed some and chopped off the hands of those of us left alive, they went their way. The next day my brother came to town looking for us. As he came he met my aunty and uncle killed. He saw what had happened and took me along with him. We walked from Batkanu to Makeni. I was admitted in the hospital. The doctor suggested that my hand should be chopped off. My people pleaded with them and they asked for Le7, 000 before they could stitch my hand. My uncle hadn't money at that time, so he had to borrow. Then they stitched my hand. My uncle went again to get the prescribed drugs. I stayed in the hospital for three days. Later we went to Freetown. I was taken to the Connaught Hospital. I was treated and I stayed in the hospital for two months and I was discharged. I was taken to the Waterloo Camp. I stayed there until there was a rebel attack in Masiaka and I went to Freetown. Also Freetown was attacked and they nearly captured me. We were moved to Aberdeen camp. From that time they separated the war wounded from the amputees and the war wounded stayed at Grafton and the amputees at Aberdeen. Later on they decided to build a house for us. I am presently staying there at Makama.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow

We thank you for coming to us this morning and for sharing your experiences with us. This is very important for the Commission and the whole of Sierra Leone. You have had a very harrowing experience. It is important for everybody to know so that something will be done for people like you and the recommendations we make in our final report will help to forestall the recurrence of what happened in this country.

Commissioner Jow: Tell us which district your village is in ?

Koya F. Sanu: Bombali district

Commissioner Jow: How old are you now?

Koya F. Sanu: I am seventeen years.

Commissioner Jow: Can you give us an idea as to when this thing happened?

Koya F. Sanu: This is the fifth year since this incident took place.

Commissioner Jow: How old do you think you were at that time?

Koya F. Sanu: 12 years.

Commissioner Jow: Were you in school?

Koya F. Sanu: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about your family circumstances at that time?

Koya F.Sanu: They were all alive.

Commissioner Jow: You told us when the rebels attacked you ran into the bush and then you came back. When you came back did they destroy the village?

Koya F.Sanu: No.

Commissioner Jow: There was no looting or burning of a house?

Koya F.Sanu: Houses were not burnt but there was looting.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know the group?

Koya F. Sanu: No. I only heard some of the names .The head of the group was Cyborg , the other was called 'Killer'. These are the two names I can remember.

Commissioner Jow: How many people were there in the group?

Koya F.Sanu : There were a lot of them in large number.

Commissioner Jow: Were they all men?

Koya F. Sanu: No, they were mixed. There were women.

Commissioner Jow: What did the women do?

Koya F. Sanu: They sit and watch the men.

Commissioner Jow: Were they amputated?

Koya F. Sanu: No.

Commissioner Jow: So, that means they were part of the rebels.

Koya F. Sanu: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: You made mention of a boy who was sent to bring the mortar. Can you tell us the age of the boy?

Koya F. Sanu: About 18years.

Commissioner Jow: Were there young boys in the group?

Koya F. Sanu: Yes. The number was large.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know the names of the others that were amputated?

Koya F.Sanu: Yes. They were my relations.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us their names?

Koya F.Sanu: Yanor Essay, Gbassy Kanu, Momoh Kamara. The other people died

Commissioner Jow: Did they die on the spot?

Koya F. Sanu: Yes, they died on the spot.

Commissioner Jow: When they chopped off your hand what did they say to you?

Koya F. Sanu: They told me to go to Tejan Kabba to give me a hand.

Commissioner Jow: Was there one particular rebel assigned for cutting people's hand?

Koya F. Sanu: Yes.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: Did you hear the name of the rebel who chopped off your hand?

Koya F. Sanu: They were calling him Borbor.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they dress in military fatigue?

Koya F. Sanu: Some were in civilian clothes and some were in military uniform. The one that chopped off my hand was in military uniform.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell if they were rebels or soldiers?

Koya F. Sanu: They were rebels.

Commissioner Sooka: What language did they speak?

Koya F. Sanu: They spoke Krio, some spoke Temne and other languages.

Commissioner Sooka: Since that incident have you again seen these rebels?

Koya F. Sanu: No. Even if we met I would not identify them.

Commissioner Sooka: Have you gone back to school?

Koya F. Sanu: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: What class are you in?

Koya F.Sanu: I sat for the NPSC⁵ this year.

Commissioner Sooka: Are you with your parents?

⁵ National Primary School Certificate

Koya F.Sanu: Yes, I am staying with my mother and sister. She is presently in Freetown.

Commissioner Sooka: How does your mother support you?

Koya F. Sanu: My father has been doing his best but presently he is sick. At the moment there is no money.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow: You have helped us a greatly.I will like to know whether the rebels did other things apart form the amputations. Did they rape any girl?

Koya F. Sanu: No.

Leader of Evidence :Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you know the name of the person who was beheaded and the girl who was killed?

Koya F. Sanu: Momoh Kamara, Isatu Kargbo.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you have any question?

Koya F.Sanu: Could you please tell me why we have been asked to come here?

Commissioner Sooka: This Commission is about recording the experiences of the war during the ten years so we can understand why it happened. So we can understand why people's limbs were amputated, why women were raped and why young people were abducted to participate in the war. We especially have to ask girls what they have suffered so that we can make recommendations to government. So that three things can happen; we make sure that the conflict does not begin again and the peace holds, we can reconcile people with their families and communities, we can make recommendations about how to help victims particularly women and children. That is why we need to hear all that you have to say .

Koya F. Sanu: I am saying this because I have been derided that my hand is not straight.

Commissioner Sooka: Often those who have not gone through suffering are always cruel. Part of what we have to do is to educate people that these things happened in the conflict and that in-fact you have survived with your limbs. It is a miracle that you are still able to move your hands. I think the Commission has a huge responsibility to educate the community. Thank you Koya.

3rd – Witness – Isatu Isha Bangura

My name is Isatu Isha Bangura. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Yasmin Sooka .

TESTIMONY

During the war when the rebels entered Madina, a man met me sleeping. This man woke me from my sleep and told me he was going to rape me. This man asked me to choose between rape and death. I had no answer. I was there speechless . He made the decision that he was going to rape me instead of killing me. Indeed he raped me. I went back to my house and then he went away. Then my mother asked me where I was coming from. I narrated everything to her. My mother wanted to chase them but then everything had been done and they had left. So we had to stay at home because the man had left.

Commissioner Sooka: I know it must have been a very traumatic experience. The Commission has a special responsibility and that is to listen to the experiences of women and girls during the war especially about rape. We need to know why there was so much of it. Often we ask you very difficult questions that make you feel uncomfortable. That is not because we want to hurt you again but because we need to make sure that we have all these details recorded.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: How old were you at the time of the incident?

Isatu Bangura: I was 13 years.

Commissioner Jow: Were you in school?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Which class were you in at that time?

Isatu Bangura: Class four.

Commissioner Jow: Were you doing well in school?

Isatu Bangura: Yes

Commissioner Jow: You said in 1999 your village was attacked by armed men. Did you actually see them?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Jow: But you knew they had come to attack your village?

Isatu Bangura: I heard the news but I did not see them.

Commissioner Jow: How many of them came to your house?

Isatu Bangura: I cannot tell. I only saw one person.

Commissioner Jow: You said he moved you from your house to another house ?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Where were your parents?

Isatu Bangura: Everybody ran away when the rebels struck .

Commissioner Jow: You told us that you shouted when you were being raped ?

Isatu Bangura: Yes, I shouted because that was the first time I ever had that experience.

Commissioner Jow: Did anyone come to your rescue?

Isatu Bangura: No. People were afraid to come out.

Commissioner Jow: Can you describe the man that moved you from your house. Was he carrying a gun?

Isatu Bangura: The trousers were in combat but the shirt was not. He had a knife in his hand. He said if I shout he will kill me.

Commissioner Jow: You said he took you to another house whose house was it?

Isatu Bangura: A neighbour's house.

Commissioner Jow: What did the woman say?

Isatu Bangura: The woman asked who was shouting then the rebel said, "just shut up or I will kill you."

Commissioner Jow: You said he raped you for a long time. Can you tell us how long?

Isatu Bangura: I cannot tell.

Commissioner Jow: You also told us you started bleeding.

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: What happened after the man had left?

Isatu Bangura: I was bleeding and I felt sick for one week.

Commissioner Jow: Your mother was angry with the rebels. What support did she give to you after?

Isatu Bangura: After the incident I told my mother that I was going to die. Because she did not want me to die she encouraged me and told me she will take care of me properly.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the name of the man that raped you?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Jow: Were you the only girl that was raped?

Isatu Bangura: No. There were two of us but the other one is now married.

Commissioner Jow: Did they abduct any girl ?

Isatu Bangura: I do not know.

Commissioner Jow: How do you feel now?

Isatu Bangura: I am well and ok.

Commissioner Jow: Are you still living with your parents?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Do you feel angry at times about what happened to you?

Isatu Bangura: Sometimes I cry, but my mother has always been there to support me.

Commissioner Jow: Have you spoken to anybody about this apart from the TRC?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: Have you gone back to school?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: What class are you in?

Isatu Bangura: Form 1.

Commissioner Sooka: Are you afraid of men?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you dream about this incident?

Isatu Bangura : Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: What do you do when you wake up after the dream?

Isatu Bangura: I have always told my mother but she has never done anything about that .

Commissioner Sooka: Have you received any counselling?

Isatu Bangura: No, except from my mother.

Commissioner Sooka: Were you examined in a hospital after this incident?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you suffer from any problem, no soreness, and no discharge?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Sooka: Does your father know that you were raped?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: In your village did they do any kind of ritual ceremony to cleanse you up?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Sooka: What do you want to do with your life one day?

Isatu Bangura: I want to be a teacher.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you want to marry one day?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you have anybody now?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: Who is supporting your education?

Isatu Bangura: My mother.

Commissioner Jow: What does your mother do?

Isatu Bangura : She is a housewife and she also engages herself in subsistence farming.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have problems paying your fees?

Isatu Bangura: Sometimes I am driven out of school for one week before she is able to raise funds for my school fees.

Leader of Evidence :Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: May I know the name of your village?

Isatu Bangura: Madina.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do other people apart from your family know that you were raped?

Isatu Bangura: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: How does it affect you? Do they treat you in a particular way because of the experience you had?

Isatu Bangura: No.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: Do you have any questions

Isatu Bangura: I have no questions

Isatu Bangura: I just want the government to help me with my education

Commissioner Sooka: I can see that you are still deeply affected so I will arrange for the Leader of Evidence to put you in touch with a professional counsellor for counselling. I know it is very difficult for you but it is very important for us to know and share your painful experience. I am very happy to see that what happened to you had not clearly disrupted your life. You are able to go back to school. We will take your recommendations to the Commission and will tell the government that most of the children want to be educated.

4th Witness – John Sesay

Commissioner Sooka :We welcome you to the hearings this afternoon. We have taken an oath of confidentiality. We will not disclose whatever you say; so please feel comfortable and relax and tell us what happened to you.

My name is John Sesay. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Commissioner Yasmin Sooka.

TESTIMONY

The day the war came to Tongo we were in school. We went to school in the afternoon. We were in the classroom when gun shots began to ring out rapidly . As we heard that, we all began to run back to our respective homes . Before we got home, we saw people carrying guns at everywhere . When they got to our home, my father was held , told to undress and then was tied up. They got hold of me and locked me in a room. They said they were going to put the house on fire, we began to cry and plead for compassion and they released us. They took hold of my father dumped him in the gutter and shot him dead . We wanted to cry, they said if we dared that, they would kill us all. They gave us loads to carry and they took the whole family away.They turned us all into porters. We were forced into the bush travelling with the loads on our heads .We with them when they attacked Kono. After the attack we were there for a week. When the rebels were repelled they went back into the bush. We then went back to Tongo. Later, they attacked the kamajors at Tongo. We were in Tongo for a while and we heard that it was time for Disarmament. They took us in a helicopter and brought us to Makeni. We were camped at CARITAS. Then the UNAMSIL problem came. There was much tension and commotion. Then CARITAS accepted to protect us but, some bosses came and threatened they would kill all of us if we did not vanish at once . The CARITAS officers told them that we were not rebels but students. They said it was a lie. We walked until we got to Mile 91. They showed our documents to some Kenyans and then they released us. We went to Freetown. From Freetown we went to Lungi. From Lungi we were repatriated.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: We know that you have just summarized your statement. We just want to ask some questions for clarifications.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: Thank you for coming here this afternoon. How old were you when you were abducted?

John Sesay: I was very young. I cannot tell.

Bishop Humper: Do you know the year you were abducted?

John Sesay: Yes. 1992.

Bishop Humper: When were you released?

John Sesay: 2002

Bishop Humper: You were with them from 1992 to 2002.

John Sesay: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Did you take part in the fighting?

John Sesay: I was very young, I only moved with them.

Bishop Humper: Did they train you to fight?

John Sesay: I was very young. But I watched them train.

Bishop Humper: So ,it means you did not fight.

John Sesay: I only carried the ammunicions.

Bishop Humper: Did they give you drugs?

John Sesay: They prepared marijuana as coffee for us to drink.

Bishop Humper: Since you left them have you taken any drug?

John Sesay: I smoke cigarette.

Bishop Humper: What did you see happen in Koidu?

John Sesay: When we reached Koidu, they started burning the town. There was smoke every where.

Bishop Humper: What are you doing now?

John Sesay: I am a student.

Bishop Humper: What form are you in?

John Humber: JSS 3⁶.
Bishop Humber: Are you one of those taking the BECE⁷ this year?
John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us how many people were abducted?
John Sesay: We were many because we were in school.
Commissioner Jow: Were you all boys or girls?
John Sesay: Both boys and girls.
Commissioner Jow: Those abducted that particular day. Were you all in the same group?
John Sesay: No, we were scattered. There was not only one group.
Commissioner Jow: You told us they abducted your family in your testimony what happened to them ?
John Sesay: I only know about my brother and my father.
Commissioner Jow: What happen to your father and brother?
John Sesay: My father was killed . My brother was sick ;he was treated but he was not responding to treatment and they decided to kill him.
Commissioner Jow: Do you know the whereabouts of your mother and sister?
John Sesay: My mother is in Robia village and my sister is in Lunsar.
Commissioner Jow: You told us that you were abducted twice. Can you tell us how you escaped and were recaptured?
John Sesay: When they attacked Kono; by then my uncle was still with us,we made a move but it was no use. There was no where you would go without encountering rebels and so I was captured again.
Commissioner Jow: This second time you were abducted to where did they take you?
John Sesay: To Tongo.
Commissioner Jow: Were you trained?
John Sesay: Being rather very young I was not trained .However,I was opportuned to being regularly taken to the training camp.
Commissioner Jow: Were you with them from 1992 to 2001 ?

⁶ JSS 3:Junior Secondary School (Class Three)

⁷ BECE: Basic Education Certificate Examination

John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: In which base did you spend most of your time?

John Sesay: Between Kono and Tongo

Commissioner Jow: Were you in any particular base?

John Sesay: In Jo Bush in Tongo.

Commissioner Jow: Which kind of work did you perform for the rebels?

John Sesay: Whenever we ran out of food we were given the responsibility to go and search for food. Some strong men were usually selected to go with us to find the food ,while we carried the food for them. When we came across any river we used banana tubes to go through the river.

Commissioner Jow: Where you assigned to any commander?

John Sesay: Yes. I was his security.

Commissioner Jow: You were his bodyguard ?

John Sesay: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Where you given a gun?

John Sesay: I was given a pistol.

Commissioner Jow: Were you trained?

John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Where and when?

John Sesay: In Makeni at Bishop's house.

Commissioner Jow: As early as when?

John Sesay: In1999 by one colonel Titus.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know about the SBU?

John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about it.

John Sesay: There was a leader he was also an SBU. At times when we want to launch certain kinds of attack, it is these small boys who are organized to lead the attack. Sometimes if you do not want to go, they grab you and put you in the vehicle. You may decide not to fight but whenever you are found doing that anywhere ; you will be shot dead.

Commissioner Jow: Were you part of the Unit?

John Sesay: I was so small at that time I was unable to go and fight.

Commissioner Jow: In your written testimony you told us you witnessed many atrocities. Is that right?

John Sesay: Yes; for the amputation.

Commissioner Jow: How many people were amputated?

John Sesay: I witnessed the scene where three children were amputated in Kono.

Commissioner Jow: Did they tell you why they did this?

John Sesay: They said they had to carry the message to Tejan Kabba.

Commissioner Jow: Were you close to any of the rebels?

John Sesay: I can identify only the commander I stayed with.

Commissioner Jow: What was the name of the commander?

John Sesay: Col. Titus

Commissioner Jow: Was that the only name you know?

John Sesay: I only know CO.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the attack in Koidu?

John Sesay: In my presence, immediately they entered the town, they started burning houses and amputating people.

Commissioner Jow: I know you were young at that time how did you feel?

John Sesay: I felt bad because I should have been in school and not watching such obscenities.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof. Kamara : It is a pity about what happened to you during the war. We do not need to distress you, if anything we are thankful to you for having the courage to come to us and tell us your experience. And because we appreciate we also feel we must know everything you have gone through. That is why we ask these questions to complete the picture. Now I want to take you back from the period you were abducted to the time you were brought back to Makeni. The statement that we have does not clarify your movement and the time you spent with these people. You were first abducted in Tongo in 1992. Is that correct?

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Then they took you into the bush.

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: From the bush you went to Koidu.

John Sesay: Yes

Prof.Kamara: At Koidu you escaped and went to your uncle.

John Sesay: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Your uncle took you from Kabala and took you to Koinadugu District.

John Sesay: Yes

Prof.Kamara: It was there that the rebels attacked and abducted you?

John Sesay: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Was it in the village that you tried to escape with five others?

John Sesay: It was between Kabala and Kono.

Prof.Kamara: The rebels killed three of the five.

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know what happened to the other two?

John Sesay: After the killing of three, the other two and I went along with them.

Prof.Kamara: So you went right back to Tongo.

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: When did you come back to Bombali?

John Sesay: I can't remember the year.

Prof.Kamara: You made mention that two women were abducted.

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Where was that?

John Sesay: Between Sewafe to Kono on the bridge. We were trying to escape.

Prof.Kamara: What happened to the women?

John Sesay: One had her hand chopped off, the other the rebels took her away. I do not know what became of her .

Prof.Kamara: You were in Bombali when the rebels captured the UNAMSIL and you stayed with them until 2002 when Caritas took you.

John Sesay: I was in the Centre when the boss man said if they met us in the centre they would kill us. We all scattered. We had nowhere to go.

Prof.Kamara: Were you here when Foday Sankoh visited Makeni to talk to the people on disarmament?

John Sesay: It was at Wusum Field but I was not present.

Prof.Kamara: Where you here when Issa Sesay took over the control of the Northern Province?

John Sesay: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: And therefore you must be able to tell us some of the atrocities caused by some of the rebels in Makeni. Did you know about a station at Magburaka where the UNAMSIL people has established a disarmament camp?

John Sesay: I heard about it but I did not go there.

Prof.Kamara: Did you hear about the slaughter of some Kenyans when they tried to disarm rebels in that camp?

John Sesay: Yes. I heard about that. That was what caused the problem in the town.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know the details?

John Sesay: We were told the rebels went to disarm but their bosses stopped them. That brought the problem in the town.

Prof.Kamara: Did you also hear about one English man who was the observer at the camps who escaped from Bombali to Mile 91?

John Sesay: No

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You spent a number of years with the rebels. You told us that you were under Commander Titus. Is it true?

John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: Was that from the beginning of your abduction?

John Sesay: No

Commissioner Sooka: The first time you were abducted to whom were you assigned?

John Sesay: I was assigned to Akim.

Commissioner Sooka: Was Akim looking after you or had he special work for you?

John Sesay: He was looking after me because I was young.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they ever at any time tell you where they go and what they do?

John Sesay: No. But on their return they usually fired gunshots indiscriminately which usually frightened me.

Commissioner Sooka: Amongst the small boys did you have any friend?

John Sesay: Yes. I do not know his real name. He was called poison.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they give him the name for any specific reasons?

John Sesay: No

Commissioner Sooka: How old was he.

John Sesay: He was older than me.

Commissioner Sooka: What sort of things did you discuss?

John Sesay: He told me not to be afraid. He said even if I am taken to the battlefield I should not be afraid. He was later shot in a battle against the kamajors.

Commissioner Sooka: When you were with Commander Titus was that the time you were trained?

John Sesay: He taught me how to use a pistol. He never took me to a training base because I was small.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you say you carried their ammunitions?

John Sesay: They threatened to kill me if I refused to carry it.

Commissioner Sooka: Were they sending you to the battlefield or were you with your commander?

John Sesay: They were always in front , while I maintained some safe distance behind them.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you remember how many battles you were involved in?

John Sesay: Only in Kono.

Commissioner Sooka: Were you frightened?

John Sesay : Yes, because that was my first time.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they take you along with them when they were going around burning houses and looting?

John Sesay: They left me at home because I was not able to walk. If I walk my foot got swollen.

Commissioner Sooka: How old should one be to join the SBU?

John Sesay: I do not know.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you get any other work to do for the commander?

John Sesay: His wife used to send me to go and fetch water.

Commissioner Sooka: Were they kind to you?

John Sesay: For me it was bad.

Commissioner Sooka: `Why did you think so?

John Sesay: Because the way we lived compared to life with my parents was so different. If you refused to do what they wanted they would kill you.

Commissioner Sooka: Did they ever kill any young boy in your presence?

John Sesay: Yes

Commissioner Sesay: Was it your twin brother?

John Sesay: Yes. He was sick. He was treated; but he was not responding to the treatment, so they killed him.

Commissioner Sooka: How did you feel?

John Sesay: I felt bad.

Commissioner Sooka: Did you often go hungry?

John Sesay: Yes. Because we were often on the move. Generally, there was no other food except cassava and banana. We ate them raw.

Commissioner Sooka: You must have seen them commit a lot of atrocities.

John Sesay: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: What else did you see?

John Sesay : The burning of houses ; even ours was not spared.

Commissioner: Did you see them do bad things to young girls?

John Sesay: At that time when they captured the girls they took them to other towns and later came back to us.

Commissioner: Were you ever asked to commit any atrocity?

John Sesay: No

Commissioner Sooka: Did they ever try to sexually violate you?

John Sesay: No. I was very young.

Commissioner Sooka: When you were placed in care of CARITAS did you receive any counselling?

John Sesay: Yes

Commissioner Sooka: Do you still receive counselling?

John Sesay: Yes. There are some times when I see my friends' parents and I remember mine.

Commissioner Sooka: Whom are you staying with now?

John Sesay: I am staying with my uncle.

Commissioner Sooka: Are you happy that the war is over.

John Sesay: Yes I am happy.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you still remember about what happened to your brother?

John Sesay: No; a lot of my colleagues come to me and we play together. So many things are helping me in coming to terms with that and getting over it.

Leader of Evidence : Mr. Abdulai Charm

Mr. Charm: In your testimony you said your brother and father were killed. Can we have their names?

John Sesay: Father - Sheku Sesay; brother – Alusine Sesay.

Mr. Charm: Since you returned have you had any cleansing ceremony?

John Sesay: Though there was no ceremony my mother was happy to see me.

Commissioner Sooka: Now is the time for you to ask us questions or make recommendations.

John Sesay: What is going to be our fate now that we are talking to the Commission?

Bishop Humper: We are very much concerned about women, girls and children. This commission unlike other commissions in the world, have special assignment to look at the needs of children, women and girls. Fortunately there are organizations and NGO who will help the Commission in implementing their mandate. The international community is expecting to see the report to know what happened to children so that they will be able to prepare a future for you.

John Sesay: What are the reasons for asking all these questions?

Bishop Humper: We have a job to do but we have to find out what are the problems you experienced during this war period. So that we can record it to say that this is what happened to the children in Sierra Leone and we also have to find out why some of these things happened and based on what you have experienced and the scars it has left on you we have to recommend on what we think better. We also have to make sure what we need to do so that another war will not break again. Our report will go to the government, the UN and other international agencies. That is why we intend to make sure that the government follows our recommendations. We need to know so that we can do something about it.

John Sesay: Why should the perpetrators be set free?

Bishop Humper: That is a difficult question. For you perhaps there may be no answer to satisfy you. I hope that in the end you will see the logic and accept it. You have been with these people you were so distressed and so afraid that everyday of your life was miserable. So I am sure in your heart, you wanted that kind of situation to change immediately. Government was also thinking about people like you and others the rebels abducted. So they were finding ways of getting them to put down the arms. Finally through the support of the international community they were able to go to Lome and negotiate the cease fire. But as you know those rebels who were causing all these troubles, were themselves Sierra Leoneans. For them to accept the peace to come to Sierra Leone was to endanger them. So they decided that they are ready to accept to put down their arms' but you must let the people of Sierra Leone forgive us and accept us. If we can't get that security we can't put our guns down.' So this forgiveness is the price we all have to pay for the peace we are enjoying today. If you are happy for the peaceful Sierra Leone it is because the government did this for us the Sierra Leonean citizens .That is why we cannot go and task them for what they did to us.

Commissioner Sooka: It is a crime in terms of International law for those who recruited young boys and abduct them to fight in a way. Everybody can't be punished the heads have been charged by the Special Court and one of the crime which they have been charged for is the abduction of young children. I am sure many people like you want these people to be punished but because of the peace we cannot punish them all. That is why it is important to listen to your testimony.

John Sesay: I do not know when CARITAS will fold up as they are presently responsible for our education ? We need support and assistance in our schooling.

Commissioner Sooka: We thank you very much. You did not know which day you may have been killed so no child wants to come up in that condition. You are alive with your hands and feet in tact and you have gone back to school. You are a brave young man. We are happy that you have gone back to school. I am sorry that your brother died. I hope that this is being as useful for you as it is for us.

5th – Witness – Ferenkeh Jabbie

My name is Ferenkeh Jabbie. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Yasmin Sooka.

TESTIMONY

Since we all believe in God ,I ask everybody here present to call on Him in the manner of his or her own religious beliefs. I am happy to see you all around me. First of all I want to tell you that I have lost my mother and father and I believe that the IRC⁸ will be my mother and father. At present I am happy but my heart is in a lot of distress. I am telling IRC thanks for they have done great things for me. They have built a house for me. I am staying with my younger brother. They also furnished the house. I am suffering because we do not have anything to eat. I am in JSSI . When my younger brother returns from school he goes to the UNAMSIL to work .From there he gets some food. That is the food we share and it is over for the day. I tried to sell the things provided by IRC but they advised us not to sell them. While I should not be spoilt with food ,I do not think that it is right for me to die of hunger. I have undergone several operations with several synthetic materials in my system. My intestines are made of rubber. When I am hungry the intestines fold and stretch. My younger brother consoles me. At present he has gone to the UNAMSIL camp to find some food. The rainy season is fast approaching, therefore I am appealing to you to help, for we have no food to eat. I am staying there with other amputees; some of them will go to the street and their problems are external and visible. People sympathise with them. But I cannot go to the street because my problem is internal and not obvious.

In the first place when I was abducted, I was still very young . I was given human faeces to eat. After that one of them took a bayonet and ripped open my stomach. ECOMOG came and took me to Freetown. I was unconscious and so I just saw myself in the hospital. I later was discharged and sent to waterloo. The doctor there was Dr. Dunstan, working for ADRA. When I got there I was in much pain. What he did was to try to loosen the stitches. Then I was taken to the ward. I was taken again to the theatre because I was still feeling much pain. The Dr. was confused and performed the operation three times. He said I nearly lost my life in the theatre. And that they prayed until I came back to life. He came out and told the nurses that I had died but the Lord has brought me back to life. A lady working for Handicap International called Valerie, the doctor, told her about me; and she started bringing provisions for me. I ate eggs for a long time but I could not walk and I was ,for all practical purposes, a skeleton.I had to begin again to learn how to walk . The nurses had to hold my hand and walk with me inside the hospital. I stayed there for a while and the nurses were very sympathetic with me. Rubbers were fixed from my nose to my stomach. I spent one year in waterloo and I was not eating rice; I was drip-fed all through. After that as I regained my health, I was taken to my tarpaulin booth. I was there until the rebels attacked Waterloo and we went to Old Wharf. There some white people came and built tent for us. They used to cook rice for us and everybody would go with his/her own dish. Old Wharf was attacked again and we went to the National Stadium, we were there but unable to get supply of provisions. Our chairman called Muctar Jalloh who has now gone to America went and begged the people and they started supplying us. We were transferred to Aberdeen Road. The place at Aberdeen Road was not conducive so they took us to Grafton. The IRC people met us at Grafton and said they were going to build houses for us. They told us however, that they will not go to our individual villages , but that they will construct the houses in every district. When we came to Makeni, the WFP gave us three months supply. I could not eat the food supplied by the WFP, so I sold it and bought rice for my brother and myself. Since that time they have closed and we have not seen them.The way things are, it is difficult for me to continue to live. My younger brother who works for UNAMSIL helps me. I make this plea because I am sick. We want to attend school my brother and I. Even when we go to school we do not have lunch. We do not have food to eat let alone lunch.

Commissioner Jow: Can you give us an idea as to where this incident took place ?

Mr. F. Jabbie: It was in Kono.

Commissioner Jow: What part of Kono?

⁸ Inter-Religious Council

Mr.F. Jabbie: Bondamado.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember the year?

Mr. F. Jabbie: I was very young then . I cannot remember.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know the group which abducted you?

Mr. F. Jabbie: There were about three groups: Red Lion, Jungle Warrior, and Cyborg.

Commissioner Jow: Were you ever in contact with these groups?

Mr.F. Jabbie: When they attacked anywhere, Red Lion will be in front and then Jungle Warrior and Cyborg will be the last because they do no talk.

Commissioner Jow: How long did you stay with them?

Mr. F.Jabbie: I cannot remember. I was very young .But I remember they captured one man and cut his throat. He was offered as a sacrifice.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell me why they gave you faeces to eat?

Mr.F.Jabbie: A lot of young boys were captured .All of them were killed one by one.When it came to my own turn to be killed, they gave me human faeces to eat instead. But the other one said "let us kill him ,he will not survive". And the other one took the bayonet and stabbed me.

Commissioner Jow: Did you sustain any injury when you were stabbed?

Mr. F.Jabbie: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: What immediate help did you get?

Mr. F.Jabbie: It so happened that about two to three hours after I was stabbed ECOMOG came and flushed out the rebels and they took me to the Connaught Hospital.

Bishop Humper: These three groups of fighters were they all RUF?

Mr.F. Jabbie: I cannot tell. I only spent two days with them. I do not know the actual group. I do not know if they were mixed up.

Bishop Humper: Tell us how you feel now having gone through this traumatic experience. What can you tell the elders concerning what happened to you and your age group?

Mr.F. Jabbie: I want to appeal to the government to strengthen the security so that there will not be a repetition of the war. On the other hand, we, the children are the leaders of tomorrow and therefore, I would like , the children to be protected.

Prof. Kamara: At the time when these people stabbed you with the bayonet, was your stomach showing any signs of swelling?

Mr.F. Jabbe: After I had taken the faeces, my stomach began to swell and the others said, "let us bayonet him." At present even a navel, I do not have. It has equally been cut off.

Commissioner Sooka: You said you were young when they took you ?

Mr.F. Jabbe: Yes. At that time I was very a small boy; but I was able to see and discern certain things.

Commissioner Sooka: How long were you with them?

Mr.F. Jabbe: Two days. My companions were abducted first and, I was abducted later on. My companions were killed and they did this to me.

Commissioner Sooka: You said your mother and father are dead ?

Mr.F. Jabbe: I do not know the whereabouts of my father. My mother is dead. It was my mother who took care of me. My father never took care of us since birth.

Commissioner Sooka: When was the last time you saw him?

Mr.F. Jabbe: It has been a long time.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you have any other family?

Mr.F. Jabbe: Except my uncle, but he too was amputated?

Commissioner Sooka: So you have nobody to assist you.

Mr.F. Jabbe: None, except God.

Leader of Evidence : Mr. Abdulai Charm

Mr. Charm: You said you spent two days with the rebels do you know whether other villages were attacked?

Mr.F. Jabbe: No; I have no idea about it

Mr. Charm: The group that abducted you ;do you know if they were under the influence of drugs?

Mr.F. Jabbe: Yes .They took them. They smoked and drank.

Mr. Charm: Can you tell us the age of the commander?

Mr. F. Jabbe: I cannot remember.

Mr. Charm: Were there boys amongst them?

Mr.F. Jabbe: They had both men and women. And the women were cooking for them.

Commissioner Jow: Presently, do you have any medical attention?

Mr.F. Jabbe: That is the problem. I have no medical attention.

Commissioner Jow: So you do not go to the government hospital when you feel pain?

Mr. F. Jabbie: I do not have any idea about that.

Commissioner Jow: What about the camp. Do you have any medical facility there?

Mr. F. Jabbie: No, there is no medical facility there.

Commissioner Jow: Do the UNAMSIL people know about your condition?

Mr. F. Jabbie: Yes, I have two friends who are aware about this problem. The last time one of them gave me Le10, 000.

Mr. F. Jabbie: I want to thank you very much. Now I am staying with my younger brother. I am appealing to you and the government; if you cannot help me or assist me, please take care of my younger brother.

Commissioner Sooka: We ourselves do not take care of anybody. We will not be able to take care of your immediate needs. Our staff will take you to the government hospital in Makeni. We need to know the name of your younger brother.

Mr. F. Jabbie: I have two brothers, the one that is assisting me is Lansana Jabbie and the other is Foray.

Commissioner Sooka: We will find out about the NGO in Freetown that will help you with your problem. We want to ask your permission for a snapshot of your stomach to be taken so that we can know exactly what to do.

Mr. F. Jabbie: I am happy about that. I know it will be to the benefit of all of us. I am ready.

Commissioner Sooka: It is a pity that you do not know the whereabouts of your father; we could have found him and taken legal action against him for not discharging his responsibilities.

6th – Witness – Mohamed Kamara

My name is Mohamed Kamara. I am a Christian. The oath was administered by Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

TESTIMONY

May the Lord help us. I hail from Kailahun District, Mahilah Chiefdom. I was born there but was brought up at Kono. I was working at a bakery in Tankoro. My residence was a bit far from my work place. We were there at the work place when the town was attacked. I was abducted in September. When I was abducted I was taken to Gandorhun. I was a small boy. The only person who was taking care of me was a Temne woman who was equally an apprentice in the bakery. We spent there 12 months as captives before we escaped. The woman said, "here there is a lot of problem", she said, "do you know the whereabouts of your people?" I said, "I don't know." She brought me to Makeni and I stayed at Campbell Street. I had no problem before this time, but when we came to Makeni I developed Hernia. I had experienced the hernia in Gandorhun, but by then it was no serious threat and I took no notice of it. The woman told me she had heard of an organisation called CARITAS. She said, "Since you do not know your mother, I want CARITAS to help you." We made contacts and I was taken to the Director of CARITAS. The Director saw my problem and he told me to wait awhile. Then he said to, "before CARITAS takes up your problem, do you remember the name of the commander that abducted you?" I said I did not know. The only person I know is the woman who has been taking care of me and her name is Wanjama. When Caritas wants to confine children as ex-combatants they take them to Magburaka for disarmament. So I was taken to Magburaka. At that particular time, I was not happy with my inclusion into a disarmament programme but because of my sickness I had to. He said: "The only way I can assist you is to go into the programme and disarm." He asked me "what skill were you learning?" I said I was a bakery apprentice. He told Mr. Andrew, "please try to teach this young man a job." The Dr. tried in helping me, Caritas tried too, but it was that woman who helped me the most. Had it not been for that woman I would have died. Caritas paid the Le 150,000 and the operation was performed. I am still under Caritas.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: You have been displaced. But your perhaps tough and unpleasant experience is better than the others we have heard. Have you ever been in contact with your parents since you were abducted?

Mohamed Kamara: I have not been able to see my family. The only people I know are Andrew and the woman I told you about Prof. Kamara: Have you ever tried to find out about them?

Mohamed Kamara: I cannot take that venture alone I want Andrew to help me.

Prof. Kamara: Have you asked CARITAS to reunite you with your family?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. They were only waiting for the operation to be done.

Prof Kamara: So ,you will remind them to help you trace your parents?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. Even if I find my family I will still continue to do my job.

Prof. Kamara: You were abducted by rebels, is that correct?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. I don't know their name. I was a small boy.

Prof. Kamara: Did they abduct you and hand you over to the woman?

Mohamed Kamara: I was abducted together with the woman .But when the rebels wanted my identity ,the woman claimed that I was her brother .

Prof. Kamara: Where were you taken to ?

Mohamed Kamara: To Gandorhun.

Prof. Kamara: From Gandorhun, where did they take you?

Mohamed Kamara: We escaped to Makeni.

Prof. Kamara: How long were you with the rebels before you escaped from them?

Mohamed Kamara: We spent 12 months with them. I was together with the woman.

Prof. Kamara: Is she old or young?

Mohamed Kamara: She is of middle age.

Prof. Kamara: Is she married?

Mohamed Kamara: She has grey hair .She is no longer a young woman

Prof. Kamara: Has she a home of her own where you were living?

Mohamed Kamara: The woman is dead now.

Prof. Kamara: You now rely on Caritas and Andrew.

Mohamed Kamara: Andrew is a worker of Caritas. They are the only people I know.

Prof. Kamara: Do you still want to be an apprentice at a bakery so that you will open your own bakery business?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: Have you discussed this with CARITAS?

Mohamed Kamara: They told me that the Director is in Freetown. When he comes back they will tell him.

Prof. Kamara: Are you happy with Andrew?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes, I am happy with him because since I met him he has treated me like a good brother; to the extent that even when I am out ,Andrew's wife cooks and keeps food for me. I have no problem with him.

CommissionerJow: You told us that you were born in Kailahun, but you were brought up in Kono.

Mohamed Kamara: I was staying there with my father but my mother was staying in Guinea.

Commissioner Jow: How many people were abducted with you?

Mohamed Kamara: We were many.

Commissioner Jow: Were there boys like you?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Where they all taken to Gandorhun?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes

Commissioner Jow: How long did you stay at Gandorhun?

Mohamed Kamara: 12 months

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us some of the things that happened to you when you were with the rebels?

Mohamed Kamara: The only thing I remember is that sometimes we cooked, laundered and fetched water for them. Sometimes they took us out in search of food .They would give you a bag of rice to carry not minding your capacity, they would force you to carry it.

Commissioner Jow: Were you ever punished during those 12 months.?

Mohamed Kamara: Atimes. I was beaten for my inability to continue to carry rather very heavy loads. The woman also usually received serious beating for such failure on her own side.

Commissioner Jow: Did you see anybody slightly bigger than you being trained.

Mohamed Kamara: The smaller boys and women were put in one place and the bigger boys in another place.

Commissioner Jow: Did you ever see them in training ?

Mohamed Kamara: No.

Commissioner Jow: Did they give you anything in particular to drink so that you will be strong to carry the loads?

Mohamed Kamara: No.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember the names of some of those people who were in the camp with you?

Mohamed Kamara: I never stayed with them for any reasonable length of time.I stayed with the women. Atimes for some reasons unknown to me, they would send me a safe distance away from themselves.

Commissioner Jow: Did you ever see anyone being killed or any atrocities committed?

Mohamed Kamara: No.

Commissioner Jow: Mohamed you told us that you escaped in 1993.

Mohamed Kamara: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: How long did you stay with this woman before you went to CARITAS?

Mohamed Kamara: When we came here I told the woman that I am grown up and I want to go and look for my mother in Guinea. I went there and I did not meet my mother but I met her brother, my uncle. I asked for my mother and my uncle said she is in Freetown. I left my uncle because I know he will not be able to take care of me.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us why you joined the DDR Programme ,since the DDR Programme is for the Ex-combatant?

Mohamed Kamara: I was never a combatant. I never carried any gun . But I was under CARITAS. Sometimes CARITAS would go to the streets and pick up street children and take them to DDR. I was sick and needed treatment and I want to be educated.

Bishop Humper: Thank you for sharing your experiences with us. Now that you have gone through all this trouble, what is your hope for the future?

Mohamed Kamara: I am presently engaged in two trades. In the morning I sell bread . Later I would go to my shop and learn tailoring skills.

Commissioner Sooka: Were there other people abducted at the time you were abducted?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes I have said it. Some boys were also abducted.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened to them?

Mohamed Kamara: I do not know.They were still there when the woman and I made our escape .

Commissioner Sooka: Was there any time you were punished in any way?

Mohamed Kamara: The only punishment I can tell you about was that we carried loads and sometimes we pounded rice.

Commissioner Sooka: At that time were you afraid of them?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. I was afraid of them because they were very cruel; even at one time the woman was beaten up because she told them I was a small boy and should not carry loads.

Commissioner Sooka: When you were abducted can you give me the name of the unit commander to which this woman belonged?

Mohamed Kamara: When we were there I never asked her. But when we came to Makeni I asked her and she said she did not know but that she heard a name called Komba Gundama.

Commissioner Sooka: Were there times when you went hungry?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes, sometimes we collected bananas and cassavas spread them out for sun-drying and from there scrapped out sustenance.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us the name of the woman you escaped with?

Mohamed Kamara: The woman was called Adama.

Commissioner Sooka: Did she die a natural death ?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. She had a fatal attack of epilepsy .

Mohamed Kamara: I do not know where my mother is. I want the government to assist CARITAS so that CARITAS would assist me by providing a workshop for me. At present I am practically alone and helpless in this world but for CARITAS and Andrew.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us Andrew's full name?

Mohamed Kamara: Andrew Sesay. My mother is Adama Mansaray and my Father is Sandy.

Commissioner Sooka: We have heard you and we will make our recommendations.

Mohamed Kamara: Andrew has been very helpful to me. At night I sleep in the bakery. I cannot blame Andrew for my sleeping in the bakery. After all he is married and stays in a single room. If the government can assist me by making a workshop for me, may be I will be there and make an extension for accommodation and I will be doing my job.

Commissioner Sooka: Do you receive any counselling?

Mohamed Kamara: No. I have not received any form of counselling. Sometimes Andrew serves as my counsellor. And even though I have had the hernia operation ,once in a while I still feel the pain .

Commissioner Sooka: You said your mother went to Guinea?

Mohamed Kamara: She was born in Guinea. She has no relative here in Sierra Leone.

PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN MAKENI ON 29TH MAY 2003

1ST Witness – Rev. Father Mario

In this country my name is Pa Alimamy Father. I am a Christian. Mrs. Jow administered the oath.

Commissioner Jow: We thank you for coming here. We appreciate your efforts in coming here this morning to share your experiences with us.

TESTIMONY

I came to this country in 1963. I have worked in many places in the north. I believe that I know the area very well and I know about the people. I know that a lot of people here do not like war. It comes from outside. After the ordeal, I went to my country Italy and then I was invited in big towns to talk about education. I met a man from Senegal who was doing the same work as I do. He was talking about the problem in Africa. I told him "because we all do the same works let us come together and do something better." We worked together to sensitize people. After two three days he got used to what we were doing and he trusted me. He told me a story. He told me that he was a refugee. He said: 'I ran away from my country because we tried to overthrow the government. I was trained in Libya in a place called Tajura. There was a big camp where they train young boys to fight. I saw many boys from many African countries and also those who came from Sierra Leone. I was part of the armed escort. We know that the war was from Liberia to Sierra Leone. Helicopter was coming from Liberia to supply arms in Sierra Leone. I saw one of those helicopters. The helicopter was covered with the ICRC flag so that people will not know'. This is my opinion of the war. There were other things that caused the war. The Corruption caused by the senior people in the government. It was too much. It affected all facets of the society. I remember I talked to one Paramount Chief. He told me his experience: 'I did not receive my salary for five years. I am a school manager and I have to pay salaries. The funds came from government. It was a problem to get the money from government to pay the teachers. All the time it was not sufficient. It was already too much when the soldiers raised gun as they were not willing to accept it. The teachers have no guns and leave everything to God. The soldiers have guns.' When I was captured there were two soldiers there. One was working in the administration office in the Sierra Leone Army. He said "Father there is a lot of corruption. The senior officers eat our money and the junior ones are left to suffer. They will put a soldier's name in Freetown but the soldier will be working in Kailahun. When the soldier goes to Freetown for the money they will send him to Kailahun." And the soldier will leave everything to God. That was the time the country was getting warmed up. He said, "Father when the President came to talk to us the senior officers will talk as if everything is well in the army. This brought dissatisfaction and hatred in the army." This was the evidence of the war. The Chief 1st Accused Sgt. Gborie, he said the coup was not against the President. "Our plans were to collect all the senior officers because of corruption." The president took it that it was a coup against him. That was why the newspapers wrote that it was the junior officers' coup. They usual thing to hear is that the senior officers planned the coup. This was how corruption caused the war. We are talking about the causes of the war. I was present in the war. We moved from one point to another for us not to be captured. In 1995 seven of our sisters were captured in Kambia. The Bishop was able to negotiate with Sankoh until they were released. As the rebels moved in the bush Father was telling us to go into the bush. We were always ready. One time news spread that they were looking for foreigners. One time the rebels were organizing themselves to come to Koinadugu and the head was SAJ Musa. That group was called the group jungle army in the region. They started moving and controlling the villages. They came near Kamalo where I lived. When they reached there they stayed for some time. When they were there they prepared to go to Freetown but they did not move. Later I noticed they wanted to capture me. They went there two times but I was in Makeni. At one time, I heard they were coming down and they went to Maribo. In Maribo, they destroyed and killed people. After two days I went to see things for myself. I saw much destruction and the dead bodies. A ten years old girl and including two men and one woman were the only ones left in the village. Somebody came out from the bush and I told him to bury the bodies. He said father I am tired I have already buried seventeen bodies. I took some supply to Maribo for those who were unable to go into the bush. One small group of ECOMOG soldiers was around. Just to spite the small group, that was the good reason why the rebels attacked. One night in September they entered the village and burnt everything and abducted many people. Because they were on the other side facing where I was, I was able to go to the bush. The following morning I came back to the village and I saw houses burnt down and I saw many dead bodies. I tried to encourage the people to bury the bodies. We buried seventeen bodies. Boys, girls, women and men were amongst them. That very day I had to take many people to the hospital because many were injured. On the night of 15 November 1999, the rebels came back again and they surrounded the house and they captured me. They took me to their camp at Loko Hill in Namanya. When I went there I saw 2000 combatants fully armed. I was surprised because we always believed what the Minister of Information said. This Minister was telling us that the rebels were thieves with cutlasses and about two hundred and fifty in number. Those I met there were people from the army. They were angry because of the corruption in the army. I remember one time they sent supply for the soldiers; when they reached Port Loko junction, the car moved to Guinea and sold all the goods which were meant for the soldiers. The soldiers complained that they did not receive their salaries and food. When they were with the junta group they were supplied all necessary goods. They were at the head and they fought many battles on their way to Freetown and they won all of them. Therefore, I will point finger on the Ministry of Information. Rebels were always listening to radio. All what I heard was that the government had repelled the rebels. I was held for forty-six days. I know what I am talking about. Any time when they get this kind of information from the government they were annoyed. They went forward to kill and destroy. When I was held I was taken to a big camp called Rosus. That was when we started to walk. We were four thousand in number. Women and children were in the group. As we reached Freetown we were eight thousand. The combatants were about two thousand. Every time they will say the people were about 15,000. We were moving always at night. Nobody got near them to know the fact. That was why the war caught some of us. The way we were treated it was as if we were animals. I was treated as a log. They took me and did all kinds of things to me. I had nothing to say. The rebels enjoyed punishing us. They enjoyed it when you scream and cry. That was a sad surprise to me. One day when we were walking in the forest, I saw a stone in front of me and almost everybody kicked the stone as they passed by. When I reached the stone, I took the stone and put it in a corner. The fighter cast a very sour look at me and put the stone in the same position. In Freetown one night we were in a house we heard that they flogged a man and the man was yelling "kill me! Kill me!" I don't know what they did to him but it was very painful. Another time around the road I saw an old man whom they gave a big pot to carry, he was ahead of me. He said I can't go further and placed the pot down and one soldier came and chopped the man's head. One time they caught a boy who they thought was a CDF. They flogged him. I tried to talk to them and one commander came and said he would be killed. He was left behind and was killed. I was sending people for water with a gallon. We fetched water from swamps and streams. I was sending other people because they never allowed me. Most of the time the boys I beg to do this for me will come with the gallon empty and tell me that the soldiers have drank the water. This was a satanic life, the way they live. What I see I will not say all. I will only say the small ones. All the seniors enjoyed the wickedness they did. Whatever they wanted they took by force. One man had a gold watch that cost $3,000 and the man told me how he got hold of the watch. ' I saw one man with the watch and I said to myself: I want this watch and I shot the man dead and took the watch.' So many things the juniors did were ordered by the senior. The situation became very bad and there was a time they did wicked things to everybody. When the amputation of hands began, it was not because they did not have weapons; they just wanted people to be afraid of them. I don't know what else you will want to know.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: We say thanks for your testimony. It is very detailed. For those details you have not told us it will come out in questions. We appreciate the time you have taken to tell us what you know. The Commission will send somebody to you to get the more detailed submission.

Bishop Humper: We thank you for this opportunity for you who belong to those noble institutions to tell us what you went through. If we are going to ask detailed questions here we will spend not less than two hours. We will be asking you to give us a written submission. Did I hear you say the war did not begin in Sierra Leone?

Father Mario: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Rev. Father could you put us in an historical perspective from 1963 ? For you to be in the country from 1963 you are just like a citizen. We want to know from your own perspective, how the war grew until it reached that level ?

Father Mario: When I came to this country, my first station was Magburaka. It was two years into independence. It was the time of transition from the foreign colonial staff to the nationals . Some skeletal presence of the colonial administrative structure were still maintained in such offices as the District Officer. In Magburaka there was a station that provided electricity. There was supply of water, with no problems; there was a train from Freetown, twice a week. There was a post office. In four years everything collapsed. Since independence there has been no improvement. This is not just a matter of any one regime; everybody is just grabbing. We started having problems with education. During that time when the whites were in charge, education was properly regarded and treated accordingly . We used to get money for repairs. We had funds from government to build new schools. In two to three years, they stopped everything.

Bishop Humper: Could we say that what you are talking about is what has been going on since independence ?

Father Mario: Exactly.

Bishop Humper: Did you say that this corruption in the government cuts across all cadre , beginning with the top ranks ?

Father Mario: It is true.

Bishop Humper: Did you say that a truck load of food brought for the fighters was diverted to Guinea to be sold?

Father Mario: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Did you say that it is possible that the people who supposedly brought arms for government fighters took the supplies to the rebels ?

Father Mario: I know that they gave the weapons to the rebels. I know we have many other groups that got their own reinforcement through battle field victory and surprise attacks and the resultant seizure and use of the weapons.

Bishop Humper: The SLA had weapons to fight the war ?

Father Mario: I was afraid when I saw them. They met no resistance from the regular army. Just once in a while. Only the civilian forces and such other vigilante forces fought them regularly. The government soldiers always gave way and the rebels moved along with us. As we reached one village, they met fifteen children and they slaughtered them.

Bishop Humper: Is it your view that the Minister of Information was responsible?

Father Mario: Yes. He was responsible for the kind of information he gave. I went with Bishop Ganda to see the President. We met him at State House; the President, Vice President and Minister of Information. We told them that what we heard was not true about the rebels. We told them the strength of the rebels. The Minister of Information said: "We have counted all of them and we have killed 1400.” It was a lie. I think he knew. I believe he knows something.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof.Kamara: We appreciate your coming here. We will start with your Senegalese friend. I want to know the name of the town the friend was trained?

Father Mario: Katura

Prof.Kamara: The town you where you were abducted, you went to see the town. What was the name of the town?

Father Mario: Makaribo, a small village at the Loko Hills.

Prof.Kamara: I want to know the year you were abducted.

Father Mario: 15th November 1993. I can still give you full details because I was with them until they entered Freetown.

Prof.Kamara: You said Gborie’s intention was not to oust the government but to arrest the senior officers in the army. Was it because of the corruption of the Superiors ? You were here in 1967. The anticorruption label was thrown up by the ring-leaders of the putsch . They arrested all their superiors.But after that what happened? Are there not lines that can be drawn between the 1967 case and Gborie’s coup ?

Father Mario: Yes. There may be an angle to the issue of gainfully employing or occupying the soldiers. Give them something worthwhile to keep them busy. For example, I am always surprised in Kamakwie that there are soldiers who day in day out only sweep and pick up the leaves.Ordinarily,they are of the age and in their number have the strength to do some thing else.

Bishop Humper: What will be your opinion of the government’s handling of the military? Is the government afraid to tell the military the truth or they do not handle them properly ?

Father Mario: In my opinion they do not tell them to do the right thing. Now that they know better. They have to tell them what they should do because they should push the country forward.

Bishop: Is it your opinion that what has happened to the army; with the corruption in it cannot be in truth divorced from the corruption of the politicians ?

Father Mario: Let me put it this way:There is a story going around that somebody once complained to Siaka Stevens about the issue of corruption and his answer was: ‘ Around where a cow is leashed , is also where it is expected to graze’. That was where the document of corruption was signed. Another: The Ministry of Education is responsible for free education but not the school, and the government had agreement about some statutory grant-in -aid . They gave the first one; but the second one they decided to give it to the head master. I am not happy about that.

Commissioner Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: You were specifically targeted by this particular group of rebels. They came for you two times and the third time they captured you. Why is it that they planned to capture you?

Father Mario: The rebels were annoyed because what they said in the world about them was that they were evil. They wanted the people to feel that that is not what they were like. In this respect, when we were near Newton they called the Bishop and they told him that if he wanted to see me they should tell ECOMOG to stop the fight and pull out of Sierra Leone. After that they asked for generator and medicine to be taken to some women in Pademba Road. The Bishop discussed the issue with the government but the government said no to that arrangement. Then they realized that my abduction was of no serious political consequence.

Commissioner Sooka: You said there were women and girls in the group as you were marched on to Freetown ?

Father Mario: They were treated as firewood. They did to them anything their imagination gave them . Some times the women ran from the soldiers to sleep near me because , near me they were afraid to harm them. The rebels were afraid of me. They counted on my importance. When the helicopter came bombing, the soldiers came around me with the hope that they would not be killed. They treated the women very badly. We were walking on a hill and there was a woman who was in labour and she was helped by two other women. They halted everybody and the woman was able to deliver. After 30 minutes she had to keep marching on.

Commissioner Sooka: Did the women suffer sexual violence?

Father Mario: Where I was, they did it at night. There was a camp called Red Eagle ,many girls were raped there. One time in Rosus a girl who was abducted moved from the camp to talk with me. She was 12 years old. She reported to me; she said "Father they have been raping us. They sometimes gang-rape us ."

Commissioner Sooka: You said that as many times as you witnessed these atrocities you shivered . How did the chopping of hands and burning of houses begin ?

Father Mario: It is an orgy. Suddenly, there was a command that everybody should be disturbed. That was the time they started beating people up and chopping of hands. They feel good doing these things. They were doing this for them to feel happy. They have pleasure in doing it. It makes them feel powerful . They have no control over themselves. They experienced certain burst of satisfaction. I am worried as they are still in the country.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: You have been in the country for 40 yrs. You have been through it all. You have worked with many people. We know that as the war went on young men were forced to join and some voluntarily. I would like to know whether before the war ,the youths were telling you about their disenchantment with the way things were going on in the country; that made them willing to join the rebels ?

Father Mario: In the group there was all wickedness. The main thing was that they do not say the truth. The only thing I heard was when one of them asked me if I could help him to leave the country.

Commissioner Jow: The young people might have been disenchanted and broken-hearted ;but they never reckoned with the implications of wa; did you preach to the soldiers in the bush ?

Father Mario: I preached once and for that I was beaten up and so I stopped . The first to slap me was SAJ Musa and there were some senior officers with him. I would not remember all of them ;but one of them cautioned him. I once met him in Freetown. The other two are already back in the army. At one time they met me and they greeted me and they treated me as if we have been friends.But I made it clear to them that there is no such relationship between us.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: Part of the mandate stipulates to find out about the causes of the war. You mentioned that Sierra Leoneans were trained in Libya ?

Father Mario: They were taught guerrilla warfare and how to instil fear among the people by devious viciousness .

Bishop Humper: Who is the president of that country?

Father Mario: This is not a secret. All the newspapers are talking about it. Col.Mohamed Gadaffi wants to bring the Africans together. He wanted to oust the government and get in its place one that works with his international community. He wanted a government that he can control.

Bishop Humper: You said that from Libya they brought the mission to Burkina Faso ?

Father Mario: Yes

Bishop Humper: From Liberia to Sierra Leone ?

Father Mario: Yes

Bishop Humper: Some people that gave testimony to this Commission said that the ICRC was responsible for supplying arms to the rebels. According to your testimony that the Liberian government used helicopter with the ICRC flag attached to make it look as if it was ICRC relief craft with materials.

Father Mario: Yes. This helicopter which people told you about, the information is very true. This information I got it from the rebels. About 2000 rebels they were given 2000- rounds guns and all were the same. Somebody infiltrated their ranks and investigated and confirmed the veracity of the information.

When I was going to Freetown I saw the helicopter. Special soldiers with red caps were with me and as I reached Waterloo this helicopter passed us with the stickers. As the helicopter saw us it rushed into hiding until it nearly crashed.

Bishop Humper : Are you aware that the ICRC had warned people about using their stickers ?

Father Mario: I have heard a lot of people talking about that and even the government. There was a time when the government stopped the work of the ICRC in Sierra Leone because of these manoeuvres. But the ICRC denied any such complicity in toto and said that it was only a case of giving the dog a bad name in order to kill it.

Prof; Kamara

Prof.Kamara: Do you know how the people supplying the arms were being paid.

Father Mario: I only know how they travelled, but I don't know how they were paid.

Leader of Evidence:Ms. Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You mentioned that by the time you got to Freetown you were about 8000 captives. I want to know whether you were used to fight or used as shield.

Father Mario: I was in the main group of the prisoners. We were in the group to increase the number, as a camouflage. The group had very good fighters. Even during the training so many children lost their lives. The one that held us were Sierra Leoneans and they had great fighting skills. The way we walked was four battalions in front and the ones that carry ammunitions are by their side and we the prisoners are in the middle and the two battalions are at the back. I have heard that they used civilians as shield. They never put us in front. They used us as camouflage in terms of the number.

Commissioner Jow: We thank you for your testimony. You have been forthright in your testimony. It is now your turn to ask questions.

Father Mario: What I am saying is for the development of this country. The President was pointing accusing fingers at the rebels. But I still see bad things happening. But I pray that the President will be able to push the country forward.

2nd Witness – Bernadette Kamara

No Testimony

Prof. Kamara: Do you know whether these two groups were enemies or allies ?

Bernadette Kamara: I cannot tell because at anytime we heard about such groups we usually went into the bush.

Prof.Kamara: What happened to ECOMOG when SAJ Musa's group attacked ?

Bernadette Kamara: ECOMOG was stationed at Kamalo. They operated from Kamalo and moved to and fro.

Prof.Kamara: When SAJ Musa's group attacked, ECOMOG troop did not respond ?

Bernadette Kamara: They were not there .

Prof.kamara: Not even at kamalo ?

Bernadette Kamara: They were not there .

Prof.Kamara: Have these villages been resettled ?

Bernadette Kamara: Yes. Very few people are managing their lives there .

Prof.Kamara: You said that the time SAJ Musa's group attacked, they took away young people?

Bernadette Kamara: Most of the young girls were abducted. The boys were also abducted but most of them apparently escaped . The girls only returned after the invasion of Freetown.

Prof.Kamara: Has relative normalcy returned to Kamalo ?

Bernadette Kamara: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: Are you still there and doing the same work ?

Bernadette Kamara: I am still there but I am practicing in a small hut.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: How many children do you have?

Bernadette Kamara: I have four children. Two Biological children and 2 adopted children

Bishop Humper: Which body provides you with drugs ?

Bernadette Kamara: The government is responsible. The drugs are supplied to us. For other important things like beds we have none. For refrigerator I have none. I simply store the vaccine at kamalo.

Bishop Humper: So government will take care of the health of the people in the village ?

Bernadette Kamara: We are appealing to the Commission to inform the government that the hospital needs rehabilitation .

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: You said your village was used as base. Can you tell me how long they stayed there?

Bernadette Kamara: Nearly 3 months. Their aim was to capture Father Mario. They made two attempts and failed ; the third attempt, they caught him.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell me the number of rebels in the base?

Bernadette Kamara: I never saw them with my eyes. Sometimes they just appear and we leave everything and run away.

Commissioner Jow: You said that for the three months you were turned into a slave ?

Bernadette Kamara: I mean that because we never lived as human beings again.Like animals we only survived on raw banana.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the mass graves?

Bernadette Kamara: The first group of observers that came into the village after the war took some photographs of these graves.

Commissioner Jow: You said they threw some of the corpses into the well. Do you still use the well?

Bernadette Kamara: We are still using that well. The dead bodies were evacuated and the well was treated ?

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the other staff?

Bernadette Kamara: Everybody ran for cover the day we saw the rebel soldiers at the door.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka:

Commissioner Sooka: You said they abducted some girls from the village. That some of them only returned after the attack on Freetown or after the disarmament ?

Bernadette Kamara: They were the ones that told us about the raping. They were gang raped. Some came back with babies and some of them returned pregnant.

Commissioner Sooka: How do they take care of themselves ?

Bernadette Kamara: For the sake of survival ,most of them hire themselves out as farm hands.For example, if you are given one bag of inputs or seedlings on loan then at the specified period you have to return two bags and so forth. They have no tools since the village was razed to the ground.Therefore,they are at the mercy of the creditors .

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms.Apori-Nkansah : No questions

Commissioner Jow: Bernadette, it is now your turn to ask questions or make recommendations.

Bernadette Kamara: We are in dire need of health care.Our hospital needs rehabilitation ;there are no drugs ; there are no better schools ;no tools to farm . We are appealing to the government to assist us. Those young girls that were abducted returned back with babies and nobody is there to care of them.At least ,let the government take care of these necessities.

Commissioner Jow: Was there a school before the attack?

Bernadette Kamara: There was a school.

Commissioner Jow: What happened to the school?

Bernadette Kamara: The school building has collapsed. We have about five classes with only one teacher.

Commissioner Jow: We have listened to your recommendations and we are happy for the things you asked for. You asked for community facilities. A number of people have made similar recommendations and in our final report we will make recommendations and your recommendations along side the others will be included. We are happy that you have come to talk to this Commission.

3rd – Witness – Ibrahim Debe

My name is Ibrahim Debe. I am a muslim. Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow administered the oath.

Testimony

I was invited by the TRC. I was asked if I was ready to talk and I said, yes. I had wanted to talk long ago. I am a member of the RUF. Now we have peace. I say thanks to the Commission. Before I go further I want to clarify some statements made by my sister the last witness. During the time when the AFRC called us for an alliance, we took orders from them. They were unable to guide their own revolution because they were undisciplined. They used guns. We, of the RUF carry on instruction by law and order. We do not do things on our own,because we do not tolerate indiscipline . Our revolution was a well organized revolution and our leader Foday Sankoh used to control us and he told us what we are fighting for. He was against killing of innocent civilians. Our targets were the enemies targeting us. Even when we captured enemy soldiers we treated them well because we were told by our leader that no one was allowed to kill a captured soldier. When we were pushed out of Freetown we went back to Magburaka and Kono. There we called our soldiers to parade. During that time we had the AFRC with us but they failed to follow instructions. We told them: “You are afraid to follow the revolution and you do not take orders. Therefore, as from today you are under our full control. You should do whatever we tell you to do.” But they refused to do what we asked them to do. Because of that they deserted our ranks, they left us at Kono and went to Koinadugu. At that time there was no RUF there.

Even for the attack on Freetown they told us that we should not join them. When they captured Freetown they put check point for RUF at Orogu Bridge. They said we are bush people. We should control from Waterloo to the Northern Province. Because of their indiscipline, they did mass destruction in Freetown . But at the end they were unable to control Freetown. They came back to Waterloo and we were able to put them under our control and disarm them. Furthermore, we had a quarrel amongst our ranks in the RUF, some of the AFRC came to Makeni and wanted to interfere, but we told them that the problem was between ourselves so they should stay aside. Later we settled the problem. The brothers behind the problem were based in Magburaka and Kono. We called them but they refused to come to us. The AFRC and RUF were in Makeni and we were called to a forum. We said now we all should follow law and order under the RUF. No one is allowed to harass citizens. But they refused and said that they want to have their own administration. We said: ' No. The time we were with you in Freetown we used to take orders from you. Now you have no right here in Makeni.' The AFRC went ahead and chose their own leader. He was called Brigadier Mani. His bodyguard was Col. T. The RUF said: "No .That will not be possible in Makeni." Later on, Brigadier Mani went to Kamabai and he said he was going to set up his own military headquarters. The AFRC took control of the financial area because we wanted to avoid confusion. Later on our leader Foday Sankoh called Superman and Col. Issa in Freetown. After one week he sent Superman to Makeni to brief all soldiers in Makeni that they went to Togo to sign the Peace Accord; that the war should be over and that we should be prepared to disarm. When superman came, he delivered the message. We said: "For us we have no problem. But what about the SLA , you should call them and inform them." When they called their commander, he did not show up. Later on we sent somebody to call him. When he came we asked him "what was the problem?" He said: "No problem I was only gathering my men". Superman said: "You should call all your commanders, but you have refused to do so." He said he was going to get morale booster. We sent somebody but we got no response. I went there myself. I asked him what was wrong and he said that I should leave him alone. I went and informed Superman. I said: "Those men are prepared to fight us". Before that they had said they would make sure that RUF went back to the bush. And we in turn had retorted , "we were not born for the bush, if you want to do anything you can do it." From that moment we informed all civilians and told them to go home because we were observing certain developments. After I went back. On my way, approaching the stadium; I saw a large number of SLA soldiers with lots of weapons coming down the petrol station. I went and informed Commander Superman that the SLA was out to fight us. The commander told us to go to our camp. On our way , fighting broke out. In the RUF we appreciate that no body should hurt the civilians because our leader said we should give civilians their own rights. We were ready to drive AFRC out of Makeni Town. Therefore, when the sister said the RUF was there I disagree. We were not together with the AFRC/SLA at that time

Our revolution at that time did not cause destruction. We did not kill people. Anyway, we had civilians who got stuck with us .It has been said by some people that we maltreated them and their children. It is not true. We are against rape. One man cannot keep two women. It is the law. It was because of all those false claims they used to make in the town; that we did our best to take good care of the people in our control. Whenever we came into town, people were happily surprised to see their children back without any problems. In appreciation of the way we took care of their children, some parents usually brought us money and provisions. Many families have got their otherwise displaced children from us, in healthy conditions. So, I want every body to know that the bad name we got was because of the alliance with the AFRC. Most of the stories you hear about RUF , was not our own action.

We, in the RUF were prepared to disarm because our leader came to Makeni and went to all our control areas. He said: "The war that was brought to Sierra Leone is over. Everybody should disarm." We all agreed. We said: " You are the leader. Anything you say we are prepared to go by your law and order". We were prepared for disarmament, but the confusion among the RUF was because of the problem of communication as well as trust regarding information and possible manipulation while the leader was in prison in Nigeria. The head, refused to take law and order from the leader. Now, we had many commanders in the RUF. We had the one that had the power. We, the commanders used to take instructions from the head. In the RUF we had thousands of commanders but it was only three people that would have the last say. These were Sam Bockarie (Mosquito), Issa Sesay and, Moris Kallon; they were the key holders. The confusion in Makeni between the UN and us was not as a result an order from the leader. Now, before the confusion took place in Makeni between us and UNAMSIL, they had sent a report to the leader in Freetown. His response was: "No RUF is allowed to go to UNAMSIL compound. No UNAMSIL is allowed to go to RUF territory." We were trying to get things under proper arrangement. He called Issa Sesay to Freetown because he was in charge at that time since they had dismissed Mosquito. The leader called him in Freetown; he refused to go. He called him twice. Negative. Later on, the confusion became serious. By holding UNAMSIL the leaders were not responsible. That was wrong. The two heads were responsible for the confusion.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: We have a lot of questions to ask you. Ibrahim what is your nationality?

Ibrahim Debe: I am a Sierra Leonean / Liberian.

Commissioner Jow: Were you born in Sierra Leone?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Were you brought up in Sierra Leone?

Ibrahim Debe: I was brought up in Liberia.

Commissioner Jow: When did you first visit Sierra Leone?

Ibrahim Debe: I came here in 1991

Commissioner Jow: What did you come to do in 1991?

Ibrahim Debe: I was a soldier. I was a bodyguard to the late Samuel Doe and later I was captured and I was sent to prison by the former NPFL. From prison I was surprised to see my self in the boundary that was why I came to this country.

Commissioner Jow: You belong to the group called the vanguard?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about this group?

Ibrahim Debe: When you say a vanguard it means the head because when the war entered in Sierra Leone it was no child's play. After some time we were able to get some young men from Kailahun because the war took off from Kailahun.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: We thank you for coming here today. We say thanks that you have admitted that you are an RUF and that you want reconciliation. Is that right?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Bishop Humper: Tell us the three groups that constituted the movement. You said you belonged to the vanguard?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: We feel pity for you just like for the other perpetrators. We want to get some clarification. I want you to listen. You said you witnessed the atrocities of those who captured you.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: You became double victim-perpetrator?

Ibrahim Debe: No.

Bishop Humper: Then you became grand perpetrators

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: You were jailed.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: They mishandled you ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: That is a victim.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: As NPFL you became a victim perpetrator ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: As NPFL you were captured by the rebels.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Bishop Humper: You became double perpetrator ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: From there you became full RUF ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: You were there at the time of the alliance of the RUF and AFRC and participated in it ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: That makes you grand perpetrator.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: You want to be reconciled. Remember that the people of Makeni know about you; because if you have to reconcile you have to be honest. The other Commissioners will ask you questions.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: Let me remind you; you have have to tell us everything concerning this matter that is known to you . We want your fullest cooperation.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: We welcome your presence here and appreciate your story. You said you are a Sierra Leonean as well as a Liberian ?

Ibrahim Debe: yes.

Prof. Kamara: For the fact that when the war started you were staying in Liberia as a guard does that mean that you were more a Liberian than Sierra Leonean?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: Does that mean that you served Liberia?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Prof. Kamara: You would rather be a Liberian than Sierra Leonean?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes, because my father was a Liberian.

Prof. Kamara: You were in the armed forces of Liberia and you were captured in Liberia by NPFL ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Prof. Kamara: Then the NPFL handed you over to the RUF ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: And you were trained by the RUF in Liberia?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes, in the boundary.

Prof. Kamara: Otherwise you would not have come in as a vanguard?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: One of the things about the RUF is that if you were trained in Liberia you were a vanguard ?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: Do you know of the operation Tap 20?

Ibrahim Debe: I have no idea of tap 20.

Prof. Kamara: Do you know that the vanguards were attacked by SLA because of the atrocities caused by the vanguard in Kailahun.

Ibrahim Debe: The only thing they told us was that people used to come across to Sierra Leone to solve some problems.

Prof.Kamara: The initial force that was running the RUF was all Liberians.

Ibrahim Debe: That is not true.

Prof.Kamara: The only people that were with them were the few top people who were trained in Libya and the prisoners released by Charles Taylor. When the RUF entered Sierra Leone they were in full control and their atrocities were too much. Foday Sankoh then trained Sierra Leoneans to remove the vanguard and then during the war the operation was called Tap 20 and they were driven out of Sierra Leone.

Prof. Kamara: Will you be prepared to go to Kailahun?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Your first station was in Kailahun and they know you very much there and I want to warn you that the Kailahun audience is not like here in Makeni. If it was in Kailahun the people will write all they know about you and send it to us. We want to know the truth. That is why I am requesting that you go to Kailahun. Are you prepared to do that?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: You entered here and you were in the security section of the RUF.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: How long were you in Kailahun?

Ibrahim Debe: Two years.

Prof.Kamara: During that period you were sometimes asked to supervise whoever had to bring supply to the RUF ?

Ibrahim Debe: No, that was not my responsibility.

Prof.Kamara: You were also a trainer of instructors?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: In what camp were you training people?

Ibrahim Debe: In Kailahun.

Prof.Kamara: Did you go to Zogoda?

Ibrahim Debe: No. I never went there at all.

Prof.Kamara: So you got to the higher rank and you did not go to Zogoda?

Ibrahim Debe: I did not go there ;because I was not called to go there.

Commissioner Yasmin Sooka

Commissioner Sooka: I heard from you that your mother is a Sierra Leonean and your father a Liberian?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Commissioner Sooka: Which part is your mother from?

Ibrahim Debe: From Kroo Town Road.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us about the training you underwent and the commander who trained you?

Ibrahim Debe: Our former field commander who got missing in action later on at Zogoda.

Commissioner Sooka: What was his name?

Ibrahim Debe: Col. Mohamed Tarawally.

Commissioner Sooka: Tell us about your training.

Ibrahim Debe: As you entered that camp you were not allowed to go out until after the training. After the training you were still kept in the camp not knowing what to expect until you were taken in a vehicle to the front line.

Commissioner Sooka: How long did you take in the training?

Ibrahim Debe: Because I was a soldier; I did not need a long training. I took only six months.

Commissioner Sooka: What did they teach you to do?

Ibrahim Debe: The first thing was the rationale for the war; how to treat civilians;what to tell civilians and so forth .

Commissioner Sooka: I want you to tell me how you were promoted in the RUF; from the time you joined and to the time you were disarmed .

Ibrahim Debe: I was for law and order in administration. I used to talk to civilians. The training area was not my job but later on I was head of the task force.

Commissioner Sooka: During the time you were a task force commander it means you should make sure that everything went on well ?

Ibrahim Debe: I tried.

Commissioner Sooka: During the time you were task force commander, were you responsible for the killing of the people or beating of the people?

Ibrahim Debe: Within my own time it happened.

Commissioner Sooka: What happened?

Ibrahim Debe: A man was once arrested for a criminal act. Then I was informed about the matter. Later on, when I went to the office, they showed me the person. Then I told them that they should take good care of the man because we should investigate the matter. I went back to my house. The next day I was surprised to get the information that they took the man to identify what he stole and that the man tried to run away, but was re-arrested and kept at the office and that later on the man died .

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us what you did when you found out about the man's death?

Ibrahim Debe: First of all I asked the person in charge what caused the problem, what they did to the man ? Did they beat him? He said no. He said that the man had complained that he was sick. I asked, again did you take him to the hospital? Why you not inform me ? They said, they did not know that the man would die. Later on I informed the head office. They sent for a doctor. I called the family of the man. I told them that the doctor will carry out the autopsy and let us all know what happened . They said they were not going to wait for that .They wanted the body. The head office gave the go ahead. Then I was arrested. I asked why the arrest; they said I was the head. They investigated and the person who did the act was arrested.

Commissioner Sooka: Can you tell us what your work was?

Ibrahim Debe: I was the connection between the RUF and the civilians; explaining matters to the civilians

Commissioner Sooka: Did your duty also include logistics, food from the civilians?

Ibrahim Debe: It was not my responsibility

Commissioner Sooka: Who was responsible for that?

Ibrahim Debe: Within the movement we had so many branches.

Commissioner Sooka: The atrocities came as far back as 1992. I want to know from you if you were responsible for the killing, looting, amputation, raping etc.

Ibrahim Debe: We were not given to burning down houses, RUF never burnt a house. We were not in the bush we were in town. It does not make sense for us to put fire on houses.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: Were you ever a training commander at Pendembu?

Ibrahim Debe: I was there on instruction.

Commissioner Jow: Who were in training?

Ibrahim Debe: We did not train children. We had people from the age of 20 ,21 ,22 etc.

Commissioner Jow: We have been informed that many children were unable to go through the training and most of them lost their lives.

Ibrahim Debe: It is not true. We were not training children.

Commissioner Jow: Was any life ever lost during the training sessions ?

Ibrahim Debe: No

Commissioner Jow: Did any body ever fall sick because of the training?

Ibrahim Debe: Before the training we had medical check up. A medical doctor carried out the check up. Those with sickle cell or high blood pressure problems were not allowed to participate.

Commissioner Jow: In your testimony you said one Foday Kamara and Amadu Bangura lost their lives in the training.

Ibrahim Debe: No. It was not to my knowledge.

Commissioner Jow: Do you want to tell us that the training was comfortable?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes. We gave them food to eat three times a day. Even after the training , the men were not sent at once to the battle front.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any regrets about your connection with the RUF?

Ibrahim Debe: For me , I fought the war because I know my rights .Concerning how I fought the war ,I know what is right and what is wrong and I tried to do the right things . Even in Kailahun you can go there and ask about me. They will tell you about me. Makeni, they will also tell you about me; even Jesus Christ not every body that loves him.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any regret why you joined the RUF?

Ibrahim Debe: No. My circumstances determined the part that I played.

Bishop Humper: Do you have any problem with your eyes?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Bishop Humper: I understand that even if you are the head; if you do not do what you were ordered to do you would be punished?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes

Bishop Humper: As task force commander here you had tremendous power; could you recall of the name Abdulai Conteh who stole at no. 7 Mac Robert Street and was tortured to death?

Ibrahim Debe: It happened in my absence.

Bishop Humper: Did it happen?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Present or not present who should take the responsibility?

Ibrahim Debe: The commander.

Bishop Humper: You were the liaison officer and you were responsible for the RUF for food ?

Ibrahim Debe: It was not my area. It was the area of the G5.

Bishop Humper: Do you know the slaughterhouse in Kailahun?

Ibrahim Debe: No.

Bishop Humper: You have never heard about it?

Ibrahim Debe: It has been long since I left Kailahun .

Bishop Humper: I know it was not only a slaughter house but where they practiced cannibalism.

Ibrahim Debe: It is not true.

Bishop Humper: When did you leave Kailahun?

Ibrahim Debe: I left there in 1992. During the time when AFRC said they had driven the rebels to Liberia.

Bishop Humper: Did you know anything about the capture of Kamajors in Kailahun

Ibrahim Debe: I was not there but I got the information.

Bishop Humper: Did you know the number of Kamajors they slaughtered?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes. They did not slaughter them. They wanted to attack Kailahun and they were captured.

Bishop Humper: How many of those Kamajors did Sam Bockarie killed at that time?

Ibrahim Debe: I was not there at that time. They only passed on the message to the field commander. Whenever they sent any message, all the other radios received the message.

Bishop Humper: From Kailahun what was your last station before you came to Makeni?

Ibrahim Debe: I was in Tonkolili.

Commissioner Jow: We have statements that you were responsible for the death of Abdulai Conteh because you were the task force commander at that time. We are waiting for you to face the public and talk to them.

Ibrahim Debe: If you say so;you are correct, because I was the commander at that time. I was not the one that gave the orders. But since I was the commander, I am appealing to you to forgive me.

Commissioner Jow: If it is true what should you do?

Ibrahim Debe: I am telling the people of Makeni and the family of the deceased that I was not directly responsible;however,since the men were under me and

I was the commander,I accept all the responsibility that I killed the pa Abdulai Conteh.

Prof. Kamara: Where do you intend to live?

Ibrahim Debe: In Sierra Leone. I want to base in Makeni.

Prof.Kamara: That means you have to reconcile with people of Makeni.

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Before you can reconcile with the people you have to make sure that they accept you fully. You have to say the truth about what you did. You have to accept the responsibility of what happened or what the people under your command did. You have to say that to the people before they will accept you.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: When you gave your testimony you mentioned that after the cease fire you came out with many children and their parent were happy because they had no problem. Who did you grow up with? When you were a child did you live with you mother and father?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Could you say that it was a good thing to abduct those children?

Ibrahim Debe: We did that because any attack and any civilian that came to our side we never turned them back since they will be afraid lest they meet the enemy. We used to rescue them and take good care of them.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Which one will you choose, to leave with your parents or to leave with people who had guns in the jungle?

Ibrahim Debe: Any one of the two.

Commissioner Jow: Do you think that the RUF group and rebel war was good for the country?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes. It was good.

Bishop Humper: As you are sitting here would you want to be where Issa Sesay is today?

Ibrahim Debe: I am not prepared for that.

Bishop Humper: Can you account for the eight persons in Binkolo who were accused of witchcraft?

Ibrahim Debe: This is my first time of ever hearing that.

Commissioner Jow: What will you want to tell the Commission?

Ibrahim Debe: Let the Commission carry on with its good job. I am asking for peace in the country. The suppression we have in the past will not happen again.

Commissioner Jow: The Commission is here to find out about the war and bring people to reconcile so that it will not happen again. That is why we said you should come out with the complete the story. I must tell you that we need more information from you. Are you willing to be in the reconciliation ceremony?

Ibrahim Debe: Yes.

4th Witness – Hindolo S. Butcher

My name is Hindolo S Butcher. I am a Christian. Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow administered the oath.

Commissioner Jow: We appreciate your coming to the commission. We want you to relax and to share your experiences with the Commission and the audience.

Testimony

I am the Regional Organizing Secretary for the SLPP in the North. We had won the election but rebel activities were getting intensified in the country. From the East and the South people sought for help and we did offer it. They were lodged in camps in the Northern Province. Makeni was a safe place for every body. On 25th May 1997, Mohamed B. Marah and I went to Kabala. He had told me that, it had taken a long time since he last visited Kabala. We went with some other people. However, before leaving for Kabala we noticed some strange activities going on. Based on our observations and intuition, we made a list of people and handed it over to S.B. Marah. We told him that there was a coup in the making. He told us that security was in place. Dalton Quee took over as Minister of Interior. We spent sometime in the lodge. I told him to leave this place. He went to town and we went to Kabala. We were in Kabala and at midnight we heard about the coup. F.B. Marah and I, his sister and other people, we told S.B. Marah by all possible means to leave. We returned to Kabala and spent two days there. We returned to Makeni and the tension was very high. They were pointing fingers at SLPP members. I took my wife and we went to a village called Kamatun after Kanikay junction. We spent about a month there. One morning I was going to Kabri and on the high way to Kabala, I came across a land rover. By then I had become heavily bearded. The people on board were soldiers and they knew me; but I had thought I had the perfect disguised. They came from Kabala en route Makeni. They stopped. They asked me: "Are you not Hindolo?" And I denied. I claimed I was his look alike. They said: "You are the one! You are the one that always moved around with Kabba." The game was up. They asked me where I was staying. I told them. They asked me to show them the place and I did. I hurried back to my wife and I told her that I was lucky that the people that recognised me on the way were soldiers and my wife advised me to lie low. I took my wife and returned to Makeni on 7th July. People warned me: "You are just roaming about with these little children, can't you stay somewhere?" Some came and told me that the AFRC "guys" said that, "Hindolo has returned and he sent messages to Kabba." I was staying at Koto junction. Ibrahim Sesay who is presently Minister of information and few others were all visiting me. On the 13th July, they nearly killed me but I escaped. They met Sheriff and Kenise. I escaped together with Ibrahim Sesay and Daniel Sesay. We went to the village of Adama Cut Hand. Immediately, word went round . Alpha Toronoko the head man said he was not pleased to host us. We were there and we heard that people were hunting us. We went to Sandaloko. We stayed with one of my friends until the 27th July. I decided I should return to Makeni. Daniel Sesay tried to dissuade me;but I insisted . To be frank with you we returned to Makeni. Daniel went back to his village. My wife told me:” Have you come again ?” I asked her to leave me alone that the Lord is with me and that I am going nowhere. We were there until the 20th of August. From the 21st I noticed that our movement was being monitored. On 22nd I got up and went to Alhaji Sankoh. The man and his brother with Musa Koroma and his driver and one man called Tommy Saidu. Five of us went to Ibrahim and we were discussing about our problems. By then the AFRC junta was at Y.M. Koroma’s house. After a while I advised that we should change location and each to go his separate way . Some people were around and they saw and recognised us. They were there to identify people. He had a lot of boys with him. When he was informed that Butcher and others were around he came with his vehicle. We were inside the vehicle for us to be taken to our different homes. We saw Daniel Mabanta and his group cross in front of us. Alhaji Sankoh said: “What are we even doing ? We have been informed that you are the people who go around performing sacrifices but this time your government will not be able to perform any sacrifice.”That was a hard one;but it was the talk of the town . We were there from 10:00pm to 5:00am in the morning. Before dispersing we resolved that nobody should come together in the form of a meeting and that people should take care of themselves. So we stopped and did not visit anybody. Ordinarily, I had wanted to tell the people that they were monitoring me. I had wanted to tell everybody that cared to listen that the elders and Paramount Chief will note that I have never done anything to anybody. On 23rd Saturday morning at about 5:45am,being an early riser ,I went about my own business. Then I saw two Hilux vehicles.Meanwhile, I hasten to add here that I on a regular basis treat people because I am a qualify practitioner. I treated people without payment. I also help people. That Saturday morning the two pick up truck came to my house and it carried 100 people armed with guns and sticks etc.Then, I was staying at the house of Adama Sesay.But I had gone to Seventeen Junction. That morning I went to my brother J.B. Makaia. Abdul Karim saw me that morning when I went to my brother. He was the ringleader in plotting for my arrest. Felix came and asked my child about me. Memuna told him that I had gone out. The road I used to go to Makaia he did not see me. Abdul Karim knew I was in my brother’s room. They took a pistol and checked to see whether I was under the bed. As they came nearer where I was he spoke in our own language and told me that they were coming. I went into one house and went under the bed. I stayed under that bed till 6:00pm that night. At eight o’clock one boy came and told Mammy Yanka to help me disguise like a woman so that I can escape. We pretended as if we were going for prayers. I started working from the 23rd of August until I reached Guinea. It took me eleven days to reach to Guinea. I went to Guinea and got some money . I left Guinea and I walked by foot again to Makeni. I came across Daniel Sesay and I told him that,it was only divine intervention that has kept me alive; otherwise I should have been killed . We were there until they drove the AFRC out of Freetown. When they were kicked out , they went out to their usual places in the bush. We were staying in Makeni and we continued to do our work. This ti e it became the problem of the AFRC and the rebels. Initially, they were here in Makeni selling cigarettes.But what makes people believe that these guys were AFRC and RUF members was that they struck Binkolo and destroyed the village and they killed seven soldiers.Meanwhile, on December 21st ,Sylvester Rogers came and told us: “The rebels are 13 miles off the town of Makeni and immediately after giving this report I am leaving.” There was no single drop of fuel in my car . I told my daughter to go into the bush. All of us went into the bush. We went into the bush and there we spent our Christmas. They had occupied everywhere by then. We were at a village called Kamapaneh with my family. It was very cold and I told my wife that I heard that the rebels said we should come out. On the 9th of January my family came to town. I was only left with a boy and my in-law in the bush. The man that provided me refuge was informed ;that if I do not leave their place, they would kill me. I told my wife that I was going to Gbendembu.

They told me that they would take me to Demba Marah and tell him that I am their friend. How wonderful it is to witness the governance of men of integrity. They went and informed Demba Mara. On the 21st May they came for me. Pa Sampha the elder brother of Demba Marah came for me. He took me to the field and he spoke to all of them. He told them: “This man is my friend and, he is an SLPP member". He threatened them. Then he concluded: "If you kill all the important people in the country who will be left." On the 25th May the field was jam packed waiting for the Peace Accord to be signed in Togo. I was at home that time then Pa Demba said let us go and listen. Demba Marah is now dead. Since I was brought out of the bush Demba Marah was the only one that took care of us. I want to say thanks to Rev. Usman Fornah for pleading for his people. He pleaded for all of us. He did not leave us. I was arrested and my arm was broken. They took bottles and stabbed me on my head. They used bottle on my head. I was stripped naked. My friend S.Y. Koroma followed me and the blood sprayed on my clothes. They brought me to Caritas office. I said I want to drink, 11 of them urinated and they gave me to drink but I refused. Memuna went to Pa Demba and she told him: "You asked my father to come out of the bush and now look at what has happened." In the morning they brought me to 55 and he said, "you are lucky to be alive." They took me to General Lewis. He spoke nicely to me. They said I was, "the carrier of Tejan Kabba". They looted all my property.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: Did I hear you say you are the Regional Organizing Secretary for SLPP.

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: Yes

Bishop Humper: Do you want to tell us that you were a target?

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: Yes

Bishop Humper: You suffered physical damage. What happened to you was a sort of harassment and violation of human rights.

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: Yes.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: Like most of our witnesses you went through a very distressful experience. They did not kill any of your family members but you said they broke your hand.

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: They were so many that I could not identify any of them. But the one who ordered my arrest will take responsibility.

Prof. Kamara: How was it broken?

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: They hit me with an iron bar. Then they took this rope and wound tight around my penis and began to draw it. Blood was oozing out from my penis. It took one year and six months. Pa Demba sent for me and had asked that I come out from the bush. He told them that it is now time for peace. He took me to the field and informed everybody. That day Paul arrested me and claimed that I fed people in Makeni and I was sending messages to Freetown.

Prof. Kamara: Who was Paul Jety?

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: He was one of the AFRC members.

Prof. Kamara: Did you say that the AFRC or the rebels supported SLPP or APC?

Mr.Hindolo Butcher: To me it seems they were nowhere. They just got up and demanded war . They did what they wanted. So they were not supporting any group.But I want to conclude that they were the grandchildren of APC.

Prof.Kamara: You said the time they brought you to Makeni you met Brigadier 55.

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: He was a head of the task force business in CARITAS office in Flower Corner.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: You said the armed men were Felix Turay and Abdul Sankoh.

Mr.Hindolo Butcher: I had thought that they were civilians ,not knowing they were rebels .

Commissioner Jow: Do you know their whereabouts?

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: Abdul Turay is in Freetown.

Commissioner Jow: Have you tried to talk to them?

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: I think those who have wronged me should come in front of me and kneel down and apologize to me and then ask for forgiveness.

Commissioner Jow: Mr. Butcher do you want the Commission to help with regard to reconciliation with these people ?

Mr.Hindolo Butcher: It will be nice for it to be done. I came here for the sake of peace. Those that wronged us as I have the name Butcher, I should have butchered all of them. So it is nice that you call us together for reconciliation.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: We thank you for being here. We are happy that even though you suffered you want peace. You have answered all our questions. Now give us your last word.

Mr. Hindolo Butcher: I want to say thanks. The Lord has brought peace. The Lord said Peace I give you and Peace I leave with you. What I want every body to know is that I am 63 years of age.I had domestic animals of all sorts , even Dr. Demby had cows. I had a machine and other things that I laboured for. All that is gone. If government and the international community have helped the rebels, so that some have got projects; I need to be compensated for my labour. Here is a project the title is," Hindolo S. Butcher: The Coordinator for Mayanh Community Farmers' Association". I included ex- combatants for everyone to know that I mean peace. We need also to be financed so that we can forget about the past. It is no one man business. My submission with due respect to you,is for your assistance. If this happens we will forget about the past. If this does not happen there will be no peace.

Commissioner Jow: We are happy to note that you are happy and quite prepared to put your life back on track . You are coordinating this project that you have showed us. I will advise you to send your document to organisations like NaCSA but your recommendations will be incorporated in our report. We have noted all that you have said and we assure you that these recommendations will be incorporated in our recommendations for implementation.

5th Witness – Baba Dukuray

My name is Baba Dukuray. I am a Muslim. The oath was administered by Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow .

One day in September we were at Manjoro and we heard that the rebels had reached Kalangba. We were all in panic . Everybody was told to in their own interest go into the bush. We were there for two days and we came back. There were some people in a parade. They said rebels had been around. Anyway, we slept there for a day. Then, they came with two boys and brought them before the parade. We asked them whether the boys were thieves. Suddenly, ECOMOG truck came in. A lot of people were afraid. The people that brought the two young men showed them to ECOMOG. One of them produced a paper that he was an old soldier. The other one was asked for his paper. The soldiers came down the truck and we the civilians ran away. We heard two gun shots . The truck moved and headed for Kabala. We came back where the men in the parade still maintained their ground. We saw two bodies lying on the ground ,dead. After that incident we were there for two days. The chief said the body should be buried. After some days the rebels entered and we went into the bush for three days. Another day they captured four boys. This happened at night. I heard a boy screaming and they told him to stop or he would be killed. And the boy was killed for doing nothing wrong. We ,therefore ,stayed in the bush afraid to return. We were there for 3 days. From where we were we could see smoke rising up to the sky;even though we only continued to guess concerning the reason for the smoke.But ,no answer. The other day they killed one of the heads in their group. We were there and another group entered and we ran attempting to cross the river heading to Sanda. We saw another group right across the river. We had to remain where we were .At that time time ,we still had some little provision to keep us going.But then after a while ,the little we had got exhausted.Some people went to town for food.Thus were we exposed.They ordered us out of the bush. When two of us came out they asked us the whereabouts of the chief . We told them that the chief ran away.They said: “We will give you a paper for the chief to come back.” People began to return. After three days of relative quiet, on the fourth day they had all of us surrounded . Their next intention was to start bringing down the houses to make firewood. After two weeks went to them and said: “Now before you destroy our houses we will find people who will bring firewood for you.” We told them that the Muslims would fetch firewood on Friday and the Christians on Sunday. Then they asked about the food. They said we should provide people to lead them into the farms. We said we had nobody.Anyway, anytime they brought rice our wives cleaned it. Our wives fetched water for them. Whenever our wives filled the drum, they simply wasted the water and our wives would fill the drum again. Many of us wanted to escape but there was no way. If they had requests for food supplies from other sections of their group; to take food to their base our boys will have to do it. And they kept abducting people and bringing them here until our resources got stretched beyond their limits. All the food in the village was finished .I do not know what else to say ? While walking along the bush , the ordinary people in the village used to see cows around the bush and the cows never ran away; but when the cows saw the rebels they all ran away. People started leaving the houses. This was the reason why the houses collapsed. If I say they burnt down any house in the village, I would be telling a lie. They only burnt the house of their boss. This is all I know.

Prof. Kamara: You started your narrative to say soldiers and later ECOMOG am I correct.

Mr. Dukuray: I said they brought two boys from somewhere. I had thought they were thieves. They brought them before their parade and then ECOMOG came in.

Prof.Kamara: Are you saying that ECOMOG killed those two people?

Mr. Dukuray: The uniformed people identified them as ECOMOG.

Prof.Kamara: So they killed them and you buried them.

Mr. Dukuray: After two days the chief told us to bury them.

Prof.Kamara: ECOMOG then moved to where?

Mr. Dukuray: They moved to Kabala

Prof.Kamara: At that time you had no CDF?

Mr. Dukuray: No.

Prof.Kamara: The people who captured those two boys were they CDF?

Mr.Dukuray: No.

Prof.Kamara: They just captured them as thieves?

Mr.Dukuray: Yes

Prof.Kamara: Why did they not take them to the Paramount Chief?

Mr. Dukuray: On their way they came across ECOMOG and they turned and ran.

Prof.Kamara: ECOMOG did not advise them to go to the Paramount Chief?

Mr. Dukuray: I was not there.

Prof.Kamara: For how long did the rebels occupy Manjoro?

Mr. Dukuray: Since they entered Makeni they were assigned there and they spent three years.

Prof.Kamara: Do you have a school in your village?

Mr. Dukuray: Yes. The other school was supposed to have ten teachers but there is only five now.

Prof.Kamara: Did they not abduct women in the town?

Mr. Dukuray: Some young girls who were not going to school voluntarily joined them to be their women.

Prof.Kamara: After that they did not disturb the families.

Mr. Dukuray: Because we were insisting on their compliance.

Prof.Kamara: What made the rebels leave Manjoro?

Mr. Dukuray: Those who came from Makeni drove the ones that came from Manjoro.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: What group killed their head?

Mr. Dukuray: We do not know them. It was the first group that entered.

Bishop Humper: Why did the rebels choose Friday and Sunday as the days for fetching firewood for them ?

Mr. Dukuray: Those are the days that people do not go to the farm. That was why they chose Fridays and Sundays.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: I want you tell us who you are in Manjoro?

Mr. Dukuray: I am an indigene of Manjoro and a court member?

Commissioner Jow: Did you say the first group that went to Manjoro took three years.

Mr. Dukuray: The first group that came after accusing their boss of embezzlement killed the boss and burnt the house.

Commissioner Jow: Did you say you gave the rebels food?

Mr. Dukuray: Yes. We had no where to go.

Commissioner Jow: Did they explain to you why they did this?

Mr. Dukuray: We never engaged them in any dialogue. We were afraid of them.

Commissioner Jow: Can you remember any of their names?

Mr. Dukuray: One of them was always referred to as Johnny.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You did say that the young ladies in your village at a point joined the rebels and were bush wives. Was it under threat or they were afraid?

Mr. Dukuray: They did it underground without our knowledge as young people go about their affairs.

Commissioner Jow: Do you have any questions?

Mr. Dukuray: I want you to assist the town. You should assist the town with Education. Some of the children sit in the open air taking lessons. Now in the rainy season some have to cease going to school. There is also no market building;we need assistance in this too .

Commissioner Jow: We have noted your concerns. You have a good mind. We want to assure you that we will incorporate these recommendations in our report.

6th – Witness – Mohamed Kamara

My name is Mohamed Kamara. I am a muslim. Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow administered the oath.

Testimony

One day while I was in Kambala Chieftdom, in Chief Kadabola's section , we saw a group of rebels from Kabala. We ran into the town called Yembrain.As we entered the town we saw a lot of people dead or wounded and houses set ablaze .The rebels had done their inglorious act in this town and from here turned to our village. With what we saw we decided to forget about Kamboy ; We went somewhere else to hide. One day they captured eighteen of us. After we had been captured one man was killed. He was the chief for the young men. Bangali Taylor was killed. A man by the name of SAJ Musa then commanded his followers and they started amputating hands. The hands of ten people were chopped off. They abducted four people. They went into the villages and left us in pain. We had a pastor and he took us to the hospital. I entered Kamakwie Hospital later. It was curfew time. I was taken to the hospital and I was treated. This is what happened.

Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper: Mohamed we sympathize with you. We know that it is not easy to tell the story.However ,we need certain clarifications.You said they surrounded you and captured eighteen of you. You said they amputated ten out of the eighteen they captured. Did they select the people?

Mohammed Kamara: The four were very small children.

Bishop Humper: Were they abducted?

Mohamed Kamara: Ten of them were amputated and four were abducted. Four of them were killed.

Bishop Humper: Were there girls amongst the abductees?

Mohamed Kamara: We were all men.

Commissioner Prof. John Kamara

Prof. Kamara: You said it was SAJ Musa who ordered his men to chop off hands?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Before SAJ Musa's arrival in your town or area have you heard about people being amputated?

Mohamed Kamara: We heard about them. It started in Karina.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know if it was SAJ Musa's group in Karina?

Mohamed Kamara: I do not know. No. I cannot tell the difference because they entered at night.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know the direction SAJ Musa's group came from?

Mohamed Kamara: They came from Kabala.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know when they left your area where they headed for ?

Mohamed Kamara: I do not know. They told us that after amputating us, they were going to Bolo and that there we were going to wash their face.

Prof.Kamara: Was it a small group?

Mohamed Kamara: They were many. They were more than one hundred they were in three groups, the first group carried guns. The other group carried loads...

Prof.Kamara: You came to Kamakwie and you were captured. Where are you now?

Mohamed Kamara: At Kabala Ferry

Prof.Kamara: How do you take care of yourself?

Mohamed Kamara: I am staying with my child and he assists me.

Prof.Kamara: Does this your child go to school?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. He is still a boy.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know about the association of amputees ?

Mohamed Kamara: I am not aware of that group. I am far away from Makeni.

Prof.Kamara: Are there people like you in your area at Kabala Ferry area?

Mohamed Kamara: They are all over there.

Prof.Kamara: Do you see them?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. I see them

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the time this thing happened to you?

Mohamed Kamara: I cannot remember the year ,but the day was April 18.

Commissioner Jow: Was it during the AFRC period?

Mohamed Kamara: It was after AFRC.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us the language they spoke ?

Mohamed Kamara: They spoke Krio and Liberian English.

Commissioner Jow: Did they tell you why they cut your hands?

Mohamed Kamara: Yes. They gave us letter. SAJ called me and wrote a letter to go to ECOMOG at Kamakwie Government Hospital and go to Tejan Kabba he will give you a hand.

Commissioner Jow: You said the rebels came back and burnt your house ?

Mohamed Kamara: After I was amputated I left Kabba Ferry and later I heard my house was burnt. They had entered into two villages. It was during the second attack that they told us that our house was burnt.

Leader of Evidence: No question .

CommissionerJow: Do you know what happened to the remaining four people?

Mohamed Kamara: Four of them were abducted. Two of them were later confirmed killed and I do not know what became of the other two.

CommissionerJow: It your turn to ask questions.

Mohamed Kamara: I have four children. I have no house. I want you to assist me in terms of education for my children because I have nothing with me. I lost one of my wives during the war.

CommissionerJow: Have you ever lived in an amputee camp

Mohamed Kamara: No

CommissionerJow: Are you a member of the amputee camp?

Mohamed Kamara: No

CommissionerJow: This commission has had a series of encounter with amputees. Senior staff has moved around the country to have recommendations from amputees and one of the recommendations have been school for children of amputees. We have incorporated this recommendation in our report. One of the mandates of the commission is to help victims like you.

PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD IN MAKENI ON 30TH MAY 2003

1ST Witness – Adama Munu

My name is Adama Munu. I am a Muslim. Bishop Joseph C. Humper administered the oath.

Bishop Humper: We are happy that you are here today; we do hope that you give your testimony and help us to know of what happened to you and what you witnessed. We want you to take your time and give your testimony. We are now ready to listen to you.

TESTIMONY

When the war came we ran very far away into the forest for refuge. Then one day, one woman was captured by the rebels. They asked her; "What you are doing here? Please tell us where the other people are?" This woman took them where we were. We were taken unawares. We just heard the dogs barking. The next thing we were surrounded. I was caught. Then they held my father in law who was amputated. They gathered us in front of the hut and laid us down side ways. They ordered us to stretch our hands on a tree stump. They told the old man that "the first time we released you but now we are going to chop off your hand." They caught a child who was crawling and they chopped that child in the middle. They held an adult. The other man was wounded. They held one woman. I was still there watching. They told the woman to give them the money and the woman said "I have no money." They searched the woman and they found and took her money. They were counting the money and it fell. The woman ran. They amputated three fingers of one child. They asked me for money. I said I do not have. They said I should get up. There was a tree stump. They had two cutlasses and a gun. They said "get up and go to the tree stump." They asked me to lay my hand on the tree stump and I did. My hand was chopped off. Instead of doing this to me I asked to be killed. They said, "This is what we want you to be. Go to Tejan Kabba for a hand." This is my story.

Bishop Humper: We have heard again another soul piercing testimony. Your story may be short but it has far reaching consequences. The Commission will ask you a few questions for clarifications

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A. Jow

Commissioner Jow: It is a very moving testimony. We are happy that you are still alive. Can you tell us the name of the village where you were amputated?

Adama Munu: At Mateboyor.

Commissioner Jow: The incident took place in the bush.

Adama Munu: Yes.

Commissioner Jow: Can you tell us about the rebels who chopped off your hands, what language did they speak?

Adama Munu: I do not know the group they belonged to. In fact, the one that chopped my hand was wearing a disguise. I do not know the group they belonged to.

Commissioner Jow: What language did they speak?

Adama Munu: They said nothing to me.

Commissioner Jow: How were you rescued?

Adama Munu: After the amputation we were brought to Makeni for 15 days and they took us to Freetown. We were treated there. They promised to give us some artificial limbs. A lot of the amputees have been assisted in that area. But they have not done anything for us. As I sit here my son was involved in an accident. My son-in-law was captured and up till now I do not know their whereabouts.

CommissionerJow: After your treatment did you stay in a camp?

Adama Munu: Yes, at Netland.

CommissionerJow: Can you tell us how you support yourself?

Adama Munu: Nothing.Except whosoever feels like assisting me.

CommissionerJow: What do you do for your living?

Adama Munu: My neighbors are assisting me. Some of them are generous to me.

Prof. Kamara: Can you remember the period when this thing happened?

Adama Munu: No.

Prof.Kamara: You said after the amputation they brought you to Makeni. Who brought you?

Adama Munu: My husband.

Prof.Kamara: Is your husband still alive?

Adama Munu: Yes.

Prof.kamara: Is he still with you?

Adama Munu: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Is he assisting you?

Adama Munu: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: How is it now at Mateboyor? Do you have facilities there?

Adama Munu: Yes.There is one

Prof.Kamara: Is it a government facility or a private?

Adama Munu: It is Government owned .

Prof.Kamara: Have you ever contacted any organization for assistance?

Adama Munu: No, since it was recorded earlier on.

Prof.Kamara: Who took you to Netlands?

Adama Munu: Sister Coro.

Prof.Kamara: She took you from Makeni on to Netland?

Adama Munu: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: When you left Netland where did you go?

Adama Munu: They took us to Lakka.

Prof.kamara: In a camp or to a hospital?

Adama Munu: We were accommodated at Lakka and they give us some food items.

Bishop Humper: Was it the amputation that killed Wusu or the gun shut that killed her?

Adama Munu: I said Wusu's hands were not chopped of. They used the machete and cut her all over her body.

Bishop Humper: What about the woman and the baby?

Adama Munu: The mother fled and the child was grabbed.

Bishop Humper: What did they do with the child?

Adama Munu: The child was divided into two there and then .

Bishop Humper: When they chopped off peoples' hands they gave them the message to go to Tejan Kabba to give them another hand. I want to know if that was what they said to you.

Adama Munu: They told me to go to Tejan Kabba in Makeni.

Bishop Humper: Do you know about the Amputee and War Wounded Association?

Adama Munu: I have no knowledge about that.

Bishop Humper: We want the staff of the Commission to take you to that association. The Association is alive and active. .You have gone through a bitter experience of being a double amputee during your life time. If you hear about people plotting about bringing war what you will do ? Will you go and inform the chief or will you keep quiet about it?

Adama Munu: I do not want to hear those kinds of words.

Leader of Evidence : Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: We do not have any question. We just want a clarification of the name of the child.

Adama Munu: I neither know the name of the woman nor the child's name. She was a stranger.

Bishop Humper: Adama it is now your turn to ask questions.

Adama Munu: I want the government to assist me because today I am amputated. That is all I have.

Bishop Humper : Thank you. I want you to know that the very strong amputee association and war wounded in this country want government to assist them. The Commission and the Association are working out some modalities with the Government to see how the amputees and war wounded can be helped. We are asking the staff to take the address of the amputees whose existence the central body of amputees does not know about. We hope that through these recommendations government will pay much attention to you. We will constitute your request in to the recommendations.

2nd – Witness – Abdulai Sesay

My name is Abdulai Sesay. I am a muslim. Bishop Joseph C. Humper administered the oath

Bishop Humper: I welcome you on behalf of the Commission and the audience. This Commission was established to bring peace among people. To get those who did wrong to say the truth and apologize and be forgiven. The community as a whole will embrace you again. This Commission will take no one to court. Ours is not a court it is a truth finding commission. Whatever happened to you, whatever you did during the war, you are to share with us; then you will be able to reconcile. I hope you understand because you are sitting before us as one of those to tell your story as RUF who has fought in this country. Feel free to know that we are here to give you support.

TESTIMONY

I will talk about what I had to go through and what I did. In 1994 I went to koidu town at Kono. I went there on a Christmas holiday. I was then a young student. I was 13 years old. I went to kono on 22nd December. The day I arrived on the 23rd a letter was brought to the chief. According to the letter the RUF was to attack on 25th December. When the letter was sent nobody took it seriously. On the 25th at 1:00 pm, we went to a cinema hall. As we bought our tickets the RUF entered. When they entered two of my brothers were killed there and then and I was captured. Col. Mosquito captured me. The other one wanted to kill me and Mosquito said: 'Don't kill him'. He took me as his personal boy. I met the rebels holding my aunt and she was amputated. She was about to be killed and I said: "This is my aunt. Kill me instead ." They commanded and she was not killed. I told them about the death of my two brothers. Mosquito travelled with me to Kailahun and crossed with me to Liberia at Yamdugo. When we got there, I was trained for three months. After that I was brought to Kenema. In Kenema the first operation they gave me was at Golahun but at that time the SLA was fighting the RUF. When I was given that mission, I had with me 1890 men and we advanced. I was a commander and at that time I had no position. We advanced and I succeeded in the mission. I captured 100 SLA and five were killed. We captured all their ammunitions and returned back to Kailahun. I told my boss Mosquito that I succeeded and I was promoted to Major and was named Jim Murderer. My second operation was at Mile 91. I was given 2800 man power. I went there and I succeeded. I was promoted to Col. and I went to Liberia. When I was taken to Liberia, it was my first time to see Foday Sankoh and Charles Taylor. Where they held their conference I was not allowed to enter. I made an attempt to enter the conference room and they shot two of my boys. I had wanted to listen to their conversation . I tried to set them up, but I failed. They wanted to capture me. After three days I came back and apologized and they accepted me. They gave me $400. They registered six of us. After that I was sent to Daru and was given the third operation. I captured one SLA Commander Sgt. Santos. He was with me like a second commander to me. After Daru we attacked the SLA and the mission failed. We came to Kenema and told our boss. He gave us another 1000 man power and we went again to Daru. The attack was not successful. We went to our boss and told him again that we failed. He gave us another 1000 man power. When we went ahead the mission was successful. We had weakened their strength. After we succeeded, I returned to my boss. In 1996 the war was at Mile 91. I was there again but the soldiers that we met were ULIMO soldiers and we fought them and we succeeded. Five of them joined us and the rest went away. We advanced to Tombo. Those we met I can't remember the Commander's name. I don't know whether he was ULIMO or SLA. We were there till 1997 when the government was overthrown. We were at Waterloo. I was there as a spy. I travelled to Freetown to know the situation. I returned and told my men and we advanced. We went to Freetown. I was in my own area at Wellington. At Wellington that was when ECOMOG entered the country. They were at Kossoh Town. The first meeting that RUF and ECOMOG had, we attacked the ECOMOG and the meeting did not go through. After that we attacked them again but we did not succeed. The last attack we made was during the intervention. Most of my boys were shot and I was discouraged. Most of my men asked me to advance but I refused. I had fought since 1994; so I was ready and not afraid to die. My elder brother who was a soldier was killed. Some of my companions had left and the Alpha Jet bombed our area. Our intention was to go ahead. I was captured but they did not know that I was one of the rebels. But the civilians I lived with knew me and I was not wicked to them. In 1997 when sanctions were raging, whenever I had goods I would make it available to the civilians. The day I was captured they defended me. When ECOMOG released me, they gave me food and asked me to go. I left and I met my friends at 7 Battalion around the Peninsular and we came back to Waterloo. At Waterloo I was armed again. We set an ambush at Banga Farm. At that time the kamajor advance and fell in the ambush. I captured eighty of them. After my colleagues took the kamajors away, the Guineans attacked us and pushed us to 6 miles. We came back and attacked them at 6 Miles and we succeeded. On the third day they attacked us again. They removed us and continued to push us back. We reached Masiaka and resisted. We disappeared and they entered. We attacked them again and they fled. When we reached Lunsar we met some other rebels. We joined them and the ECOMOG attacked us. We fought them and pushed them up to Bara junction. They asked us out of the place and we had reinforcement. We pushed them out of the place. The battle was at Rogbere Ferry. When we left there I was a spy. When I reached Rogbere Ferry, I was captured. They asked me my mission and I said they have killed my mother. I said she was killed at Masiaka. They asked me if I was able to go. At that time Maxwell Kobe gave me ride in his vehicle and dropped me at Masiaka. I spied their movement. I went into their camp. They refused to train me because they had enough armed men. I was afraid. The CDF moved when the RUF entered because they had no strong support. They were fighting to save their country. Our intension was not to sit at Rogbere junction. When I reached Kailahun, I sent a message to my boss and he invited me. In 1998 we started our advance. It was my second operation after the intervention. There was a break through at Galahun Bridge. My colleagues were at the other side. When we met at night we thought they were our enemies. We fought till the morning. There were casualties. In Kenema we heard some Kaska lapa with us. I told my men to wait. As I advanced I gave my password and they gave me theirs. Komba Gundama gave orders for me to be arrested. I refused and I told them that if they touch me I will kill them. I advise them not to do that. We came again together. ECOMOG came and put a weapon there. Komba Gundama was afraid to make his advance. I told him to reinforce me and he gave me 4000 man power. We by passed them they started firing at us and the weapon had acid in it. I made an advance. You can fire me I will be killed but I was hard hearted. I went to their camp and captured the Major, Peter Adamu. They wanted to maltreat him but I stopped them. He told me that he was the only one in his family. He told me not to kill him. I felt sorry for him and shed tears. I asked him would you be ready to be with me. He said yes. But God saved him. He had no tribal marks. I said you have to behave like one of us. I told him to behave like a dumb man. He was a good driver and had the heart of a lion(the Lord entered him). He was not afraid. When we advanced he pushed the men to go in front. When we reached Makeni we passed silently. It was mid night. According to our plans we wanted to enter Freetown on 25th December but we did not succeed. We advanced and went to Makali and we met ECOMOG. We went ahead and reached Lunsar and we met them there and scattered them. We went bit by bit removing them. I went as a spy. I commanded my men and we went on "Operation Silent." When we captured them we advanced to Waterloo. At Waterloo we passed quietly. When we reached Waterloo in the morning we came down and disguised. People were confused. They were asking among themselves whether RUF was in town and I joined them in in expressing interest in the matter to know the truth . They said it looked as if the rebels were using some charms. The people I met on the way were going to Benguema. I said: "Speak the truth. Did you tell ECOMOG about them? If you tell ECOMOG you will be accepted."Meanwhile ,it was a serious and dangerous game. When we reached the market on 25th December we helped ourselves to some Christmas. We were able to grab some items to eat. That night we attacked Hastings but did not succeed. That time the bosses were with us. There has been this story to the effect that the SLA took 'burn house' to Freetown. It was not true. SLA left us at Gugol and told us they were going to their homes and no foreigner will be able to drive them. They said they would be going to Freetown. SLA did not burnt down houses in town. The SDU caused the trouble. The aim of SLA was to go to Freetown and after the death of SAJ there was no control. If anybody told you that on January 6 the RUF crossed Hastings to Freetown, it is a lie. We bypassed them. We met the men at Hastings and the way it was fortified nobody had the mind to pass there. The last troop that came passed through Hastings and went to town. The night we reached Freetown I heard that my mother had been killed. The ECOMOG commander that was with me I wanted to kill him but I remembered the Lord. If I so revenge that meant a revenge against God. I released him. He had a communication set with him. When he wanted to talk in his language I refused. They asked him his location and asked for the person who captured him. He told them. As we went to attack Cockerril there was no way and I released him and I told him : "If you are killed, it is left with you." I came back to my own area. People were suffering. Those amputated were suffering. At Wellington I saw the situation. I took my men and we went to Water Quay and took oil, rice etc. I called my people and gave it to them. I was doing that throughout that week. I encouraged people in that area. People will bear me witness. What I am saying here is the truth. There was no medical treatment. I captured some medical doctors and asked them to treat my people in my area. As they saw how I was with the people, they stopped being afraid. On Wednesday we were moved out of Freetown. I decided that I was not going again. When ECOMOG entered, my relative asked me if I wanted to surrender. They said I was nice to them. I was afraid. I used bypass and went to Brewery. As we went ahead I remembered about my late mother and I was distressed. I was crying as I advanced. I told my boys not to call me Col. any longer. I came back to Kailahun and to Kenema. When I heard that RUF were in kono I went there. When I came to Makeni, my commanders were Superman and Jonogobla. We were with Superman. We stayed in Makeni till the year 2000. Superman slapped one of the UN Commanders and told him that we would not disarm. When I heard that disarmament was going on in Port Loko my boss man disarmed me. I took another weapon and used another route. Because they knew me as Col. they allowed me to pass through the checkpoint. I was able to talk to other RUFs to disarm. This is no way to live one's life. If we decide to live like this,

Sierra Leone will not move forward. We went to Port Loko and disarmed. When Peter Adamu heard that I had disarmed, he congratulated me and took a picture of me. He took me to Cockerril. If I say that I did not kill then I am telling a lie. But if I have ever burnt anybody's house or chopped off anybody's hand let me never prosper in whatever I lay my hands on. If I have done anybody wrong here in Makeni I want that person to point his or her finger at me. The person will bring me before the people and tell them what I did to him or her.

I forgot to mention something. I do not want to lie. The time I was given the first operation, Mosquito gave me some money to give the men for two months. If people say that Foday Sankoh brought the war to Sierra Leone. Yes it is true. He was not a leader but a contractor. I said I want to continue with my education. So I went back to school. My father was a soldier, Major Sesay. He decided that I should join the army on January 8, 2000. This is all I know.

Bishop Humper: As I listened to you I found out that your testimony has been very consistent and coherent.

Prof. Kamara: You said in the first assignment you were given thousands of what?

Abdulai Sesay: I was given 1890 man power.

Prof. Kamara: That was the time you captured 100 SLAs and killed five. Is that correct?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: You came to another mission and you were given some number of troops. What was the number?

Abdulai Sesay: I was given 2600 man power.

Prof. Kamara: Your first promotion was to colonel. What was your second promotion?

Abdulai Sesay: My first was major and the second colonel.

Prof. Kamara: You said the time when you were abducted you were 14 years old. At fourteen you were in school. What class were you in?

Abdulai Sesay: Form 2.

Prof. Kamara: Was it in Kono?

Abdulai Sesay: No, it was in Freetown. I went on Christmas holiday.

Prof. Kamara: You wanted to enter a room where the elders were having a meeting in Liberia. They refused to let you in?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

Prof. Kamara: Was that what you did in the RUF?

Abdulai Sesay: When you talk of RUF, we lived like animals.

Prof. Kamara: Did you take that behavior normally or did you take that behavior using drugs?

Abdulai Sesay: When I was there I never smoked marijuana but I sniffed cocaine.

Prof.kamara: How regularly were you supplied with cocaine?

Abdulai Sesay: sometimes I was injected. Sometimes the body is cut and the cocaine is inserted but the injection is more powerful.

Prof.Kamara: When last did you take any of these?

Abdulai Sesay: From the day I left the jungle I have never taken drugs and I have sworn that it will never happen again.

Prof.Kamara: Are you still in communication with Major Adamu?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes; but at present there is no communication.

Prof.kamara: When last did you communicate?

Abdulai Sesay: I last had contact with him in year 2000.

Prof.Kamara: You called somebody who encouraged you to join the army?

Abdulai Sesay: My father encouraged me to join the army but he has retired.

Prof.Kamara: Was he in the army?

AbdulaiSesay: Yes.

Prof.kamara: When did he retire?

Abdulai Sesay: In 2002.

Prof.Kamara: Did he join the SLA?

Abdulai Sesay: He surrendered and was locked up at Pademba Road.

Prof.kamara: When you were with the RUF did you get in contact with your dad?

AbdulaiSesay: No.

Prof.Kamara: You are saying that the RUF was responsible for the invasion of Freetown not SLA?

Abdulai Sesay: I said that it was SLA that attacked. The burning of houses and chopping of hands was not the responsibility of the SLA.

Prof.kamara: You want to tell me that the chopping of hands and burning of houses were caused by the RUF?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

Mrs. Jow

CommissionerJow: At the time of abduction you were only 14 yrs?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

CommissionerJow: You were in form 2.

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

CommissionerJow: Did you ever know about RUF?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

CommissionerJow: Did you discuss about RUF in school?

Abdulai Sesay: When I was in school I heard about the RUF. But I had thought they were referring to wild animals.

CommissionerJow: When you were captured by the RUF, how did you feel?

Abdulai Sesay: I felt two ways. I thought I was dead and on the other hand I thought I was not in this world.

CommissionerJow: Did you make any attempt to escape?

Abdulai: I did not because they killed my two brothers in front of me and the jungle was tense.

CommissionerJow: Can you tell us about the training?

Abdulai Sesay: We were trained at Yamdugu. It is just at the boundary between here and Liberia.

CommissionerJow: How did the training go?

Abdulai Sesay: They trained us to cock and fire and how to crawl. It was not like a proper military training. It is different. They thought us how to dismantle weapons and how to couple it up again.

CommissionerJow: Were there boys there?

Abdulai Sesay: There were lots of young boys.

CommissionerJow: Did all of you survive the training?

Abdulai Sesay: Some sustained injuries. We had an exercise that was called jungle walk.

CommissionerJow: Did any die?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

CommissionerJow: How many died in your group?

Abdulai Sesay: Those that I saw were five.

CommissionerJow: Did you carry out activities like looting?

Abdulai Sesay: No; because when we trained they did not want people to know our location. Yamdogu is in the forest and it is a big field. We were having our supply from Charles Taylor.

CommissionerJow: Can you remember the other names of the Commanders in Liberia?

Abdulai Sesay: Mosquito, Sankoh.

CommissionerJow: How many men were under your command?

Abdulai Sesay: The first man power was about 1890.

CommissionerJow: Am I right to assume that most of them were older than you?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

CommissionerJow: Can you tell me why the elders allowed you to be their commander?

Abdulai Sesay: I was trusted. I took risks and I went to the hot part of the war.No fear.

CommissionerJow: Can you tell us why you say Sankoh was only a contractor?

Abdulai Sesay: The reason why I said so was the day I told you about when I went to Liberia to observe their meeting. Foday Sankoh was slapped, kicked and simply put, molested ; then I knew that he was only a contractor.

CommissionerJow: Who was Sankoh's boss?

Abdulai Sesay: Charles Taylor, of course .

Bishop Humper

Bishop Humper : We want you to rest assured that some of us these things are not new to us; so we just want to clarify some of what you said. You said there is a place in Kailahun called Killer Forest. What was done there?

Abdulai Sesay: It was a place in Yamadugu.

Bishop Humper: Did you say that initially SLA was fighting RUF. When did the SLA and RUF become allies ?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes. In 1997.

Bishop Humper: Before 1997 was there any connection between SLA and RUF?

Abdulai Sesay: I do not know.

Bishop Humper: Why did they give you the name Major Jogobl?

Abdulai Sesay: I was major Jim Murderer.

Bishop Humper: Which of the groups did you belong to: The Special Force, Junior Commander or Vanguard?

Abdulai Sesay: The Special Forces were Liberians. The Vanguardians were Liberians. I was a Special Force for myself because I had men under my control and I was a commander.

Bishop Humper: Do you know about prisoners in Liberia from Sierra Leone and Charles Taylor released them and trained them up as fighters for Sierra Leone?

Abdulai Sesay: I do not know about it because the time we advanced to Kenema we met and we joined them. Most of them spoke Sierra Leonean languages and some spoke Liberian languages.

Bishop Humper: What can you say about SAJ Musa? You said that after his death the movement lost control.

Abdulai Sesay: Yes. When he died everybody was disgruntled. The SLAs were not happy and the RUF were not happy. The aim was for the SLA to go and settle in Freetown.

Bishop Humper: During that period of Major and Col. did you engage in flogging, putting people in prison?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes. I never killed anybody. For the beating, if you receive a slap, a punch with a gun butt, a good kick, it was yours. It was a rule to us.

Bishop Humper: This country will be interested to know whether there were Christians or Muslims in the group.

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Why did you choose Friday or Sunday to launch your attacks?

Abdulai Sesay: In 1995 whenever we attacked we had three days that we seldom carried out attacks. We were weary of Thursdays, Fridays and Sundays. Anytime we fought on those days we never succeeded. This is what I know about my own group.

Bishop Humper: You entered January 6. It was Ramadan time.

Abdulai Sesay: The reason why it went that way was because of SAJ's death. Everybody was disgruntled. You cannot see the bosses moving and you do not move with them.

Bishop Sesay: I will be a witness for you that you gave your people food. I saw when you broke the World Food Programme store.

Abdulai Sesay: The first breaking of the store was at Water Quay and the second was World Food Programme at Shell Company. I will not say that the people who took food did not sell. If I testify that, I will tell a lie, but it never happened in front of me.

Bishop Humper: For the whole country you said the RUF behaved like animals. With your experience you are victim and perpetrator. What would you say to your companions in the country? And what would you say to your companions if they hear of similar things in the future that is likely to happen.

Abdulai Sesay: I will tell them if the people of this country are ready to forgive us; God will forgive us. I trust the government that this will never happen again. Let the government strengthen the forces and help the victims and if they are satisfied and they forgive us, God will forgive us .But if they do not forgive us, God will not forgive us.

Bishop Humper: The skills you have developed how will you use your skills to protect the people?

Abdulai: All I have to say is that I have learned a lot of skills ; but if the people forgive us and trust us we will serve them. If I ever hear of any problem in the army I will make it known and stick my neck out for it. It is not for me but it is for my children, my sister's children and the children of Sierra Leone.

Leader of Evidence : Ms.Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: When did you first think that this was not a life for you?

Abdulai Sesay: In 1995.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Looking at your testimony you had so many chances of escaping why did you not escape?

Abdulai Sesay: There were several intervening and attenuating variables.For one, we were known by everybody. At a time we tried to lay down our arms;those who moved initially fell victim; civilians killed our brothers with tires. The other time ECOMOG killed our brothers and if I had left at that time I would have died like the others and would not have achieved anything in this country.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Were your men committing atrocities like amputation of limbs and burning of houses?

Abdulai Sesay: The time we were in the provinces they were in my control. When we came to Freetown I was unable to control them. I had four women under my command and I was protecting them.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You spoke about four women. Who are these women?

Abdulai Sesay: They are my wives.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you want me to believe that all four of them are your wives ?

Abdulai Sesay: My own boy under my control has six wives. Some have one and some do not have.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: What will you say about the abduction of girls?

Abdulai Sesay: I was very strict. It once happened that a boy under my command stabbed a pregnant woman; I gave orders for him to be killed. I do not allow those things to take place.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: You told us about 1080 men. Were they all armed with guns?

Abdulai Sesay: Yes.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Can you tell us where you got the arms?

Abdulai Sesay: I had a boss and the time we were in training they gave us guns. When we attacked at Galahun, we succeeded and we took their arms.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Where are your wives?

Abdulai Sesay: They are all in school.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Are they with you?

Abdulai Sesay: They are with their parents.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Do you have children by these four wives?

Abdulai Sesay: None yet. At 14 yrs I had my first wife. In 1995 I had my second wife and 1996 I had my third woman and in 1997 came the fourth.

Ms Apori-Nkansah: Do you know Jonogopie, Sengepie and Mustapha Koroma?

Abdulai Sesay: As I was a commander I did not care about any other person except persons under my own command.

Ms. Apori-Nkansah: Are you supporting these girls now?

Abdulai Sesay: No.

Prof.Kamara: For the six years you were a commander; the way you explained it seems you were not under anybody's control.

Abdulai Sesay: Mosquito was my only boss. If they say all the RUF group should come together to go and attack we normally put it into vote and chose somebody as commander for that assignment.

Prof.Kamara: Do you take command from people?

Abdulai Sesay: Since I stopped seeing my boss I did not take command from anybody.

Prof.Kamara: How are you coping in a disciplined force?

Abdulai Sesay: I do whatever I am asked to do?

Prof.Kamara: Would you mind our going to your commander to have a report about you ?

Abdulai Sesay: I do not mind.Go ahead.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

CommissionerJow: You witnessed a lot of atrocities and married young girls. You also committed a lot of atrocities. I want to know whether you have been counselled or are receiving counselling ?

- Abdulai Sesay: The time we left Kailahun I stopped taking the drugs. Since I stopped taking these things I have realized that I am a human being.
- Bishop Humper: It is now your time to ask questions or make recommendations.
- Abdulai Sesay: I want to ask, if the people do not forgive us and God does not forgive us, what will you do with us?
- Bishop Humper: Abdulai is saying that he is not satisfied with the Amnesty granted to them. This Commission was put in place to take care of this kind of questions. The Commission has also been put in place to bring forward wrong doers like you. I hope that hundreds of other people will come forward and say what they have done wrong. As long as you have asked for forgiveness we are asking the whole populace and the whole Sierra Leone to forgive you. After lunch we will perform a ceremony to say what we did wrong and who did this and say to the nation please forgive me. You must be genuine about it. It is not superficial contention. As long as you have said the truth and you face the people to forgive you; they will forgive you. This Commission will not leave you here; we have to do our work for you to reconcile and we make sure we will contact you.
- Abdulai Sesay: What will you do for the victims so that they will talk to God and God will forgive us?
- Bishop Humper: Article 29 of the Lome Peace Agreement did say we have to create a War Victims Fund. That is the responsibility of the government and the international community. Government is not waiting; Government has started doing some thing already. What would you recommend that we include in our report ?
- Abdulai Sesay: I want you to assist the force, if soldiers are not in the country there is no peace. I am talking of the regimental soldiers taking orders from the Government. The Government should take care of us so that there will be sustainable peace. I want them to increase the salary of police, soldiers so that they will be loyal to the Government and the people . But I trust the Government to work to ensure that this does not happen again.

3rd Witness – Aminata Kamara

My name is Aminata Kamara. I am a Christain. Bishop Humper administered the oath.

Testimony

I was with my family at Kono in 1998 .The rebels had intensified their attacks on Kono sequel to the entry of ECOMOG . On 16th December 1998 at 5:00am in the morning they launched an attack at Kokama. A lot of civilians were killed at Lebanon. We were hemmed in at Yardu Road and there was no way to get out. For the rest of the day battle raged on between ECOMOG and the RUF. The Kamajors carved a way and moved us and kept us in a very big hall. There was much weeping and wailing in the hall. Many had lost their loved ones; many were missing or displaced. I only saw my three- year old child ;every other person was missing . There was much confusion and distress. At 7pm in the evening, the kamajors came and warned us and told us that if we did not stop making noise ;they would use our guts to make check point. We continued to weep and wail. Around 8pm ECOMOG launched a huge weapon, which instantly induced premature labour and delivery among some pregnant women that were in that hall . The weapon that they launched was as if they wanted to leave the area. We the civilians did not know anything. We were in the hall when one SLA came to look for his relatives. We started leaving the hall. We saw ECOMOG and their luggage on trucks. They were going towards Sewefa junction. We the civilians were behind them and it was not easy for us to pass the RUF ambush. Many civilians were killed. We were lucky and we reached Sewafe. We were there and had no food to eat for three days. One SLA officer told his junior to make some food before they would advance to clear the ambush. We were at Sewafe junction and they made an attempt to clear the ambush but they did not succeed. Some received injury. Another attack was made up the hill and ECOMOG, civilians and SLA went in the direction of Kono. Then we saw some civilians rushing back and they said it was not easy to cross the ambush. The Kamajors said if any combatant went into those areas they would be used as cannon fodder . The ECOMOG asked the SLA what should be done. One of them said since he was born, he had never walked for one mile. The ECOMOG then said alive or dead ,they must clear the ambush. The tension from this conversation that was happening beside me, was compounded by my own personal predicament: I did not know the direction and fate of my husband and my two children. One lady came to me and told me that my two children and husband were lying on the ground. She said I should go and see for myself. But so many things were happening at the same time. We were crowded together and were moving that way, waiting and hoping for the ambush to be cleared . At that time my brother was carrying my 3-year old child . We the civilians went with the convoy. There was no way for the vehicle to go through. The rebels dug all the roads. We the civilians returned. The 1st group went through and the 2nd group returned. The boy who carried the child managed to cross to Sewafe town. From where I was taking cover I heard the voice of a woman who had asked the boy to put the child down and the boy did . There was much cross fire. I was watching and there was a lot of smoke. After the exchange of fire power, I rose up like the others around me. I was unable to see neither my child nor my brother . We joined the next group of soldiers that regrouped and we went through the ambush. We went to Masingbi. Since that day I had searched for my child until I came to Makeni. Within these three years I have been struggling to find my child because the others have died. One day on my way to Tongo, I met a lady whom I came to know in those perilous moments from Kardu Road through the hall to Sewafe through the ambush. She welcomed me and asked me if I had seen the child. She said they had information about my child. She called one RUF boy Kallon. I had a photograph of the child. She said: "Kallon is this not the child whose case is being heard in Kailahun right now". One other boy said: "Is this not the child that was found in Sewafe ? Presently the woman that abducted that child is at the court with her husband." I had nothing with me at that time to go to Kailahun. The boy had accepted to take me right there, if I was ready with the transport fare. I had to explain to them that I came to my aunt's and they said she was in Kenema. I had nothing with me. All the dresses I had with me I had sold them to get to Kenema. From Kenema, I boarded a vehicle to Makeni. I explained my predicament to the apprentice of the driver of the vehicle and he brought me home. I have tried without success to raise money in order to look for my child. I am determined to do whatever it takes to get help to get my child back. The problem is the one that abducted my child has no child of her own, so her husband said he will marry another woman. The woman said because of that she would take the child because she found the child. The man on the other hand, insists that he would not release the child because he has spent so much on the child. That is why I came to appeal to the Commission to assist me to get my child back. Sequel to the search for my child and all that I have been going through , my present husband has left me. He says I am barren. If you can help me to get this child it will be the happiest day in my life.

Bishop Humper: We share in your bitter experience. I know it is very difficult for a mother to go through what you went through are still going through. I want to ask my colleagues if they have questions to ask you.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang A, Jow

CommissionerJow: I am a mother and a woman like you . I am moved by your testimony. The Commission is to focus on children and women who suffered during the war. How old was the child at the time?

Aminata Kamara: 3 years and 4 months

CommissionerJow: How old is he now?

Aminata Kamara: 2nd August will make him seven years.

CommissionerJow: Do you have pictures of him?

Aminata Kamara: Yes

CommissionerJow: What is the name of the child?

Aminata Kamara: Emmanuel.

CommissionerJow: You said your brother helped you carry your child. Where is your brother?

Aminata Kamara: I have never seen him since that time.

CommissionerJow: Have you ever discussed this with another person?

Aminata Kamara: There is no displaced camp I have not searched in this country.

CommissionerJow: You said you cannot go there because you have no money?

Aminata Kamara: Yes.

CommissionerJow: When did you get this information?

Aminata Kamara: Last week. According to the information they said the child is in court in Kailahun and chief Mohamed is presiding over the matter.

Prof. Kamara: Do you know that in this country the government and the governmental institutions have the responsibility for you?

Aminata Kamar: I do not know.

Prof.Kamara: There are institutions that take care of missing children during the war. Have you heard of the Red Cross?

Aminata Kamara: Yes.

Prof.Kamara: Do you know that they trace people who are missing?

Aminata Kamara: Yes. Why I did not go to them was because since the search began whenever I went to them they usually asked me the location of the child.

Prof.Kamara: When they gave you the information why did you not go to the Red Cross?

Aminata Kamara: I was so excited that I did not know what to do.

Bishop Humper

Bishop Humper: We have heard your story. After this session I will ask that you see our staff. They will direct you to a particular group that will help you to get to Kailahun. You already have the address. Is Kallon an ex-combatant?

Aminata Kamara: Yes.

Bishop Humper: Aminata do you have any questions?

Aminata Kamara: I only want you to assist me to find my child.

4th Witness – Bashir Kabia

My name is Bahsir Kabia. I am a Muslim. Bishop Humper administered the oath.

On Thursday 08 May 1997 ,I had to take the children for the NPSC examination at Gbendembu. We reached at 2:00pm . We were preparing food for the children when we heard that rebels were in Kalangba. I was confused: A stranger and with 35 children. In ten minutes we saw bicycles coming towards us and it was the rebels. We assembled the children and went into the bush. We went to the hill. We saw many things that happened in town. We saw the rebels perpetrating atrocities. At 6pm we saw smoke and they started burning the town. We were in the bush and the rebels moved into the bush; so I went with the children further and further into the forest for safety. We passed the night in the forest. It was unfortunate that we took a direction opposite to where we should have gone. On Friday morning we heard gun shots. It was as if it was exchange of gun fire. Then the firing of gun shots ceased. Eight of us tried to find out about the situation. We went to the secondary school. We were able to see the amount of damage that was done in the town, when we saw bicycles coming towards us. They were shouting:” Please come to town, the rebels have been repelled”. We were afraid to get close to them and; the first person that attempted to go near them was captured. We went and sought refuge in nearby areas to see what would happen to the boy that was captured. They bound him up with cloths. The three rebels all had guns with them. They were now arguing over who would shoot the boy. It was during that argument that the boy escaped. When he got to where we were, we set him free . I took the children and went through the bush to Mateboy town. We trekked for nine hours. We reached Mateboy at about 9:00 on Friday night. At Mateboy people were already so worried. As we finally got home, there was a great feeling of relief. I handed the children over to their parents and guardians and went to my own place. At about 9:30am the next morning, the rebels attacked Mateboy. Out of the 35 children that I had just handed over to their parents at night, four of them were abducted. Then they started burning houses and collecting money.They set about 15 houses ablaze that morning.We took cover around Mateboy until about 11.00am. We then went the direction of Makeni .Some of usretired well into the forest. We were there for three months .

In 1998 rebels again started attacking the area. We never knew they were finding a location to make a base. This time around the rebels were quite different from those that first came upon us.In order to confuse us ,they asked the whereabouts of the rebels. Then, they went to town. Then came the kamajors who told us that they were going to attack the rebels. When they attacked the rebels on their return, they came back singing. The people thought that danger had been averted and that the rebels were finished;and so the left their places of cover in the bush and came back to town .On my own side ,I was apprehensive,aware of the resolute viciousness of the rebels;I could trust neither the rebels nor the assurance by the Kamajors.So, we stayed back in the bush .True to my fears , the rebels came calling. In the evening hours of the next day we went back and ; and sadly we were able to count twenty-seven dead bodies. They were piled from the beginning of the town to the end. At first, we never knew that there was a very little child still alive amongst the dead bodies. The child who was one year and six months old. His parents were all dead and the child was badly wound. He received a big cut in his face. People in Makeni can attest to what I am saying. The child is still alive. The child's great grand mother is the only one left in the family. Sequel to the obscene situation, we went to the bush and told them to move to Makeni. And so came we to Makeni. We stayed in Makeni for seven months. Around December 23rd rebels attacked Makeni again. We never wanted to go back to Mateboy but we were forced to. We had some respite in the area of atrociously killing people.But life was very difficult. We were just between where the rebels were controlling and the CDF. We only got relief when the last bomb was dropped in Makeni.

Bishop Humper: You said you do not need to talk about the rape issue

Bashir Kabia: I said this because it was very common within the rebel line.

Commissioner Mrs.Satang A. Jow

CommissionerJow: I want to know if those that were raped are still in Mateboy.

Bahsir Kabia: I know of one or two who are staying there. Some have died .

CommissionerJow: Did any of them have children and get pregnant for the rebels?

Bashir Kabia: The one that died had a child resulting therefrom

CommissionerJow: In your testimony you spoke about the leader of the group?

Bashir Kabia: In 1997 houses in Mateboy were set ablaze during two rebel attacks. In the first incident 135 houses were set ablaze;the second involved 35 houses.I know the leaders of the two acts.Both are of Mateboy birth. The first razing was led by Gibrilla and the second by Lansana.

Commissioner Jow: Do you know their whereabouts now ?

Bashir Kabia: I heard that one of them is mining diamond and one is a shoe maker.

CommissionerJow: What is the current state in the village?

Bashir Kabia: One NGO came there and they told us to make blocks. Every household tried to get a good number of blocks. Since then we are yet to see them again. Even the school is yet to be rebuilt, we only use a tent now. I am the head teacher of that school. In the area of medicines thanks to MSF. They give us some assistance. We also have MCH aid and also a dispenser who was born in Mateboy. The living condition is terrible because a lot of people live in one room.

Prof. Kamara: Are you still teaching and also the headmaster?

Bashir Kabia: Yes.

Prof.kamara: During the rebel war in 1997 you took the children to sit to the NPSE.

Bashir Kabia: I have already said that in the end ,I came back with the children and handed them over to their parents. Four of them were later on abducted and finally released at Maisiaka.

Prof.kamara: You were talking about the burning of the school. Have you made any attempt to talk to any organisation like NaCSA to rebuild the school?

Bashir Kabia: Our office is sharing the same building with NaCSA. Ramatu Kanu who is Inspector of School in Makeni had been informed.

Prof.Kamara: And the Inspector of School has not told you anything ?

Bashir Kabia: She told me to be on the standby.

Prof.kamara: Who is the proprietor of the school?

Bashir Kabia: It is government assisted.

Prof.Kamara: You mentioned the number of people killed during the attack.

Bashir Kabia: When we moved out of Mateboy, we reached Tomoboy there they buried the bodies. When we went back to Mateboy we saw some bones because they were not properly buried. We buried these bones in a mass grave.

Prof.Kamara: You said then there were two types of rebels.

Bashir Kabia: Yes, because the first ones burnt down a lot of houses and killed only two people but in 1997 when they came they amputated three people, killed 27 people and burnt down lot of houses.

Prof.Kamara: The 1997 attack was it before or after the coup that overthrew Tejan Kabba?

BashirKabia: It was before 1997.

Prof.Kamara: Those rebels were what?

Bashir Kabia: RUF rebels.

Bishop Humper: The same people can be different people different times. In February 1998 the first set of people were the same people in the February 1998 intervention. They were the same people of different purpose, different mind and different attitude.

Bashir Kabia: What can you do to facilitate reconciliation?

Bishop Humper: What you have told us here is between the people involved in these acts and the community. You remember the Commission was asking you about these people. Do you want the Commission to bring forward Gibrilla and Lansa to reconcile with the people?

Bashir Kabia: I am willing to do whatever you say. It is the Commission's responsibility to reconcile people.

Bishop Humper: It is the duty of the Commission to go and find the perpetrators and listen to their own side ;then we will be able to make reconciliation.

Bahsir Kabia: I hereby to recommend to the Commission for the rebuilding of the school. The amputees should also be assisted and they are not registered. The town is trying for their livelihood. The housing problem is very serious at Mateboy. We want the Commission to assist in those areas.

Bishop Humper: The Commission will take this into consideration. The staff will take note of Mateboy for the amputees. The Commission is aware of the amputee and war wounded in this country. We are all moving together to see what can be done for these people. We have contacted the president of the association to visit the amputees all over the country.

THE TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARINGS IN KENEMA DISTRICT

DAY ONE

1. COMMISSIONER LAURA MARCUS JONES (PRESIDING)
2. COMMISSIONER SYLVANUS TORTO
3. COMMISSIONER
4. LEADER OF EVIDENCE – MS. MARTIEN SCHOTSMANS

DATE: 26thMAY 2003

WITNESS NAME: Hawa Joseph

WITNESS NO: 001

REFERENCE NO: 3/20/354

OPENING CEREMONY: A sheik led the Muslim prayer. The Chairman, Inter Religious Council, led the Christian prayer.

Hawa Joseph: My name is Hawa Joseph. I am a Christian.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones, the presiding Commissioner welcomed the witness, introduced the procedures and administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

Hawa Joseph: We were at Konia Kpandi when the rebels attacked. When we came towards Kenema, my husband advised that we spend the night in the bush and leave in the morning. At about 2a.m we heard sporadic gunshots and all of us scattered in different directions. The children and I went together and my husband also went into hiding in another place. At about 6a.m, they came to where we were hiding using a bye pass road. They captured some people and told them to join them attack Kenema. On their way, they met my husband and asked him to show them they way to Kenema. When he told them that he didn't know the way, since he was a native of Konia kpindima, they said they were going to kill him. He asked them to allow him say his last prayer but they shot him on his wrist. He fell down pretending to be dead but one of the rebels told his colleagues that he was not actually dead. They came back and shot him on the head through his ear. He eventually died. That is my testimony.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming to the Commission. Also I want to tell you that we are sorry for the loss of your husband. Were you present when he was shot?

Hawa Joseph: I was not present.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you get to know the story?

Hawa Joseph: The brother of my husband told me what had happened.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you give us his name?

Hawa Joseph: Yes. Samuka Momoh

Commissioner Torto: We thank you very much for coming to the Commission I have few questions for you. Do you know the fighting group your husband's killers belonged to?

Hawa Joseph: The person did not tell me the fighting group they belonged to. However, from my hiding place we overheard them saying that they belonged to Akim's group.

Commissioner Torto: In your written statement you told us that your husband was buried at the spot where he was killed; who buried you husband?

Hawa Joseph: The Kamajors buried him.

Commissioner Torto: In your written statement you said these people spoke Liberian pidgin. Were they Liberians?

Hawa Joseph: I cannot tell because during the war, the rebels mostly spoke the Liberian pidgin.

Commissioner Torto: Have you been able to locate or identify the people who killed your husband?

Hawa Joseph: No.

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Hawa Joseph: I am doing gardening and small scale trading.

Leader of Evidence: You told us that the rebels killed your husband and he was not the only one abducted by the rebels, can you tell us what happened to the others?

Hawa Joseph: Yes. The person who told me about my husband had bayonet marks all over his body.

Leader of Evidence: How many people were abducted together with your husband?

Hawa Joseph: An old man and an old woman.

Leader of Evidence: The other people were able to escape and the rebels met the Kamajor is that correct?

Hawa Joseph: Yes. They met at one point.

Leader of Evidence: Was there any fight between them?

Hawa Joseph: No, because the rebels out numbered the Kamajors.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels run away?

Hawa Joseph: Yes, they came to Kenema.

Leader of Evidence: Do you remember the year this incident took place?

Hawa Joseph: I can't remember the year but it was the last attack.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us how many times Konia was attacked?

Hawa Joseph: Many times.

Leader of Evidence: Was it the last attack?

Hawa Joseph: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did other people get killed in your family?

Hawa Joseph: My husband was the only one killed.

Leader of Evidence: Were people in any other family killed?

Hawa Joseph: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How many do you know?

Hawa Joseph: They were many.

Leader of Evidence: Was any harm done to you?

Hawa Joseph: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to you? Can you explain?

Hawa Joseph: When we returned all our properties were burnt.

Leader of Evidence: Any thing else?

Hawa Joseph: I lost everything that I had.

Leader of Evidence: Was any physical harm done to you?

Hawa Joseph: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for answering our questions, have you any question to ask the Commission?

Hawa Joseph: I have no question.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation?

Hawa Joseph: I want the government to assist me educate my children, and assisting with the provision of accommodation. Also my husband's mother is with me and she is very old, so I want you to help me financially.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The TRC has no money to give out to people but we will make recommendations in our report, but I ought to explain to you that the government will not build individual houses but they will be able to provide good education for the community and so in that way you will benefit. Thank you for coming to help the Commission.

We were in Konia when the rebels attacked us. We were afraid of them so we fled to Segbwema and stayed there for two years but things were difficult. My father therefore decided to return to Konia to find food. At Bendu junction on his way to the village, he came across rebels together with his brother who was at the back. He was held under gunpoint and although he engaged them in a struggle, they were able to overpower him. He was shot but he didn't die. He was taken to Segbwema and admitted at the hospital for three months. He later died. I heard about his death and before I could reach Segbwema, I met his corpse in the mortuary and he was later buried.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you. Was any other person of your family killed?

Sheku Jayah: Yes. Koi Momoh my elder brother.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We are very sorry for the loss of your brother, Commissioner will ask you questions.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you; were you present or did somebody tell you of the incident?

Sheku Jayah: My father's elder brother who was with him explained to me.

Commissioner Torto: Which of the fighting group did they belong to?

Sheku Jayah: They were RUF rebels.

Commissioner Torto: Have you heard about AFRC?

Sheku Jayah: No.

Commissioner Torto: Have you heard of those that killed your father, where they are now?

Sheku Jayah: No.

Commissioner Torto: Who killed your uncle?

Sheku Jayah: People killed him although we could not tell whom exactly.

Commissioner Torto: Your father's house was burnt and your motorbike was stolen, have you been able to see it around as you move along?

Sheku Jayah: No.

Leader of Evidence: What is the name of your father?

Sheku Jayah: Joseph Jayah.

Leader of Evidence: What is the name of your uncle?

Sheku Jayah: Koi Momoh.

Leader of Evidence: In your statement you mentioned Lahai Difehun.

Sheku Jayah: He accompanied my father but he escaped.

Commissioner Torto: Was he the one that gave you the information?

Sheku Jayah: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Did he mention to you the group they belonged to?

Sheku Jayah: They were rebels.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know if they were in uniform?

Sheku Jayah: I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: Do you remember the year?

Sheku Jayah: In 1996

Leader of Evidence: Was it before the election?

Sheku Jayah: Before the elections.

Leader of Evidence: Was that the only attack in your village or were there other attacks?

Sheku Jayah: They attacked several times.

Leader of Evidence: You fled after this attack?

Sheku Jayah: Those who stayed behind experienced several attacks.

Leader of Evidence: You are 44 so he could have been an old man?

Sheku Jayah: He was an old man.

Leader of Evidence: What was his position in the society?

Sheku Jayah: His elder brother was a chief and he was a farmer.

Leader of Evidence: Was he the one killed?

Sheku Jayah: The rebels did not kill him

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Sheku Jayah: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Any recommendation?

Sheku Jayah: I want the Government to help us with schools; and the road to our village is very bad so I want the Commission to help us with our road.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much. Your recommendation will be included in our report. The Commission finishes its work in October. So is not a distant future, you will be able to benefit from the recommendations that would be made.

WITNESS NAME: Watta Fodie

WITNESS NO: 003

REFERENCE NO: 3/20/3521

Watta fodie: I was in Konia when we heard of an attack in a nearby village. As we prepared to go to bed at night, we saw people running towards our place with blood all over their body. We went to Bendu junction and then to Segbwema. One Monday I was told that the rebels in Konia killed my child as he tried to escape. I cried. The man, who told me about the death of my child, advised that I talk to the soldiers to help me bury my child. I spoke with the soldiers and they agreed for him to be buried. After that, we fled Segbwema because of the war to Kenema and we were here till the end of the war.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you. We appreciate your coming. We are sorry about your son's death. How old was your son?

Watta Fodie: His friend is here he can stand up (The man stood up and he could be around 50)

Commissioner Torto: Thanks for coming. With reference to your statement, your son was a respected hunter in Lower Mabarara. What kind of a hunter was he?

Watta Fodie: When the war started, they organized youth groups to take care of the area; the chief depended on the youths to take care of the village.

Commissioner Torto: According to your statement, you said that he went to settle a dispute between a rebel and a civilian. It was during that time that he was killed?

Watta Fodie: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: They tied and beat him before he was shot?

Watta Fodie: He was beaten and not tied. According to the information, when he was shot, he did not die so he was killed with sticks.

Commissioner Torto: Were they Liberians?

Watta Fodie: I was not there.

Leader of Evidence: Your son was involved in youth activities to take care of the town can you tell more?

Watta Fodie: They were placed in strategic positions to look out for the rebels and take care of the town.

Leader of Evidence: Does that mean they organized roadblocks?

Watta Fodie: They had checkpoints.

Leader of Evidence: Does that mean they were Kamajor?

Watta Fodie: I only knew he was a youth.

Leader of Evidence: Do you remember the year?

Watta Fodie: I can't recall.

Leader of Evidence: Did he leave children behind?

Watta Fodie: Yes. Seven.

Leader of Evidence: Were they small or adult?

Watta Fodie: There were three adults and four small ones.

Leader of Evidence: The small ones are they still in school?

Watta Fodie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Would I be correct to say your son was a vigilante?

Watta Fodie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Watta Fodie: Yes. My child was my benefactor and my house was destroyed. I want to ask what help can you offer me?

Commissioner Marcus Jones: I have said before that we can't provide for people food, clothing and accommodation but however you can talk to our briefer who can refer you to NGOs that can help you.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation?

Watta Fodie: Yes: my village has never benefited from any thing. There is no proper drinking water no proper accommodation for people, no good road.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I understand what the people in your area are going through. Have you any body in Government who represents your village and be able to advocate for development in your area.

Watta Fodie: There is no chief in the village.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for coming.

I was in my village Konia Kpindima that is six miles from Tongo. One day, we saw people with wounds coming, towards us with loads on their heads. We ran to Bendu Junction and stayed there for a week. At about 6a.m. one morning, we heard firing all over the town. I ran to the bush. My brother was behind me and I heard him scream "oh my mother", I've been killed. I ran to Segbwema and the following morning, one of my brothers who were present at the scene, told me that my brother was killed. In the morning we reported to the chief from Konia and soldiers were provided to follow us to the scene. We saw six corpses, which were buried in a single grave. The soldiers guarded us because of the risk involved. We then returned to Segbwema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Mohamed Lansana. We are sorry for the death of your brother. Among the six bodies were you able to identify your brother and were they all buried in the same grave?

Mohamed Lansana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is there any mark on the grave to show that such a number of people were buried there.

Mohamed Lansana: That I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much; do you know who your attackers were?

Mohamed Lansana: They were dressed in civilian clothes.

Commissioner Torto: Who actually do you think they were?

Mohamed Lansana: They were rebels.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the names of the victims?

Mohamed Lansana: Yes. Kini Moifullah, Gadiru Amara Vandy, Kini Bunubu, Koi Momoh, Brima Yaweh.

Torto: Who were these people?

Mohamed Lansana: We were all farmers.

Commissioner Torto: Do you suspect that the attackers have some reason maybe out of malice or because of money that made them to kill these people?

Mohamed Lansana: I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: Was there any kind of quarrel between different people in your village like "Bush palaver"?

Mohamed Lansana: No.

Commissioner Torto: Since that time you have never heard of who did it, even by name?

Mohamed Lansana: No.

Leader of Evidence: When did this happen?

Mohamed Lansana: In February 1994.

Leader of Evidence: You also mentioned that whilst you were burying the dead, soldiers were around guarding, which soldiers were present?

Mohamed Lansana: The Sierra Leone Army. (SLA)

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much, have you any question to ask the Commission?

Mohamed Lansana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation you will like us to include in our report?

Mohamed Lansana: Our village is not motorable, we have no community centre, no hospital no pure water to drink. We have formed a group but there is no help from any NGO, fifty of us are in that group.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you very much we will include your recommendation in our report. I encourage you to go on with your group maybe you can help with the road and some NGOs would be able to help you with your agricultural project. When you do that, by the time the government would come in to help you would have gone far. You said you have no road was there a road before?

Mohamed Lansana: Yes. But it was destroyed because of the war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What is the name of the group?

Mohamed Lansana: Konia young Muslim organization.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have Christians in this village?

Mohamed Lansana: Yes. We have different groups. The Christians have and the women too have.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Don't you think that when the Muslims and the Christians come together you will be able to more than you are doing? Anyway think about that. I thank you for coming.

When the rebels attacked us at Konia Kpindima we came to kenema and stayed there for two months. My husband left to collect our things. We heard that the rebels attacked for the second time and my brother told me that my husband was killed.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us in what year this happened?

Sama Koroma: Six years ago.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: It must have happened in 1997?

Sama Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What position did your husband hold?

Sama Koroma: He was a diamond miner.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What position had he?

Sama Koroma: He was the Kuranko chief.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you think he was attacked because he was a diamond miner or a Kuranku chief?

Sama Koroma: I can't tell.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you Sama Koroma which of the fighting groups killed your husband?

Sama Koroma: Rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you married again?

Sama Koroma: No.

Leader of Evidence: When your husband was killed where other people killed?

Sama Koroma: No.

Leader of Evidence: His brother was present?

Sama Koroma: Yes. They all ran into the bush and they came later after the rebels had left.

Leader of Evidence: Were other people killed or injured?

Sama Koroma: No. He was the only one killed.

Leader of Evidence: Were you able to bury his body?

Sama Koroma: yes his brother buried him in his compound.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You made a statement that the body was not seen?

Sama Koroma: They found his body and he was buried.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Sama Koroma: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many children have you?

Sama Koroma: Five.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Including this one?

Sama Koroma: No besides this one.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So that is six. I'm sorry but I can't help saying it. Is there any family planning programme in you area?

Sama Koroma: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Which is the nearest hospital from Konia?

Sama Koroma: Segbwema or Kenema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Am asking this question because I want you to look for help from the family planning programme. Now that you are not married and you are young, if you continue to have many children it will not be of any help to you. Apart from the above recommendation is there any help you want to send to the government?

Sama Koroma: I want the Government to help us with school and the road to our village is very bad so I want the Commission to help us with our road.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Sama for coming. All the recommendations for Konia will be included in our report because Konia seems to be deprived of so many facilities.

One day we were in Konia when we saw people coming from a nearby village and they told us that they are running from the rebels at Yuwoma. My mother, the section chief, who was very old, was unable to run. As she was going towards the barray, she was caught and shot. We were hiding in a place where we could see the town. They took her moneybag tied around her waist from her. I then went and told my friends to go and help me bury her. As she was the chief, we buried her in another village because we did not want the rebels to come again and disturb her burial ceremony. I then decided to flee the area. I came with all my younger brothers and sisters to Kenema. We stayed here for a while and later returned to Konia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thanks for your testimony but we are sorry for the loss of your Mother. Your testimony is a sad one. Do you think she was targeted because of her position?

Amara Vandy: I want to believe that.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old was your son?

Amara Vandy: I think he was 15years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was she wealthy?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you considered reburying her in her own chiefdom?

Amara Vandy: We are thinking about that.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you lose any other member?

Amara Vandy: Yes my son was killed.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us the circumstances?

Amara Vandy: Whenever there is an attack in a town, you take various directions and if you later discover any member of your family dead, you can only think about the rebels. I am happy that I am alive. It was very stressful for me. If I had the opportunity I would have given her a fitting funereal.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you the section chief now?

Amara Vandy: No. I am taking care of the home.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We still want to know about the death of your son.

Amara Vandy: He was killed at the same time with his grandmother.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Apart from your son and mother do you know the names of any other person that was killed?

Amara Vandy: Yes. A lady named Adama, from another village.

Commissioner Torto: Was she killed the same day?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Buried the same day?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Hassan Foday, who was he?

Amara Vandy: He was staying with me

Commissioner Torto: Where is he now?

Amara Vandy: I don't know his whereabouts.

Commissioner Torto: What about Dauda Amara Vandy?

Amara Vandy: Since we ran away I have not heard anything about him.

Commissioner Torto: Can you confirm which of the fighting group they belonged to?

Amara Vandy: They were dressed in military uniform and their heads tied with piece of cloth.

Commissioner Torto: If you are to guess, which of the fighting groups do you think they belonged to?

Amara Vandy: I can identify them to be rebels.

Commissioner Torto: How much money do you think was taken from your mother?

Amara Vandy: If I say am going to answer then I will tell you lies I had no way of checking how much was in her possession.

Commissioner Torto: We are asking about the people who killed your mother and son .If you know where they are we can invite them to come and reconcile with you.

Amara Vandy: If I go back and set eyes on them I will come back and inform the Commission.

Commissioner Torto: In which year did this happen?

Amara Vandy: In 1998

Commissioner Torto: Before, or after the elections?

Amara Vandy: After the elections.

Commissioner Torto: Could you tell us how many times your village was attacked?

Amara Vandy: They attacked Konia on several occasions; the first one was in 1993.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any idea about how many people were killed?

Amara Vandy: Yes. Town Chief Amara Vandy, Stranger Yakumba, Limina and that hold woman Mama Fodie son was killed Momoh Berta our brother Koi Momoh, Dauda, son Gadiru Amara Vandy, my brother Moi Fullah, Joseph Jayah's brother.

Commissioner Torto: Apart form those, were other people were killed?

Amara Vandy: Yes. But I don't know their names.

Commissioner Torto: Were all these attacks by the rebels or was there another group involved in some of the attacks?

Amara Vandy: Only RUF.

Commissioner Torto: We had another witness talking about a vigilante group; can you tell us some thing about that?

Amara Vandy: The soldiers told us to work together so we mobilized the youth to help them, but we ask them how we can help. The asked us to be rece and that was how the vigilante group came about. We usually put up checkpoints.

Commissioner Torto: Did the vigilantes use guns?

Amara Vandy: They did not have guns at first they were using sticks, but later they were given guns.

Commissioner Torto: What year did this organization start?

Amara Vandy: In 1991 and 1993.

Commissioner Torto: Where they involved in any fighting with the rebels?

Amara Vandy: Yes, but the rebels overpowered the vigilantes.

Commissioner Torto: Did they kill?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Did the vigilantes kill any of the rebels?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Did you ever capture any of the rebels?

Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Did you question them?

Amara Vandy: Yes we usually asked where they are coming from.

Commissioner Torto: Did they tell you where they were coming from?

Amara Vandy: Since we were working with the soldiers, if they were captured we would take them to the soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: Who gave you the guns?

Amara Vandy: The soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: Did you receive training to use the guns?

Amara Vandy: No.

Leader of Evidence: How did you come to know how to use the guns?

Amara Vandy: I was having single barrel. When we got machine guns we would take them to the soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: Were there women and men among the rebels you captured?

Amara Vandy: They were mixed.

Leader of Evidence: How old was the youngest among them?

Amara Vandy: The youngest was 11 and the oldest was 18.

Leader of Evidence: Why did you stop being vigilantes?

Amara Vandy: Because they would have killed all of us.

Leader of Evidence: Where you dressed in uniform to show that you are a vigilante?

Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Torto: You captured rebels and send them to Segbwema did you follow up whether they were taken to court or what happened to them?

Amara Vandy: No. Whenever they are captured we send them to the base of the soldiers in Segbwema.

Leader of Evidence: All those you captured have you seen any one of them?

Amara Vandy: No.

Marcus-Jones: Thank you for answering our questions. We have been asking you questions have you any question for the Commission?

Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation?

Amara Vandy: I want the Government to help us with school and the road to our village is very bad so I want the Commission to help us with our road.

We were in Konia when the rebels attacked us. We went to the bush; we used to come to the town around during the day to look around. We heard that a woman was killed and in the night the rebels attacked us in the bush. They said they would take us away. They caught my boy Sao, who was killed in my presence. He was then slaughtered. They said I should sing and dance but when I refused, I was hit on the head with a gun and they left. We then went to Segbwema and then to Pendembu. When peace came, I returned to Konia.

Marcus Jones: Thank you very much for your testimony; your testimony is a sad one. How old was your son?

Moiwo Moinina: I think he was 15 years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many children have you?

Moiwo Moinina: Five children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Well hope they would be a consolation to you.

Commissioner Torto: You said you were taken to Segbwema and later to Pendembu. Who took you along?

Moiwo Moinina: The rebels.

Commissioner Torto: How did you finally get to Konia?

Moiwo Moinina: When they signed the peace, we requested that they leave so that we could return to our place.

Commissioner Torto: During the attack in your village were any other people taken along with you?

Moiwo Moinina: No.

Commissioner Torto: How long were you with them?

Moiwo Moinina: One year one month.

Commissioner Torto: What role did you play in captivity?

Moiwo Moinina: We were used as labourers. We took loads to Buedu and Kailahun. We also worked in the farms for them.

Commissioner Torto: Whom did you take the rice to?

Moiwo Moinina: We were ordered to take the rice to Maskita.

Commissioner Torto: Where?

Moiwo Moinina: In Kailahun or Boidu?

Commissioner Torto: Did you set eyes on Maskita?

Moiwo Moinina: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify him very well?

Moiwo Moinina: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: During the time of your captivity whom actually did the rebels say they were loyal to? Whose control were they under?

Moiwo Moinina: Foday Mansaray: Sankoh.

Commissioner Torto: Do you remember any body killed when you were captured?

Moiwo Moinina: Yes. Only my son, Sao Moinina.

Commissioner Torto: Were you living in the same town?

Moiwo Moinina: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were you captured before, or after the election?

Moiwo Moinina: Before the elections.

Leader of Evidence: A long time before the elections?

Moiwo Moinina: Not too long.

Commissioner Torto: Why was your son was killed?

Moiwo Moinina: I can't tell.

Torto: How many of you were captured?

Moiwo Moinina: We were 10 in number including my children.

Leader of Evidence: Did all of you return?

Moiwo Moinina: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to your daughter?

Moiwo Moinina: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: In your written statement, you said your daughter was beaten. Is that correct?

Moiwo Moinina: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any question for the Commission?

Commissioner Torto: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation?

Moiwo Moinina: I want the Government to help us with school and the road to our village is very bad so I want the Commission to help us with our road.

We were in Konia when we heard of an attack on Tongo. We fled to Segbwema. We ran out of food and my father told us to go in search of food at Konia. As we were going we heard gunshots from Yumbuma area; we hurried to the town and packed the rice we had in our house. When we saw our brother coming, we waited for him so that he too could collect his rice. We stood outside waiting when we heard a gunshot and my father were captured together with an old woman called Mammy Hawa. My father told them to take his palm oil for his release but they refused. Instead, they said they'd kill him. They ordered him to carry the palm oil for them Yumbuma. At Yumbuma, they stabbed and killed him. Mammy Hawa's ear was cut and she was sent to Segbwema to inform us of what happened. She met us on they way and explained everything to us. We went to Segbwema and after seven days, we went to Yumbuma and we buried him.

Marcus Jones: We have heard about a lot of atrocities committed against to the people of Konia. I would like to express my sympathy to you for the loss of your father. Why do you think they killed your father so brutally?

Lahai Amara Vandy: May be it was because he was the chief of the town.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was he a chief?

Lahai Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Now, the woman whose ear was cut off, was she iany relation to you or a member of your family?

Lahai Amara Vandy: She was the wife of my father's guest.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did they target Konia and why was it continuously attacked?

Lahai Amara Vandy: They were based in Peyima, which is a few miles to Konia.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What were they looking for in Konia?

Lahai Amara Vandy: They only went to destroy.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for your testimony, we have heard testimonies of people, who have claimed that some people in their villages or towns usually lead the rebels, pointing at people as targets. Do you know of such people in Konia?

Lahai Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Torto: Could you suspect anybody in particular who hailed from your place?

Lahai Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Torto: Who could you think carried out the killing of your father?

Lahai Amara Vandy: I don't know.

Leader of Evidence: Was your father the only member of you family killed?

Lahai Amara Vandy: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did anything happen to your sister?

Lahai Amara Vandy: No.

Leader of Evidence: Can you remember the year it took place?

Lahai Amara Vandy: In 1994

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We have asked you a lot of questions Lahai, have you any question to ask the Commission?

Lahai Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Any recommendation different from what we've already heard this afternoon?

Moiwo Moinina: I want the Government to help us with school and the road to our village is very bad so I want the Commission to help us with our road.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you all and the people of Konia.

DAY TWO

DATE: 27th MAY 2003.

WITNESS NAME: Mustapha Kpengba (Muslim)

WITNESS NO: 009

REFERENCE:

Presiding Commissioner: Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

Mustapha Kpenga: In 1993, when the rebels fled from Tongo, they burnt villages on the way to Diema. We then fled to the bush. Later, in 1994, on August 15th, the rebels attacked Diema. When the firing subsided, six of my children were killed; Ibrahim, Morie, Idrissa, Lahai, Aminata and Mustapha Kpenga. Over 70 people were killed and many drowned in the river as they tried to escape. I buried my children two to a grave. When the rebels attacked that morning, I lost Le3, 000,000, which was in my pocket, and all my properties were taken away. My father, whom I had earlier left behind, was carrying some money for me, which amounted to six million leones; the rebels took it away. He was also shot but he later died in hospital in Kenema. My house in Kenema, which was located at Memuna Street, was burnt when the soldiers and kamajors fought. The soldiers who were stationed at Diema demolished my other house in Diema. According to them, it posed a security risk as it was blocking their view, since my house was right in front of where they stayed. I am now in Diema.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you very much for this testimony and we sympathize with you for all you went through. You are courageous to come and share your experiences with us in spite of what happened. We are not subjecting you to too many questions at all. We just want to clarify some pertinent issues with you. Do you know who your attackers were?

Mustapha Kpenga Kpengba: They had guns and wore military uniforms.

Commissioner Torto: Did you know them facially?

Mustapha Kpenga Kpengba: Not at all.

Commissioner Torto: Which of the fighting group did they belong to?

Mustapha Kpenga Kpengba– It was the hay days of the RUF.

Commissioner Torto: In your written statement, you stated that on your return, you found your two sons in a pool of blood, were these in addition to the six you mentioned here this morning?

Mustapha Kpenga: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Can you name them?

Mustapha Kpenga: Yes, Abayomi Mustapha Kpenga, Ibrahim Morie, Lahai, Idrissa, and Aminata Mustapha Kpenga

Commissioner Torto: You said an unknown number of people drowned in a river, but you were unable to find their identity why?

Mustapha Kpenga: There are other people who I did not know, I cannot actually tell.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Mustapha thank you for coming I am really sorry that you lost so many children. We are sorry for such a disastrous loss. You told us that you built a three-room apartment that the soldiers destroyed?

Mustapha Kpenga: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Who were they?

Mustapha Kpenga: The NPRC was in power.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: What did they mean that the house was a threat to them?

Mustapha Kpenga: One of the soldiers was dwelling behind my house so he saw my house as a security threat.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the name of the captain who ordered the demolition of the house?

Mustapha Kpenga: I don't know; when the soldiers came, they asked that as an Imam, I should pray for them but I refused.

Leader of Evidence: You told us that your other son who was killed was 25 and you lost other children; I would like to know how old was the youngest child?

Mustapha Kpenga: About 4 years 3 months old, Aminata Mustapha Kpenga.

Leader of Evidence: You said about 17 people were killed in the village?

Mustapha Kpenga: Not 17 but 70 people were killed.

Leader of Evidence: Are they children or adults?

Mustapha Kpenga: There were mixed, children and adults, and even those who drowned in the rivers.

Leader of Evidence – Those who drowned, were they being chased, or they drowned because they could not swim?

Mustapha Kpenga: the stream locates our village, so when the rebels attacked us from the bush, the only escape route was the stream.

Leader of Evidence – Do you have any idea of the number of people drowned?

Mustapha Kpenga: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have any idea how deep the river was?

Mustapha Kpenga: No idea.

Leader of Evidence: After you lost so many children, did some of your children join the Kamajors?

Mustapha Kpenga: Two of them joined.

Leader of Evidence: How long were they part of the Kamajors?

Mustapha Kpenga: before the time of peace, others always threatened me, which was why my children opted to join, so that they would protect me.

Leader of Evidence – Were they based in the village?

Mustapha Kpenga: Yes. They were stationed in my village.

Leader of Evidence – Was there any fight at any time between them and the rebels in the village?

Mustapha Kpenga: Not at all.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. We have asked you so many questions and you have answered them all. Do you have any question for the Commission?

Mustapha Kpenga: We knew that we had different factions in our conflicts. All these people have been disarmed, trained and paid. Second rebels and then kamajors, we have been disarmed and they have being trained and paid. The victims, who have suffered a lot and lost properties, what can the government do to appease us? Even as I was giving my testimony, I was tormented.

Commissioner Torto: That's a very good question. We have been asked these questions very often. Somebody like you, who has lost about 31 people in the war, including a house and cash of Le3, 000,000.00. What do you think anybody can give you that will make you forget?

Mustapha Kpenga: There is nothing expensive to pay for those lives but I need something to help my children. You are telling me to forgive and forget but how can we when we have tears in our eyes?

Commissioner Torto: This is what the Commission is facing.

Mustapha Kpenga: You are still telling us that we should forgive and forget, how can we forgive when I still have tears running down my eyes?

Commissioner Torto: What we are doing, to actually encourage people to forgive and forget is to tell them to look up to God as He gives and takes and that is the only way we can have everlasting peace: so that what happened cannot repeat itself. I don't know of any instance in the world, wherein victims of war were compensated individually. The government does not have the resources to compensate all victims affected by the war. Countries that are richer than us were not able to do so. For example, in 1945 after the Second World War, the allied forces were not able to compensate every victim. What they did was actually initiate plans, the Marshall plan. Those plans were aimed at construction of certain communities and infrastructure. This is the process we are in. One of the ways we the TRC can encourage to the public is to listen to them and pass their recommendations Government for implementation.

That is why we have NaCSA, DDR and TRC, personally I don't know what to give you to forget. This is what we are on. Any other question?

Mustapha Kpenga: I have no more questions. I have a recommendation to make.

Where I am staying in Diema, the feeder road is cut off during the rains. To carry food is very difficult. I would like the government to help us rehabilitate the roads leading to Diema. I want the government to build a community centre for us, because we have over three thousand people in our village, we don't have a health centre, we want a mosque and a church to be constructed in our town. We need proper and hygienic water. I want government to assist with the education of the children. We would like our children to be like you in the future. We request that government looks into our case and see how best they can help us as religious leaders.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you for this community-based recommendation. It has been recorded and analysed and will be included in our report. It may not be immediately, but don't be surprised if you see a project like that in the future in your village. We thank you very much.

The Presiding Commissioner, Mr Sylvanus Torto, administered the oath on the Koran.

TESTIMONY

MAMIE KPAVAI:When the rebels attacked my village, Mendekelema, they captured us and took us to the junction. Before that, they had killed five people and one beat me seriously and hit my head with his gun. He was however restrained by a lady rebel. They set fire on a hut nearby where they seated us. After that, they took us to the town and locked us up in different houses. At night whilst they locked us up, we heard them discussing amongst themselves, that they would kill some of us and the rest would be abducted. I convinced an old woman with whom I was locked to escape. As we tried to open the door, she was shot. Seven bullets hit me on my left arm and I fell unconscious. (She shows the scar) when I regained consciousness the following morning, soldiers surrounded me and they took me to Jerihun for treatment. I stayed there for two months and my brother later took me to Tongo where I was eventually healed. I heard from people that the following day after the attack on Mendekelema,that twenty people were killed.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for sharing your experience with us. We want you to clarify some issues. Where did all this happen?

Mamie Kpavai:In our village, Mende Kelema.

Commissioner Torto: Which of the fighting forces attacked your village?

Mamie Kpavai: The RUF.

Commissioner Torto: Did you happen to know anyone amongst them?

Mamie Kpavai: They were so fearful; I have never seen them since that time

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Were there women amongst them?

Mamie Kpavai: There was only one lady amongst them.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: And she was the person that stopped the rebel who was hitting you?

Mamie Kpavai: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to the corpse of the old woman who was shot?

Mamie Kpavai: Her corpse was deposited in a latrine.

Commissioner Torto: Could you tell where the rebels came from?

Mamie Kpavai: I could not tell.

Leader of Evidence: Which year did this happen?

Mamie Kpavai: In 1991.

Leader of Evidence: Did they at any point, explain their objectives?

Mamie Kpavai: No, they did not explain anything to us.

Leader of Evidence: Which language did they speak?

Mamie Kpavai: I can't remember.

Leader of Evidence: Just before you were shot, you said the rebels threatened to kill all of you and abducted the others. What happened to the others whilst you were unconscious?

Mamie Kpavai: I don't know.

Leader of Evidence: Those people from your village, do you remember if they were killed later or not?

Mamie Kpavai: When I recovered from my shock, I saw most of them alive.

Leader of Evidence: Which soldier took you for treatment?

Mamie Kpavai: SLA.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know if the rebels who attacked your village the first time are the same that attacked the village the second time?

Mamie Kpavai: After the first attack they stayed in the village.

Leader of Evidence: So they were there since the first attack?

Mamie Kpavai: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How did the soldiers take you for treatment?

Mamie Kpavai: After I was shot, I never knew what happened; I found myself in the hospital.

Leader of Evidence: Was there a fight between the soldiers and the rebels?

Mamie Kpavai: No.

Commissioner Torto: We have asked you so many questions and you have answered. Do you have any questions for the Commission?

Mamie Kpavai: Yes, I have a very short question for you. You have invited me, I obtained permission from my husband, and he allowed me. I told you I sustained injuries and pain all over my body. I have been brought here and answered your question what will you do after this?

Commissioner Torto: Thank you. Irrespective of all the pains, you have answered us. By the end of this session our staff will talk to you about that. We have the Red Cross at hand. We also have a nurse attached here and if the matter is beyond them, we have doctors to assist. We wish we could do more than that, but the mandate that created the TRC does not have the power to do more. Any other question? Any recommendation you would like to make so that we can pass it on to the government.

Mamie Kpavai: There has been no development after the war in our village, no drinking water. The whole village was burnt down; the medical centre was also burnt down. There is no school building, no mosque, church.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much, we will note all these and it would be included in our report. But before our report is realized I will encourage you that there are NGOs who provide well systems. There are others: between now and then I will encourage your community to contact those NGOs that will provide those facilities for that community. Do you have other recommendation?

Mamie Kpavai: No.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for coming.

WITNESS NAME: TAMBA AMARA VANDY

WITNESS NO: 011

REFERENCE:

Tamba Amara Vandy took the oath on the Bible administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

TAMBA AMARA VANDY: Nothing pains me more than the condition I am in now. Without your hands and fingers you are nobody. All have been chopped off. When the rebels attacked my village, Bo Ngeleya, they surrounded the town and they fired everywhere. When they started burning houses those of us who stayed in the middle of the town were trapped. They told us that since they've not killed many people, they were going to amputate our limbs. They held one of my hands and chopped it off. I pleaded with them in God's name for them not to chop of the other. They said I've angered them by calling God's name. They said if I had mentioned Foday Sankoh's name, they would have spared me. I did not beg them but I told them that there is only one God. Then they chopped off the other. I told them to kill me instead but they said that they've given me an everlasting punishment. They also said, I had used my hands to vote for Tejan Kabbah; I will never vote again in my life. They went away and I was left alone. One of my brothers heard my cry and he assisted me to get up and we managed to walk to the highway. On our way, we met many amputees on the way, lying down in bushes. A vehicle from Segbwema met us on the highway but the driver refused to carry us because of my condition. Fortunately, they informed the Red Cross in Kenema who later came and took me to Segbwema, since there were many patients in Kenema. I was admitted at the hospital and I stayed there for five months. Later, I was transferred to Kenema and then to Freetown. My hands were operated on and I can now use my hands to eat.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming; it was a painful experience you went through. The Commission is appreciative of the fact that you can come forward to testify. In your written statement you said that four other people were amputated where are they and what are their names?

Tamaba: They are in Koi. I only know Mammy Yatta, a very old woman.

Commissioner Torto: In your written statement, you spoke of a dumb man that was shot. What is his name?

Tamba Amara Vandy: He was shot in the head, but the bullet did not go through; he was taken to the hospital in Segbwema and he died on the fourth day. I don't know his name.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know why he was shot?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Nobody knows.

Commissioner Torto: In addition, they also amputated your hand because you voted for Tejan Kabbah with it?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Who did that to you, is it Kamajors, RUF, or SLA?

Tamba Amara Vandy: They were SLA's.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify any of them by name or facially?

Tamba Amara Vandy: I know one who was based in Talia.

Commissioner Torto: Is there a garrison there now?

Tamba Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where he is now?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Though they were many I will never forget his name. He is called Mohamed Lansana.

Commissioner Torto: You said he was in Talia but you are not sure?

Tamba Amara Vandy: At first I met him in this town, but for now I don't know where he stays.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming to the TRC. We are sorry that the rebels had left you in this situation, but I am sure you are happy to be alive. What do you mean you can eat now? Do you mean you can use one of the hands?

Leader of Evidence: You said apart from other people that were amputated with you, other people were killed as well is that correct?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Three lost their lives.

Leader of Evidence: You said the same group amputated other people apart from four of you?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes they did that as well.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know if they survived or all of them died?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Most of them survived.

Leader of Evidence: How did you know that these people were SLA?

Tamba Amara Vandy: They were stationed at Talia, a mile from us.

Leader of Evidence: Did you identify them because you knew them or because they wore uniform?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Since they were in military fatigue, one who does evil to you, you will never forget, especially when you knew him before.

Leader of Evidence: Have you ever been in touch with any organization that can provide artificial limbs for you?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Some of the limbs cannot function well.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question to ask about the Commission?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes, my question is to help me as I have nowhere to sleep and I sleep in people's houses; they usually evict me if I don't pay. All the houses in my village were burnt down. I have no food and proper medical care.

Commissioner Torto: Is that all?

Tamba Amara Vandy: I have nothing; I have to beg for food.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you very much, Pa Tamba. When you were amputated you mentioned a daughter who helped you. Where is she now?

Tamba Amara Vandy: She is now in the village.

Commissioner Torto: What was the relationship between you and your daughter?

Tamba Amara Vandy: We were still there as a family.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have an Amputee Association in Kenema District?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes, we had one, but it's not functional.

Commissioner Torto: But there is one in Kenema, have you been able to contact them?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes, I have done that.

Commissioner Torto: What was their reaction?

Tamba Amara Vandy: They have never done anything for me.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where they are in this town?

Tamba Amara Vandy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Can you give the address to our staff after the session? Our staff will give you a letter to them. I ask this question, because the Norwegian Refugee Council has built houses in Freetown and also in Kabala for Amputees. I don't know why they have not done the same so here. We even visited one of the building sites in Koinadugu District. Any other question?

Tamba Amara Vandy: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation that we can pass on to government?

Tamba Amara Vandy: I have said it all.

DATE: 27th MAY 2003.

WITNESS NAME: BALIA MANSARAY

WITNESS NO: 012

REFERENCE:

Balia Mansaray took the oath on a Muslim. The oath administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

Testimony:

BALIA MANSARAY: What happened was that, after being in the bush for sometime, we came to inspect our houses. They captured and took us to one place and told us not to worry, as we are safe. They also captured my other brothers. They asked whether they were from the same village and they told them that they were from a nearby village. They committed a lot of atrocities in Sembehun Nagboma. They said they'd kill my two brothers because of interference in the war. They said that we should inform our people that they've killed their people because they interfered in a war they had no business with. They said we should advise our people to drop their shot guns and that said they'll take the war up to Freetown. As I was moving I was thinking of my brothers, so I fell in a mining pit and I injured my leg, which affects me.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. You said that they killed four people who had no business with the war, who were they?

Balia Mansaray: We met the four people already dead.

Commissioner Torto: You also said that your brother was killed. where?

Balia Mansaray: He was killed in Segbwema.

Commissioner Torto: Was he a hunter?

Balia Mansaray: He was a vigilante.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know who your attackers were?

Balia Mansaray: I do not know them. However, they said they were rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us the name of your brother?

Balia Mansaray: Moi Bakarr.

Leader of Evidence: Do you also know the name of the other person that was killed with your brother?

Balia Mansaray: His first name is Balla Sheku.

Leader of Evidence: Was he a vigilante?

Balia Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were they the only vigilantes in your village?

Balia Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So they were specifically targeted because they were vigilantes?

Balia Mansaray: They said they interfered with the war, because if you were captured no explanation was sought.

Leader of Evidence: Did they tell you which group they belonged to, RUF or SLA?

Balia Mansaray: They only said they were rebels?

Leader of Evidence: Did they tell you where they come from?

Balia Mansaray: They said they came from Kailahun.

Leader of Evidence: What language were they speaking?

Balia Mansaray: They spoke different languages.

Leader of Evidence: Was any other family member of yours injured?

Balia Mansaray: My brother was in captivity until Zogoda was captured. He died later due to the illness.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels abduct him?

Balia Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What was his name?

Balia Mansaray: Mansaray.

Leader of Evidence: How long was he with the rebels?

Balia Mansaray: A very long time.

Leader of Evidence: Eventually he died a natural death or was he killed?

Balia Mansaray: When he was freed from captivity he came back very sick and died later.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question for the Commission?

Balia Mansaray: I have no questions, as long as they have asked us to accept what has happened to us and reconcile, I'm okay with that.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any recommendation to pass on to the government?

Balia Mansaray: My mother is in pain, even when I was invited, she was in fear that I will not return to the village; her husband had been killed, I am the only one taking care of my old mother. I'm also sick, I need help and I'm asking that you assist me.

Commissioner Torto: After your return, have you sought any medical treatment?

Balia Mansaray: I have been drinking herbs and, I usually go for an injection whenever I have some money.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: BOCKARIE SWARRAY

WITNESS NO: 013

REFERENCE:

Bockarie Swarray took the oath on the Koran, administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

Bockarie Swarray: When the rebels attacked Panguma, a doctor was killed. After two days Tom Nyumah came to our place and some other places. My people told me that since I fought in the Second World War, I should help to mobilize the young men in the defence of the area. One day an unidentified soldier from Panguma dressed in civilian clothes, come to Gbado. I ordered him to be tied and I brought him, to Tom Nyumah in Kenema. Tom Nyumah said the man was his personal bodyguard who escaped and that he would be court martialed. As soon as we left, he released the man, who returned to Panguma. Sometime later, some men dressed in military uniform came to Gbado; they told us that they had come to protect us. Little did we know that they were there to help the rebels. However, the one who seemed to be their leader was not properly dressed. He had on amulets and this made him look frightening. He was drinking palm wine and as he drank, he was misbehaving, which made me conclude that he was not behaving like a military man. A while later, soldiers were scattered everywhere. People started fleeing from the town. Some of the people who came had masks on and some painted their faces. There were clapping and dancing. The Sergeant Clapped and gave a command. They started firing. A Limba man was killed and I fled with my children to the outskirts of the town. They burnt my house, that of my grandfather's and my timber stock. On that day, they killed one Jaward and I lost all my wives and children. This is my testimony.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you very much for this revealing testimony. If there were many people courageous like you the war would not have lasted longer. Some people don't want to say the truth. The moment you spoke the truth you become an antagonist of the people. I want to commend you; if you had not done that you might have been dead. I want to clarify some issues with you. What permit did they request from you?

Bockarie Swarray: I don't know. In a Military Force during the colonial period, if you were asked for a permit, you would have to go through the right channel and it is sort of pass for a day or night. This was called Military Tattoo. Your leader will have to count you all. If anyone is absent and had been given a pass, upon your return there is no query but if you did not have a pass you would be put in a guardroom.

Commissioner Torto: What is not clear to me is, why were you asked to produce a permit?

Bockarie Swarray: It was for a reason. We don't know what they were doing. The government was only wasting resources on them.

Commissioner Torto: Where is Sergeant Gbateh?

Bockarie Swarray: He hails from Jerihun.

Commissioner Torto: When you brought this captive whom Tom Nyumah said was his bodyguard, did you set eyes on him again know where he was and what he would have been doing.

Bockarie Swarray: Since then I don't know where he is.

Commissioner Torto: You saw a truck of soldiers who told you that you should not move. He sited you and he looked his time and said 'time', and there was firing, do you think it was an arrangement between the soldiers and the rebels?

Bockarie Swarray: As I perceived it there was indeed an arrangement between them because they were happy. That why he clapped, saying 'time' and ran towards the area the firing was coming from. If they had gone there to secure us, they would have secured us. A Limba man was shot dead. It was out of their happiness that they did so.

Commissioner Torto: During their attack apart from the Palm Wine Tapper were there other people killed?

Bockarie Swarray: Many people were killed but not on the same day.

Commissioner Torto: Can you tell their names?

Bockarie Swarray: One of my uncle Jaward, his children in another village, many people were killed in that village.

Commissioner Torto: Are these the only names you are able to recall?

Bockarie Swarray: There was another one named Sallu Kamara Vandy, whose grave is still in Gandon Buaya. A Town Chief was wounded and he died later by the riverside.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you for the detailed account of what happened in Gbado. We are sorry that you had so many problems that you lost property as well. But it is a good thing that you were able to tell the rebels the truth and tried to convince them to stop the destruction. What happened to your elderly wife who went into the bush?

Bockarie Swarray: She was in the bush without food. She later fell sick and died.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I am so sorry. You also lost a brother am I correct?

Bockarie Swarray: The Jaward that died was my uncle. He was my mother's brother, and was staying with me.

Commissioner Marcus: Jones: I am sorry for all the loss and bereavement you suffered. Thank you for telling us your testimony so clearly. Thank you.

Leader of Evidence: I just want to know, which year did this incident take place?

Bockarie Swarray: I am not an educated person; this is the sorrowful part of my story. It was before the election in 1996, when NPRC was in power.

Leader of Evidence: Was the first group SLA?

Bockarie Swarray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: And the second group that came to your village were they rebels?

Bockarie Swarray: All of them were SLA.

Leader of Evidence: So there was no RUF in your village?

Bockarie Swarray: They worked in collaboration.

Leader of Evidence: The second group were they RUF or SLA?

Bockarie Swarray: They were mixed, rebels and soldiers.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you, do you have questions for the Commission?

Bockarie Swarray: I don't have any question; I pray that God blesses all those who are loyal to Tejan Kabbah.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation to pass on to government?

Bockarie Swarray: I have two recommendations but not for me alone but for all the citizens in Sierra Leone with special reference to my chieftom. They created so many problems, no toilet facilities. I am an old man, with no strength to brush my farm. I would like the government to give us toilets and help us with our Agricultural work, but they should give the project to good patriotic citizens.

Commissioner Torto: The recommendations about agriculture and other infrastructure are noted, but let me make a brief statement about the sanitary situation. We do not need to wait for government for such. In every chieftom, there is a health overseer who should be instructed to plan a waste disposal programme. These are issues that will not wait for government assistance. It is not something that we can put in our report. All the other recommendations will be included in our report. I can only assure you that everything you have mentioned will be included in our report; it may not be specifically for Gbado town but all the other communities.

Commissioner Torto: Any other recommendations?

Bockarie Swarray: No more recommendations, I just want to thank you. I spoke about the toilet because I have it on my mind. So I have to say it out. I thank the government who is helping us, although the help doesn't reach us. May God bless us all.

DATE: 27th MAY 2003.

WITNESS NAME: MIATTA FODAY

WITNESS NO: 014

REFERENCE:

Miatta Foday: took the oath on the Koran administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

MIATTA FODAY : We were in my village Diema; I was there with my nieces and nephews, when our village was attacked early in the morning. We were in the big house and we all ran into the bush. Some of my children were with my mother in the other house. My mother and children were captured and one of my children was killed in front of my mother. They ordered them to carry loads, one of my child refused to carry the load, so one of the rebels threatened to kill him. My mother pleaded and they said they would take her along. They took her away with them. I hid the other children and came to the village to spy. On my return, I met my mother sitting by the dead child, weeping. The rebels were all gone. So I took the child with my mother into the bush. Whilst we were in Kenema, my husband heard about the incident, he eventually came to Kenema. He decided to go back in search of food and on his way he too was killed. I was confused and asked God why he had done this kind of thing to me. When we returned back to the village, my mother died and I was confused. The other children were with me; the rebels also captured my brother's child. He decided to go in search of his child and he too was killed. Up till now I haven't seen him. I continue to encourage myself to be strong so that I do not die and leave the other children behind. I rely on God for everything; I don't have a husband and in fact I do not need one. My concern is how to bring up my children. My brother was a farmer and a miner and he used to assist me, but he is no more. I brush the swamp myself and I have sent all my children to school. I engage in some gardening to maintain my children in order for them not to suffer. That is my story.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming to share your testimony with us. We know what it means to go through such pains. I must also congratulate you for the faith you have. We have a few questions for you. We just want to get the information straight. What was the name of your husband?

Miatta Foday: Bockarie Mansaray.

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Miatta Foday: I am engaged in backyard gardening, I want to do mining also but there is no support.

Commissioner Torto: You said in your written statement that your brother was killed; his throat was cut off while he was going to retrieve his brother why did that happen to him?

Miatta Foday: There were conflicting reports about my child some said he was in Freetown, whilst others said he was in Guinea and some in Pujehun.

Commissioner Torto: Was it your child or brother?

Miatta Foday: It was my child.

Commissioner Torto: The brother who was a kamajor was killed?

Miatta Foday: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Where did that happen?

Miatta Foday: I did not know.

Commissioner Torto: How did you know the story?

Miatta Foday: Somebody told it to me.

Commissioner Torto: What fighting group did that to you?

Miatta Foday: They were rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Miatta Foday: we thank you for coming. From your testimony you are a strong woman with faith in God. And we hope you stay that way to bring up your children. We sympathize with you for the loss of your husband and other members of your family. I have one or two questions. Do you know how many people were buried in the mass grave were your nephew was buried?

Miatta Foday: We were in the bush; I did not go there to see.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where were they buried? Was it in Diema Town?

Miatta Foday: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Since they were buried you never went to the spot to see?

Miatta Foday: I was so tormented I have never gone there to see.

Leader of Evidence: I am sorry for the loss of your family. Do you remember when this incident happened?

Miatta Foday:: August 15, I cannot remember the year.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us the name of your brother who was killed?

Miatta Foday: Moina Foday.

Leader of Evidence: And the name of your nephew?

Miatta Foday: Mohamed Moinina.

Leader of Evidence: Can you remember the name of the rebels?

Miatta Foday: I did not know them; it was very early in the morning.

Leader of Evidence: Who is Captain Manorwa?

Miatta Foday: While we were in the bush, we overheard them saying that Manorwa's group was coming.

Leader of Evidence: So they were called Manorwa?

Miatta Foday: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: So they said they were rebels?

Miatta Foday: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know whether they were RUF, AFRC, Kamajors, or CDF?

Miatta Foday: They were neither Kamajors nor soldiers, but RUF.

Leader of Evidence: You said that the rebels abducted your son and children of your brother?

Miatta Foday: Yes three of them.

Leader of Evidence: Did you ever hear anything about them?

Miatta Foday: Six months ago, I received a letter from them; they are in Guinea.

Leader of Evidence: All of them are alive?

Miatta Foday: Yes they are all alive.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Torto: We have asked you a lot of questions and you have bravely answered them all. Do you have any question for the Commission?

Miatta Foday: Yes, now you have called us to testify before this Commission, can government help us to bring back our children and find a means to help us with those we are staying with?

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where the children are?

Miatta Foday: I do not know the town, I remember they told me they are in Guinea.

Commissioner Torto: You received a letter from Guinea; does the letter have no address?

Miatta Foday: They sent a picture but not a letter.

Commissioner Torto: What refugee camp or town do they stay?

Miatta Foday: The person did not tell me, I would contact him.

Commissioner Torto: Is it a difficult thing.

Miatta Foday: To me it is not difficult I will contact the person and he will tell us where they are.

Commissioner Torto: Immediately after the session you will talk to our staff, which will contact the NGOs that are responsible for repatriating people. I was asking the question because I sensitised people in a number of camps in Guinea. The Sierra Leoneans were very excited about coming back. I want to encourage you not to lose hope you will see them one day, provided they want to come back.

Commissioner Torto: How old were they?

Miatta Foday: My daughter is thirteen years old.

Commissioner Torto: Are you sure they are alive, it is a big consolation to know that they are; you will be expecting them, apart the effort you are making, the High Commissioner for UNHCR is also on repatriation. Any other question?

Miatta Foday: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation to make to the Commission?

Miatta Foday: We do not have any health centre, or proper drinking water; I have no one to depend on, I did the swamp work all by myself.

Commissioner Torto: I thank you. Manual Agriculture is a very tedious one; I will encourage you to continue in farming. We wish the Commission had a program for personal assistance to victims, but we don't. I wish you success and I believe that you will see your children again.

DATE: 27th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: SAM MUSA

WITNESS NO: 015

REFERENCE:

My name is Sam Musa took the oath on a Bible administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

SAM MUSA:We were in our village, Waiama Tongbambu. My daughter died and as we returned from the burial, rebels attacked us. We fled into the bush and whilst there, we saw our town burning. As the whole town was burnt, we went back into a nearby town and as the fire died out we went back to our town. We met two corpses. One of them was Amara Bundu from Tongo. Our town was situated on top of a hill. As we were going up the hill, I met one of my uncles, Pa Musa, dead. It was not too long when we saw other rebels coming. They told us not to run and if we do, they would fire at us. They asked what was wrong with the people and we told them we didn't know. We went to Penyima. In the evening there was another attack and we fled. We fled to one of my brothers, an ex-soldier called Kekura. We had spent one month with him, when rebels also attacked us. The moment I saw them I fled. I met a pregnant woman who told me that when they killed her husband, they ordered her to laugh. When they finished, they stripped her naked; she had some money hidden in her private parts and it was taken from her. I went to Alhajie in Blama.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for sharing your experience with us. In your written statement you said a woman was raped several times and shot. Do you remember the name of that woman?

Sam Musa: Yes, she is Martha Ngombu.

Commissioner Torto: Do you remember their faces? The perpetrators?

Sam Musa: I was not there when she was raped, it took place in the bush;Kekura's wife told all these stories.

Commissioner Torto: What do you recall of the names of Martha John, John Bull and Ernest Buckna?

Sam Musa: Ernest Buckna is my brother and we went to stay in Peyima. Kekura had three wives one of his elderly wives was Mariama and the other, Sallay. Martha was a daughter.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where Captain Manorwa of RUF is now?

Sam Musa: I don't know.

Commissioner Torto: No. You stated that he is in Pujehun District.

Sam Musa: I have not heard that, and I've not gone there.

Commissioner Torto: Which group attacked your village?

Sam Musa: They were rebels headed by Manorwa.

Leader of Evidence: In what year did this happen?

Sam Musa: It was during phase II of the war.

Leader of Evidence: Did anything happen to your son?

Sam Musa: One of my sons Allieu Sam Musa was captured and he died later.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Torto: In your testimony you said that a woman saw four people killed, do you remember their names?

Sam Musa: Yes, Keikulrah Jombu, Keh Momoh, Mariama Bunyoh, Ernest Buckna, and Martha Jombu. Six of them were killed.

Commissioner Torto: Including Sallay?

Sam Musa: Sallay was a pregnant woman. She was not killed.

Commissioner Torto: Where is Sallay now?

Sam Musa: I don't know her whereabouts.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any question for the Commission?

Sam Musa: I don't have any question.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation that we can pass on to Government?

Sam Musa: Yes. I would like government to construct schools in our town; one root cause of the war was lack of education. If people were educated they would not think of such evil. There are lot of villages that are far away from schools. If there are no schools, then one will be forced to send his child to the bush. There are many children who are illiterate, they have nothing to do except go to the farm.

Commissioner Torto: We will include your recommendations in our report and pass it on accordingly; I have to congratulate you because you have been able to realize that illiteracy was the cause of the war. But there is free education for primary school children. Now that you really know what illiteracy can lead to you will not relent to send your children to school, even though the distance may be far away from home. Send your children to school. It was officially announced that there is free education for primary school children. Do you have any other recommendations?

Sam Musa: I have no recommendation.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming.

DATE: 27th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: SHEKU MATTIA

WITNESS NO: 016

REFERENCE:

My name is Sheku Mattia took the oath on a Koran administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Sylvanus Torto.

TESTIMONY

Sheku Mattia: On the 9th of March 1993, late in the morning, we heard the sound of a gunshot. It was an RPG and the fragments fell in the centre of the town. People were shouting; we overheard somebody shouting 'Manorwa, I have brought war and nobody will sleep, go to Kenema, where Tom Nyumah is'. We all fled, some of us did not go far away, and from where we stayed we could get a view of the town. The town was set on fire. There were up to 72 houses in Waima Togbambu; the whole village, except for four houses and the mosque, was burnt down. When the firing died down we returned to the town in the evening. We saw four corpses. Up to this time we have not seen the bodies of other people, we do not know what happened to them. Eventually, we decided to go to Kenema and I later went to Bo because conditions were so difficult and I was ashamed to beg. I grew up in Bo, I had a lot of friends, so there was not much of a problem. Whilst we were in Bo, the issue of Kamajors sprung up. Those of us who moved from small Bo formed a kamajor group. We had a lot of confidence in the movement and we became members. All of us who left small Bo went to Bo where we were initiated into the society and we returned to our village. We came prepared, and we repelled the rebels from our village; we liberated our chiefdom. The rebels in our area were divided into 18 camps. At first we had no guns, we had knives, which helped us to drive away the rebels from all camps. After this, we felt very confident so we went to Zogoda and we drove the rebels from there. That was what we did.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. I want us to go back to the factors that led you to join the Kamajors that was the mission of Manorwa; during that invasion of Waiima how many people were killed?

Sheku Mattia: Four people.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know their names?

Sheku Mattia: Musa Bundu, Akim Amara from Tisor, Mammy Matu, and Bendu.

Commissioner Torto: During your offences, did you encounter civilians?

Sheku Mattia: Yes, we used to call civilian areas target camps.

Commissioner Torto: When you met them what did you do?

Sheku Mattia: We searched and removed them from the bush, then brought them to the town.

Commissioner Torto: Did you witness violations by Kamajors or civilians?

Sheku Mattia: No, we did not harm them.

Commissioner Torto: During your offensive against the rebels, how many were killed?

Sheku Mattia: We did not kill them. They fled from us but we had knives. They'll fire and we'll advance and they'll flee.

Leader of Evidence: Can you give us the names of your dead brothers?

Sheku Mattia: I have mentioned them.

Leader of Evidence: Repeat them for me?

Sheku Mattia: Amara, Musa, Bundu and Matu.

Leader of Evidence: I am very sorry that you lost members of your family. You joined the Kamajor to protect your village?

Sheku Mattia: Sierra Leone as a whole.

Leader of Evidence: Was this immediately after the attack on your village?

Sheku Mattia: I joined the Kamajor in 1995.

Leader of Evidence: When were your brothers killed?

Sheku Mattia: In 1993.

Leader of Evidence: Between 1993 and 1995 were you in your village?

Sheku Mattia: I was driven from my village, so I went to Bo.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you joined the Kamajors?

Sheku Mattia: Two of us.

Leader of Evidence: How many Kamajors did you meet in Bo?

Sheku Mattia: About 250.

Leader of Evidence: Were you one of the elders?

Sheku Mattia: We were the chiefs. We organized them.

Leader of Evidence: What does it mean to be a chief in the Kamajor?

Sheku Mattia: I am the chief of my village not in the CDF. I was still a chief however.

Leader of Evidence: What did you actually do as a Kamajor?

Sheku Mattia:We used to organize and advise the fighting forces.

Leader of Evidence: How were they organized?

Sheku Mattia: If we decided to clear any village we joined them and we used to settle disputes.

Leader of Evidence: You said you were initiated when you joined the Kamajor?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us what this initiation was about?

Sheku Mattia: To bring peace in our village.

Leader of Evidence: You later became an initiator?

Sheku Mattia: No, I did not initiate anybody.

Leader of Evidence: On your assignment you decided on the village you wanted to attack and you also said the rebels fled from you because of the knives?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: You said that the rebels used to run away from you?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of weapons did the rebels use?

Sheku Mattia: They had all types of guns.

Leader of Evidence: Why did they run away from you?

Sheku Mattia: We had supernatural powers. When they shot at us nothing happened and we' kept on advancing.

Leader of Evidence: Were Kamajors killed during these attacks?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you were killed?

Sheku Mattia: Up to the time we went to Zogoda two were killed.

Leader of Evidence: How young was the youngest in the Kamajor?

Sheku Mattia: The other was the same age group as the interpreter; the other was about 30 yrs old.

Leader of Evidence: You said you were about 250 I want to know how old was the youngest Sheku Mattia: The youngest was 14 years old. At the battlefield they used to do some domestic work for us and not to fight.

Leader of Evidence: During the attacks of the rebels, only adults join in the offensives?

Sheku Mattia: We all went together, but we were very safe. We would all go to the farms.

Leader of Evidence: Did the 14-year-old boys go to the front?

Sheku Mattia: They carried loads and fetched water. Sometimes they ran errands for us.

Leader of Evidence: Did they join you to fight?

Sheku Mattia: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did any of you have guns.?

Sheku Mattia: Sometimes, we ran after the rebels and when they are tired, they'll drop their guns. We'll then pick them up and hand them over to the soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: Did you ever use these guns?

Sheku Mattia: We were using knives not guns.

Leader of Evidence: During these attacks did any of the rebels get killed?

Sheku Mattia: I did not see any dead rebel, if they confronted us they were wounded.

Leader of Evidence: Did you capture any one of them?

Sheku Mattia: Yes so many of them.

Leader of Evidence: How old were they? Small boys and girls.?

Sheku Mattia: We captured a lady who said she was a cook and not a combatant. We turned her over to the military.

Leader of Evidence: What happened to the others?

Sheku Mattia: We handed them over to the military.

Leader of Evidence: Did you ask them questions?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of questions?

Sheku Mattia: We used to ask them how they joined the movement; some will say they were captured. They never said they joined willingly.

Leader of Evidence: Did you punish them?

Sheku Mattia: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did the soldiers give you training?

Sheku Mattia: No, we were not friends.

Leader of Evidence: But they asked you to work hand in hand with them?

Sheku Mattia: At first they were willing, after a while we discovered that they wanted to betray us, so we stayed away from them.

Leader of Evidence: When you decided to keep a distance, did you hand over the rebels to them?

Sheku Mattia: Yes, we still handed them to the soldiers

Leader of Evidence: Did you know what happened to the captives when they were with the soldiers?

Sheku Mattia: No, they always drove us from their base.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see the captives after that?

Sheku Mattia: Yes, sometimes we saw them.

Leader of Evidence: Of the 250 Kamajors, only two were killed?

Sheku Mattia: I only knew about two.

Leader of Evidence: How long you were with the Kamajors?

Sheku Mattia: Three years.

Leader of Evidence: During those three years, how many confrontations or fights did you have with the rebels?

Sheku Mattia: So many. I was attacked in my village, at that time Johnny Paul was in power, my village was attacked three times, and we repelled them.

Leader of Evidence: When Johnny Paul was in power who were the rebels?

Sheku Mattia: When he was in power they came to town, and they stayed with us and called themselves People's Army.

Leader of Evidence: But you said when he was in power the rebels attacked your village three times who were the rebels by then?

Sheku Mattia: They were RUF/AFRC/SLA.

Sheku Mattia: So at that time you were not fighting with the government?

Sheku Mattia: We fought for the government to come in to power.

Leader of Evidence: Which government?

Sheku Mattia: The democratically elected government.

Leader of Evidence: During those two years, did you chase the rebels?

Sheku Mattia: They attacked and we repelled them.

Leader of Evidence: Any time you had a confrontation, they used to run away, how many years did that take?

Sheku Mattia: For three consecutive months they attacked our village.

Leader of Evidence: You said you spent three years in the movement, how come it took a long time before the rebels were chased out of the country?

Sheku Mattia: I continued to stay there because it was an initiation. I will continue to stay there and even now I am a Kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: Since you stayed three years and always the rebels ran away, how come it took several years to overthrow the rebels?

Sheku Mattia: I continued to stay because I was initiated and it was for life. If you go against the initiation, you will be killed.

Leader of Evidence: What did they do to go against these laws?

Sheku Mattia: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: After the rebels had killed those two people, they then realized that the Kamajors had fake powers?

Sheku Mattia: I don't think so.

Leader of Evidence: We have heard rebels who testified that they knew the Kamajors had supernatural power but they relied on their guns?

Sheku Mattia: That's was their belief but we have ours.

Leader of Evidence: It still hard to believe that the rebels could flee from you when they had guns. Are you saying the truth since you are under oath?

Sheku Mattia: We were chiefs we did not go to the front.

Leader of Evidence: During this fighting none of them got killed?

Sheku Mattia: We were chiefs, we encouraged them to go ahead, I saw the wounded but I did not see corpses.

Leader of Evidence: Since you were chief I suppose they will come and report to you event in the front, what did they report?

Sheku Mattia: We used to go together.

Leader of Evidence: To the war front?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did anyone report of any rebels killed?

Sheku Mattia: No report of deaths, only of the wounded.

Leader of Evidence: Civilians spoke of Kamajor atrocities, did you hear of any one of these?

Sheku Mattia: Our group did not do that.

Leader of Evidence: If any of your member was to break the rules imposed on them would they be punished?

Sheku Mattia: Every society has its laws and we had many.

Leader of Evidence: If a Kamajor committed any atrocity to the civilians, will he be punished?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were there any sanctions imposed on them?

Sheku Mattia: Yes, we used to punish them.

Leader of Evidence: What kind of punishment?

Sheku Mattia: We investigate the allegation after which punishment will be meted according to the kind of atrocity committed.

Leader of Evidence: Can you give us some examples?

Sheku Mattia: One Kamajor captured and beat a civilian and they brought him to us, because he ran away. The matter was brought to me I also inflicted punishment to the Kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: Did that happen frequently?

Sheku Mattia: I am explaining to you now that the Kamajors didn't go close to the civilians, because of the laws. We came to protect the civilians. We had a good relationship. We looked a bit fearsome that's why they kept away from us. We came to save them from the soldiers.

Leader of Evidence: I thought you were working with the soldiers?

Sheku Mattia: Yes, they were our bosses, whatever we did we reported to them. Before we went to the front we obtained permission from them.

Leader of Evidence: You were there to protect the civilians from the soldiers and you handed over civilians to the soldiers but they were not afraid of you?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Then you said you took a distance from the SLA, was there any point when the SLA and the Kamajors fought?

Sheku Mattia: The Small Bo group did not fight with the SLA.

Leader of Evidence: The questions are not meant to embarrass you, but we think we have to ask you these questions, on how the kamajors were organized and what was their action during these years. Also during these years, several people accused the kamajors of human rights violations, and this is your opportunity to explain what happened and we need to get the truth. Do you have anything to add, do you have any information to give?

Sheku Mattia: The confusion you have is when I said we collaborated with the soldiers. When we returned from Bo we reported to the soldiers, because they were the government fighters. We joined that force because we wanted to help them. When we came we met them and they accepted us. They tested us and approved. The problem was that there were eighteen rebel camps around small Bo and they did not engage the rebels because they did not understand the bush. When we came we attacked these bushes and destroyed them. When they saw this and the civilians praising us, they were annoyed. We told civilians not to go down to the soldiers and this did not go down well with them.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you for the explanation. It is necessary because there are so many allegations made against the Kamajors. We will continue to hear more testimonies throughout the hearings. I thank you for coming and hope that others will come out and do the same. I must congratulate you very much. I want you to pass on this information to the rank and file of the kamajors that it is to their advantage to appear before this Commission to testify. So the series of question were not meant to implicate or embarrass you, we are not in a court. I also wanted to add this peace of information that appearance in the TRC will not be referred to Special Court. We hope to see more of you ,since we are here up to Friday. One last thing, did you have women fighting with you?

Sheku Mattia: There were no women; some other groups had women like Kamo Lahai's group. They cooked for us at the front.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for this explanation, now that we have asked you a number of questions do you have any questions for the Commission?

Sheku Mattia: I don't have questions but to ask for help.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendations?

Sheku Mattia: I said in my statement that 72 houses were burnt down in my village except the mosque and four other houses. We cannot ask government to go and put up all those structures, the direst need is a water well.

Commissioner Torto: Where is that village?

Sheku Mattia: Seven miles from here.

Commissioner Torto: We cannot promise that those needs could be met immediately; our duty is to pass on our recommendations to government. Your recommendation will be taken in to good part along with the others for onward transmission to government.

Sheku Mattia: I will talk to my men.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much.

DAY THREE

DATE: 28th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: Iye Bockarie

WITNESS NO: New

REFERENCE:

Justice Laura Marcus-Jones, the presiding Commissioner, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Iye Bockarie: Whilst we were in our village, the rebels captured my mother and me in a farm hut and brought us to the village. As soon as we arrived in town the rebels were instructed to take me along with them, then decided to release my mother. They took me into the forest. I was with them for a very long period. There were three of us, myself, my elder and my younger brother. On our way, my elder brother escaped. As soon as they realized that my brother had escaped, they got angry with me. They were scared about my brother's escape and thought that I would escape too so they threatened to kill me. They later inscribed RUF on my back and because I was carrying the inscription on my back, I decided to join them. Being the youngest, I was handed over to the leader of the rebels' wife and I became her maid. I stayed with them for a very long time.

She took care of me until I was a bit older and she handed me over to a man to be married. We had two children. On several occasions, when he went on trek, different men raped me. Whilst we were in Makeni, we had no food, my bush husband sometimes maltreated me, and due to this maltreatment I decided to escape, especially when I became pregnant for the second time. I wrote a letter to my sister who sent some money to pay my way home. In her reply, she indicated that I had lost my mother and father. I received the money and the letter and decided to come home. I said goodbye to my bush husband and he bid me farewell with a promise to visit me. On my arrival, I found out that my sister had also lost her husband; I am now staying with my two children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for telling us your story. We are sorry that all these unpleasant things happened to you and that you also lost your parents. How old were you when this incident took place?

Iye Bockarie: I was about 10 years old when I was captured.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you going to school at the time?

Iye Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many children had your parents?

Iye Bockarie: Nine children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: At the time you were captured had you started your menstrual circle?

Iye Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You told us that your elder brother escaped, did you see him escape, and how did he manage to escape?

Iye Bockarie: I don't know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – From which village were you captured?

Iye – I was at Boajibu

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – Was that the place you were captured?

Iye Bockarie: No., that was not the place, I was captured at Moindu.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How far is Moindu to Makeni, how far was the distance from the bush?

Iye Bockarie: I don't know the mileage; it is a far distance.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many days did it take you to walk to the bush?

Iye Bockarie: It took us two days.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did your Commando's wife treat you well?

Iye Bockarie: Sometimes she maltreated me. She beat and punished me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What would she punish you for?

Iye Bockarie: If I did not obey her instructions she will me beat me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You were separated from your younger brother, have you seen him since?

Iye Bockarie: Yes, we met in Makeni recently.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long have you been separated?

Iye Bockarie: It took about ten years before we actually met.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you able to recognize each other?

Iye Bockarie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he share his experiences with you?

Iye Bockarie: – No, not yet.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You were given to a man when you were little older, how long was it from the time your were captured to the time you married?

Iye Bockarie: It took about two years before I got married to him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Had you started your menstrual circle when you got married?

Iye Bockarie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You said they threatened to kill you if you attempted to escape and they inscribed RUF on your back, have you still got the mark?

Iye Bockarie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you mind if we see the mark?

Iye Bockarie: I don't mind, (witness shows mark to Commissioner)

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did they inscribe marks? What did they use to inscribe this mark on your back?

Iye Bockarie: They used razor blade.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you have a sore on your back at that time?

Iye Bockarie: It did not take long to heal up.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What did they apply to heal the wound?

Iye Bockarie: – Nothing.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You said when your bush husband was away, other people used to rape you, did you complain to him on his return.

Iye –Yes, I complained to him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he do anything about it?

Iye Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So he did not mind?

Iye Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You are not even sure who the father of your children is?

Iye Bockarie: I know him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who is he?

Iye Bockarie: Morie.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is he the bush husband?

Iye Bockarie: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I want you tell me what your life in the bush was like, you were able to write letter to your sister, and your sister was also able to reply, your husband bid you farewell and allowed you to go. It all sounds so easy to me. Can you say something about that?

Iye Bockarie: He agreed for me to leave. I told him about the letter, In fact at a point in time he even told me that if I had my fare I was free to go to my parents.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In what year were you captured and in what year did you leave the camp? How long did you stay in the bush?

Iye Bockarie: I was captured in 1992; I took ten years in captivity.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you left the bush in 2002?

Iye – Yes, we left the bush in 2002 and went to my sister in Makeni.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long were you with your bush husband?

Iye Bockarie: I spent nine years with him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: He was not interested in seeing your parents to marry you properly?

Iye Bockarie: No, he left us to come by ourselves.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Since then has he come to see his children?

Iye Bockarie: – No.

Leader of Evidence –Thank you very much for coming, I would like to ask you few questions. Did your bush husband have any other wife when you were in the bush?

Iye Bockarie: I was the only wife when we were in the bush. But when we got to Makeni, he married two other women.

Leader of Evidence – Did you think he let you go because he had other wives, or was the general disarmament; the reason why he decided to let you go?

Iye Bockarie: Maybe it was because of his other women.

Leader of Evidence: What was his rank in the movement, Colonel, Captain?

Iye Bockarie: He was a Sergeant.

Leader of Evidence: Who was the highest in command in the group and what was his name?

Iye Bockarie: – Mohamed.

Leader of Evidence – Did he have any other name apart from Mohamed?

Iye Bockarie: That is the name I know.

Leader of Evidence: What part of the country did the group come from?

Iye Bockarie: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: What language did they speak?

Iye Bockarie: It was a mixture of Mende and Kono.

Leader of Evidence – Were there other abducted girls with you?

Iye Bockarie: Yes, many young girls.

Leader of Evidence – Were they given as bush wives to the rebels?

Iye Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence – Were there young abducted boys?

Iye Bockarie: – Yes.

Leader of Evidence – What happened to them?

Iye Bockarie: – I cannot tell because we were not staying together.

Leader of Evidence – Were other children involved in military training?

Iye Bockarie: No.

Leader of Evidence – Did you witness the rebels attack villages, amputate or kill civilians during your stay?

Iye Bockarie: I cannot tell. I always stayed in the forest, I never left.

Leader of Evidence – After your release, did you find your elder brother who escaped?

Iye – Yes, he is at Bandu.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell how your parents and Sister's husband were killed?

Iye Bockarie: They all died by a natural cause.

Leader of Evidence: I am really sorry for you mishaps, how are your children doing?

Iye Bockarie: They are not keeping too well, the young child is sick, and I don't know the cause.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: I am really sorry for what you went through. Is the other child a boy?

Iye Bockarie: Yes, he is a boy.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: You seem to me to be angry about something or about the whole thing, which one are you particularly angry about?

Iye Bockarie: The thing that troubles me most is that they captured me and took me away from my parents; I have lost both my parents. On my arrival I found out that my eldest sister is dead and my stepsister's husband is also dead. The two children I had from the bush are suffering; there is no body to take care of them. What do I do now?

Commissioner Marcus–Jones: It is sad and unfortunate that all these things happened and there is nothing you can do to change them. Now that you have come to us and expressed yourself we do hope that you will be able to get some relief in your mind and you need to have courage and to find comfort in your children. When you are finished with us here you may talk with our briefer and she will be able to refer your child who is sick for treatment. How old are the two children?

Iye Bockarie: The older one is five and the younger one is two years old.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: Is the older one going to school now?

Iye Bockarie: I registered him on our arrival but he hasn't started going to school because I cannot afford to pay his school fees and buy his uniform.

Commissioner Marcus–Jones: Primary education is supposed to be free.

Iye Bockarie: I was asked to buy uniform, they cannot allow him without uniform.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: Again talk to our briefers to see if there is any way they can help you out.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: Thank you very much Iye. We've being asking you questions; have you any question to ask the Commission?

Iye Bockarie: When I was in Makeni I was trained in hairdressing. I want to know if this Commission would assist me to undertake my career.

Commissioner Marcus –Jones: The Commission has not got money to give to people, but at the same time we would be able to recommend NGOs who would assist you set up something. We will also put in our report to the government that people like you in this position need assistance, now you've seen the worst side of life, and mercifully you've come back with your life. Do you have any recommendation to make so life may be smooth for you and your children in the future and that there will not be a recurrence of such again?

Iye Bockarie: I am on my own, my sister is helpless, and I want support for the education of my children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We would include this in our report. Your children are very young. They are now at the age when they can get free education. By the time they are ready for secondary education, government would have made provision for all Communities ravaged by war. Thank you very much for coming. I would say to you, try and be courageous and smile because of your children so that your they will be happy; if you continue to be sad your children would be worried about it, try to be happy. Thank you for coming.

WITNESS NAME: Baindu K.Amara

WITNESS NO: 08/27/0503

REFERENCE:

Baindu K.Amara took the oath on the Bible, administered by the Presiding Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

Baindu K. Amara: The rebels killed my parents and I was captured and taken into the bush. I suffered a lot. Ten of them raped me violently. I was their maid in the bush; I used to do their domestic work. They maltreated, beat and insulted me. After the raping spree, I escaped and went to the camp in Segbwema and from there I came to Kenema. In Kenema, we were registered last year with an NGO. I was then assigned to a foster parent to take care of me. Whenever there is aid from the government, they contact us. We have come so that the Commission would assist us.

I want somebody to help me, I felt bad on sometimes. I was very worried and lonely; roaming the streets of Segbwema hoping for somebody to pick me up. Fortunately for me a lady who brought me to Kenema rescued me.

Commissioner Marcus -Jones: Thank you, we are sorry that you lost your parents; can you tell us the year your parents were killed?

Baindu K. Amara: I can't tell.

Commissioner Marcus -Jones: Were they killed in your presence?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you told how they were killed?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who told you?

Baindu K. Amara: My late aunt told me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you see the Corpses?

Baindu – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did your aunt tell you the people who killed them, were they RUF, AFRC?

Baindu – Yes, they were rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How soon, was it after you were abducted?

Baindu K. Amara: After the death of my parents.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you able to give them a fitting funeral?

Baindu K. Amara – No, their corpses were abandoned.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: where were you abducted?

Baindu K. Amara – In Segbwema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you living in Segbwema at the time?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes, I was born in Segbwema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – So your parents were killed in Segbwema?

Baindu – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You said they took you to the bush. What did they do to you?

Baindu K. Amara: I was raped and maltreated.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you handed over to a woman?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were there women in the bush?

Baindu K. Amara – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who was responsible for you?

Baindu K. Amara: A man called Amara.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were you when you were captured?

Baindu K. Amara: I was a little over ten years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you started your menstrual cycle by then?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you went to the bush, were you taken by one of the rebels as a bush wife?

Baindu K. Amara – No, all of them.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: What was your daily life like in the bush?

Baindu K. Amara: I did the laundry and prepared their food. In the morning when they went out on missions, I was left to do their domestic work.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they feed you well?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you have any friend amongst the people in the bush?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who were they?

Baindu K. Amara: Aminata and Amie.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were they also captured?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes, the rebels captured us.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: At the same time?

Baindu K. Amara: – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did they beat you?

Baindu K. Amara: Because I refused to have sex with them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they give you drugs like Marijuana and Cocaine?

Baindu – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How was it administered?

Baindu K. Amara: They used to mix it with coke or water and force it into our mouths.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How often?

Baindu K. Amara: – Several times.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: After you came back from the bush, have you been taking the drugs?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The camp you escaped to what kind of camp was it, refugee or displaced?

Baindu K. Amara: I was in a refugee camp.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you escape?

Baindu K. Amara: I was sent to fetch water, and I took the opportunity to escape.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did you stay in the bush?

Baindu K. Amara: I spent one year with them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you ran away had peace come?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us the name of the NGO you registered with?

Baindu K. Amara: No, I can't tell.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you describe where they are situated, are they in Kenema?

Baindu K. Amara: They are in Bo.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you left Bo and came to Kenema?

Baindu K. Amara: I came with a friend.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you inform the NGO before coming?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What of your foster parent, where is she?

Baindu K. Amara: She is at No. 6 Nadeyama Site.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – Are you still with her?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How does she treat you?

Baindu K. Amara: She doesn't feed me well, she sometimes tells me that I am an orphan.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What does this woman do for a living?

Baindu K. Amara: She is a petty trader.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You said you feel bad sometimes, when does that normally happen?

Baindu K. Amara: When I am teased that I am an orphan.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any physical problems?

Baindu K. Amara: I normally experience a headache and pains all over my body.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you had a child before?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the group of rebels that attacked you?

Baindu K. Amara: They were RUF fighters.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see Foday Mansaray: Sankoh when you were in the bush?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Leader of Evidence: But the rebels told you that they belonged to Foday Mansaray: Sankoh's group?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the name of the Commander in Charge?

Baindu K. Amara: Musa.

Leader of Evidence: What was his rank?

Baindu K. Amara: They usually address him as Colonel Musa.

Leader of Evidence: Do you remember if he had other names?

Baindu K. Amara: Mustapha Kpenga.

Leader of Evidence: Were the rebels all men or there were women?

Baindu K. Amara: There was one woman, the majority were men.

Leader of Evidence: What was the name of the woman?

Baindu K. Amara: She was called Musu.

Leader of Evidence: Were there others girls your age?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were they also sexually abused?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: How many of them were your age?

Baindu K. Amara: Three of us were the same age.

Leader of Evidence: Do you remember their names?

Baindu K. Amara: Baindu and Aminata.

Leader of Evidence: Were they able to escape?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes, but I don't know their whereabouts.

Leader of Evidence: Since your escape, have you seen any of the rebels?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where the rebels came from?

Baindu K. Amara: They said they came from Camp Zogoda.

Leader of Evidence: Did the abducted children receive military training from the rebels?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you ever get pregnant during your stay with the rebels?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you receive medical attention when you came back?

Baindu K. Amara: No, my foster parent has no money.

Leader of Evidence: On your return, have you been involved in skill training?

Baindu K. Amara: My foster parent said she has no money, but her children do go to school.

Leader of Evidence: Were you going to school before you were abducted?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We have been asking you many questions. Have you any questions to ask the Commission?

Baindu K. Amara: – After inviting me what do you want me to do?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Well you've come from your foster parent, after this session, our briefer will explore the possibility of your going to an NGO that will be able to assist you. If they are in a position to they would make another arrangement for you. Any other questions?

Baindu K. Amara: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Any recommendation?

Baindu K. Amara: Yes, I would like to continue my education; I would like financial support for my foster parent so that she can continue her business.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much Baindu. The briefer will talk you later on.

DATE: 28th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: Saidu Fofana

WITNESS NO: 11/27/4503

REFERENCE:

Saidu Fofana took the oath on the Koran, administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

Saidu Fofana: I was in my village with my father; he usually went to work on the farm and during his absence that the rebels attacked the village. On his way from the farm the rebels killed him. When the firing died down we decided to go back to the village. Four years later, there was another attack on the village and my mother was killed. I ran to the bush, but I was captured by the rebels and taken to their base. I did domestic work for their wives. After cooking, my food was left in the pot from which I ate. I later escaped and came to my aunt. My elder brother and sister were staying with her. The rebels attacked Kenema again and my brother and sister were killed. I am staying with my aunt here in Kenema. I registered with an NGO called KEDAR last year. They promised to contact us whenever they are ready. I was there when I was called to come to this Commission.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much Saidu, you have given us the fullest account of what you went through. How old were you when you were captured?

Saidu Fofana: I was four years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were you when your mother was killed?

Saidu Fofana: I was eight years old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When your mother was killed, was it the time you were attacked the second time?

Saidu Fofana: I was captured when I was four years old and later recaptured when I was eight.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So your mother was killed after the second attack?

Saidu Fofana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – How long were you with the rebels?

Saidu Fofana: I spent two years with them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who were the rebels?

Saidu Fofana: I don't know them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you hear them call their names?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were there women in the bush?

Saidu Fofana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who were they?

Saidu Fofana: They were wives of the rebels

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You were not given enough food except what was left in the pot, is that so?

Saidu Fofana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you receive military training?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they give you drugs?

Saidu Fofana: They did but I refused.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they beat you?

Saidu Fofana: Yes, if I refused to take the drugs, they beat me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you escape?

Saidu Fofana: One day, they went on an attack, I was left with their wives and I escaped.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where was this bush?

Saidu Fofana: In Lunsar.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you escaped from the Lunsar, where did you go?

Saidu Fofana: I came to Kenema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did you get to Kenema?

Saidu Fofana: I traveled through the bush on to Kenema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you travel alone?

Saidu Fofana: No, I traveled with some of my friends.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did all of you escape at the same time?

Saidu Fofana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were you by then?

Saidu Fofana: One was eleven and the other ten.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did it take you to get to Kenema?

Saidu Fofana: Ten days.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: What were you feeding on?

Saidu Fofana: We used to get food from the bush.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What kind of food?

Saidu Fofana: Fruits like Malombo...

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How did your brother and sister who were with your aunt get killed?

Saidu Fofana: They were in Kenema attending School. On their way home from School, the town was attacked and they were killed.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you able to give them a proper funeral?

Saidu Fofana: After the fighting subsided, we came and buried them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: This KEDAR organization where did they operate in Kenema?

Saidu Fofana: In Maxwell Khobe Street.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What is life like with KEDAR?

Saidu Fofana: They only registered us for the attention of government, in case of availability of aid, but I am staying with my aunt.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did they make arrangements for your schooling, or were you offered food and clothing?

Saidu Fofana: They never supplied us with clothes, but we got food from them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What type of food?

Saidu Fofana: They supplied us bulgur, beans and oil.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you give those foods to your aunt?

Saidu Fofana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is your aunt an old or young person?

Saidu Fofana: She is a middle-aged woman.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How does she treat you?

Saidu Fofana: She takes care of me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did she not send you to school?

Saidu Fofana: She has no money; I used to go to the forest, fetch wood and use the money for food.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell what group the rebels belonged to?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Leader of Evidence – Did they tell you who they were?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did they ever explain why they were fighting?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Leader of Evidence: Were there schools in the camp?

Saidu Fofana: There was no school.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Saidu Fofana you seem to be a bright boy; we've been asking you questions, do you have questions to ask the Commission?

Saidu Fofana: Can the Commission help us go to School?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you ever posed that question to Kedar, if they are an organization they could help with clothing, because we don't pay school fees for primary level?

Saidu Fofana: I did not ask them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What about the other children registered with KEDAR, are they not going to school?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission has no money to give but our briefer will refer you to an NGO, which might be able to help you with clothing, so that you will be able to go to school. If you are at school would you be able to help with the wood after school?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are there no other children who could help?

Saidu Fofana: Except children in the neighbourhood.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any other question?

Saidu Fofana: If I am in school, how can you take care of me?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission cannot take care of you as such, but we can refer you to some NGO who I think will give assistance. Any other question?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – You seem to be a bright boy, do you have any recommendations to government so that this country will be a bright place in the future?

Saidu Fofana: The government should allow peace to prevail. If there is peace one could move around to get food to eat.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: That is why we are asking you all these questions; so that you would be able to go to school your aunt will be able to make a living. Any other recommendation?

Saidu Fofana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much Saidu

DATE: 28th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: Foday Mansaray

WITNESS NO: 09/27/0503

REFERENCE:

Foday Mansaray: Mansaray took an oath on the Koran administered by the Presiding Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

My father was a Farmer; we usually went to the farm and returned home in the evening. Whilst we were in bed one night, our village was attacked; we fled for our lives but my father was captured, shot and killed. I then fled with my mother to the bush, and slept there. The next day we came out in search of food. The rebels were under a tree sleeping. I was left in the hiding place by the banana tree whilst my mother entered the house. She was captured and killed. When I saw the incident I ran and started weeping. Whilst I was running, I met a man who took me to KEDAR and my name was registered. It has been a very long time; they promised to help those of us who were orphaned. That is my story.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Foday Mansaray, you said you had been registered at KEDAR for a long time. How long was that?

Foday Mansaray: It was a year ago.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: With whom are you staying?

Foday Mansaray: The man who rescued and brought me to Kenema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you are still with the man who brought you to Kenema?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What does he do for a living?

Foday Mansaray: Nothing, I had to work for people before we get our food.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What type of work do you do for people?

Foday Mansaray: I usually fetch water and pound pepper.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Before you met him what was he doing?

Foday Mansaray: He was a trader.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why is he not doing the business anymore?

Foday Mansaray: The rebels had destroyed his business place.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is he an old man?

Foday Mansaray: – No, he is not that old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did you stay in the bush?

Foday Mansaray: Four days.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So, it took you four days to get to Kenema?

Foday Mansaray: No, about 7 days.

Leader of Evidence: – Can you tell who killed your mother and father?

Foday Mansaray: The rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us which group they belonged to? RUF, AFRC.

Foday Mansaray: They were rebels in the bush.

Leader of Evidence: How old were you when your parents were killed?

Foday Mansaray: I cannot tell.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have brothers and sisters?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Where are they now?

Foday Mansaray: Some were killed, but I cannot tell where the others are.

Leader of Evidence: – Do you know of any who is alive?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Is he a brother or sister?

Foday Mansaray: My brother.

Leader of Evidence: Is he older than you?

Foday Mansaray: Yes, he is my senior brother.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where he is?

Foday Mansaray: They told me he is in our hometown.

Leader of Evidence: Have you made effort to contact him?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did anybody ask him whether he would be able to take care of you?

Foday Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Foday Mansaray, Thank you for coming, I wonder whether you have any question for us?

Foday Mansaray:No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – Do you have any recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to government?

Foday Mansaray: I would like the government to assist me continue my education.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Any other recommendation?

Foday Mansaray: I would also like the government to assist my foster parents to take care of me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We would find some NGO's who would assist in those areas. I want to assure you that your recommendations will be included in our report. For now you are collecting food from KEDAR, Isn't that so?

Foday Mansaray: – Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for coming.

DATE: 28th May 2003.

WITNESS NAME: Alieu Bockarie

WITNESS NO: New

REFERENCE:

Alieu Bockarie, he took an oath on the Bible, administered by the Presiding Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

Alieu Bockarie:I was staying with my uncle and attending school. The rebels attacked Serabu and we fled into the bush. Since then I stopped going to school. In the morning, we used to go in and search for food, and the rebels again attacked us in the bush. I ran away with my brother and sister. Unfortunately, for us, we were captured and taken to the town. As soon as we were taken to the town, we were interrogated. We replied that we abandoned the town because rebels chased us out. While in captivity, we were separated from each other; we were taken to different locations. The following morning, one of the rebels came in to search for us but he did not see my brother and sister. They threatened to kill me because they thought I had incited them to escape. I understood later that my brother escaped. I was in the company of other boys and we were later taken to their base. I was singled out and asked to lie down under the sun. A lady came and pleaded on my behalf and I was released. After that, I was asked to join the others, after a while they asked us to go outside. Whilst standing outside, I was shot on my left foot; I sat down on the ground and was later taken to the hospital. After that incident I decided to stay with them. The woman who rescued me asked me to stay with her husband and I did. I was with them but there was no proper medication and food.

They took us to a nearby bush in Kono. I was in the bush and undergoing treatment until I was cured. At the end of the war we were told to come out and disarm. I had a wife whilst I was in the bush and he had a baby girl for me, after the disarmament, we had some confusion and she left, but the child was staying with me. After the disarmament we were engaged in some technical skills, I was trained in carpentry and we were given a start off kit.

At the time we were captured, I did not know the whereabouts of my sister; it was until after the disarmament that I met her in Makeni. We rejoiced and explained our ordeal. I advised her that we should locate our parents and she accepted my idea. We later went to her husband telling him that we heard that our parents and relatives were dead. The husband refused but I pleaded with him after convincing he accepted. We agreed on a date, but I suggested to him to allow me go and check because we have heard that our village was burnt down. Upon my arrival in the village I discovered that my mother and few of my relatives were dead, I went back and came with my sister and we returned to our home. I have been trained as a carpenter with my kits, but I am having problems with my feet. Since we came, our eldest sister's husband died. We had to struggle for our food. We are happy that we have come to testify. It is not our wish to join the movement. It was the will of God.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Alieu, thank you for your testimony. We've heard part of it before. How long did you spend with the rebels in the bush?

Alieu Bockarie: I spent ten years with them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Which of the fighting group were you staying with? RUF, AFRC.

Alieu Bockarie: It was the RUF.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Were you given military training?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Throughout the period you were with them, you were not involved in any fight?

Alieu Bockarie: Because of the injury I sustained by the gunshot, I used to stay with my commando's wife.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you want to show us the foot?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes, (Shows foot to Commissioner)

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you still undergoing medical treatment?

Alieu Bockarie :No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why haven't you gone to the hospital?

Alieu Bockarie: There are no proper medical facilities in the hospital.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In what area is the hospital located?

Alieu Bockarie: In Boajibu.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you are no longer staying in Moindu?

Alieu Bockarie: I was staying in Boajibu.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What are you doing to earn your living?

Alieu Bockarie : My foot prevents me from doing any hard work.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can't you even sit down and make small furniture so that you can sell?

Alieu Bockarie – I can't.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – How far is Boajibu from Kenema?

Alieu Bockarie: About 24 miles.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You should be coming for treatment in Kenema.

Alieu Bockarie: I have nobody to stay with to take care of my treatment, if there is such an arrangement I will be happy.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – After this session our briefer will assist in that issue.

Alieu Bockarie – Yes Ma.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you were not actually involved in any fight?

Alieu Bockarie : No. I was always staying at home with my commando's wife.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What happened to the woman and her husband?

Alieu Bockarie: Nothing.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where are they now?

Alieu Bockarie: Since we separated, I have never set eyes on them.

Leader of Evidence: Do you the names of the people you were staying with in the bush?

Alieu Bockarie: I don't know their real names, the man was called 'Commando' the woman "Scare the Baby".

Leader of Evidence: How did the man call his wife?

Alieu Bockarie:"Scare the Baby".

Leader of Evidence: All the years you were in captivity, were you staying in the bush or town?

Alieu Bockarie: In the bush.

Leader of Evidence: Were you staying in the open?

Alieu Bockarie: There were huts.

Leader of Evidence: Were you stable?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What was your duty when you were with them?

Alieu Bockarie: I was in charge of cleaning my commando's room and also did domestic work.

Leader of Evidence: Were there small boys of your age in captivity?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What were they doing?

Alieu Bockarie: They did similar housework.

Leader of Evidence: What did the others do?

Alieu Bockarie – They moved about with their bosses.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know if any of those children received military training?

Alieu Bockarie: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know whether these abducted children were involved in attacks with their commanders?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did they explain how they went about it?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you have friends?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see them come back with looted items?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see them come back with newly abducted children?

Alieu Bockarie: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did you see children or the rebels come back with wounds after the attacks?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did you hear or witness abducted children killed.

Alieu Bockarie: I don't know and I have never heard about that.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels use drugs?

Alieu Bockarie: I did not see them, I was worried about my life and the pain I was going through.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Even though you stayed home, didn't the RUF initiate you as member?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: So you did not go through any ceremony with them?

Allieu – No.

Leader of Evidence: You said you had a baby with a lady in the bush, how did you come to know each other?

Alieu Bockarie: It was an arrangement with her mother and me, she went to Kono, where we met and I moved with her to Makeni.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels abduct her as well?

Alieu Bockarie: No.

Leader of Evidence: How did she get to Kono?

Alieu Bockarie: That was towards the end of the war, when civilians were moving in and out of Kono.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old is the child?

Alieu Bockarie: One year old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We've been asking you questions; have you any question for the Commission?

Alieu Bockarie: We have been brought here, what income have you for us.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission does not give money to people. All we have to do is to recommend to the government and in some cases if there is need for you to seek medical attention we arrange for such facilities if you so desire. Any other questions?

Alieu Bockarie : No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to the government?

Aliou Bockarie: I am recommending to the government to help our community; we have lost our parents, and we are appealing to government to rehabilitate our community. We are also appealing for food and medical assistance and zinc for houses.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you. Your recommendation will be included in our report. The government has helped you to go through some skills training and you have your starting tools with you to help in your community. Thank you for coming to help us. Even with your disability, try to do something out of your knowledge to sustain you.

Abu Mansaray, took an oath on the Bible, administered by the Presiding Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

Abu Mansaray: I lost my mother before the war started in Kenema. I was staying with my father when the rebels attacked Kenema Town. The rebels knocked on our door and demanded for money from my father. At that time, he had no money; he was beaten and laid on the floor. They still insisted that he give them money; he was shot on his stomach. I ran with my grandmother to a nearby village. After a week my grandmother sent me to check for my father, I met him in severe pains; after two days he died. I went back to the village to inform my grandmother about his death. My grandmother then advised that I should report the matter to the Chief. I did that and I was given five strong men to help with the burial of my father. We came to the house and opened the door, there was no time to wash his corpse, no money to buy some cloth, and we then used a blanket and a country cloth to wrap him. We observed the funeral rite for only a day.

After the death of my father, I came to collect our property; unfortunately for me there was a fight between the Soldiers and Kamajors. The Kamajors alleging that I was a Soldier captured me. I pleaded with them that I was a Schoolboy and I took out my identity card. They tore it and threw it away. They insisted and tied me with a rope and beat me and they threatened to put a tyre around my body and set me ablaze. I thank God for the timely intervention of the ECOMOG. I then went to their camp and they took care of me until I recovered. Since my father died in the year 2000 I have not been able to go to school. After I left the ECOMOG base, I put up with some of my friends. My grandmother was a very old woman, since then I have not seen her. The friends I am staying with are all going to school. Their father only cares for my feeding. I was in Form 2 when the rebels struck. Now I am at home doing nothing.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you for coming and sharing your experiences with us. We are going to ask you few questions based on your verbal statement, just for some clarification.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for coming. I just want you to clarify some issues; the people who attacked your father what fighting group did they belong to?

Abu Mansaray: – They were RUF fighters.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify the people who shot your father?

Abu Mansaray: I can still remember their faces.

Commissioner Torto: The kamajors who had wanted to kill you, can you identify them?

Abu Mansaray: Yes, if I see them I can identify them.

Commissioner Torto: Are they in town?

Abu Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Torto: You said your father was asked for money, how did they know that your father had money?

Abu Mansaray: My father was a popular tailor.

Commissioner Torto: Was he a member of any of the fighting force?

Abu Mansaray – No.

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Abu Mansaray: I am not doing anything.

Commissioner Torto: What do you intend to do now?

Abu Mansaray: I want to continue my education.

Leader of Evidence: You said that there was a fight between the soldiers and kamajors, is that so?

Abu Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What soldiers were they? SLA

Abu Mansaray: Soldiers and kamajors

Leader of Evidence: Was it the soldiers fighting the kamajors or kamajors fighting rebels?

Abu Mansaray: I mean soldiers and the kamajors.

Leader of Evidence: So the RUF were not in town?

Abu Mansaray: No.

Leader of Evidence: Where did the fight take place?

Abu Mansaray: In Kenema.

Leader of Evidence: When was that?

Abu Mansaray: Three weeks after the death of my father.

Leader of Evidence: Do you remember the month?

Abu Mansaray: Yes. It was in February.

Leader of Evidence: Why did you think they accused you of being a soldier?

Abu Mansaray: During the war, any young man was accused of being a soldier with the aim of destroying their life.

Leader of Evidence: Were they in a particular cloth?

Abu Mansaray: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have brothers and sisters?

Abu Mansaray: I had no brother but a sister. I was told she is in Bo; she is living a life that is not favourable with me, that is why I have not bother to contact her.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have other relatives?

Abu Mansaray: I don't have any relative; I am staying with my friends whose father is taking care of me.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Why didn't you go to Wanjama, to find out whether anybody can give you news about your grandmother?

Abu Mansaray: – I have never gone there.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why then did you say you don't know her whereabouts?

Abu – The people we were staying with don't know anything about her.

Commissioner Marcus Jones – Did they not tell you about your grandmother?

Abu Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: I am sorry for the loss of your grandmother. Have you been to your old School to ask for assistant?

Abu Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: But the school is in Kenema.

Abu Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you very much, do you have any questions for the Commission?

Abu Mansaray: I have explained my plight, I want to know if there is any way you can help so that I will continue my education or if there are other ways you can be of assistance to me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: TRC does not have money to give to individuals; our staff will refer you to an NGO that would be able to assist you. Are you in form 2?

Abu Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You can go back to your school and see if you can get any help from them. Were you a good student while in school?

Abu Mansaray: I used to do well.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you any recommendation you want to make which we can include in our report to the government?

Abu Mansaray: I am still emphasizing on my education, I want to continue my education, I don't have parents; even if my grandmother is still alive, she can't be in a position to help me because she would be old by now.

WITNESS NAME: Sheku Mattia

WITNESS NO:

REFERENCE:

Sheku Mattia took an oath on the Koran, administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

The witness testified yesterday, and he said he wants to give additional information and would be very happy to answer any questions.

TESTIMONY

Sheku Mattia: Yesterday, I informed you that I was a kamajor, what forced me to become a kamajor was that I was a chief in my village. My brothers who were with me were all in the movement fighting. I used to go to the war front and fight. I was an administrator; I used to organize the fighters, whenever there were disputes I used to make peace. In the Kenema district, we were the first people to be initiated in the movement. We were not in large number; we were about 250 men on the ground. We fought and the people of the district were impressed. Before we came the soldiers used to punish our people. A lot of people died in the struggle; any time they saw a young man they will interrogate him and within few hours he will be branded a rebel and killed. That was the punishment our people were going through. That was the reason why our people went into the bush. The soldiers used to collect possessions and food from us in the bush. When we started operating, we stopped them from doing all those things. At the initial stage, the soldiers did not accept us because they said we were not trained fighters. For two weeks we negotiated and at last they accepted us. Our fighting skills were put to test. We demonstrated for them, they shot some of our men. We stood before their machine guns and they released bullets on us, but the bullets did not kill any one of us. So they were satisfied with us. We went with them to the front, but at that time we only had knives. There were eighteen rebel camps in our chiefdom. Before we knew it, the soldiers had connived with the rebels. The civilian populace in Blama used to inform us that the soldiers and the rebels had formed collaboration. Those of us that came saw it clearly, at night we would see a lot of people in Blama Town. When we destroyed all the camps and finally reached Bandawo, they decided to join us and the soldiers accepted us. We decided to work hand in hand with them because the government recognized them. The day we went on the attack there were 50 soldiers, the arrangement was that we lead and they follow. Upon our arrival in Bandawo, the rebels were far from us, they saw us from a distance and they opened fire. As the firing continued, the soldiers who went with us returned but we still continued to advance. We captured some of them; their guns were taken and handed over to the soldiers. Since then would go to the war front with them; in some cases they used to hold our clothes for protection; that was how we started working together.

When they saw our strength, they organized themselves quietly, and went to the initiator. They were initiated, a huge sum of money was paid to our initiator; because of poverty, our initiator performed the initiation ceremony. Akim, a senior member in the rank and file of the army was also initiated alongside over 500 soldiers. We never knew their intention. Some other rebels came and they were initiated, they then went and posed as kamajors and committed so many human right violations and the blame was on the Kamajors. Civilians who were not initiated also adopted the dress code of the kamajors. They also committed atrocities and blamed the kamajors. This was the additional information I had wanted to give. I should have said it all but there were soldiers around; I still fear their old tricks. If you can invite another senior member of the kamajor he may give you the same story. I am a Muslim and also a Chief, I will not misinform this Commission, and if I do I will be ashamed of my self. I am saying this because our intension was to protect our people.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for explaining to us. According to your story, many of the violations people blame your movement for were not true.

Sheku Jayah: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We have been told that the kamajors would just stop people, question them, insist that they were rebels and killed them just for the sake of killing. Is that true?

Sheku Jayah: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What did you do to the initiator, did you punish him or did you agree that he continue the initiation of other people?

Sheku Jayah: At first when the soldiers came, we were comfortable with them, being that they were fighting for the nation, and they had guns but no protection; each time we went to the bush they had to run, so we welcomed the idea.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: After the initiation did they turn their guns to kill you?

Sheku Jayah: Yes, they did.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much Sheku, just a follow up on some of the questions we asked yesterday. What happened to Akim and the soldiers who were initiated, did they end up as Kamajors?

Sheku Mattia: He did not join us they broke away and fought against us.

Commissioner Torto: According to one testimony, there was a lady whose brother was killed and forced to dance in the process. What group of kamajors did that?

Sheku Mattia: There were a lot of initiations performed in different places. People were initiated here and there.

Commissioner Torto: How did you get your weapons?

Sheku Mattia: We got guns from the rebels, when we overpowered them, we collected their guns.

Commissioner Torto: What was the cost of the initiation?

Sheku Mattia: There were lot of things involved, we paid our fees in groups. The Le250,000.00 I spoke about in Small Bo was just a token to the initiator. The actual fee was about Le500, 000.00 .We bought all the materials that were needed for the initiation and other traditional practices.

Commissioner Torto: Is it true that cannibalism was practiced by the kamajors?

Sheku Mattia: I told you earlier on that there were so many initiators and they had their norms. Those of us who were on this side did not do such. There were so many things that we could not eat. The laws prevented us from eating so many things. We were advised not to eat outside food. Some of those foods would have been prepared with certain things that were taboo to our society. If one were to partake of such food, you would have gone against the law. Even at the war front the only thing we were allowed to eat, even if we were there for two days, was one palm nut. You cannot just eat any food.

Commissioner Torto: There were speculations that during the early part of the war the kamajors did very well to protect their people. Civilians were more comfortable with the kamajors than the soldiers. But there were times when the Kamajors went to Kono and started killing people who did not belong to their tribe; they started operating on tribal lines.

Sheku Mattia: I am under oath; I did not go to any other chiefdom even within the Kenema district after fighting in my chiefdom. After declaring our chiefdom safe we were there to do administrative work. We made arrangements for most of the chiefs who had left their villages to go back. I have never heard of such a violation.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you know where the soldiers got those huge sums of money to pay for their initiation?

Sheku Mattia: They were miners and they used to collect money from us. They made a lot of roadblocks; each time you passed through their checkpoints you pay Le500 or Le1, 000 as a war effort. Every civilian paid that sum of money everyday.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What did you do with the money they paid for initiation?

Sheku Mattia: The money was paid to the initiator not the fighters.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Was he not a member of the movement?

Sheku Mattia: He was our leader.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you allowed him to keep all the money?

Sheku Mattia:: The money he collected was for initiation, we were initiated ourselves.

Leader of Evidence: Maybe I have asked you some questions that might have sounded strange to you; it is because I am a foreigner. On the question of initiation, since the initiator was the leader of the kamajors, would you explain why he decided to initiate everyone that came to him? At one point you mentioned that rebels were initiated too. Are there no rules as to who should be initiated?

Sheku Mattia: There were laws guiding the initiation.

Leader of Evidence: But you said that the initiator started initiating people at random, is that so?

Sheku Mattia: The chiefs selected people from their Chiefdom and Community level and brought them over for initiation. The chiefs stood as a guarantors before they were initiated. I do not want you to get confused about the number of people the soldiers brought for initiation. Because they wanted the initiation, they went through some authorities, and we organized a traditional performance; they brought a lot of food for us. We were all convinced that the soldiers were comfortable to work with us. But they had a hidden agenda. They were initiated like every one of us. If you are an initiate your colleagues will fire but it will not work, unless you put up a fight. The only time it works is when you go against the rules and regulations. If they urinate on our uniform then they will overcome us.

Leader of Evidence – Even if they violate the law, will they still be Kamajors? After putting up resistance against you, I mean the soldiers; did they continue to be kamajors? Were the Kamajors able to kill some of the soldiers?

Sheku Mattia: I can't deliberate on that; after clearing my chiefdom I did not go to other chiefdoms to fight.

Leader of Evidence: When was the fight between the kamajors and the soldiers?

Sheku Mattia: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Were you involved in the fight?

Sheku Mattia: No.

Leader of Evidence: Which groups of kamajors were fighting with the soldiers?

Sheku Mattia: I can't tell, at the initial stage we were about 250, within six months the number increased to about 10,000.

Leader of Evidence: Is this figure in your Chiefdom alone?

Sheku Mattia: I mean the whole region.

Leader of Evidence: By the end of the war can you specify the number of kamajors that were in this country?

Sheku Mattia: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Since you were a Chief can you tell us the number of people you selected for initiation?

Sheku Mattia: I told you we were about 250 in number.

Leader of Evidence: Who then introduced the rebels for initiation?

Sheku Mattia: We were told that the Chiefs in that area where the rebels were, stood as guarantors for them.

Leader of Evidence: Why did the chiefs do that?

Sheku Mattia: Some of them who came from the bush, for instance, were related to the Chiefs. They would claim that they were captured by the rebels and have now escaped and so would like to be initiated in the movement to protect their chiefdom. Based on that they were initiated in the movement. When the number increased, a lot of things went wrong.

Leader of Evidence: Was there a command structure in the movement?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you explain the command structure of the movement?

Sheku Mattia: When we first started to operate, control was under the Chiefs. When the number increased, they delegated powers to some executive members who were not even members of the movement and this did not go down well with the entire membership, especially the Chiefs. When our Chiefdom was declared safe I then decided to continue to perform my duties as a Chief and forget about the movement. I cannot tell who were responsible.

Leader of Evidence: Was the executive at the district level?

Sheku Mattia: I cannot tell.

Leader of Evidence: In Blama, Small Bo who took over the control of the movement.

Sheku Mattia: Most of the people who were executive members were not initiated members at that time, we were frustrated, we queried them and opted to go back to our village and defend our territory.

Leader of Evidence: So did you inform your men (250) not to follow the executive?

Sheku Mattia: The 250 men were the number in the entire chiefdom. I advised my men from my own village to defend our own locality.

Leader of Evidence: You said that the number was increased within six months period?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Will you agree with me that as the number increased, strange things started to happen?

Sheku Mattia: I have already explained one such issue, the creation of an executive and the initiation of the soldiers, and we also understood that rebels were initiated from Kailahun, and this problem gave rise to the increase in human rights violations.

Leader of Evidence: Do you think that the initiation of several people in the movement created the blame for the Kamajors?

Sheku Mattia: One should say a lot of things happened.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us some of those atrocities committed?

Sheku Mattia: They used to take people's belongings from them and even rape at times.

Leader of Evidence: Did they kill people?

Sheku Mattia: There were people who put on the dressing of the kamajors and committed these atrocities.

Leader of Evidence: Were those people initiated?

Sheku Mattia: They were not initiated to do the work of kamajors; if they were genuine kamajors who underwent the initiation like I did, they would not go against the law. I am sitting under oath, everything I have said here is the truth especially issues relating to civilians.

Leader of Evidence: In other words you are not convinced that the real initiates do committed such crimes against humanity?

Sheku Mattia: If you don't abide by the rules and regulations that governed the movement ceased to be a Kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: Which year were you initiated?

Sheku Mattia: In 1995.

Leader of Evidence: From which year did you cease to be in command of the 250 members?

Sheku Mattia: It was around the latter days of 1999 when the executives were elected.

Leader of Evidence: So during those four years chiefs like you were in command of the kamajors in your different Chiefdoms?

Sheku Mattia: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much, I don't know whether you want to ask us some more questions or make additional recommendations?

Sheku Mattia: I have no more questions I rely on the ones I submitted yesterday. One thing I wanted to say is that all of us have to say the truth. The thing I have told you, at least I went to school and have some basic education and have worked for 27 years. I have retired and gone to my village; my training and activities in the society prompted the people in the Chiefdom to elect me as Chief. I want you to believe all that I have said. What I saw and did, is what I have said and beside that I am prepared to say it anywhere; I know it is the truth and God loves the truth. My fear yesterday was of the soldiers, I do fear their tricks. We did a lot for the Police; we saved them on many occasions. I want you to believe all that I have said.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We thank you very much for cooperating and coming here today. As for yesterday we quite understood; self-protection is a natural instinct. Thank you.

WITNESS NAME: Mohamed Kallon

WITNESS NO:

REFERENCE:

Mohamed Kallon took an oath on the Koran, administered by the Presiding Commissioner Justice Laura Marcus-Jones.

TESTIMONY

Mohamed Kallon:In 1997 when the rebels attacked Nomorfama, there was rumour of war; we never knew what it was and we were only interested in farming. I am the eldest in my family. My father used to advise me never to under-rate war. I used to go to Kenema, and I saw people coming; he advised us to be saving money. I continued to neglect him until the war came in our village and he asked me where we should go . I told him we should come to Kenema; he opted to go to the bush instead of coming to Kenema. We took some of our belongings and constructed a farmhouse; we only went to spy on our village. A village near us, Waimotocombur, was attacked. I left my people in the bush. I saw flames in the air and when I got closer to the village, people were running from the village. All of us ran into the bush. We were told somebody was killed in that attack. I did not venture to reach to the village; the moment I got that information I returned to the bush.

Whilst we were in the bush, we only fed on bananas; there was no place for us to go. Three days later our own village fell under the rebels, the place where we were located was about three miles to our village; in the evening we saw flames in the air. A few of us went to spy. In the evening when we went to the village in the evening it was already burnt down. I ask my colleagues to escort me to my own house; my father's house and toilet were on fire, I returned to the bush and informed my father of the ugly incident. I told him that two houses were burnt down. He was confused because it was already night; in the morning he came to the site and was weeping. There were soldiers in Serabu Mansaray at that time; they were on patrol and went to that village, they met and they arrested him, he refused to go with them. He told them he had built his house out of proceeds he receives from the sale of Palm Kernel. He insisted that he was not going anywhere. He would gather the burnt zinc sheets for the rest of the day and return to bush in the evening. I told him that the zinc sheets were not useful anymore; if anything happened to him in the process it will be a shock to the family. He insisted that he is not going with them. I went in search of food for my family. There was nothing we could do nowhere to go. We were in that bush and looking for a way to come to Kenema but the distance was too long. There were a lot of things my people needed but they were not in the bush. I promised my father that I would come to Kenema to get those things for them. He advised me to be careful. In the morning I was in the company of some my colleagues and we traveled for the rest of day until we reached Kenema. I bought the items, 5 cups of salt and tobacco; we traveled all throughout the night, and finally went back to the bush and presented all the items I had bought in Kenema. I persuaded him to come to Kenema but he refused; he said I am a young man and I can stay in Kenema; if I happen to have food I should send it for the family. I bade farewell and came to Kenema the next day.

I spent four days in Kenema; there were soldiers in Serabu. I met soldiers in Kenema and called Peter's attention. I told him I could not stay in Kenema because my families were still in the bush. I asked him to allow me stay with him so that I can have something to assist my family. I went with him and he advised me to stay with my family, if they had palm oil I could easily bring it to Kenema. The soldiers accepted but they said that if they allowed me to stay in the bush each time I did business we would have to pay them a fee. I had a lot of friends who had confidence in me. I introduced them all to Mr. Peter. We used to get the palm oil and bring it to Kenema for sale; each time we made sales we would give them their fee and go back to the bush. We did that for a while, when we heard about the initiation in Bo. They said that people were initiated to defend their Chieftdom. I obtained permission from my mother to go to Blama and enquire about this movement; she gave me her blessing. By that time people used to travel in a convoy, by the time I arrived the convoy had already left, but one vehicle was about to take off. One of my friends and some other people boarded the vehicle and we left. Beyond Serabu, the last village to Blama was my own village, after that village we fell in an ambush. At that time I did not know what an ambush was. I saw people coming from the bush, half dressed in military uniform some holding guns. The vehicle was stopped and we all ran into the bush, the place was thick. The little money I had, about Le30, 000 was taken from me, I was severely beaten and stripped naked, and I only had my underpants on. I went through my village, into the bush and found my parents. I put on my shorts and went to Serabu and returned to Kenema. I met my people weeping. When they heard about the ambush they thought I was dead. We came out of the bush and met the soldiers at Serabu. They hired a vehicle for me to come back to this town. We used to work for people in this town. Then this kamajor initiation came into effect in this town and I decided to join the movement. I was initiated; even now I am an initiate member of the movement. I was initiated so as to secure my self and protect my people. I was an initiate when the peace agreement was signed. They asked us to go back to our village and I did return. I am now in my village residing in our burnt house. I took my brothers who were non-initiates back to the village. That was what happened to me during this war.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Mohamed, for telling us about your experiences.

Commissioner Torto: I would limit my questions to just two. Why were you giving the fee to the soldiers?

Mohamed Kallon: He was protecting me in the bush.

Commissioner Torto: What type of protection?

Mohamed Kallon: He was a soldier and they were in power.

Commissioner Torto: So you were just giving it to him because he was a soldier and a Godfather as well?

Mohamed Kallon: At that time, soldiers were not Godfathers, but they had a lot of power.

Commissioner Torto: Did you engage in any fight when you were in the movement?

Mohamed Kallon: No.

Commissioner Torto: Did you normally go to the war front?

Mohamed Kallon –No.

Commissioner Torto: What were you doing in the movement then?

Mohamed Kallon: I was a young man, and I could not stay with my people in the bush, so I decided to join the movement. I was a student in Blama.

Commissioner Torto: What were you doing in the Kamajor movement?

Mohamed Kallon: We used to organize people in our community, each time they wanted to go to the war front we were asked to subscribe youth.

Leader of Evidence: In what year were you initiated?

Mohamed Kallon:In 1999.

Leader of Evidence: How long did you spend in the movement?

Mohamed Kallon: I have never broken the law, I am still a kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: Were you actually part of the group of kamajors initiated by Sheku Mattia?

Mohamed Kallon: They were initiated in Bo, they were our Commanders, and we took instructions from them. He was the general overseer for the two villages.

Leader of Evidence: Did you actually join in the fight?

Mohamed Kallon :I was not involved in the fight.

Leader of Evidence: What type of report did you receive, from the front?

Mohamed Kallon: If there is an attack on a village, they would report that they had repelled the attack.

Leader of Evidence: Did they report rebel causality?

Mohamed Kallon: They used to report on that, but I have never witnessed it.

Leader of Evidence: So they told you that they killed rebels?

Mohamed Kallon: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Which particular fighting group of rebels did they actually kill?

Mohamed Kallon: They killed rebels from different groups.

Leader of Evidence: How did they know that they were rebels?

Mohamed Kallon: They used to give us the information.

Leader of Evidence: But they reported to you, you were supposed to ask questions?

Mohamed Kallon: As they told us they had killed rebels I didn't bother to ask questions.

Leader of Evidence: In these attacks did they kill kamajors?

Mohamed Kallon : I was told that one of my brothers who was a Kamajor was killed in a battle.

Leader of Evidence: Did you find his corpse?

Mohamed Kallon: No.

Leader of Evidence: Was he your biological brother?

Mohamed Kallon: No, we were cousins.

Leader of Evidence: During these confrontations, did the kamajors capture rebels?

Mohamed Kallon: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Did you have any report that rebels were captured?

Mohamed Kallon: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you have any idea about the age of the youngest rebel killed?

Mohamed Kallon: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: Earlier you told us that you subscribed Kamajors to go to the front, is that correct?

Mohamed Kallon :Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Why didn't you go yourself?

Mohamed Kallon – Only the strong ones went to the front.

Leader of Evidence: How old were they?

Mohamed Kallon: 25 years and above.

Leader of Evidence: How old are you?

Mohamed Kallon: I am 35 years old.

Leader of Evidence: So an adult like you never went to the front? Are there reasons for that?

Mohamed Kallon: There was a reason, I have bad eyesight, and if I had forced my way it would have been a problem.

Leader of Evidence: Before someone is initiated is there no stipulation that you must be in proper physical condition so as to enable you go to the front when called upon?

Mohamed Kallon :I got the problem after my initiation.

Leader of Evidence: How long was that?

Mohamed Kallon: After one year.

Leader of Evidence: You want to tell me that before that time you never went to the front?

Mohamed Kallon: Yes, I never did.

Leader of Evidence: As a Commander, Why didn't you go yourself?

Mohamed Kallon :If any thing went wrong whilst I was away what will I do?

Leader of Evidence: But some Commanders did go to the front?

Mohamed Kallon: We used to put things straight before they went on an attack.

Leader of Evidence: What about your cousin who was killed, how old was he?

Mohamed Kallon: I cannot tell his age.

Leader of Evidence: Are you older than him?

Mohamed Kallon: Maybe I am older than him.

Leader of Evidence: What particular weapon did the Kamajors use to fight?

Mohamed Kallon: We used Knives.

Leader of Evidence: How then did you kill rebels?

Mohamed Kallon: We used our knives to kill them.

Leader of Evidence: Didn't they have guns, how then did you kill them with your knives?

Mohamed Kallon: They had guns, but we used our charms to overpower them.

Leader of Evidence: After killing the rebels did you collect their guns?

Mohamed Kallon: I did not witness any of those incidents, the fighters who went to the front told me.

Leader of Evidence: When the kamajors came back did they normally bring guns?

Mohamed Kallon: It did not happen in my area.

Leader of Evidence: How many kamajors did you have in your area?

Mohamed Kallon: Sometimes I sent 5; there were times when I sent 10.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you were initiated members in your area?

Mohamed Kallon: We were in fifteen in number; it is a small village.

Leader of Evidence: Whom did you report to?

Mohamed Kallon – All reports were made to our Headquarter in Blama, Small Bo.

Leader of Evidence: Who was your Commander?

Mohamed Kallon: He was Kini Brima.

Leader of Evidence: What was his post?

Mohamed Kallon: He was the Section Commander.

Leader of Evidence: What was the Command structure of the movement?

Mohamed Kallon: I only made reports to him, I don't know whom he was answerable to.

Leader of Evidence: Did you hold meetings?

Mohamed Kallon: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Where did you hold meetings?

Mohamed Kallon :In Blama, Small Bo.

Leader of Evidence: Who usually attended the meetings?

Mohamed Kallon: All those who were under his command.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you were in that meeting?

Mohamed Kallon: More than 150.

Leader of Evidence: You said you were already fifteen in your village; I suppose that the number would increase as the struggles continued.

Mohamed Kallon: We were initiated for several reasons, mostly for protection.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Mohamed Kallon we want to thank you for your testimony, we've been asking you a number of questions and we want to know if you have any question for us.

Mohamed Kallon: Yes, I was in my village, when I got the invitation. I am supposed to be in my swamp now. Why did you invite me to come here?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: This Commission is set up by an act of Parliament, and we are to collect information to make a report, an unbiased report about what happened during the war and we invite people to make statement to the Commission. We invite them to come and share their experiences in public, or if they are not comfortable to tell us their experiences in public we have a closed hearing like this one. Sometimes when people have very vital information for us and they refuse to come we could and we have the power to issue a subpoena to handle the individual. But in your case we are happy that you have come willingly to help us and you've come to a closed hearing, so that if you are feeling uncomfortable to talk in public, here, there is nothing to worry about. Any other question?

Mohamed Kallon: Is there any assistance you can give to me after this explanation?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: From what you told us, I gather that you were a successful farmer. You are an able bodied man and you seem to be carrying on fine. The TRC has no money to give to people; some people, who are handicapped, are referred to NGO's or medical centres where they can get help. If you have needs like that which you haven't told us, you can talk to our briefer at the end of the session and she will refer you, if possible, to an NGO but then you have benefited for coming here. Because in the long run the Government will have to act based on your recommendations. The improvement the government would be able to make will benefit you, your father and your children and your community as a whole. Do you have any recommendation you would like us to put in our report to pass on to government?

Mohamed Kallon : I told you my father's house was burnt down, I have no means to put up that structure now. I would like the government to help me rehabilitate my father's house.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Any other recommendation?

Mohamed Kallon: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Possibly when government implements our recommendation, you might have a housing scheme or other means of help to develop your Community. Thank you for coming.

DAY FOUR

DATE: 29TH MAY 2003

WITNESS NAME: Jeneba Konneh (Christian)

WITNESS NO: 025

Commissioner Sylvanus Torto, the presiding Commissioner administered the oath,

TESTIMONY

Jeneba Konneh: When the rebels attacked our village at about 2 a.m., they gathered all of us in our house; I then went out with my child to a banana tree. People were shouting and crying and I saw blazing fire. By then, my husband was not around. The fire was raging and we ran away into the bush. We passed the night in the bush. We later went to a town called Telu Bongor. In the morning two people went to the town and met people gathered in our burnt house. I told my mother that we should go to Bo. We then went to Taiama camp but we had not stayed there for long when another attack took place. We went to settle in another camp and later we returned to our village. My father was amongst those burnt in our house.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. We sympathize with you for the loss of your father. On the 14th of February 2003 you made a statement to the statement taker. This question is based on your written statement that your father and seven students were burnt down in the same house. What kind of students were they.

Jeneba Konneh: My father had three children together with the other four children he was taking care of.

Commissioner Torto: Where they children attending school or was he teaching them?

Jeneba Konneh: His brother died leaving the children behind so he had to take care of them.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know the rebels who did that to you?

Jeneba Konneh: I can't identify them as they covered their faces with blue paint and some were in uniforms.

Commissioner Torto: If you were to make a wise guess what group do you think the rebels belonged to?

Jeneba Konneh: There were tall ones among them speaking Liberia pidgin, Mende and krio.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you Jeneba Konneh for coming to the Commission. The Commission is sorry that you lost your father, children and other people in such a gruesome way. Can you tell us the names of your sisters and brothers who died in that fire?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes. Pa Konneh, Fatmata Konneh, Kadiatu Konneh, Ibrahim Konneh, Bockarie Konneh, Aminata Konneh and Natoma Mansaray.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Pa Konneh was your father?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The names given including the students were they your brothers and sisters?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes they were my sisters and brothers including the students.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What happened to your mother?

Jeneba Konneh: My mother who was captured and fell sick on the way. She had an injury on her left leg. I met her in Sembehun

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who captured her before she fell down?

Jeneba Konneh: The rebels.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is she having treatment for the bad leg?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes. My uncle took her away and she is receiving medical attention.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In what year did all this happen?

Jeneba Konneh: In 1991

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: That is quite a long time now hasn't the bad leg healed yet?

Jeneba Konneh: Thanks to God, she can walk now.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: where is the husband now? Did he suffer from rebel atrocities?

Jeneba Konneh: He is dead; he never suffered from rebel atrocities

Leader of Evidence: Do you think that your father was targeted?

Jeneba Konneh: I can't tell because the town was attacked and many people were killed.

Leader of Evidence: Can you remember how many people were killed?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes. I can remember some of them

Leader of Evidence: Can you name them?

Jeneba Konneh: Yes. Pa Momoh Sheriff he was old. Alhaji Mohamed Koroma was also old, his sister Mamie Koroma, those are the names I can recall.

Leader of Evidence: How many were killed in all since you cannot remember their names?

Jeneba Konneh: I was told that 23 people were killed, including strangers and displaced people.

Commissioner Torto: We have asked you a lot of questions have you any question to ask the Commission?

Jeneba Konneh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendations to make to the government?

Jeneba Konneh: I am pleading to the government; we have lost our house so we need rehabilitation. We have no n health centre, no toilet, and no proper drinking water. We drink water from the drainage. We have organized ourselves in some agricultural work. So I want the government to assist me through TRC, with agricultural facilities. These are my recommendations.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much. I want to congratulate you for forming the women's agricultural group. That was a very brilliant point for resettlement. The issue of medical facilities is taken into good part because we know after the war communities lose these facilities. The Commission does not have the mandate to build houses for people. There are NGOs that assist with some kind of help so I want to encourage you to remind us so that you can meet our staff. The provision of sanitary service is an area that should not wait for government intervention. You should start finding ways to help yourselves. So continue with the agricultural programme. All recommendations will be put in good part. Do you have another recommendation? If not, you may step down.

Jeneba Konneh: I don't have any other recommendation.

DATE: 29TH MAY 2003
WITNESS NAME: Mohamed Conteh (Muslim)
WITNESS NO: 026
REFERENCE NO: 3/23/3486

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Sylvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

Mohamed Conteh: The rebels attacked our village at about 1.30 a.m. and they gathered all of us that were captured in one place. They collected our possessions and put them in a commandeered vehicle. They killed my brother and took away our belongings. At about 8 a.m., they came again and assumed that we were safe and that some of us could join them but we refused. They left and came again early the following morning. Most of the young people fled to a nearby bush but the old and sick were unable to. They burnt a lot of houses and when we returned to the town some time later, I only saw the charred remains of my father and grand children. I took my sister to Gerehun and the Kamajor movement started; I was initiated as a Kamajor. At that time, we had a cordial working relationship with the soldiers. We went to the war fronts together. When chasing rebels, if they dropped their guns, we'll pass them on to the soldiers. After the war, they told us to disarm but since I hadn't a gun, I did not receive the disarmament benefits. However, I am grateful to Tejan Kabbah that we have been resettled in our villages. I fought to defend my village and to protect my people.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you. We sympathize with you for the loss of your father and others. What was the name of your father?

Mohamed Conteh: Mustapha Conteh.

Commissioner Torto: What is the name of the town where this incident happened?

Mohamed: Kando Nyama.

Commissioner Torto: What about the other people who died can you name them?

Mohamed Conteh: Ibrahim Conteh, Umaru Conteh, Hawa Conteh, Abdulai Conteh, Mamie Conteh; they were my relatives.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know who killed them?

Mohamed Conteh: The rebels who set fire on the house.

Commissioner Torto: Can you identify them by face?

Mohamed Conteh: No because they looked very fearful.

Commissioner Torto: What does the following name mean to you Bangura and others?

Mohamed Conteh: Those were some of our leaders in the Kamajor movement. Bangura was our initiator.

Commissioner Torto: Did you kill any body?

Mohamed Conteh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Did you kill any rebel?

Mohamed Conteh: No.

Commissioner Torto: When did you join the Kamajor?

Mohamed Conteh: I joined the Kamajor in 1996.

Commissioner Torto: I want you to remember the oath and tell me that you didn't kill any rebel.

Mohamed Conteh: No I was using a knife so I did not kill any body.

Commissioner Torto: Don't you believe that a knife kills?

Mohamed Conteh: I believe that but sometime when my colleagues killed, we shouted and left the corpse there.

Commissioner Torto: What did you do with the body?

Mohamed Conteh: We abandoned it.

Commissioner Torto: During your encounter with the rebels did you meet civilians on attack?

Mohamed Conteh: In some villages, we saw civilians running during cross firing and stray bullets sometimes caught them.

Commissioner Torto: You joined the Kamajor out of frustration after your father's death?

Mohamed Conteh: I joined the movement to liberate my country and my self because we were under threat from the rebels and Soldiers.

Commissioner Torto: If you had encountered a rebel what would you have done to him?

Mohamed Conteh: If it had happened that way, I would have fought.

Commissioner Torto: So you did not kill any civilian or rebel even by accident ;you did not even inflict wounds on d them?

Mohamed Conteh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Did you help civilians?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Under what circumstances?

Mohamed Conteh: I was the discipline commander. Sometimes when we went to the front and my colleagues threatened people, I stopped them.

Commissioner Torto: If you were to turn back the hands of time and find your self in a similar position would you join the Kamajor?

Mohamed Conteh: As long as we get support from the government I will join again.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming and for the testimony you have given. You partly answered the question I am about to ask. We had evidence that the combatants indulged in drugs, did the Kamajors take drugs as well?

Mohamed Conteh: We were in groups. In the Bo area they took drugs but for us here in Kenema we were not allowed to take drugs because we were under oath.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: As a commander, what was your duty?

Mohamed Conteh: I was the discipline commander.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What was your duty; did you give instructions?

Mohamed Conteh: When anyone offends a civilian and is brought before me, I would put him in a guardroom.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What I am talking about is that if there was pending attack what instruction would you give to the subordinate?

Mohamed Conteh: When there is an attack I would go to the patrol commander immediately.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: And you will do nothing more?

Mohamed Conteh: Sometimes when people are asked to and they refused I will force them to go.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So the Kamajors had guns?

Mohamed Conteh: Some did and some did not.

Leader of Evidence: I thank you very much for coming. Can you explain to me why the Kamajors didn't allow the government army to protect them?

Mohamed Conteh: They were causing many problems for the civilians. That forced us to take up the challenge and God sent the initiation to help the people of this country.

Leader of Evidence: Why did the army need help?

Mohamed Conteh: In my own thinking the soldiers were giving the civilians a lot of problems.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell me some of these problems?

Mohamed Conteh: They were behaving like rebels to the civilians. They were looting, killing innocent people. That's why God send the initiator and that was why many people joined the Kamajor.

Leader of Evidence: A lot of people joined the Kamajor to protect their villages and people?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What made the Kamajor and the SLA work as one since the soldiers were behaving like that?

Mohamed Conteh: The time we were working together, they were not doing bad things because of our presence.

Leader of Evidence: On one hand you were stopping them and at the same time working together?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Did the Kamajors seek the support and recognition of the government?

Mohamed Conteh: Well the Kamajor were not fighting for the government to support us. We wanted peace in our land and we wanted to protect our people.

Leader of Evidence: Why did you say that you needed to work with the SLA and you had the power?

Mohamed Conteh: They were paid we were not paid that is why I said they had power.

Leader of Evidence: Why did you decide to work with them?

Mohamed Conteh: I think that when the Kamajor incident came it helped in bringing about the peace process because the civilian populace lost confidence in the SLA.

Leader of Evidence: You said you had support from Kabbah what kind of support?

Mohamed Conteh: During the disarmament, those with guns were given a package. Although those without guns didn't receive anything.

Leader of Evidence: You told us that if there is another war you will be a Kamajor and if Kabbah does what he was doing you will still be in the force what type of help were you talking about?

Mohamed Conteh: I was talking about the concern he had for the kamajor, if he has the same concern, I would become a Kamajor again at any time.

Leader of Evidence: Did you succeed in changing the attitude of the SLA?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes all the areas where there were checkpoints we were together.

Leader of Evidence: The conflict between the Kamajor and the SLA what was it about?

Mohamed Conteh: The time they fought I was not part of the movement.

Leader of Evidence: Did you leave the movement?

Mohamed Conteh: At that time I was not initiated.

Leader of Evidence: But you said you were initiated and you were working in collaboration with the soldiers are you still in the kamajor?

Mohamed Conteh: At that time we went together to Kailahun to chase the rebels.

Leader of Evidence: Then you stopped working with them?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us something about the group how many people were in your group?

Mohamed Conteh: There were 235 of us.

Leader of Evidence: Can you tell us something about the conditions to become a kamajor? Who selects the candidate?

Mohamed Conteh: The chief, the more you pay the more you are prepared. We paid for uniforms and other items.

Leader of Evidence: So anyone can become a Kamajor?

Mohamed Conteh: People from other tribes were not initiated. Only Mendes were.

Leader of Evidence: The Commission was told that soldiers were initiated; do you know any thing about that?

Mohamed Conteh: I heard about it.

Leader of Evidence: And some of the rebels were initiated?

Mohamed Conteh: I did not know about that.

Leader of Evidence: Your group of 235 going to Kailahun did you go to fight?

Mohamed Conteh: We went to Jorku.

Leader of Evidence: You went to Kailahun, Jorku, Nyama and Masigbe.

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Any other locations were you went?

Mohamed Conteh: After those fights I ended up in Bandama where I was based.

Leader of Evidence: How many confrontations did your group encounter with the rebels?

Mohamed Conteh: Three times after 1996.

Leader of Evidence: From 1996?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What did you do to all this places you went to and during those attacks how many rebels were killed?

Mohamed Conteh: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: You said some of the bodies were lying around how many did you see?

Leader of Evidence: Yes. It was about 10, 15 but I cannot tell the exact number.

Leader of Evidence: Those bodies were there men, women boys and girls?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. The women were cooking for them.

Leader of Evidence: Were there any small women among them?

Mohamed Conteh: No girl child was among them.

Leader of Evidence: What about boys?

Mohamed Conteh: There were boys among them.

Leader of Evidence: How young were they?

Mohamed Conteh: The youngest could be around 8:9.

Leader of Evidence: Were they wearing uniforms?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. At times

Leader of Evidence: Sometimes they were in civilian clothes?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes, jean trousers.

Leader of Evidence: Those that were not dressed in uniform how did you know that they were rebels?

Mohamed Conteh: They have RUF marks on their arms

Leader of Evidence: What is the age of the youngest among the kamajors?

Mohamed Conteh: 7 years.

Leader of Evidence: How many of them were around the age of 18?

Mohamed Conteh: I can't tell. But I believe they were about 7 or 8.

Leader of Evidence: Did you capture rebels live?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. But on our way to kenema it started raining and we decided to wait for sometime and during that time he escaped.

Leader of Evidence: During this time you had three confrontations with the rebels; apart from that there was no fight between you again?

Mohamed Conteh: I witnessed three fights. I usually send people.

Leader of Evidence: So they were fighting?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Since you were a discipline commander can you give example of what you were doing to the civilians?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. Sometimes when the kamajors come from the war front, they forced the civilians to assist them fetch water and do the laundry for them.

Leader of Evidence: Any case of beating of the civilians?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes once.

Leader of Evidence: Any case of a civilian killed by kamajor?

Mohamed Conteh: No, except through a stray bullet.

Leader of Evidence: When was that?

Mohamed Conteh: At a point in time the rebels attacked a town and when we went to repel the rebels, confrontation ensued. Stray bullets may have killed some civilians.

Leader of Evidence: That means that Kamajors had guns?

Mohamed Conteh: Some had guns.

Leader of Evidence: How many of you had guns in your group?

Mohamed Conteh: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: In a group of 235 just a little of you had guns?

Mohamed Conteh: Those of us with knives were in greater number?

Leader of Evidence: Where did the guns come from?

Mohamed Conteh: When there is a fighting between the rebels and Kamajor they usually dropped their guns and we collected them.

Leader of Evidence: So you don't take it to the SLA?

Mohamed Conteh: No.

Leader of Evidence: Journalists said that the Kamajors were more disciplined in their chiefdoms than when they moved out to other chiefdoms?

Mohamed Conteh: I cannot deny that.

Leader of Evidence: How did you know about that?

Mohamed Conteh: Sometimes you may train some body not to steal but when he moves out he may practice that.

Leader of Evidence: Where there violations of killing, raping or looting?

Mohamed Conteh: I did not see that.

Leader of Evidence: I understand that you did not see or hear of any crime like that?

Mohamed Conteh: I did not get such complaints.

Leader of Evidence: Do you think some of the allegations made on the Kamajors were false? Like people beaten by kamajor, house burning, eating people.

Mohamed Conteh: I had about cannibalism but it was hearsay.

Leader of Evidence: Did you hear of a village called Nyama were they were doing cannibalism in the Nogowa chiefdom?

Mohamed Conteh: I don't know.

Leader of Evidence: What about the other allegations?

Mohamed Conteh: I did not see any of them doing these things.

Leader of Evidence: Do you think that there is a kind law that you should not talk about?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Don't you think that you have to come and apologize for what they did?

Mohamed Conteh: I don't think so.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you very much. This thing you have said here should not be held against you so we need the facts because we want everlasting peace. So don't leave this place feeling guilty. Is the kamajor an organization or a society?

Mohamed Conteh: It a society.

Commissioner Torto: They Kamajors where killing people on accusation of being a rebel is that correct?

Mohamed Conteh: I heard about it but I did not see them doing it.

Commissioner Torto: You have been in the Kamajor for four years and didn't hear of or kill a suspect?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. Because at that time I was in the village

Commissioner Torto: Thank you. We have asked you a lot of questions and you have answered. Do you have any question to ask the Commission?

Mohamed Conteh: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have any recommendation for consideration?

Mohamed Conteh: Yes. I am in the village at the moment; my recommendation is that our community needs a health centre because it is too far from Kenema. I was in school but at this moment I can't go back to school because I have my family but I am a trained carpenter so I can take care of the family so I want government to provide tools for me.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you. The health issue is taken into good part; I will comment on the skills training. There was a DDR programme wherein people were sent for skills training. You can check so that you can take a part in that. Some go to school and others to colleges and some train to be a carpenter like you. Meanwhile the other recommendations are taken into good part.

DATE: 29TH MAY 2003
WITNESS NAME: Jenneh Lansana (Muslim)
WITNESS NO: 027
REFERENCE NO: 3/23/48

The presiding Commissioner Mr Slyvanus Torto administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

Jenneh Lansana: They killed my husband and my child. They the burnt down the whole chiefdom and I am presently sick. At a point in time, they captured us and carried us to Gandohun for four good nights. One Saturday, they separated us according to places of origin. They said they were going to kill my husband. They tied and put him on a motorcycle. A mango was then forced into his mouth and they said they'd take him to Potoru. They wanted to kill him with a knife but they didn't since he was reciting verses in the Koran. Despite his plea that he had 14 children, they killed him.

They ask us to go home, and we went, crying; after 3 days we saw people coming from the river end. A woman said they were coming and I told my mother that we should go into the house. We heard somebody saying that he had come with a vehicle to take us to Blama. I told my mother not to go out; those who went out, been killed.

Later, I fled to the bush, but fell on a rock and I'm still feeling sick. I was able to locate my mother and children later because we had earlier separated as we fled to the bush. We later went to Bo. This is my story

Commissioner Torto: Thank you Jenneh Lansana for this explanation we sympathize with you for the loss of your husband. Could you tell me the number of people taken away and killed?

Jenneh Lansana: I cannot name them all.

Commissioner Torto: Can you estimate the number?

Jenneh Lansana: No. I was in hiding, how can I tell their number?

Commissioner Torto: Who were the people who actually took those people and killed them?

Jenneh Lansana: The first one was in Gandorhun. They were rebels.

Commissioner Torto: What group of rebels?

Jenneh Lansana: They never spoke Mende language they came from Liberia.

Commissioner Torto: Under what circumstances was your mother killed?

Jenneh Lansana: They did not kill my mother; they only killed my husband.

Commissioner Torto: You also said a group of people were taken into a house and four of them were taken out and killed do you know their names?

Jenneh Lansana: Yes. Lansana Bockarie, Momoh Gibateh, Amadu Dabor, Momoh Bondu.

Commissioner Torto: A boy who was executed at the age of 15 do you know why he was killed?

Jenneh Lansana: I don't know why he was killed.

Commissioner Torto: Do you remember who actually killed him?

Jenneh Lansana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We are sorry you lost your husband. Was it your husband who was reciting the Koran?

Jenneh Lansana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Who was the person?

Jenneh Lansana: He is Amadu Abateh.

Leader of Evidence: You said that your husband and son were killed; was your son killed together with your husband?

Jenneh Lansana: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: What is the name of your son?

Jenneh Lansana: She was a daughter called Hawa Lansana.

Leader of Evidence: Was she killed in the same attack?

Jenneh Lansana: No. She went to Freetown to see her husband and she was killed.

Leader of Evidence: Was the baby killed as well?

Jenneh Lansana: No but a stray bullet cut its finger.

Leader of Evidence: And you said there was a second attack in your village, those who attacked the first time, were they the same rebels who attacked the second time?

Jenneh Lansana: I can't tell.

Leader of Evidence: I think, I heard you say that your village was attacked twice.

Jenneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have questions for the Commission?

Jenneh Lansana: No.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any recommendations?

Jenneh Lansana: Yes. They have burnt our house. I am pleading with the government to rehabilitate our houses. We have no medical centre, no food; we have used sticks to build huts where we dwell. The road to our village is not motorable, there is no proper drinking water, no toilet facilities so I want you to assist us with the above facilities.

Commissioner Torto: Those are taken into good part there are Ngos that will provide those facilities for you. Your recommendation about the health situation will be included in our report. I advise that you talk to our staff so that you will be given a letter to take to MSF, if there is a branch here they can help you. Thank you very much for coming, do not forget to talk to the briefer to give you a referral letter to take to the hospital.

DATE: 29TH MAY 2003
WITNESS NAME: Emmanuel Jabati (Christian)
WITNESS NO: 028
REFERENCE NO: Ken/amputee/06

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Slyvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Emmanuel Jabati: I was not a fighter. I came from Taima and I am a Kpa Mende. I came in search of money. I was in Hangha one morning, when I saw a lot of people running from Kenema to Hangha. I was in the company of a brother called Borbor. I sent him to enquire but when he returned he advised that we hide ourselves. We were there till late in the evening, when I advised that we should return to town and put our trust to God.

At about 4.30 in the morning, we heard firing all over and I asked my brother if it was an attack. He said yes and advised that we wait till the firing subsided. As we escaped people were running and shouting. We ran closer to a banana tree when someone descending a hill and saw us and started shooting; I was shot on my left leg and I rolled down the hill. I was there till the firing subsided. My brother advised that we move to kenema. A friend of my brother put me on a hammock and brought me to the Kenema hospital; there was no doctor but he came later and advised that my foot should be amputated. I was in the hospital till I recovered.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for your story. Do you know who actually shot you?

Emmanuel Jabati: They were rebels. They were speaking Liberian pidgin.

Commissioner Torto: What Language were they speaking?

Emmanuel Jabati: Mende, Liberia, and krio.

Leader of Evidence: In what year did this happen?

Emmanuel Jabati: After the overthrow of Tejan Kabbah.

Leader of Evidence: Were they in uniform?

Emmanuel Jabati: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Do you mean they were AFRC or SLA?

Emmanuel Jabati: That was the time they were together.

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Emmanuel Jabati: I thank God for Rev. Alimamy kargbo who registered me in one programme. This is the uniform I am wearing. We want to appeal to government through TRC; I have children and wife, I pay 30 thousand per month. We are really suffering, so am appealing to government to educate our children and provide houses and food for us the handicapped.

Commissioner Torto: That is a Recommendation, have you any question?

Emmanuel Jabati: No.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have a branch of the amputees programme?

Emmanuel Jabati: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: When you contacted them what have they done?

Emmanuel Jabati: The Reverend organized us but we pay for ourselves I have not been assisted by any group.

Commissioner Torto: You mean the association it self?

Emmanuel Jabati: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: They don't have skills training for people like you?

Emmanuel Jabati: No.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much; in Freetown the association is so strong that they have started building houses for them. We even visited one in Kabala. The Norwegian Refugee Council has done well for them. I want the head of this association to put more interest in this because they told us that they are all over the country.

Commissioner Torto: Is the Reverend in town?

Emmanuel Jabati: I don't know.

Commissioner Torto: Find out if he is here so that we can talk to him.

WITNESS NAME: Jebbeh Ansumana (Muslim)
WITNESS NO: 029
REFERENCE NO: 3/23/3486

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Slyvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Jebbeh Ansumana:

My mother gave birth to two of us, my brother and I. When the rebels attacked Yebeima my brother was the first to be killed. I gave birth to a baby and after two weeks, I was raped. I later went to a camp in Bo. At present I am have pains all over my body.

Commissioner Torto: We sympathize with you on the death of your brother. During the attack how many people died?

Jebbeh Ansumana: I can't tell I was in the bush with my husband and the children.

Commissioner Torto: So your brother was killed in your absence?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: You just came back and found the corpse?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Yes. Those who went to the town returned and explained it to me.

Commissioner Torto: Those who raped you, do you remember them?

Jebbeh Ansumana: No, because it was at night .

Commissioner Torto: Where is the baby now?

Jebbeh Ansumana: He is with me.

Commissioner Torto: How old is he?

Jebbeh Ansumana: He is seven years old.

Commissioner Torto: Could you remember or identify your attackers?

Jebbeh Ansumana: I could not tell.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Commission thanks you for coming and telling us about your experiences and the loss of your brother. In what place were you raped?

Jebbeh Ansumana: In Jerehun.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where you taken to a bush or a house?

Jebbeh Ansumana: To a house.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many of them?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Two of them raped me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us whether they were young men or people of your age?

Jebbeh Ansumana: The people that raped me were young men.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you been able to seek medical attention?

Jebbeh Ansumana: No, I usually buy tablets in the streets and drink herbs.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why have you not gone to the hospital?

Jebbeh Ansumana: I was going when the refugees were getting free treatment but that is a long time now.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you been able to bear children?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How many children apart from the boy?

Jebbeh Ansumana: I have given birth to two children but both of them died.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why?

Jebbeh Ansumana: I don' know.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How old were they when they died?

Jebbeh Ansumana: The first one was 4 months and the second 3 and a half months old.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you reported this to a doctor to know whether those deaths were as a result of the rape?

Jebbeh Ansumana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you expecting a baby now?

Jebbeh Ansumana: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What happened to your husband, where is he now?

Jebbeh Ansumana: He is dead.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did he die in the course of the war?

Jebbeh Ansumana: No it was a natural death.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you for sharing your experience with us, we have asked you a lot of questions and you have answered, have you any question to ask the Commission?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Yes. We have gone through these trials and humiliations, why did you call us here?

Commissioner Torto: This is a question a few people asked the Commission. The answer is there may not be any direct benefit now but it is a long term one. The most important thing is that the Commission cares about you; what happened to you, who did it, so that it won't happen again and to record all the human rights violations that happened during the war. Very shortly, we will be asking you for your recommendations, your recommendation will be analysed with others but more important, is the relief that you get after testifying to the Commission.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You spoke about pains; you could talk to the briefer in detail.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any recommendation?

Jebbeh Ansumana: Yes. The road to our village is not motorable, there is no proper drinking water, our school is not in good condition there is no health centre; all our houses have been vandalized, toilet facilities are very poor but the most important of all is the food problem.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for all these concerns. Your recommendation will be included in our report.

REFERENCE NO: 3/23/3486

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Slyvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Philip Foday Tommy Foday Tommy: The rebels killed my younger brother and took away my second wife, Hawa Fofanah. Since then, I have not seen her and my children are worried. Her parents blame me, saying that I ran away and left her behind. However, my parents are consoling me. I was in Tongo when my mother informed me that my brother was killed. Initially, my mother had advised that, since I was an educated man, I should leave the town. That was why I left. When the rebels came, the commando said that my wife was the most beautiful woman so he took her away. I was in UMC when I heard about the Commission. So that is why I am here to see how best you can help me.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for coming. We know what you are going through as a man; you have been able to withstand it .We want you to explain a few things to us. According to your written statement, you said your brother was crossing the river from Tormabum to sell a few items and ECOMOG soldiers shot him and six other people.

Philip Foday Tommy: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Why was that?

Philip Foday Tommy: According to what I was told in my village, the ECOMOG thought that the rebels were giving them these items to sell for them; at that time any body connected to ECOMOG was killed.

Commissioner Torto: When you entered the village, were the ECOMOG in the town?

Philip Foday Tommy: My mother told me that they were Guinean soldiers.

Commissioner Torto: Was there any indication that somebody knew them?

Philip Foday Tommy: No.

Commissioner Torto: Have you heard about your wife that was taken to Liberia?

Philip Foday Tommy: Yes I heard that she was in Freetown but her relative said she is in Daru. When I got this information, I went to her parents and explained to them. The chief advised me not to go in search of the lady at the time; if she loves me she will come. I decided to wait and see.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have children?

Philip Foday Tommy: Yes I have two children Joseph Tommy and Mommy Tommy; they are here with me going to school.

Commissioner Torto: What are you doing now?

Philip Foday Tommy: I am a teacher. I use my salary to take care of my children.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: We are sorry for the loss of your brother and wife. Do you think that you were a special target for the rebels?

Philip Foday Tommy: I don't want to believe that.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Why didn't you take your wife and children with you?

Philip Foday Tommy: At that time I had no money and the children were small.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: I would have thought that as an educated man you would have made your own decisions.

Philip Foday Tommy: Is it against the law to chase a woman that is taken from you.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: What kind of law?

Philip Foday Tommy: That was an advice from my people.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: It was an advice and not a law.

Philip Foday Tommy: People advised me not to look for her.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: At that particular time it was a good decision but I know of no law under civil society concerning chasing your wife. Thank you.

Leader of Evidence: You said an ECOMOG soldier killed your brother.

Philip Foday Tommy: That was what I was told.

Leader of Evidence: In which year?

Philip Foday Tommy: In 1993.

Leader of Evidence: ECOMOG was not here by then, to my knowledge ECOMOG arrived in 1997.

Philip Foday Tommy: I spoke about Guinean soldiers they came to this country before that time.

Leader of Evidence: So the Guineans were not ECOMOG?

Philip Foday Tommy: That was the information I got.

Leader of Evidence: After the abduction of your wife, you got angry and your wife was taken to a barray. They were attacked by the Kamajors with the hope of taking your wife from them.

Philip Foday Tommy: I was confused and there was nothing I could do.

Leader of Evidence: Did you join the Kamajor to get her back?

Philip Foday Tommy: It did not occur to me.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any questions to ask the Commission?

Philip Foday Tommy: Yes why have you brought us here? Is to remind us about the things we went through?

Commissioner Torto: We have called you here because we are concerned about you. We know that you have suffered a lot, we want to know what happened to you, who did it and why. We can only do that if we talk to you. Any other question?

Philip Foday Tommy: Yes, will the Commission help me to get my wife back?

Commissioner Torto: We'll analyse the situation and see how best we can help out. If possible, we can refer you to some NGOs that can help you trace your wife.

Commissioner Torto: Any recommendation?

Philip Foday Tommy: I will start with Tormabum. We had a rice mill that was destroyed. We have serious accommodation problems and we want government to rehabilitate the schools that were destroyed in our chiefdom. Also we need medical facilities.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for the recommendations.

DATE: 29TH MAY 2003
WITNESS NAME: Foday Mansaray (Christian)

WINESS NO: 031
REFERENCE NO: 3/23/3486

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Slyvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY:

Foday Mansaray: I was a security officer at the Panguma hospital. Before that, I was a Kamajor. I was going to work one day when I came across some men. One of them called me and said that they should arrest me because I am a Kamajor. They took the rice I was carrying on my head and after some struggle, I was overpowered. They tied and laid me on the ground. There was a small boy called Eco. He insisted that they should not set me free. There was Sergeant Kailondo who was from Kailahun. He tortured me. He had wanted to kill me with a knife, but his colleagues prevailed on him and took it from him. They however, stabbed me on my shoulder. They later stripped me naked. I later saw my boss Katuna who prevailed on them with the help of the chief. I was then released and Katuna advised that I go to Kenema. I refused because I did not want to leave my people unprotected. Gina, who tied me first, is now dead.

Commissioner Torto: On the 13 of the December 2002 you made a statement to TRC at Panguma. In your written statement, you said that one day people started looting and you were arrested for killing a soldier is that correct?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: How many?

Foday Mansaray: The time we fought they were eight in number they said they will kill me so I killed one of them in the end.

Commissioner Torto: Was he really a soldier?

Foday Mansaray: At that time he was wearing civilian clothes and military boots that was the reason why I say he was a soldier.

Commissioner Torto: In your written statement you said you killed two and now you say one.

Foday Mansaray: No, one.

Commissioner Torto: Later you joined the kamajor?

Foday Mansaray: Yes. After the threat.

Commissioner Torto: Who threatened you?

Foday Mansaray: The soldiers.

Commissioner Torto: Did you join them to revenge?

Foday Mansaray: No.

Commissioner Torto: What about the man that beat you up if you had seen him, as a Kamajor, what would you have done to him?

Foday Mansaray: I wouldn't have done anything to him, I came across him one day but I didn't do anything to him.

Commissioner Torto: What kind of assistance did you give to civilians?

Foday Mansaray: I rendered series of help. The hospital was not burnt down because of me. If Vega General of the catholic mission is present here he would testify that I am saying the truth. I took care of the hospital.

Commissioner Torto: During your campaign did you by accidentally kill a civilian?

Foday Mansaray: At that time no one died because I think and believe I was well protected.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Who was Eco?

Foday Mansaray: He was a soldier born of Panguma. He was one of those who destroyed Panguma; if he was alive he would have paid for that.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Is he dead?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: How did the fighting end?

Foday Mansaray: The fight in Korkie? The rebels came from Kenema, kono, Kailahun; we were in a meeting at this same place when we heard that the rebels were coming. We fought them with knives and chased them out of Korkie. We fought for five hours and it was during that time that the Kamajors got guns because when chased, the rebels would drop the gun and run away but if you say Kamajors received guns from government is a lie. If it was not for the Kamajors you wouldn't be seating where you are today.

Commissioner Torto: If I want to be initiated in a Kamajor what is the requirement?

Foday Mansaray: If you want to be initiated in any society you have to pay for it so that you can respect it.

Commissioner Torto: How much?

Foday Mansaray: the type of protection you require would determine the fee. If you need more protection, you will have to pay more. I paid more than the actual price that is why I am not afraid of anyone.

Leader of Evidence: You said you were a security officer at the Panguma hospital were you in the army?

Foday Mansaray: No.

Leader of Evidence: How did you kill the thief?

Foday Mansaray: We were fighting and in the process, I killed him but he didn't die instantly.

Leader of Evidence: There was a serious fight at Korkie can you tell us who you were fighting?

Foday Mansaray: At the time the soldiers and rebels were working together. They attacked the Kamajors and we drove them out of the place. We were based at Korkie.

Leader of Evidence: Were people killed on the side of the rebels and soldiers?

Foday Mansaray: When we arrived in the town in the morning, we saw corpses in the town dressed in combat.

Leader of Evidence: How many were killed on the side of the Kamajor?

Foday Mansaray: On that day only one person was injured but he did not die.

Leader of Evidence: How many soldiers and kamajors were there?

Foday Mansaray: I can't tell the number of the soldiers nor rebels Kamajors because we were many.

Leader of Evidence: They took over Korkie for two days?

Foday Mansaray: We were stationed at Korkie.

Leader of Evidence: Did any of you have guns?

Foday Mansaray: I have said it earlier on that we were not fighting with guns initially. The guns we had were those captured from the enemy.

Leader of Evidence: During the fight were you with guns?

Foday Mansaray: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Were those six people killed during the fight or after?

Foday Mansaray: After the fight we met them on the road.

Leader of Evidence: Other witnesses have told us that when rebels saw kamajors, they would run but in your own case it is different. Why?

Foday Mansaray: Rebels are stubborn. If they say they are going to fight, they will. If they say they are coming to attack this place at about 2p.m, they will, and not a second late.

Commissioner Torto: Do you have questions for us?

Foday Mansaray: This war that broke out this country came from the Temne line to Mende line; but we have heard that there is rehabilitation going on in the North but it is not happening in our own part of the country. I want to know why.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you very much for this question. It is an interesting question but I don't think I have the answer for you; the TRC is not a government. It is not a ministry. We are here to consolidate peace; TRC does not deal with issues along tribal lines. I beg you to forgive me for not giving the answer to your question. Two weeks ago the President, His Excellency Ahmed Tejan Kabbah, was here I believe you should have asked the government. Maybe he would have been the best person to answer your question.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any recommendation?

Foday Mansaray: Panguma hospital was destroyed, so we are asking the government to assist us rebuild it. It is a long distance from Panguma to Bo and Kenema and if someone falls sick, it is difficult to convey him to hospital, particularly considering the cost of transportation.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you for these recommendations. These are the kinds of recommendations the government is interested in because you hear many witnesses talking about personal houses, but in your own case you have made a recommendation concerning the road between kenema and the hospital what about the SLC Tongo field what do you want to be done about it?

Foday Mansaray: I want the government to rebuild it.

Commissioner Torto: It is taken into consideration.

WINESS NO: 032

The presiding Commissioner, Mr Sylvanus Torto, administered the oath.

TESTIMONY

Braima Koroma: What pains me most is my amputation. I was in Bowa when we heard that rebels were approaching our place. I advised my people that we should move to Tanima. I took my possessions to Tanima. One day, we heard that the rebels were close to Tanima, so I moved my belongings to the bush. One day, I was taking food and clothing to my mother when I was arrested and my hand was chopped off with a cutlass. I pleaded with them not to cut the right hand but one of them hit my mouth and broke two of my teeth. We struggled and later they over powered me and chopped off the right hand. I was brazed and sat on the wall. They moved around the town shouting in Mende and Krio. Some were in military clothes while others were in ordinary combat. When they left, I ran to the bush and the people I met there took me to Gerehun. Later I was taken to Kenema Hospital where I spent one month and two weeks. I was later taken to Freetown through the help of ICRC. I later returned to Kenema and Reverend Alimamy Kargbo helped us. Nobody, not even an NGO has come forward to help us.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for your testimony. We very much sympathize with your situation. Thanks to God you survived the war. Do you remember the people who inflicted such punishment on you?

Briama: I can't recall.

Commissioner Torto: What fighting group did they belong to?

Briama: Rebels.

Commissioner Torto: In 1993 there were many factions AFRC, RUF, SLA which of them?

Braima Koroma: RUF rebels. One of them told me that they were Foday Sankoh's men.

Commissioner Torto: Were you they only one who suffered this punishment?

Braima Koroma: Yes because I returned and did not see any body.

Commissioner Torto: Have you received any kind of assistance from any NGO?

Briama: I was given a gadget but whenever I put it on, it created problems for me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for making the effort to come to the Commission to tell us your ordeal. Sorry for the mishap. Nothing can be given to compensate you for the loss of your hands. Who is taking care of you and attending to your needs?

Braima Koroma: My mother is alive but too old and I have my children who are staying with me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: That is good. You have your wife and children looking after you, you still have a mother; it's a blessing to have a mother at that age.

Leader of Evidence: Did the rebels give you any reason why they amputated your hand?

Braima Koroma: No.

Leader of Evidence: Did they give any command?

Briama: No.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Braima Koroma: Yes. We have heard that assistance was given to amputees in Freetown and other areas, amputees here did not benefit at all, why have we been left out?

Commissioner Torto: Government does not build houses for amputees. There are other NGOs that provide structural facilities, Norwegian Refugee council built houses in Kabala and Kambia and they are doing it through the amputees association. I will encourage you to form an organization and that will do something. FNA groups are all over the country, they are presently in Kono but I don't understand your problem with your organization not affiliating with FNA, why you are lagging behind. Any other question?

Braima Koroma: No.

Commissioner Torto: Have you any recommendation?

Braima Koroma: Yes. The first is accommodation even in Kenema to pay rent is difficult. I have five children I want government to help me with their schooling. If I don't beg, my mother wife and myself we will all have nothing to eat. My landlord has reminded of my rent. I had to loan money to enable me be here. My problem now is that I have spent the whole day here, what should we eat this evening? I am appealing to the government to help me with accommodation. I used to have a lot of people around me, but because of the hardship I am going through they vanished. Even my little boy over there, while we were hiding in the bush, he had a problem with his eyes; my children are very small am asking government for assistance.

Commissioner Torto: Those are recommendations. Thank you, we have heard all what you you've said. You mentioned accommodation. That is a pathetic situation. You said five children. How old is your oldest son

Braima Koroma: He is fourteen years old.

Commissioner Torto: Is he going to school?

Braima Koroma: Yes.

DATE: 30TH May 2003

WITNESS NAME: Solomon Cooper (Christian) Representative of Amputee Association Kenema

WITNESS NO: New

REFERENCE NO:

The Presiding Commissioner, Justice Laura Marcus Jones, administered an oath on the Bible.

TESTIMONY

Solomon Cooper: I want to thank the Commission for giving me the opportunity to make this statement. I want to talk about the Association and then myself. (Shows scar on hip). Whilst travelling from Jorum to Kenema, we fell into a rebel ambush and I sustained gunshot wounds on my hip. The bullet was extracted here in Kenema but I was not fully recovered. I had to travel to Freetown where I received proper medical treatment. On my return to kenema, Reverend Alimamy B. Koroma formed the Amputee Welfare Association on the 20th February 2000; I became a member of this Association. We were doing well. Some of us were in camp and others outside. We usually held our meetings on Saturdays, even up till now. A project was written by (SEDO) Social Economic Development Organization and funded by Cause Canada.

An official from Norwegian Refugee Council came to Kenema and they promised to construct some buildings for amputees; it was broadcast on the radio and workshops were organized. Although they started building new structures at the sites, the constructions were not properly done. They demolished the buildings and a proper one was reconstructed at the site. After the construction of those houses, the officials of the Norwegian Refugee Council told us that the houses were for the amputees in Freetown, who were registered members of the Sierra Leone Amputees Association. We stormed the office of NaCSA in Kenema. Upon hearing this I travelled down to Freetown and took the matter up with NaCSA boss Mr Kanja Sesay and Mr Sidi Bah. They told me that they had received a similar complaint about the issue, but nothing was done. We then wrote a letter of protest, which we copied to about twelve NGO's and organizations, including the Paramount Chief and the press. We also issued another press release that the government of Tejan Kabbah does not seek the interest of the amputees in Kenema.

We then decided to use another strategy to display placards during the handing over ceremony of the houses. We were not going to allow them entrance to the camp. What they did was to come overnight; before we knew it, they had already resided in the houses.

We thank Sierra Leone Red Cross and appreciate their efforts in helping us in several ways; by getting us involved in skills training and offering us micro-credit facilities. Red Cross did a good job, we say bravo to them. They had been advocating for us on the radio to employ amputees, even if it was to serve as security personnel. In Freetown Cold Storage, Cause Canada, NRC, TRC employ amputees, but here in Kenema nothing is being done. We don't know why they had neglected us. Above all, they concentrate on victims rather than Amputees. What I notice in Sierra Leone is that when you do evil you are compensated. All the perpetrators are offered privileges to undertake whatever they desire in education and technical skills.

Three officials of NaCSA came and they registered all the amputees in Kenema. After the registration, nothing was done. To me it seems as if Freetown is Sierra Leone because all assistance is centred in Freetown. The only thing NaCSA did for us is that they supplied us 4 bags of rice and six cartons of soap to share among 115 Amputees.

The other sad part of my story is that the Action Aid took a snapshot of my bullet scar and displayed it on SLBS/TV in Freetown against my wish. Some money, about eleven million leones, changed hands. They told me it was for peace, but I never received anything as compensation from this organization. I protested to Action Aid and copied Human Rights Organizations and then the advert was stopped. Later, Action Aid put out my photographs on the Internet, which a friend, Sam ,in the USA saw; he called to inform me.

I am appealing to us all not to neglect the amputees. I was amputated during the war due to lack of medical facilities. My hand was amputated. But I still use my knowledge even though I have only one hand; I use it to earn my living. As for the association, I want to tell this Commission that we are suffering. We are well organized, and anyone saying that we are not united is telling lies. They can prove me right, being that we held meetings at 1 Bayoh Street, every Saturday at 10 a.m. in the morning. Some of our members had given testimonies here. We had taken a unanimous decision that we were not going to participate. But when the Commission came they sensitised us and we decided to send our people to testify.

We heard on the radio that when the amputees went to the camp the people refused to obey, but they were sensitised. We too thought it will happen here and some members of the Commission came and we were willing to give our statement. One of our members who worked in the TRC advised and persuaded us to register. He was told that the Chairman of the amputees is a difficult man. When I spoke with him, I had to move with him to the areas where we held our meetings. He later confessed that they've told him many things about me. But he had proved that I am a simple man. I then told him that it is the way people portray my image. I told him that we should work in solidarity. I explained our plight to him. He told me that they are going to form a national body.

We the Kenema amputees again showed up in T-Shirts on the launching of the musical track called "Destiny" it was also televised on the SLBS/TV. The Nigerian Contingent in Kenema saw it and was moved. They phoned our Coordinator and promised to send us a gift, it was broadcast over the radio that they had donated $500 and used clothing to the amputees but nothing was done.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We have been wondering why the amputees don't seem to have much help; what you have said throws some light over the position here. We are going to ask you few questions here just to elucidate some of the points. Is there an Amputee camp in Kenema?

Solomon Cooper: There was a camp for internally displaced people.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Does the camp still exist?

Solomon Cooper: No. NaCSA said we should be repatriated so we then abided by the government's regulation. Some of us are now dwelling with friends, and there are no more houses in our villages.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Well the amputees are here not only in Freetown, but there are Amputee camps in Koinadugu, how many members are in your association?

Solomon Cooper: We were about 115 members, amputees and the war-wounded. The houses you spoke about are in areas that I had traveled to. They had one camp in Makeni, going towards Kabala; the number was about 45. There were others in Kambia, Port Loko, and Masiaka and of course Grafton, Bo and Moyamba. We had four that were built for amputees who were in Freetown and had decided to come to Kenema. In all the areas I have mentioned, there were amputees who were at Aberdeen camp. Not that they had camps specifically in the areas where the rebels had attacked and destroyed. According to the Norwegian Refugee Council the first phase was about 250.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you, I understand your plight, and I suppose something will be done in future.

Commissioner Torto: We thank you for your testimony; I have few clarifications to make. Are the Amputees in Kenema registered with the Sierra Leone Amputee Association?

Solomon Cooper: We were registered with the government through the Ministry of Social Welfare, we had never heard about the National Amputee Welfare Association.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know Jusu Jakka? He was the Chairman for the Aberdeen Camp. Is he not the Chairman for the Amputee Association? He is the Chairman for the Association. However, registering with the Ministry of Social Welfare's support programme is different from the Amputee Association. To register with NGO's, there are certain conditions in order to be eligible and that is where the Amputee Association came in and all aid went through this Association. Does your Organization contact the Norwegian Refugee Council?

Solomon Cooper: Yes they registered us in 2001?

Commissioner Torto: What is the current position?

Solomon Cooper : Nothing is done, the woman that came went to search for funding. I visited her but she was busy in the office and only took a day and returned. No further conversation was made. Our colleagues in Freetown told us that if we want houses we should go and stay in Freetown.

Commissioner Torto: I just want to know where the problem lies; maybe it was because you were not registered at that time with the Norwegian Refugee Council.

Solomon Cooper: The Association in Freetown, to be precise, are not fair with us. They are aware that amputees are in Kenema they should have informed us that they had formed an Association that they would like us to join. It is only today that I know about the existence of such an Association. Now we will do a follow-up with them in Freetown.

Commissioner Torto: In fact we have two of these Organizations; we have the War Wounded and the Amputees Association. Please make effort to find out. I know it is very disheartening to listening to your ordeals. Under what condition were you filmed?

Solomon Cooper: I don't even know, I got the information from friends.

Commissioner Torto: Have you contacted the Director of Action Aid?

Solomon Cooper: I went to there office in Lumley, the matter was reported to Sam Musa, who was the coordinator, I even told him that I have contacted my lawyer and it is still not late, I am going to pursue the case.

Commissioner Torto: I encourage you to pursue the case. It is your right; you need to stand up for your right. It is even worst to be shown on the Internet. The next issue is the five hundred dollars; after the launching of the track, whom did they give this money to pass on to you people?

Solomon Cooper: The money was not given to us directly; we heard that the Nigerian Contingent of UNAMSIL donated it to the Amputee Camp in Aberdeen. Before then, our coordinator told us the Nigerian had called him saying that they love the album "Good heart Kombra". We thought that some of that money should be given to us.

Commissioner Torto: Have you contacted the regional office to know whether the money was for you?

Solomon Cooper: They said the money was dedicated to Amputees, but, as you had rightly said that it was because we were not registered that was why we did not benefit from the gifts.

Commissioner Torto: Make sure you find out, 115 amputees have their dependants; make an effort to find out who actually received the money. You are not really sure who received the money. I want you to make a follow up; the money may not be much, but you are entitled to a portion.

Commissioner Torto: Every other statement is taken in good part; it is being recorded. But those are the few areas you should be sensitive about. Especially concerning the film that they had shown over Internet; take it up even with the human rights section, explore everything within your knowledge. I will encourage you to register with the Association in Freetown; it is not too late. Follow up that as well. Thank you.

Leader of Evidence: Is your organization representing the amputees and war wounded in Kenema Town or Kenema District?

Solomon Cooper: Yes, it is an umbrella Association for the entire Eastern Region.

Leader of Evidence: We have met the Amputees Association in Bo and Makeni; I want to know whether your association is an independent one. I want to know whether in the places you have mentioned there are amputees that came from Freetown, which means that they had members all over the country. I want you to clarify that point.

Solomon Cooper: In those houses built in the various areas were internally displaced persons who went and settled in Freetown. What they did was when they were asked to go back; they said they had nowhere to go. For us in Kenema when we were asked to go out, we obeyed instructions. We could not have gone to Freetown since there was no access road; the rebels had occupied the route to Freetown. We had anticipated going to Liberia, which was why we were based in Kenema. There were Amputees out of Kenema, who registered with us whilst they were here. We catered not specifically for Kenema, but for the entire district. What we should do now is to register with the national body.

Leader of Evidence – So the most urgent need for the amputees in Kenema is shelter and food, is that so?

Solomon Cooper: When I was explaining I spoke about Red Cross. Our most urgent need is Shelter.

Commissioner Marcus -Jones: Now we have heard your testimony, do you have questions for the Commission?

Solomon Cooper: In the TRC before giving a testimony we are asked to take an oath and questions are raised as to whether witnesses would recognize the perpetrator, is TRC not the witness for the Special Court?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I must say I am disappointed at you. Commissioner Torto came to Kenema and did some Sensitisation; since we came we've been to the radio station for three nights sensitising people about the mandate of TRC. And we've been explaining the differences between TRC and Special Court. Even this morning I mentioned that witnesses had nothing to fear, we have nothing to do with Special Court we are different. The Special Court is a body with money, they do their own investigation, they have investigators they can find out what they want to know. They are not depending on TRC at all. Special Court has made statements that we have no business in common. The only link we have is that both TRC and Special Court are working for peace and justice in the country. The Special Court will indict people and at the end of the trial, they give their verdict, so that peace will prevail. Whereas TRC has nothing to do with that, what we want is to reconcile people to bring permanent peace in Sierra Leone. Those statements we took from people are with us and are confidential documents. All the staff took an oath of confidentiality and if they break it they will be sacked. Have you any other question?

Commissioner Torto: Let me add to what our Commissioner has said. We've heard that there was a doubt as to whether we have made points clear to people, or people don't want to understand. And if somebody as enlightened as you can still come out and make a statement like this, then we need to double our effort as to make it clear to people. In order for you to understand more, we will hand over a booklet to you so that you know the difference between the TRC and the Special Court. After the testimony you will receive the book and help us to propagate the difference between the TRC and Special Court.

Solomon Cooper: It is a deliberate question, because people were having different views about the role of the TRC. When you listened to the jingles you will understand better. The hearings in Freetown took the whole of the day but in Kenema before six in the evening the session ended. Maybe they had not been getting the meaning of TRC. Sensitisation had not gone down well, for people to come out and talk. People should have come out to talk in the open. We have gone to some workshops where people spoke about how they chopped off people's hand. If we have not heard that, then TRC has to do more in Kenema. For me Mama Bondu and the Leader of Evidence did convince me to come out. In Freetown, people watch TV and they are aware of the work of TRC. People in Kenema are not sensitised enough to know the difference between the TRC and Special Court. In this hearing nobody has come out to testify that he had killed the relative of somebody in the audience and the process of reconciliation done; it has never happened here. If this recommendation is forwarded to Government and then Government fails to implement it, what will the Commission do?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Sensitisation was done even before we started the hearings phase. I will answer your question. The recommendations will be handed to government; the civil society will have to do something so that the recommendations will be implemented. Somebody like you should be able to explain to your association and to other people as well. In Kenema we have a District and a Regional coordinator. If you have your questions you can put it to them. The Commission also received submissions from individuals and organizations; if you so desire to make one it is not too late. Now that I have reassured you that your recommendation will be considered, have you any recommendations to make to the Commission?

Solomon Cooper: Yes, I recommend the provision of shelter, education, medical facilities food and a Centre for skills training for all Amputees.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for your recommendations, it will be included in our report.

TESTIMONY

Frederick Lansana:In 1997 when AFRC took over power from the legitimate Tejan Kabbah government, rebels came from the bush and joined the military. We were in Luwoma area and whilst in the bush we ran short of food. People were moving from their location to search for food. One day, I left Luwoma for Tongo to collect food. When I arrived the soldiers and rebels had mounted checkpoints. One of the soldiers accused me of being a kamajor informant. I was stripped naked and beaten. They took me to the PRO, Dennis Mannah. Upon my arrival I was beaten and asked to enter the basement of a building where I spent the night. The next morning, they took me out and Dennis Mannah reported that, I used to give information to the Kamajors about the rebels; I was flogged and they stabbed me with a bayonet. I was locked in the guardroom where I spent three days. They told me that I was going to die in three days time. We were all lined up. Fortunately for me Captain Demor who was the Captain in Charge of the Secretariat in Kenema saw me and instructed that I should be taken to his office. Whilst in his office he advised them not to kill me.

He told them he had instructed the Kamajors to join them; if they started killing kamajors, then they will not come out. He advised me to go and take a bath. A soldier, Morie, was assigned to accompany me and he told me that if I returned to the office it will be dangerous; he assisted me to escape and I went to the Segbwema Hospital. That was during the time of the ECOMOG intervention.

Commissioner Marcus Jones: Thank you for your coming. We are sorry you suffered in that way. You said in your statement that you were given a cut on your palm have you got the mark. Do you mind to stand and show us the cut?

Frederick Lansana – (Shows scar to Commissioners).

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why do you think they did that to you?

Frederick Lansana : I believe they just wanted to be wicked.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why your palm?

Frederick Lansana: They hit me with the butt of the gun when I resisted they used the bayonet.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you Mr Lansana, Thank God nothing more serious happened to you. Where is Dennis Mannah who gave you that cut?

Frederick Lansana : He is still in Tongo, even when the Statement Takers went to obtain statement I told them he is in Tongo. He is an RUF combatant.

Commissioner Torto: Is it possible to invite him here if we made the effort?

Frederick Lansana: He is still there.

Commissioner Torto: What about Captain Demoh who helped you escape?

Frederick Lansana – I've not seen him since then.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you.

Leader of Evidence: You said you were accused of being an informant for the kamajors, is that correct?

Frederick Lansana: No.

Leader of Evidence: You were not a kamajor?

Frederick: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us something about Dennis Mannah, what is he doing in Tongo?

Frederick Lansana: He is a miner in Tongo.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: If we are able to invite him, will you at any stage be ready to meet with him?

Frederick Lansana: For the sake of peace I 'm ready.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Well we will make the effort for the reconciliation process. Have you any question to ask the Commission?

Frederick Lansana: I have no question.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have any recommendation for the Commission?

Frederick Lansana: Yes, the road from Tongo to Luwoma is not motorable, there is no good drinking water, infrastructure like community centres and the rebels destroyed schools.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much Frederick Lansana, if we succeed in getting Denis Mannah we will let you know.

WITNESS NAME: Musu Koroma(Muslim)

WITNESS NO: 1/25/138

REFERENCE NO:

An oath on Koran administered by the Presiding Commissioner, Justice Laura Marcus Jones.

TESTIMONY

Musu Koroma: We were in Mano Kotohun when we heard that rebels had attacked the town of Talia. We fled from there and spent a week in a nearby village. We later heard that the rebels had reached close to our village and left for Kenema. We were staying in Kenema when we ran out of food, so we separated, and some went into the bush whilst others went in search of food.

We were given supplies and I sold part of it and bought two gross cigarettes; I went with it to Talia and I was doing business, when the soldiers informed we that they had received a letter from the rebels of an imminent attack on our village. Their intention was to fight with the Kamajors. They told the kamajors about that and suggested an ambush at Banana Highland. However, the secret was leaked by one of the soldiers. Later, one of the soldiers, Mohamed, came with an RPG gun. He went to the Headquarter close to where we were staying. As he was about to enter, they stopped him from entering the office. He was dead drunk and he put the RPG on the ground with force and it exploded. Two of my sisters who were sitting in the veranda died. By that time, I was lying in the room. I then saw a blazing fire at the door; I thought that the rebels had entered the town. After the sound died down, I came out of my room and saw four dead bodies, including my sisters' on the veranda. I was shouting going towards the town, people heard me cry and they all came out; due to the explosion I was half deaf. He was matched to the headquarters for interrogation because the fragment also hit one of his colleagues. A soldier called Staff Yaja, had two wives, one of whom said that her own child resembles the husband; the co-wife, upon hearing this took the child and wanted to kill the child. When the woman came back to breastfeed her baby she couldn't find the child. She reported the matter to her husband, all of us who were in the surrounding were asked to come out, and we were manhandled by Staff Yaja and his men. Staff Yaja was claiming that the Kamajors and civilians in the village did the act.

Pastor and a soldier, Iceman, told us to go in search of the child. We followed the bush path and luckily for us we saw the child lying on the grass crying. We brought the child back to the village, and she was all right. The lady was mercilessly beaten and she finally admitted to stealing the child. She said that her husband had said that her co-wife's child resembles him more than her own child. The child was taken to hospital in Segbwema. The lady and her husband were asked out of the village by the kamajors. Soldiers became inhuman to us, so I decided to come to Kenema. We were in Kenema when we saw Kamajors moving towards Mambu Street; we all abandoned the area fearing the battle between Brima and his group. They were many. There was no chance for us to go out, particularly those of us who stayed by the hotel. There was a great battle in that area.

One day they ordered us out and looted our possessions, and burnt down our houses. We who were in Mambu Street only survived by the grace of God. We eventually came to Jojoima and settled in the bush. We spent 12 days in the camp. The juntas went in the area and told us that they wanted peace and we should move out from the bush. They captured some of us, some were wounded and some were killed. Jojoima is not our hometown, those who were citizens decided to hide at night and we followed them. We suffered a lot in that village and eventually came to Kenema.

In Kenema a boy who claimed to be a kamajor, informed us that he had killed our brother who was a soldier. Since then we were separated from his wife and children.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We are sorry that you suffered all round. How far are these places to Kenema? Talia and Bojibu, just give us an idea.

Musu Koroma: Bojibu is about 16 miles from Kenema and Talia is half way from Kenema to Segbwema.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What about Jojoima?

Musu Koroma: Jojoima is in Kailahun District.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Is it true that you have to roam all these places because the fighting forces made Kenema a hell for you?

Musu Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So you suffered from the Kamajor, SLA and Junta?

Musu Koroma : I didn't suffer in the hands of rebels, but in the hands of the kamajors and SLA. The only time I can recall suffering in the hands of the rebels was when there was a fight between the rebels/soldier and kamajors.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: In your written statement, you mentioned that your uncle and father were killed by SLA but you did not mention it in your verbal statement, is that correct?

Musu Koroma: the juntas killed them.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why was your brother who was a soldier, killed by a Kamajor?

Musu Koroma: It was due to the animosity between the soldiers and kamajors. If a soldier set eyes on kamajor he is dead and vice versa.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What happened to your husband, was he a soldier or a kamajor?

Musu Koroma: My husband was not a member of any fighting force that was why we suffered.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you tell us how long the rivalry and fighting between the kamajors and soldiers went on?

Musu Koroma: They fought twice, the last one, we could not withstand so we moved out.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: How long did they go on fighting, was it a period of two or six months?

Musu Koroma: It didn't last for a month.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you Musu Koroma, can you just go over the facts of your story, as to why the child was stolen?

Musu Koroma: She took the child because her husband said the child resembles him more than her own children.

Commissioner Torto: So what did she want to do with the child?

Musu Koroma: She wanted to poison the child.

Commissioner Torto: With caustic soda?

Musu Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Was he a member of any of the fighting forces?

Musu Koroma: He was a soldier.

Commissioner Torto: What happened to the soldier who dropped the RPG, you said he did not die on the spot?

Musu Koroma: He died late in the night.

Commissioner Torto: Do you remember the kamajor who told you that he killed your brother?

Musu Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know where he is now?

Musu Koroma: I heard that he is in Zimmi.

Commissioner Torto: Are you certain, or did somebody tell you he is there?

Musu Koroma: Somebody told me he is in Zimmi; I have never been to Zimmi before.

Leader of Evidence: What does the name Sergeant Yaya remind you of, who is he?

Musu Koroma: He was the second in command in Talia.

Leader of Evidence: Second in command of which group?

Musu Koroma: He was a soldier.

Leader of Evidence: Who was Wanja?

Musu Koroma: Wanja was a Ground Commander.

Leader of Evidence: Who is Fatmata Samura?

Musu Koroma: A witness who can bear witness to my testimony.

Leader of Evidence: Who is Chief Sama?

Musu Koroma: He is another witness that can testify of how the RPG exploded and killed my sisters.

Leader of Evidence: Brima Koroma as well?

Musu Koroma: Yes.

Leader of Evidence: Are Wanja and Sergeant Yayah responsible for the death of your sisters?

Musu Koroma: No.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know the names of those who were responsible for the death of your sister, brother and father?

Musu Koroma: Mohamed killed my sister; he is dead. Sao killed my brother.

Leader of Evidence: Is Sao still alive?

Musu Koroma: I heard he is still alive, but I have never set eyes on him.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know where he is?

Musu Koroma: I heard that he is in Zimmi.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: The Kamajors and SLA's, who made life more miserable for you in your town?

Musu Koroma :It was the SLA's.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you see any of the SLA's here in Kenema?

Musu Koroma: Wanja was here at one time but he is in Freetown now.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you say you don't see any of them in Kenema?

Musu Koroma: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you very much for coming, we see that life was so miserable for you and you had to be running all over the place. If these perpetrators are here they would have been ashamed of themselves; I know we are all yearning for peace to prevail. Have you any question you want to ask the Commission?

Musu Koroma: Yes. When the TRC staffs were passing around to take statements, we gave them statements in our houses, but I am explaining now in public. My concern is that the perpetrators, if they have relatives here, they've heard us; would they not repeat the same act to us? Most people tried to prevent me from giving this testimony. Because I am a Sierra Leonean and I love my country and love development for myself, I told them I must come forward to explain. Even if I happen to die as a result of that, I will not be a stranger in heaven; I have my father and relatives who are there already.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When you made your statement, you indicated that you wouldn't mind to participate in the hearings in public that was why you were invited. We wish we would have more people of your type with the courage and determination to come out. If the relatives of the perpetrators are here, they will be thinking to correct the wrongs of their children and try to amend them, not to insult you again. People cannot do wrong and expect not to be told about the wrong they have done. The mandate of the TRC is that people should hear about the evil they have done and decide to change so that peace would prevail in our country. People thought they had achieved something by wrong doing; they have destroyed the little we have acquired in the country and made life miserable for themselves, so sensible people will be thinking about better education and development in their different communities and to be happy to be alive. When you leave here you can talk to our briefer about witness protection.

Commissioner Torto: Let me explain about witness protection for the understanding of you and others who are afraid of testifying. We did not think your testimony would cause any problem at all. If you think your testimony is going to cause you problem, let us know, we have a witness protection mechanism. If you think that people in the audience or radio will disturb you, let us know, we have a mechanism to forestall such situations. We want you to be happy, rather than frustrated, for coming. It is no secret that the kamajors and the SLAs were fighting instead of protecting the civilians; we have heard testimonies about such atrocities caused by these two groups.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have questions to ask the Commission?

Musu Koroma:No question.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to the Government?

Musu Koroma: Yes. In our village, Manokotohun, we have no school. Our children want to be educated, we conduct school session in a hut; during the rains there is no School. The road leading to our village is destroyed, we need Constructions of new roads; in upper Nongowa chiefdom we need a secondary school; this has led to a lot of school dropouts. I am appealing to the government of Tejan Kabbah, to assist lactating mothers to educate our children; if they were educated there would have been no war. All of us in Mambu street, our houses were destroyed; we are appealing to the government for the reconstruction of our houses; the women are appealing for micro credit facilities in our chiefdom.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you. Our briefer will talk to you on the issues of micro-credit and training facilities. All your recommendations will be included in our report, thank you for coming; you are such a sensible and progressive woman.

WITNESS NAME: Seibatu Kallon (Muslim)

WITNESS NO: 24/04/03

REFERENCE NO:

The Presiding Commissioner, Justice Laura Marcus Jones, administered the oath on the Koran.

TESTIMONY

Seibatu Kallon: My village, Barsolia, is behind the Kambui Hills and was frequently attacked by soldiers. They killed our people and burnt down our houses. It was during the reign of the AFRC. At that time the issue of Kamajor movement was centred in Bo. At about 4 a.m soldiers and rebels attacked our village; the soldiers advised us to go into our houses and shut the doors because the fighting was fierce. They advised us not to go to the bush because of stray bullets. Four of us went under the bed, whilst other civilians who were familiar with rebel attacks ran into the bush. Since that was my first experience, I heeded the advice of the soldiers. We were in the house whilst my husband ran to the bush. When the Kamajors retreated and left the village to the AFRC soldiers, one of them knocked on our door and threatened to kill us if we didn't open the door. We opened the door and four of us came out. They released the three girls and the little kids and I was taken away. My captives told me that I was beautiful and they are taking me along with them; I should not fear, they would not kill me. The Commander told me that I was going to be his wife and he would take care of me. When they retreated there was only one of them who were left behind and he set the house on fire. The commander, Papa, who forced me to be his wife, was killed.

Another soldier and a female soldier ordered me to carry a bushel of rice for them. Before Papa was killed he had a G3 gun; after his death other soldiers took the gun from him and abandoned his body. It was during the heavy rains at that time and the female soldier, Musu, told me that I am no longer going to be part of them that they are going to kill me. I pleaded with them that I preferred going with them than to be killed. Because I mentioned God's name they were annoyed all the more and said they were not going to release me. In the evening they took me to the farm, behind the cemetery and Musu hit me with the gun butt. Mohamed pleaded on my behalf and they gave him an ultimatum that if he wanted to be alive, he should stay away from my issue. I fell unconscious when she hit me with the gun butt.

They put my hands on a stick and started chopping my hands from my fingers up to the point where it is now. And she threatened to slaughter me from the back fearing that I will identify them in the hereafter. Because of the wounds and cuts all over my body they abandoned me thinking that I was dead.

The other group that came wanted to rape me, but somebody told them not to rape a dead woman. I was bleeding profusely and there was blood all over my face, I couldn't walk properly but I staggered until I get to the town. It was exactly a mile. I want to believe that my mother's ghost and God led me. I heard somebody speaking to me saying that if I go to the hospital, I would not die that I should follow him; I followed him. Whilst they were cutting my hands they were calling names like Brima, Mohamed, they were over 200. I followed the ghost until I reached the town, she advised me to enter the compound and lie down and if people discovered me they will come to my aid.

My uncle also met them and he was severely beaten with a stick that had nails on it. He was accused of being a Juju man who prevented them from entering the village. I lay there drinking from a bucket of water that later turned to blood. Each time I put my mouth in the bucket, the blood on my face would spill into the bucket. I wasted a lot of blood that night. When my uncle met me in that condition he was terrified he ran way from me.

He called some people to help him carry me to the hospital. Because of my condition they told him that before reaching the hospital at Kenema I would die. He insisted and eventually I was taken to the hospital but I did not receive any medical treatment due to lack of money. My Uncle who was in Bo finally came and he removed me from that hospital to Dr Banya's hospital, where I was admitted for nine months. My sister, Yata, was with me in the hospital. She was very helpful to me, she used to sell salt so that we would have food.

The doctor said except the fingers were removed from my hands it would not heal up, so he amputated the right hand and two fingers from my left hand. I have only three fingers now. I was not cured in those nine months, my sister who was assisting me was pregnant and her husband insisted that we must go back to the village. Rebels again attacked us, so we spent most of our time in the bush. My Mother, Mammy Kallon, took me to Tongo. My sister then gave birth but the baby died shortly after his birth. We were in Tongo throughout the reign of the AFRC Junta. Whilst in Tongo we were under constant rebel harassment and this made us to leave for Segbwema. Segbwema was also attacked.

One day, when I was in the hospital, one day one of the perpetrators met me in the hospital, with a bullet wound on his mouth. He was shocked when he saw me thinking that I will identify him. He pleaded with the doctor to treat him fast because he wanted to go somewhere. He couldn't look into my eyes. After receiving treatment he hurriedly left the hospital. After he left, I told my sister and she was annoyed with me, saying that she would have ordered his arrest. I told her I would not do anything to hurt anybody but I leave everything to God, as he is the best judge.

Another time we went to the Town Field in kenema. There again I met two of the other perpetrators, and one of them said, "look at the girl whom we thought was dead" I told them that I am created by God and he made it possible for me to be alive. Since then I have never set eyes on any of them. I am still suffering from the pains on my head and all over my body. Because I had wasted so much blood I now experience problems with my eyesight.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Your story is a very sad one; we sympathize with you. It is clear that you were not meant to die. So having recovered your life, now, try and make the full use of it. We believe you had a guardian angel, I suppose that angel will still continue to be with you. From the testimony we heard about people who were abducted and taken into the bush and were about to be killed and most times, women pleaded on their behalf, why do you think this female soldier was so wicked to you?

Seibatu Kallon: I don't know. Only God knows.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you still receiving medical attention?

Seibatu Kallon :No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I think you should still continue treatment, while taking your baby to the hospital you should also try to see the Doctor.

CommissionerTorto:Thank you for sharing your experience with us. I admire the fact that you have started the process of reconciliation even, though you were still suffering from pains, you refused to identify them at this age. I congratulate you. Under what circumstances was Papa killed?

Seibatu Kallon: He was killed by another group of Juntas.

Commissioner Torto: Under what circumstances was it by accident or fight?

Seibatu Kallon: He was trying to protect other people and he was killed.

Commissioner Torto: Was he protecting you?

Seibatu Kallon: Yes, he died protecting us.

Commissioner Torto: Which particular group of juntas?

Seibatu Kallon: He was killed by the kamajor.

Commissioner Torto: Were you the only victim or were others were involved?

Seibatu Kallon: I was the only one who sustained wounds but others were killed, including my Uncle.

Leader of Evidence: Could you tell us the name of your Uncle who was killed?

Seibatu Kallon: Mohamed Kabala

Leader of Evidence: Who actually told you to stay in your houses?

Seibatu Kallon: The kamajors advised us to stay in our houses.

Leader of Evidence: You said when you were unconscious the rebels attempted to rape you again, does that mean you were raped initially?

Seibatu Kallon: No.

Leader of Evidence: You said you met some of these perpetrators, do you know their names?

Seibatu Kallon: They are Amadu, Mohamed and Bockarie.

Leader of Evidence: Do you know their real names?

Seibatu Kallon: I heard their colleagues calling their first names.

Leader of Evidence: Have you come in contact with Musu?

Seibatu Kallon: No.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have any question for the Commission?

Seibatu Kallon: I am an orphan; I don't have relatives, only my sister and the man I am staying with whom I had this child. We are living in a deplorable condition. We don't even have a room of our own, we sleep in the sitting room, we have to fetch firewood in the bush and sell. The person who went to collect me met me on a local mattress in the market. I am appealing for assistance, I don't have food and shelter and I have pains all over my body. I ask the Commission to assist me with my child. I would also need medical assistance for my eyes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: When we finish this session, our briefer will assist in that area. Any other question?

Seibatu Kallon: After my explanation, what would have happened if these perpetrators had been here?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones – Nothing would have happened. They would have felt ashamed of themselves, and if you had named them, we would have invited them to say something for themselves, and if they had admitted their wrongdoing, we could have, arranged for them to ask for your forgiveness. Any more questions?

Seibatu Kallon: No more questions.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you have recommendations to make to the Commission for onward transmission to the Government?

Seibatu Kallon: Food, shelter, medical assistance and the welfare of my child. I cannot do anything for myself, I don't have my hands to do hard work and cannot see clearly. I am no more beautiful, even if I am well dressed. If I lose my eyesight then I have no future.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Our briefer will refer you for medical help and other possible means. As for beauty, the outward appearance is not important, what is within you makes you what you are. You will surely come across people who will appreciate your worth, you don't have to put yourself down; raise your head high, you are meant to live if not, you wouldn't be here now. So make the best of out of it for the sake of your baby and yourself. Thank you for coming.

TESTIMONY

Coomber Kanneh: I was in my village, Lalehun, when RUF rebels overpowered the Kamajors, and took over town. I fled to Kenema with my family. We were in Kenema struggling; going into the bush to fetch firewood. On a Friday one of our brothers, a Kamajor from Lalehun, told us that Kamajors had captured Tongo. We were all happy and I told my wife to return to the village. We then decided to take some money and domestic tools along with us. We departed. As we approached Manogay, we met the Kamajor checkpoint and they asked us where we were going. We were four in number; my brother Mohamed, and his wife, my wife and I. As we went further we were apprehended again; we told them that we were informed that our brothers had captured Tongo so we wanted to go and check on our relatives. They ordered us to pack all the items aside, and took us, to a house, locked the door, and one of the kamajors spoke through the window and asked us to open the window. He pointed a gun through the window; we were very uncomfortable. They took us out one after the other, to a place between Kenema and lower Bambara at the bridge. As they took the first one we heard two gunshots, that was what they did for the three people and it came to my turn. I refused, but I was forced to go. On my arrival I found the others still alive. They took our belongings from us and asked us to go back to Kenema.

However, we left the village and on our way back to Kenema, we saw a group of Kamajors, one of them called my name and said if they had not known me they would have killed me I begged them to give me easy access to Lalehun. I managed to reach Lalehun. I told my wife that she must return to Kenema, and narrate our ordeals to our relatives.

My Uncle who was in Segbwema was a Town Chief. He was happy when he heard that Kamajors had taken over Lalehun and he attempted to go. On his way, he met some kamajors having a meeting; he was arrested and accused of feeding the AFRC soldiers at Lalehun. They told him that whatever they said, he must accept. He was frightened and he was stripped naked, with a block placed on his head. They were blowing a trumpet behind him in the village saying that chief had arrived. When they reached Lalehun, my Uncle told me that they had captured him. I wanted to go with him but he told me to stay behind, as they are terrible people and I should not under rate them. We went to the guardroom the following morning and met two other prisoners with my uncle making a total of three.

The kamajors, one with a knife, one with a gun and the other with an empty five-gallon container that was open at the top, led my uncle away to some area. We were watching them from at a distance and we saw them descending a hill and they chopped off my uncle's head. When they returned, the five-gallon container was full of my Uncle's head and other parts of his body. We were asked to dance and they placed my Uncle's head on the veranda. I told them I that I will not dance. One of my Uncle's friends Samuel was called to dance as well. They met him pounding coffee; he had about Le250, 000, which he gave to them, and he ran into the bush. Those who killed my uncle are Sheku, Sahr, Brima Jalloh, and Vandy Momoh. After two days, one of their colleagues, a Kamajors named Laggah with a band on his head, came and asked for his own portion of the meat. He was directed to the scene and he went to the spot and we saw him coming back with a plastic bag containing the body of my uncle. My uncle was a carpenter; he left his children with me. That is my story.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you, that was a very heart-rending story and we notice how distressed you are. Sorry about the way they killed your uncle, so heartless. You said the people who did these things were Kamajors, is that correct?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes, they were kamajors.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What reason did they give for killing your uncle?

Coomber Kanneh: They accused him of supporting the rebels by cooking for them. However, he was forced as the Town Chief, to cook for the rebels when they were at Lalehun.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: From what I gathered, is it that they were going to use your uncle's head for food?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Did you actually see them cooking or you saw them preparing the food for cooking?

Coomber Kanneh: They killed him just to eat his body.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you give information about the process, how they cooked, where it was done?

Coomber Kanneh: It happened in Lalehun. I saw it happen. When they carried parts of the body in a five-gallon container. They were selling marijuana, alcohol and some other drugs at a spot. By then I used to smoke and drink so I went to the spot, and I met them cutting the body into small pieces. It was a very horrible sight.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you identify any of these people; are they around your area?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where are they?

Coomber Kanneh: One of them is dead.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: which one is dead?

Coomber Kanneh: The one who asked for his own portion.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What is his name?

Coomber Kanneh: Lagga.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What are the names of those who are still alive?

Coomber Kanneh: Sheku Sahr, Brima Jago, Vandy Womah; at that time I never knew his real name he was Vandy Kawa.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you know where they are, do you know their addresses?

Coomber Kanneh: One is still in Lalehun.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Which one is in Lalehun?

Coomber Kanneh: Sheku Sahr.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Can you give a definite address?

Coomber Kanneh: He is around the market area close to the Court Barray, in a town called Tohun, going toward Tongo.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Where is Brima Jago.

Coomber Kanneh: I heard that he is staying in Semewahun.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Do you know the area?

Coomber Kanneh can't tell.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: What about Vandy Woma?

Coomber Kanneh: He is in Panguma.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Which area in Panguma?

Coomber Kanneh: I don't know the area; if you want to get him I will try to locate him.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: it is a pity that you are only coming today; will you be willing to meet with these people if we can get them?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes, I am willing.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Are you willing to meet and reconcile with them?

Coomber Kanneh: I have forgiven them in my heart, I am not talking on behalf of my entire family, my sisters and brothers; I don't even want to recall the incident. When I told them that I want to reconcile they frowned at me. I told them that they don't even know what they did.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Why did you say they don't know what they did?

Coomber Kanneh: Whatever happens is in the hands of God. I am not revengeful.

Commissioner Torto: Thank you for this revealing testimony, I'll ask questions just to clarify some issues. When they led your uncle away you did not follow him, you later found out that he was killed, how do you think he was killed?

Coomber Kanneh: They brought his head.

Commissioner Torto: You did not hear gunshot?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: So you went to the site and found bloodstains on a wooden plank, which meant his head was chopped off.

Coomber Kanneh: They did not kill him with a stick, but a knife.

Commissioner Torto: Which part of his body did you see in the five-gallon container?

Coomber Kanneh: His liver, heart and part of his flesh.

Commissioner Torto: Did you see his limbs?

Coomber Kanneh: No.

Commissioner Torto: How then, were you sure that they were human parts?

Coomber Kanneh: I was convinced when I saw his head with one of the boys and I identified it.

Commissioner Torto: Was that the only incidence of cannibalism you know of, that was done by the Kamajors?

Coomber Kanneh: There are many others, which are not important to me.

Commissioner Torto: So you want me to believe that it was the usual habit of the kamajors that your uncle was not the only victim? I want to know whether it is the constant practice of the Kamajors.

Coomber Kanneh: Even if it happened elsewhere it was not my concern.

Leader of Evidence: You mentioned that your brother Mohamed was a Kamajor. Was he around when this incident took place?

Coomber Kanneh: He was not present.

Leader of Evidence: Did you inform him later?

Coomber Kanneh: I did not tell him, on his return he heard about it from other people.

Leader of Evidence: What was his reaction?

Coomber Kanneh: Mohamed is not my biological brother but a native of the same town, so he hadn't much to do.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Have you questions you want to ask about the Commission?

Coomber Kanneh: Yes, in a family there is a breadwinner, no matter what happens. He was my mother's elder brother, my mother died before him. What I am going through is really serious. I want to know if you will be of help to me, until my problem is settled down. I am a cow without a tail, no one to take care of my dependents and me.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: So that is the question you want to ask? What are your recommendations?

Coomber Kanneh: I am an asthma patient; I want you to help with my health and accommodation in our place; the construction of Schools and other infrastructure.

Coomber Kanneh: I am appealing with the president to offer help through my recommendations

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you for coming and we are sorry about the death of your uncle.

TESTIMONY

Borbor Orlando Brown: When the war struck in 1991, rebels entered Bunumbu. Our late Paramount Chief A.M. Farma, the late Pa Joki and the Chiefdom Speaker called a chiefdom meeting. They were concerned that there was a war and it was coming to our Chiefdom. Our chief and a few others left to speak to the Inspector General, Bambay Kamara. They brought the ULIMO fighters and SSD; I was instructed to work with them, because I am conversant with the terrain. They were replaced by the SLA. In 1992 the Military Coup of NPRC took place. The Resident Minister was Tom Nyuma, who set up a Security Network in our town. Dr Lavalie was the Chairman and I was an Executive member of the committee. I served in that capacity until the rebels took over Bunumbu. Lieutenant Kabia, Pa Abu Mansaray and I were separated from each other.

After we were repelled, I went to Panguma with the Chief and we later came to Kenema. I knew the rebels would enter Tongo so I came with the Chief. On 5th February 1994, I was at my place, 4 Sembabu Lane at 9.00a.m. when I saw two vehicles full of military men. The soldiers told me that Brigadier J.O.Y. Turay wanted to see me at Brigade Headquarters. I wanted to get dressed but they did not allow me; I was pushed out of the house and there was pandemonium in the area. At the headquarters, I met Brigadier Gottor, Brigadier Turay, Paul Thomas and Brigadier Andrew Koroma and an MIB Lieutenant. They told me that a captured rebel had testified that I was training them in Weima to use the AK 47; I told them that I was under the military and the SSD, if I was guilty of such an offence Kabia and Abu would have arrested me. I told them I am not guilty. A soldier slapped me and Idriss threatened to kill me; I told them if that is the will of God, so let it be. He said they are next to God; whatever they say will surely come to pass. They took me to another room where Paul Thomas, Major Andrew Koroma and other soldiers were. They said that this war is not a war for hunters; they took out a list and said that 25 of us will have to die. No. 1 on the list was Alpha Lavalie; I was the second on the list. I reminded them that if the rebels had implicated me I would have been arrested long ago.

Because of that, I was given several slaps and was taken to the guardroom and detained. Lieutenant Kabia told me not to bother myself as he had worked with me and I am faithful to him. They brought out my SLPP executive card. They asked if I knew anything about the card and I said yes. I told them I acquired it when the then President Momoh declared that the ban was lifted on political parties. When Lieutenant Kabia, in trying to defend me told them the accusation was baseless, he was slapped. They commented that a Temne man is defending a Mende man. The boy who they said told them I trained rebels to use the AK 47 said that burning cigarette stubs were put on his body for him to answer that I trained them. My wife later informed me that all my possessions had been looted. The man told my wife to bring me food. Whilst I was eating J.O.Y. Turay came with Idriss. He asked who gave me food, kicked it and ordered that I should be taken out and stripped naked. They kicked me all over my body and I was tied up, with my hands and feet behind my back. (Shows the scar). I was brought outside and all the children around came watching me. They hung me on a stick naked. They then put a rock on my back. My Chiefs heard my cry. The NPRC Officers were standing outside. I asked Gottor how he could stand and see me being disgraced when he attended school with my brother. J.O.Y. brought out a Camera and a recorder. He said that if I don't admit he would not release me. I asked him if my face resembles a rebel. They started putting burning cigarette stubs on me. I told them that they invited us to fight with them. I placed a curse on them and one said it was because they hadn't killed me.

They sold the copies of my nude photograph in Bo, saying that I was a rebel. J.O.Y. Turay tortured me by pouring kerosene all over my body, ready to set fire on me. I prayed that somebody would save me. Shortly, I heard Tom Nyumah call Lieutenant Kabia and ask him whether the allegations were true. Lieutenant Kabia said the he had tried to defend me but J.O.Y. Turay had slapped him.

The SSD said that if they had suspected that before, they would have arrested me. He took out the card and said that SLPP brought war in this country. Tom Nyuma said that if they had brought politics in the war even if I am an SLPP supporter I have fought for APC and NPRC. Alpha Lavalie promised to take the matter to State House, saying that even if I had committed such an offence they should have met to discuss such issues. Then one of the soldiers asked if Dr Lavalie will be alive to go to State House. Nyumah ordered my release. I was then taken to the hospital. The next day Tom Nyumah removed me from the hospital to Banya's hospital saying that he wanted me to be closer to him. The Bishop used to go to the hospital to pray for me until I recovered.

I want to say something about my son Borbor Orlando Brown Junior he was attending the Albert Academy, he came on holidays; he obtained permission from me to go and spend the holiday with some of our relatives in Panguma. I told him not to go because there was fighting between Kamajors and the Peoples Army. There was animosity; the People's Army would not come over to the Kamajor Area whereas the Kamajor would not go to the People's Army area.

One day I went to the chief and on my return, my son was nowhere to be found; in November my sister reported that my son was dead, that she saw his corpse amongst four others at Talama Junction. Upon investigation they said that four of them came from Tongo and the Kamajors killed them. That was what we were told. Then my wife said she wanted to know the real kamajors and who gave the information. The lady promised to give me the names of the kamajors. I told the Chief Hunter and P.K. Salieu Buckaroo that I had got the information about the death of my child and I would like to know if he knew anything about his death. I told him that when I was in the war front I had a committee set up to investigate matters concerning civilians. Then I asked him if there were such committees to deal with such issues, he said no and I told him that he is not a real leader.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: Thank you. We feel and sympathize with you. Indeed you were close to death. Thank God you are alive. I am sorry for the loss of your son.

Commissioner Torto: How many people were killed in the list of 25 shown to you?

Borbor Orlando Brown: Only Dr. Lavalie's whose death was reported, alleging that he fell in a Land Mine.

Commissioner Torto: So he was the only one killed on the list?

Borbor Orlando Brown: Yes.

Commissioner Torto: They told you that you were accused of training rebels, what were the charges of the other people?

Borbor Orlando Brown: They said we were all executive members of the Eastern Region Defence Committee.

Commissioner Torto: Do you know what happened to the boy, who was forced to say you were training rebels?

Borbor Orlando Brown: He was severely tortured and I don't think he survived it.

Commissioner Torto: Did you do a follow up?

Borbor Orlando Brown: There was no follow up; I was taken to the hospital. A few days later, Dr Lavalie was killed.

Commissioner Torto: Why didn't you make a follow up yourself?

Borbor Orlando Brown: I reported to Dr Demby, who was Vice President; I believe people were afraid of the military.

Leader of Evidence: How old was your son who was killed?

Borbor Orlando Brown: He was sixteen years old.

Leader of Evidence: Your sister told you that if you need the names of the Kamajors she would get their names. Is that correct?

Borbor Orlando Brown: I had advised her to wait. I have still not got the names of the perpetrators.

Leader of Evidence: Thank you very much.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We sympathize with you for all that had happened. Do you have any question for the Commission?

Borbor Orlando Brown: Is it possible to bring the people I have named before this Commission so that we can explain our grievances?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: If you can give the names and addresses of these people, then we can do a follow up. We already have your contact address. Are you willing to meet them and reconcile with them, because that is the mandate of TRC.

Borbor Orlando Brown: Yes.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: We will try to do our best. Any other questions?

Borbor Orlando Brown: I experience pains all over my body, due to the torture by these soldiers. Is there any assistance you can render to me for my health?

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: If you talk to the briefer you will be given addresses of some NGO's, who will assist, Looking at you, I thought you would be able to seek medical attention yourself: but if you still need help we can help. Do you have recommendations to be included in our report for the attention of government?

Borbor Orlando Brown: The people who did wrong to me were trained soldiers and they had taken an oath to protect lives and property of people in this country and since they deviated I will recommend that the law take its course.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: You know that some of these people have been trained and absorbed into the Army and we trust that they would have changed by now to keep to the oath they took and their commitment to serve the nation.

Commissioner Torto: We are actually here to reconcile, the Special Court will handle the other aspect of it, and you never know, some of them might be indicted.

Commissioner Marcus-Jones: I want you to make it clear that we have nothing to do with Special Court. I thank you.

TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARINGS IN KAMBIA DISTRICT – 9TH JUNE, 2003

Commission Chairman Bishop Joseph C. Humper called the hearings to a start with the singing of choruses. Interfaith opening prayers were said, Muslim prayers was done by the Chief Imam of the District and Christian prayers was done by Rev. Usman Fornah of the TRC. The Chairman of the Commission then outlined the rules and regulations of the hearings; he explained the goals and objectives of the Commission with due attention to the mandate of the TRC. The Chairman introduced the Commissioners present and made mention of the other Commissioners in the other team working in other districts. He went on to give the pattern to be adopted in the hearings .He stressed on the expectations from the witnesses as well as the expectation of decorum from members of the public and therefore the non-acceptance of indecorum and /or disturbance during the hearings .

The Leader of Evidence, Ms.Lydia Apori-Nkansah, asked that the Interpreter for the hearings be sworn in. The oath to the Interpreter,Mr. Foday Sesay, a Muslim by religion, was administered by Bishop Joseph C. Humper.

1st Witness –Mr. David L. Boulah – A Christian by religion. Bishop Humper administered the oath .

Commission Chairman Bishop Joseph C. Humper- Presiding .

Bishop J.C. Humper – We thank you for coming. We appreciate your presence and efforts made to be here today. Your cooperation here to push the peace and reconciliation process forward is as a result of your willingness to say the truth. You have come here to give your testimony and we have not come to take you to jail. We have to make a record and we expect you to say the truth. The worst disservice you can do is not to tell the truth to the Commission, but the best you can do for the Commission is to tell the truth, so that we can know the truth about what happened to you during the war.

Mr.David L. Boulah - Mr. Chairman and Commissioners, members of the high table, leaders and local authorities of Magbema Chiefdom and all people of Kambia District, I thank the Commission for giving me this opportunity to come and tell all that happened to me during the war. I am so happy that when the statement takers came to Kambia; I willingly came forward to give my statement. I am prepared to give you the true picture of what happened to me during the war. I will introduce myself officially to this Commission, who I am and where I come from. I am Mr. David L. Boulah, a native of Liberia. I am here in Kambia but you do not know me and why I am here or how I became part of the war. I came into Sierra Leone as a refugee in 1991. Because of certain circumstances, I went to a training base to train so that I can be part of the war. The armed group I was part of was the Liberia United Defence Force which was later renamed ULIMO. One way or another, I became a leader in this group and certain armed men of Liberia signed an agreement with the Government of Sierra Leone .The Government of Sierra Leone at that time was under the APC as the ruling party. The Sierra Leone Government gave us arms and we were fighting with the armed forces of this country. It was because of certain allegations concerning practices made against this group that I had to fight from Tongo field area through Javahun, Kovo and Benguema as well as Kpetema on a mission to verify the facts and make for corrections. Upon the death of Major Freekala the rebels were able to take control of Pujehun and we had to withdraw from Tongo field to Bo and Pujehun. We later carried out a counterattack and recaptured Pujehun. Between Pujehun and Bo we were able to push the rebels far from Bo district. In 1994, allegation was was again levelled against us; because in the confrontations between the ULIMO, the RUF and the SLA, the latter were not able to do anything. The allegation was that the ULIMO had connived with the RUF and that was the reason why the SLA always fell into the RUF ambush . Therefore we were disarmed in 1994 and brought to a camp at Allen Town for 9 months . Because the RUF was pushing forward and had come up to Rokel area, the government went and pleaded with our authorities who then agreed and gave us arms again to fight but our name was changed from ULIMO to Special Task Force . This agreement was signed with the NPRC. We were told we would be treated in the same way as the SLA . We were given ID cards, uniforms and arms. We were sent to Kono, Bo and Bonthe Districts. I was sent to Bo because I had been there before . There we went back into battles . The arms supply they gave us was in 1995. In 1996 our ammunitions got badly depleted while the war was very on . And we were fighting alongside the kamajors against the RUF; but we found out that the kamajors were against us. The kamajors attacked us in Matru Jong. In this circumstance we withdrew from all areas and came back to Freetown. In 1997 when the AFRC took over, as armed men we served the government of the day, during this time I was battalion QM for the Special Task Force. In 1997 when the intervention started in Freetown we were all in Freetown until when ECOMOG came to bring back the SLPP into power. The government disbanded the army and we all went back with the RUF into the jungle. During that time the AFRC regime had asked all RUF to come back from the bush to join them in town during the intervention; we were all driven back into the bush. Whilst back in the bush we still had to fend for our families. I had to get a bag of rice for my family, with that I added the salary I was paid in the field and gave them to my family. We took the Peninsular road and we crossed to Tombo; we walked by foot to Masiaka and from there we trekked to Makeni area. Those who were fortunate to get any vehicle went by vehicle, otherwise one had to trek. I walked with my wife and kids on foot. Then at last, my wife was lucky to get a ride. On the other hand, we, the fighting men, went as far as Koinadugu area; some went as far as Kono and Kailahun area. I stopped at Koinadugu. It was at Koinadugu that we came up with the plan to go to Kono and Kailahun to remove ECOMOG from their base. We were still in Koinadugu, when the first Jet came, I was the first person who got injury from the fragments from the jet, I was also involved in an accident which affected my left hand and my left foot. In the jungle people had to fend for me and my family until God helped me and my foot got healed by the time we got to Kambia. The advance team was to capture Makeni. I was in the base group. When we were about to go back into battle, I was made a battalion adjutant in the rank of captain until Makeni was captured. I started my own battle at Jungle Area. We were at the Rogbere junction. We used to attack the Guineans who travelled on that route; I was using RPG. Later there was another plan that had us withdrawn from Rogbere junction to Kambia; and we were brought to Lunsar and there another plan was made. The leader of the team was Col. Komba Gbundema, we walked from Lunsar to Kamakwie; we joined some of our companions who gave us manpower and arms, we left for Kambia; we came as far as Madina and we were faced with no confrontation, until we left Madina for Kambia. I was made C company commander. As we advanced to Kambia, we came across a check point, it was during night fall. There was somebody about to use en-route Kambia, our commanders got the individual under duress to take us through the bye-pass and into Kambia. At Romaka, we organized ourselves to launch this attack on Kambia, because not all of us had the guts to come and launch the attack on Kambia, I came forward with a small number of men and I was in front with my RPG ready for action. We met the Guinean guard at the check point smoking, but because some of our men panicked; he saw us and escaped and called for support. We closed in on them using the road branching from the FAO. When we came to where the Guineans were lodged we saw one of them with a lamp pointing around the house, and as I was ready with the RPG, I launched it on the building and the building caught fire. There was gunfire everywhere. And because the counter fire and their reinforcement was much, we had to withdraw and reorganize. We had then created a launching point for the Guineans, they launched all night, so we left them launching and used the bye-pass and entered Kambia town. They were at the check point. Later on though, they tried to get us, but at that such times I would use my RPG and send the bomb so you will never come near me again. So, I was given the name "CO One Bomb". When we had settled, we tried to set up a brigade at Madina. Strangely enough, we had certain men amongst us whose duty it appeared was to set houses on fire. I never knew what their problems were as I had not been here before. But upon their entry into the place, you would see houses on fire; that means they know about that place. This was what happened and that is why in certain areas you see a lot of burnt down houses. To stop this atrocity, we divided ourselves into three officers who were doing the work in turns and if one person comes to Kambia he will serve for a week and would go to Madina and rest for a while. During this time the people of Kambia had generally deserted their, though once in a while they would come and check to see what was going on. We set up a brigade and appointments were given to people who were seen as competent, I was made a second battalion commander, the other man was third battalion commander at Rokupr he was Col. Emmanuel, the other was Mustapha Dawi who was the first commander in Kamakwie. Still after these battalions had been set up the Guineans were still launching at us from the check point and sometimes they even came out to attack us. During this time I tried to make peace with the Guineans so that we could live in peace. I also went out looking for the inhabitants of Kambia to come back; those who had the guts to do so, came back. Later I was able to get a link with the Guinean commander Capt. Pepe and we came together as one. Once upon a time, it happened that one of my men, one Musa, went with one woman to the Guinean battalion and stole from them a radio set and a wrapper. The matter was reported to me. In order to prove that my command was not tolerant of bad behaviour, I sent for this man I interviewed him but he denied. However, later on he confessed and I ordered my men to give him 150 lashes and lock him in the guard room. After he was released, he ran away with his woman to Freetown. I still continued to encourage the people to come back as people were looting the zinc from their houses and indeed those who had the courage came back. I did not know that everything that I was doing; thinking that they were in line with good practice; were sending wrong signals to my commanders and I became a target. They would send their bodyguards to come and watch my activities. At some point we were able to open Kolenten Secondary School and some primary schools and some children started school. Whilst all this was going on I had another problem with my commander. It happened that the District Medical Officer came with a team for immunization. I led the team from here to Bramaya to sensitize the people about this programme. I even have documents to show. I met my commander holding meeting with the people. Therefore, I asked my boss that whilst they were on the meeting, he should give me time to go and sensitize people in the other villages. My boss misunderstood my language and my intentions, as he was illiterate. And there and then, he put me under "mess" arrest and I had to walk from Kukuna to Madina. I was under mess arrest for one month and one week. He even told me he could have me shot and nothing would come out of it. Later on however, I was freed and I came back to Kambia. Because of my relationship with the members of the community, he changed me and brought another person. One of my body guards went and shot an old man at Rogbere for fish. At the time of that incident, I was living here behind this house. And also at that time I had invited the MSF who were examining and immunizing the Under Fives. I went out to see what had happened. Meanwhile, I had just woken up and had not even washed my face; and I went and saw the Pa that was shot. His foot was badly hurt. I then went to see the culprit and by then the man in command was here. By then I held no office I was an ordinary officer. When I went to see the man who had committed the offence he was already bound up and put in a container. By then the man in command was right behind me in a vehicle. I took the man from the container, as he was my body guard and put him in the vehicle and came here. By then two thirds of the Kambia population had gathered to see what would be the punishment for this culprit. The Brigade Commander and the Officer in Charge put heads together to decide what should happen to the culprit. Then they asked that a report be sent to the brigade; but I reminded them that the man in question was my own bodyguard but, this notwithstanding, he should suffer in the same way as the man he had shot. We did not want the Kambia people to think otherwise of us; we shot him, right at the junction here as a deterrence to others that may be tempted to do wrong. I was transferred from Kambia to Rokupr, that very day I was taken to Mange Bureh and given another position, Brigade Task Force Commander, I followed orders; but before the end of the week it was changed to Finance Officer and brought back to Rokupr. This was another problem area between those selling petrol and the Boat Owners Association. All this happened in 2001, I was in the office as Finance Officer, the brigade commander would send and I would go and meet the people and measure petrol and send to the brigade commander. But I was put under all this pressure and therefore, targeted for two main reasons, one my nationality and secondly I was once an enemy and thirdly I was community-friendly. I had a problem, a very critical dilemma, whenever, as they often did, sent for fuel without money; I would always ask them, if we continue to take fuel from this people without money what will happen when they want to buy, and how do we continue? The petrol dealers met me and complained. The brigade commander and even those from Makeni would come to me for petrol and if they do not get it, that would be trouble. We accrued a debt of two million which we are still not able to pay up till today. The Brigade Commander had often retorted that countries do owe debts how much more us. I was the one signing for the petrol and this was a very serious problem because the people get their living from this selling fuel and to continue to take fuel without paying was a serious problem. This last time there was a bargain against me, they fought me in Mambolo. This happened about a week before the disarmament. The Brigade Commander set up a committee to look into the matter; we all made statements and they said they would call the witnesses to testify, but nothing happened up till now that we have been disarmed and the DDR process has taken place. Of all the statements that I made, given maybe there are people I have wronged apart from what I have explained because as long as you are alive ,apart from commission of errors which man is liable to as a result of man's fallibility,you cannot please everyone,though this no license to do what we know is evil .Therefore, where I have wronged anyone I ask that person to forgive me. We fought the war and it some time and it is not everything one can remember. This is all I have to say . Thank you.

Commission Chairman Bishop Joseph C. Humper

Bishop Humper – We thank you for your testimony. This is our procedure. We listen to your testimony and the Commissioners will ask you questions to clarify certain issues raised. The Leader of Evidence will also ask you questions and we will also ask you for questions and recommendations. We are, therefore, asking you to be brief. We need to write our report, so we ask questions for clarification. Let me ask you the first question, you said this process started in 1991?

Mr. David L.Boulah – Yes.

Bishop Humper – You have any idea of the three categories called Vanguard, Special Force and Commando.

Mr.David L.Boulah – I have no idea about them.

Bishop Humper – You said you were trained with the Liberian Defence Force, then ULIMO, then the Special Task Force, did you say the Government of Liberia and the Sierra Leone Government signed this agreement for you to fight?

Mr. David L.Boulah – No, it was the senior officers from Liberia who signed the agreement.

Bishop Humper – We need this clarification because you named the APC party, you said it had knowledge, is that correct?

Mr. David L.Boulah – Yes.

Bishop Humper - Then we came unto 1994, ULIMO and SLA were fighting this war. It was during this time that the ULIMO and SLA were fighting together?

Mr.David L.Boulah – It was during this time the ULIMO and SLA and all fighting forces with the government joined together.

Bishop Humper – You said that in 1994 you were disarmed and sent to Allen Town?

Mr.David L.Boulah – We were disarmed in 1994 and taken to Allen Town but NPRC armed us again.

Bishop Humper – May 25 1997, AFRC/RUF came onboard you were part of them, where were you in 1996?

Mr.David L.Boulah – I was in the jungle.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara – Thank you Mr. Chairman. Mr. Boulah, so you have given us a very simple and coherent story of your involvement during the war and you capped it all by making a plea to all the people you have wronged consciously or unconsciously to forgive you. So , there is very little anyone can ask you in regard to your violations of human rights during the war . But I have interest in your story because we have a problem in the Commission to unravel why the SLA who were supposed to be protecting the people turned round and became enemies of the people. And your story might help us to unravel the puzzle. You have fought on all sides of this war, you have fought as ULIMO, you fought with the SLA, and you fought with the Kamajors and also your former adversaries the RUF. You were telling us about what happened in 1994 and 1996, why were the people trying to frame your group as fighting alongside the RUF?

Mr. David L.Boulah – It was because during that time the ULIMO bosses did not joke with the business of fighting the enemy. ULIMO was in the forefront in the battles with the enemy. It was through ULIMO, that the SLA was able to fight the enemy. Those who were around would confirm this even the Chief of Staff Tom Carew would testify to this.

Prof. Kamara- Are you trying to tell us that because you were forthright and trying to be positive in bringing the war to an end that was why the Sierra Leone army was against you?

Mr. David L.Boulah – The reason was best known to them.

Prof. Kamara – What is your own opinion?

Mr. David L.Boulah – We were helping them that was all.

Prof. Kamara – If you are trying to help someone and then he turns against you what will be your own conclusion?

Mr David L.Boulah – well, it would mean that the person does not want my help in his country to stop what was going on.

Commissioner Mrs. Satang Ajaratou Jow

Commissioner Jow – I join the other Commissioners to thank you for your testimony. Please be patient and answer our questions for clarification. Can you tell us your age?

Mr. David L.Boulah – Presently I am 32 years plus.

Commissioner Jow – When did you start fighting with ULIMO?

Mr. David L.Boulah – In 1991.

Commissioner Jow – How old were you then?

Mr. David L.Boulah – I cannot be exact ;except I calculate.

Commissioner Jow – Can you tell us your educational background?

Mr. David L.Boulah – I just passed from 10th grade to 11th grade in Liberia.

Commissioner Jow – You told us you came as a refugee, how?

Mr. David L.Boulah – I came here as a refugee during the intense period of the war in Liberia.

Commissioner Jow – You told us that initially you fought on the side of the government and later you were accused of collaborating with the rebels was it true?

Mr. David L.Boulah – There was no truth in that allegation and because government proved that; that was why they sent for us again.

Commissioner Jow – You claimed you fought alongside the Kamajors and they turned against you can you explain that?

Mr.David L.Boulah – That was why when Prof. Kamara was explaining I had wanted to put my hand up and explain. The Kamajors were brought to fight alongside the government troops against the RUF and we had that same motive also. The ULIMO also had the same intention so these three groups were in the same stream but unfortunately on the side of the SLA the kamajors turned and started fighting against us.

Commissioner Jow – Thank you very much, we as a Commission have had plenty testimonies about the kamajors, since you have fought alongside the kamajors can you tell some of the atrocities they committed?

Mr. David L.Boulah – I cannot tell easily.

Commissioner Jow – Can you name some of the Kamajor leaders you fought alongside with?

Mr. David L.Boulah – No.

Commissioner Jow – From 1998 you were with the RUF, but in your testimony you have not told us about some of the atrocities committed by the RUF?

Mr. David L.Boulah – I did mention that in some areas people burnt down people's houses. This was what I saw during this time. I was only a stranger in some of the areas we went through and since we all came from different battalions we only joined forces to advance . I will not be able to say any other thing other than what I have said. In the area of the execution of the man who shot the Pa that is all I can say that I ordered the execution.

Commissioner Jow – So in a way will you hold yourself responsible for some of the bad things that happened to the people of Kambia as you were one of the commanders?

Mr.David L.Boulah – I cannot say so, why? During that time I was protecting my family and those around me, you can be working with somebody but his own idea or thinking will be quite different from yours.

Commissioner Professor John Kamara

Prof. Kamara – Are you trying to disclaim or refuse that you did some of the things you said you did, like giving command to give somebody 150 lashes? By the way can you tell the name of the man you ordered to be given 150 lashes?

Mr.David L.Boulah– Musa.

Prof. Kamara – The other one was the man who shot the civilian you ordered his execution, not so?

Mr.David L.Boulah – Yes sir.

Prof. Kamara – You have to accept what you did and ask the people to forgive you.

Commission Chairman Bishop Joseph C.Humper

Bishop Humper – You have been forthright with us. We will ask our staff to meet you because we will want to have more talk with you, you are very important and we are looking forward to someone like you to help us find the way forward. You have been very honest with us. I will only ask you one question as we will have to meet you again. When did you come into Sierra Leone and from what point did you come in ? I want to know whether it was through Kailahun?

Mr.David L.Boulah – I came in through Zimmi Magbele, I have never been to Kailahun.

Bishop Humper – Will you be able to explain to us what happened in 2000 to the UNAMSIL at the Pamlap?

Mr.David L.Boulah – I went to Rogbere to have a meeting with them, on my return by Yilleh I was in the boat crossing the river when I saw a lot of people waiting for a boat with which to cross . When I got there I asked them what the problem was ? They said they heard gunshotS from the check point area. I asked them to come back with me, when we came back at the check point I met the Brigade Commander and he told me that the UNAMSIL had come to clear the check point.

Bishop Humper – Who are you referring to as them?

Mr.David L.Boulah – The Brigade Commander for the RUF, as I was with the RUF. I came back home a sad man as I had done everything to bring back the people and open the schools.

Bishop Humper – So indeed it happened?

Mr.David L.Boulah – Yes.

Bishop Humper – Now the Pamlap issue.

Mr.David L.Boulah – I was not there. I was Finance Officer in Rokupr at that time. What they put together and what they did I do not know I only learnt of it later.

Leader of Evidence – Ms. Lydia Apori-Nkansah

Ms. Apori-Nkansah- In your narration you made it clear to us you ran away from your country because of the war. Sierra Leone, therefore, became a place of refuge for you. You made it clear to us that for the attack on Kambia you gave the first shot. You also told us that some people's duty was to burn houses. Having known the effects of war in your country, how do you feel when you see the carnage as you walk around Kambia, being the one who gave the first shot here in Kambia?

Mr. David L.Boulah – Many of us know and many of us do not know what war is all about. I come from a home. It makes me feel bad.

Bishop Humber – We have been asking you questions . Now, it is your own turn to ask questions and make recommendations.

Mr.David L.Boulah – TRC wants to know the causes of the war, is that not so? And the reasons why somebody like me decided to join the war. You have got statements from me. Now, the problem is this, we do not want a situation wherein we will be faced with another problem in the country, the ex-combatants have been through a reintegration process, the government had said they would give them a package and a certificate to show they have been through the process, what will be the next step if the government does not fulfill this promise to such people?

Bishop Humber – I believe the next plan should be to go to the DDR office and enquire and you will get an answer.

Mr. David L.Boulah – This has been put to the Regional Officer North whom I believe is the person to put this forward to but we have not had any reply. I can easily write an application to another area for a job but what about the next man who cannot read or write; how can that man take care of his family?

Bishop Humber – I understand some people have still not benefited from the DDR. I will advise that you see the TRC staff after this hearing and they will help you channel this issue.If you have any recommendation to give to this Commission as regard those who are victims and those perpetrators who committed the worst atrocities please give it now.

Mr.David L.Boulah – I will say that youths are the leaders of tomorrow. Unnecessary provocation towards youths should be curtailed. Therefore,youth unemployment should be addressed. There should be a corridor or any community area for youths to be gainfully employed. The government is talking about food security; there should be a farm in every district or community where youth should be gainfully employed to work .

Bishop Humber – On Friday there will be a reconciliation ceremony. After your testimony you asked for forgiveness. We want you to say that clearly on that day to show that you really mean what you have said today in a simple manner so that the people will forgive you.

Mr.David L.Boulah – Mr. Commissioner sir, please allow me to say this. There is a coincidence. We have a church programmme which will start in Freetown tomorrow to end on Saturday. That is the reason why I had to come today .That is why I plead that what I should say on Friday ,let me say it here today.

Bishop Humber – I am also a man of God, the ceremony is on Friday and we cannot cut it short for you. So you either wait for Friday or you find another time to talk to your people and we are not coming here again and if the traditional rulers and the religious leaders do not lay their hands on you to show that you have been forgiven you will have no complete forgiveness from your people. You can leave for your religious meeting in Freetown today and come back on Thursday.

Mr. David L. Boulah- No problem sir.

Bishop Humper – At one point you spoke like David and now you want to speak like Jonah. Please go and try to come back for Friday. You are a traditional man yourself and you understand what it means. The minds of your people are bleeding .So, please try to be here.

2nd Witness – Ya Alimamy Kafor – A Christian by religion. Oath was administered by Commission Chairman Bishop Joseph C. Humper.

Bishop Humper – We thank you, you are one of the hundreds of people we are looking forward to help us find the way forward in this country. Your statement is very important. So, we ask you to be calm and give your statement.
